ALL DUE TO A LANTERN.

IT WAS THE CAUSE OF A BICYCLE BEING STOLEN.

And Then as the Thief Had None he was Caught.—Charles Richardson's Unsuccessful Attempt to Get Away with one of Mr. Martin's Wheels.

It is doubtful if a bicycle thief was ever in possession of his ill gotten property for a shorter time than was one Saturday night.

At 5.30 o'clock Mr. Alex Flack rented a wheel from Mr. Frank L. C. Martin, the proprietor of the Park avenue Wheelmen's Headquarters. As he reached the street with the wheel he noticed that there was no lantern. To avoid running the chances of being arrested for riding without a light, he left the bicycle outside and went back for a lantern. He says he was in the store about two minutes.

When he came out the bicycle was gone. He hastened back in the store and notified Mr. Martin of the theft.

Mr. Martin hurriedly despatched several of his workmen in different directions in order, if possible, to overtake the thief. Mr. Flack also took a wheel and aided in the search. Mr. Martin, meantime prepared telegrams to send to the chief of police in each of the cities in this vicinity.

The searching parties were sent out so quickly after the theft was committed that the thief had very little advantage of the pursuers. The men were instructed to stop every bicyclist who didn't have a light.

Mr. Flack went out the county road to west Elizabeth. Near Netherwood he came up with a wheelman without a lantern. He stopped him and asked him whose wheel he was riding. The man said it was his own.

Both men had dismounted and as Mr. Flack asked to see the number of the wheel, the thief, for it was Richardson, stepped out. Mr. Flack brought the wheel back to this city, and Mr. Martin hastened to the Fourth office just in time to stop his telegrams.

The thief episode made Mr. Flack's ride yesterday a free one, as the Pope Manufacturing Co. offer a reward of fifty dollars to every person who returns one of their wheels that has been stolen. The wheel he was rented Saturday night, but Mr. Flack did not intend to use it until yesterday. But as the wheelmen's headquarters are not open on Sunday Mr. Martin rents them the night before. The bicycle stolen was a Columbia Century.

It was ascertained that the name of the man who attempted to elope with "Columbia" was Charles Richardson of Linwood. On complaint of Mr. Martin, Justice Nash issued a warrant for his arrest.

Mr. Martin has another matter to settle with Richardson, also. On December 19th last Richardson gave him a check for $1.00 on the First National Bank. The check proved to be a fraud, as he had no account there. From the time the bicycle was taken out of the store to its return was only about a half hour.

TOO HARD FOR THEM.

SOMERSET STREET'S ROAD BED IS A "JONAH" TO THE ITALIANS.

After One Day's Digging They Demand an Increase in Wages—If They do not Get it They Leave and a New Gang is put at Work.

There is some trouble connected with the laying of the tracks of the electric railway on Somerset street.

New gangs of Italians, it is said, ha ve been employed nearly every day to take the places of those who have been at work. It appears that the roadbed is unusually hard and after working at it a few hours the different gangs of Italians have, in every case, talked together a few moments and then sent a delegate to the boss to demand a raise in wages from $1.25 a day to $1.50, the same as received by the laborers of other nationalities. The result each time has been a strike and the employment of another new gang. The stormy weather is also considerably delaying the work, and meanwhile drivers of vehicles become very profane at the obstructions. The track bed and the piles of stone and dirt take up two-thirds of the roadway, and if there is a wagon passing, those going the opposite direction must wait. A new gang of Italians were dickering with the construction boss to-day, and it is evident that they were not satisfied with the arrangements, for they walked away murmuring in an ominous way, while the surprised contractor stood gazing after them.

PERSONAL.

Mr. E. H. Depew of 15 Crescent avenue returned Saturday to 29 Franklin place.

Leo Smith, the new short stop of the Crescents, moved with his family to this city Saturday from Brooklyn.

The youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buckley of Liberty street was christened yesterday, by Father Smyth.

Mr and Mrs. George Mahon of Asbury Park have become permanent residents of this city and now reside on Union avenue.

Mr. M. H. Haven, Manager of the Swift Chicago Beef Co. in this city, was married yesterday in New York, to Miss Mary L. Jennings.

Mrs. Harriet N. Case, of Church street, died Saturday of erysipelas, resulting from the grip. She was 76 years old and had been ill about five weeks.

Mr. Edward M. Devine of West Fourth street, who has been ill for two months past with a complication of diseases, has recovered sufficiently to be out again.

J. Stanley, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Scott Terry of Alton, died Saturday morning. The funeral took place at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon. Interment at Hillside Cemetery.

Mr. J. A. Hennessey, one of the Holy Cross Lyceum's crack bowlers, who accompanied the team from New York to this city Saturday night, is a cousin of Mr. William Kiely of Stiner place, with whom he spent yesterday.

Mr. Frank Nash and family of Maspeth, L. I., are visiting at home of his brother, Justice Vincent W. Nash, of Prospect avenue. Saturday afternoon his three year old daughter strayed from the house and couldn't find her way home. After several hours' search she was found near Netherwood.

Crescent Riding Academy Opening To-night.

The "Crescent Riding Academy," a new enterprise in the Crescent Building on Broadway, will have a grand opening this evening.

On the solid floor on which so many people of Plainfield, in the time of the roller skating craze, wheeled themselves about in various graceful and other attitudes, there is now a layer of earth and tan-bark. On this, to-night, Plainfield's gallants and ladies will either look on or participate in an equestrian parade and fancy riding. Particulars may be found in the advertisement elsewhere.

When "Chief" Maxson Ruled.

Matthew McGrath, an old umbrella mender, was arraigned in the city courts this morning to plead to to charge drunkenness. He made $1.00 Saturday and in celebration of the event became intoxicated. He begged so hard to be let off that Judge suspended sentence. McGrath said he hadn't been arrested before, Saturday, since "Chief" Maxson was in office. McGrath had the last name right but he was a little mixed as to the title, as he meant Mayor Maxson.

A One Armed Bicyclist Injured.

A one armed colored bicyclist was thrown from his wheel while riding on Liberty street, Saturday, and severely injured. The accident was caused by a piece of wood, which in some manner caught in the front wheel of the bicycle. Wood, bicycle and rider were all mixed up for a while. When at last they were straightened out, it was found that the man's face was badly scratched and his wheel minus several spokes.

Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers Have a Run.

About a dozen members of the Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers participated in a run yesterday afternoon. The start was made at 2:30 o'clock from their club house on West Sixth street.

They rode to Rahway, and from there to Elizabeth, where they were the guests of the Y. M. C. L. A. The cyclers reached

HOW VAN NESS WAS CAUGHT.

He Baffled New York Detectives for Some Time.

The story of the arrest of Lawyer John K. Van Ness, which was briefly mentioned in Saturday's News, as told by the Herald, is as follows:

The lawyer was arrested on February 8th on the complaint of Dyckman Waldron, of No 241 West Forty-fifth street, who claimed that Van Ness had forged a check for $1,000. There were six examinations set in the Tombs Police Court and postponed at the request of the defendant.

Mrs. Mary Jones, of No. 226 Ninth avenue, furnished Van Ness $2,000 bail, which he forfeited on March 18, when he disappeared. A bench warrant was then issued for Van Ness' arrest, but no trace of him could be found by Detective Sergeant Trainor.

The latter visited the office of Van Ness at No. 196 Broadway several times, and watched a clerk named Van Winkle. The latter would leave the office and make a detour of the city on the "L" road and subway, and then disappear from the detective's eyes.

Detective Trainor watched Van Winkle Friday afternoon. Later in the afternoon Van Winkle, carrying a bundle of letters, slipped out of his office and jumped on a passing car. Trainor was a close follower.

Van Winkle left the car at Twenty third street and after a short walk boarded another car which he left to take an "L" train. This was kept up for nearly two hours, when the clerk finally boarded a Brooklyn ferryboat.

Detective Sergeant Trainor saw Van Winkle enter the Carleton House, Kent avenue and South Eighteenth street, Brooklyn, and asked to be shown "Mr. Johnson's" room. Van Winkle hardly entered the latter and closed the door behind him when the detective rapped on the door.

On the door being opened on a crack, Trainor pushed his way in and found in "Mr. Johnson" the long sought for lawyer Van Ness, who was placed under arrest and brought to this city, where he was locked up in Police Headquarters until yesterday morning.

He was brought down to the Court of General Sessions building and arraigned before Judge Martine in the latter's chambers. His counsel made her appearance, but as she had not paid the $2,000 on the forfeited bail she would not be accepted and Van Ness was locked up in the Tombs.

A MILLION-DOLLAR PAGEANT.

Barnum and Bailey's New Free Street Parade.

FOR the first time in many years the public will be treated to an absolutely new free street circus and spectacular procession. With the usual disregard of expense and with the energy that has characterized every effort of Barnum & Bailey, they have designed an entirely new street parade for the pleasure of the people, and when it is freely offered upon the same generous scale as the performances within the tents, one can easily imagine its magnificent splendours. All the principal events in American history are illustrated by living figures on costly chariots, and Arabian Nights stories, nursery rhymes, children's fables and childhood's dreams are likewise beautifully pictured by living tableaux. As the bills on the fences say, "it is worth coming miles to see, and once seen never forgotten." The following order of march will tell the story of its magnitude. The parade will tell the story of its magnitude. The parade will take place at about nine o'clock in the morning on Wednesday, May 3d.

GRIFFEN VS. SPRINGER.

SOME OF THE FACTS OF A CASE THAT WAS TRIED THREE TIMES.

"There is no Use Deliberating," said the Justice, "You Must Bring in a Verdict for the Plaintiff without Leaving your Seats."

The following is a portion of the particulars given in yesterday's Sun about the Springer case reported in THE NEWS of Friday:

The facts in the case of Griffen vs. Springer, which has been tried three times, the last time being last Friday, are not generally known.

Springer came to Plainfield about a year ago from Plitston, Pa. While he lived in Plitston he occupied Griffen's house. When he left Plitston his lease of Griffen's house had more than a year to run, but Griffen's agent entered into a verbal agreement to release him from liability for the rent, and promised to destroy the lease. This the agent failed to do, and about three weeks ago Griffin brought suit in this city against Springer for $172.85 rent. Mr. Craig A. Marsh was Griffin's lawyer in bringing the suit, and City Judge William A. Coddington defended the suit for Springer. Twice before the case came up before Justice Wadsworth, and each time the jury stood eleven to one in favor of the defendant.

Friday, the case came up before Justice Wadsworth for the third time. After the evidence, Lawyer Coddington attempted to sum up his case before the jury, but he was ordered to take his seat by the court. He, however, was able to get most of his argument before the jury by ostensibly arguing to the Judge his right to speak in behalf of his client. Lawyer Marsh, for the plaintiff, requested the Judge to instruct the jury to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff. This Justice Wadsworth proceeded to do, and, when Lawyer Coddington protested, said:

"I overrule the whole defence. There is none, and I instruct you, gentlemen of the jury, to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff without leaving your seats."

Juror Corriell sprang to his feet at this and said on behalf of the jury that they would not bring in a verdict then, but demanded time for deliberation.

"There is no use deliberating," said the Justice: "you must bring in a verdict for the plaintiff without leaving your seats."

Again the jurors protested, and finally the Judge gave in, and, as there was no retiring room, the Judge, lawyers, and spectators had to retire from the court room and leave the jury in possession. After ten minutes' deliberation and one ballot the jury brought in a verdict that the plaintiff had no cause of action.

It is presumed that the Judge considered that the written agreement or lease could not be set aside on oral testimony alone of its having been terminated, but it appears that the jurors took into consideration the fact that the agreement, there being a valuable consideration, was not signed by witnesses, and was, therefore, in their judgment, of no account. That is how one of the jurors afterwards explained the matter to a News reporter.

The defendant did not, it seems, have any written evidence to meet the written evidence of the plaintiff.

NO HEREAFTER, HE THINKS.

Rector Jennings Causes another Surprise at Westfield.

The adherents of Rector J. B. Jennings of Westfield who attended service in the Episcopal Church yesterday morning were much shocked at the sentiments set forth by their pastor in his sermon. He began by saying he did not believe in a future hereafter for a man's soul, and that when a person died his soul, like his body, turned to ashes, and that was the end of him.

Notwithstanding this gloomy view of the future, however, Rector Jennings admonished his followers to be sober and righteous, but to get all the pleasure out of this life they could, for eternity would be a blank.

The old vestry and discontented members of the church who are trying to oust the rector feel confident that in a little while he will preach to empty seats. The Supreme Court of the State still has the case under consideration.

Base Ball Notes.

Turner, who played right field for the Crescents last year, has been signed by Manager Keller. He will probably be the extra player. Although his regular position last year was in the field, he was put in the box in several instances, and always did good work.

The base ball season in Plainfield will be opened Saturday on the grounds of the Plainfield Amusement Company, Somerset street, when a game between the Crescents and the Star Athletics of Newark. The following are the games booked to June, all to be played at home:

May 6—Star Athletics, Newark.
May 13—Young American, Philadelphia.
May 20—Nurses' Hills, New York.
May 27—Acmes, New York.
May 30—Morning, Cuban Giants.
" Afternoon, Flushings.
June 3—Hyndles, Paterson.
June 24—Wendells.

Flower Thieves.

Last week, thieves stole flowers from the lawn and porches of several East Fifth street residents. Complaints have been made to the police about the matter, and arrests are likely to follow.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

The Jennings Writ Upheld.

TRENTON, N. J., May 1st, (Special.)—Rev. J. B. Jennings, the Westfield clergymen whose persistent and so far successful fighting against the Bishop and standing committee of the Diocese of New Jersey, has caused so much newspaper comment throughout the country, has scored another victory in the Supreme court. To-day Judges Van Syckel and Reed filed their decision on the Bishop's motion to dissolve the writ of certiorari obtained Jennings last March.

The Judges refuse to dissolve the writ, and hold that Mr. Jennings has a right to present for the decision of the Supreme Court the questions he has raised. Mr. Jennings is represented by Mr. Craig A. Marsh of Plainfield, and the Bishop, the standing committee and the Westfield church authorities are represented by Mr. B. F. B. Shreve of Camden.

Base Ball.

The Arlingtons of this city went to Dunellen Saturday morning and defeated the Stars of that place by a score of 19 to 8. The Arlingtons had every thing their own way from beginning to end, and the game in the main was dragging by making four runs. The Dunellen players did not play together considering that they had not played together before this season. The features of the game were the pitching of G. Bonnell, for the Arlingtons, and the pitching of Zender for the Dunellens. Following is the score by innings:

| | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Arlingtons..... | 4 | 2 | 1 | 5 | 3 | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 | —19 |
| Dunellens..... | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 4 | 3 | —8 |

Base hits—Arlingtons, 19; Dunellens, 13. Struck out—By Arlingtons, 9; by Dunellens, 5.

The "Old Homestead."

The "Old Homestead" is accepted by every class of theatre goers, not only as being sound in moral tone, but for possessing many true touches of human nature. Every season has heard of the remarkable success of the piece in New York, where it is now in its fourth year. To the minds of most of the spectators it recalls recollections that are dear to their hearts, and they are touched by the homely, but virtue virtues of the leading characters. It will be at Music Hall, Friday night.

An Increase in the Horse Family.

Saturday night the horse population in this vicinity was increased by the birth of three quadrupeds. They are all thoroughbreds. The mothers are owned by Mr. J. Wesley Johnson of La Grande avenue. The trio were born at Mr. Johnson's beautiful stock farm on Park avenue.

Too High for the Bridge.

Saturday night a Newark furniture van had to stop at the Park avenue railroad bridge as the furniture was packed on top to such a height it couldn't pass under. The driver was compelled to unload some of his goods in the streets to enable him to proceed.

Another Bicycle Stolen.

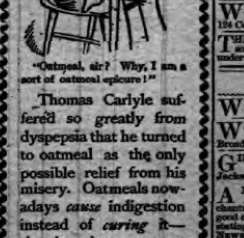
George Wyckoff of East Fourth street left a bicycle standing on West Front street, near the corner of Somerset street, Saturday night, while he went into a store. When he came out the bicycle was gone. He has no clue to the thief.



"Oatmeal, sir? Why, I am a sort of oatmeal epicure!"

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Mackerel leaf in the History of trades unions and labor strikes is that which will record the story, if it is a true one, of the attempt to poison mormon men at Homestead.

It is not always a sign of declining prosperity when a country ceases to increase in population at a rate equal to its highest notch. Rats, rabbits, roaches and English sparrows are the most prolific of creatures.

Professor Langley of the Smithsonian is still pegging away at his flying machine. He has perfected his latest model, which weighs 40 pounds and cost $50,000. The body of the machine is modelled like that of a mackerel. The extreme end of the tail is the storage tank for the fuel and gas which propel the flyer. In the middle of the mackerel shaped body are the boilers, while the engines are in the head. The fuel is refined gasoline, which, it is to be hoped, will not explode some fine day and let everything drop. Instead of water a light hydrocarbon mixture is used. Aluminum plays an important part in the construction of the ship on account of its lightness. Steel is also used. The engines will turn a crank or screw shaft, and that will turn the aeroplanes, which correspond to sails. There are two of these, the larger one, 40 feet long, being in front, the smaller in the rear. For sailcloth china silk is used. In his laboratory in the Smithsonian Professor Langley succeeded in making small models which fly perfectly, but we have yet to hear the result of the attempt to float the large one in the open air. Meantime where is Mr. Maxim's airship?

Depression in Australasia.

It is to be hoped that many a year will elapse before such a season of financial depression overtakes the United States as that from which the British Australasian colonies are now suffering. It is unparalleled in the history of Australasia.

The cause of the hard times is twofold, according to Mr. Matthew Marshall in the New York Sun. It is given in the paragraph below, and labor organizations may be interested to know that he attributes the depression partly to workingmen's strikes. He says:

The failure of the English, Scottish and Australian banks announced here on Wednesday affects us only indirectly through London, where it is likely to intensify the existing feeling of depression and delay the revival of commercial and financial activity in Great Britain for which many enterprises on this side of the Atlantic are waiting. The failure of the Bank of Australia is the most important before last, is one of a series of similar catastrophies which began with the collapse of the great land speculations throughout the Australian federation in 1891, and which have been more or less the consequence of that collapse and of the accompanying strikes of 1890 and 1891.

These strikes started in Queensland among the union sheep shearers and were taken up by the union dock laborers and unionized men of Sydney, with the result of completely paralyzing the shipping business of that port. The union bricklayers, union boatmen and union brickmakers in Victoria next struck on their own account and after them the workmen of the various building trades. The result was almost a complete suspension of business everywhere in Australasia for nearly a year, and the federation has evidently not yet recovered from the injury thus caused to its prosperity. The existing strikes at Hull and other British ports now in progress are ominous of similar disaster to Great Britain and cannot but have an unfavorable effect upon that country's trade.

"Sanitary Day."

The fine old state of Pennsylvania occasionally presents to the public a new idea worthy of all consideration. Of this sort is the proposal for an annual "Sanitary day," which has been laid before her legislature. The bill which has been presented asks that the first Thursday in May every year be designated as Sanitary day, and that it be devoted to giving the public instructions in hygienic science and elementary.

There might well be a sanitary day in every state once a year at least, on the principle of the man who always took a bath once a year whether he needed it or not. Such a holiday would go well with Arbor day. It ought to come with the beginning of hot weather so that all our people in country and city might be impressed with the necessity of thoroughly disinfecting and cleaning up all their premises inside and out. The school children are the ones among whom the glorious tree planting and tree preserving movement began. It should be the same with Sanitary day. The school children are the hope of this nation. Once they are thoroughly aroused to the benefits of sanitary science they will do the rest in their homes and in their outside surroundings. They will teach their parents how air and drinking water may spread death.

Rollo Russell in his book on epidemic plagues and fevers complains of the instruction in our public schools. He says we compel children to go to school and learn the history of worthless old kings about whom nobody cares in the least, while we neglect to instruct them in matters that pertain vitally to their own present and future. His complaint is just. The public schools ought to be the great disseminators of sanitary and hygienic science. Ancient history, even curious and abstruse mathematical puzzles, might well give way to practical instruction in how to keep clean, moral and healthy. All this is part of the child's education, and the most important part. Once a child gets broken in to the knowledge of how to build, bathe, clean skin, fresh air and well brushed teeth are, he will never again be willing to be a filthy, disease breeding little animal.

THE FAIR OPEN.

Gates of the Columbian Exposition Swung Back.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES.

President Cleveland Released the Pent Up Power.

When He Pressed the Electric Button Cannon Thundered, Multitudes Shouted and Thousands of Flags Were Unfurled. The Buildings Are Completed, but the Exhibits Are Not All In Place—Scenes About the City—The Opening Exercises.

CHICAGO, May 1.—The gates are open. The Columbian exposition has been formally inaugurated. The White City in Jackson park is ready for the inspection of the world. The stupendous enterprise which a nation can put forth in a patriotic attempt to commemorate the discovery of its own birthplace has been flashed upon the country.

The ceremonies were simple in themselves, yet the effect was impressive. By the simple pressure of a button, the president of the United States started 100,000 wheels into motion, and transformed the many buildings into scenes of the liveliest activity.

Early in the morning of this, the most eventful May day in the history of the nation, Chicago began to take on a most unusual appearance. It is true that the decorating has been going on for months, but this morning it seemed as if the people had decided to do it all over again on a scale twice as large. But this was only one evidence of the holiday.

Last night as the city was wrapped in darkness it did not seem possible that many more people could come. The city was already filled to overflowing, but they have kept right on coming. All day Sunday the incoming trains were crowded.

How the President Spent Sunday.

President Cleveland had spent a quiet Sunday mingling religion, social calls, driving and reception of visitors in a moderate manner as becomes the head of a great nation. He breakfasted at 9 o'clock with members of his cabinet in the public dining rooms, declining to take any of his meals in the private dining room.

After breakfast the president, accompanied by the secretary of state and Mrs. Gresham, the secretary of the navy and Miss Herbert, drove in carriages two blocks to the second Presbyterian church at Michigan boulevard and Twentieth street, where arrangements had been made for the reception of the party. They were conducted to a prominent seat in the body of the big church, which had been quietly draped with the national flag. There was a beautiful display of palms, blooming plants, ferns and cut flowers in vases arranged on and around the pulpit and other parts of the edifice.

The congregation was a large one, but the presence of the presidential party did not divert the good Presbyterians from their worship. The pastor, Rev. Simon F. McPherson, preached an eloquent sermon appropriate to the opening of the exposition, the subject being, "The man of God at the opening of the World's fair gates." The president and members of the cabinet joined heartily in the song service and seemed to be oblivious of the glances cast at them by the congregation.

After luncheon at the hotel the president accepted the invitation of his secretary of the treasury to accompany him in making a few social calls on old friends. Secretary Gresham took the president to his own home, and they enjoyed the drive, even if the weather was cold, damp and raw, with the never let up north wind blowing. For the rest of the afternoon and evening, excepting the time occupied at dinner, the president remained in his apartments receiving a few favored callers.

The president retired early, so as to be prepared for the opening of the fair today, and he fervently expressed the hope that the sun would deign to smile on the ceremony.

The Duke of Veragua spent Sunday a little more ceremoniously than did Mr. Cleveland, but he enjoyed himself none the less. He expressed his unfeigned delight at the attention which had been paid him and the honors given him by the state, and the president, and his party started in carriages for the west side to attend a celebration of solemn high mass at the Jesuit Church of the Holy Family.

On the Grounds All Night.

The enterprising American spirit which prompts our people to do many laudable acts, urged thousands of people to leave their homes at no one knows what hour of the day or night and make their way to Jackson park. They started to be there for the opening. They not only took their breakfasts with them, but they managed to get their sleep finished as near the spot where they intended to see the exhibition upon as possible.

At daylight, so the trainmen say, the outward bound cars were crowded with these enterprising people, and they kept flowing toward the fair grounds all the forenoon.

Enough were left in the city, however, to crowd the streets in the vicinity of the hotels where the president and the other distinguished guests were quartered. They seemed to be almost as much of a desire to see the Duke of Veragua, the lineal descendant of Columbus, as there was to catch a glimpse of the president.

As the morning wore on the crowds grew denser and more restless. From the great railroad arteries there was being debouched into the city every few minutes other trains loads of people, who began to hurry somewhere the minute they left the cars. Invariably they met and got tangled up with other people who were in just as much of a hurry to go in the opposite direction. Thus, from the center of the city to Midway plaisance, inside the grounds, a seething confusion reigned.

But out of the confusion came a certain sort of order. The programme for the opening exercises had been arranged so many times that every detail was thoroughly understood by the committees in charge.

The first sign of official movement came shortly after 9 o'clock when President Cleveland was escorted to his carriage. The Duke of Veragua and his party were already awaiting the president in their carriages.

There was some delay, but after awhile the line was formed and the procession moved towards the grounds in this order:

The Order of the Procession.

Detachment of park police.
The Chicago band.
Fifteenth regiment, United States infantry, Lieutenant Colonel Overshine commander.
Company K, Troop C, United States cavalry, Captain L. H. Rare commanding.
First Carriage—General Brooke and James Scott, representing the national commissioner.
Second Carriage—The Duke of Veragua, President Bryan and Charles Henrotin, representing the World's Fair directory.
Third Carriage—The Duke of Veragua, President Palmer, Commander Dickins and President Higginbotham.
Fourth Carriage—The Duchess of Veragua, Mrs. John A. Logan of the board of lady managers; Mrs. Commander Dickins.
Fifth Carriage—President of the United States, governor of Illinois, mayor of Chicago.
Sixth Carriage—Vice president of the United States, president Columbian commission, president of Columbian exposition.
Seventh Carriage—Secretary of state, director general of exposition.
Eighth Carriage—Secretary of interior, collector of the port, Director Lawrence.
Ninth Carriage—Secretary of war, Commander Wheeler.
Tenth Carriage—Secretary of navy, Commissioner Allen.
Eleventh Carriage—Postmaster general, Commissioner Smalley.
Twelfth Carriage—Attorney general of United States, Commissioner Barbour.
Thirteenth Carriage—Director Wacker.
Fourteenth Carriage—Secretary of agriculture, Director Bartlett.

Crowds Everywhere.

The line of march to the park was south on Michigan avenue to Thirty-fifth street, east on Thirty-fifth to Grand boulevard, south to Midway plaisance and through that thoroughfare to the exposition grounds and to the Administration building.

All along the line were cheering thousands, but at last the carriages passed in through the great golden gate, and depositad the distinguished guests at the foot of the stairs leading to the great stand at the east end of the Administration building.

It was an imposing spectacle. There before the vast crowd that thronged the plaza were grouped about 2,000 as prominent and distinguished people as ever gathered together on any occasion since American history first began to be made. This gathering included besides the Duke of Veragua, the guest of the nation, and the party which came in his carriage, Secretary Gresham, the diplomatic corps, all the officials of the World's Columbian exposition and the national commission, the board of lady managers, governors of nearly all the states and territories, commissioners appointed by such foreign countries as take part in the exposition and high officials of the army and navy of the United States. These gentlemen were all to play a part in the opening ceremonies. Some of them were to make speeches, but the greater number were to be listeners and interested observers.

The Ceremonies Begun.

As soon as every one of the party had found seats the Rev. W. H. Milburn of Washington advanced to the front of the box with bared head, spread out his han is and uttered a prayer.

Following this came the reading of the Columbian poem of W. G. Croffut by Miss Jessie Couthoui.

A blast of instrumental music followed and when it closed President Palmer of the national commission in a few brief words announced the completion of the buildings and the acceptance of them by the commissioners. He ended by presenting President Cleveland.

As the president, with his black Prince Albert tightly buttoned around him advanced with bared head to the front of the platform the spectators broke out in a storm of welcome. The president acknowledged it by a slight bow, and hurried through his address so that he might reach the culminating and dramatic feature of the programme on time.

When the hour of noon was yet but a few minutes distant in the future a hush began to steal over the grand stand. The silence gradually spread out over the swaying, straining crowds, and hardly one of the many thousands present but realized how big was the moment about to come with historic events.

So marked was the hush that the closing sentences of the president's address, the last out part of which had been lost to all except the army of newspaper men who sat on either hand, were heard far out in the crowd.

Then, just as the hands pointed to the hour, the president grasped the ivory knob of the telegraphic key of solid gold and pressed it down. The scene was a remarkable one.

When the Key Was Pressed.

What the spectators saw first as a result of that pressure was the instant unfurling of thousands of flags on the fair buildings. From every one the simultaneous of the pack the stars and stripes broke forth and fluttered in the breeze as if by magic—not alone Old Glory, but flags of all shapes and colors. Huge streamers of red white and blue, fantastic banners and pennants of many hues uncoiled and staggered out. Hot Hiawatha applauded. It almost seemed as if the sky was blazing with fires that caught their hints from the patriotic spirit of the day.

The next thing the crowd saw was the uprloping into life of the big fox tails in front of the Administration building.

The first thing to be heard was the booming of the cannon from the revenue cutter Andrew Johnson, for as soon as the gunners saw the flags break out they began firing the national salute of 21 guns.

Then came the cheers. The people seemed to have gone wild and they shouted and thronked in a frenzy of excitement.

When the cheers died down some the low but penetrating hum of wheels, which showed that the electric current had put the big machinery into motion, was heard in the various buildings the power was being distributed. This hum of wheels is to form the wholesome bass for all the music which is all that will now go through the summer be heard inside and outside of the park.

After this formal exercises the president and invited guests went into the Administration building and began their tour of inspection.

Tomorrow comes the public, and the rush which every one is so anxious should hold out as well as it has begun.

Exhibitors Have Been Busy.

It must be admitted that the public finds the fair still in a somewhat incomplete condition, but this regretful situation is due more to tardiness of exhibitors than to any lack of energy on the part of management of the exposition. Nearly every building now constructed by the exposition proper in the great White City, is practically completed, and it is in the matter of the installation of exhibits and not a delay which can be attributed to any failure of the construction department.

Indeed, to Chief Burnham and President Higginbotham must be given most of the credit for the phenomenal labors which have converted a barren park into an artistic city in the brief space of 18 months. The difficulties encountered have been exceptionally harrassing, the most severe winter known for many years to the building trades coming just at a time when its worst effects would be most unfavorable to the success of the international exposition. For weeks it was almost impossible to work on the outside of the World's fair buildings, and the heavy rains of the winter did much damage to the roofs of several of these architectual triumphs on more than one occasion.

In the brief respites afforded by the weather from time to time, however, every resource of capital and executive ability was brought to bear to hasten the work, and through the unfavorable weather spells have waged almost constant warfare like revengeful beings of intelligence, up to the very opening day of the exposition. Little has been to delay the installation of exhibits and retard the completion of several structures which were rather the artistic triumphings of after thought than a component part of the World's fair.

The Buildings Completed.

The great buildings which constitute the vital concentration of the international exposition and which are a monument to the indomitable executive ability of Chief Burnham and his associates have been completed for weeks ready for the installation of exhibits. They are the Manufacturers' and Liberal Arts buildings, Art building, Machinery hall, Electricity hall, Fisheries building, Agricultural building, Women's buildings, Forestry building, Mines and Mining, Horticultural, Agricultural, Transportation building, Administration building and that of the United States Government building. Of the scores of state buildings, nearly all are completed or nearing completion, and the Midway plaisance, with its dozen of Japanese, Turkish, Soudanese and other typical villages, which have sprung up like mushrooms in a few weeks or days.

On all the north side today there is positively no bare place than in the Manufacturers' and Liberal Arts' building. It is a teeming city under iron and glass. To fill into the picture all the attention on these floors, where 200,000 people might be seated and on which the greatest army of the earth might be mobilized, would be to count the sands that might fill a bushel measure.

The building itself is completed. It is ready, and the only incompleteness is within. The 700,000 tons was estimated to cost has been spent; the 8,000,000 feet of lumber needed to construct it is in place; the 10,000,000 pounds of iron has been put in position—and the Corinthian pile stands as a monument to genius of American science and skill.

The Electricity Building.

The electrical display far surpasses anything the management of the great fair had ever hoped to secure. There is in this palace of wonders everything in the way of an electric contrivance from Benjamin Franklin's lightning rod, the first instrument for the commercial application of electricity, down to Edison's latest achievement, the kinetograph and electric synchronism.

Of the foreign countries here represented Germany has the largest display. It has 20,000 square feet of space. France comes next with 17,000 square feet, and England third with 6,000 square feet. Spain, Austria, Spain and Italy each have 1,000 square feet. The United States lends them all with 120,000 square feet.

Among the wonders of the electric exhibit is the most powerful searchlight ever made. The projector of this light measures 6 feet in diameter. The light is of 200,000 candle power, and so strong and its rays that it is said an ordinary newspaper may be read at a distance of 75 miles. It was made in Nuremberg, Germany. But the greatest wonder of the exhibit is Edi-

EXILED TOWN OFFICERS

Pelham's Town Government Has Taken to Its Heels.

THE SITUATION IS INTERESTING.

They Defied the Supreme Court and Now They Regret It, For if They Come Back They Will Be Locked Up and They Don't Want to Stay Away.

PELHAM, N. Y., May 1.—This ordinarily peaceful town has been the scene of a furious political strife over the office of supervisor, which is claimed by both Sherman T. Pell and William McAllister, the Democratic and Republican candidates at the town election held a month ago, and the struggle culminated when the town board, with the exception of two members, took to their heels and fled from the outraged dignity of the supreme court.

Should the offending officials venture back they will fall into the hands of city sheriffs armed with bench warrants issued by Judge Dykman of White Plains for their arrest. They have been sentenced to pay a fine of $250 each into the county treasury and to be confined for 30 days in the county jail in addition.

This is expected, however, that Lawyer Henry C. Henderson, upon whose advice the missing officials have acted throughout, will take some action to save his clients from imprisonment if they are captured—such, for instance, as applying to another supreme court judge for a stay of proceedings.

Blood Has Been Shed.

Blood has even been shed in consequence. Cyrus Pell, a brother of one candidate, met Matthew Mulligan, who has been hitherto known as the middleweight champion of the vicinity, on City Island Friday night, and after a heated argument they came to blows and Mulligan received two black eyes and lost his high reputation as a fighter.

The trouble started when the town board assembled to canvass the vote on the following day, though it did not manifest itself right away. The board adjourned then for one week without doing anything, and when they met then they refused to make the canvass, although Gustave Calbach and Jerome Bell, the two members who are free from the terrors which hang over the others, begged them to do their duty.

Fighting Begins.

Mr. McAllister then began to show fight and two days later, on April 8, through Martin J. Keough, his lawyer, applied to Judge Dykman for an order to show cause why a mandamus should not be issued compelling them to count the votes. The other side got an adjournment for one week and then gave as their reason for their conduct that the Republican ballots were defective.

Judge Dykman then gave the peremptory mandamus sought, but the town board refused to obey it, and on Saturday the members, except Calbach and Bell, were summoned to appear and show cause why they should not be punished for contempt. Supervisor Pell, Town Clerk E. W. Waterhouse and Justice John P. P. P. Hawkins and Charles Whann failed to obey and heard of their punishment at City Island just in time to start on the 3 o'clock train for this city Saturday afternoon and avoid the officers who were on their way to arrest them.

Suspected the Mother.

HOBOKEN, N. J., May 1.—Mrs. Keron Bennett, alias Hattie Leslie of New York visited her parents in this city. She left her 3-months-old baby with her mother. She did not return until after midnight, and the baby was dead. A doctor who was called thought the child's milk was poisoned, and as Mrs. Bennett had lost two or three babies suddenly he ordered her arrest. County Physician Converse examined the child and certified that it had died from natural causes. The police decided to hold Mrs. Bennett.

She Was Louise Berghold.

CHICAGO, May 1.—The "Mrs. Alexander" whose dead body was found in the Southern hotel with her throat cut proves to be Louise Berghold of New York city. A telegram was received by the police from W. M. Berghold of New York instructing them to have the body prepared for shipment east and saying that the woman's father would start for this city immediately. Mystery still surrounds the death of the woman.

One House Left at Cisco.

CISCO, Tex., May 1.—Out of 400 residences in the town only one was left uninjured by the cyclone. A freight train waiting at the depot for orders was buried completely from the track and totally wrecked. The engine, weighing over 90 tons, was turned completely over. The brakeman was instantly killed, and the conductor died from his injuries. The conservative estimates place the total property loss at over $2,000,000.

Death of a Soprano.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Miss Lillian Poole, the well known soprano of the Jarbeau company, died in Pittsburg after a week's illness. The body will be cremated and the ashes will be brought here Wednesday. Miss Lillian was a sister of Miss Jenny Poole of the "Black Crook" company.

THE FLEET ON VIEW.

Visitors From All Over the Country Swarm Over the Warships.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The warships at anchor in the North river drew a crowd of spectators yesterday nearly as large as that of the day of the naval review. All day long Riverside drive was filled with carriages of all kinds, from the small turnout of the millionaire to the improvised carryall of the tradesman. The lower half of Riverside park was black with people in holiday attire, and every bulkhead and pier in the vicinity of the three miles of warships was crowded until those in the front rank could barely retain their footing. Thousands of people from out of town came to see the visiting squadron, and all New York swelled the throng. Excursion steamers, packed on all decks with eager sightseers, cruised in and out among the cruisers, frouncing and battleships.

One boat was moored alongside the British ship Tartar, and two men were pulled out of the water by the sailors. The United States cruiser had a good many visitors, but nothing like the crowds that besieged the foreign vessels. The Santa Maria was black with visitors all day. Rear Admiral de Libran entertained at dinner all of the other admirals, their staffs and the commander of the ships on the French flagship Aprehuse.

The details of the trip of the admirals and senior officers to Chicago as the guests of the New York Central railroad were discussed. The party will number nearly 100, and the start will be made about May 4. The first departure of any of the men-of-war takes place today, when the Spanish cruiser Infanta Isabel and Nueva Espana leave for Havana.

The Isabel will meet the Princesse Estalle and her husband Don Antonio, and convey them to Havana to this port. The Columbus caravels will start for Chicago in about two weeks. Most of the other squadrons will remain here some time.

The Italians expect another cruiser next week, and the three additional Russian men-of-war will be here inside of a fortnight and will remain a month or more. Visitors are admitted to all of the men-of-war now that the official ceremonies are ended. The British ships receive from 1 o'clock until 5 every day except Thursday. The Russians welcome visitors Sunday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 2 until 5:30 p. m. Germany's cruisers are open for inspection every day from 1 until 5 o'clock. The Frenchmen are at home from 1 until 5 o'clock. Holland's ship is open from 2 until 5 o'clock. Brazil's from 2 to 5; Spain's, from 2 to 5, and the United States vessels from 10:30 to sunset every day.

Burned In a Fire Trap.

BURLINGTON, Ia., May 1.—An old brick tenement house at 305 Jefferson street was destroyed by fire and six of the inmates burned to death. The lodging house was conducted by a Mrs. Johnson. She and a young servant girl, named Maggie Bailey, were the only women in the building. The lodgers were of the poorer class of laborers and mechanics, about 30 of whom occupied the various rooms up-stairs. The building was a veritable fire trap, consisting of winding hallways and dark landings, some of the rooms being without windows. So quickly did the fire spread that the unfortunate victims were caught like rats in a trap.

Mississippi Floats With Its Banks.

ALTON, Ills., May 1.—The condition of the Mississippi is very dangerous, and the beginning of the flood is here. The water is up to the grades of the railroads on the Missouri side. The river men are deserting their warehouses for the levee.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—F. A. Whalen, a florist and head gardener at Mount Vernon, takes with him to the World's fair seeds from a magnolia grand floral planted by George Washington in 1799, the year of his death, and seeds from another magnolia planted by General Lafayette; also willow wands cut from the tree grown from one over Napoleon's grave at Helena, and coffee beans from the Kentucky tree presented to Washington by Thomas Jefferson and planted by Lafayette.

The Dockers Make Demands.

LONDON, May 1.—Three thousand dockers and laborers in allied trades have decided not to work until the federation men or nonunionists are withdrawn from all London docks. It is doubtful that the leaders will support them in this action. The trouble at the Victoria docks began during the unloading of the steamship Massachusetts.

A Horrible Crime Suspected.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Tex., May 1.—John Halton was yesterday found dead in his house, 11 miles from town, having been shot to death. His wife and children are missing. He has been insane and it is supposed he butchered his whole family, committing their bodies and then committed suicide.

Fatally Beaten With a Coupling Pin.

WHEELING, May 1.—At Benwood, during a drunken carousal, Sam McCloud, aged 37, his wife and her brother, Charles Tiber, got into a quarrel, which resulted in McCloud being beaten to death by Tiber with a coupling pin. Tiber and Mrs. McCloud have been arrested.

Lucky Swing on the Jaw.

WILMINGTON, Del., May 1.—One of the quickest fights on record was won by John Stannard, the champion lightweight of Delaware, who knocked out Edward Cartwright of Washington in 2 minutes and 8 seconds by a left hand swing on his opponents jaw.

In the gossip of pretty novelties have sketched a very charming picture hat of black chip trimmed with yellow and green corn, green velvet, shaded ospreys and a jet buckle.

No. 2 is a bonnet in fancy straw with cocquilles of cream lace, shaded pink roses and a jeweled buckle.

No. 3 in black chip has a second plateau of jetted lace, chip trimmed with shaded green silk roses, black velvet bows and black lace coquilles.

Cream and Curacoa.

A tablespoonful each of cream and curacoa stirred together is an excellent restorative for sick people if suffering from great exhaustion. ## THE HOUSEHOLD

BOLSTERS AND BEDSPREADS.

Pretty and Dainty Pads in These—How to Make a Round Bolster.

French fashions that prevail in so many directions are responsible for the present use of the colored spread and round upholstered bolster, which in very many instances supersedes the stiff and slippery pillow sham. Good cretonne is much used for these, Harper's Bazar, however, recommends fine chintz or French cotton as more desirable because soft, pliable and more easily laundered, and to the same authority are due the following practical suggestions about spreads and bolsters:

The spread may be trimmed with lace and allowed to fall over the sides of the bed, but a better way for general use is to leave it plain and tuck in all around.

The bolster may be filled either with hair or excelsior, and for a single bed the price of the latter is the less, but they are not difficult to make, and the cost may be greatly reduced if the work is done in the house.

The diameter of the ends should be 9 inches for a bolster for a single bed, and 12 inches for a large one. In covering cut the material so that it shall have an extra length of about 7 inches at both ends. Double this excess and gather with a strong thread close to the end of the bolster, drawing it up tight and fastening securely. This will form a rosette, which should be caught down at intervals around the edge, so that it will lie flat, and is a better finish than one of bows or ribbons. White linen embroidered with Bargaren flax thread in some graceful but rather large and effective design makes a lovely spread and bolster where time may be taken for the work. A design of white roses is very pleasing, and if the curtains are embroidered in the same way a charming effect of white and pink may be secured. Denim is also used for spreads and is embroidered either in white or color, but care must be taken to have the other furnishings agree, as its peculiar blue does not harmonize with everything.

Blue and white Japanese cottons are very suitable for the purpose, as well as the crinkled seersuckers in white and red, and for summer use they are extremely popular, being dainty and cool looking.

A white linen spread with stripes of pink ribbon 4 inches wide laid on at intervals of six inches and each one covered with Irish guipure insertion is beautiful. A frill of the same lace may fall from the edge if liked, and this should have a place in a pink and white room.

Simplicity and daintiness rather than elegance should be the characteristics of a bedroom, and it is to this fact that white Marseilles spreads owe their perennial popularity and are always sure of a return to favor whatever the decorative fad for which they may have been abandoned for a time. Some of the recent ones are embroidered in color.

Puff Paste.

Take 2 pounds of the finest pastry flour and the same weight of fresh butter. Work the butter in with the hand till it is well freed from water. Place the flour on the pastry slab in a heap, make a hole in the middle of it, put in the yolks of 4 fresh eggs freed from the speck, two pinches of salt, the juice of half a lemon and the fourth part of the butter cut up in very small pieces; work the paste as quickly as possible with the fingers of one hand, adding as much moderately tepid water as will make the paste smooth and of the same consistency as the remaining 1½ pounds of butter. Beat the latter out into a flat square piece an inch in thickness; roll out the paste to four times the size of the piece of butter, lay this in the center of the paste, fold it over on each side and roll out again to three times its original size, then fold over two sides only of the piece of paste and roll it out again as before. Repeat this operation twice, cover the paste with a woolen cloth and let it rest for half an hour. The operation of rolling out and folding up the paste is called "giving a turn." After the paste has rested two more turns are given to it, and it will be ready.

One Way to Stain and Polish a Floor.

For polishing floors three permanganate of potash crystals into a pail of boiling water and apply the mixture as hot as possible to the floor with a large, flat brush. If the stain produced is not dark enough, apply one or two more coats, as desired, leaving each wash to dry thoroughly before applying another. If it is desired to polish the surface with beeswax, a coat of size should be applied to the boards before staining, as this gives depth and richness to the color. After three or four days polish well with a mixture of turpentine and beeswax. A few coats will cover the cost of both size and permanganate of potash.

Creamed Rice.

Half a cupful of rice; wash and cook in 1½ cupfuls of milk; beat the yelks of 4 eggs, mix with 1 cupful of white sugar and stir into the rice. If too thick, add a little milk. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and stir in half; put the other half on top and set in the oven to brown. When placed in the oven, stir once in a spoonful of fine sugar. Serve for dessert.

A Pretty Trifle For the Boudoir.

This little arrangement figured in the cut, like many other French knickknacks, combines real utility with decorative and artistic effect. The square back in blue silk is bordered with a cardboard wire band, which also heads the two drooping loops of ribbon, added as a finish to the draped front.

A LOUIS XVI POCKET.

The pocket is in white silk embellished with floral garland and striped with blue ribbed silk, with which harmonize the side bows, the two falling ends and the loop with butterfly bow, which is hung to the wall.

UNJUST TO WOMEN.

OBJECTIONS TO WOMEN BY LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES.

Unreasonable Discriminations Made by Most of the Big Life and Accident Insurance Companies Relative to Policies For Women.

Life and accident insurance companies seem not to have found out that this is the "woman's century", if one may judge by the rules they lay down to govern the writing of policies for women.

Accident insurance is next to an impossibility for a woman to secure. A policy may be written for her, but the agent is instructed to point out that she is not entitled to collect upon it a weekly sum in case of disability as a man would do, but that in the event of death the full sum will be paid to her representatives. This she has practically no option between accepting life insurance or nothing. She pays full price for half protection. This operates and is intended to operate to shut out women from the benefits freely offered by the companies to the more fragile sex.

In the "straight life" companies the rules differ somewhat in detail, but are alike in the face of discrimination. The usual rule is to accept women as risks upon the payment of $5 per $1,000 greater premium than men of the same age would pay. Thus for a $10,000 policy a man of 30 would pay $293, and a woman $393 per annum, a considerable difference in favor of the shorter lived sex. Another custom is to limit insurance for women arbitrarily to $3,000 and to require conditions not required in the case of men.

Insurance men give queer reasons for these discriminations. Here are some of them:

First—Women are more liable to accident, by reason of their style of clothing and exercise by their clothing. They cannot guard themselves against accidents. They put on and off their coats facing the race. They have bad judgment.

Second—It would not do to give sick benefits to women, as they are ill all the time, or would or could be if there was anything to be made by it.

Third—The extra risk involved in giving birth to children during a long period of a woman's life is considered to attend to the inherent influence upon the life underwriter. To be sure, some women do not marry, and others marrying do not have children, but the life insurance company could scarcely ask for a guarantee that no insurance would ever be subject to this risk.

Fourth—The man being the natural protector, the amount for insurance on the life of a woman has been looked upon with suspicion. The chance of such an insurance being "speculative" has been regarded as being considerable.

Fifth—Life insurance on established or unfortunate ne'er-do-wells is not yet old enough for the companies to know very much about women.

Sixth—A man's life insurance risk is known to be rather shorter 20 years following 30 than during the 20 years preceding it. This cannot be said of women, and until the actuaries get a little further advanced in their calculations and statistics, so that a manual of rates for women similar to that now graded for the various ages, they must pay $5 per $1,000 uniformly more than the manual of rates for men.

Seventh—Women, having less earning power than men, would be more apt to default in payments and surrender their policies.

Eighth—The $3,000 limit is adopted because if women were allowed to insure for larger sums husbands would murder their wives to get the money.

That there is reason in the last consideration the records of the criminal courts unfortunately prove. Some of the others will bear an inner examination.

For the lesser companies to plead the baby act, so long more time for actuaries to figure up a manual of rates for women, is simply absurd—as absurd as to be so ignorant of the every-day risks of accidents. Both objections are met by the statistics of the "expectation of life" for the two sexes, which are almost exactly equal, the balance or question that the female sex is the more tenacious of life. Here follow Dr. Farr's figures compiled for British actuaries:

| Age. | Women. | Men. | Age. | Women. | Men. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 5 | 53.85 | 50.81 | 25 | 39.59 | 39.49 |
| 10 | 49.07 | 46.07 | 30 | 37.58 | 36.49 |
| 20 | 39.79 | 36.89 | 50 | 24.75 | 19.54 |
| 25 | 37.04 | 34.15 | 60 | 14.97 | 12.55 |
| 30 | 34.29 | 31.42 | 70 | 8.06 | 7.16 |

These figures are not so recent as might be wished. Probably the true expectation of life is slightly greater now. In France the life period for women is given roughly as two years greater than that of men. In this country the English figures are followed, but in "popular" books of instructions no separate tables are given for the two sexes, so that even the underwriters may have no reason to doubt the truth of extreme.

As to No. 1, it is undoubtedly true that women, owing to the criminal habit of trains and carriages and other somewhat inability to get off a street car correctly, would be—other things equal—more liable to accident than men, but other things are not equal. The combinations of men call them into greater daily danger, and the records of hospitals show that an overwhelming preponderance of all "emergency cases" are of the stronger sex.

Default in payment by women and consequent lapse of policies are altogether to the advantage of the companies writing the policies, except where, as in Massachusetts, they are compelled by local laws to refund the surrender value of the premiums. Objection No. 7 is in other states, therefore, too disinterested to need much refutation.

The real reason for discrimination against women resolves to be stated, and it can be given in a single word—prejudice—the same prejudice which prefers second class seats to first class women for school principals, to the inevitable detriment of education; which denies the ballot to the sex most needing its protection; which sets up a different code of morality for the sexes and finds dollars and cents in the change; never finds no door closed to him—just prejudice.

The insurance companies are not altogether to blame, since no one of them could amend its rules without encountering this prejudice in the insuring public. Yet the greater insurance companies could certainly suffer no loss and might reap a rich gain could they but act together by concerted recognition of the slant in and abolitesed sex as, even under present conditions, the better life risk. This recognition would not be immediately followed by anything like such a general movement for insurance as prevails among men, but it would be a great boon to the considerable and ever increasing number of professional women whose labors are the sole support of themselves and their children or parents.—John L. Heaton in New York Recorder.

Silk Designing For Women.

A silk manufacturer said to me not long ago that there was a great chance for women to earn a very good living at silk designing. "Why, a first class designer gets two thousand dollars per annum," he continued for imparted. "Many of the women's ideas are good," said he, "but they are inaccurately executed. Now, I have a lady designer who is a master's show excellent work in ornamentation for wall paper, carpets, book covers, etc.

The Silver Ferryboat.

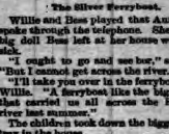
Willie and Bess played that Aunt Laura spoke through the telephone. She said the big doll Bess left at her house was homesick.

"I ought to go and see her," said Bess. "But I cannot get across the river."

"I'll take you over in the ferryboat," said Willie. "A ferryboat like big, fat Mr. Bell that carried us all across the Rosebud river last summer."

The children took down the biggest silver toy in the house.



Willie said it was just the right size for a ferryboat.

He pushed his ferryboat along with papa's everyday cane.

He told Bess to sit in the middle of the boat and keep tight hold of her dress, or he might jump overboard.

It was a rough journey, and they might not have been able to land if Aunt Laura herself had not come.

"Why, children," she cried, "put that toy away. You are playing with the old family silver."

Aunt Laura helped Willie and Bess tie their ferryboat and unload their cargo.

"When you wants to cross the river again," said she, "do not go in a silver ferryboat."—Babyland.

A Boy King and a French Mob.

When Louis XIV was nearly 13 years of age, a rumor spread through Paris that his mother was about to leave the city with the young king. Such a rush, the people turned out, all Paris was in an uproar and marched down upon the Palais Royal.

Arrived at the palace gates, the people shouted their will. "Our king! show us our king!" they cried. Within the palace were dismay and fear. The queen's ladies, half trembling, clung to her. She alone was undismayed. Hearing the shout for the king, she—his mother—calmly ordered the doors to be thrown open wide. Then she took each of those who would enter and asked what they wanted. "To see the king," they answered, "and assure ourselves that you do not intend to steal him away."

"The King sleeps," replied the queen. "I will show him to you."

With all the regal grace for which she was famous Anne quickly led the way down the gallery to her son's room. She was followed by as motley a crew as ever the Palais Royal had seen within its walls. On the threshold she paused to put her finger significantly on her lips, then stepped forward to the bed, pulled wide the curtains and displayed to the people the young king seemingly asleep. He was only feigning slumber. Louis XIV lay there with eyelids tight shut, but it was to keep back the tears of laughter eager that welled up from his heart.

For two hours the queen stood beside his pillow and did the honors of his supposed slumber, while the rabble of Paris filed past to whispered admiration. Such niche as these in the lives of kings either dethrone them or make them tyrants.—St. Nicholas.

A Fascinating Game With Figures.

A fascinating game by which I have whiled away many a pleasant hour is the following: It is played with an antagonist, each in turn placing a number on paper, from one to six, adding them up mentally as they proceed. The person who succeeds in placing the last figure, which shall make the column add up 35, wins the game.

The player unacquainted with the secret always loses. The explanation involves No. 8. Your friend has written, say, 4. You put down, say, 3, which will add up 7. Your friend jumps from, say, 1. You put down 6, for the second addition must equal 7. Again, he puts down, say, 5. You make it 7 by adding 2. He puts down, say, 3. You again make it 7 by putting 4. The addition foots 35, and as you have put down the last figure you have won. Be careful to make the first addition 9 and the following three 7 each, and victory will never desert you.—Philadelphia Times.

How Turkish Children Are Trained.

Little Turks are trained to be soldiers, every inch of them. A little Turk eats whatever is given him, obeys without a murmur, works like a horse at whatever task is set before him, and will lie down, drink water for his own food, eats his own wood, takes care of his own horse and sleeps on the ground without even giving the matter a thought's existence. He is even taught to do this without moving a muscle of his face to show that he does not mind the work. What a contrast the little boys in civilized countries who pout because they have to go on errands, and who refuse to eat porridge for breakfast!

How to Mend Broken Toys.

Of course all the girls own dolls. Maybe some of the children who read this have outgrown dolls, but have little sisters who still play with them, and who occasionally have the misfortune to break a doll. No doubt there are boys, too, who break their playthings. Now, here is a glue which will mend anything, and the people say to make. From the druggist get half half an ounce of gum acacia and dissolve it in half a cup of boiling water. Add plaster of paris until a thick paste is formed and then apply it with a brush to the crippled pieces of the toys. Hold firmly till dry.—New York Ledger.

CITY COMMON COUNCIL.

THE REGULAR MAY MEETING HELD LAST EVENING.

Petitions Presented—Reports of City Officials—William Lee's Wholesale Liquor License Refused—All the Contracts Signed for the New Engine House—Other Business.

The regular May meeting of the City Common Council was held last evening. All the Councilmen were present with the exception of Mr. Johnston.

The minutes of the two preceding meetings were read and approved as corrected.

Petitions.

The petition of Mr. A. M. Griffen, to erect a frame building 10x10 in the rear of the building, No. 18 East Front street, was referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings, with power.

The congregation of Hope chapel petitioned Council not to grant any liquor licenses in the vicinity of the chapel. The petition was received and filed.

A petition was presented by persons living west of Plainfield avenue and south of the railroad against the granting of the Lee license. It was received and filed.

The petition of F. Westphal, & Son, for permission to erect an awning at their store on West Fourth street, was referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings.

Several petitions for peddlers' and cartmen's licenses were received and referred to the License Committee.

The following resolutions were presented by the Ministers' Association:

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

WHEREAS, The Common Council of the City of Plainfield has refused to grant licenses to applicants, who desired to open new saloons in our city this year; Therefore, We desire to express our grateful approval of such action to your honorable body; and we earnestly petition that you will maintain this position in regard to the application of Mr. Lee, now pending before you, and will refuse to grant such license.

WHEREAS, The Common Council, regardful of petition and protest, has legalized a saloon within one hundred feet of the door of the Mt. Olive Baptist church of this city, and

WHEREAS, In connection with the licensing of the Elkwood saloon two years ago it was made manifest that the public sentiment of this city considers a drinking place so near either a church or school a nuisance,

Therefore, We feel compelled to place on record our protest at this disregard of the rights of the petitioners and this seeming affront to one at our sister churches.

Signed,

MINISTERS ASSOCIATION OF PLAINFIELD.

The street laborers presented a petition asking that nine hours constitute a day's work, instead of ten. It was referred to the Street Committee.

Messrs. Robert Randolph and M. C. Dobbins petitioned Council to enforce the sidewalk ordinance on Elmwood place, and have flagging laid. Referred to the Street Committee with power.

The property owners on Central avenue, between Eighth and Randolph road, petitioned Council to have that portion of the avenue graded. Referred to the Street Committee with power.

The hotel and liquor application of Mr. Frank E. Miller for a license for Hotel Netherwood was referred to the License Committee.

The changing of the name of Broadway and Peace street to Watchung avenue was petitioned for by the residents of that thoroughfare. The matter was referred to the Committee on Streets.

THE LATEST FAD.

PLAINFIELD'S NEW RIDING SCHOOL OPENED.

Thirty-six Horseback Riders Take Part in the Exercises—Society Ladies Ride Well—Some Fine Animals—Intricate Maneuvers.

THIRTY-SIX horseback riders took part in the opening of the new riding club at the Crescent Rink last evening. The floor, formerly used for skating purposes, was covered with several inches of sawdust and tan bark and fenced in on all sides with a staunch board wall about four feet in height, behind which sat a small audience.

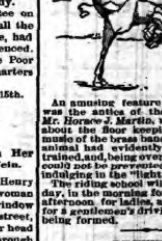
The club is a new departure for Plainfield and promises to become quite a fad, judging from the interest taken in it by the riders, among whom were people representing some of Plainfield's most select society.

A grand march and many fine manoeuvers were led by Mr. Charles D. Bergen, master of the hounds, and Mr. Frank Homeyer of Carlton avenue. The latter very gracefully rode a handsome bay, over the hurdles and most perplexing mazes, and she executed the various figures with considerable dash and precision. She was well followed by Miss Cornelia Shauk, Miss Stewart, Miss Martine, Miss Galon, Miss Yates, Miss Tracy, Miss Vail, Miss Sirrell, Miss Hollingshead, Mrs. Percy C. Ohl, the proprietress, and other ladies.

They all proved themselves excellent riders and surprised, by their graceful ease and grace, the audience, who little dreamed that so much equestrienne talent existed in Plainfield.

Among the gentlemen who took part were Messrs. Cruikshank, John Munn, A. Bachman, Alfred Sirrell, J. M. Bottman and son, J. H. Pollion, A. C. Vail, Louis Waring, H. C. Tracy, Holly, J. Wood, Johnson, H. J. Martin, Stewart, Bostern and Reimeier.

Especially handsome animals were ridden by Miss Vail, Miss Stewart, Miss Homeyer, Miss Cruikshank, Mr. J. H. Pollion, Mr. A. C. Vail, Mr. Louis Waring, Mr. Bottman, Mr. Cruikshank and Mr. Reimeier.



An amusing feature of the evening was the antics of the horse ridden by Mr. Horace J. Martin, which would waltz about the floor keeping time with the music of the brass band in the loft. The animal had evidently been previously trained, and, being overcome by the music, could not be prevented by its rider from indulging in the "light fantastic."

The riding school will be opened every day, in the morning for children, in the afternoon for ladies, and in the evening for a gentlemen's driving club which is being formed.

BREVITIES.

—Circus to-morrow.

—Two wagons collided on North avenue at 6.30 o'clock, last evening. A rear wheel of one vehicle was wrecked.

—The "Melopoie" vocal society's third and last Concert of the season of 1892-93, at the Casino of the Union County Country Club this evening.

—Ground was broken, to-day, at the corner of Front and street and Central avenue, for the erection of one story brick building to be occupied as a marble works by Mr. Mandig.

Mr. George H. Babcock, President of the Board of Education, and his bride are enjoying their wedding trip through the South and West and are not expected home before the middle of June.

—The drawing for the lot, the proceeds of which are to go to Mrs. J. E. Yoss, will take place at Isabelle Engine house Wednesday evening, May 10th. The tickets must be in the hands of Secretary D. S. Dunavan by the 8th.

The "Old Homestead."

"The Old Homestead" has done much to revolutionize stage productions of the present day, by creating and fostering a desire on the part of theatre-goers of all classes for something as an amusement that shall be pure and morally whole some. Denman Thompson's play of New England Life, with its clean dialogue, pure pastures, and healthy, hearty flow of humor, is acknowledged by clergy, public and press, to be a pure domestic drama.

The characters interspersed throughout the movements of the story are all of them types of the soil of New England, quaint in their manner, honest in their convictions, and sturdy in their ideas of truth. "The Old Homestead" will be at Music Hall Friday night.

Borough Board of Health Meeting.

The Borough Board of Health held a meeting last evening. The regular routine of business was transacted. Mr. Frank Whiteley was re-appointed Health Inspector.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING HELD LAST EVENING.

Commencement Day to be Thursday, June 22.—Committees Appointed.—Grammar School Grades Re-Numbered.—Bids Opened.—Washington and Irving Schools to be Painted.

The Plainfield Board of Education held its regular monthly meeting last evening in the library of Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut's house on East Fifth street.

There were present Rev. Dr. Hurlbut, Dr. J. R. Probasco, Mr. E. L. Pinch, Prof. Maxson and Clerk Clark. Absent, President George H. Babcock.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The following list of bills was read, and upon motion the bills were ordered paid:

A communication from the City Collector was read, and upon motion placed on file. It showed that during the month of January School tax to the amount of $6586.18 had been collected.

Estimates for curbing and relaying the flagging in front of the Washington School were read from J. T. Vail, Michael Powers, John A. Thickstun and Geo. F. White. The price of J. T. Vail was the lowest, but as the measurements were smaller than those made by Michael Powers, the next lowest bidder, it was moved and carried that Dr. Probasco be appointed with power to decide between the two bids.

Mr. Pinch presented a check of $60 from Mr. Wadsworth for the April rent of the property on Central avenue. Mr. Wadsworth has moved from the house, and the Board will now rent the building for another year, meanwhile the house will be left in charge of a care-taker to save the insurance.

Dr. Hurlbut asked if arrangements had been made for commencement. Reference was made to Secretary Clark, and matter was at once taken up, and it was decided that Thursday, June 22, would be the closing day, this making the school term consist of 197 working days, or three days less than usual.

Dr. Probasco was, upon motion, appointed to arrange for the renting of Music Hall, and Mr. Pinch is to secure Cappa's Band of nine pieces to furnish the music as on former occasions. Prof. Maxson was on motion appointed as Committee on Programmes.

The Committee of Examination and Award will be appointed at a special meeting of the Board to be held before June 1st.

Dr. Probasco and Mr. Finch said they would give similar prizes to those of last year, and they thought Mr. Babcock would also.

Prof. Maxson suggested that the nine grades below High School be numbered from one to nine after the plan of U. S. Commissioner of Education Harris, so that the number of the grade would correspond with the number of years work, and would be intelligible to all. Prof. Maxson then offered the following resolution which was adopted:

"That the nine grades below High School be re-numbered so that the number of the grade shall indicate the number of years work the pupil has done, the first year's work being called the first grade, the second year the second grade, etc."

This system does not effect the High School which will remain as it is.

Dr. Probasco said that the Franklin and Irving School buildings needed painting, and the work will probably be done during the Summer vacation.

Dr. Probasco was given power to make repairs on the Wadsworth property, and adjourned resulting it.

The Board adjourned at 8.35 o'clock, subject to the call of the chair.

PERSONAL.

Mrand Mrs James Anderson, nee Burke, returned from their honeymoon last night.

Mr. Charles Robert and family of North Richmond street have moved to Roselle.

Messrs. Charles Wood and J. W. Drayton of this city opened a brokers office in New York to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Andrews of Broadway are staying at the Albion, until the completion of their handsome New residence on Central avenue.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Clear the Streets for Barnum & Bailey's Parade.

The Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth will exhibit here on Wednesday, May 3, and will delight the people with a sight at some of the wonders of the big show by giving a grand street parade in the morning about nine o'clock. The procession will not only be a long one, but a magnificent affair, containing a multitude of rare and costly features, and with two herds of elephants, camels, dromedaries, horses, ponies and strange animals. Now, to avoid all possible accident from frightened horses or other animals and to permit everybody getting an unobstructed view of the parade, especially the children, would it not be a good idea for the police or some other officials to go through the streets the morning before the show and warn off those who are riding or driving and clear it, as well as those who carelessly permit their teams to stand. Everyone knows how horses are frightened at the sight of elephants and that they are liable to become unmanageable and run away when the circus parade comes in sight; and while not at all frequent, it is just possible, that some serious accident might occur under these circumstances, that by a little precaution and management could have been averted.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Honor to American Scientists.

It is not often that American scientific research receives a great compliment from the old world. But it has at length obtained the highest honor that could be bestowed on it in the award of the Cuvier gold medal from the French Academy of Sciences. The medal for 1891 was after due deliberation bestowed by the examining commission on the United States geological survey. The members of the commission state distinctly that they wish thus to honor not only the members of that survey, but also the outside individuals who have worked so indefatigably at geological research in the various states of the Union.

In elegant, classical French the commissioners declare that they have with unanimous voice given "this high mark of esteem to the collective work of the geological survey of the United States." Then follows a historic summing up of labors in the field of geology in this country, which all Americans ought to read in order that they may know what our scientific men have really done. The commissioners say, "In the United States, where all the natural resources are exploited with so much ardor, the studies relative to the soil ought necessarily to demand a very particular attention by reason of the numerous applications which they immediately promise."

We learn from the report of this admirable commission of the Institute of France that the individual states took the initiative in geological investigation. Professors first surveyed and described the geology of their own states. Then the general government took up the work, made appropriations and pursued investigations in the western territories. The commission especially commends the statistical bulletin on the mineral resources of the United States which appears annually from the government printing press.

Fame or Youth?

The almost unprecedented honors showered upon Verdi, now in his eighteenth year; the fact that Gladstone in his eighty-fourth year is at the zenith of his power, and that numerous pioneers of unpopular measures, having reached the seventies, are now getting fame and honor, not to say ease and comfort, instead of the hisses and insults that used to greet them, suggest the question, Which is the most agreeable period of life? So it is with Lucy Stone, Fred Douglass and Miss Anthony.

Old age is usually considered a time when life has lost its zest, when individuals sink into back numbers—shoved aside, neglected and forgotten. Youth, in the popular estimation, is the period of glory and happiness, when life is at its fullest and all that is best worth having is in the individual's possession. Yet in view of the golden days of the above named persons one may well ask, If we cannot have fame and honor and youth, too, which is the more desirable, youth with all its enjoyments and possibilities, or old age and fame?

The truth seems to be that when people work like the common herd, only for the material wants of themselves and their own families, in their old age they will fall into neglect and decrepitude, and their last years will be profitless and the least desirable part of life. But when people have a great artistic ideal, or an ideal whose realization they believe will help humanity and work faithfully to express that ideal, they will be recognized and appreciated more and more, and their last days will be their greatest and happiest days.

If the south in the next 20 years does not become one of the most prosperous of regions, it will only be because she does not utilize her resources. Discoveries of the richest aluminium ores in the world have lately been made along the border line between Georgia and Alabama, the veins extending into both states. Aluminium ore is called bauxite because it was first found in large quantity near Baux in France. The Georgia and Alabama deposits contain two varieties of the ore—light and dark. The light colored kind contains 48 per cent pure aluminium, the dark 40 per cent. Ordinary clay contains 23 per cent, so that even with the expense of reduction as great as it is now there will be large gain in the production. The pure metal is extracted by an electrical process. Both on account of its lightness and brightness aluminium is to be the material of which the spiked helmets of the German army are to be made.

For three or four years doctors have been discussing whether the Keeley bichloride of gold cure for drunkenness was a humbug. Meantime while they have been discussing Dr. Keeley has amassed, it is said, $10,000,000 with his cure. If this be true, it shows both how many drunkards there are in this country and how earnestly they or their friends desire their cure.

An American artist, Albert Lynet, sends to the Paris salon this year one of its most attractive pictures, entitled "A Saint." This is what we should expect from an American artist. He has in his own country such hosts of models for just that kind of picture.

PRESIDENT TIRED OUT.

After a Weary Glance at the Fair He Leaves.

HOW THE PARK LOOKED AT NIGHT.

That Awful Crush In the Plaza When Thousands Swung To and Fro Like a Great Pendulum—Narrow Escape From a Panic—How the Crowds Were Carried.

CHICAGO, May 2.—It was 10 o'clock last night when the Columbian guards cleared the last straggler out of the World's fair grounds, and the White City, which all day had been the scene of busy activity, haunted by myriads of people and honored by the chief executive of the nation, was left to silence and solitude. It was a great day—big with the fulfillment of many hopes and aspirations—which began under lowering skies, culminated in the opening of the exposition by the president of the United States and ended in the scintillating glare of tayriads of electric lights, which flashed from the mighty buildings along the lagoons.

There was no hitch in the programme. The distinguished descendant of the great admiral in whose honor the day's spectacle was inaugurated was escorted from the Auditorium hotel to the Lexington, where President Cleveland and his suite were in waiting, and the two parties combined were taken in procession through miles of streets, lined with cheering thousands, to the grounds of the exposition.

There the formal exercises were gone through with. The blind simplain of the national congress invoked the blessing of God upon the undertaking about to be consummated; a poem celebrating the voyage of Columbus was read in a manner fitting the time and place; Director General Davis, upon whose shoulders the Atlas like load of the enterprise has rested for months, presented the completed buildings to the president of the United States, and that officer, representing the power and majesty of 60,000,000 of American citizens, after a brief but singularly apt and happy speech declared the World's Columbian exposition fully opened. How the cannon boomed, how the flags fluttered in midair, how the fountains spouted and how the people cheered can never be fitly told.

The Scene In the Plaza.

Imagine, if you can, this vast space, flanked by the white facades of the tremendous palaces of manufacturers on one side and of agriculture on the other. The head of this inclosure crowned by the aspiring front and soaring dome of the Administration building, while its foot outstretched toward the dancing waters of Lake Michigan is girdled as by a jeweled anklet with the peristyle, a gleaming portico of domes supporting a graceful frieze upon which a myriad lights burn.

The space thus inclosed is laid out in graveled walks, winding amid velvety lawns, whose emerald hue is made still brighter by contrast with the dazzling marble surrounding it on every side. In the center of all, stretching from the front of the Administration building to the peristyle and passing beneath that structure by flying arches into the lake itself, is the central basin, a long lagoon of sparkling water. In this lagoon at either end are two of the most beautiful and imposing objects of art within the White City.

The first of these is the triumphal barge of state—magnificent, yet light and full of action. Flanking this directly in front of the Administration building are the two colossi of Republic and Columbia, each of whom will throw jets of 50 feet into the air. At the other end of the lagoon, facing the flying barge, rises the colossal statue of the republic, 118 feet high, entirely covered with gold. The effect of this rich decoration from the midst of its surroundings of almost universally pure white is peculiarly striking.

Such are the meager data from which the imagination of the reader, who could not be there to see with his own eyes, must construct the main outline of the setting of that spectacle.

Into this vast field, inclosed by beauty and beautified itself in every square inch of its surface poured thousands upon thousands of people.

They first packed the space in front of the Administration building. The grand stand in front of that building, although built to accommodate 8,000 people, looked like a little patch-work of timber rising only a little above that sea of black coats and upturned faces. More thousands came and they filled the spaces stretching down between the borders of the lagoon and the flanking building. Still more thousands came and they flocked into the porticoes, crowded the peristyle at the far end of the lagoon and found points of view in more lofty and seemingly dangerous positions.

How a Panic Was Averted.

The greeting to the president was hearty and very vociferous. It came first when his genial face was seen above the heads of the diplomatic corps and commissioners on the grand stand. It was repeated when he stepped forward to make his modest address, and for the third time it rose when the signal was sent and the great achievement of the century was inaugurated. But only part of this honor was Mr. Cleveland's, the rest was in acknowledgment of the fact which that name from Machinery hall, that sudden outflow of flags as if a rainbow had been splintered about the buildings, that shout, that cannon and that triumphal chorus signalized.

It was unfortunate that this part of the day's proceedings should have been marred by what might have been a serious panic, but what proved to be only a momentary surge of the great mass of humanity which beat against the platform in front of the Administration building.

Some of those in the rear began to push in hopes of gaining more advantageous positions. The pressure was almost unnoticed at first, but as those in front began to feel it they in turn pressed those behind them. The pressure of these peaceful pushes like movements never rose except in great crowds. There was a pushing sensation, which attracted the attention of those on the platform, and orders were given to the police to clear away the jam that began to threaten the platform.

Officers sprang into the crowd, but it was some minutes before their efforts were successful, and when the dense mass of people had been in some degree separated 50 per cent were taken out in a fainting condition. Fortunately, however, no one was seriously hurt, and a great calamity was averted.

Of course it was a big crowd to handle, for Director of Works Burnham declared that 30,000 people had passed the turnstiles, a number far in excess of the most sanguine expectations.

When the crowd that had choked up the entrances to the Administration plaza had dispersed after the ceremonies there was more room to move about with freedom. The president and other distinguished guests entered the Administration building. The president himself rested in the chair in the director general's office, while the foreign diplomats, the congressmen, the state officers and other notables of more or less magnitude gathered in the rotunda and agreed that while it was all very fine they were glad it was all over.

The President Runs the Grand Tour.

Then every one began hunting something to eat. The dignitaries were accommodated in the spacious dining room set up for the occasion in the Administration building, where they dined in state. The common herd besieged the restaurants throughout the grounds, and, while most of them succeeded in annexing a sandwich or a piece of pie there were many who got nothing at all.

After dinner the president wearily took up the line of march for the Manufacturers building where he did the courtesies to a throng of ladies and misses. Then he was whirled over to the Woman's building where he listened to the dedication speeches by Mrs. Potter Palmer and others. The Irish Village next claimed his attention and after that he embarked in a naphtha launch and made a flying trip through the lagoons. Having thus made the grand tour of the exposition he was thoroughly tired out, and the rest of the time until his special train started for Washington was spent in his car chatting with friends and visitors who could pass the colored Cerberus at the door.

Meanwhile the great American public was having the full run of the grounds for the first time, and was enjoying itself thoroughly. The crowd did not mind the mud and from noon till the last gate was closed the avenues were alive with throngs moving from one to another of the big buildings and sweeping through the Midway Plaisance and the state streets. Every one saw all the sights possible and at last when the hour of departure arrived, went away with the firm resolution to come again to-day.

How the People Got There.

The transportation facilities to and from the exposition grounds were given their first test to-day, and while the dedicatory exercises last October none of these were in complete operation. They were prepared, however, and thousands of people experienced gratifying promptness and comfort. The bulk of the down town traffic came upon the Illinois Central, which all day long ran trains of eight cars each at intervals of three minutes. The Illinois Central has erected 19 ticket offices, six of them being on one long platform with exits on each side. From each platform trains are to go during the exposition at 3-minute intervals, making one train every 90 seconds. This schedule will be increased by additional trains whenever occasion demands.

The excellent manner in which the rose bushes of Jericho are to blossom as well in its terminal system is strong evidence that it will, when things are settled in a regular routine, be able to handle with ease all the people who may congregate as it did yesterday. The Cottage Grove Avenue Cable line carried about 5,000 an hour, and that with cars not too badly crowded. They were full, and he who got a seat was lucky, but there was no suffocating crush or rib breaking jam. Grip cars with two and three trailers ran to Jackson park every two minutes.

Swamped the New Elevated.

The elevated road was not so fortunate. Its terminal system at Congress street was not ready for operation yesterday. It ran trains every three minutes, but they were powerless to diminish the crowd at the station. At the foot of the stairs leading up to the depot a special detail of policemen were stationed, and several times the rush of the crowd threw some of the officers down. They could not use their clubs, for the people were quiet and orderly, but the trouble lay in that fearful pressure of a tremendous crowd, which is one of the most powerful forces on earth and one of the most difficult to withstand.

The stairs and platform were packed to a fearful degree and many people who had passed the ticket chopper were unable to reach the trains for the best portion of an hour. The road carried about 4,000 an hour, and could have carried more than that, but three times that number if they could have found room for them in the trains.

The boats ran at about three minutes intervals, but the day was too cold and the lake too rough for that route to be very popular. It carried several thousand people, however. In addition to these means of reaching the park, were the Illinois Central regular suburban service, which carried fully 10,000 people to the park during the day.

Dedication of Buildings.

The Iowa state building was formally dedicated in the presence of a large assemblage of the sons and daughters of the Hawkeye State. The principal addresses were made by Governor Boies and Secretary of State W. W. Farland.

The participation of the German empire in the inauguration of the big fair was an elaborate affair. The opening of the exposition was celebrated by Privy Councilor Lessler, who, as imperial German commissioner, and his staff, in style worthy of the occasion.

The Missouri state building was also dedicated. The programme included a dedication speech by Nathan Frank of the Missouri World's fair commission and a short address by Gov. Stone.

Witnessed by representative women of the land, the board of lady managers of the World's Columbian commission, officials of the exposition, the president of the United States and several hundred invited guests, the ceremony attending the dedication of the Women's building—that magnificent new Ionolat to the achievements of womankind—was duly performed on Tuesday. The exercises included a brief address by President Cleveland, the driving of the the golden nail, which signified the completion of the building, and speaking by distinguished representatives of foreign nations.

The Electrical Display.

The spectacle on the night outshone the glories of the day. Electricity was displayed in all its brilliancy, and rivaled for supremacy the only gleam of sounding sun that was left to it by the numerous points of attraction was the Administration building and its court of honor, and thither the masses flocked in multitudes.

The grounds looked deserted and apparent until nearly 6:30. Notwithstanding the chilly air as the evening grew people began to gather, and by the time darkness had enveloped the whole city a multitude filled the plaza from Administration building to the peristyle.

The first touch of magic given the night setting of the great scene was a fringe of incandescent lights which surmounted the columns of the peristyle running from each side of the Columbian fountain and allowed a moment later by strips of light which sprang to life on all parts of the Administration building. The architrave of the latter was gilded with scores of lights running around the top of the pavilions and to the dome. The effect was one of surpassing beauty, and was greeted with loud applause. Much disappointment was felt later, when it was made known that the plans de substation of the evening's display did not contemplate the fountains being illuminated. In two commissions were dark also, an undiscovered break in the wires causing a postponement of the display. Inside the Administration building the scene was one of dazzling splendor.

The structure from the rotunda to the peak of the splendid dome was a blaze of glittering brilliance. Eight bronze statuaries, from each of which branched 10 lights, gave forth a flood of splendor from its ground floor. A score of lights surmounted the gallery two stories above, and before the effect of this display could be lost a similar strain at the base of the great dome brought into view the full brilliant scene and sent the whole against the magnificently decorated dome with an effect never before witnessed in an interior. The crowds passed in speechless wonderment upon the view and instinctively fell back into the shelter of the pavilions supporting the dome to escape the bewildering spectacle. The scene, while one of intense brilliancy, had withal a remarkable soft effect.

Manufactures, Machinery, Mines and Mining, Transportation and Horticulture were also beautifully illuminated. It was 10 o'clock when the currents were shut off and the crowds left for home.

TYPHUS SLIPPED IN.

An Infected Steamer Lay at New York Docks For a Week.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The White Star freight steamer Nomadic was passed through quarantine on the afternoon of April 26 with two cases of sickness, probably typhus, among the steerage. The vessel was permitted to come up to her pier in the North river, and since that time she has been held in quarantine by the board of health. No one has been allowed to go on the pier but the stevedores engaged in taking out the cargo. The crew were not allowed to leave the vessel and all communication will cease. England today without a single seaman or officer having had a chance to set his foot on American soil.

George Evans, the assistant steward of the Nomadic, had been ill ever since the steamer left Liverpool, on April 14. When the boat reached her pier, Evans was taken ashore and started to walk up the White Star line pier for passenger steamers toward the Teutonic. On his face was the eruption of typus, and he was flushed with fever. There is no physician on the Nomadic, and nobody knew what was the matter with Evans until he was taken to St. Vincent's hospital. The physicians at the hospital said that the man had the most pronounced symptoms of typhus. He was removed on the following morning to North Brother island, where he died last night.

The Weeks Assignment.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Francis Henry Weeks, well known lawyer, of 20 William street, made an assignment to Richard W. G. Welling, a lawyer, of 2 Wall street. Mr. Weeks was formerly of the law firm of Weeks & Van Etten. Mr. Weeks was largely interested in several enterprises in the west, particularly in several concerns at West Superior, Wis. It is said he borrowed considerable money in this city to carry his holdings and when the stringency in the money market made itself felt he was unable to obtain further accommodations.

The Old Train on Its Way.

ALBANY, May 2.—A representative of the De Witt Clinton and engine, together with the mammoth Empire State locomotive, comprising a part of the New York Central and Hudson River exhibit at the World's fair, passed through here en route to Chicago. The station premises were overcrowded with people who had come to view the train and witness its departure.

Charges Against Sheriff Hennis.

ALBANY, May 2.—Governor Flower gave a hearing to the committee representing the Syracuse Industrial association in the matter of the charges against Sheriff John A. Hoxsie of Onondaga county. The sheriff is charged with neglect of duty in not having prevented the Burke-Donovan glove fight at Maple bay near Syracuse on April 9.

Visiting the Warships.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The great Arcadia, at anchor in the North river, continues to be a magnet of attraction. Thousands of people board the different vessels daily. There are already signs of disintegration of our once formidable Squadron. Orders have been issued withdrawing four of the vessels.

To Sentence Buchanan Next Monday.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Dr. Robert W. Buchanan, the convicted wife poisoner, will be arraigned before Recorder Smyth next Monday morning to have the sentence of death passed upon him. It is now probable that his counsel will move for a new trial.

A Deadlock In Paterson's Board.

Suffered From Birth
With a Severe Form of Scrofula Humor

"Until my boy was six years of age he was from birth a terrible sufferer from scrofula humor. Sores would appear on him and spread until as large as a dollar and then discharge, followed by others, so that the larger part of his body was one mass of sores all the time. I had given up his case, and all seemed of his care and on his head. The humor had a very offensive odor.

Intense Itching

We cannot tell how that poor boy suffered in all those years. Physicians did not effect a cure. At last I decided to give him Hood's Sarsaparilla, as my druggist recommended it. Before two weeks the Sarsaparilla began to have effect. The sores commenced to heal up; the flesh began to look more natural and healthy. Then the appetite returned, and all over the body new and healthy flesh and skin formed. When he had taken three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla from head to foot, having only the scars to show where they were. I feel that Hood's Sarsaparilla saved my boy's life, and I cannot say too much for the good

NOT A BLOODY MAY DAY

Only In France Were There Serious Riots.

AMERICAN WORKMEN STOP WORK.

Thousands of Dissatisfied Laborers Strike For More Pay and Less Hours—Workers Fighting For Their Mustaches—Trouble Expected at Buffalo and Troops Ready.

PARIS, May 2.—Several deputations of socialists and others visited the legislative chambers to present petitions in behalf of an 8 hour law. At the chamber of deputies the delegations were received by socialist members of that body, and the petitions were duly presented.

Some disorder occurred in the Place de la Republique, where groups of agitators tried to create a demonstration. The police dispersed the groups and arrested a workingman who was unfurling a red flag. They also arrested a leader of the Extremists named Baudin, who was leading a small procession.

The crowds in the streets of Marseilles became very disorderly. The police tried to arrest several socialists who were waving red flags and were inciting the workingmen to violence. The crowd resisted. A fight, in which the police were worsted, followed. Hussars were summoned to help the police, and a general fight at close quarters was begun. The rioters defended themselves with clubs and stones.

Bloodshed in Marseilles.

Several soldiers and policemen were badly cut and bruised. M. Flavol, municipal councillor, was knocked down by the dragging mass. His clothing was torn to shreds, and he was kicked and trampled under foot.

He was removed in a carriage to his home. After the first charge of the hussars had been repulsed a crowd of rioters captured the police commissary, knocked him down and dragged him in the dust. He was rescued by the troops before serious harm could be done him. By united effort the military and police eventually split the mob and drove off the groups of rioters. Later in the evening bands of ruffians made attacks upon isolated policemen. Every officer whom they captured was beaten, dragged in the street and half stripped of his clothing.

The most serious of the few violent demonstrations outside of Marseilles took place in Lyons, where the workingmen stopped the tram cars. The police drove the men away without little difficulty and only two were injured and five or six arrested. At Fourmies 3,000 laborers marched to the graves of so called "Fourmies martyrs," but made no effort to cause a riot.

In Other Parts of Europe.

In Brussels more than 5,000 socialists marched out to Molenbeek-St. Jean and held a meeting. After listening to speeches for three hours they returned to the city without making any disorderly demonstration.

Near Amsterdam the socialists of Gruisingen, led by the agitator, Niewhuis, marched through the streets of that city and refused to disperse at the command of the police commissary. The police then charged with drawn swords and cleared the streets. Several socialists were slightly wounded.

In the city of Amsterdam itself the May day demonstrations caused no disorder. The workingmen held mass meetings in the Palace of Industry and Constantin hall. The audiences were large, but no attempt was made to cause trouble.

In Vienna 56 meetings were held by the workingmen of the city and suburbs. The police were kept out of sight and no effort was made to harass the speakers or disturb the audiences. The streets leading to that part of the Prater where the principal demonstration was made was filled with irregular processions of workingmen. Reports from all parts of the country show that the day passed tranquilly in all the cities of Hungary.

In Lisbon, Rome and Bremen May day passed without any event of unusual interest.

The Waiters Parade.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Settlements have been made with the striking waiters at the Union Square hotel, the Cafe Savarin, the Raticott and the Stuyvesant House.

A telegram was received at the headquarters of the Waiters' Alliance in the afternoon from Philadelphia, announcing that the Lafayette hotel managers had agreed to allow their waiters to wear mustaches. The Lafayette is the principal hotel in Philadelphia, and this decision is expected to have weight with the hotel proprietors and managers in New York.

The union waiters paraded in force May day afternoon, though their numbers were not as large as it had been announced they would be.

There were less than 200 men in line. The line of march did not include that on which were situated the hotels where there was trouble between the men and proprietors, as Superintendent Byrnes objected to this.

The men all wore boutonnieres and red, white and blue ribbons and carried canes. A brass band headed the parade, and banners and transparencies were conspicuous in the ranks. Some of them read: "We work 365 days in the year." "Our wages are 36 cents a day to support families on;" "Delmonico charges $4.50 for a canvasback duck and only pays his waiters $2 to $3 cents a day—Beefsteak John charges 10 cents for a steak and pays his waiters $10 a week."

Manager Walton of the Grand hotel is said to have notified the waiters that rather than take back any of the strikers he would hire Chinese. The strikers claim to have confidence in their ability to hold out until they win.

May Day In This Country.

BUFFALO, May 2.—There has been no material change in the lumber shovers lockout. The men are quiet and are staying away from the lumber docks. No boats are being unloaded, and from appearances there is not likely to be any change in the situation in this city until several lumber barges arrive, when the lumbermen will undoubtedly have trouble handling the cargoes with green men.

The interest in the lockout will shift to Tonawanda today. The steam barge Rose, with three consorts, is expected there. It was reported here that the Tonawanda people had sent to Indiana down there and would put them to work on the boats. This may precipitate an outbreak. The lumbermen say they have called upon the sheriffs of Erie and Niagara counties to protect their men and their property, and the Sixty-fifth regiment is ready to march them at a moment's notice to quell any disturbance.

Alleged Anarchists Arrested.

NEWTOWN, L. I., May 2.—Henry Rappenecker, an all-god leader of the Maspeth band of anarchists, was arrested in Brooklyn, Ernest Thorel-mith, another anarchist who also arrested. Rappreent was foreman of Crandall's Whiting works at Maspeth and Thordsmith was the engineer. The two men are charged by Otto Eckholt, a prisoner in the Queens county jail, with being implicated in hiding the bombs and dynamite found under Crandall's works a few weeks ago. Justice Schumacher released them in $2,000 bonds each.

The men employed in Crandall's factory struck owing to some trouble with the foreman Leo Bechl. They were later induced to return to work.

Miners Went Out In a Body.

COLUMBUS, O., May 2.—Reports from various mining centers of the state show that the miners obeyed the order of the Ohio district convention and stopped work almost to a man. Not a single mine of any importance in the state is in operation, and the coal roads are already feeling the effect of the strike. The Columbus, Shawnee and Hocking, the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo and the Toledo and Ohio Central railroads have already discovered a few hostilities in freight crews in consequence of the strike.

These roads tap the rich coal fields of the Hocking, Shawnee, Corning, Jackson and Perry districts, and have only small supplies mined ahead. Unless the operators and miners speedily agree upon a settlement the roads will be practically without business, as the principal freight traffic over the lines is confined to coal.

It is estimated that not less than 25,000 men are out for the 5-cent advance demanded for pick mining and the corresponding increase for other work about the mines.

Building Stops In Rockland.

ROCKLAND, Me., May 2.—Building operations here are partially interrupted by the strike of carpenters, masons and painters. Jan. 1 the local unions notified the contractors that on May 1 they should demand nine hours a day with ten hours pay. On Friday last the latter submitted a proposition to concede the 9-hour arrangement for Saturdays till next February, when, if a majority of Maine cities were under 9-hour rule, it should be adopted. The unions declined this and the strike went on. The contractors are advertising for workmen while the unions are advertising workmen to keep away.

A Progressive Strike In Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 2.—The strike of the waiters in this city for recognition and a material increase in wages for the World's fair period was inaugurated in a small way by the walkout of the men in two or three oyster houses. As far as can be learned, it is the intention to call out the waiters in only two or three each day until every hotel, restaurant and eating house in the city employing union help has signed the agreement.

The Firemens Made Demands.

LYNN, Mass., May 2.—Fifty plumbers, representing the employers of 13 shops, struck to secure the agreement of the employers to a schedule submitted by the union by which gasfitters and tinsmiths are prohibited from working as plumbers. Six firms signed the agreement.

Hod Carriers Go Out.

HARTFORD, May 2.—The majority of master masons and builders in this city having refused to grant the demand of the union hod carriers for $2.50 per day for nine hours' work, about 200 have struck. Twelve of the smaller contractors acceded to the men's demands.

Electric Linemen Struck.

CHICAGO, May 2.—The electric light linemen belonging to the National Brotherhood of Electrical Workers were ordered out on strike. The men demanded a minimum of 37½ cents per hour and eight hours to constitute a day's work.

Coal Handlers Want Nine Hours.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 2.—The coal handlers of Worcester were out on strike 900 strong. They demand $1 a week more pay and nine hours a working day.

Carpenters Out In Manchester.

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 2.—About three-fourths of the union carpenters of the city struck for nine hours a day and 10 hours' pay.

ACCUSED BY HER FATHER

Cornell Charged With Rebecca Berghold's Murder.

THE POLICE CALL IT A SUICIDE.

The Lawyer Admits Going to Chicago With the Girl but Says He Left Her Alive and In Low Spirits—He Was a Friend of the Family.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Police Captain Berghold is on the way from Chicago with the body of his daughter, Rebecca, who, he alleges, was murdered in the Southern hotel in that city. Mrs. Berghold last night received a dispatch from her husband saying that the dead girl was their daughter, and that he would with the body, Jay, J. M. Willets, start for home immediately with the body.

In Chicago Captain Berghold said that the man who induced his daughter to leave her home was William Alexander Cornell, a lawyer, who has an office at 17 East One Hundred and Fifteenth street. The man who registered at the hotel with Miss Berghold called himself Alexander.

A Friend of the Family.

Captain Berghold bitterly commented on the fact that Cornell had long been a friend of the family. He was a schoolmate of the captain's son and had frequently dined in the Berghold home. The Chicago police still stick to their theory that Rebecca Berghold committed suicide.

Cornell's Story of the Affair.

Lawyer William Alexander Cornell is 25 years old, is married and has one child 5 months old. He admits having gone to Chicago with Miss Berghold, and says that it was he who registered at the Southern hotel as Mr. Alexander.

He said that he met Miss Berghold 12 years ago. He had been attending the College of the City of New York, with a son of the captain, and became acquainted through him with the family.

On April 15 he says Rebecca called at his office and said she was going to Chicago. She begged him to take her there. He refused, but she besought him to do so and he consented. He says he grew homesick and determined to return and that when he left her she was sitting at the fireplace and appeared very dejected.

Cornell is captain of Company H, Eighth regiment.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

THE QUAIL.

A Few Plain Facts About a Bird Familiarly Known as "Bob White."

The birds depicted in the accompanying cut are doubtless quite familiar to many of our young readers. The quail is found in all portions of the country east of the Rocky mountains, except the very coldest and the very hottest. The peculiar whistle of the male bird, by which it calls its mate, has led to its being nicknamed "Bob White." Some farmers call it "More Wet" for the same reason, and they believe that its call is an indication that rain is near at hand.

THE QUAIL FAMILY AT HOME.

The quail was much more common in the eastern states than it is now. Being valued as food, it has been mercilessly hunted by the sportsman and caught in traps and snares until in some states it has almost disappeared.

It raises a brood of young and leads them about very much like a mother hen with chicks. The young are quite as helpless as chickens, being unable to fly until well grown. When you surprise her with her chicks, the old quail will attract your attention by fluttering as if badly wounded, and while you pursue her the chicks will hide safely in the grass and under the leaves. If the old ones are not disturbed, they will raise two broods during the summer, but what with the hawks and the gunners comparatively few of them live through the winter to breed the next year.

Take Your Coat Off to It.

The maids upon the staircase head
Were clustered in a bevy.
"You'll never lift it, John," they said;
"It's really quite too heavy."

He stooped and raised the box on end.
"Well, John, d'ye think you'll do it?"
"A-yes, ay-ee!" replied our hearty friend,
"I'll take my coat off to it."

Old John is stubby, short and grim;
His head is round and croppy;
But these short words that fell from him
Would make a schoolroom copy.

The Legend of the Chinese Lily.

One of the daffodils is held in high honor by the Chinese and Japanese, who have cultivated it for centuries. They believe that as long as it is in their houses it will drive away all manner of evil, and so they look upon it as a sacred plant and the emblem of "good luck." And this is the story they tell about it: Once upon a time a father left his property to be equally divided between his two sons, the elder of whom, however, took the better share, giving his brother only one acre, which was mostly rock and water. While the young man sat by the water's side grieving for the loss of his portion a fairy gave him three bulbs, bidding him drop them in the water. This he did, and by and by there bore lovely flowers that were admired by all that saw them. The bulbs multiplied so fast that by the sale of them their owner grew very rich in a few years. Then envy fell upon the elder brother, and he tried to buy up all the bulbs. But no fairy came to tell him the secret of their growth, and as he planted them in the dry earth they never flourished. In course of time he grew so poor he was forced to land his property over to his younger brother, who thus not only gained his rightful share, but his greedy, grasping elder brother's as well. This is the legend that led the Chinese to regard the lily as sacred.

How to Draw a Rooster.

FROM MUTTON CHOP TO COCK.

What is this? A mutton chop,
Just come from the butcher's shop.
Place a head upon the chop,
On the head a comb and crop;
Place a tail upon the chop;
Don't forget before you stop
Two stout legs and claws also;
Then perhaps the cook will crow.

A Happy Community.

I know of an old barn—so old that it is almost ready to tumble down. Its owner died many years ago, and it has never been used since except by the sparrows. Seeing that no one else had any use for the barn they promptly took possession of it, and there they have built their nests and reared their young ever since. As there was plenty of room for all, they did not quarrel, as they so frequently do over their nests in the open air. There are hundreds of them, and a happier community it would be hard to find.

These sparrows live in towns and cities. They do not sing, and so they are not generally liked, and they have a hard time to find places for all their nests. If they stay out of doors in the winter, they have to build winter nests to keep them warm. Even then many of them freeze to death during a cold winter.

The Sand Man.

Queer little man from shadow town,
Who comes in when the sun goes down!
In each hand he holds some sand,
And he scatters it over the land.

Into the eyes of my children it fell,
And soon its charm began to tell;
Three little heads began to nod,
And their prayers were said to God.

Into the bed so soft and white
They had crept after kissing good night;
Then the little man who had made his round
Slowly went back into shadow town.

Origin of "Cwt."

The origin of the symbol "cwt." for hundredweight is as follows: C is the initial letter of the Latin word "centum," meaning a hundred, and wt are the first and last letters of the word "weight" and are used as a contraction for it.

Or if you are the kind of little woman that babies crawl over, or if little children jump out their woes to you in your lap, and it won't do to have such dainty things, a crepon dress of warm, beautiful red, the kind that lights up a room and makes the color deepen in your face, the tint that the children will love and can't spoil, may be made so simply with rows of satin ribbon for a decoration, with big ruffles over the sleeve puffs, a stock collar and a sash belt of satin. The waist is gathered back and front much the same and is not beyond the skill of the home dressmaker. Or if by

Two tablespoonfuls of flour, 2 eggs well beaten, a half pint of milk, 2 ounces of butter, sugar and nutmeg. Mix the flour with a little cold milk, then gradually add the rest of the milk and the eggs. Stir in the butter just melted, sweeten to taste, half fill teacups with the mixture and bake in a good oven for 20 minutes. Turn on to a hot dish and strew sugar over.

IN FIGURED AND PLAIN SILKS, CREPON AND CASHMERE.

With the Surplice Waists, Leg o' Mutton Sleeves, Immense Shoulder Ruffles, Trimmed Skirts and Sash Belts, the Fashion Will Be at Its Prettiest.

And now for the house dresses, the pretty old fashioned surplice waists, crossing in front, but plain at the back, the round, full skirts, the big, old fashioned sleeves are sweetest and simplest. A changeable china silk, with fireworks of green shooting across a dark surface, has a flounce of green on the bottom about six inches wide, over this a flounce of lace with a scalloped edge, and above this four rows of green satin ribbon run in.

The flounce may be made of net with a narrow pattern lace for a border, and the whole thing put on with a beading, with the ribbon threaded in and out. The surplice waist is edged with a big ruffle of this lace trimmed in the same way with green ribbons and opens over a V of the lace frilled in over green. A green velvet collar, a green velvet twist on the edge of the round waist, a back made with a little fullness across the top, all plaited down into little plaits in the center, full sleeves ending in black lace ruffles above the elbow, deeper on the outer edge than on the inner one, over long, close sleeves, and there you are, and you have made it yourself for half as much as the modiste charges.

If it is a light dress, you want to use white lace instead of black and the effect is equally good. The sweetest home dress in the world is made of gray, if you can wear it—gray crepon, gray cashmere, gray crepe de chine, with a little figure. Make the sleeves of satin if you want it rich; of the same if you don't want to spend much money. Make the very alluring revers shown in the illustration, and in between them put green silk if you are a blond, yellow if a brunette, pale blue or pink if you are what the Germans call a brown blond, with the dark hair and fair skin. This material inside may be of heavy corded silk

A VICTIM OF FATE.

He Had Tried Various Things, but Luck Was Against Him.

He wasn't a tramp exactly, but he was on the way there. He had struck the merchant for a dollar, and the merchant was rather interested in him.

"I don't see," he said, "why you go about asking for money or help. You are an intelligent man, and I should think you could get something better to do."

"I don't know about that," was the despondent rejoinder. "The Lord knows I tried hard enough to get along before I lost my heart entirely."

"What did you do?"

"Well, a little of everything. I had some money, and I thought I'd go to raising rice in South Carolina and show those people down there how to do it right. I knew I could, of course, and one day a man came along selling a new brand of seed rice. He was a nice looking man from New York, and I liked his style. He liked my style, too, he said, and would sell me the exclusive right to handle his stuff in South Carolina. It was something new—a seed that could not be exposed to the light, but that would yield three times as much as the old varieties. That was what I was looking for, and very quietly I took it in, paying $200 for the right and four sealed cans of seed. I did all the work at night, and when it was finished I sat down to wait and to chuckle over my enterprise. But I waited and waited, and grew anxious, and one day I looked into the old cans and found I had been stuck with some mean little wheat grains, and you might as well try to raise icicles in Hades. So I gave up rice wheat in South Carolina rice swamp."

"That was bad luck," said the sympathizing merchant.

"So, I thought, and I left the state and went to raising cattle in western Kansas. Hadn't more than got my herd set out before a cyclone came along and blew every horn of it clean over to the next county, and when I went after my stock a plous cowboy who had gathered them in with his own informed me that they had been sent to him by Providence, and he'd like to see any son of a gun try to take them away. As he had a winchester and a lot of friends with him I didn't see my way clear to interfering with the ways of Providence, and I left the country."

"It's pretty hard when Providence goes against a man," said the merchant kindly.

"Yes, but that isn't all," sighed the discomfited one. "When what little I had left I went to Pennsylvania and bought a water power gristmill in the mining regions. I fixed it up with new machinery, and for awhile it looked as if my luck had changed and I was going to come out on top at last. But one night a big mine lying under the stream that gave me my mill power caved in sank down, just enough to change the lay of the land, and, by gum, the water began to run the other way, and when I got to the mill in the morning the water gates were open, the stream was running up hill, as it were, and my mill machinery had been running backward until the flywheel was busted and the whole shebang was a wreck."

The man wiped a tear from his eye.

"Then it was," he continued, "that my heart broke, and I laid right down and quit. Now, do you blame me for what I am doing?"

The merchant gave him $5, and the man was in the police court next morning.—Detroit Free Press.

A good many older persons who have been in different positions and have felt that the world was really very hard can sympathize with little Flo Sanborn, of whom an exchange writes:

"Everything I do is laid to me."—Youth's Companion.

"Indeed I was. It was the nicest wedding we have had this season. Why, even the bride took a hand in the fight."—Texas Siftings.

He Was Right.

This same black Sammy is a noted boy in the Sunday school. His teacher on day was trying to make the class see the advantage of living a good life. These moral remarks were occasioned by a strong wad of chewed paper that happened to strike the benevolent superintendent on the cheek. Sammy was doubtless the culprit, although his black skin showed no guilt.

"Now, children, you must be better. Such actions as those tend to drag you downward, and if you do a bad deed once the second time you do it comes easily. It does not pay to be bad, for you cannot go to heaven. Then Miss Goode straightened her glasses and looked into Sammy's shining eyes.

MELOPOIA CONCERT.

THE FINAL ONE OF THE SEASON AT THE CASINO LAST EVENING.

The Usual Large and Fashionable Audience.—The Society Does Itself Great Credit.—The Affair a Decided Success.

The third and last concert of the third season of the Melopoia was given last evening in the Casino of the Union County Country Club before a large and delighted audience.

The society had the assistance of Miss Carlotta Maconda, soprano; Dr. Carl E. Duffi, bass-cantate, who has made himself universally popular by his excellent singing at previous Melopoia concerts, and the celebrated Diller Quartette of French horns.

The concert began at 8.30 o'clock with the "Song of the Tritons" which was rendered by the Society with much dash and rhythm that they were most heartily encored and responded by repeating it.

Miss Carlotta Maconda was frequently encored. Her voice was rich, her register and trills were true, and the selections difficult. The moment Dr. Carl E. Duffi appeared on the stage he was welcomed with a grand ovation. His singing was particularly sweet and expressive, and he was encored on each appearance.

The Diller Quartette of French horns is one of the best in the country and the music produced was very mellow and harmonious.

The Melopoia Ladies Chorus was heartily encored after the lively and catchy song "In Summer Go Thy Love To Seek" but did not respond.

The society's heaviest piece, "The Song of Thanksgiving," was undoubtedly their best. The power and shading brought forth under conductor William R. Chapman's able leadership were grand, and showed the effects of thorough rehearsing.

The double quartette of men's voices, including Mr. Elmer E. Runyon First tenor, Mr. George Schoonmaker, second tenor, Mr. Fred. Walz, first base, and Mr. Will Runyon, second base, members of the Melopoia, and a quartette from the Apollo Sixteen of New York, of which Mr. Chapman is the leader. They sang exceptionally well and responded to an enthusiastic encore with a repetition of of the song.

The double quartette was composed of the following gentlemen, Messrs Fulton, Boynton, Hoppenheimer, Schoonmaker, Orr Duff, Elmer Runyon, Will Runyon and Fred Walz.

The following is the program:

PART FIRST.

Song of the Tritons ..... Molloy
Once on a time, so I've been told,
There lived a fisher's daughter,
Who loved, sheiks said, a Triton bold,
Who came up from the water.
Oft in his hands a net he'd hold,
In rising and in sinking,
Shining with coral, pearl and gold,
Which he kept ever clinking.
Clinkety, clink, clink, clinkety, clink.
Which he kept ever clinking.
Come dwell with me the Triton said,
And laughed a smile so sunny,
Yes, I will come, the maid replied,
For love and not for money.
Then off he leapt in, and off leapt she
No one smashed her kin knows,
Thus was the fish girl married
To the Triton 'mongst the unknowns.

Mrs. Samuel R. Proud of East Third street is seriously ill.

Mr. Hermann of Netherwood, has returned home from California.

Mrs. Walter Walker, is seriously ill with Bright's disease at the home of her father, Mr. E. C. Morse, of Chatham street.

The next dance of the Columbia Club will be held at the residence of Mr. Seymour Smith on Central avenue Thursday night, May 11th.

Mrs. Frank Linke of Somerset street bought a Columbia Model safety bicycle, Monday, of Mr. Frank L. C. Martin and Wednesday presented it to her husband as a birthday present.

This evening's lecture, by Mr. Walter Scott, at Gospel Hall, over Dime Savings Bank, 6 East Front street, at eight p. m., will be on the relations between husband and wife, parents and children, and masters and servants, as seen from a Christian standpoint.

The New York Press Club Fair opened Monday night. A department which was very generally neglected Monday night, but was discovered last evening, is the art exhibit at the rear of the main hall and extending across the palace. In it are many fine examples of the work of many of New York's best painters, both in oil and water colors. There is a notable picture by Edward Gay, an Autumn scene by H. Bolton Jones, pastel by Napoleon Sarony, pictures by A. Mallaby Dey, Frances Jones, Alan Wells, Walter Clark, Leonard Ochiman, W. M. Chase, George Wharton Edwards or this city and others.

In Justice Nash's Court.

Two civil suits were brought in Justice Nash's court yesterday afternoon, and summons were issued as follows:

Corie-ll vs. Rogers. On contract. Returnable Thursday, May 11th. Coriell vs. Burnet, et. als. On contract. Returnable Thursday, May 11th.

OUR WATER SUPPLY.

AND THE COMPANY WHICH NOW MONOPOLIZES IT.

How it is Using its Opportunities. What Limit is There to Prevent the Company Eventually Charging What it Chooses?

The Plainfield Water Company yesterday succeeded in removing the last of the meters from the dwellings into which they were put to record the amount of water used by families who preferred to pay by measure.

The manner in which these meters has been removed in many instances is not highly creditable to the company, there being repeated instances where the removal has been done without the knowledge of the family, the person getting into the cellars of houses by what appear to be mere subterfuges to deceive as to his real purpose.

The company claims that the meters have been a constant source of trouble to them ever since they were introduced. They aver that they were put in as an experiment at a cost of $8,000. People were constantly disputing their bills, where the meters indicated that much water had been used, and there were other instances where the meters did not indicate as much water used as the company considered they ought to indicate.

The meters were no doubt correct in all cases.

There are people who having good driven well water supply for drinking and cooking purposes, prefer it to that supplied by the Water Company, and having a good rain water tank supply, prefer it for washing purposes, using the city water only for bathing for washing household utensils and for flushing water closets.

This makes the supply required from the water company comparitively light.

Notwithstanding the company's assurances of the purity of the water it supplies, there are a great many who prefer for drinking and cooking purposes the water respecting which they have no doubt.

Hence it is that the average revenue to the company per family is considerably below the amount estimated.

The company, therefore, proposes to charge what it considers the average family ought to use and then permit each family to feel free to use what it desires.

If people feel that the amount charged is exorbitant they must submit to it or have the water shut off.

This shows that the city ought to own the city's water supply for its own inhabitants.

Different plans have proven quite effectual in other cities when monopolies have become extortionate as they invariably do when they feel that they can do so with impunity.

In Atlantic City, and in Asbury Park, new companies have been formed and have met with encouraging success from the start. Had it not been for the efforts of the combine in Plainfield to introduce a scheme which was, to say the least, questionable, the people would probably have had their own water works.

It will not be long before, sooner or later—the sooner the better. The people can then control the matter at the polls.

There is another plan which can be introduced by people who feel that the company is trying to be extortionate.

A well may be driven in the center of a square of four streets, the water pumped up into a trestle tower tank by means of a wind-mill and gas engine or electric motor, and pure water in abundance supplied the families on the four streets comprising the square at a price that would be a mere trifle, and would leave the families entirely independent of any monopoly.

This would be a measure that could be adopted at but little expense, provided the city did not eventually put in its own water, which of course would be the best of all.

The question can be considered with the sewerage question very appropriately.

ENTERTAINMENT IN HOPE CHAPEL.

A Delightful Affair Well Attended Last Night.

Hope chapel, on West Fourth street, was crowded last night with members and friends, and a delightful entertainment enjoyed.

A lengthy and varied programme was rendered. There was singing, recitations and shadow pictures.

Ice cream and cake were served, and altogether it was one of the most successful events ever given in the chapel.

After the entertainment a sociable was enjoyed by the members.

The object of the entertainment was to raise money for a Sunday school excursion next Summer, and quite a nest sum was realized.

The "Old Homestead."

Friday night the "Old Homestead will be presented at Music Hall.

The play is a series of pictures of home life, calculated to be true to the nature from which they are drawn, and free from sensationalism. More has been heard of this play than of most others, and the appetite of the theater going public, the country over, has been whetted for an opportunity to witness the play which set New York wild with delight, where for years it played to the capacity of the Academy of Music, and also the larger cities of the union, where it has been presented for four seasons by the company who will be seen here.

A TRIP WITH PROF. SMITH.

A Camera Club Audience Delightfully Entertained.

Mr. F. S. Smith of the Plainfield High School took a good sized audience at the Camera Club with him on a trip to the White Mountains last evening.

The trip was short but it was very enjoyable and interesting, and was accomplished by the aid of lantern slides.

The start was made from the Plainfield High School, a perfect illustration of the building being shown on the screen. Next Mr. Smith showed the picture of a face on the screen of a person who needed no introduction—it was Miss Bulkley, late principal of Plainfield schools. Then the start was made in earnest. Came the engine to pull the train—No. 999, and after a few illustrations along the route, Boston was reached. Then the trip up the coast was vividly shown and many views of interesting features thrown on the screen. Among these being Kimball's Island, on which a monument to Washington stood, built in 1801, bearing the following inscription: "There is Rest in Heaven." Hampton Village was reached finally and a tally-ho taken for the mountain.

Many beautiful scenes in the mountains were shown and all were minutely described by Prof. Smith. Among the slides being one of "the Old Man of the Mountain," who has a face 40 feet long. The return home was made by way of Niagara Falls. After the audience had arrived here, Mr. Van Ripe, accompanied by his son on the banjo, delighted the travelers with several selections on the zither.

Then a trip was taken west among the Indians.

BREVITIES.

—The adjourned Meeting of the Common Council will be held Monday, May 15th.

—A wheel was wrecked from a dog cart, yesterday, on Front street, opposite Grove, by the car tracks.

—A regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Bicycle Club will be held at the club house next Monday night.

—Two wagons collided at corner of Somerset and Harmony streets yesterday. A wheel on one of the vehicles was wrecked.

—The Board of Trustees of the Plainfield Bicycle Club will hold a meeting Friday night in the reading room of the Wheelmen's Headquarters on Park Avenue.

—This morning about ten o'clock an axle of a baker's wagon broke as the vehicle was being driven along West Front street. The horse did not run away.

—New fashionable dress goods is the theme of Edsall's new advertisement in to-days News. He publishes an interesting list of the different names of goods worn this season now on sale at his store. He claims to be showing the largest and most popular line this side of New York, and guarantees that all are of the very best quality that the market affords, and the prices the lowest.

—Wm. H. Peddie, Division Superintendent of the New Jersey Central Railroad, has resigned from the Linden Township Committee. This act was a surprise, as Mr. Peddie was elected on the Citizens' Anti-Race Track ticket, and headed it with his name. He got the largest vote of any of the candidates. Mr. Peddie gave no reason for his retirement except that he could not attend to the duties of the office.

—The macadamizing of Somerset street cost the taxpayers of North Plainfield township many thousands of dollars. It is only necessary to see the street torn up by the Italians, as it is at present, for the new street railway, to be satisfied that the work was well done. What assurance have the taxpayers that the street will be secured to its former splendid condition as a roadway? It seems a shame to have ruined a street as which the taxpayers have expended so much.

Warren's New Officers.

The annual meeting of Warren Engine Co., No. 1, of North Plainfield, was held last night. The following officers were elected:

Foreman—J. J. Stahl.
First Assistant—D. Bodine.
Second Assistant—H. G. Adams.
Secretary—J. D. Anderson.
Financial Secretary—Wm. T. Newman.
Treasurer—H. Jones.
Engineer—P. Kellegher.
First Assistant—W. T. Newman.
Second Assistant—W. Krewson.
Stoker—L. Feiring.
Representative to Relief Association—James F. Buckle.

Frisbie Wants $1,000.

About a year ago Dog Catcher Frisbie started to take a horse belonging to Patrick Keely to the pound. Mr. Keely took the horse away from Frisbie. In the altercation both men were slightly scratched. Frisbie brought suit against Keely for damages. The case was tried three times and each time it resulted in favor of Keely. Now Frisbie again sues for $1,000 damages in the Elizabeth court. Keely says the suit is brought out of pure spite, because he refused to pay Frisbie money for leaving his dog alone.

Commenced to Celebrate Early.

James Donovan commenced to celebrate in honor of the circus early this morning. In consequence he missed parade, circus and all, as he was compelled to spend the day in the lockup.

CORRESPONDENCE.

New Jersey, at the World's Fair Yesterday.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—New Jersey, with her quaint old time New England home, had a house warming yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There was no formal speechifying, only a general gathering of heroines and daughters. Among those present were Gov. G. T. Werts, his Wife, daughters and niece; also his staff-Adjutant-general W. S. Stryker, Gen. B. S. Spencer, Chancellor J. D. McGill, State Comptroller W. S. Heppenheimer, Gols. Robert Adrain, Mayor John VanCleef, Senator M. T. Barrett, A. E. Kuser, A. C. Dickinson and J. D. Bedle, Jr.; The World's Fair Commissioners-Steven B. Meeker, president of the board, Walter S. Lenox, secretary and treasurer, Thomas Smith, Peter Hauck and John D. Cambell. The lady commissioners Mesdames Edwin A. Stevens, W. A. Bocbling, Yardley, Kinney, Ware, Adrain, Barrett, and Miss Clark. Among the visitors were Colonel McMaster and George Gray, and a number of the legislative body.

After enjoying the hospitality of the state her guests were cordially invited to make a tour of the beautifully finished building. The entrance hall is quite large, done up in tones of terra cotta and gold. One of the novel features is the old fashioned door in two compartments, so one may close the lower and throw open the upper half. The writer looked in vain however, for the traditional "cat-hole" and supposed fellines were ostracized.

A big fire place filled one side of the hall, suggested comfort galore for a cold or rainy day. Grouped about were rare ferns and stately palms. The executive commissioners office, a small room to the left, perfect in its appointments and treated in dull blues, with the walls in heavily toned cream and gold paper. The chandeliers in all the rooms are extremely rich and new in design.

On the opposite side a general reception room, in blue and fawn. You wind up the pretty stair-way and the ladies reception rooms open to the left and are perfect gems. The heavy Wilton carpets of the soft pink, fawn and greens, seem too delicate for the public decorating feet. Both rooms are daintiness itself. From the soft window draperies covering the old-time small panes to the choice bric-a-brac on the handsome mantle, sweet scented flowers etc.

One of the unique features of these rooms is the two steps leading down to them, and recalls grandmother's home. The pretty lunch room is deep terra cotta to the right of the hall, savored of New Jersey's hospitality. Opening from this are two tastefully furnished rooms for the use of her Executive Commissioner. The upper, or third floor, devoted to the kitchens, servants' quarters, etc. The magnificence and elegance of the entire building make you loth to leave it and take a peep at the State's exhibit in the Mines' department where New Jersey has a very fine exhibit of its ores. The specimens are most unique and rare, some of them being the only ones of Franklin furnace, 170 feet under ground. Surmounting the different exhibits are photographs of New Jersey's spring and mineral water resorts. In the Agricultural hall, the New Jersey exhibit is crowded with corn. A grass pagoda in the the centre, is the work of her ladies. It is very beautiful.

New Jersey had a quiet lunch at her self when sitting in one of the doorways a huge mosquito, "a native," made of corn, with a vicious looking sticker, quite perfect, and almost an audible buzz. In the Liberal Arts building a large part of her section is devoted to public school work. Many exhibits with enclosed leaves like an immense book, show the work of pupils from every school in the state, and on the top is a photograph of each school in the State. This display makes you cease to wonder at the wide awakeness and the progressive enterprise of this little State.

LENOX.

NEW JERSEY DEDICATES HER BUILDING.

The following of the same appeared in this morning's telegraphic news:

Flowers, fair women, and men in civil, military or navy uniform, made a brilliant scene yesterday afternoon in the pretty colonial home of New Jersey at the Exposition. The State building, which is almost a counterpart of General Washington's headquarters at Morristown, was formally dedicated, and Gov. Werts was honored with a reception by the World's Fair Commissioners and Lady Managers of the State. The main hall was a floral bower of beauty, and every room was profusely decorated with cut flowers and green products of the conservatory. Several hundred people, foreign and American, including many from New Jersey, enjoyed the State's hospitality between two and five o'clock.

Caught Five of Them.

Last night eight Plainfielders went over into the borough and started a fight. Marshal Pangborn arrested five of them. The party plead guilty to the charge of drunk and disorderly, when arraigned before Justice Crossley this morning. They were: John Doe, who was fined three dollars and costs, Thomas Roddy, five two dollars and costs, John Larry, fined two dollars, John James, fined two dollars. John Welsh fined three dollars and costs.

Reception and Entertainment.

The intermediate and junior classes of the Vincent chapel Sunday-school held a reception and entertainment in the chapel last night. The Rev. Dr. Barnes gave a very interesting lecture and a pleasing programme was rendered, including instrumental and vocal selections. At its conclusion ice cream and cake were served.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

THE HARRIS REPORT IS IN.

Gov. Flower Says Nothing as to When He Will Take Action.

ALBANY, May 3, (Special.)—Gov. Flower to-day received the testimony taken before George Raines, referee in the matters of the application for clemency in behalf of Carlyle W. Harris.

The Governor would say nothing as to how soon he would take action in the case.

To Inquire Into his Sanity.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., May 3, (Special.) Vice-Chancellor Van Fleet to-day appointed ex-Governor Ludlow, Dr. H. R. Baldwin and R. S. Bowe-lls a commission to inquire into the sanity of ex president of the saving institution, Henry S. Palmer. They will hold a meeting May 9th, to determine whether the sheriff shall appoint a guardian to look after Palmer and his property.

12,000 Acres of Water Let Loose.

LEWA. O., May 3. (Special.)—The Lewiston reservoir broke at four o'clock this morning. It is reported that from fifteen to twenty persons were drowned.

Seventeen thousand acres of water rushed into the Miami Valley.

Great loss life is feared in the valley below.

Creation.

To-morrow evening, the Choral Society is to render the above popular Oratorio with the following soloists: Mrs. Jennie Patrick Walker, of Boston, soprano; Ericson Bushnell, baritone, and James H. Rieketson, tenor; also full orchestra. The members have taken considerable interest in the production of this work and propose giving a memorable performance. When this Oratorio was given two years ago for the first time in the city, the Society was highly complimented; but, judging from the enthusiasm of members at rehearsals, it is evidently the intention to surpass the previous effort. The Society has done excellent work this season, and the Oratorio of "Creation" at this particular time is the most fitting means to appropriate conclusion to the series of concerts.

State Charities Aid Association.

At the meeting of the Union County Branch of the State Charities Aid Association held in Elizabeth, on Monday evening, the Committee on Jails and Almshouses reported that some shelves had been purchased and put up in the county jail to hold such books as might be contributed for the prisoners to read. The secretary was instructed to ask each member of the Association in one work of real merit suitable for this purpose. Contributions from other friends, especially the departments of travel and biography will also be gladly received. Books should be addressed to Mrs. Nelson Trimble, 31 Rahway avenue, Elizabeth.

The Circus Here.

The Barnum & Bailey circus arrived in Plainfield early this morning. The tents have been erected on La Grande avenue.

On account of the stormy weather there was only a short street parade. People began to congregate at the street corners as early as nine o'clock, and stood waiting in the drizzling rain until eleven o'clock, when the parade passed. The musicians were compelled to get off the "band wagons" as they went under the railroad bridges.

Debate at the Y. M. C. A.

A debate, to take place at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, has been arranged for to-morrow evening, subject:

"Resolved, That the Indian has suffered more at the hands of the white man in America than the Negro."

Affirmative.—Oscar Cambell, Norman Prebasco, Arthur Crane.

Negative.—Charles Fernald, Clarence Smith, Clinton Crane.

The admission will be free.

Down to the Races.

Policeman Corns, who is employed by the Central Railroad Company, and whose regular beat is at the North avenue depot, has been doing duty afternoons at the Jersey City Race Track for the railroad company, for several days now.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A little makes a little man great and a great man little.

It is education we want, not mere learning out of books.

The fact that the John Bull, the first locomotive engine ever brought to America, can still make 30 miles an hour is conclusive that there have not been such great improvements in railroad engines after all. The John Bull can still draw a train as fast as the average of trains in this country travel, although half a century has elapsed since it made its first trip. The improvement has been mainly in roadbeds and cars and in the increased size and power of the engines, not their speed.

While the cotton spinners were on strike in England they lost wages at the rate of $350,000 a week. There were 50,000 of the strikers. Many of the men had funds laid away in the building and loan associations and in the savings banks, so that they were not altogether dependent on their societies for support during the strike. While the result of the long strike is not wholly a victory for the strikers, it is in part. They struck against a reduction of 5 per cent in wages. They agreed to return to work on a reduction of 3 per cent. Most important, however, is the method mutually agreed on by the workmen and the employers for determining future differences. Under this agreement wages can only be changed once a year hereafter, while questions at issue shall be settled by a committee consisting of eight persons, four from the workingmen's organization, four from the federated association of employers. If they cannot agree, they are to be discharged from duty and a new committee appointed to arbitrate the difference. It is a credit to both sides that they have reached this honorable and peaceful settlement not only of present difficulties, but apparently of future ones.

It Won't Do, Girls.

Two-thirds of the stenographers and typewriters in the country are women. They are quicker and better manipulators with the typewriting machine than men are and more tractable office assistants. They are in every way capable of earning and getting just as much money as a man. But a writer in The Herald says that the average wages paid to women in this occupation in New-York is $11 a week, while men stenographers and typewriters average $14 a week, and the fattest places are almost without exception filled by men.

The reason is that the girls are not ambitious to excel or to strive for the highest places. They think more of marrying and escaping work altogether than of perfecting themselves in their trade. This is unfortunate if true. The poorest possible reason a girl can have for marrying is that she may escape work. Where she does this, in nine cases out of ten she will be disappointed and many a time wish herself back clicking at the old machine and earning her own money and spending it as she pleases.

Then, too, the conditions of life are grown constantly harder. With the best intentions not all married men can support their families as they wish. Ten dollars are necessary to maintain a respectable appearance where $5 used to be sufficient. It is far better to remain single and strive for and win the highest place and get $2,000 or $2,500 a year than to marry for a support and be miserably disappointed. Then, too, remember this: If you have any work to do, it is a sin not to do that work the best it can be done.

Distribution of Foreigners.

Census bulletin 357 shows the distribution of our foreign population by race in the largest cities of the Union. The three cities having over a million inhabitants are respectively New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, but the proportion of foreign born in Philadelphia is much less than in the other two cities. In New York and Chicago the proportion is almost the same, being about 41 per cent of the whole population, while in Philadelphia it is only 25.7 per cent. So that if any one of our three largest cities can claim to be an American city it is Philadelphia. Baltimore, with a population of nearly half a million, has only a little more than 13 per cent of foreigners.

A late writer says that the southern states of this Union and Canada contain the most purely Anglo-Saxon population of any portion of North America. It is not clear, however, that the two sections named have attained any superiority in any respect over the rest of the continent, so they need not flatter themselves that the pure Anglo-Saxon blood is a whit more good and great than the mixed Teutonic, Saxon and Celtic.

Chicago and New York appear to run in parallel lines so far as the proportion of German population goes. Each has about 14 per cent of German born inhabitants. But when it comes to Irish New York is far ahead of Chicago, having nearly as large a proportion of Irish as Germans, while Chicago contains only a little more than 6 per cent. Germans and Scandinavians are inclined to settle in the interior. Irish, perhaps in remembrance of their ancient isle, scatter mostly along the Atlantic coast. Boston, beloved of the Irish, contains the largest proportion of that nationality, the per cent being nearly 18.

WITHIN THE WHITE CITY.

Solemnly the American Views the Fair's Wonders.

THE FOREIGNERS AFTER DOLLARS

The Picturesque Scene In Midway Plaisance Where All Roads Touch Elbows — Electricity Rallying Closed Until It Is In Better Shape.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Unfinished, though it may be, the exposition is drawing the crowds. On this the third day of open gates the people have been pouring in a steady stream toward Jackson park, and it is probable that the attendance will be greater than yesterday when 15,000 people passed the turnstiles.

The steady coming and going of the people is quiet, almost melancholy. For sixteen hours the fair completes about that lack of vivacity in the American crowds. People walk about the grounds in observant groups, make no demonstration, do not even seem to be enjoying themselves. A crowd in Paris or Vienna would have been like a big lot of naughty on such an occasion. There would be dancing and much wine drinking. Family parties would lunch on the grass. Men would embrace each other. But the plodding, unemotional American, who takes his pleasure seriously, as the English cousins are said to do. It was only by the tears that gathered in the eyes of many when the wonderful panorama was opened in the Court of Honor that one could see deeply the throngs were moved by the rare spectacle.

Many visitors found their way into Midway plaisance, and there was no lack of attraction for them along this queer thoroughfare.

Looking For American Dollars.

The Turks, after prayers in the mosque, began the same energetic way of enticing the nimble dollar from the pockets of the infidel throng, the dancing girls writhed and pirouetted before gaping crowds of curiosity seekers. The Irish colleen in Lady Aberdeen's village, from which pigs are cruelly excluded, put on their sweetest smiles; the Dahomeyans grunted about the weather, the South sea islanders stalked forth and exchanged the greetings of the day with their next door neighbors from the island of Ceylon, and there was a general air of enjoyment not unmixed with business pervading the whole thoroughfare.

The army of workmen were again called into service and everything will be pushed night and day until the display is complete. The macadam roadways and walks around the grounds are to give way to asphalt. It was demonstrated to everybody's satisfaction that while macadam may be well enough in its way, it is a success when being tramped upon in rainy weather. The work was commenced today.

Outside the grounds the cable cars unloaded thousands of passengers, many of which were attracted by the sideshows which line the streets for blocks on every side of the entrances. The lemonade and popcorn men did a thriving business, the dime museums were well patronized and everything showed that the big show, with all its minor attractions and side issues, was in full blast.

All of the buildings open to the public are free of excess toilet and some of three exceptions the display in Electricity building is yet in such shape that it cannot be inspected with any justice to exhibitors or degree of pleasure to the visitors, and the building was closed. It was thought, however, that it would be in condition to warrant opening in a few days.

Scenes Inside the Fair.

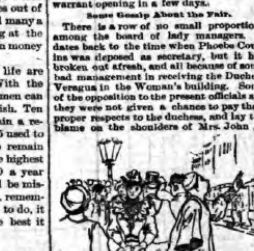
There is a row of so small proportions among the board of lady managers. It dates back to the time when Phoebe Cousins was appointed as secretary, but it has broken out afresh, and all because of some bad management in receiving the Duchess Veragua in the Woman's building. Some of the opposition to the present officials say they were not given a chance to pay their proper respects to the duchess, and lay the blame on the shoulders of Mrs John A.



ALL NATIONS TOUCH ELBOWS.

Logan and Mrs. Potter Palmer, but especially on the former, who, it is said, took it upon herself to entertain the duchess to the exclusion of all others. It is probable that the matter will be officially brought before the board.

The Pennsylvanians have not yet dedicated their magnificent building. That event will take place probably in July on a day set apart by joint action of the state board and exercises similar to Pennsylvania day. The general desire is to make it July 4, the same as Pennsylvania day at the Centennial. Lieutenant Governor Louis A. Watres, of the Keystone State is here, and he joined the state and national commissioners in a thorough inspection of the state exhibits in the big buildings. They found the installation nearly completed. Liberty Bell is half hidden by floral offerings, and it is surrounded all the time by visitors to the state building.

Flowers, fair women and men in civilian dress or military uniform make a brilliant scene nowadays in the pretty colonial house of New Jersey at the exposition. The state building, which is almost a counterpart of General Washington's headquarters at Morristown, has been formally dedicated. Governor Werts was tendered a reception by the World's fair commissioners and lady managers of New Jersey.

New Jersey's State Building Open.

The main hall was a floral bower of beauty, and every room was profusely decorated with cut flowers and green products of the conservatory. Several hundred people, foreign and American, including many from New Jersey, enjoyed the state's hospitality.

Among those in attendance were the governor and Mrs. Werts, Misses Mary M. and Hattie E. Werts, Generals Stryker, Hoffenbergh, McGill and Spencer, Colonels Adkins, Berdell, Rowe, Bellis, Dickinson and Wm. Cox, all of the governor's staff; United States Senator James Smith, Jr., State Treasurer George Grey, State Senators Terhune and Hinchliff and Representative Leaming and Secretary of the World's fair legislative committee.

The second concert by the exposition orchestra of 114 pieces will be given this afternoon in Music hall. Paderewski will be present and perform upon his favorite piano. The first concert was delayed about

THE GUIDE EXPLAINS.

15 minutes owing to the action of the council of administrative in closing the doors until the piano controversy has been settled. The crowd in attendance was small, but enthusiastic. Paderewski was given an enthusiastic reception. He played two pieces, a concerto in A minor by himself and a nocturne by Chopin.

A Spanish Dinner For the Duke.

President Thomas W. Palmer of the World's Columbian commission gave a banquet at the Auditorium hotel last night in honor of the Duke of Veragua. The diners sat in the banquet room on the parquet floor of the Auditorium. The long apartment was decorated in scarlet and yellow, the colors of Spain. Flags and banners of that hue were arranged along the walls and over the doors. On the tables were magnificent groups of flowers—scarlet and yellow—and each guest showed respect to Spain's representative by wearing a boutonniere of the same colors. The menu affected Castilian as far as possible. All the dishes in the long dinner were such as the duke is accustomed to having in his native country. Even the menu card was printed in Spanish from end to end.

Electing Bishop Brooks' Successor.

BOSTON, May 3.—The one hundred and eighth annual meeting of the convention of the Protestant Episcopal church in the diocese of Massachusetts opened in the chapel of Trinity church, Boston, this morning at 9 o'clock. The session opened with the preliminaries to its organization for business, followed at 10 o'clock in Trinity church with a sermon, memorial of the late Bishop Brooks, by the Right Rev. Henry C. Potter, bishop of New York, and the holy communion. The business of the convention will be the election of bishop. The conservatives will put in nomination Right Rev. William H. Hare, D. D., missionary bishop of South Dakota. The broad church candidate will be Jean Lawrence of the Episcopal Theological school of Cambridge. Father Hall, late of Providence, R. I., of St. John the Evangelist, but now of England, will probably be nominated by some one of his friends.

White Ships Leave the Visitors.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Four of Uncle Sam's vessels, which have been anchored in the North river, left their moorings today. The Charleston and the Concord go to the Norfold navy yard and the San Francisco and Yorktown to the Brooklyn navy yard. There has been much criticism of the action of the navy department in ordering away any of our ships before the foreign squadrons are in readiness of leaving. The vessels ordered away were not so much in want of repairs that they should go to a navy yard at once. The reason of their early departure, it is said, is to give the men at the two navy yards something to do.

She May Not Be Dead.

LONG ISLAND CITY, May 3.—Coroner Meiners was called to 289 Vernon avenue to see the body of Mrs. Marion, 75 years old, who had been reported to him as having died. Nine hours after Miss Marion's supposed death her body was found to be very warm and one of her cheeks was flushed. Her family believes that she is in a trance and have summoned a number of physicians. The aged lady is wrapped in blankets and is constantly watched by friends of the family.

The Signora Leaves Us.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Signora Eleonora Duse sails for Europe today. The Italian actress was to fill a matinee yesterday at the charity matinee she was to have given at the Fifth Avenue theater. A throng of people crowded the Marion, 15

THE OLD TRAIN AT BUFFALO.

The DeWitt Clinton Model Received a Salute of Ovations in New York State.

BUFFALO, May 3.—The New York Central's World's fair train will remain here three or four days awaiting the Empire State express exhibit train, which upon its arrival here will be attached to the DeWitt Clinton consolidated, and the whole train, with engine 999, will be hauled to Chicago. From Syracuse to this city the train was received with a succession of ovations.

At Canastota Mr. D. P. Hutchinson, 77 years old, was taken on board. Mr. Hutchinson was a passenger on the DeWitt Clinton train between Albany and Schenectady in 1831. Upon the arrival of the train at Syracuse it halted in front of Vanderbilt hotel, and Mr. Hutchinson, mounted on one of the little carriages, addressed the crowd which filled the street, relating many of the reminiscences of his experience on the railroad.

At the primitive [illegible] he was obliged to repeat three or four times as the train moved toward the depot, halting now and then to give the people a chance to inspect the curious relics and the mammoth express locomotive.

The train was drawn from Syracuse to Rochester over the Auburn road.

At Auburn the machine shops, factories and schools were closed, and everybody in town except the inmates of the state prison were out. At least 15,000 people gathered about the station and lined the tracks, cheering and waving hats, etc. The same scene was enacted in a somewhat smaller scale at Seneca Falls and Waterloo. At Canandaigua everything and everybody was in holiday garb, flags on the public buildings were hoisted and the fire and church bells rung. When the train reached Rochester a surging mass of people packed every bit of space in and on either side of the depot, 20,000 being a very conservative estimate of the number.

Passports Refused to Hebrews.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The Evening World says that the Russian consul general, Olsowsky, declined to place his signature upon a passport issued by the state department and presented by the wife of a citizen of the United States on the ground that she was a Hebrew. The World claims to have sent a reporter with a passport, and that the consul refused to put his signature to it when, in reply to a question, the reporter said he was a Hebrew.

Admirals Will See the Fair.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The programme for the trip of the admirals and senior officers of the fleets lying in North river to the World's fair is about completed. The special train will leave via the New York Central railroad on Thursday, May 4. A stop will be made at Niagara Falls, and the party will remain in Chicago two days, returning by the Pennsylvania railroad. Admiral Gherardi will not go, as he will not be able to leave his fleet.

Fun For Foreign Tars.

NEW YORK, May 3.—A series of boat races are to be sailed in by crews of the foreign warships next Saturday on the North river. The regatta is open to all sailors on the visiting ships, but American tars will not be permitted to enter, another regatta for them exclusively having been arranged for the same day.

Catskill Peaks Still Snow Covered.

ECHOUT, N. Y., May 3.—Many of the Catskill mountain peaks are still covered with snow, especially Mount Whittenberg. People going to the range from the cities to arrange for summer board are treated to some fine winter pictures.

A Gap in the Canal Bank.

PASSAIC, N. J., May 3.—The west bank of the Dundee canal, which supplies water power to the mills of Passaic, was washed out during a heavy rainshower. A gap of 90 feet long and 30 feet deep was made in the embankment.

English Wish Well For the Fair.

LONDON, May 3.—The papers here devote columns of space to the opening of the World's exposition in Chicago, and express the wish that the World's fair may prove an international success in every respect.

A Prisoner's Queer Request.

MUNICH, May 3.—A woman that had been sentenced to a few months' imprisonment requested the court to send her instead to America, whence she would certainly never return and be a further burden.

Irish Emigration Figures.

LONDON, May 3.—The official report on emigration for 1893 shows that 51,000 persons emigrated from Ireland last year, or 1,000 fewer than in 1891. The total number of Irish emigrants since 1801 is 8,418,000.

Paid For His Injuries.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 3.—George Gerbig of Belmont received a verdict for $9,750 from the Erie railway for injuries received by the swaying to of a coal crib at Piermont a few months ago.

The Volunteer to Sail Again.

BOSTON, May 3.—There is a rumor that the old cup defender, the Volunteer, is to be put into commission by Commodore Dunn. She is said to have purchased her of General Paine.

Suspended Deputy Mayors.

PARIS, May 3.—The prefect of Marseilles has suspended for one month four deputy mayors who, while wearing their insignia of office, participated in the May day demonstrations.

THE CUBAN REVOLUTION

Volunteers Offer Themselves to the Leaders of the Revolt.

READY TO START FROM FLORIDA.

At Key West They Are Holding Meetings and Preparing to Free Their Island From the Yoke of Spain—The Arrival of Delegate Martí.

KEY WEST, May 3.—Cubans of Key West are astir and are brimful of enthusiasm. When Senor Jose Martí arrived on the Mascotte from Tampa nearly every residence and business house occupied by Cubans was gay with bunting and Cuban flags. There is a banner of red and white stripes. On a triangular field of blue is a single white star.

Representatives of 60 revolutionary lodges, carrying banners and flags, headed by a brass band, marched to the dock. Martí had landed and was awaiting the arrival of the procession. He was surrounded by thousands of enthusiasts waving their hats and shouting, "Viva Cuba Libre."

When the procession of more than 2,000 started he marched with the delegates who had received him, behind a band, to the residence of Teodoro Perez, his host. There the crowd trod over each other for a sight or a hand clasp from the man in whom they have put their trust for leadership. Addresses will be made at a mass meeting in Jackson square.

Full details of the uprising are still lacking on account of the Spanish censorship of press and cable.

The Time Is Ripe, Says Martí.

Martí says: "Cuba is ripe for rebellion. Every new day the heart of the revolutionists throb more eagerly. Neither the old generation, who were experienced in war and exiled, nor the new one, which has been crossed in all of their natural aspirations, are in a mood to suffer longer their unbearable situation."

He does not pretend to prophesy the outcome of the movement. Much depends on Spain, but he evidently believes it will succeed. All the island, having begun in the most unconquerable portion of the island. Cubans await the arrival of the Mascotte today with feverish anxiety.

Volunteers For the Fight.

Five hundred men met on a retired portion of the beach and were addressed by prominent speakers, who called for volunteers. From 81 to 100 men stepped out and pledged themselve to fight for Cuban freedom.

The custom house force still guards the beach, and the United States cutter is ready to sail at a moment's notice.

News has been received that the insurgent forces number more than 2,000, well armed, who have had previous experience and are operating in the mountainous region, the recesses of which are well known to them.

State Department Not Anxious.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The state department does not appear to be very much excited about the trouble in Cuba. No call has yet been made upon the navy department for a naval vessel for use in Cuban waters. The Kearsarge, which is the only vessel in those waters, has been ordered to return north to undergo repairs at the Norfolk navy yard, preliminary to a cruise with the New York naval reserve in June next.

Held Up the Train.

PARSONS, Kan., May 3.—A Missouri, Kansas and Texas passenger train was robbed at Briar Creek, in the Indian Territory, by six armed men with Winchesters, supposed to be the notorious Harry Starr gang. The plucky express messenger refused to give up the combination, although a revolver was held at his head and a knife at his throat. The passengers, including Postmaster Martin of the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf and party on a tour of inspection, were robbed. Passengers were relieved of everything, from pocketbooks to pocket knives.

Says the Spanish Ships May Fight.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Benjamin Guerra, secretary of the United Cuban societies in this city, said that the departure of the Spanish men-of-war from this port indicated that they had been ordered to Cuba on account of the revolution. Spain maintains a standing army of about 25,000 men in Cuba, according to Mr. Guerra's figures, while the present force opposed to them is said to be no larger than 4,000. He declared that the revolution sentiment is spreading in Cuba.

Mayor Fagan's Active Beginning.

HOBOKEN, N. J., May 3.—Mayor Fagan took his place at the head of the police board. His first action was to close the substation on Fourteenth street, and then the detective bureau was reorganized with John Fanning at the head. He was instructed to drive the green goods men out of the town and close up the policy shops at once.

Electric Power House Burned.

LOUISVILLE, May 3.—The electric power house here, seven stories high, was burned. The loss will approach $150,000, with good insurance. The falling walls were supposed to have crushed a number of persons, but it proved to be a mistake.

A CHILDREN'S HOME BURNED.

Although In the Dead of Night All the Sleeping Tots Were Saved.

BURLINGTON, Vt., May 3.—Five broke out in the Home for Destitute Children two miles from this city, and the muddy roads delayed the arrival of the apparatus until the building was destroyed. The superintendent was away, and all of the inmates, 71 children, whose ages ranged from 3 months to 16 and 18 years, with 10 or 20 attendants, were asleep.

The seamstress, Miss Minnie Langdon, who was sleeping directly under the attic, was the first to discover the fire. She awakened the matron, Mrs. Woodward, and other attendants, who without stopping to get dressing hastened to the children. They were snatched from their beds and carried screaming and frightened from the building to the barns and houses of the neighbors.

Only Out of Petties.

All except two were rescued from the burning apartment, when Miss Della Frey, as attendant, entered a room, where the others warned her that it would be certain death, and returned only to aid Mr. Ferguson west in and took out the last child, whose screams were most pitiable to hear.

Quay Out of Politics.

HARRISBURG, May 3.—The story of Senator Quay's resigning from the United States senate was revived here. A close friend of the senator's who saw him a few days ago learned from him that he had no further interest in politics and would not take part in the coming contest for places on the state ticket. He says that Quay has given up his house in Washington and surrendered the lease, although it had some time to run, and that while he may have purchased a lot of ground in Washington it is for speculation and not business purposes.

Shot the Ex-Mayor.

DANVILLE, Ky., May 3.—L. D. Wood of Cleveland shot and mortally wounded Barney Higgins, ex-mayor of Somerset, Ky., in the lobby of the courthouse in that city. Higgins, while drunk, assaulted a sister of Wood. He was tried and sentenced to the penitentiary for two years. The verdict was reversed, and the trial was put off until September. This infuriated Wood, and he walked up to Higgins and shot him four times.

Senator Frye's Eulogy of Blaine.

BOSTON, May 3.—A large audience assembled in Music hall at the memorial services in honor of the late Hon. James G. Blaine, held under the auspices of the city of Boston. In front of the platform, festooned in flowers and surrounded by the national colors, was a large portrait of the great statesman. The eulogy by Senator William P. Frye of Maine was warmly received.

Confession of a Child Murderer.

LONDON, May 3.—Emma Downton, 8 years old, wandered from her home in Portsmouth last Sunday morning and did not return. Ada Urry, 14 years old, has confessed that she had knocked down the Downton child, dragged her to a public well and thrown her into it. A search for the well brought to light the body. No motive for the murder can be ascertained.

Police Closed the Glue Factory.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Assistant Corporation Counsel Gilbert of Brooklyn with a squad of police visited the Peter Cooper glue factory at Newton creek and ordered the place closed. The foreman of the works declined to obey, and he was placed under arrest. The gates were then closed on the place and the place had been formerly adjudged a nuisance by the health board.

Consolidation.

Detroit has a popular man who is never or less disturbed every day in his office by visitors, and though he is naturally amiable it is beginning to tell on him. The other night after he had been asleep about three hours his wife shook him into semi-consciousness.

"Who—what is it, my dear?" he asked sleepily.

"Sh—sh, George," she whispered, "there's a burglar down stairs."

"How do you know?" he inquired, still half asleep.

"I heard him moving around, and—oh, George, there he is now! Listen!"; and she gave him another shake concretely.

"Well, dear," he growled, "don't disturb him. This is his busy time, and he ought to be given a chance to attend to business occasionally anyhow."

Then he began to snore, and his wife listened and listened and finally went to sleep.—Detroit Free Press.

FOR BABY'S WEAR.

HOW FOND MOTHERS CATER TO DAME FASHION.

Cutaclisa For the Wee Tots, With All the Pretty Ginghams, Party Dresses, Country Style Sunbonnets For the Girls, Cheviot and Pique For the Boys.

The crinoline baby is here, but she is not really made of crinoline. She is just as much a bundle of flesh and blood and sweetness as any other baby, only she takes up more room.

Here is the new dress which makes her look that way. It is one which a 4-year-old might wear. It is of English nainsook and is worn with a guimpe. The round neck is cut low back and front and defined with a stiff ruffle of embroidery. This ruffle is slightly ruffled over the shoulders, and yet is arranged with a decided "1830" effect. The sleeve of the guimpe, which emerges from beneath the ruffle, is very full. The entire little gown is made of a succession of stiffened embroidery ruffles, which stand out with a persistency due to starch. Pink ribbons are tied around the waist, and little butterfly bows are perched on each shoulder. With this dress is sold a little petticoat which has almost as many ruffles.

FASHION'S BABY.

The crinoline baby has a rival. It is the small boy when dressed in his new suit of pique. The boy who has not quite reached the dignity of trousers will wear this summer a little kilted skirt of white pique. It may be dotted with dark blue or red. Over this is an Eton jacket mad just like his elder sister's, only in miniature. The sleeves will have cuffs of pique with a standing up ruffle of embroidery edged with dark red or blue.

Then there is a sailor collar finished with a frill of the embroidery. Under the jacket is a vest of white pique with an embroidery frill down the front. It is a fascinating little suit.

There are plaids in the gingham dresses made with a yoke and not the suggestion of a frill or a ruffle—dresses designed exclusively for mud pie making and other kindred occupations.

Every small girl should have a party dress. The one shown in the illustration is the very latest. It is made of pale pink fayette silk, which is soft and pretty in itself. Around the neck the silk is shirred and the baby gown loose, straight and full to the bottom of the hem. A little pink silk jacket is worn trimmed with three rows of narrow white uncut velvet. Rows of the velvet finish the dress around the bottom. The sleeve is a full puff to the elbow. The tight fitting cuff has rows of velvet around it.

Makes an every-day convenience of an old-time luxury. Fun and refreshment. Prepared with scrupulous care. Highest award at all Pure Food Expositions. Each package makes two large pies. Avoid substitutes—and insist on having the NONE SUCH brand.

ORDERLY HABITS.

Cases Acquitted, There Is No Danger of Domestic Duties Being Neglected.

"If, my dear girls," says a sage matron, "you learn to be so orderly that the contemplation of disorder gives you pain, there is no fear that you will neglect your domestic duties or become careless in the performance of them. Let everything that leaves your hand be in perfect order. Let it grow impossible to you to put down so much as a pinbox where it will disturb the orderly and pleasant grouping upon your dressing table, or to stick your pins in your cushion even at all sorts of tipsy and uncomfortable inclinations. This will not make you fussy." It is the other thing that does that—the not knowing, except by fidgety experiment, what is harmony and the intangible grace of relation. Have all your own possessions well in hand. Have your little washcloths and your sponges for bits of cleaning; your furniture brush and your feather dusters, and your light little broom, and your whisk and pan; your bottle of sweet oil and spirits of turpentine and piece of flannel to preserve the polish or to restore the gloss when dark wood grows dim or gets spotted. Find out, by following your surely growing sense of thoroughness and niceness, the best and readiest ways of keeping all fresh about you. Invent your own processes; they will come to you. When you have made yourself wholly mistress of what you can learn and do in your own apartment, so that it is easy and more natural to do it than to let it alone—so that you don't count the time it takes anymore than that which you give to your own bathing and hairdressing—then you have learned enough to keep a whole house, so far as its cleanly ordering is concerned."

Sachet For Slumber Robe.

This very elegant sachet is made of pale sage green satin, embroidered or painted with a spray of almond blossom, or the small yellow acacia would look well. The satin should be cut 26 inches wide and 16 inches long. It is lined with well wadded quilted white silk. The satin is folded lengthwise, and the two ends at right hand side are sewed together. The two upper corners are covered with white lace, put on quite flat; the other corners have plaited fans and waterfalls of lace and bows of sage green ribbon. The sachet is fastened by tied ribbon bows. This would also make a nice handkerchief sachet in a smaller size.

SIZE.

A Wonderful Bedstead.

A Paris workingman's model bedstead is made so that it can be taken down and put up again in half a minute. By a curious combination of springs, the bed can be instantaneously surrounded with curtains, a washstand wheeled inside, and the occupant can go through his or her toilet without being seen. By another spring the bed is turned into a canopy suited for invalids, who have no need to stir to perform the transformation.

Various Ways of Cooking Eggs.

A few drops of vinegar in the water for poached eggs make them set properly and keep the white from spreading.

A squeeze of lemon improves scrambled eggs. It should be added while they are cooking.

Asparagus tops are nice in an omelet.

Toast spread with pate de fois gras and covered with scrambled eggs is a fine lunch dish.

Cold fried eggs can be used for salad or revamped by dipping them in fritter batter and frying.

Fresh eggs taken from the shell and boiled in half a pint of sweet cream, seasoned with salt and pepper, is a delicious breakfast dish. They should only cook two minutes in the boiling cream.

Stewed tomatoes, grated cheese and a couple of chopped up boiled sausages is a fine sauce to serve with fried eggs.

Any sort of an omelet can be made by the addition of either sardines, tomatoes, ham, oysters, cheese, kidney, mushrooms or macaroni or, in fact, whatever one desires or has on hand.

Good Butterscotch.

For butterscotch this is a simple recipe: Boil together until the syrup will snap when tested with cold water a cupful each of sugar and New Orleans molasses, half a cupful of butter, 2 tablespoonfuls of vinegar and one-third of a teaspoonful of soda. Pour into a buttered pan when cold, cut into squares with a sharp knife and wrap each in parafin paper when cold.

The Little Old Store.

Oh, the little old store with the bell on the door
That rang as you went out or in,
With a ting-a-ling-ting as it swung on the spring
And deafened your ears with its din!
Oh, the little old store gave measure and more,
And everything smelled sweet of spice,
Though 'twas dark, to say, and nothing was gay,
Yet everything sold there was nice.

For a quatin little maid in muslin arrayed
Would stopper each ring from the door,
And smiling sweet and simple played tag with the dimple
In the cheeks of the maid of the store.
I need often to stop in the little old shop,
And sometimes for nothing at all,
But to just shake the spring and to hear the bell ring
For Nellie to answer its call.

Ah, those times are all o'er: the little old store
Has vanished with old fashioned ways,
Till sometimes it seems we but one of the dreams
That we have of our boyhood days.
Though a faint vague regret comes over me yet
As I think of those days now no more,
In my heart I would fain be a glad lad again
And with Nell in the little old store.

GARDENING.

Gladys got some garden seeds,
Treating little maid,
Picked them out with greatest care,
Talked about them everywhere,
Planted them with earnest prayer
And a little spade.

Then there came a fall of snow
And a solid freeze.
Gladys, taken by surprise,
Drawing dried her brimming eyes,
Sent around for new supplies.
Warranted to please.

Hardly were they in the ground
When a hazy hen,
Seeking sustenance, laid bare
All the cause of so much care.
Gladys wished that she could swear
And began again.

What the next mishap will be
Gladys doesn't know.
But if patient labors pay
She will have a fine display
In her garden plot some day—
It is doubtful though.
—Somerville Journal.

A Good Reason.

When a visitor overstays his welcome, the people of New England say, "He makes us twice glad—glad when he comes, glad when he goes." A worthy citizen of Westfield, Mass., once put it even more strongly than that to a guest.

One of the Deweys of Westfield removed to the Black river country, but every fall he was accustomed to bring his family back to pay a long visit to his well to do relatives.

On one occasion after a prolonged stay he was surprised to see his host in the corner weeping.

"Why, Cousin Tim," said he, "what ails you?"

"You'll never come down to see me any more!" the host replied.

"Oh, yes, I will, Cousin Tim. I'll surely come next fall."

"No, you won't. Something tells me you won't."

"Nonsense!" said the visitor. "What has put such a notion into your head? Haven't we always come down and spent the winter with you? Come, cheer up, Cousin Tim! Cheer up, and tell me what makes you think so."

The grieving host blew his nose, wiped his eyes, and with the solemn face to his symjathizing guest said, "'Cause you'll never go away!"—Youth's Companion.

His Apology.

Elder Spudkins, who keeps a store at Quohosh, was sent as temporary supply to a pulpit in the village of Podunk, four miles away. He was late at the morning service and apologized thus:

"Brethren, I hope you will pardon my tardiness this morning, but the fact is I was kept up late last night opening the finest stock of dry goods ever brought to Quohosh. We will sing the one hundred and third hymn."—Brooklyn Life.

Nerve.

"This is my latest scheme for calling attention to my wares," remarked the industrious poet-and humorist as he dipped an engraved letter head I saering the following legend:

"Some years ago," said the man, who might have been untruthful and might not, "I was in a small town in New York state where Chauncey M. Depew was billed for a speech that night, and it happened I stopped at the same hotel he did. Just after supper the editor of the local paper dropped in to see Mr. Depew, and the distinguished gentleman proceeded to have some fun with the country journalist. He had, too, and every now and then he rounded up a sentence against the editor by saying, 'Oh, you can't believe everything there is in the newspapers,' the editor having used newspaper matter very largely in his argument.

"After the speechmaking was over the editor met Mr. Depew in the hotel office again, and there was a big crowd present.

"'Well, my friend,' inquired the genial Chauncey, 'what did you think of my speech?'

"The editor hesitated a moment.

"'Are you,' he asked solemnly, 'the genuine Chauncey M. Depew?'

"'Certainly. Why not?' laughed Mr. D.

"'Are you the one that all the newspapers have been saying was the finest speaker, the greatest talker, the sharpest lawyer and the brightest wit before the public?' pursued the editor.

"'I guess I'm the one,' blushed the gentleman.

"'Why?'

"'Oh, because you can't believe everything there is in the newspapers,' said Chauncey Mitchell with the editor and called it square."—Detroit Free Press.

A BOROUGH BURGLARY

IN MR. FRANK CHURCH'S HOME EARLY THIS MORNING.

On being Detected the Burglar Makes a Murderous Assault on Mrs. Church by Striking her on the Head With Brass Knuckles.

A burglar broke into the home of Mr. Frank Church, on Craig place, at half-past two o'clock this morning, and besides stealing a gold watch and some money, murderously assaulted Mrs. Church.

The burglar first tried to enter by way of the cellar. An entrance was effected into the laundry, but when he reached the door at the top of the cellar stairs he found it bolted fast and so had to retreat and try again. He went outside and by climbing up on the cellar window, he managed to get in through the kitchen window which is about eight feet from the ground.

Lighting a small kerosene lamp he proceeded up the back stairs and first entered the bed room of Mrs. Church's son, Warren.

The bureau drawers were ransacked and some money and a silver watch secured.

Next the robber went into Mrs. Church's room. As he opened a bureau Mrs. Church awoke and called "Is that you, Warren?" Receiving no answer she repeated the question. The burglar grumbled out a reply and at the same time walked up to the bed and catching hold of Mrs. Church hit her three times on top of the head, and then fled down the stairs and escaped.

Mrs. Church's screams, when the man struck her, awoke her son, who ran across the street to call his grandfather, Mr. P. M. Demarest. Mr. Demarest's son heard the boy calling "Grandpa!" as he ran across the street. Raising the window he asked him what was the matter. The boy told him, and Mr. Demarest hurriedly dressed and hastened to the house. When he arrived Mrs. Church was unconscious and blood was flowing from the cuts on her head.

Doctors Carman and Probasco were summoned and the injured woman's wounds were attended to. Several stitches had to be taken in one of the cuts.

It is not known what the cuts were made with, but the doctors says that from the appearance of them the man must have used brass knuckles.

The wounds are not dangerous, but Mrs. Church is suffering greatly from nervous prostration.

The police think that the burglar was a novice at burglarizing because he did not use chloroform instead of his fists, thus causing himself to be discovered by persons aroused by his victim's screams. Then again, they say, he could not have gone any great distance as he had an ordinary kitchen lamp. This he left behind. We don't know that the public care anything about whether the burglar was a novice or a professional. What they would like to know is how is it that these burglars are never shot or killed. Burglaries are committed in both city and borough with equanity, the burglars always escaping.

Ex. Church did not see the man's face, as he held his arm up before it in such a manner as to shield its identity, but she says he was of medium heighth and wore a black derby hat.

Mr. Church was not at home. He is a traveling salesman and was in Philadelphia.

Admiral Pangborn says that these burglars accompany circuses. A similar burglary was reported in Elizabeth with the circus was there Tuesday. The Elizabeth detectives were here yesterday trying to get track of the burglar, who probably was the same one in this case.

Admiral Pangborn says also that he expects something of the kind and was especially alert with a view of catching the lawbreaker. He had been on duty for 24 hours continuously, and only retired when all seemed quiet.

He further says that the borough pro- pose no fund to enable him to telegraph to other localities to head off such a burg- lar. He must pay for these matters out of his own pocket. Plainfield provides food, but catches no burglars just the

NUPTIALS.

Cutter—Mulford.

One of the prettiest homeweddings that has ever occurred in Plainfield took place last night, when Mr. Frederick Searles Cutter, son of Mr. Joseph S. Cutter of West Front street, and Miss Lizzie Mulford, daughter of Mr. Edward G. Mulford, the North avenue real estate broker, were joined in wedlock. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents on East Fifth street in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. The Rev. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of the Trinity Reformed church, officiated. The best man was Mr. L. Cutter, a cousin of the groom. Miss Laura Mulford, a sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and Miss Carrie Mulford, another sister, was the maid of honor. Messrs. A. Mulford, brother of the bride, and J. F. Lewis were the ushers.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white satin, and carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bridesmaid wore pink satin and the maid of of honor wore white satin.

The decorations consisting of Easter lilies, roses and palms, were very prettily arranged and were from Deutov's.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding supper was served by Caterer Stephenson. The newly-married couple left last night for Boston.

Among the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Mulford, Mr. and Mrs. Ahlstrom, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. C. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Brown, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis, of Brooklyn; Miss Probasco of Somerville; Mr. C. R. Oliver, Rahway; Dr. and Mrs. Lowrie, Mr. and Mrs. G. Q. Packer, Mr. and Mrs. Runyon, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Coddington, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cutter, Mr. and Mrs. Darby, Mr. and Mrs. A. Mulford, Mrs. Eliza Mulford, Miss Grace Carroll, Miss Gillem, Miss Miller, Miss Chandler, of Plainfield; Miss Townley, Miss Woodruff, of Rahway; the Misses Cutter, Miss A. A. Stansbury, Mrs. P. M. Mooney, Miss Lewis, Miss Ruth Dalzel, Mrs. F. Dwight, of Plainfield; Mrs. T. V. Seaman, New Brunswick, Mr. Williams, Rahway; Mr. Lake Cutter, Harold Mulford, New York; Frederick Lewis, Brooklyn; Mr. W. C. Freeman, Rahway; Mr. Frank Woodruff, of Plainfield.

Among the wedding gifts was a house and lot on Richmond street, from the bride's father.

Flower Thieves Caught.

This morning Constable Mattox arrested five boys for stealing flowers from porches and lawns about the city. Several others are implicated and will no doubt be arrested. Those caught were Charles and Henry Bogart, Wm. Yeager, and two others named Sweeney and Farlee.

They were taken before Justice Rodyne who held them in $50 bail to appear for trial, excepting Farlee, who was released.

300,000 AT STAKE.

EX-GOV. ABBETT HEARING A BIG LAW SUIT AT BELVIDERE, N. J.

Aftermath of the Water Works Franchise of Havana, Cuba, in Which Mr. H. G. Runkle of this City is Interested.

A case involving nearly $300,000 is in progress before Supreme Court Justice Abbett, now sitting at Belvidere, in Warren County. The parties to the suit are Lino Martinez and the estate of Daniel Runkle.

Runkle was a dealer in iron, and varied this business by taking contracts of different kinds. It is alleged that he agreed with Martinez that if the latter would obtain the contract for building the water-works for the City of Havana, Cuba, for him he would pay Martinez a commission of $125,000.

Martinez was successful in obtaining the contract. With this right it appears that there was a condition to the effect that Martinez should float an issue of $6,000,000 bonds for the city.

Martinez, it is alleged, gave the contract to Runkle, but failed to float the bonds. The failure resulted in the abandonment of the whole affair by the authorities and the annulment of their contract with Martinez.

Martinez advanced some $60,000 while the affair hung fire. He recovered this amount, it is claimed. He now sues the heirs of Runkle for the amount of his commission, $105,000, with interest from 1894 to date.

Mr. Henry G. Runkle of Eighth street, in this city, is one of the heirs, and is largely interested in the water works referred to at Havana, and in other similar enterprises in this country.

TO BUY THE WARREN MISSION.

Action Taken on the Matter at a Meeting Last Night.

At a business meeting of the congregation of the Crescent Avenue Church, called by the trustees, after last night's prayer meeting, it was resolved by unanimous vote, to authorize the trustees to purchase the property of the Warren Mission for $2200, in case the officers and teachers of the Mission offer it at these terms.

The action was taken in response to a request from the Mission.

Lecture at the First Baptist Church.

A lecture under the auspices of "The Temple Builders Society of the First Baptist church," by Rev. Halsey Moore, D. D., of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, is to be given Sunday evening, commencing at 7.30 o'clock, at the First Baptist church. It will be illustrated by the stereopticon views, showing in the most powerful lime-light, the field of the society's operations, its methods of work and some of the good results already secured. The society invites all to be present.

Suing for Damages.

The case of ex-Freeholder James D. Pierson of Westfield against the Central Railroad for damages for an injury received on the railroad some time ago, is being tried at Elizabeth before a struck jury. Messrs. U. B. Crane and J. S. Cutler are the Plainfielders on the jury.

Signed the Pledge.

Patrick Donovan, who was arrested yesterday for drunkenness, was released to-day after he had promised Judge Coddington never to drink again, and signed the pledge.

William Wilson, arrested yesterday for being drunk, was sentenced to ten days in the county jail.

The Anderson Case Postponed.

The case of Hans Anderson against the Pond Machine Tool Company, for $10,000 damages, has been postponed until October to enable the defendant to procure witnesses from England. The company has employed an expert draughtsman to make a diagram of the place.

THROUGH MUD AND WATER.

Hundreds of People attend the Circus, Despite the Storm.

There is always one thing never postponed on account of the rain, and that is a circus. Last night hundreds of people braved the storm to see the "greatest show on earth," Barnum & Bailey's circus. The rain poured down on the tents in torrents during the entire performance, leaking through in many places, so that umbrellas had to be used.

This morning the heavy wagons became fast in the mud. In one instance 32 horses were hitched to a wagon, the wheels of which were hub deep in mud, before it could be extricated. Even then two elephants were made to get behind and push by putting their heads against the back of the wagon. It was so late when they started that the circus date at Easton had to be canceled.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Thompson of Asbury Park is the guest of Mr. Simmonds of Broadway.

Miss Ida Apgar of Trenton is the guest of Miss Mineola Tomlinson of La Grande avenue.

Mr. Frank L. C. Martin will be one of the official scorers at the Irvington-Millburn road race on Tuesday, May 30th.

Mr. Benj. R. Western and family have moved in the house formerly occupied by Mr. L. L. Martin on Washington Avenue.

Mr. Chas. W. Smith and family of Brooklyn have moved into R. W. Rice's new house, at the corner of Dare and Emily street.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Biglow of Rockview Avenue, North Plainfield, left to day for their new home in Washington Park, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Joseph E. Mosher qualified as a Justice of the Peace, yesterday, and took the oath of office before Judge McCormick at Elizabeth.

Mr. Henry DeMott of Somerset street last night presented to the free Public Library the steel engraving "Patrick mustering his recruits," also an embossed copy of Lincoln's celebrated address at Gettysburg, Nov 19, 1863.

Mr. F. H. Gardner of Sycamore avenue, who has been confined to his home for the past six weeks, has so far recovered as to be able to be out. He is not well enough however, to resume his duties, as cashier of the City National Bank.

Base Ball Notes.

Capt. Hofford said, last night, that the pennant was lost season would be thrown to the breeze on Saturday and that he has received communications from all the players, stating that they would be on hand.

A large force of carpenters have been at work at the ball grounds moving the centre field fence further back for the bicycle track, and from present indications everything will be in good shape for the opening game which promises to be very exciting, as the list of players received from the managers of the Star Athletics includes many of the best players in this section.

The "Old Homestead."

Mr. Thompson, in writing "The Old Homestead," more successfully touched the popular taste than he had any idea would be the case. From its very first production it became a favorite, and for four years filled the immense Academy of Music, in New York, to its fullest capacity. Since that time the play has toured the country from one end to the other, the size of the audience only being limited by the capacity of the theatres in which it was played. "The Old Homestead" will play at Music Hall to-morrow night.

The Street Commissioner Should Do His Duty.

The residents of Somerset street are complaining strongly about the blockade of stones left in the road by the builders of the street railway. The Borough street commissioner should see that the heaps of stone are cleared away as quickly as the tracks were laid and not permit the Borough's principal thoroughfare to be thus obstructed. It is bad enough as it is now up and blocked where necessary without making it such a nuisance.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Pertinent Question for the Consideration of Common Council.

To the Editor of The News:—Can you tell us why we are going to be taxed $5,000 for a Public Library when only a few are benefited, when the city is so so much in need of a good police force? Is this right? Let the exclusive few who are accommodated by the present management of the Public Library pay for the privilege and let the rest give to the poor who so much need it.

Respectfully yours,
TAXED RATE.

14 Arlington avenue, May 1, 1893.

A NEWS reporter inquired of the Corporation Counsel whether the Common Council have any discretion respecting the assessing of taxes for library purposes. Mr. Marsh said they had no discretion, and referred him to a law approved March 6, 1893, which provides that "the board of directors of such library and reading room shall, in or before April of each year, determine the amount, not exceeding one-half of one mill on the dollar on all the taxable property in the city, which will be required in such year for the maintenance of such library and reading-room, and, by its president, certify such amount to the Common Council of such city, and such common council shall thereupon order and cause to be assessed and raised by tax in such year for such purpose, the amount so certified, such tax to be levied and collected in like manner with other general taxes of said city, and to be known as the library fund."

Mr. Marsh added that the library is constituted in the same manner as the Board of Health and most other public boards, namely, by nomination by the Mayor and confirmation by the Common Council. The library, he said, is a public institution established under a public act, applicable to all cities, and is maintained for the benefit of the entire public at less expense than any other public institution in Plainfield for which taxes are assessed, the rate for 1892 being only four and one half cents on each one hundred dollars of taxable valuation.

The question of better accommodations for the city paupers has been repeatedly brought before Common Council. Mayor Gilbert in his message touched upon this subject very forcibly, and the Council has endeavored to solve the difficulty, but so far, we regret to say, without success. It is a matter which needs attention, and none know this better than the committee themselves, who will, we are sure, only be too glad to adopt any feasible plan suggested.

WORLD'S FAIR WONDERS

BIRDSEYE VIEW OF THE GREAT EXPOSITION.

The Woman Will Show What She Has Done to Advance Civilization — The Manufactures Building the Largest Exposition Structure Ever Built.

If one were up in a balloon and could take a birdseye view of the World's Columbian exposition, the magnificent spectacle far below surely would impel him to let out his anchors and descend to more closely inspect the millions of wonders of the great White City. Almost in the center of the birdseye view that accompanies this article is the vast building devoted to manufactures and liberal arts. Beyond it to the left is the Electricity building, back of which is the Mines building. Still further beyond, in the same general direction, is the Transportation building. In the foreground is the Casino and pier, where guests from the lake will land, and moored to it are the right is the great warship containing the United States naval exhibits.

To the left of the picturesque lagoon and the statue of Lessing is the building devoted to agriculture, and the circular building near it is the stock pavilion. Directly beyond the temple of agriculture is Machinery hall, to the right of which is the dome of the Administration building. The fair grounds cover 633 acres.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There are 20 entrances to the World's fair grounds with 143 separate gates. There are 80 gates by which to go out.

In answer to the question in a Sunday school, "What is the greatest sin?" a little girl 9 years old replied, "The sin of the flesh." It would be interesting to know what was a 9-year-old girl's idea of the sin of the flesh.

The British parliament never yet went back on a bill after it passed the second reading. Home rule for Ireland is therefore a tolerable certainty unless the house of lords votes it down. If the peers venture to do that, then the existence of the house of lords itself will be imperiled. The bill will come before the lords probably in June.

Secretary Windom foresaw the approach of the present monetary situation and suggested what seemed to him the wisest thing to do in such a case. He recommended the passage of a law by congress providing for the express redemption of silver notes in silver itself at the current market value independent of the stock of gold in the United States treasury.

March 6 all the national banks in this country were examined by the comptroller of the currency in reference to the amount of money they held. On that day the national banks of the United States had nearly $100,000,000 in gold specie, besides a little less than $75,000,000 in treasury certificates and gold clearing house certificates. Against this they had only $24,000,000 in silver coin and silver certificates.

Seeing the World's Fair.

Mr. Willis John Abbott has done the public a service by publishing in The Christian Union the outline of a plan for seeing the World's fair to the best advantage in a short time. If you can spare so long, six weeks will be well put in visiting the great exposition, but if you have only two days to spare you can still not afford to omit it. He supposes the average traveler to have two weeks for the fair. As it is closed on Sunday, there will be only 12 days which he can utilize.

The grounds will be open at 8 o'clock a. m. and will close at 6, except when there are evening entertainments. There will be four ways of reaching the grounds, which are seven miles from the city on the lake and lake shore, at Jackson park. One of the routes—the switback—is by the trains of the Illinois Central, conveniently to all living near the lake. There are also other railroads on the west side. Then come the cable cars, the elevated railway and the boats along the shore. This last route will be most delightful for a first view, Mr. Abbott says. One of the boats is the first whaleback passenger steamer built. The first day should be given to a general view of the whole grounds by means of the little electric launches, the moveable sidewalk and the electric road. The state buildings are grouped at the northern end of the grounds.

There are 15 principal buildings, and the most important of these is the great Hall of Manufactures, covering over 30 acres of floor space. "Wheel chairs propelled by college students" will convey the visitor from one part of a given building to another. The most hurried sight-seers must give not less than two days to the great Hall of Manufactures. But the visitor for two weeks will give one day to the agricultural, another to the electrical and mining, and yet another to the transportation and machinery departments. The great machinery buildings and annex are at the right of the main railway station, the mines and electrical exhibits on the left. The Transportation building is near Machinery hall.

On the seventh day the visitor may go by a jolly little electric launch "to the ungainly building of the United States government and the ornate edifice which holds the aquaria and fisheries exhibit." Mr. Abbott makes especial mention of the brick battleship Illinois, which contains the exhibit of the United States navy department. The fisheries, the government building and the brick battle ship may all be seen in one day. For another day, the eighth, take the Woman's building, Horticultural hall and the Japanese exhibit on the wooded island. The art gallery takes the ninth day, though you may crowd into it also the educational display.

The foreign buildings and the state buildings will occupy a day each, leaving only one more of the twelve. For that last day remain the various side shows, as many of them as the visitor can take in. These are situated in what is called the Midway plaisance. Mr. Abbott says a glance can be taken in from time to time during the other days. Among them is the famous Eskimo village; also Dutch, German and Irish villages, with reproductions of the streets of faraway cities, strange enough to our western eyes. Among them will be street scenes from Cairo, Stamboul, Tunis and Algiers.

Of course if one is specially interested in any particular department, it will pay him best to spend more time in that. This farmer and live stockman will care most for the agricultural display, which includes also the forestry exhibit. The artist will spend most time in the art galleries, the machinist in Machinery hall.

SEEN AT THE BIG FAIR.

Native Waiters Strike, but the Foreigners Keep at Work.

SUNDAY OPENING A PROBABILITY.

When You Visit the White City Take Your Lunch With You, For Food Prices Are Very High—No Work to Be Allowed In the Buildings After May 19.

CHICAGO, May 4.—The principal thing of interest about the fair is that in all probability it will be open on Sunday. The judiciary committee made the long delayed report, and it favors Sunday opening. The closing and important paragraph of the document intimates that the national commission can do nothing with the subject until the local directors repeal the Sunday closing rule. This they will un*doubtedly do. One of the local directors* said today that there was no doubt but that if the people came Sunday morning with their tickets they would get in.

Longing For Fair Weather.

With a persistence deserving of a better cause the clouds have hung over the World's *fair grounds for nearly three weeks in suc*cession, and warm, sunny weather, such as everybody wants to enjoy and has to see before the fair, seems as far away as it would be in November. Still the World's fair officials and contractors were happy for the absence of rain, as they *are able to push the work on the road*ways and buildings, which remain in an unfinished state.

Over 800,000 square yards of roadway have already been made firm and smooth for the summer crowds and 100,000 yards more have to be put in the same condition. The executive officers of the exposition are well satisfied with the attendance so far, consi dering the threatening weather, the dislike of people to trample through mud and the unfinished state of several departments and foreign buildings. The visitors who are interested in electrical machinery are disappointed to learn that others, as well as the exhibits in that building are the farthest behind. In fact there is hardly anything worth seeing in the big building yet. Thousands of people yearn for a sight of the treasures in the Fine Arts building and they stop to admire the incomparable classic exterior, but paintings and other works of art are still arriving and the doors are closed to the public for the reason that installation would have to stop if people were allowed to enter.

The finishing touches are being put to the exhibits in several of the state buildings, but none are so far behind in installation as Russia, whose show was delayed by the ice blockade in the Baltic sea.

Actual sign of experience with the restaurant monopolists in the park has induced the visiting thousands to devise ways and means to defeat the schemes of the caterers.

Visitors Should Bring Their Lunches.

Lunch baskets and handbags are carried by hundreds of people, and in that way they are able to spend the whole day at the fair without being famished or parting with a goodly amount for a frail lunch. The price lists of the restaurants are Riffel lower in their proportions, but not sufficiently like that structure. The prices vary according to the willingness of the victim to pay. When he is ready for everything served, and they collect what they please.

It is reported that the council of administration will take the matter in earnest in hand and compel them to adopt a fixed price list which will bring food within the reach of persons of moderate means.

A general strike of the waiters in the restaurants is still one of the awful possibilities of the future. At the lunch counters the force is composed of girls, whose antipathy to unions and walkouts is well known, so that no trouble is anticipated there.

Down on the Midway plaisance the restaurants are presided over by natives, the swarthy Turk who dishes out turkey to the various guests knows naught of working cards or walking delegates and the dark skinned Japanese are equally in the dark regarding American customs of service. Accordingly every one who visits the restaurants today found the white aproned gentlemen on hand as usual.

Eight Days More to Finish.

D. H. Burnham, director of works of the World's fair, has issued a general order to the effect that all work must be finished by the 19th inst., both as to installation of exhibits and construction, and that work of absolute necessity thereafter must be done during the hours when the exposition is not open.

The Pennsylvania State building, one of the great attractions in the north end of the exposition grounds, has been thrown open to the public. Since the liberty bell was put in place in the rotunda only that large room has been open to visitors. The superintendent desired to put on the finishing touches in the other rooms and clean up after the crowd that invaded the building Monday. For that reason the doors were closed.

The Philadelphia policemen are on duty night and day guarding the Independence bell and answering a thousand questions per day. The multitude of sightseers that would consider their exposition excursion a failure if they had not looked upon the national relic.

The second of the popular free orchestral concerts, which are to be given every morning during the six months of the exposition, took place at 11 o'clock in Music hall. No entrance fee is charged. The hall which seats 2,200, was crowded early, the doors being locked after the second number. The overture to "Le Domino noire" the direction of Theodore Thomas, rendered a popular programme.

NEWS FROM HONOLULU.

Claus Spreckels Says Annexation Means Japanese Suffrage.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The steamer Australia arrived from Honolulu bringing advices to April 26. Claus Spreckels was interviewed shortly after his arrival in Honolulu on April 18. He said, among other things: "The monarchy cannot be restored. Annexation would involve Japanese suffrage. I tell the people that it is absurd to think that the United States constitution can be changed to permit Asiatic suffrage."

It is stated that Parker and Neuman, in addition to Spreckels himself, have informed the cowpuncher that the monarchy is dead beyond resurrection. She is quoted as having said that whatever the result may be she will not starve or murder. At the present writing Spreckels is known to be conferring with a number of sugar planters, but to what end has not been ascertained.

Hotel Men Will Get Together.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Hotel Register, in its issue next Saturday, will say: "Cincinnati will be the scene next Tuesday of the meeting of two of the large national hotel associations, the United States Hotel association, which is comprised of representative men of the 60,000 hotel men of this country, and the Hotel Mutual Benefit association. Waiters and strikers' will probably by the most absorbing topic of discussion at the hotel meetings. Several cars taking members and delegates will leave Boston, Chicago and New York on Sunday, arriving in Cincinnati Monday afternoon and evening."

Three Killed by Dynamite.

BEARDS, Ind., May 4.—News of a horrible accident near Eel River station, south of here, reached this city. Three men, one named Mann, another Johnson and the other name unknown, have been shelling a coal bank. The three men were at work in their blacksmith shop when a piece of the red hot iron flew into a box containing 60 sticks of dynamite. Instantly there was an explosion. The shop and shattered houses were wrecked and the three unfortunate men were blown to pieces. Their remains were gathered up in a basket.

Miss Marrian Was Dead.

LONG ISLAND CITY, May 4.—Coroner Meehan performed an autopsy upon the body of Miss Ida Marrian of Ravenswood. The coroner found that Miss Marrian's death was due to multiple acute kidney trouble. The unusual warmth of the body several hours after death, he said, was a physiological phenomenon which he could not account for.

Nabbed a Ticket of Leave Man.

LONDON, May 4.—The Metropolitan police arrested Johnny Curtis, a noted American "crook," in Oxford street, on the charge of infringing his ticket of leave. Curtis was convicted and sent to a term of imprisonment for bank robbery, but was liberated and it was believed that he had gone to America.

Emeline Saved Her Life.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 4.—Miss Grace G. Tabor, daughter of Tarbout at Adams, this county, attempted suicide by taking paris green because her lover, Sidney Fassett, a farmer boy, had told her that they are disapproved of by her parents and in obedience to the wishes of his parents. The prompt use of emetics saved her life.

Kilmeny Threatens to Break Loose.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Honolulu advices state that the volcano Kilauea is very active. The lake of fire that has for years confined itself to the area of about 12 acres in the innermost crater has risen fully 10 feet, and now the whole middle center of about 100 acres is a mass of molten lava.

Serious Illness Follows Failure.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Of Francis H. Weeks, the lawyer of 62 William street and deposed president of the West Superior Land and Improvement company, it was reported in Wall street that he was lying at his home at Cold Spring Harbor, L. I., at the point of death.

Captain Berghold Is Pardon.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Police Captain W. C. F. Berghold, the father of the young woman, Rebecca Berghold, has said definitely that he would not have William Alexander Cornell arrested on any charge and intended to take no action against him in any way.

Vanderbilt's New Yacht.

LONDON, May 4.—The new Vanderbilt steam yacht Valiant was launched at Birkenhead, July 4, by Miss Vanderbilt and the Duchess of Manchester, christened the vessel as she took the water and afterward hoisted the stars and stripes over her.

Relay Riders Making Slow Time.

CLEVELAND, May 4.—The bicycle relay race ridden by scholars here 14 hours and 40 minutes late. There was a delay here, but the roads west are in such a condition that it is impossible to make up much of the lost time.

A Trustee of the Tabernacle Fails.

THE CHINESE A PUZZLE.

What Will Be Done if They Refuse to Register?

ATTITUDE OF THE SIX COMPANIES.

There May Be Trouble on the Pacific Coast In a Short Time—The Government Will Entertain Its First Royal Visitor From Spain—Carlisle at the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The proceedings to test the constitutionality of the Geary Chinese extension act are being prosecuted by the Chinese Six Companies of San Francisco. The concurrence of the Federal authorities to expedite the hearing was secured by the Chinese legation through the departments of state and justice. The Chinese residents of the United States to a large extent are subservient to the Six Companies and follow the advice given by its officials in all matters. The companies advised the Chinese not to register as required by the act, but the Chinese minister advised the subjects of his government to respect the law. Within the past two days there has been a breaking away from the *Six Companies to some extent, and the ap*plicants for registration at San Francisco are more numerous than can be accommodated by the present force. The collector has asked the treasury department for additional help.

There will be no arrests made for violation of the law until after the supreme court has passed upon the constitutionality of the law as contained it is said there can be nothing like a general enforcement of it until congress makes an appropriation to meet the accompanying expenses.

The question of the constitutionality of the exclusion law will come up for argument in the supreme court May 15.

Reports received by the Chinese minister within the past few days indicate the probability of outbreaks on the Pacific coast against the Chinese residents. The tenor of these reports was communicated to Acting Secretary Adee, and upon the return of Secretary Gresham from Chicago he is to grant were sent to the governors of several western states, advising of the existence of these reports and requesting them to take measures to prevent any serious infractions of the peace.

Will Entertain a Sovereign.

Preparations are being made at the state department for the reception and entertainment of the Infanta Eulalia, the royal representative of the Spanish government at the World's fair. Special honor will be shown this visitor, who, it is said, is the first foreign sovereign that has ever visited the United States by invitation of congress. She is now on her way to Cuba from Spain.

Moving Troops Around.

The secretary of war has issued an order transferring the Third regiment of cavalry from the Department of Texas to the Department of Missouri. Troops C, K, F and G of this regiment are to go to Fort Riley, Kan., and the remaining troops to posts in Oklahoma and the Indian Territory. The same order transfers the Fifth regiment, excepting Troop L, from the Department of Missouri to the Department of Texas, the headquarters of the latter at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. This is an unusually heavy movement of troops.

Subjects of the Day Before the Cabinet.

A special meeting of the cabinet was held, and it is understood the financial situation and the revolutionary movement in Cuba came in for a share of consideration. No information was given out further than any filibustering expeditions are acting out, but as an extreme precaution extra vigilance will be exercised at this time to prevent people in the United States aiding the revolutionists.

A Slight Free Gold Balance.

Secretary Carlisle has returned to the treasury department looking less careworn than when he left here. In answer to an inquiry about the gold situation he said: "I made no statement whatever while away for the acceptance of any gold by the treasury. Affairs are in a satisfactory state, and the department is not anxious. There is plenty of gold which can be utilized."

It is surmised that the secretary is quite likely to have conferences before long with New York bankers. Gold is slowly drifting into the treasury, and as practically none is going these days, the result is a gradual increase in the gold balance. The official statements, however, do not show that the gold reserve, so called, is again at the $100,000,000 mark, but some additional offers which have been accepted, but in which transfers have not yet been completed, bring the total up so as to leave a very slight free gold balance.

Philadelphia's Postmaster.

The president has appointed William M. Cary postmaster at Philadelphia, vice John Field, resigned. This is a victory for National Chairman Harrity, who came on here personally and strongly urged Cary's appointment. Many business men backed John Hunter.

To Reinstate Ex-Teachers For Jews.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—It is learned at the state department that the refusal of the Russian consul in New York to vise the passport issued to Mrs. Sadie Schwartz by the state department on the ground that she is a Jewess, is in accordance with the laws of Russia. If Mrs. Schwartz should make complaint to Secretary Gresham, she will of necessity be informed that he can do nothing in the matter because the rules governing Russian or polar of-fenses prohibit those who countenance any paper intended for use in Russia by Jews.

Will Take the Veterans Free.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Invitations addressed to all veterans of New York commands who fought at Gettysburg have been sent out stating that the state of New York invites them to participate in the dedication ceremonies of the New York state monument and the regimental and battery monuments at Gettysburg on "New York day," July 1, 2, 3, 1893. The commissioners are authorized to provide free transportation to and from Gettysburg, from points within this state, to actual participants in this battle belonging to New York regiments and batteries.

A Bishop for Twenty Years.

The collector has asked the treasury department for additional help.

Driven Out by Fleas.

EVELETOWN, Pa., May 4.—The families of John Snyder and his son David, residing on a farm near here, have been compelled to abandon the dwelling, which they occupied jointly, on account of the building having become infested with fleas. The insects became so annoying that the families sought refuge in a tobacco curing house on the premises. The farm mansion is a seething mass of fleas, and the neighbors of the Snyders are afraid to enter it. Mr. Snyder thinks seriously of burning the building, and has consulted the insurance companies with reference to it. It is believed that the pests were brought upon the premises by several tramps who were given lodging.

Columbus Cast In Silver.

PROVIDENCE, May 4.—The silver statue of Columbus for the World's fair, designed by Bartholdi, was successfully cast at the works of the Gorham Manufacturing company in Elmwood. The statue is somewhat larger than life size, being slightly over six feet in height and over seven feet, including the pedestal. Nearly a ton of metal was employed in its casting, the value of the silver being estimated in the neighborhood of $25,000.

Poles Take Strikers' Places.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., May 4.—Twenty Poles came from Buffalo to take the places of locked out lumber shovers here. There was no attempt made to interfere with them by the union men, who generally stood across the canal and looked on. Deputy Marshal Colt of Buffalo and six deputies were on hand to prevent an outbreak. Fifty more men are expected from Buffalo today.

WALL STREET PANICKY.

Still Uneasy Concerning Yesterday's Break.

HOW MORNING OPENED ON 'CHANGE

The Excitement Was Greater Than It Has Been Since the Panic of 1884—Rumors That Several Banks Were Affected—Deacon White's Movements Watched.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Wall street has not been so uneasy since 1884 as it was when the stock market opened this morning. The scenes on the street and on the floor were of a decidedly panicky nature during the early morning hours, but what the day will bring forth will not be known until later. The big break of yesterday had put every operator on his mettle.

Not for many years had the stock market had such a break in prices as occurred yesterday, and few days in its history were more exciting. In the industrial shares particularly there was a smashing of values almost without precedent.

Railroad stocks suffered in sympathy. Losses of two or three points in quotations hardly counted. Then National Cordage and its mates were off from three to five times as much, Cordage heading the list with a decline of 15 points. In the industrials the general nervousness almost amounted to a panic.

Scenes of Wild Excitement.

Throughout Wall street excitement ran high. On the Stock exchange were enacted all the scenes characteristic of a day when the bears appeared to have dropped out of half the market, while the street was full of rumors of losses of big operators, a wholesale wiping out of small fry, failures of brokerage firms and trouble for banks.

As a matter of fact but one suspension was announced on the exchange—and in this case the operator was not prominent—but the gossips had tales to tell of embarrassments for two or three big houses and of serious difficulties for two banks.

Not until the close of business without further failures did the rumors decrease and other reports that the banks in question were all right begin to circulate.

Frightened by a Failure.

A feature of the market was that it was at its worst in the last half hour. That was after the announcement on the ex-that Albert H. Wheeler had suspended, and after the early doleful rumors had served to frighten all the timid speculators into a rush to sell. From the beginning there had been a general weakness, but the close of the day saw the wildest slumps and the greatest excitement. News of the single failure simply served to take the last signs of strength from the slight support the industrials had received.

Mr. Wheeler was best known as a room trader. Inability to take 300 shares of Reading led to his suspension. The stocks were closed out for his account under the rules, and it was said that his business was pretty thoroughly settled.

In the last 30 minutes the brokers on the floor of the exchange found the quotations on the board of little use. Figures posted at one moment were valueless the next. In the industrials which were receiving the most punishment prices were dropping a point at a time. The crowds trading in them were made up of shouting men, who struggled about the floor like football players in a scrimmage.

Deacon White Escaped.

In spite of all the hubbub and excitement and wild tumbles by the industrials, the money market was easy. The leaders were safely out of the dangerous specialties they believed, and their followers, who were still "in," were catching the weight of the disastrous turn in the market. That is the way it often happens in Wall street.

All through the street great interest centered on the doings of Deacon S. V. White. That gentleman said in the afternoon that he had bought some of the stocks because he regarded it as cheap, and that he meant hold on to it. He had nothing but good stocks and could take care of them without trouble.

HO, FOR GREENLAND!

Lieutenant Peary Has His Ship and His Crew Is Selected.

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—At a meeting of the Geographical club the members of the expedition that will go to Greenland this summer under the leadership of Lieutenant Robert E. Peary were announced. They are Dr. F. A. Cook, Edward Astrup, Matthew Henson, Lieutenant Peary's colored servant; Samuel J. Entrikin, at present a teacher in the Mantel school at Aiken, S. C., and Mr. Davison, Lieutenant Peary's manager on his present lecture tour. The first three named were members of Peary's former expedition.

A telegram was received from Lieutenant Peary, who is now in Washington stating that he had procured a ship to take the party to Greenland.

Several Killed In a Cyclone.

RALEIGH, May 4.—A terrific cyclone struck this part of the state and destroyed 15 buildings at Oxford, 40 miles west of here. Several large warehouses were wrecked. Several persons were caught in the ruins of the large buildings and one was killed. A negro who was in the third floor is dangerously hurt and four others badly injured. It is the first cyclone on record in that section. The Masonic Orphan asylum, in which there are 300 orphans, narrowly escaped.

Found the Dynamiter's Foot.

PITTSBURG, May 4.—About 200 pounds of dynamite exploded in the High Explosive company's magazine at Willow Grove, Pa. Thomas Irwin of Bellver, N. Y., two cows and a horse were killed. The building was entirely demolished and a large hole torn in the ground. Irwin was an oil well shooter and was after a cartridge to shoot a well. All that was found of him was one foot and a part of the leg.

A Small Bond Tiotted.

MADRID, May 4.—A dispatch from Cuba says that the armed band headed by the brothers Sartorius has yielded to the Spanish authorities. The band consisted of 26 men. The only armed filibusters still resisting the government are a leader of the name of Cal- and two men. Some of the brothers Sartorius has offered to negotiate for their submission. The revolt is now considered ended.

Convicts to Make the Roads.

ALBANY, May 4.—Superintendent Lathrop of the department of state prisons has authorized Warden Thayer to purchase a stone crusher and have his plant in readiness by the time the state engineer completes his map of the roads for 30 miles about Auburn, which are to be worked by the convicts pursuant to the provisions of the Barnard law recently signed by the governor.

French Officials to Fight a Duel.

ROME, May 4.—In the course of a heated debate in the chamber of deputies, Signor Rosano, under secretary in the ministry of the interior, referred to Deputy Demartino in an insulting manner. As a result preparations are being made for a duel between the two men. The president of the chamber is doing all he can to effect a reconciliation.

Proath Ties Up a Railroad.

ZACATECAS, Mex., May 4.—The water famine in this city and along the line of the Mexican Central road has become alarming. Seven freight trains are tied up, owing to lack of water to supply the engines. In this city what water there is comes from polluted wells, causing an epidemic of sickness.

The Fad In Jewelry.

It was the lorekeet, now it is the sword, according to The Jewelers' Circular. Every sort and variety of sword, saber, scimiter and rapier is now a lady's ornament in gold, silver and precious stones. To look in a jeweler's window is very much like inspecting an armory. These swords are the occasion for the most artistic work in carving and enamels. The guards are delicately carved and frequently incrusted with enamels. The h. lts are inlaid with jewels or a stripe of charming color surrounded by gold.

Women have elected to bear arms in various ways. They pin up their locks with swords, they pin on their belts with swords, they catch their lace draperies with swords and wear them like side arms as chatelaine pins. Women are so learned with their guards and belts and whiskers that they would sue for mlllltiamen. They know a sergeant's sword from a colonel's, a cavalry sword from the infantry, a saber from a fife.

There is no artifice too skillful, no metal or jewel too precious, to beat into swords. The exquisite carving, the delicate work in enamels, the fine inlaying of the steel of the goldworker's art. Some of the larger swords are resplendent in jewels. Those copied after Italian styles have the guards wreathed in jeweled flowers

THE HOUSEHOLD

A DAINTY BREAKFAST ROOM.

An Apple Blossom Room—A Charming Idea For the Summer Season.

Many families in "comfortable circumstances," who own a modern roomy house with several unused rooms, nevertheless think they must use one room in which to eat their meals three times a day and every day in the year. But a little spare time, money and labor spent in arranging a breakfast room according to the following scheme from The Decorator and Furnisher will give thorough enjoyment through the summer season if not for 365 days in the year, as that journal suggests.

The little room 10 feet square was arranged as follows: The table was octagonal and was made by a carpenter, the legs being painted cream white. Unfinished pine chairs, the kind used in chambers, were painted to match the table, and each chair had a cushion for the back made of pink silk tied to the chair with white ribbon. The cushions were filled with cotton thickly sprinkled with sachet powder.

Two shelves 16 inches wide and 36 inches long were put up at one side of the room. The upper shelf was 54 inches from the floor and the lower 16 inches. These were painted white and used in place of a side table.

A small white stand was placed against the opposite wall to hold a vase of flowers and the morning paper. A scarf for the stand was made of china silk in an apple blossom pattern, and sash curtains were made of the same materials.

A canary in a white cage hangs by the window, and in a box papered to match the walls a large pot of flowers. The pictures are copies of etchings, the wide frames of pine painted white. The wall paper had a white ground, which was carelessly strewn with sprays of apple blossoms. The picture molding, the cheapest kind, was painted a delicate pink.

White oilcloth covered the floor, completed by two pure white goatskin rugs decorated with small sprays of apple blossoms.

Decorative Cloth Cushion.

The foundation is olive colored cloth, on which the design has been traced. The flowers are worked separately in white, old gold and strawberry colored chenille (the latter of two shades), a cluster of French knots, inclosed by a circle of stem stitches in two shades of bronze colored silk, being placed in the center of each flower.

Buds and flowers are afterward scalloped and connected by leaves, which are worked in stem and fish bone stitch in alternate shades of grayish green, olive and bronze colored split filoselle.

How to Make Meringues.

Whisk some whites of eggs to a stiff froth, mix with them with a spoon quickly and thoroughly, some sugar finely powdered in the proportion of one tablespoonful for each white of egg used, then place a sheet of white paper on a meringue board, and with a tablespoon put out the mixture on it in heaps about the size of an egg and about two inches apart, taking care to make them all as near as possible of the same size and evenly shaped. Strew a little powdered sugar over them, shake off what does not stick to the meringues and at once place the board in a moderate oven. When the meringues have assumed a straw color and are hard to the touch, take them out, detach them from the paper carefully and either scoop out the inside or proof it in with a teaspoon. Then replace them in the oven on a baking sheet to dry for half an hour or so. The oven must be very slack, and it is best to leave the door of it open during this part of the operation. When the meringues are cold, have ready some whipped cream flavored to taste, fill the hollow of each meringue with it and join them in pairs by sticking together the under side of each.

An Excellent Coffee Cake.

Put 4 whole eggs in a pan with half a tablespoonful of very strong coffee or coffee essence and 6 ounces of powdered sugar. Whip all this over boiling water on the stove till just warm; then lift it off the fire and continue whipping it till cold and stiff; then add gradually 6 ounces of sifted fine sifted flour. Have ready a mold that has been papered, buttered and dusted with flour and sugar in equal quantities, pour in the cake mixture and bake in a very moderate oven for about an hour. Turn it out on to the pastry rack or a reversed sieve and let it get quite bold. Then ice it with the following: Mix together three-quarters of a pound of icing sugar, 1½ tablespoonfuls of very strong coffee or coffee essence and the same quantity of hot water. Stir in over the fire till warm and use at once.

An Appetizing Beefsteak.

If you wish to have a hot dish from the remains of the beef, a very savory one is made thus: Make a puree of tomatoes, either fresh or tinned ones, by stewing them in butter, then passing them through a strainer and seasoning with salt and pepper. The cold beef, very thinly sliced, also smothered in bacon or ham, should be slightly frizzled before laying them in this puree to simmer. Garnish this with a hedge of fried potato chips. These are quickly done if the fat be kept ready and a sufficient quantity of it.

Chocolate Cake.

One and one-half cups butter, 1 pound brown sugar, 1 cup white sugar, 1 cup sweet milk, 3 cups of flour, yolks of 6 eggs, 3 teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-third cake chocolate, 1 whole lemon (grated), 1 teaspoonful clove, 1 pound raisins (chopped), 1 teaspoonful allspice, 1 teaspoonful cinnamon, one-quarter pound almonds blanched and sliced into the beaten whites of the 6 eggs and added last.

Cream Biscuit.

Sift a quart of flour, add half a teaspoonful of salt, dissolve a teaspoonful of soda in a little boiling water and stir in half a pint of thick sour cream. Mix the flour with the cream, roll out the dough, cut into biscuits and bake in a quick oven.

THE BIGGEST SHOW

That to Be Seen Out of Doors at the World's Fair.

TASTE AS GREAT AS THE CIRCUS.

But the Latter, While Not Wholly Finished, Is a Wonderful Display, Wherein the Foreigners Excel—Delay Not Chicago's Fault—How to See the Exposition.

WORLD'S FAIR, May 3.—It is the day after the great Columbian exposition is supposed to be ready to receive visitors from all over the world. It is and it isn't. There is not one large building in which the installation of exhibits is complete. Everywhere the people in charge are still putting their wares in order, and many of them are working at night, after the gates are closed, with hammers and paint brushes. The comment one hears on every side is that Chicago, and by Chicago we simply use a convenient term for the management of the exposition, has done its work better than the exhibitors have done theirs. While the contents of these huge buildings, the products of the arts and industries of the whole world, are worthy and interesting, the greatest feature of the show, beyond all question, is the White City. The grounds and buildings in which the exhibits are displayed are more impressive and attractive than the exhibits themselves. The tent beats the circus.

But it should not be forgotten that the grounds and the palaces are themselves an exhibit. They are intended primarily to house and accommodate the machinery, the fabrics, the works of art and the products of all the world. But incidentally they are an exhibit of the progress made in architecture in America. A building is a building, its landscape designing and decoration, in artificial illumination and in ornamentation with statuary and frescoes, but yesterday the vast throngs who attended the opening ceremonies said the most fascinating view within the enclosure was to be had out of doors. That is true today, and will be true all the time. Therefore it is that most of the people who are here today wander around the grounds, looking up at the facades and towers and glancing out of the buildings they watch gondoliers and launches on the lagoons, or spend hours and hours noting the various styles and arts of architecture in the immense number of foreign and state buildings. Nothing seems to fascinate them more than the works of art with which the grounds and exteriors of the buildings are enriched. The golden Republic, the beautiful Barge of State, the statue of Franklin, the spirited Quadrige, and hundreds, almost thousands more of products of artist studios, engross the attention of a large proportion of today's visitors.

Those who go within the buildings to look at the wonders there displayed do not stay long. They are not disappointed in what they find—though of course the incomplete state of many exhibits is annoying—but fabrics, pictures, machinery, pottery, even the most wonderful of machines, and appliances, are not what the people want this early in the season. It is a high and a deserved compliment that the masses are now paying to the great genius and greater energy which conceived and wrought the outdoor picture. The general conclusion is that the world has not only been outdone but that a mark has been set which the French, even, and they are the world-famous experts in exposition, will be a long time coming up to.

As the weeks wear on and we begin to receive from the other side of the water the opinion of the foreign journalists and critics sent here to pass judgment, I predict you will see little or no adverse comment on the show. Chicago has set for the international rehearsal. There will be nothing but praise, and warm praise for that. The critiicism, if there be any, will be upon the exhibits and the manner in which they are installed. Already it is obvious even to the most careless observer that the European have the solid merit in their wares, the finest lity and adaptability and growth, when it comes to the matter of arranging them in most attractive form they have lessons to learn from our foreign friends. Though domestic exhibitors outnumber the foreigners to one, in nearly every building the most attractive and beautiful exhibit, the one which first catches the eye and holds it longest, is made by a foreign government or firm. The exhibit made by our own government, though large and interesting, is awkward and even ugly and inartistic compared to that of the French, the Germans and the English. It is of different character, of course, being confined mostly to an illustration of the functions and operations of government, but it might have been arranged with better finish and effect.

In the matter of promptness, too, the foreigners, with few exceptions, are in the lead. Any few of the foreign exhibits need anything now but a few finishing touches. The exhibits which are in provoking confusion, showcases not put up and boxes not unpacked, are those of Americans who have had plenty of time but who have been guilty of the national fault of procrastination. It certainly is somewhat remarkable that the foreigners should have come across the sea, into a strange land and beaten their American rivals in quickness of installation. The American is too fond of letting a task go till it has to be done, and then, by a sudden display of energy, just "get there." Get there he does, as a rule, but too many of the American exhibits are now, though in the exposition ring, still a trifle disfigured.

Three our four days will see all the departments of this vast and unparalleled show in complete readiness. Already no one need complain at the condition of things. The Columbian exposition is as near ready at this stage as the great Paris show of 1889 was, and nearer finished than was the Centennial or the French exposition preceding the last one. Nor is it the fault of the Chicago people that the perfection of installation which they hoped for has not been accomplished. They did their part of the work, and amid frightful obstacles. They struggled with a herculean task in the face of such difficulties as adverse weather, winter and summer, particularly inclement and damaging during the last two weeks. But their indomitable spirit enabled them to confront the buildings ready in ample time for exhibitors. The floor space was marked out, the railways facilities already, to helpers at hand, but the exhibitors themselves were slow. You see, the later they came here with their gangs of skilled mechanics and their installation experts, the rush and cost of their establishments, the less their expense, because all these men of course wanted to remain till after the opening. This is the milk in the cocoanut as to the dilatory operations of many American exhibitors. The managers of the fair not only made all in readiness, so far as their end of the work was concerned, but they detailed several hundred men to hurry up the exhibitors. Innumerable letters and finally telegrams were sent out during the last week or two and most of the energy of the administration department has been expended in hustling the private exhibitions into place.

As I have said, the crowds of this second day of the fair spend most of their time looking at the exterior show. An acre of people gaze into the Manufactures building, with their faces turned upward. A workman has climbed one of the tall flagstaffs on a corner of Machinery hall. He is all alone, and he is not half 40 to the base. Neatly balancing himself in his little swing, he pulls up by a cord a golden ball, which he attaches to the top of the staff. It is a simple operation, and here a very commonplace one; for workmen clambering about at dizzy heights, on domes and tops arches and towers and spires, have been familiar scenes for many a month. Yet with all the wonders of the world spread out for their inspection ten thousand people gathered to stand and watch this rigger at work.

In front of the Art building another great crowd was collected. Could he attracting their attention there? Investigation showed that they were watching the Frenchmen unpack the big cases in which the pictures had been shipped across the water. A simple every-day part of the work, yet strangely fascinating to the visitors. There and many other similar incidents taught but one lesson, EVES COULD

He Remembered It.

"Was there any time in your life, Mr. Slammsapound," asked Miss Lillybud in tones of tender sentiment, "when all the world seemed a dreary waste to you; when your heart was hungry and starving; all the sweet springs of your life were turned to bitterness, and death seemed the sweetest boon the gods could offer you; when all the light was dark and all friends seemed false?"

"Indeed there was," said Slammsapound earnestly. "I can remember it as though it was yesterday. I was only 13 years old at the time and I was enduring the miseries of my first cigar."—London Tit-Bits.

THE CHORAL SOCIETY.

ITS FINAL CONCERT FOR THE SEASON.

The Oratorio of "Creation" Rendered in Grand Style at Music Hall Last Night.—The Large Audience Enthusiastic with Delight.

The third and last concert of the Plainfield Choral Society for the season of 1892-93 took place last night at Stillman Music Hall.

The hall was filled by an enthusiastic audience, in spite of boisterous winds, lowering clouds, slushy roads and in fact all the concomitants that go to make up a fine neuralgia-inspiring, temper-drying March storm in our somewhat unreliable May.

The work chosen for production last night was Joseph Haydn's "chef d' œuvre," "The Creation." In the "Creation," Haydn has given full rein to his poetic imagination. Some of the solos are the purest and most delicate crystallizations of musical thought known, many of them having an obligato orchestral accompaniment which is fanciful and delicate in the extreme.

The chorus portions are closely written on inspiring themes. The orchestration throughout is full and rich, and the ear is constantly surprised and delighted by some wonderful and sweet conceit.

The last number, which consists of trio, chorus and fugue, is a stupendous and fitting close to a most perfect work. The soloists were Mrs. Jennie Patrick Walker, soprano; Mr. James H. Rickertson, tenor; Mr. Erickson Bushnell, bass. Orchestra from the New York Philharmonic Society. Mr. E. J. Fitzhugh, conductor.

The soprano and tenor were heard for the first time by a Plainfield audience. Mr. Bushnell has been here before. His training for oratorio singing is of the highest, the quality of his voice is pure and true, and his style is most artistic. Mrs. Walker sang in a full broad finished style, and gave a delicate and intelligent interpretation of the numbers which fell to her share. She sang without the least apparent effort, which is a pleasant thing to witness after being forced to face the writhings and contortions of some of the later day sopranos.

The tenor, Mr. Erickson, possesses a strong and even tenor voice, of excellent quality, and warmth of tone, though it lacks the sympathetic quality possessed by the two other voices who completed the charming trio of last night.

As for Mr. Fitzhugh and his chorus they have always done good work, but very good work, but last night—well, last night they awoke the audience to enthusiasm. Every number was warmly applauded. From the first chorus to the last terrifically difficult fugue, they sang with a precision and delicacy of shading which did credit to their own close attention and hard study. It likewise gave the strongest proof of the musically qualities possessed by the leader, who could so ably bring out such delicate touches of tone painting. Last year a famous oratorio tenor who sang with our Plainfield Choral wrote the president that he considered it an honor to be asked to sing with a Society so closely trained as was this Society. And those who heard the "Creation" as rendered last night will admit that what he said was true.

BREVITIES.

—The Lady Cyclers' Club of this city will have their first club run to Roselle, on May 16.

—A meeting of Gazelle Engine Company will be held Monday evening, May 8th at eight o'clock.

—Mr. Edward Wattie invites the public to call and inspect the fine assortment of correct footwear in his shoe department.

—The base ball season will be opened in this city to-morrow. A good game is promised. The Star Athletics will be the visitors.

—The Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the M. E. church has arranged to give a concert in Vincent chapel on Friday evening, May 12th. It will be in charge of the Mission Circle, but will be given by the Princeton Quartette. It will be duly advertised.

—The trial in the Hunterdon county court of Henry Waldron for atrocious assault on Philip Hartrum, resulted in a disagreement of the jury. Waldron shot Hartrum near White House, January last, when the latter went in the night to get assistance in extracting his team from a snowbank.

—Mr. Townsend, the enterprising proprietor of the Stone Works on Somerset street, has been compelled, by his increasing business to rent a strip of ground adjoining his building in order to make room for two car loads of granite and stone at the freight house awaiting transportation to his yard.

—Clothing for this season, and a large and varied assortment to select from, is what greets the purchaser in Werner's Mammoth Clothing Store, 20 West Front street. Spring overcoats, all shades, clothing made to order, etc., prices way down. In Mr. Werner's advertisement to-day he calls attention to something the reader's mirror should reflect.

To Arrest a Fanwood Youth.

On complaint of residents of Fanwood township a warrant was issued to-day, by Justice Nash, for the arrest of John Stiglitz. Stiglitz is charged in the complaint with riding a bicycle on the sidewalks in Fanwood.

THE PIERSON CASE.

The Defence Rested its Side at 4.30 Yesterday Afternoon.

The trial of the suit of James D. Pierson of Westfield against the Central Railroad Company for damages, was continued in the Circuit Court yesterday, the plaintiff's testimony being concluded at 12 o'clock.

Hon. Alvah A. Clark in behalf of the railroad, moved for a non suit, on the ground that the defendant could not be charged with cause of the accident. The plank which threw the locomotive off the track was placed on the rails by a third person, who was not in the company's employ and acted without any authority.

Judge Van Syckel said if it was the first occasion the obstruction had been on the track, and by a person who was a trespasser, and unwise responsible to the railroad, the non-suit would have been granted, but it had been shown by the evidence that daily for several months it had been the practice to use this plank as described. The train passed ten times daily, and on it were three of the company's employees. In addition to this there was a track-walker who passed the spot daily. If these employes of the company did not see this illegal use of the plank the inference is they were not attending to their business.

If they did see the plank, they were neglectful in not informing the company. These were questions for a jury to pass upon, and the non-suit was refused.

The defense was then begun and was finished at half-past four o'clock when court adjourned for the day.

The case was given to the jury this morning.

The case of Mantz vs. the P. & R. railroad was next taken up.

On account of the sickness of defendants counsel the case of the Union Cash Register Co. vs. Sharkey was postponed.

In the suit of Mrs. Vail vs. the Central Railroad for damages trial was postponed until next Wednesday to enable a struck jury to be drawn.

Decision was rendered this morning in the case of Keely vs. the treasurer of the city of Plainfield, in favor of the city.

EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION.

A Notable Gathering of Young People to be Held in This City.

On Thursday, June 8th, Plainfield will be favored with the convention of the Epworth League of the M. E. churches in the Elizabeth district of the Newark Conference. Three sessions will be held, forenoon, afternoon and evening. The Rev. Edward A. Schell of Chicago, general secretary of the Epworth League, will be present through the day and deliver the principal address.

PERSONAL.

Ground has been broken on Myrtle avenue for Mr. Samuel Townsend's new house.

The Misses Libby and Clara Hanford have rented the house on Rockview avenue formerly occupied by Mr. L. H. Bigelow.

Mr. James F. Parkes of Grove street and Mercer avenue has removed the brick walk in front of his house, and intends substituting one of asphalt.

Mr. and Mrs. Schoonmaker of Central avenue left to-day for Atlantic City. They will remain there until Mrs. Schoonmaker's health, which is very poor, improves.

The first of a series of sermons on "Mountains of the Bible" will be delived next Sunday evening in the First M. E. church, by the Rev. Dr. Barnes. Subject, "Mount Ararat."

Mr. and Mrs. David Roland of New York have moved to Plainfield and have taken up their residence on Broadway. Mr. Roland is president of a Fifth avenue bank in New York.

Last evening about fifty of the host of friends of Miss Josephine Schaffer gathered at her home, on West Fourth street, in honor of the anniversary of her birthday. Those present enjoyed themselves hugely with dancing and other pastimes. Refreshments were served in abundance.

Sudden Death of an Old Man.

County Physician Donohue of Middlesex county went to Mount Pleasant, a small hamlet between this city and Rahway, Wednesday, in response to information that Simeon D. Brown had died there suddenly, and under peculiar circumstances. He found that Mr. Brown, aged 71, was finishing up his evening chores and went into the the barn, where he suddenly dropped off. Dr. Donohue said that death was from heart disease. The deceased lived with Reuben Potter, his in-law, who is well known here.

Warren Mission Accepts the Offer.

The members of the Warren Union Mission Society met last night at the chapel and adopted a resolution accepting the offer of the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church to buy the Mission.

A meeting will be held Monday night by the Society when the trustees will be authorized to make the transfer.

In Justice Nash's Court.

Martin vs. Miller. On contract. Returnable Saturday, May 13th at 10 a. m.

Vosel vs. Price. Landlord and tenant. Returnable Thursday, May 11th, at two p. m.

LO! THE POOR INDIAN.

HE HAS HAD BETTER TIMES THAN THE NEGRO.

At Least Such was the Decision of Judge Dalziel at the Debate at the Young Men's Christian Association Last Night.

UCH interest was manifested last night in the Y. M. C. A. debate on the question, "Resolved, That the Indian has suffered more at the hands of the white man in America than has the negro." The debate was opened by the presentation of the cause of the Indian by Mr. Oscar Campbell.

Beginning with two pictures, the first of an Indian as Columbus found him, the second, of the Indian of the present day, he attributed the downfall of the Indian as seen in the second picture to the persecutions and bad whisky of the white man. He also called attention to the entire destruction of the Five Nations and many other tribes, and said that the sufferings of a few negroes down South was not to be compared with the sufferings of a race covering a whole continent.

Mr. Charles Fernald then answered that the Aztecs which Columbus saw when he landed were not North American Indians, and that the grounds which the white man had taken from the Indian were not stolen, as the lands did not rightfully belong to the Indians but to the Mound Builders who were the original owners.

He then summed up the case for his side as follows: The negro was taken across the ocean far away from his home and separated from his family. He became the property of another and was forced by the lash to do his master's work, being lashed sometimes even to death, while the Indian was allowed his freedom.

The negro had no legal redress while the Indian had full legal redress.

Mr. Fernald was followed by Mr. Alfred Crane, who spoke of the wholesale slaughter of the Indians on slight pretexts, of their being taken away from their own fertile lands and placed on lands that were practically stone heaps, and of the treaties which they were forced to accept and which were soon broken by the white man.

Mr. Clinton Smith said that in the case of the negro he was not his own, himself that was sold; that he became a chattel, and an article of commerce, thereby losing his freedom, which was his natural right.

Mr. Charles McNabb being absent Mr. Smith was replied to by Mr. Alfred Crane, who was in turn followed by Mr. Charles Fernald, in another summing up in the negative.

The debate was then closed by the reply of Mr. Oscar Campell, after which the judge, Mr. John Dalziel, said in making his decision that in this case he believed the negro had the best of the argument.

The negro had suffered the most, but that the Indian would probably have the worst of it in the future.

The "Old Homestead" To-night.

The "Old Homestead" will be at Music Hall to-night.

That this story is made interesting, touching and amusing, as it is, is due to the faithfulness with which the character of Joshua Whitcomb is drawn and presented. The truthfulness of all the minor character sketches, the brightness of the dialogue, and the many "touches of nature" which, while they have nothing whatever to do with the play, are at once recognized pleasurable by the audience, and the constant care taken that no stage convention shall be allowed to destroy even for a moment, the illusion. It is simply an extended character sketch, supplemented by very well-drawn stage pictures of New England farm life. But the character sketched is in itself so wholesome, so genuine, so unaffectedly good, and the sketch has been elaborated into so perfect and complete a picture, that it deserves all the praise it has received. It will even the play seems to reach the sympathies of every one in the audience.

Annual Meeting of the Homeopaths.

The New Jersey Homeopathic Medical Society held its thirty-ninth annual meeting in the Assembly Chamber at the State House, Trenton, on Tuesday. Owing to the absence of G. Herbert Richards, of Orange, Dr. E. M. Howard, of Camden, presided over the several sessions of the society. The meeting was devoted entirely to routine matters. The board of censors reported five new members.

Among the papers read was one on "Use of the Materia Medica," by Dr. Edward Rushmore of this city. Dr. Rushmore was also elected a member of the Board of Censors.

Social and Business Meeting.

The annual social and business meeting for the election of officers for the ensuing year, will be held by the Epworth League in Vincent chapel to-night, at eight o'clock. There will be good music and refreshments after the business meetings. All the young people of the League are earnestly requested to be present, and their friends will be cordially welcomed.

SOMERSET COUNTY COURTS.

Simple Assault was the Verdict of the South Bound Brook Fight.

The Somerset county court re-opened at Somerville, on Tuesday.

The trial of Charles Baynor and Ella Dickerson for assault and battery on John Shipley came up first. The parties are all colored and the difficulty occurred just after the colored church dismissed one Sunday evening, a few weeks ago, at South Bound Brook. Shipley testified that as he came out of church Baynor pushed him violently and then put his hand in his pocket as if to draw a razor or knife. He grabbed Baynor's hands and about that time Ella Dickerson pulled a picket from the fence and struck Shipley across the top of the head knocking him senseless. It was shown by other witnesses for the State that both defendants had razors.

The defense, conducted by lawyer James Meehan, attempted to show that the affair was the result of a quarrel and that Shipley was as much to blame as the other party. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of simple assault.

John Smith, of Peapack, son of the patriarch of the Smith family gatherings, was tried Wednesday on a charge of assault and battery. The jury rendered a verdict of not guilty.

The trial of Eugene B. Randolph, Lawrence Wells and George Shay and John Fencel, for keeping disorderly houses, was held over until the September term.

The court adjourned for the day until the 15th.

Judge Magie, yesterday, decided the case of Van Deventer vs. Brunson.

In 1825 Peter Brunson borrowed money of Mrs. Cornelia Van Deventer, agreeing to pay lawful interest, and gave his bond as security. Mrs. Van Deventer brought suit to collect the ammount of the bond and Peter Brunson retained Messrs. Jackson & Codington of this city to defend him, claiming there was $6,000, due him from Mrs. Van Deventer for services. Mr. William R. Codington ably conducted the case for Mr. Brunson, but the court decided against him.

The So-Called Borough Street Inspector.

Ex-Mayor Cooley recently entered a vigorous protest against the way Somerset street was being needlessly damaged by the Street Railway Company, in tearing it up for the purpose of laying to tracks.

No one seemed to be looking after the Borough's interests in the matter, and the street that had cost the taxpayers many thousands of dollars and many years of labor was being ruined in a condition that would cost the same taxpayers thousands of dollars to restore to the former fine condition.

Councilman Neal as chairman of the Street Committee, did not, it seems, think it was time to do his duty, and by what authority we know not, a certain Fred Carney was questioned at $3 per day to see that the Italians replaced the stone in some kind of order. It is customary for the Committee of the whole on the meeting to-night is to confirm the appointment and make Mr. Carney street inspector, at fifty cents per hour.

Why this expense is to be put upon the taxpayers is something at present not quite clear, nor where the Council has any authority to make such an appointment.

What is the street commissioner for, if not to look after just such matters? His case employ laborers to clear and repair the streets, when the damage has been caused by the usual traffic, or by the elements? And if it is not usual to pay laborers $3 per day for such service, Carney probably gets more than the street laborers, and certainly knows no more. He cannot be classed under the head of street laborers as he does not do even a laborer's work.

It is anybody's duty to inspect the street it is plainly the duty of the Street Commissioner, and if there is any extra expense in the matter, he is entitled to it. He certainly knows the difference between a roadway and a barn door.

But why should there be any extra expense on the taxpayers? If there is it should be charged to the company which causes the expense by the damage it does.

The people entrusted the care of the streets to their street commissioner, at a compensation agreed upon, and it is his duty to see that their interests are fully protected without any unnecessary expense. His is the regular office of street inspector undoubtedly is.

The street commissioner would doubtless say the foreman can be compelled to make good the damage. There is no need piling up taxes by making offices and hiring people when one can more usefully employed than at something they know practically nothing about.

Borough Commissioner Garis, having heard numerous complaints about the condition of Somerset street, today forbid the street railway workmen tearing up more of the street until that condition was remedied. The Street Inspector, D. Carney, had been letting the workmen tear up more than the 70 feet which they had been allowed to tear up before proceeding further. Mr. Gavis found 1,800 feet torn up, and the street in such a condition as to seriously hinder. He immediately forbid the Italians proceeding any further until repairs made by the inspector had said or done. A farmer from over the mountains tried to get his produce to market. The meeting was directed entirely to routine matters. The board of censors reported five new members.

Among the papers read was one on "Use of the Materia Medica," by Dr. Edward Rushmore of this city. Dr. Rushmore was also elected a member of the Board of Censors.

The Great Event.

A touch from the hand of General Grant, then President Grant, started all the machinery and opened the Centennial exposition at Philadelphia in 1876. President Grant's hand set in motion the huge Corliss engine, 1,400 horsepower, weight 700 tons, which furnished power to practically all the machinery at the world's fair of 1876. The difference between the exposition of 1876 and that which opened at Chicago May 1, 1893, is shown by nothing more vividly than by the fact that in Machinery hall at the Columbian exposition 60 huge engines are required to afford the necessary power. The Columbian exposition is not 60 times as large as that of 1876, though it is indeed several times as extensive as that was. The great addition to the steam power is required on account of the electric lighting apparatus. How far we have advanced since 1876 may be understood from the fact that there was not an electric light used for general illumination at the Centennial exposition.

Men were in doubt at that time whether the electric light could ever be generally utilized on account of its cost. At the Columbian fair there will be 5,000 electric arc lights and 100,000 incandescent lights. For the incandescent lights alone 11 engines will be necessary. The largest one will give power for 30,000 incandescent lights and is of 2,000 horsepower, nearly half as large again as the 1876 Corliss, which furnished power to the whole exposition.

The scene at the opening of the fair was as magnificent as the eye ever beheld in town or city. All that the skill of man could do to make the occasion imposing had been done. The great Theodore Thomas waved his baton, and an orchestra of 160 instruments, a chorus of 950 voices, filled the air with a volume of sound that rippled even the waters of the lake. That lake itself was grandest of all in the vista which spread before the eye at the ceremonial exercises. This will be the greatest world's fair that ever was—in the greatest country upon the globe. No world's exposition has had before the advantage of so magnificent a site; so much room; none has had that glorious inland sea to refresh the weary visitor with its breath after his sightseeing.

The great fair is open. Go and see it.

The Saturday Half Holiday.

The movement in favor of Saturday afternoon as a half holiday is growing in the older states, although it would be hard for it to get a foothold as yet in the new states of the west where daylight is not long enough to do the work that must be done, and that quickly. New York, New Jersey and a few other states have laws which name half holidays. The Saturday half holiday is, however, left partly discretionary. In the largest cities of the older states it is becoming a common practice now voluntarily to close dry goods stores and many other business houses at noon of Saturday from the middle of June to the middle of September. Sometimes this is the case only during the months of July and August. It can be done very well in the great cities, for midsummer is the dullest business time of year with them.

The Saturday half holiday gives clerks and all who work long hours time to get a breath of fresh air and get themselves in good order for Sunday. Employers are really encouraging if wherever it is at all practicable, and the considerate among them are the last ones to oppose the Saturday half holiday. What is lost in time is more than gained in the physical and mental vigor given by the little breathing spell.

How completely anybody in this country can become anything he or she chooses is shiningly illustrated in the case of Lucy Larcom. For 10 years of her early life she worked as an ordinary factory girl in a cotton mill. Nothing in the way of humble labor in city or country was unfamiliar to her, from milking cows to home dressmaking. Born and reared thus in the school of poverty and toil, Lucy Larcom nevertheless lived to become a thoroughly educated, refined, cultivated woman and one of the most famous feminine poets of her country in the nineteenth century. The verses entitled, "Hannah Binding Shoes," will live as long as anything Whittier or Russell Lowell ever wrote. Miss Larcom accomplished so much simply by making the most of the time she had and willing. It is a lesson that all may well take to heart. All have not Lucy Larcom's exceptional gifts, but all can make a noble success of their lives in some direction. The world's gates are wide open before us all. We have only to choose our path and follow it.

One regrets to learn at last of the failure of the co-operative housekeeping experiment at Philadelphia. It failed through the apparent impossibility of finding anybody who was capable of managing the kitchen part. Nevertheless nothing is more certain than that co-operative housekeeping will be eventually successful. The co-operative kitchen and laundry, with trained graduates from housekeeping schools to manage them, will in time dissolve away all the present difficulties of housekeeping.

New York State Deluged With Three Inches of Rain.

THE SWOLLEN WATERS DO DAMAGE

Railroads Under Water, Tracks Washed Out, Bridges Swept Away and Lowlands Submerged—Shipwrecked Crew Lost Off Newburyport.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The rain-filled clouds which have swept the country from the Mississippi river to the Atlantic left almost three inches of water on a level when they passed out of this state into New England. These three inches of water have filled the streams and rivers up the state, and reports are now coming in of much damage that the swollen waters are doing.

When the storm left here it appears to have moved north along the St. Lawrence valley, but it is wide enough to extend from the late region to the coast of Maine.

Heavy winds and rains mark its whole breadth. It is expected that by tonight the storm will have gone careering out into the Atlantic and that the cool, threatening and chilly weather will be succeeded by some genuine spring weather.

The rainfall on Manhattan island during the storm was 2.84 inches, the heaviest of any point over the territory in which the storm prevailed, and the average velocity of the wind was about 30 miles an hour.

A report from Fort Plain says that there has been a heavy fall of rain in the Mohawk valley. The Mohawk river is bank high and the lowlands are submerged. Large trees and a great deal of wood is being carried down the stream. A landslide occurred on the West Shore railroad near Amsterdam, and passenger traffic was delayed. Much damage, it is reported, has been done in other parts of Montgomery county.

From Corning it is reported that residents of the lowlands along the Chemung river are moving out for fear of a repetition of the floods of 1860. The river has overflowed its banks, doing considerable damage on the Erie and Fall Brook roads, on the former from washouts and on the latter from landslides.

From Utica comes a report of several small washouts on railroads in that vicinity. One on the line between Syracuse and Earlville has made it necessary to run trains around by the West Shore to Clark's Mills.

At Oneida the Ontario and Western tracks are under water for a considerable distance, and two freight trains are stalled in the flood, the water being so deep that it put out the fires of the locomotives. The sidewalks in a portion of Oneida are under water, and a repetition of the damage of four years ago, which amounted to many thousands of dollars, is feared. The canal on this level is at full banks, and the water pours into it so rapidly from what were formerly little streams that the waste gates have been opened.

Superintendent Hannan of the state department of public works at Albany, reported several dispatches from along the line of the Erie canal saying the heavy storm threatened severe damage, particularly on the long level between Utica and Syracuse. The streams and feeders are swollen enormously and overflowing their banks. The superintendent expected to begin locking canalboats into the Erie on that end late last night, as the current in the river threatened momentarily to break the fastenings of some of the craft in the big canaller's fleet waiting at West Troy for the opening rush.

At Elmira the Chemung river has risen about nine feet and continues to rise.

All on Board Lost.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 5.—A 2-masted schooner, supposed to be the Bruce of Deer Isle, Me., went ashore about one-third of a mile north of Knobs' life saving station, Plum island. The life saving crew went out duty May 1, and nobody saw the wreck except Captain Frank Stevens and Nathaniel Watson, who were sleeping there. They got two men and a boy to help them and succeeded in getting a shot line on board the craft. A heavy sea, however, swept the rope out of the hands of the crew, who were in the rigging, and it was then seen that they were doomed. Soon after the spars fell and with them four men, who are supposed to be all there were on board.

Water in Hartford's Streets.

HARTFORD, May 5.—The river reached a height of 17 feet this morning, and rose at a rate of three inches an hour. It is expected from advices received up the river that it will reach 24 feet, which will be higher than it has been for several years. The steamboat dock is several feet under water and the water is coming up the street rapidly. A big freshet is feared and the transportation people are somewhat alarmed. The Park river is higher than it has been for 40 years.

Heavy Wind In Vermont.

RUTLAND, Vt., May 5.—A heavy wind prevailed in this city and vicinity and a conservative estimate places the damage at not less than $15,000. Old residents say so severe a wind has not prevailed here in 20 years. Nearly all the roof of the shirt factory was torn off, while about 25 feet of the roof of the Bates House was taken up bodily and carried some distance. Hardly a dwelling house escaped injury.

Flood Danger Passed.

ST. LOUIS, May 5.—The flood in the Mississippi river reached its crest at a height of 16.6 feet above low water mark, which was 4.4 feet lower than the crest of the disastrous rise of last year. The water receded very slowly and has shown a fall of four inches from its highest mark. It is thought the river will continue to fall, and all danger of a flood at present is over.

Rain Causes Stoppage of Work.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., May 5.—The streams throughout the Schuylkill coal region are much swollen, and pumps at the different collieries are being put to the utmost strain to keep the mines in working condition. It is feared that work will have to cease at many of the mines. To the Shamokin region the heavy rains caused the stoppage of work at most of the collieries.

The Highway a Torrent.

WHITINSVILLE, Mass., May 5.—A break in the east bank of Riley's pond on Castle hill caused quite a serious washout and damage to property. Thousands of gallons of water poured down the highway leading to the village. Four inches of rain fell. The dam of the extensive Whitin reservoir is being watched closely.

Drowned in a Swollen Brook.

ANSONIA, Conn., May 5.—A 3-year-old daughter of Morris Hanlon was drowned in Beaver brook, a small stream that had been swollen by rains. The river is eight feet above its level and still rising. Some bridges have been carried away causing considerable damage.

Saved the Express.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 5.—A land-slide in the deep cut on the Hartford and Albany railroad, just east of Worcester, was discovered in time to hold the Boston express. The tracks were buried beneath several feet of debris, but were cleared in an hour by a large gang of men.

Railroad Track Washed Away.

MERIDEN, Conn., May 5.—About 25 feet of the track of the Meriden branch of the New York and New England railroad in Westfield was washed away by the rain. Over $1,000 worth of damage was done to the streets and roads in Meriden, city and town.

Drowned In the Flood.

LANCASTER, Pa., May 5.—The heavy rain has turned all the streams in this county into raging torrents. John Dierwechter of Ephrata was drowned in the Cocalico creek while trying to recover a wagon which was being swept away by the flood.

Snow Feeds the Freshet.

BIDDEFORD, Me., May 5.—There has been a fall of 2 3-5 inches of rain here. The river is now rising two inches an hour. There is a large amount of snow back toward the mountains and a freshet is feared if the storm continues.

Portsmouth Harbor Filled With Ships.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 5.—The worst storm of the season struck here, and business throughout the city is practically at a standstill. The harbor is full of sailing vessels which have sought a refuge from the storm.

Blown Off the Ledge.

CAMDEN, Me., May 5.—During the northeast gale the schooner Snow Squall of Bucksport, which got on the ledges last week at the entrance to the harbor, was blown off and sunk in the inside harbor.

The Raritan Stepped Over.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., May 5.—The Raritan river has overflowed its banks, and the lowlands south of this place are flooded with from 4 to 10 feet of water. Thousands of acres of meadow land are under water.

The Levee Gave Way.

PORTSMOUTH, O., May 5.—The flood in the Scioto reached its limit. The levee at Davis, seven miles above the city, broke, but the extent of the damage is yet unknown.

Logs Swept Away.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 5.—A section of the Williamsport boom broke and about 15,000,000 feet of logs escaped through the break and passed down the river.

Steers Bound to Portland.

PORTLAND, Me., May 5.—A heavy easterly wind prevails and the waves are running so high that all vessels are confined in the harbor.

Looking for the Durkin Outlaws.

TROY, N. Y., May 5.—The people of Washington county are looking for two brothers named Durkin. Saturday Edward Durkin held a revolver to the head of a deputy sheriff and demanded the release of his brother Jack, who had been committed to jail on a charge of burglary. The prisoner was released and the brothers at once took to a swamp and have eluded the officers and a large posse of men ever since. Nearly every day the fugitives have been seen, and several times they have recently been seen in fields and barns and demanded something to eat. Sunday while a family was at church, the Durkins entered the house and took money and provisions.

Train Wreckers Disappointed.

LIMA, O., May 5.—An attempt was made to wreck the west bound express on the Lake Erie and Western road. A heavy shipment of money was on the train and that was the reason the wreckers were after. The plot was arranged about three-quarters of a mile west of PAXTON, one of the most out of the way points of territory along the line. At the foot of a grade, near a curve, an obstruction of ties, spiked together, was placed across the track. The robbers lay in ambush, but the express was behind time and the plot failed.

A Big Republican Gathering.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Secretary Andrew B. Humphrey and his assistants are engaged at the headquarters of the National Republican league preparing for the strictly annual convention of the league, which meets in McCauley's theater, Louisville, on May 10. Arrangements have been made to have the sessions of the most important and significant yet held by the league. It will be the first national Republican gathering ever held south of the Ohio river.

Troops Sent After Outlaws.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—It is rumored that the United States government will take a hand in the pursuit of the notorious bandits Evans and Sontag. Troops of the Fourth cavalry, Captain Parker, have been ordered to the vicinity of the Visalia, where the outlaws have been repeatedly seen.

Studying Our Quarantine Methods.

QUARANTINE, S. I., May 5.—Minister of the Interior Daly of Ottawa and his deputy, Mr. Burgess, are at this port for the purpose of studying the immigration and quarantine methods, with a view of protecting Canada from a possible invasion of cholera during the ensuing summer.

The Milk Exchange Case Settled.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 5.—Judge Martin has granted the motion for nonsuit in the famous Milk Exchange case. This unfortunately settles finally the expensive litigation between the farmers and the Milk Exchange, which has occupied the attention of the courts for several years.

She Stopped the President.

CHICAGO, May 5.—The woman who stopped President Cleveland in the corridor of the Lexington hotel Monday morning, and was put to the utmost strain to keep the mines in working condition. It is feared that work will have to cease at many of the mines. To the Shamokin region the heavy rains caused the stoppage of work at most of the collieries.

THE RELAY RIDE FINISHED.

The Bicyclists Were Behind Time, but the Weather Was Bad.

CHICAGO, May 5.—The relay ride has been finished. Somewhat behind time, covered with mud and glory and almost exhausted, the two riders who had been assigned to do the last relay of the great bicycle ride from Boston to Chicago dashed into town about 1a the early hours of the morning and delivered the message which they had carried so fast and far.

The governor was called up to receive the message handled package. The 1,259 miles had not been made within the 90 hours, which had been figured on, but the ride had been made not only in ordinary wet weather, but right into the face of and clear through a three days' storm which has flooded the whole country.

The start was made from Bogton on April 29. The pouch contained a message from Governor Russell of Massachusetts to Governor Altgeld.

The first division, from Boston to New York, was conducted under the charge of Captain A. D. Pack of the Massachusetts Bicycle club. He proved his capability for the position by securing such famed racers as Windle, Hoyland, Smith, Tyler, Van Wagoner and Nelson.

This is a schedule of the last division, which was covered last night: Cleveland to Chicago, 271 miles; Cleveland to Norwalk, 85 miles; Norwalk to Perrysburg, 68 miles; Perrysburg to Kendallville, 91 miles; Kendallville to Ligonier, 18 miles; Ligonier to Goshen, 18 miles; Goshen to Laporte, 54 miles; Laporte to Hammond, 47 miles; Hammond to Chicago, 21 miles.

The riders were escorted into town by large local bicyclists and cheered, even at that late hour, by many on the streets.

Scholars Fired the School Building.

PORT HURON, Ont., May 5.—Trinity College school was discovered to be on fire, but firemen succeeded in extinguishing the flames. Suspicion fell on some of the students, and three of them confessed to having set fire to the building, and implicated three others. All six are under 19 years of age and said they wanted to be the first to fire the school. They are all sons of wealthy and influential Canadians.

The Cordage Trust Goes Under.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The National Cordage company went into the hands of receivers. Chancellor McGill of New Jersey and E. C. F. Young, president of the First National bank of Jersey City, and George W. Loper, treasurer of the corporation, in charge of its affairs. This receivership was the culmination of a day of wild rumors in Wall street about the Cordage trust and its managers.

England's Gold Reserve Decreasing.

LONDON, May 5.—The bank reserve decreased this week £1,130,000, although £90,000 in gold was imported during the week. Forty-six thousand pounds came from Australia and £39,000 from Lisbon, Paris and New York, while £230,000 were sent to Australia. The reserve is now £15,000,000. The stock markets are very quiet. American affairs are now the center of attention.

A Burglar After All.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Edward Carey, 26 years old, is held on a charge of burglary, preferred by Mrs. Anna Payne. He was convicted in the act. Carey was pardoned by Governor Flower five months ago after serving 3½ years of a 13-year sentence for burglary, it having been clearly proven that he was unjustly convicted.

Wants More of the Million.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Alphonse Ortman of Dresden, N. Y., a nephew of the late millionaire merchant Charles Ahrenfeldt, importer of fine French porcelain, has begun proceedings to contest Ahrenfeldt's will. Ortman's mother receives $6,000 as her share of a $1,000,000 estate. She wants more.

Out of Jail and Right Back.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 5.—John Collins of New York, who was released from a three years' sentence in Auburn prison Wednesday night, robbed Thomas B. Husted on the St. Louis express before daylight Thursday morning, and he is now in jail here awaiting the action of the grand jury.

A Reverend Editor Dead.

BOSTON, May 5.—Rev. James Upham, D. D., a retired Baptist clergyman, died at his residence in Chelsea. He was editor of The Watchman and Reflector, associate editor of The Religious Herald, Richmond, Va., and for the last few years health editor of The Youth's Companion.

Adatt Will Go to Austria.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Jacques L. Adatt was brought back from Cincinnati, and he will be taken back to Vienna. He is wanted by Austria. Judge Jenkins dismissed the application of Adatt for an appeal to the supreme court.

Shot Himself in the Neck.

RED HAVE, N. J., May 5.—Thomas H. Applegate, a retired merchant, committed suicide in his cart or house by shooting himself in the neck with a revolver.

LOADED WITH JEWELS.

A Foreign Couple With $100,000 Worth of Gems.

SUSPECTED OF BEING SMUGGLERS.

Mrs. Dolle Wore a Necque Which Was Lined With Precious Stones and Rogues Had Belts Full of Diamonds—May Be the Result of Some Big Robbery.

NEW YORK, May 5.—A young man and a young woman, who are believed to have stolen in Europe and smuggled over $100,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry to this country, are prisoners in Brooklyn.

Both are fashionably dressed and talk with a French accent. They describe themselves as Mrs. Jane Dolle, 19, and Eugene Leroux, 23. The detectives secured the jewelry, which contained over 1,000 pieces. There was nearly a bushel of rubies, pearls, diamond earrings, diamond rings and diamonds set in every imaginable way.

Cleverest In the World.

The police feel sure that the prisoners have confederates at large who may possibly be the principals in big robberies. At any rate, the police are confident that they have captured two of the cleverest thieves in the world. Detective Robert Pinkerton was called to Brooklyn last night and after a hasty investigation said the prisoners were strangers in this country.

Detectives Corcoran and Hayes followed the woman into a pawnshop, where she pawned a diamond necklace worth $300 for $10. Then she went to another pawnbroker and pledged a valuable diamond for a small sum. When she came out she was arrested.

The woman was questioned through an interpreter. Captain Short got her to unbutton her wrap and was startled by the strings of diamonds which hung from her neck. Thirteen uncut stones were found in her pocket.

Fortunes In Gems.

In all over $20,000 worth of jewelry was found on her. She said that she and her husband had lately come from Belgium, where her husband, Eugene Leroux, was a waiter, and that they were living at 99 Berry street.

Detectives visited this address and found Leroux. They found diamonds and jewelry in all parts of the rooms. Chemois belts containing hundreds of valuable stones were found there.

The jewelry was taken to the station. Jeweler Jacob Morsch, who was called in, estimated the value of the jewelry at $100,000.

HARRIS TAKES IT CALMLY.

Smoked a Cigarette While He Was Being Told He Must Die.

SING SING, May 5.—Warden Durston received a telegram from T. S. Williams, Governor Flower's private secretary, which read, "Governor refuses to grant clemency to Carlyle Harris."

Harris received one from Howe & Hummel as follows: "The governor has refused to grant his executive clemency in your case." Harris telegraphed his mother at Northfield, Mass., to come and see him at the prison today.

Warden Durston and Chaplain John C. S. Weills broke the news of the governor's decision to Harris. Mr. Weills in speaking of it said:

"When we informed Harris of the decision he smiled and said: 'It is just what I expected.' Harris showed no emotion whatever; in fact, he was more composed than I was, and he calmly smoked a cigarette while talking to us."

Mr. Decker, Warden Durston's private secretary, sent out the invitations for the execution early this morning. The men now in the death house are as follows: Harris, to die the week of May 8; Osmond, to die the week of June 12; Johnson, to die the week of June 12, and Geoghegan, the date of execution not fixed. Mrs. Harris arrived here this forenoon.

The Break Under Control.

BELLEFONTAINE, O., May 5.—The breaks in the banks of the Lewiston reservoir are under control, and should no more rain fall or new openings occur it is hoped the worst is over and the appalling danger passed.

Jute Workers Accept a Reduction.

DUNDEE, May 5.—The strike of working people employed in the jute mills of this city has been settled, the employees consenting to accept a reduction of 2½ per cent in their wages.

The Lumber Shovers Quiet.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., May 5.—All is quiet along the docks. A fire of somewhat mysterious origin occurred in the building adjoining the headquarters of the Lumbermen's association.

Freight Conductor Killed.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 5.—George Brown, a Delaware, Lackawanna and Western freight conductor, was killed at Great Bend, Pa., while descending a ladder on a freight car.

The Crescent Club's Offer.

NEW ORLEANS, May 5.—The Crescent Athletic club will give a purse of $1,500 for a fight between Paddy McBride of Philadelphia and Johnny VanHeest of New York.

ARBOR DAY OBSERVANCE.

New York School Children Are Learning All About Trees Today.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Arbor day is being observed with the usual ceremonies in all the public as well as in many of the private schools.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. F. Crocker, anxious to have the school children make as much as possible of Arbor day, has sent out a circular to all the boards of education of public and private schools requesting that a greater effort be made this year to instruct the young people in some of the advantages and uses of trees, and particularly that they may be taught about the plantings and care of them, in order that a greater interest in the subject may be fostered and encouraged. These suggestions are being carried out in many of the schools in this city today.

Troops Will Be Kept at Hall.

LONDON, May 5.—The Right Hon. H. H. Asquith, secretary of state for home affairs, in reply to a question, stated that if the authorities at Hull were of the opinion that the presence of the troops was necessary for the preservation of order, the order sending the military to that town would not be withdrawn. The home secretary's statement was greeted with cheers from the government benches. Mr. J. H. Wilson, the well known labor leader, was greatly displeased, and at once moved that the house adjourn with a view to determine whether the law had been contravened by the actions of the shipping federation and by the government in supplying troops to interfere in labor disputes. Mr. Gladstone in reply said that while it was unwise and impolitic to send troops before strikers, the friends of labor ought to take his assurance that the government had not designed to support the shipping federation. Mr. Wilson thereupon withdrew his motion.

A Remarkable Religious Enterprise.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.—The projectors of the Christian centennial at Jerusalem in 1900, the chief scene in which is Colonel James E. Peyton, and in historic Carpenters' hall. Colonel Peyton stated the object of the centennial to be a congress of all nations and to mark the nineteenth hundredth anniversary of the birth of Christ. He further said that a committee would prepare resolutions and present them for adoption at a public meeting to be held in front of Independence hall on July 4. The resolutions will then be sent to Chicago for consideration by the parliament of religions at the World's fair.

The Career of the New Bishop.

BOSTON, May 5.—Bishop Elect Lawrence, who was chosen by the Episcopal convention, in session here, as bishop of the diocese of Massachusetts, to succeed the late Phillips Brooks, is a son of Hon. Amory Lawrence, the well known capitalist. He was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1871. He became the professor of homiletics and pastoral care in his alma mater, the Cambridge school, and in 1880, on the death of Dean Grey, he became dean, retaining the professorship also.

Miners Going Back to Work.

CLEVELAND, May 5.—Quite a number of the striking miners in Ohio have returned to work, and the general belief among employers here is that the strike will be practically ended by the first of next week.

Gossip About Gowns.

The dresses for the last English drawing room were made chiefly of satin, with velvet or brocade trains. The skirts were very full and trimmed to the knees.

If you are bent upon being in the very latest fashion, you will order a flounce skirt forthwith, whether you like it or no.

It is prophesied that we shall shortly go back to tight sleeves. The new rage for outdoor gowns have cape sleeves. The bishop sleeve is superseding the leg o' mutton, and a sleeve which falls in full fashionable this season is puffed all the way up.

For brilliancy of coloring the new materials outshine those of previous seasons. Neutrals are shaded or show changeable effects. The shaded shiny silks patterned with a small flower are extremely gorgeous. An example is in sage or many shades of green, and each melting into the other. In some of the silks the shading occurs at regular intervals and takes the form of wide stripes.

The promenade gown here illustrated is designed for one just going out of mourning garb. It is in black and white silk, the skirt draped with lines in black and trimmed with small black buttons. The bodice has an empire front, large revers of velvet and jabot of real old lace.

Flounces and Furbelows Are to Flourish.

The stern and practical in dress is giving place to the daintily attractive, and the coming season is going to be full of fashion, and this summer we are to return again to flounces and furbelows. Lace will be worn on everything, and ribbons, too, are likely to be more popular than they have been for several seasons. Like many of the new silks they show blurred floral patterns on shot grounds. Some of the skirts are flounced all the way up, some have only one flounce, and some are adorned round the hem with rows of velvet.

WOMAN AND HOME.

WHAT ELECTRICITY HAS DONE IN THE KITCHEN AND LAUNDRY.

Artificial Aids to Beauty—Why Southern Girls Are Liked—A Learned Irish Woman—Admiration For American Ancles. Mrs. Eustis and Her Daughters.

The stories of the use of electricity in the household, if practically realized, will do away with the drudgery of the conventional kitchens in solving the problem of housework. If electricity could be introduced into the household as a motor to turn the washing machine in which finery clothes are washed, to turn the wringer and the mangle and accomplish many minor tasks, it would be a genuine blessing. There is already a device for grinding the morning coffee. A little slide starts the motor, and when the coffee is ground and falls into the coffeepot, a weight turns off the motor automatically.

Meat may be chopped, fruit juice pressed out, an ice cream freezer turned or cream extracted in an instant from milk by various other devices of which electricity is the moving power. There are baking ovens, heating stoves, saucepans, broilers, griddles, andirons and various other utensils which may be attached to any electric light wire. The voltage inthe case of these household appliances is from 50 to 110. The ovens, which possess many advantages over an oven heated by gas or kerosene, are lined with asbestos, so that there is no radiation of heat into the room.

The heat is applied at the top and bottom of the oven alike and may be controlled by a switch on the outside. There is a thermometer attached to the oven showing the exact degrees of heat, and there is a piece of plate glass in the oven door so that the cooking may be watched and the heat graduated if it is going on too rapidly.

The greatest objection to the oven is that it cannot be opened during the cooking, and therefore meats cannot be basted as they certainly should be. There is no special gain in time. A 12-pound turkey requires 2 hours and 45 minutes; a 5-pound roast of beef about an hour and a half if it is roasted rare. Pies of various kinds may be cooked in from 30 to 40 minutes, and it seems probable that this oven would prove more valuable for pastry baking and other cases when an intense heat is required than for general use in the kitchen.

The great advantage of such an oven over one heated by gas or kerosene is that there is no odor and no smoke. The average kerosene stove is liable to smoke unless it is watched with the most scrupulous care, and nothing is more destructive and disagreeable than the all pervading, penetrating and greasy soot from this smoke.

A pancake griddle, a coffeepot or teapot may be attached to a wire separately. There are also broilers which broil the meat without smoke and in so rapid a manner as to recommend them to all good cooks who know the value of intense and rapid heat in broiling. It is not likely that these kitchen utensils will take the place of the range, but they may be valuable as an adjunct. A toaster like which will heat water rapidly at night or a sizzling dish which will make a little appetizing dish for supper will be very useful in the summer, when it is desirable to dispense with the heat of the kitchen range for at least a part of the day.

Flatirons heated by an electric wire would do away with the misery of a hot laundry in sultry weather and enable the worker to accomplish her tasks in an easier and a more satisfactory manner. The saucepan heated by electricity will be especially valuable in the sickroom and nursery, to take the place of the disagreeable gas saucepan.—New York Tribune.

Artificial Aids to Beauty.

One may be disposed to forgive the woman who has been beautiful if, in her desperate attempts to retain her beauty, she paints and powders and chooses to make of herself a thing of borrowed shreds and patches. But when women tell us—as some of them do tell us now and then—that men like a woman to caricature her own womanhood; that they prefer—it comes to that—imitation beauty to the real article, they require of us a faith too great for ordinary human nature. To be told, as I was told a little time ago—and by a lady—that men do not care for women unless they paint and powder, is to have too strong a strain placed upon one's natural civility. That this same informant was guilty of a perhaps pardonable feminine exaggeration when she declared that, nowadays, all women used both paint and powder, I am sure.

Had she confined herself to the statement that a very large number of women are indebted for what they call their charms to anything but nature, she would have delivered herself of an utterance on the liberal veracity of which she might safely have staked her immaculate. A toskettle which will heat water rapidly at night or a sizzling dish which will make a little appetizing dish for supper will be very useful in the summer, when it is desirable to dispense with the heat of the kitchen range for at least a part of the day.

world. Mrs. Grierson was a lady possessed of singular erudition and had an elegance of taste and solidity of judgment which justly rendered her one of the most wonderful, as well as amiable, of her sex. Prefixed to this edition of Tacitus is a dedication to Lord Carteret by Mrs. Grierson in most elegant Latinity."

This eulogium is quoted by Dr. Dibdin in his book on the Greek and Latin classics, and a note is added respecting Mrs. Grierson's son, a young man of extraordinary attainments, who died at the age of 27, and who received the highest commendation from Dr. Johnson. For his mother's sake this young man was appointed king's printer in Dublin. According to one account, Mrs. Grierson was a native of Kilkenny, the child of poor parents, and indebted for her instruction to the parish clergyman. Considering her attainments and circumstances, she must have been a most remarkable genius and deserves a fuller record than so brief a note as this. It is stated that she was not 30 years of age when she died in 1733.

Admiration For American Babies.

It is now American babies who are commending themselves to foreign eyes. An English woman visiting this country writes home for publication: "You could not imagine anything more quaintly delightful than American small children and babies. They, up to 4, wear the dearest little close caps of all colors, but generally white—the queerest, prettiest clothes—all just touching the ground. It is easy to see where Kate Greenaway got her models for her children's costumes, for they are exactly here. Then the baby carriages—nothing approaching our clumsy perambulators. They are all of either bent wood or good wicker-work, on India rubber springs, and have open work all around, on perfect springs, and most of them rock up and down when not being wheeled and have fixed, large parasols overlaid in all colors and pretty devices.

"Half lying under this bright shade is a child's face, often of very pretty, piquant baby with unusually dark eyes, with an expression in them as if there was nothing they didn't know; a tiny white silk cap on their head; rings tempted to the wrists by a ribbon on its fat fingers; the daintiest white pillows, white fancy coverlets over its little body, and an air of cushiness and softness about it. Such is the American baby." This is very delightful, even though it sounds as if the American baby were a species newly discovered by intrepid explorers.

Mrs. Eustis and Her Daughters.

Mrs. James B. Eustis, who will dispense American hospitality at our embassy in Paris, was known in her youth as pretty Miss Buckner of New Orleans. She was charmingly attractive as a girl and is even now a handsome, well preserved woman of medium size with soft brown eyes and a clear, fresh skin. Her manners are extremely amiable, being a happy combination of southern warmth and dignity. Mrs. Eustis inherited by her own right, having inherited a large fortune from her father, who was one of the great New Orleans bankers.

One of Mrs. Eustis' daughters married a nephew of Mr. Corcoran, the famous Washington philanthropist, while the other, known as Mlle. Titine, will probably make her debut during her father's mission to France. If graceful and handsome woman can contribute anything to the success of social functions at the embassy, Mrs. Eustis should be able to create a most agreeable impression. The women of his family on both sides are more than ordinarily attractive and will naturally reflect lustre on the American women at home and abroad.—American Woman.

The Careful Frenchwoman's Method.

When the great Parisian designers cater to the caprice of careful dressers of taste and artistic instincts, they make up a dull figure, fashioned as near the outline of the woman they are designing for as possible, and with all necessary proportions and shirring. On this replica the milliner or they actually makes the dress, complete and perfect in every detail. Then my lady has dozens in and criticises the result, suggests a change here and attention there, possibly rejects the whole design, and another is made to suit her fancy. Then when the gown comes home there are no mistakes, no standings or disappointments.

Foreign women, who have the reputation of being more careful and exact dressers than we Americans have much less money to spend on dress than American women squander, insist on seeing the perfect design. The American, with implicit faith that every Parisian model must be right, accepts what the gods of the modes provide with no murmur or criticism, and thus we earn the reputation of lack of individuality in dress.—New York Sun.

The Artistic Work of a Dressmaker.

I once saw some delightful French dress-maker take an odd, ungainly looking girl, with no figure nor color, and out of her very oddness create a charm. For material she chose a sort of soft, clinging stuff—in dull grose, but a grose with more blue than yellow in it, the only kind brunettes can wear. She fairly made the dress on the girl, draping in artistic folds to the symmetries of the figure and softening it against the face with velvet of the same shade as the gown. Then by subtle touches of dull gold and lisse and rich lace a quaint peasanterie she acted and heightened a southern, Spanish note in the girl's appearance and maidenne forgot the forlorn water by a scarf that went round it, from which dangled rare oriental looking ornaments in the same reds and golds. The girl suggested some sort of barbaric princess and had one of the chief characteristics of beauty—the being able to attract and fix the attention.—Katherine de Forest in Harper's Bazar.

Why Women Are Prematurely Old.

Do you know why so many of the women of America look prematurely aged and careworn and are a prey to all sorts of nervous diseases that make them unfit for society and change them from pleasant companions to fretty, irritable invalids whom no one likes to have around? Well, if you don't, we will give you the answer. It is because they do not get sufficient sleep.

A woman will plead that she hasn't time to lie down for a few minutes in the day-time, and she will infringe upon the hours of the night, which should be given to sound, healthy sleep, in order to finish some piece of work that could just as well be completed on the morrow. She will rush and hurry all day long, and then, when the household is hushed in slumber at night, she will sit up to read the daily paper, thinking that she will not have to pay for the minutes she is stealing from the health giving sleep that comes before midnight.—Philadelphia Times.

Eggs and Milk For Invalids.

The use of milk and eggs as a diet or an aid in building up a patient is often a trial to the nurse. Many patients will take milk slightly warm, or even hot, but digest it readily, when cold milk causes distress. It is an excellent plan to rinse the mouth with cold, cool or hot water, as preferred, before and after drinking milk. The taste left in the mouth of many persons after a draft of milk, especially a small quantity, often causes a loathing to follow it. The secret of success in giving milk and eggs to those who would rather not take them is to prepare them in different ways. For a delicate stomach the whites of the eggs, well beaten, added to hot or cold milk, sweetened to taste, will often prove tempting when even the sight of the yolk with milk is unpleasant. After a time a little of the yolk may be used, the whites of the egg being added last and not stirred into the milk, but left at the top of the glass for ornament.—Nurse.

Absolute Truthfulness.

There is nothing that a parent should so fully realize as the fact that in order to have truthful children she must be absolutely truthful herself. Little minds are quick to realize the absolute stability of mother's statement and are just as ready to detect flaws in her armor of sincerity as well. Do not promise anything that you do not mean to carry out. If you cannot answer any of their little questions truthfully, do not make up some reply that they will later discover to be incorrect, for such deception will have a tendency to instill in them a carelessness in regard to their own statements that will soon make it easy for them to tell falsehoods without a qualm of conscience.—Detroit Free Press.

The pattern that the little ones will follow; therefore make that pattern as nearly perfect as it is possible for you to do.—Philadelphia Times.

A California Pampas Ranch.

One of the most striking instances of what a woman can do in this era of woman's emancipation is the energetic and brainy action of Mrs. H. W. R. Strong, a pampas grower near the town of Whittier, Cal. Mrs. Strong has a ranch of 220 acres on the southern slope of the Puente hills. At first glance a treeless mesa, it is now a lovely sembrosial setting, covered with young walnut, fig, olive and other fruit trees, its cottage embowered in foliage and surrounded by choice flowers.

Four years ago Mrs Strong decided to plant pampas grass between her rows of young walnut trees and procured choice stock from Mr. Flowers of Los Angeles. In 1890 she marketed 134,000 plumes in Philadelphia, at from $30 to $65 a thousand. Last year her crop amounted to nearly 300,000 plumes.—Clara Spaulding Brown in California.

Putting Down Oilcloth.

In putting down oilcloth you do not tack as you go, as with carpets. Plan out the whole room first, putting in a tack here and there to hold it all in position until ready for the final tacking. It is disagreeable to fit oilcloth, and you will need a very sharp knife to keep it in shape. A good way to keep a dull edge is to have a piece of fine emery paper, and every once in awhile lay the blade of the knife flat on it, drawing it along as if it were an oilstone. After the oilcloth is fitted put in as few tacks as possible. Matting is laid in the same way, but staples will be found better than tacks to use at the joints to prevent fraying.—Exchange.

Woman's Love of Influencing.

At last woman's real and abiding passion has been discovered. It is "to influence." Her love of influencing shows itself in a thousand ways. She likes to influence the sinner to mend his ways, the pessimist to become cheerful, the flippant to grow thoughtful. She even likes to influence rooms—to make them soft, warm, graceful, habitable. She cannot abide even in a hotel room for a day without making it bright with flowers and homelike with papers and magazines. A man would be quite content so long as it furnished him a chair and something higher than a chair for his feet to rest upon.—Chicago Tribune.

How Women Defraud Themselves.

Women defraud themselves of good looks and vigor by compelling themselves to stated movements after they come to years of maturity. If they were anywhere near healthy, they would not keep corsets on long, but soften would break out and tempt them into running up and down stairs, dancing about the house and those quick movements which shortly overcome fleshy people, but are the secret of spirits and bright looks. They need to grow a healthier skin, treating it with an emollient nightly to lessen its irritability.—Exchange.

Hygiene in the Home.

Household hygiene is by no means limited to sanitary dwellings and suitable diet and dress. It extends to the atmosphere of the home and includes the influence of the mind upon the condition of the body. It is a physiological fact that gloom or constant fault finding in the family, besides depressing the spirits, actually reacts upon the vital powers, so that mental worry is strengthened and incipient diseases are developed in the houses which lack the healthful influence of cheer and kindness.—Congregationalist.

Ideal Wife For an Author.

Mrs. Marion Crawford is described as being an ideal wife for an author. She is bright, witty and accomplished, full of intelligent sympathy and encouragement for her husband's plans. She is also a devoted mother. She is a slender, fragile looking woman, with a charming rather than a beautiful face, exceedingly mobile and delicately colored.—Chicago Tribune.

A Man Likes to Be Petted.

A man likes to be petted and made much of. He likes to find relaxation in the society of women. If they are bright, gay, light hearted and spontaneous, he will tell all his best stories, be immensely pleased with himself and inordinately with them, and will forget to think "shop" and never talk it.—Chicago News-Record.

To improve the complexion one should keep the pores of the skin open and keep away the chaps. Wash the face and ears with very hot water, then put in sufficient cold water to make it tepid for the body. The face should be washed in hot water at least three times a day.

THE BOROUGH COUNCIL.

THE REGULAR MAY MEETING HELD LAST EVENING.

Petitions Presented—Suggestions from the Mayor—The Auditing Committee's Report in Reference to Dirt Sold by the Street Commissioner—The Council to Procure a Safe—Other Business.

The regular May meeting of the Borough Council was held last evening. Present—Councilmen Connolly, Edwards, Neal and Needham. Absent—Councilmen Hummer and Howell.

The minutes of the two previous meetings were read and approved as corrected.

The petition of Warren Engine Company No. for the removal of a partition in the company's parlors was referred to the committee on Fire and Buildings, with power.

Mr. Thomas S. Stine, in a communication, stated that he owned land on Grant avenue, and that in order to reach his property it was necessary to drive across a strip of land owned by some one else, so that had been the only outlet for 23 years. Now the heirs refuse to allow their property to be used as a driveway. He requested Council to make said driveway a legal road. The matter was referred to the Corporation Counsel.

The following bills were presented, but not paid:

|---|---|
| Edison Electric Light Co. | $282.00 |
| P. Kellenberger | 10.00 |
| W. N. Pangborn | 58.25 |
| P. Sender | 2.00 |
| A. J. Wheckley | 121.80 |
| School District No. 20 | 8.00 |
| Plainfield Gas and Elec. Light Co. | 32.50 |
| L. Firving | 1.00 |
| Davis & Stevens | 17.50 |
| Collector Spencer | 27.00 |

Mayor Saunders then suggested to the Council that some action be taken in reference to the saloons of the borough closing at 11 o'clock on Saturday nights. The saloons in Plainfield, he said, close at that hour and then men flock over in the borough and carouse until Sunday morning. If it isn't stopped extra marshals will have to be appointed and an extra expense incurred on the borough. He suggested that a resolution be offered requesting the saloon keepers to close at eleven o'clock on Saturday nights.

The Mayor also said that the special marshals had no authority to make arrests until they had been sworn in by him. Not only the new marshals but all of them.

Another matter he called attention to was the need of a safe to keep borough papers, etc., in. He recommended that Council purchase one.

Mr. Needham, of the Auditing Committee, presented the following report:

To the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield.

As directed at the last meeting of the Mayor and Council, the Auditing and Finance Committee have examined into the matter of moneys received from the sale of dirt during the present year, and find there was received at various times from the sale of the same the sum of $93.65, as per accounts of Ex-Street-Commissioner Bond.

That Councilman Neal, Chairman of the Committee on Streets, who received this amount from said Bond, has paid it over, and it is now in full to the Borough Clerk.

And that the Borough ledger read account shows that the former clerk, H. H. Brokaw, received from the Chairman of the Committee on Streets, Mr. Neal, the following sums, as follows:

August 16th, 1892, $37.50.
February 18th, 1893, $12.40.

It is thus shown that the entire amount due the Borough from this source, was duly received and properly accounted for.

Committee would further state that these items although not mentioned specifically, are included in the $1,066.00 to Credit Borough road account appearing in the last Annual Borough Reports.

H. E. NEEDHAM, } Com.
GEO. F. EDWARDS, }

The report was received and filed.

Mr. Neal, of the Street Committee, reported that the work of building the street railway was progressing rapidly considering the stormy weather. He said the contractor had violated the agreement with the borough by tearing up more than 700 feet of the street at a time. He had seen the contractor and he had promised not to do so again. Mr. Neal also reported that Greenbrook road was being repaired, that Rock avenue would be attended to next, and that nothing had been done with Chatham street as only $180 of the cost had been subscribed. The work would probably cost $1,000. He recommended that the petition be referred back to the property owners for them to assume at least $300 of the cost of macadamizing the street. He also reported that crosswalks had been ordered laid at Summit avenue and Grand street, and Summit and Wendell avenues. The report was received and filed.

Mr. Connolly, of the Committee on Fire, Water and Lamps, reported that a plan would be submitted at the next meeting for a hose tower. The report was received and filed.

On motion Mr. Edwards, of the Printing and Stationery Committee, was authorized to procure tables for the newspaper representatives.

Mr. Needham presented a resolution, which was adopted, empowering the Mayor and Clerk to negotiate a loan of $1,000 to be charged to the general borough fund.

Mr. W. Whitely was appointed a special marshal.

Mr. Connolly presented a resolution empowering the Mayor and Clerk to negotiate a loan of $1,000 to be charged to the street lighting account.

The recently elected officers of Warren Engine Company were, on motion, confirmed.

Certificates of exemption were granted to Firemen J. Bettman and George Schierth, who have served seven years as members of Warren Engine Company.

The election of Mr. S. P. Joseph as a member of Warren Engine Company was confirmed.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Needham to the effect that the Mayor offer a reward of $100 for the detection and capture of the thief who broke into Mr. Frank Church's house early Thursday morning and murderously assaulted Mrs. Church. It was adopted.

On resolution the Committee on Laws and Ordinances was authorized to have ordinance drawn compelling all property owners to hereafter lay sidewalks of flagging or concrete.

Mr. Neal said the property owners had been notified to repair their walks, but in many instances it had not been done.

The bid of Smalley Bros., to furnish crushed stone to the borough at the following prices, was accepted: Dust, 62 cents; chip, 62 cents. 2 in, 88 cents; 1½ in., 62 cents.

The bond of Borough Clerk Vetterlein was referred to the Committee on Laws and Ordinances.

The Committee on Printing and Stationery was authorized to procure printed exemption papers for firemen.

On motion the petition of W. H. Pangborn and others, for the macadamizing of Chatham street was returned.

The procurement of a safe and cabinet for the use of the borough was authorized.

The reports of the Tax Collector, Borough Magistate and Clerk were read and ordered spread in full on the minutes.

Council adjourned to meet Friday, May 19th.

BREVITIES.

—To-night there will be a song service in the W. C. T. U. rooms on Broadway.

—The closing exercises of St. Mary's Parochial School will be held in the school hall on June 20th.

—Next Tuesday night at the regular meeting of Whitfield Scott Post, No. 75, the annual inspection will take place.

—A committee has been appointed by by Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. to make arrangements for the celebration of the Council's second anniversary on June 12th.

—The Italians were hard at work today replacing the Somerset street roadway before tearing up more. They were ordered to stop blockading the streets again as they have been doing.

—James Tracey, a shoemaker, who was arrested for causing a disturbance about a week ago on East Front street, was adjudged guilty by Judge Coddington this morning, and was held in the sum of $200 to keep the peace hereafter.

—A horse driven by Daniel Hibbits was hit in the head by a stone as it was being driven along Crescent avenue, Thursday afternoon. The horse's head was severely cut. The missile was thrown by a boy who afterwards scampered off.

—There was a very large audience at Stillman Music Hall last night, where the play of "The Old Homestead" was rendered, most acceptably. It is noticed that well known plays of undoubted moral tone have little trouble drawing audiences.

—Mr. Edward White, our enterprising dry goods merchant, comes out with special sale, number two, of goods from the Brown & Durrell stock. He says the goods that will be put on sale are perfect in every way, and were not wet or damaged a particle, being in original packages.

Nobody Threw the Stone.

Last Monday, while playing with a number of boys on East Second street a boy named Paoli was hit in the head with a stone, inflicting a painful injury. The father complained to the police about the matter, and this morning there was an investigation before Judge Coddington. Several of the boys who were playing with Paoli at the time of the accident, were arraigned and given a hearing. After hearing all the facts the boys were discharged, as it could not be ascertained who threw the stone that caused the accident.

Richardson Caught.

Charles Richardson of Pauwood, was stole a bicycle from in front Mr. Frank L. C. Martin's store, on Park avenue, last Saturday night, was arrested in Newark yesterday by Constable Day of Scotch Plains. Richardson was arrested for passing a worthless check for $100 on a Westfield merchant. He has been placed in the county jail at Elizabeth to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Justice Nash has sent to the Grand Jurors the papers in the matter of stealing the bicycle.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

THE ANNUAL MEETING FOR THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Reports of Committees Read.—A New Constitution and a New Set of By-Laws Adopted.—Followed by a Social Gathering.

The annual meeting of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal church for the election of officers, was held last evening in Vincent chapel.

In the absence of the president, the meeting was conducted by Mr. G. M. Rittenhouse. The meeting was opened by singing, followed by prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Then came reports of committees. After this a new constitution was presented to the League. It was adopted, together with a new set of by-laws. After a five minutes' recess, the annual election of officers took place. They were:

President, Mr. James R. Joy.
Junior Vice President, Mr. G. M. Rittenhouse.
Second Vice President, Miss Emma Brown.
Third Vice President, Miss Alice Whitney.
Fourth Vice President, Miss Jennie Schafer.
Secretary, Mr. Arthur E. Crane.
Treasurer, Mr. Clarence M. Smith.

A letter was read concerning the League convention in Newark, inviting the Plainfield League to send delegates. It was decided that delegates be sent, and that the president appoint them.

The business meeting was then adjourned, and a social gathering followed. Ice cream and cake were served.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Daniel H. Dunavan of East Third street has recovered from a siege of the grip.

Mr. John V. Beekman of East Third street left to-day for a visit with an uncle at Raritan.

Mr. F. A. Dunham has just received notice of his appointment, for the third time, as city engineer of Dunkirk, New York.

Mr. P. J. Daley and family of 47 Chatham street have removed to 78 Manning avenue, the property Mr. Daley recently purchased.

Philip Koechli of Somerset street, who was injured not long ago by slipping and falling on a picket fence over which he was trying to jump, has so far recovered as to be able to be out doors again.

The Philadelphia for May quoted at length from a recent sermon of the Rev. J. W. Richardson on "The Ideal Woman." The sermon was delivered in the Park Avenue Baptist church on Sunday, February 12th, and was published in The News the day following.

At the recent examination held by the State Medical Board in Jersey City an unusually large number of young physicians were awarded licenses to practice in New Jersey. The examination was under the direction of Dr. William Perry Watson, of Jersey City, and was thorough in every detail. Among the M. D.'s is Frank Clifford Ard of this city.

At the residence of Mr. George C. Ford, 1211 East Broad street, Elizabeth, at eight o'clock Thursday evening, Rev. Dr. Teal, of Westminster Church, united in marriage Mr. Henry Tomey, of Hampton Junction, and Miss Jennie A. Kent, of Hastings, England. The bridesmaid was Miss Ford. The best man was Mr. James M. Tomey, of Plainfield, a brother of the bridegroom. The bride, who has many friends on both sides of the Atlantic, was given away by her cousin, Mr. George C. Ford. The ceremony was witnessed by guests from Elizabeth, New York, Newark, Plainfield, Hampton Junction, Palmyra and Bergen Point.

Amusements.

"Miss Agnes Herndon's comedy drama, 'A Woman's Revenge,' the manager says, 'is as full of fun, startling situations and all sorts of good and attractive features as a mule is full of dewility. Laughter and good humor reign supreme (comes nearly everybody is loyal happy)." It will be at Music Hall, Thursday evening, May 11th.

PRIZE FIGHT AT SUMMIT.

The Principals Arrested and Held for the Grand Jury.

Alfred Rogers and Peter McHugh were arraigned before Justice Kellington at Summit, yesterday morning on a charge of prize fighting.

On Wednesday afternoon the men met in a section of Summit near the railroad bridge, known as Cedar Grove. The fight was for a purse, but was also to settle a grudge that McHugh had against Rogers for knocking out George Ross, who had boasted that he was the champion pugilist of Summit.

The ruin was falling in torrents when the men got to the designated place, and seconds and a referee were quickly appointed. Four rounds were fought before McHugh acknowledged that he was beaten, and just then, out of the mist, loomed a buggy in which was Chief of Police Kelly.

He arrested Rogers and McHugh. The latter attempted to escape, but a threat to shoot brought him to terms. The men were covered with blood. They were locked up and remained in jail until Thursday afternoon, when they were released on bail.

Yesterday the men were rewarded by Justice Kellington to await the action of the Grand Jury. It is said that many of those who witnessed the fight and who subscribed to the purse, will be indicted by the Grand Jury, as their names are known. They will be charged with abetting the affair.

Dr. Hurlbut will Remain Until Fall.

Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut has decided not to transfer his residence from Plainfield to New York until fall, after the return of his family from their Summer home at Chautauqua. His principal object in changing his residence is that his family will not be separated while his children are receiving their education. Another object is that while holding the high office he does in the Methodist General Conference it is rather expected that he will reside in New York. He has bought a beautiful residence on Ninety-First street, a few doors from Riverside Park, and in a locality where the property is bound to increase in value from the fact that within the next few years there will be expended there some thirty millions of dollars, that being the section chosen for the Episcopal Cathedral and St. Luke's Hospital, the cornerstone of which was laid today, and it is also in the vicinity of the site chosen for the new Columbia College buildings. Notwithstanding all these allurements Dr. and Mrs. Hurlbut dislike to leave Plainfield, where their family have grown from little children, and where they have formed so many lasting attachments.

Dr. Hurlbut is also deeply interested in the welfare of Plainfield Public School having been an active member of the Board of Education for many years. He does not intend resigning for some time to be in Jersey City, until the last moment the work with which he has been so long and so closely identified. He believes he may some day decide to return to Plainfield to live, after the education of his children has been completed. His departure will be greatly regretted by all the community, in which he has been such a shining light.

The Catholic Benevolent Legion.

Plainfield Council, No. 344, Catholic Benevolent Legion, has just paid two death claims of deceased members.

The first claim was that of John O'Rourke, late delivery clerk at the freight depot and was for $1,000. He was admitted into the Legion November 17, 1889, and died March 3d, 1893. He paid into the Association $34.75.

The second was that of John S. Ward of Clinton avenue for $5,000. He was admitted into the Legion February 28, 1887, and died January 8th, 1893. He had paid into the benefit fund $287.25.

This association was organized September 5th, 1881, and has paid to the widows and orphans of its deceased members the sum of $5,750,000.00.

An Injury Due to an Old Board Walk.

Mrs. Joseph Newman, Jr., of Steiner place, was injured by tripping and falling on the rotten board walk on Linden avenue, Thursday evening. One of her hands was badly cut.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

THE ARMY BILL DEFEATED.

The Vote in the Reichstag was 210 Against to 162 for it.

BERLIN, May 6, (Special.)—The Army bill was rejected in the Reichstag to day by a vote of 210 against the bill to 162 for it.

The receipt signed by the Kaiser dissolving the Reichstag was immediately promulgated, and the Reichstag is now dissolved.

The Social-Democratic members of the Reichstag displayed the wildest enthusiasm over the result. They burrahed repeatedly, following cheer with cheer. Great confusion and uproar prevailed in the House.

Public excitement is at the highest pitch in Berlin.

Found Dead in Bed.

NEW BRUNSWICK, May 6 (Special).—Mrs Robert Anderson, wife of a mason, living on Comstock street, went to bed, apparently in the best of health, last night. When her husband awoke this morning he thought she was still sleeping. Later he touched her to awaken her. She was dead. She was 33 years old.

Pat Gleason Arrested.

LONG ISLAND CITY, L. I., May 6, (Special) —At 9.30 o'clock this morning ex-Mayor P. J. Gleason was arrested.

The April Grand Jury found two indictments against ex Mayor Gleason. One was for conspiracy to defraud Long Island City and the other was auditing a fraudulent bill.

A Plainfielder in Trouble.

The Engineering News of May 4th, contains a very important and beautifully illustrated, concerning the manufacture of "Stoltman" Rock-made Cement.

In 1888, while visiting Milkware & Hudson canal near the villages of Rosendale, Ulster County, New York, the first was discovered that the dark blue limestone rock through which the canal was being excavated, possessed hydraulic properties, and upon proper calcination, would produces a powerful hydraulic cement. About two years later, or in 1890, Watson E. Lawrence built a few small kilns, opened a mill, and began the manufacture of the "Lawrence" brand of Rosendale cement at Lawrenceville, on the banks of Rondout Creek, not far from the Rondout Reservoir. The mill, which has long since been closed, was operated by water-power from the creek, and was capable of producing 100 barrels of cement per day. The growth of the company's works since the opening of the Lawrence mill has been large in proportion to the enormous growth of Rosendale cement industry in this country. The present mills of the Lawrence Cement Company produce 5,500 barrels of cement per day, or about one-third of the Rosendale cement manufactured in that county, and nearly one-fifteenth of the total amount manufactured in the United States.

Among the above facts of special interest here is that its enterprising president is a prominent and highly esteemed Plainfielder, Mr. Ernest R. Ackerman of Seventh street.

Base Ball.

In the game of ball between the Harned Academy and Leal's second team, this morning, the latter were victorious, winning by the score of five to four. The batteries were: Leal's—Hall pitcher and Taylor catcher. Harneds—Castener pitcher and Sutphen catcher.

The Arlington defeated a picked nine on the Park avenue grounds, this morning by the score of 17 to 7.

The opening game of the season is being played this afternoon on the amusement Company's grounds on Somerset street, between the Crescents and Star Athletics of Newark.

405,232 School Children in New Jersey.

According to Superintendent of School Census Matthew's figures there are now in New Jersey 405,232 children between the ages of 5 and 18. Of these 205,955 are males and 199,284 females. The number in private schools 47,157. The total number attending no school is 69,693, and of these Mr. Matthews has learned that 27 per cent. are under 8 and nearly 18 years of age. It is interesting to note that while in Union County, with its 72,000 children of school age, there are 127 unable to read, there are in Camden County, with but 52,000, 150 unable to read.

The world owes everybody a living if he works for it.

If your great desire is to be rich, then you would rather be one of several men in this country than to be president of the United States, for there are men whose salary is larger than his. One of these is Richard A. McCurdy, president of the Mutual Life Insurance company. His pay is $75,000 a year.

Texas people ought to walk chalk better than they do. In their state is a vast chalk bed nearly as large as all England, extending from the Red river to the Rio Grande. It is of a quality admirably adapted to the manufacture of artificial stone, an industry assuming large proportions. The houses of San Antonio and Austin are built of chalk blocks.

If you commit any crime short of murder, skip out of the country to some foreign land and go to for making money. Get loads of it, stay about five years, then voluntarily come back to your native land and surrender yourself for trial. That is the fashion now. You will get off easy—more, you will even be a hero for coming back and surrendering, and you so rich too.

SANDWICHES CHEAPER

Extortion at World's Fair Restaurants Has Been Stopped.

CHILLY LAKE MICHIGAN BREEZES

The Winds Are Cold and Even When the Sun Shines the Musicians Turn Up Their Collars—Exhibits Fast Being Put In Place—An Explosion In Machinery Hall

CHICAGO, May 6.—Sandwiches and such things were cheap today at the World's fair restaurants. This was because there had been a reading of the riot act at the meeting of the council of the administration. The design was to quell the spirit of extortion and robbery, which some of the restaurants in the grounds have indicated an intention to indulge in.

President Highinbotham and Director Schwab, imitating the practice of the last Caliph Harounal Raschid, took a trip in disguise through some of the places yesterday and calmly submitted to robbery by the waiters for the purpose of verifying the complaints made and securing evidence thereof. They found the complaints warranted and the practices damnable, and told the council of their experiences.

Submitted to Robbery.

The council at once passed a resolution for the benefit of these concessionaires. The resolution recites that these concessions were granted for the convenience of patrons of the fair, and that it is the duty of the fair officials to see that visitors are not imposed upon. That this object may be attained all restaurant keepers are ordered to at once formulate full and complete schedules of prices and submit them to the executive committee of the exposition for approval, and every person patronizing an exposition restaurant shall have a bill of fare furnished with the prices plainly marked. In case of an overcharge to any a statement of such overcharge to the officials will result in an immediate examination and punishment of the guilty party, it being the determination of the council that the public patronizing the fair shall not be subjected to any extortion or unreasonable or unjust demand.

The scarlet pennons and gonfanons snap sharply today, and flags of all nations flut-

ter wildly in the strong wind from the lake. Across the grounds floats music from the band stand at the Administration building, where the shivering musicians, wrapped in their overcoats, bravely wade through music designed to stir the soul of the masses who do not mass at the band stand to any appreciable extent.

There is one advantage in the chilly weather which keeps away the number of visitors, in that the work of installation and arrangements of delayed exhibits can go on untrammeled by the crowds of the curious.

Exhibitors Are Working Hard.

The mandatory order of Director Burnham, ordering that all work must be finished by May 15, has had the effect of stimulating the exhibitors to increased exertions. In the Electricity building, where the exhibits have been far from completes, work is pushed day and night. At the building an immense steam crane is in operation, conveying heavy electric motors, trucks, street cars and other exhibits to the positions assigned to them. One hundred people came down to the fair by boat, but it is a safe wager that none of them will try the same route again when there is a northeaster blowing.

The Henry syndicate boats are intended for summer excursions only, and passengers have no protection against storm and cold. Men, women and children, who were trapped into taking passage by lake to the fair had an ill time of it. To be seasick and half frozen at the same time is the depth of human misery.

A terrific explosion startled everybody in the west end of Machinery hall yesterday. A header of the big 16-inch main blew out and the escaping steam enveloped everything for 100 yards around. By the force of the explosion James Glassford, a switchman, was blown 60 feet and was so badly scalded that death is expected every moment. Two other laborers employed by the Northwestern company, were also scalded, but not fatally.

Gates Will Be Closed Tomorrow.

Jackson park and all the buildings of the World's fair will be closed to visitors tomorrow. President Highinbotham has authorized the announcement that the fair will be closed. "The orders to open the exposition on Sunday," he said, "have not been issued, and until they are the gates will not be opened on that day."

The Same Rate For Clergymen.

CHICAGO, May 6.—The Western Passenger association has decided that clergymen are not entitled to half fare on the reduced one way World's fair rates.

The Restaurateurs Will Fight.

CHICAGO, May 6.—The proprietors of the different down town hotels, restaurants and lunch rooms have refused the demand of the striking waiters.

Whole New York Block Burned.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The block on the east side of Broadway between Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth streets was completely destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at from $125,000 to $130,000. The burned block was composed of a single building, numbering from 1514 to 1526 Broadway. It was owned by Robert T. Reid, and was for many years occupied as an armory by the Seventy-first regiment.

A Stay Granted.

ALBANY, May 6.—Judge Herrick handed down a decision in the application for a stay of proceedings in The Argus case. He decided that a stay of proceedings was required because of the important legal questions involved.

A CRISIS IN GERMANY.

Speculation as to the Fate of the Army Bill.

ANXIOUS EUROPE AWAITS MONDAY.

Will the People Defeat the Young Emperor's Pet Scheme of Leading Them With an Immense Standing Army—Radicals Leave Berlin to Avoid Voting.

BERLIN, May 6.—It is not saying too much to state that next Monday the eyes and ears of all Europe will be watching and listening for the fate of the army bill.

Until late last night it was expected that a division would be reached by today. When it was announced this morning that the vote had been deferred until next week and not until Monday, taking the same route as before, going by way of Newfoundland, Baffins bay and Whale island. The trip will consume two and a half years.

Lieutenant Peary added that while in Colorado he purchased a number of prairie wolf skins for clothing and some burros, which would be utilized for transport purposes from the edge of the mountains to the inland ice, and upon reaching the ice snowshoes would be placed upon their feet for locomotion. He thinks his animals would easily survive the winter in the polar regions, and even if they did not, much service could be gained from them during the fall months.

Orders for the outfit and special items for equipment are about completed and Lieutenant Peary is busily engaged in looking after minor details.

PREPARING TO KILL HARRIS.

The Doomed Man's Mother Will Stay Near Until the End.

SING SING, May 6.—Preparations are being made today for the electrocution of Carlyle Harris. The day has not yet been fixed, and it is probable that the wife murderer will be allowed to live the death ebolt Monday, as was expected.

Mrs. Harris, mother of the condemned man, has engaged board here and will probably remain until after the execution. She remained with her son until 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The meeting between Harris and his mother, according to Mr. Connaughton, was affectionate, but devoid of such demonstration as might be expected under the circumstances.

Dr. Irvin, the prison physician, says everything that is sent to Harris' cell will be thoroughly tested so that Harris will have no chance to commit suicide as he has often threatened to do. It is the opinion of the prison officials that Harris will meet his fate bravely. State Electrician Davis has been here.

Chinamen Brought In by Women.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The number of Chinamen who registered yesterday did not exceed 150. About one-third of the Chinamen still in jail were dressed in American clothing and were in many instances accompanied by women, presumably Sunday school teachers. No arrests will be made until the case now before the supreme court as to the constitutionality of the law is decided.

The Harvard-Princeton Ball Game.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 6.—The interest in the Princeton-Harvard baseball game to be played here today is very great. The place is full of Harvard boys and crowds are going to the grounds. The home team has been somewhat restricted in practice, owing to the recent inclement weather, but their past work has been such as to inspire confidence, especially in the field.

Montreal Had a Panic Moment.

MONTREAL, May 6.—Intense excitement was caused on the Stock Exchange here by the break in New York. Little business was done. Montreal speculators have lost more than $1,000,000 in the break, and it was feared at one time during the day the New York panic would cause a bad break in local stocks, but fortunately this was averted.

Columbia Freshmen Won.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The annual regatta for the class championships of Columbia college and the class championship cup took place over the usual course on the Harlem river. The freshmen crew at once forged ahead, and easily retained the lead until the finish, beating the junior crew by three-quarters of a length of clear water.

Fire Routed the Audience.

DETROIT, May 6.—At the Detroit Opera house last night the audience was startled by a cry of fire, and everybody made a rush for the doors. The flames were on the fourth floor, among the offices. The fire was put out after a short fight and the play progressed.

Glue Factory May Start Up.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The attorneys of the Brooklyn authorities to shut up the Peter Cooper glue factory as a nuisance resulted in a ruling by Chief Judge Clement of the Brooklyn City court, allowing the factory to resume operations temporarily.

His Wife Saw Him Drown.

LAWRENCE, Mass., May 6.—George Cooper, while collecting driftwood in the Merrimac river, was swept over the Essex dam by the high flood and drowned. His wife witnessed the accident from the shore.

Connecticut on Annexation.

HARTFORD, May 6.—In the senate a resolution presented early in the session favoring the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands by the United States was indefinitely postponed by a unanimous vote.

Mayor Gilroy to Give Chess Prizes.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The mayor of this city has expressed his willingness to become a patron of the Columbian Chess congress. The mayor's donation to the prize fund will finally be settled.

Struck by a British Eagle.

HACKENSACK, N. J., May 6.—Colonel James S. Wannamaker of Mahwah was struck by an Erie switch engine on the Suffern street crossing and instantly killed. He was 85 years old.

Cuba Still Uneasy.

HAVANA, May 6.—Advices from all parts of the island, and more particularly from the Oriental province, the scene of the recent uprising, show that tranquility prevails everywhere.

New England Streams Still Rising.

BOSTON, May 6.—Reports of high water in the rivers of New England still come in, but little additional damage is reported.

To Wipe Out Endowment Orders.

BOSTON, May 6.—The senate passed, to be enacted, the bill to wipe out endowment orders.

PEARY STARTS IN JUNE.

The Explorer Expects to Be In the Arctic Two and a Half Years.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Lieutenant Peary, the explorer, has been in Washington for the past few days suffering from a severe cold contracted while lecturing. He will leave today for St. Johns, N. F., to make additional arrangements for his coming expedition to the Polar seas. In speaking of the trip, Lieutenant Peary said that there would be 16 in the party accompanying him, and the start would be made some time between the 15th and 20th of June next, taking the same route as before, going by way of Newfoundland, Baffins bay and Whale island. The trip will consume two and a half years.

LIEUTENANT PEARY.

Lieutenant Peary added that while in Colorado he purchased a number of prairie wolf skins for clothing and some burros, which would be utilized for transport purposes from the edge of the mountains to the inland ice, and upon reaching the ice snowshoes would be placed upon their feet for locomotion. He thinks his animals would easily survive the winter in the polar regions, and even if they did not, much service could be gained from them during the fall months.

Orders for the outfit and special items for equipment are about completed and Lieutenant Peary is busily engaged in looking after minor details.

A CONVICT'S STARTLING STORY.

Tells of Conspirators Who Have Committed 248 Murders.

DENISON, Tex., May 6.—An application for pardon has been made to Governor Hogg by Charles Luttrell, who is to hang May 17 for murder.

Luttrell has made a startling statement in regard to the terrible butchery of persons here has existed, which will probably result in the commutation of sentence to life imprisonment. It is alleged that Luttrell confessed that since 1878 James Brown, John Carlisle and friends had killed 248 men in order to destroy testimony against them in murder cases. In 1878 James Brown killed a stableman, John Carlisle was indicted to kill another one named Sparks, and Tom Shannon, their latest victim, was an eyewitness to both murders. There were many other eyewitnesses, and Brown and Carlisle being wealthy, started in to kill evidence against them, and Luttrell's confession is but a glimpse of the awful reality of the unparalleled series of crimes that cost 248 men their lives and the perpetrators millions of dollars.

THE DEACON ON HIS FEET.

Report That the Havermeyers Are to Help C. V. White Continue.

NEW YORK, May 6.—There was a much better feeling in Wall street when the Stock exchange opened its doors this morning, and the struggle was taken up where it was left off yesterday. The recovery of the market was certain.

One reason for this was the announcement of "Deacon" White that he expected to be able to resume payments today. It is currently stated that the Havermeyers, the wealthy sugar men, have put up enough ($1,000,000, it is said) to place Mr. White on his feet again. His failure, it is reported, are in stocks of the Manhattan Elevated stocks. He carried a large amount of sugar privileges on, which the losses are heavy.

Poisoned, Then Shot Her Children.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Mrs. Fannie Korn of 101 West Sixty-eighth street gave poison to her children, Edwin, 12 years old, and Florence, 6 years old, then shot them and afterward shot herself. Mrs. Korn has been suffering from a nervous trouble, which her physician said was incurable. At lunch she gave them a mixture made from the heads of matches and flour paste. She went into an adjoining room, and getting a revolver fired at Edwin. The ball struck him in the left leg, and he ran screaming from the house. She then shot Florence in the side, just below the heart, and taking the wounded girl in her arms sat down in a chair and shot herself twice in the left side. Florence died, but the mother and son will probably recover.

Case of the Wesleyan Hazers.

DELAWARE, O., May 6.—The case of the Ohio Wesleyan university hazers is settled and withdrawn from the courts. The parties met and signed a written contract, according to the terms of which the juniors agree to drop all legal proceedings, both criminal and civil, and the hazers agree to make good all the expenses which have been incurred by them, including physician's and attorney's bills and incidentals. The juniors must make a public retraction of the statements made in their published reply to the faculty.

Colonel McAlpin Declines.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Edward A. McAlpin has said he was not a candidate for the presidency of the Republican National League. His choice, he said, was W. W. They, president of the Illinois State League. Colonel McAlpin, Secretary Job E. Hedges and the other delegates from New York city and Brooklyn will leave the Grand Central depot in a special car Monday afternoon. Delegates in various parts of the state will be picked up en route.

Mississippi Still Rising.

ST. PAUL, May 6.—Contrary to the prediction of the signal service officers the Mississippi river has been steadily rising and lacks but an inch of 15 feet. The west side of the river at St. Paul is pretty well drowned out. A relief corps is doing all it can for the relief of indigent families in the submerged districts.

Few Chicago Chinese Register.

CHICAGO, May 6.—Only 930 out of the 1,800 Chinese laborers resident in Chicago have registered under the Geary law. Collector Mamer will remain passive so far as the arrest and imprisonment of the Chinese who have not registered are concerned pending the test case likely to be made in New York.

Getting the Chair Ready.

AUBURN, N. Y., May 6.—State Electrician Davis is here testing the dynamos and making ready for the electrocution of John Pinkham, the Buffalo murderer, who is to die in the chair next week. The wife and three children of the condemned man paid him a parting visit. The wife is penniless.

Exterminated the Bandits.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 6.—In the state of Chihahua the government troops have virtually exterminated a band of 84 bandits. The bandits were surrounded in a building, where they fought the soldiers with great desperation, killing two of the officers and several of the men.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Secretary Charles Reichers of the United Garment Workers' union said that the cutters would go out on another strike unless the manufacturers carry out the provisions of the agreement which they signed.

RACE OF OCEAN FLYERS

The New Campania and the Paris Are Off.

BOTH SHIPS ARE RECORD BREAKERS

The Paris Flys the Stars and Stripes and the Campania the Cross of St. George. What They Have Done Before—They Sailed With Crowded Staterooms.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Promptly at sailing time this morning the two representative flyers of the English and the American passenger fleets left their piers in the North river and turned their noses seaward for what promises to be one of the greatest races in the Atlantic's history.

The Paris, the pride of the American line, with her unequaled records of 5 days, 14 hours and 24 minutes from Queenstown to

THE PARIS.

New York, and 5 days, 19 hours and 57 minutes from New York to Queenstown, both made last year, and the Campania, the pride of every Britisher who believes that "Britannia rules the waves," with her unequaled maiden record of 6 days, 8 hours and 34 minutes, will set out on an earnest battle for the proud title of Queen of the Seas.

British versus Yankee.

They will both take the southerly course, although the Paris is bound for Southampton and the Campania for Queenstown, and they will follow the same lane for nearly 2,000 miles, and if, as shipping men expect, they will keep in sight of each other much of the way, their passengers will have no reason to complain of ennui. The race will be an excellent thing for the London and Paris shopkeepers, for there will be hats and gloves and candies and flowers bet without limit on the result.

They Deny It, of Course.

Both emphatically declare that they have no idea of racing, but that is a statement too strong for human nature to carry out, and when one of the sleek and shining passenger yachts forges ahead it is safe to say that the chief engineer o' the other will be ordered to "whoop her up a bit."

The time made by the rivals will have to be figured in proportion, as the Paris will have to travel 3,100 miles to the Campania's 2,800, but the records of the Paris were all made over the Queenstown line, and they will afford the easiest means of comparison.

Both ships took out a great list of passengers, and the excitement of the race is guaranteed to be a cure of seasickness.

There is a vast difference in the size of the rival vessels, although the lines of both are so fine that it is only when they are lying at their docks that a proper idea of their bulk can be gained. The Paris is 580 feet in length, 63½ feet beam, 39 feet deep and has a tonnage of 10,800. Her engines are 19,000 horse power.

The Campania is 620 feet in length, 65½ feet beam, 43 feet deep and has a tonnage of 12,500. Her engines are 30,000 horse power.

There is little to choose between them in the matter of comfort and decoration, although the Campania has a few advanced ideas, especially in the way of staterooms en suite.

Another Reservoir Threatens.

LIMA, O., May 6.—The Laramie reservoir, covering about 6,000 acres of ground and located at the intersection of Shelby and Mercer counties, threatens to burst its banks.

A Cyclone In Ohio.

WILMINGTON, O., May 6.—A cyclone of terrific proportions struck this city. Several persons were injured, but no deaths resulted.

STREETS FULL OF WATER.

Boats and Rafts Are Now Used In Northampton.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 6.—The Connecticut river is higher than it has been for nine years. There are 4,000 acres of meadow land under water. The road to Hadley is impassable, where the last to travel, a milkman, narrowly escaped being washed away by a heavy washout near the end of the bridge.

A whole settlement is under water at the foot of Williams street and Lower Pleasant street, the settlement including 20 or 30 families. The farmer who supplies these families with milk rowed from his cowshed to the inundated settlement, and delivered his milk from his boat. Men have constructed rude crafts from the great mass of floating driftwood and are paddling around.

A Religious Boycott.

BOSTON, May 6.—Regarding the Chicago dispatch stating that religious bodies intend to boycott the World's fair if it is opened to the public Sundays Editor Wells of The Golden Rule, the organ of the Christian Endeavor societies, says that fully 1,000,000 members of that organization have signed pledges not to patronize the fair if it is opened on Sunday. Rev. Charles Parkhurst, D. D., editor of Zion's Herald, says that the religious papers will protest against the fair being authorized if it is opened on Sunday. The Epworth League will refuse its patronage.

Steel Company In Good Shape.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—The leading stockholders of the Pennsylvania Steel company met here for the purpose of examining the assets of the embarrassed corporation, and they were found to be in such shape as to make the outlook favorable. A plan providing for the floating debt will be formed and presented at a general meeting of the stockholders.

He Not Fear the Strike.

PITTSBURG, May 6.—The report that the striking switchmen employed by the Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railroad at Columbus will endeavor to tie up the Pittsburg division unless their demands are complied with, gives the officials of the road in Pittsburg no uneasiness. The officials state that they do not fear the strike.

A Suicide's Last Words.

PORTLAND, Me., May 6.—"I shall know the great secret before long," was apparently the last thought and almost the last words of L. W. Lovell of Boston, who committed suicide by jumping overboard from the Boston steamer Tremont of the Isle of Shoals. Lovell was an employee at the Boston custom house.

Spain Will Conciliate Cubans.

MADRID, May 6.—The repression of the Cuban rebellion has been followed by the announcement that the government will take steps to render the troops in Cuba more efficient and to strengthen the consular administrative reforms are contemplated which will be likely to conciliate the Cubans.

There Was No Display.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Fifty thousand people or more gathered on the slopes of Riverside park last evening, and came away thoroughly disappointed. They waited four hours for the grand display of searchlights and fireworks which had been promised by the big searchlight lying in the stream, but no such display took place.

The Infanta at Havana.

HAVANA, May 6.—The Infanta Eulalia and the other members of the royal party who are to visit the United States have arrived at Porto Rico and will arrive in Havana in a few days. They will spend some time here, probably a week, and will then proceed for New York on a Spanish warship.

Made a Will Then Committed Suicide.

DENISON, Tex., May 6.—Peter Haines, proprietor of the Gulf house, asked an attorney at the hotel to write his will, which was done. Haines then drew a 6-shooter and blew his brains out. His blood saturated the legal document until it was barely readable.

The Siamese Deny It.

PARIS, May 6.—The Siamese legation in this city denies the truth of the reports in The Matin concerning warlike preparations on the Anam frontier, and states that the difficulty between France and Siam is near an amicable adjustment.

Sicilians Panic Stricken.

ROME, May 6.—Repeated earthquakes have been felt throughout eastern Sicily in the last 24 hours. The inhabitants are panic stricken and have deserted many of the villages. Mount Etna shows signs of eruption.

No Ground For It.

A professor, who used to teach the grandfathers of the present generation of students, objected to the pronunciation of "second" as if it were spelled "secund," and his students used to taunt for chances to make him explain his objections. One day he stopped a student who was reading to the class and said, "How do you pronounce that word?" "Wound, sir." The professor looked ugly and replied, "I have never found any ground for giving it that sound. Go on."—Argonaut.

FASHIONABLE CAPES.

They Are All the Rage, and the Ladies Must Have Them.

If you wish to be fashionable this season, you must wear capes. Not one cape, but just as many as the contents of your pocketbook will allow. All your street dresses should have capes to match.

You should wear over your dainty cambric ball dress a cape of sheer muslin loaded with ruffles of embroidery. For church wear you should have a cape of dark velvet and black lace.

ELEVATION IN COLOR.

To throw over your shoulders after the hop at the summer hotel you should have a cape of some delicately tinted velvet embroidered in pearls and finished with frills of old lace.

The cape shown in the illustration is cut in the latest mode. There are three graduated capes and a high medici collar. The first cape is of black lace, which is arranged in plaits and has a spreading tendency. This cape just covers the shoulders. Below it is a plaited cape of eminence velvet, with the edge elaborately embroidered in pearls of pink and violet tints. The last frill of the cape is a deep one of black lace. The collar is of eminence velvet and embroidered in pearls and finished with a ruching of the lace.

MINERAL WOOL OR ASBESTUS.

Its Employment as a Preventive Against Fire.

The accompanying illustration, prepared from the Industrial World, represents mineral wool or asbestus as used between floors to prevent the rapid spread of fire.

This mineral wool is put up in bags containing 4 cubic feet, weighing but 40 pounds, giving 300 cubic or 2,400 surface feet an inch thick to a ton. This wool is, according to the authority quoted, the best material in use for deadening of sound, insulation of heat and cold, destruction to all kinds of vermin and insects, and being absolutely noncombustible it is a good preventive against fire. It is also furnished in sections for covering steam pipes with a view to preventing radiation.

ASBESTUS BETWEEN FLOORS.

Electricity In Domestic Use.

The advantages of electric over any other kind of lighting in domestic use are manifold. There is less danger from fire. It is almost impossible that anything can be ignited by an ordinary electric lamp. The instant the glass is broken the fine filament of carbon is consumed, and the light is extinguished. The amount of heat given out compared with that of gas is infinitesimal. There is not the slightest deterioration of the air, no carbonic acid or other gas being produced while the light is in action. From the thinness of the wire carrying the current the light is much more movable than is the case with gas, and it can be placed with perfect safety near the most inflammable materials—paper, lace, fabrics, etc. This alone is an immense advantage, as we have in almost all cases in which gas is used in domestic life to produce a much greater amount of light than is required in consequence of the distance of the lamp from the book or work or object to be illuminated.

Natural Bridge of Chalcedony.

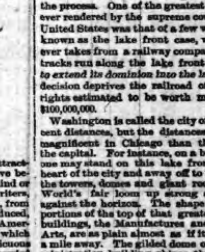
A mining expert sent to investigate some Arizona property reports the finding of a remarkable natural bridge formed by a tree of agatized wood spanning a canyon 45 feet in width. The tree has at some remote time fallen, when it became imbedded in the side of some great inland sea or mighty water overflow. The silt became in time sandstone, and the wood gradually passed through the stages of mineralization until it is now a solid tree of solid agate. In after years water washed and ate away the sandstone until a canyon 45 feet in width has been formed, the flinty-like substance of the agatized wood having resisted the erosion of the water flow. As described in The Jewelers' Circular the trunk varies in size from 4 to 8 feet in diameter. Where the bark has been broken and torn away the characteristic colors or jasper and agate are seen. To the naked eye the wood is beautiful.

Massachusetts' Exhibit.

Massachusetts will exhibit at the World's fair corundum and magnesia, corundum crystals, sapphires and rubies, sapphires, a fine collection of quartz, including rock crystal, smoky, drusy, milky rose, double terminated and yellow—amethyst, chalcedony, jasper, agate, carnelian and jasper, beryl in crystals, in granite and with garnets; amazon stone, moonstone and tourmaline and garnets in great variety.

A Distinctively American Plant.

The partridge berry is a distinctively American plant and is an important element in American forest scenery. It is an inhabitant of almost every portion of the United States east of the Mississippi river extending from its extreme northern to its southern limit, and it is rare that any intelligent writer gives details of the attractive vegetation of any part which interests him without including the Mitchella repens in the list of species found there.



THE PARTRIDGE BERRY.

It is remarkable that a plant so attractive in so many ways should not have become more attached to the public mind or received more attention from polite writers, but Thomas Meehan, in his monthly, from which the cut here given is reproduced, says that he can recall no instance in American poetry or general literature in which the partridge berry plays a conspicuous part. The discovery of the white berried form was first made by Miss Kate Fisher Kurtz of York, Pa., and proved a source of great delight when communicated to Professor Asa Gray.

Rafinesque says the berries are used in New England as tea to cure dropsy and gout, and in North Carolina are a popular remedy in diarrhea and dysentery.

Atmospheric Resistance to Trains.

A good deal has been said of the advantages of avoiding atmospheric train resistance as a help to speed of trains. A prow pointed locomotive and the extension vestibules of cars sides and top it is expected will lessen friction and permit greater speed with same expenditure of power. The comments on this suggestion are mostly favorable, according to American Manufacturer.

The manufacture of an instrument for writing telegraphy is said to have already commenced in England.

How People Will Travel from Chicago to the Fair.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND AN HOUR.

This Is the Extraordinary Capacity Provided by the Surface, Elevated and Cable Lines and the Steamships — Coaching Lines Also — Fare from a Nickel to a Dollar.

WORLD'S FAIR, May 6.—[Special.]—Not the least interesting feature of the great exposition is the manner in which passengers are carried to it from the greater city. The fair, most readers will remember, is in Jackson park, and the distance from the central part of Chicago proper to the central gate of the exposition grounds is about eight miles. The fair is within the city, and Chicago intends for miles beyond the fair grounds, as well as miles and miles in every other direction except to the east, and it can't extend very far in that direction because there is the lake. Even the lake does not serve wholly to prevent the growth of this bounding metropolis. On the north side of town several syndicates are filling in large tracts of ground, reclaiming it from the lake, and amassing fortunes by the process. One of the greatest decisions ever rendered by the supreme court of the United States was that of a few weeks ago known as the lake front case, which forever takes from a railway company whose tracks run along the lake front the right to extend its dominion into the lake. This decision deprives the railroad of riparian rights estimated to be worth more than $100,000,000.

Washington is called the city of magnificent distances, but the distances are more magnificent in Chicago than they are at the capital. For instance, on a bright day one may stand on this lake front in the park and look away off to the north and the towers, domes and giant roofs of the World's fair loom up strong and clear against the horizon. The shape and proportions of the top of that greatest of all buildings, the Manufactures and Liberal Arts, are as plain almost as if it were but a stone's throw off. The gilded dome of the Administration building shines through all the smoke and steam of industrial Chicago. A look at this little lake front park shows at a glance what a serious blunder the projectors of the fair escaped when they decided to go out where there was more room for their site. After spending a couple of millions of dollars in reclaiming land from the lake, and in the construction of great piers, they would have found their site just about one-third large enough for the purpose. A thousand acres of Jackson and Washington parks and Midway plaisance, a pretty stretch of ground reaching from park to park, are now in use, and none too much space at that. One of the arguments used against the fair was that no way could be found to take the people out to it fast enough, or to bring them back.

Transportation of the hundreds of thousands of visitors to and from the park was a problem, it is true, but like all the other problems in connection with this vast enterprise it appears to have been satisfactorily solved. According to the figures given out by the managers of the various transportation lines there will be sufficient capacity of cars, steamers, etc., to take about 1,000,000 persons to the fair in one hour. If anything like this capacity be developed in actual service there will be no cause for complaint. The greatest day the fair is to have during the summer is not likely to show more than 400,000 visitors. Even if this big day should reach the enormous total of 1,000,000 it is understood that is more than ever attended any fair in one day—there will be transportation facilities for all of them. It must be remembered that while the demands of the passenger travel are almost up to the capacity of the Chicago passenger lines, the World's fair traffic to and from the city comes heaviest in a direction opposite to that of the heavy city travel. In the morning, when Chicagoans are coming to their business down town the crowds are travelling in the other direction, and so again in the afternoon and evening. While the facilities appear to be excellent between the principal central part of the city and the fair grounds the most trouble is likely to appear on the north and west sides, where no additional facilities have been provided, and where the World's fair travel and the regular travel will run in parallel both of time and direction.

There are four principal routes to the World's fair from the city. These are the trains on the Illinois Central railway, the elevated road, the cable line and the steamships. First in importance, perhaps, is the Illinois Central, which occupies the lake front. Its special World's fair trains run every two minutes, and carry passengers from the foot of Van Buren street, which is about the center of the downtown district, to the exposition in fifteen minutes. The fare is 10 cents each way, and the trains do not stop between the city and the exposition. Passengers are handed as fast stations in the vicinity of the fair grounds, all without the enclosure but convenient to the gates. The cars used for this special service are of rather novel construction. They have been nicknamed "the cattle cars," because they are cars which after the World's fair is over will be converted into vehicles for the transportation of livestock. There are no platforms at the end of the coaches, and the doors for entrance and egress are at the sides. In this respect they resemble a summer street car, but the cars used on the Coney Island and other dummy suburban railroads in the east. The seats run cross-wise of the cars, and each coach will accommodate ninety-six passengers. A step like that on an English passenger coach runs along either side. A guard sits on the roof of each of these cars, and by a lever opens or closes as from railing which serves to protect passengers from the danger of falling out while the train is in motion.

Chicago has but one elevated railroad, and this is called the Alley line, from the fact that its route in the business district ext

IN FAVOR OF EX-FREEHOLDER JAMES T. PIERSON.

Against the Central Railroad—A Most Remarkable Case Throughout - The Company Punished for the Carelessness of Outsiders

A year or so ago at Chester, Morris Co., in this State, two men concluded that they could profitably get the ore from an old iron mine which had been deserted years before as unprofitable.

They leased the mine, which was situated alongside a track of the High-Bridge branch of the New Jersey Central Railroad. On the opposite side of the track was a stream of water in which ore was washed free of sand. The sand being lighter would under the force of the water be floated away, leaving the ore clean and ready for market.

The ore was conveyed to the stream in wheelbarrows. A plank was placed across the track to get the wheelbarrow over the rails from one side of the track to the other, and when the ore was cleaned it was wheeled back again ready for shipment. The plank was removed when a train was approaching, but one day the men neglected to take this precaution and the plank derailed a locomotive and baggage car.

There was only one passenger on the car, ex-Freeholder James T. Pierson of Westfield. He had been thrown out of his seat, but, except for what he considered a slight strain, he did not think he had been injured until he got home. He had his wife apply a lotion to his foot. which seemed to have been wrenched and twisted, and supposed he would be entirely recovered so as to attend to business the next day.

Next day, however, he was not able to leave his bed, and the following day he grew worse.

Then he called in his physician, who tried to cure him without success. A second physician was called, and after consultation it was decided that the accident had caused a terrible disease known as Myelitis. The name is derived from Myelos, a Latin word meaning marrow, and denotes inflammation of the spinal cord and its membranes, as the first stage, and the inflammation of the brain substance as the second stage.

The disease in its chronic form begins with a little uneasiness in the spine, somewhat disordered sensations in the extremities, and unusual fatigue after any slight exertion. After a short time paralytic symptoms appear, and slowly increase. The gait becomes uncertain and tottering, and eventually the limbs fail to support the body.

The paralysis finally attacks the bladder and rectum and makes them powerless to discharge their functions, except involuntarily. Death occurs at last by suit of exhaustion, or of asphyxia, if the paralysis involves the chest.

The common causes of the disease are falls, blows, strains from over-exertion, intemperate habits, and excesses generally.

Mr. Pierson, when he discovered how seriously he had been injured, sued the railroad company for $50,000 damages.

This is the case which occupied the attention of the court at Elizabeth last week, and resulted in the jury, after twenty-four hours' deliberation, bringing in a verdict for $24,000 in favor of the employe, and that the company was not aware of the obstruction.

It was also the verdict, that the company's employes had allowed the plank to be placed across the track, and that all evidence had not forbid its being placed there; that the company's trackmasters had seen it there and had not caused its removal or in any way objected to it; that the plaintiff's injuries had been taken across the track back and forth, 130 times, and that locomotives sometimes stopped on the track to wait until the plank was removed.

It so happened that the locomotive which was derailed was running backwards, so that the engineer could not see the obstruction.

Had Mr. Pierson been killed outright only $5,000 could have been recovered.

It is uncertain how long he will live, but while he lives he must have both a physician and a nurse, the latter constantly.

He is fifty-seven years old, and was a man of robust health, who but for the accident might live for many years. His books were submitted to show that he had been, at the time of the accident, earning from his business about $6,000 per year, so that on a reasonable calculation of life he could have earned within six or seven years the amount of the money asked in damages.

The jury are said to have taken all these points into consideration. They, it seems, all agreed at the outset that the company was responsible because their employes allowed the plank to be placed on the track at all. The difficulty was to decide upon the amount of the damages. some, it is said, favoring an award of $5,000, others considering that, in view of the man's agony at seeing himself dying in sections and by degrees, favoring an award of $40,000. The more conservative considered $24,000 would be a fair figure, and had, it seems, determined to hold out until the two extremes came round, as they eventually did.

It is not the highest award on record. There was a case at New Brunswick against the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., where the award was some $50,000 and the case of William S. Albertí, a former Plainfielder, where the award was some $25,000.

But it is probably the first case where a railroad company has been mulcted so severely for contributory negligence, of which it undoubtedly was that of the officers of the railroad knew nothing about.

A Lady Cyclist Injured.

Saturday afternoon, a sister-in-law of Mr. Richard Stevens, of Fifth street and Sycamore avenue, was severely injured by falling from a safety bicycle, but even this city and Scotch Plains. The wheel struck a stone, throwing the rider, and causing her to fall face downward on the hard road-bed. Her face and hands were severely bruised and scratched.

No More Use for Flagmen.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company ran its first west bound train over the elevated trestle in Elizabeth to-day. The tracks now at grade were all abandoned.

This will do away with the work of twenty flagmen who have guarded the street crossings. All Pennsylvania trains will now run on the elevation.

—Summons was issued this morning by Justice Nash, in the civil suit of Westfield vs. Union Water Company, in tort, for $500. The papers are returnable on Monday, May 15.

THREW ITS RIDER AND DIED.

Miss Streuli's Fortunate Escape from Injury Saturday.

A party of young people started for a horse back ride late Saturday afternoon, among them being Miss Streuli of Hill side avenue. As they were galloping along Park avenue near the Albion, the the horse ridden by Miss Streuli suddenly began to act queer and finally stopped and fell on its knees, throwing its rider to the ground. The horse jumped up again and then fell down all the way.

Edward Terry, who was driving past, saw that something was wrong with the horse, so he stopped his horse and ran and caught the fallen animal by the bridle as it again arose to its feet.

Word was sent to Mr. George Conover of North avenue, to whom the animal belonged, but before he got there the horse had again laid down and was dead.

Miss Streuli went to Dr. Endicott's office, but she was more frightened than hurt, as the doctor says she was un injured.

It was fortunate for the young lady that the horse first fell on its knees before falling all the way down, as she might have been seriously injured had she fallen with animal.

It is not known positively what was the matter with the animal. Some say it had the blind staggers, while others claim that death was caused by heart disease.

PERSONAL.

Freeholder Andrew Vanderbeek of Second place is at Atlantic City for a few days.

Marshal Pangborn is now a proud grandfather, and his son, William E., is a happy father. It's a boy, and was born last night.

The First Baptist church was crowded with people last night to hear the very able and interesting lecture by the Rev. Halsey Moore, D. D., on the Home Missionary Society.

Miss Stella VanMiddlesworth of Elizabeth, and James Carr of the church of Disciples, First Church of Christ, New York, were guests of Mr and Mrs H. VanMiddlesworth of Elmwood place yesterday.

Lecture To-morrow at All Souls' Church.

The next lecture in the afternoon course at All Souls' Church will be given by Mrs. Alice A. Chadwick to-morrow at four p. m., on "The Kindergarten: What is It?" Mrs. Chadwick is a member of the Froebel Society connected with Pratt Institute, Brooklyn. Half an hour before the lecture there will be an exhibition of the kindergarten connected with Misses Scribner and Newton's school.

—Mrs. Hall's lecture will be May 24th.

IN AID OF MANUAL TRAINING.

"Barbara" and "Second Thought" to be Given at the Casino.

Two delightful plays are in progress, to be given next Thursday evening, in the Casino, by some of our best amateurs. They will be assisted by three amateur entertainers, Messrs. Daly, Blake and Wendell, from New York, well known to Plainfield audiences, who will furnish some very amusing specialties between the plays. The entertainment is under the direction of Mrs. J. Parker Mason, and promises to be an unusually enjoyable one. The performance will begin with the dainty little comedietta of "Barbara," made famous by Rose Coxen, and considered by her as one of her best. The following is the cast:

Barbara.....Mrs. J. Parker Mason
Lalie.....Mrs. Wm. L. Saunders
Derek.....Mr. Wm. H. Mason
Lawyer Finsioum.....Mr. Wm. H. Cock

The closing play is the amusing farce, entitled "Second Thought," which will, without doubt, send the audience home in very good humor. It will be cast as follows:

Sir Herbert Marryn..Mr. Wm. L. Pelltier
Hon Helen Clireden..Mrs. Wm. L. Saunders
The Widow Grenier.Mr. S. Layton
.....Mrs. J. Parker Mason

As the proceeds are for the manual training fund of the Boys' Club, a large attendance is already assured.

ANOTHER FIRE AT SCOTCH PLAINS.

John Collins' Barn Partly Burned Saturday Night.

There was another mysterious fire at Scotch Plains Saturday night. At 9.30 o'clock the roof of Mr. John Collins' barn, on Mountain avenue, was discovered to be on fire, by James Hunter, who quickly gave the alarm. The hand engine and the chemical engine companies responded and did good service.

The upper half of the barn, together with a quantity of hay and feed were destroyed. The good work of the firemen saved the lower portion of the building.

The origin of the fire is a mystery.

Mr. Collins kept a blood hound in the building nights and the coachman slept there. The coachman was absent when the fire broke out.

BREVITIES.

—The "Y's" will hold their last business meeting of the year on Wednesday, May 10 at four o'clock, the meeting having been postponed last week. Annual reports will be read and important business transacted, and it is hoped the attendance will be large.

—The Westfield Town Committee will meet a representative of the Elizabeth and Plainfield Electric Railway Company at the town rooms on the evening of May 26, and will listen to objections, if any are made, to the passage of the electric road through that place.

—The firm of W. L. Patton & Co., stock brokers, of New York, failed Friday. Mr. W. L. Patton lives on East Ninth street, this city. The company of the firm is Henry Saltenstall of Elizabeth, and the firm was organized on April 1, 1892. Mr. Patton has been a member of the Stock Exchange since 1880. The firm made an assignment to Barclay E. V. McCarty, 54 Wall street, without preference. Mr. Patton was originally of the firm of Van Deventer & Patton, which succeeded Ludlow, Patton & Co. in 1873. Ludlow was an uncle of W. L. Patton. Mr. and Mrs. Patton and Mr. Saltenstall have the warm sympathy of a large circle of friends.

THE SEASON OF 1893.

ONCE AGAIN THE BASE BALL YEAR HAS OPENED.

And Once Again the Crescents Start the Year with a Victory—The New Players Already Becoming Popular—Score Seven to Four.

The base ball season in this city opened Saturday with a game between the Crescents and the Star Athletics of Newark.

The attendance, considering the chilly weather and the fact that it was the first game of the year, was very good. The audience consisted entirely of the most enthusiastic of the Crescents' followers, who do not mind a little wind so long as their favorites put up as good a game as they are capable of doing.

If the first game is any criterion the Crescents will need another banner at the end of the season, bearing the words "Champions for 1893." The re-arranged Crescents constitute a team that is a credit to Manager Keller, and shows that he has used good judgement in his selection of ball players that will uphold the well-merited fame of the Crescents of old.

The new men played well and their work, both in the field and at the bat, was all that could be desired even by the most confirmed base ball fanatic.

Lee Smith, who takes Bonner's place at short stop, surprised and pleased the Bonnerites by his excellent work. He is a short, quick ball team and plays with a snap and vigor that lovers of the game like to see. He made some difficult stops of hot grounders. His throwing to first base is accurate and quick. In the third inning he distinguished himself with Plainfielders by making a running catch of a fly ball way out in left field.

McIndoe is too well-known here to need any introduction, suffice it to say that he is the same old "Mac" and plays ball all the time. He was given two chances in the field and accepted both, while at the bat he showed himself to be in good trim.

Heckmen, the new third baseman of Fritz, the new right fielder and Romer, the new second baseman, all played errorless games with the exception of Romer who made one. The former made a three-bagger and they all did good work at the bat.

Sneeden pitched in fine trim, but he has not yet rid himself of his one fault last year—pitching wild at the start. In the first inning he gave three men their bases on balls. Then, as usual, he settled down and twirled in fine shape, and only gave one man his base on balls during the remainder of the game.

The Crescents scored one run in the second inning, three in the third, one in the fourth, and two in the fifth, making a total of seven. The visitors made one run in the sixth inning and one in the ninth, total four.

The following is the score:

Notes of the Game.

Bofford made the first out.

Smith was the first player to get his base on balls.

The first run of the season was made by Fritz.

Jones tallied one run and made two two-baggers.

Bradley made the first hit off of Sneeden.

The placing of the pitcher back five feet makes more work for the fielders, as there is freer batting.

What to do Until the Doctor Comes.

A course of four emergency lectures is to be given in the Irving School, corner Fourth street and Monroe avenue, during May, by Doctors W. H. Murray and E. W. Hedges.

The first is to be delivered to-morrow night, and the remaining three on Tuesday evening, May 16th, and Thursday evenings, May 11th and 18th.

The object of these lectures is to show by simple illustration, what to do until the doctor comes, for the relief of the hurt or wounded.

Their First Run in Their New Suits.

Saturday the Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers received their new suits, and yesterday several of the members donned them, and participated in a run to Bound Brook. They present a neat appearance in their uniforms.

LICENSE GRANTED AT GARWOOD.

Liquor Will be Sold at that Place Despite the Objections.

Saturday morning Judge McCormick of Elizabeth presided in a Special Session of the Court of Common Pleas, and the application of Peter Patten for a tavern license was heard. Patten sought a license to keep his inn at Garwood, the new manufacturing town established by the Garwood Land Improvement Company, situate in the townships of Cranford and Westfield. It was Patten's third petition to the Court. His Counsel is Assemblyman Timothy M. Keely.

The opposition to the license being granted was presented by Mr. D. S. Atwater, counsel for the Garwood Land Improvement Company, the American Steel Wheel Company and the Hall Signal Company. He showed by the affidavits of these companies that the Garwood company sold land with the conditions that the sale of malt and spirituous liquors would be prohibited in the vicinity. This fact induced the American Steel Wheel Company and the Hall Signal Company to locate their large industries at Garwood, they desiring to establish their works in a place where their employes would be away from the temptations of taverns and saloons. Notwithstanding this, and to the surprise of many, the Court granted the license.

DEADLOCK IN THE BOARD.

Democrats Are Helpless Because of An Absent Member.

The Democrats in the Union County Board of Freeholders are worried owing to the absence of Freeholder Swain, Democrat, of Summit, who is now in Denver, Col., and will not return for a month. His absence leaves the the new board a tie, and it is to meet on Wednesday to elect a Director and County Physician, the latter for three years. Dr. Wescott, Republican, of Fanwood, is now County Physician, and the Democrats, who are anxious to remove him, cannot do it without Freeholder Swain's vote. There are several Democratic candidates for Director, but they are helpless on account of the Freeholder from Summit being away.

The Republicans are amused at the plight of their opponents, and are not without hope of capturing the office of director before Freeholder Swain returns. The sweeping Republican victory in Rahway at the recent election is chiefly responsible for the present deadlock in the Board.

Watching for Firebugs.

A number of Scotch Plains citizens met last Saturday evening and consulted as to watch for firebugs, as it had been noised around that several suspicious persons were in town, and it was feared unless they were watched another fire might take place. A very quiet meeting was held and the citizens met at Miller's waiting for several detectives from the Jerusalem road the search began. Some had shot-guns, while the others had clubs, revolvers, broomsticks and other deadly weapons, and after a thorough search was made no traces of the supposed firebugs could be found. While the search was being made several of the detectives fell fast asleep on the sidewalk and remained there until their comrades awakened them. The search was finally given up.—Westfield Standard.

Amusements.

The company supporting Miss Agnes Herndon in "A Woman's Revenge; or, La Belle Marie," which will be at Music Hall, Thursday night, is said to be the best ever carried for this great play. The elegant costumes worn by Miss Herndon are said to be marvels of beauty, and should be seen to be appreciated.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Harris is Dead.

SING SING, N. Y., May 8, (Special.) Carlyle W. Harris, the poisoner of his beautiful school-girl wife, Mary Helen Neilson Potts, was electrocuted at 12.25, a full account of which is given on the second page of THE NEWS.

AFTER THE HAY AND STRAW.

Trouble Over the Remnants Of The Circus.

Mr. Charles P. Rice of South avenue, who owns the ground on which Barnum and Bailey's circus performed, is having no end of trouble trying to keep persons from stealing the hay and straw the circus employes left lying on the lot.

Before the show had left the lot last Thursday morning men with their wagons endeavored to decamp with it. Mr. Rice drove them away. Ever since that time now and then a man would be detected in the act of carting away a load of the stuff.

Mr. Rice stood it until patience ceased to be a virtue. To day he called Special Marshal Cash and had a consultation privated what was to might red-handed. When taken before Justice Nash he said that he had been told to go there and help himself by a Plainfield merchant to whom he had paid one dollar. He was released on the payment of two dollars to pay the costs of court and Mr. Rice's trouble.

Punishing Children.

The change that is gradually taking place in regard to the discipline for convicts suggests that the same humane ideas should also be applied by parents to the rearing of children. If civilization means anything at all, it means emancipation from the thraldom of brute passions and instincts. The true system for the treatment of the criminal is to confine him where he can do no more wrong, but while he is confined teach him that it really pays better not to do wrong. In a word, not punishment, but reform.

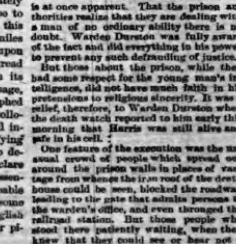
The recent killing of her son by a Philadelphia woman in a fit of uncontrollable rage is the darkest tragedy that has stained the history of motherhood in many a year. She had been used to giving way to outbursts of passion toward her child. She had made no attempt to control or correct the habit, until in a moment of insane fury she stabbed him to the heart. If the story of cruelties inflicted on helpless children by their own parents could be written, the tale would be more appalling than the martyrdom of the ancient Christians. In the words of children's hospitals you find little crippled victims of parental frenzy, on the streets you find them, and even in respectable homes, so called, are oftentimes frail infants with ghastly cuts and black and blue bruises upon their tender flesh.

It is monstrous. Parents delude themselves with the idea that they are punishing their children when they are only gratifying their own ferocious rage and revenge. The children are in turn brutalized and debased. In turn they will beat those among their playmates who are weaker than they. They will torture animals. There have been instances lately where children have been murdered by other young ones. How else could it be when the example of beating and bloodthirstiness is set them by their own mothers and fathers?

As the race moves on to higher, finer development the murder and torture of the innocents will cease. Children do not need to be punished for wrongdoing. They need to be shown what is the best way, and they will walk in it, no fear. The mother and father with brains will never need to beat children. Children must obey parents, but where the parents are wise and kind and loving and reasonable they need only be firm to bring any child to time. There is no surer test of the amount of brain and heart possessed by parent and teacher than the ability to control children without beating them.

The grim old doctrine about sparing the rod and spoiling the child must take its place with the kindred opinions that burned witches and hanged Quakers. When the world comes to be truly civilized, nothing among the enormities of its dark ages will fill the beautiful new time people with more horror and indignation than the ancient practice of whipping children. The whipping post for criminals was given up long ago everywhere but in Delaware, and in Maryland for wife beaters only. Why should we retain the whipping post for our own children?

Since the Franco-Prussian war in 1870 progress has been steadily made in the breeding and training of carrier pigeons for military use. There are times when neither railways nor telegraphs serve to convey urgent messages from one commander to another or to the home government. For that purpose nothing has been so successful as carrier pigeons. Germany has been especially progressive in developing this branch of her military service. The German emperor sent back the homing birds with messages to his empress from time to time during his famous visit to England in his own yacht. The French naval vessels carry birds for sea service, and now the officers of American warships are taking the matter up and training birds successfully. Several messages were sent lately from our fleet off Fortress Monroe to New York and Washington by this means. Swift birds can travel 40 miles an hour. The message is written upon tissue paper and tied by a silken thread to the pigeon's leg or underneath its wing. In some instances the message, after it has been written, is photographed in greatly reduced size upon a thin collodion film, and this substance is used instead of the tissue paper. A magnifying glass is then necessary to read or decipher the writing. The French declare that the swallow is superior as a messenger bird to the pigeon—that it is capable of longer, swifter flights. If now some experts could only break in the English sparrow to do the work of a carrier pigeon, how happy we should all be!



THE DEATH SIGNAL.

When the Russian government has been shot at or an attempt made to blow it up, it always publishes that the perpetrator of the deed was insane. This is to bear out the broadcast statement that nihilism has been suppressed in Russia. Adrianoff, who killed the mayor of Moscow, was at once officially declared to be out of his head.

A railroad company that refuses to take freight from a connecting road is subject under the interstate commerce law to a fine of $5,000. Engineers who refuse to haul the cars of roads where there is trouble with the employees lay themselves liable to which they work liable to the same.

HARRIS' DOOM.

Executed For the Murder of His Girl Wife.

MET DEATH IN THE CHAIR.

His Nerve Did Not Wholly Desert Him at Any Time.

Spent His Last Day Preparing a Statement For the Public—Mrs. Harris, the Murderer's Mother, Breaks Down Completely—Mr. Harris, the Father, Leaves Sing Sing—The Last Night of Carlyle Harris and How He Spent It—Mr. Potts, Father of the Poisoned Girl, Is Interviewed—Crowd Around the Prison.

SING SING, May 8.—Carlyle Harris has paid the death penalty for poisoning his girl wife, Helen Nelson Potts, over two years ago.

Seating in the death chair in the execution room he gave up his life because of that crime.

Everything was in readiness at 11 o'clock, but the electric current was not turned on until some time after that hour.

When the flag was run up on the death-house the waiting crowds outside the prison walls knew that the execution was over.

The invitations which had been sent out summoned the persons chosen by Warden Durston to witness the tragic event to be at the prison at 11 o'clock. Most of the witnesses reached the warden's office long before that hour, especially the press representatives. The friends of the warden, several of whom came, gathered in the outside office and chatted nervously until summoned to the death room. The physicians talked calmly of the execution, discussed it from a scientific standpoint and told of their former experiences at such as hes.

Mrs. Harris Broke Down.

A short distance away from this generally unconcerned group was the grief stricken cousin and brother of the man so near death and the mother who had suffered so much from anxiety and sorrow before, that she had broken down and was scarcely able to raise her head when told that the hour for her son's taking off had come. Up to within two days of the day set for the execution Mrs. Harris had borne up with wonderful strength, but when the time came and she realized that her hoping against hope, her untiring exertions, her prayers, her tears, had all been in vain, and then she seemed to lose all control of her nerves, and her strength failed her.

As for Carlyle Harris, the coolness which he has shown ever since his arrest had not all departed. He is said to have passed what was to be his last night on earth calmly. The death watch say that he slept for several hours. He smoked several packages of cigarettes, as usual, and he ate some breakfast.

It is safe to say that if Harris did sleep several hours he passed a more restful night than did Warden Durston. The warden was afraid that Harris would make good his threat and escape the chair, not that he was afraid that Harris or his friends would overpower the guards and take their leave, as did Roehl and Pallister. There was nothing to be feared on that score.

The warden feared that Harris might kill himself before he could be safely strapped into the chair.

Suicide Not Feared.

Time and time again during his confinement in the Tombs he declared that even if he was condemned he would never go to the chair.

When his knowledge of anatomy and medicine is taken into consideration, together with his natural shrewdness and his desire to save his family from further disgrace, the possibility of some such attempt usual, he could discover no signs of breaking down. Harris' appetite had been very light ever since he has been in Sing Sing, and he ate very little yesterday.

Mrs. Harris remained at the boarding house on State street Sunday, and did not go to the prison. She took her last farewell of her boy Saturday afternoon. The scene was one of the saddest that has ever been witnessed within the grim walls where all is sadness.

Father and Mother Together.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris have been separated and have lived apart for some time. The sons have been with the mother and wife. Carlyle was arrested when the mother took upon herself the task of proving his innocence. The father, who lives in Syracuse, took no part in the matter, but was deeply interested in his conduct.

When the final decision of the governor came, Mr. Harris determined to see his son once more before all was over. When he arrived he sent a note to the house where Mrs. Harris is stopping. Father and mother met again on the eve of the death of their first born. It is said that Mr. Harris remained with his wife and son Allan until sunday, when he saw Carlyle and talked with him less than a half hour. Then the father took the train back to Syracuse, leaving Mrs. Harris and Allan to wait here until all was over.

Mr. Potts on the Execution.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 8.—There is much commendation expressed in Asbury Park and Ocean Grove over the prayers of Commissioner Raleigh to Governor Flower in the Harris case. It was peculiarly pleasing to George Potts, the father of Mary Helen Potts. To-night we were carefully and said that he came to the conclusion that the governor was wise in not interfering.

Mr. Potts said he would make an effort to be present at the electrocution today. In speaking of the case he said: "I doubt very much whether electricity will have any effect on a man like Harris. He is a thirty devil of nerve or conscience, and the wonderful nerve he displays goes to show that he has no feelings. Harris had an even chance in the Tombs before Dr. Kinsmith came forward and made an affidavit that he had sold my daughter morphine. His story was a base fabrication.

Knife Duel In the Dark.

FRESNILLO, Mex., May 8.—A remarkable duel that resulted in the death of one of the principals and the wounding of the other was fought here by Jacob Valdez and Pintarco Margro. The two men had been fast friends, but they quarrelled over a young woman. Knives having blades three inches long were used. A 16-foot space was roped off, and the men went at each other with the skill of time. They fought desperately in the darkness for 20 minutes, when Margro fell, pierced to the heart with the knife. Both men were horribly mutilated.

TEN PERSONS KILLED.

Victims of the Wreck on the Big Four Identified.

LAFAYETTE A TOWN OF MOURNING.

Some Pathetic Scenes at the Depot—Most the Accident Occurred—The Unbroken Failed to Work and Then the Crash Came.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., May 8.—This is a place of mourning today. Ever since last night relatives and friends of the victims of the railroad accident have been coming into town. They are directed first to the temporary morgue, and then to the places which are being used as hospitals. Many patients are receiving attention at the depot.

Physicians have arrived from all quarters, and the injured are being given every aid possible.

The accident was the worst and most horrible in the history of this section, both in fatalities and in damage to property.

According to the latest reports this is how it occurred: The Big Four train from Chicago came into the yard on time, and its engine, baggage car, two mail cars and one coach were all partially wrecked at the south end of the passenger station. The accident was caused by the failure of the airbrakes to work properly.

How the Accident Occurred.

The train came down the range the fault near the station at a speed of 35 miles an hour, and when it reached a point about 100 feet from the depot the engine left the track and dragged the cars with it. The engine was dashed to pieces, the baggage car ploughed its splinters, the mail cars were overturned and letters, papers, etc., scattered far and near. The trucks of the first passenger coach were dragged out and the left rear side of the coach was knocked into fragments. Miraculously to escape injury, however, to the coach then partially demolished was killed.

The entire east part of the iron train shed was torn away and that portion south of the depot was demolished, the steel roofs and twisted pillars capping the heaped up ruin of the big mogul engine and the cars. Part of the brick wall of the railway side of the depot was also carried away.

Engineer Mike Walsh of Indianapolis, who was the fireman of a Big Four freight train that was lying on the west track near the depot as the express dashed by. He was at the throttle, apparently reversing the engine. He had evidently discovered a defect in the air brakes while on the Wabash river bridge just after the Main line switch, and, knowing, for he sounded alarm whistles, but the trainmen in the cars were equally unsuccessful in applying the air, and when the engine struck the heavy obstacle at the depot it was derailed.

The three Chicago mail distributors aboard the train escaped uninjured.

The Dead and Injured.

The dead:

Engineer Michael Walsh of Indianapolis, taken from under the wrecked engine this morning. Mrs. Strouse, Irvin Melnda, Urbana, Ills., instantly killed.

Charles Schaill, iron worker of Indianapolis, on his home from Chicago, killed by falling steel rods.

Otto Jemmerson of Montreal, Canada, caught in the debris and crushed.

Mail Clerk Ed Meyers of Cincinnati, died shortly after the accident.

Mail Clerk Thomas McMahan of Cincinnati, almost instantly killed.

Charles Hergen, Lafayette, backman waiting for train, was struck by the wild engine and instantly killed.

John Jemmen, driver of mail wagon, suffered similar fate to Meyers.

Mail Clerk A. H. Chadwick of Cincinnati, died terribly injured in the hospital several hours after the wreck.

Mail Clerk Jesse H. Long died this morning at Elizabeth hospital from internal injuries.

The injured:

Jeff Reese, Kempton, Ind., slightly injured.

Richard Jones, Urbana, Ills., slightly.

Lewis Leffler, Fowler, Ind., slightly.

Sophia Bergmiath, Milwaukee, severe cut in head and face.

William Place, passenger of Frankfort, Ind., seriously.

Charles Bousch of this city, leg fractured.

Mail Clerk C. A. Wissell, A. W. Carnahan and Henry Eller, slightly hurt.

Mail Clerk L. A. Weber sustained a severe spinal injury.

The Union depot was converted into a morgue and the mangled bodies of those victims early recovered from the wreck were laid out on the waiting room floor. The body of Irvin McInnes was dismembered, the left leg being torn off at the hip, and presented a ghastly sight. The brains of Otto Jemmison covered his face and there was not a whole bone in his body. Twenty thousand people have visited the scene of the wreck. It will take a week or longer to remove the wreckage, in which are express and mail matter, many dismantled trunks, fragments of express and mail wagons and dead horses.

British Tars Desert.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The British flagship Blake has lost over 40 men of her crew by desertion. The British consul-general at Australia has lost seven men, and the two British cruisers Magicienne and Tartar have lost more than 30 men between them. In all the British fleet has lost by desertion more than 70 men since its arrival in this port.

Raised $20,000 by One Sermon.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The sum of $20,000 was raised in one day as a result of a sermon on the morning service at St. Bartholomew's church. The money is to be used for the new church edifice of the church and for putting in two new organs.

Ten 4-11-44 Gig Canes Out.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Colored men with rolls of bank notes were seen at almost every corner in the Tenderloin district last night, the result of the popular "big" 4-11-44, having made its appearance on Saturday afternoon.

Santa Claus In a Tight Fix.

NORWALK, Conn., May 8.—Willie, the 6-year-old son of Charles Keeler, while playing Santa Claus, attempted to climb down the chimney. He descended about 10 feet and became so wedged he could not move until the chimney had been torn out.

Boy Shot a Priest.

VIENNA, May 8.—A schoolboy named Grutscher shot Father Paronka in Olmutz with a revolver and then killed himself. The priest will recover. Paronka had interfered in Grutcher's love affairs.

Tossed by a Cow.

JERSEY CITY, May 8.—Frank Wallace, a milkman of this city, and John Albendale, his stableman, were attacked by an infuriated cow, and Wallace is not expected to live.

DEATH OF MRS. CHAUNCEY DEPEW.

She Was a Leader, Not In Society, but In Church and Charitable Work.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Mrs. Elsie Hagerman Depew, wife of Chauncey M. Depew, died at her home in this city. Although Mrs. Depew was known to be seriously ill, the sudden termination of her illness was not expected. Mr. Depew was completely prostrated and was with himself up against all callers. During the afternoon friends of the family have been calling at the residence, leaving cards and expressing sympathy with the family. Mrs. Depew was descended from one of the oldest New York families. Her father was the late William Hagerman.

Mrs. Depew cared little for society, and devoted her time mainly to charitable and church work. Mrs. Depew was fond of music, and at one time had the reputation of being one of the best amateur pianists in the city.

During the past two years, however, Mrs. Depew has been an invalid. She never entirely recovered from an attack of grip that she had during the epidemic two years ago. During the recent festivities at Fortress Monroe, attendant upon the visit of the foreign warships, Mrs. Depew made a trip to that place in the hope of improving her health. The experiment proved fruitless, however. She became much worse and was brought home feebler than when she left.

Mr. Morton Was Invited.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—It turns out that the speculations which found their way into print as to the reason why ex-President Harrison and ex-Vice President Morton were not invited to witness the naval review at New York week before last were unfounded, at least so far as Mr. Morton was concerned. He was invited to join the other distinguished visitors on that occasion, but illness in his family prevented.

Irish Preparing For Amnesty Meetings.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Odd Fellows' hall in Second street was thronged with Irishmen who are arranging for the holding of a monster amnesty meeting in Cooper Union on June 6. The meeting will be only one of thousands to be held all over the country for the purpose of directing public attention to the Irish-American citizens who are in English prisons for alleged offences against England.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Hotel keepers representing nearly all the principal hotels in this city, left on a special vestibule limited train over the New York Central road, bound for Cincinnati, where the annual meeting of the United States Hotel association takes place on Tuesday.

Still Sleighing Up There.

HERKIMER, N. Y., May 8.—Persons who returned from the Fulton chain of lakes last week report two feet of snow in the woods and ice 18 inches thick on the lakes. Sleighs are still being used, and only in the favorably situated sections does the ice show signs of breaking up.

Dublin Dynamiters Denounced.

DUBLIN, May 8.—The 8-hour meetings in Phœnix park were attended by great crowds. William Field, Parnellite and Labor member of parliament, and several other speakers were cheered when they denounced the persons responsible for the Four Courts explosion.

To Develop the Pecos Valley.

TRENTON, May 8.—Articles of incorporation of the Pecos company, with a capital stock of $5,000,000, have been filed. The purpose of the company is to aid and promote enterprises for the development and exploration of the valley of Pecos river in New Mexico and Texas.

Author Kok Cannot Come In.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Martin Kok, a well known Danish author, who is on his way to this country, will be detained on his arrival here and sent back by Commissioner Senner. Kok was convicted on April 10 of a crime and served a short term in jail in Copenhagen.

Were the Patriots Bribed?

LONDON, May 8.—A dispatch from Madrid says: "It is reported that the political heads of the revolt in Cuba is due to the government's buying off the leaders. This method was adopted during the last revolt because it was cheaper than fighting."

Saved by a Wife's Common Sense.

ANSONIA, Conn., May 8.—W. L. Parmelee took a dose of ointment, made from chloroform and aconite. His little girl took it from the wrong bottle, and both lives were saved by Mrs. Parmelee's vigorous use of hot water and mustard.

Mickle Mansion Partly Burned.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., May 8.—The Mickle mansion in Farnsworth avenue, occupied by John Lamb, was partly destroyed by fire. Miss Florence Lamb was carried by the firemen unconscious from the burning house.

Scalded Twenty-two Men.

CAIRO, Ills., May 8.—The steamer Ohio burst a flue near Bellmont, Mo., scalding fifteen, six of whom died before reaching the hospital here. The steamer belongs to the Cincinnati and Memphis Packet company.

Presbyterians' General Assembly.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Preparations for the meeting of the one hundred and fifth assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States, which will begin in this city on the 18th inst., are about complete.

Honors For the Grand Duke.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch received on board the Russian flagship a committee of the Greek society of New York, which elected him honorary vice president.

Charged With Murder.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., May 8.—The coroner's jury charges Patrick Conroy with murder in the first degree in causing the death of Richard Meade.

SECOND WEEK OF FAIR.

It Began With Gates Which Were Nominally Closed.

PASSHOLDERS WERE ADMITTED

The Many Were Kept Out and the Few Were Allowed to Go In—There Is Not Much of a Programme Ahead—Comparing Attendance Statistics.

CHICAGO, May 8.—The set programme for this week at the World's fair is not a very brilliant one and will not tend to attract a large number of people. This morning President Higginbotham entertained the visiting naval officers at breakfast in the Choral building at the park. Tonight the grounds and buildings will be beautifully illuminated for their benefit. They had intended to leave for the east at 5 o'clock this afternoon, but concluded to remain and see the display. All the fountains will be started, and the officials claim that the effect will be simply gorgeous.

Tomorrow has been set apart as a day for the Catholic Knights of America. There are a large number of them in and around Chicago and many are expected from a distance.

It Will Be Vermont Day.

Wednesday the Vermont commissioners will dedicate their old little building over in the north end of the grounds, and every former resident of that state is expected to turn out and lend his presence and influence to the occasion.

Next Saturday the governor of Washington and his staff is expected, and if he arrives the building erected by that state will be dedicated.

This morning at 10 o'clock the members of the special committee appointed by President Palmer to investigate the bureau of music met in the Administration building. It was expected that Mr. Thomas would probably be asked to resign and that the place would be offered to Mr. Walter Damrosch of New York.

A committee to investigate the photograph business also met this morning. Several of the exhibitors who have paid for their concessions objected to the photographers reproducing for newspaper work their displays. It is also claimed that the official photographer has exceeded his authority and the case is being investigated.

The first week of the Columbian exposition was but little, if anything, more than a repetition of the history of the early periods of other great international expositions.

But for the whole week the exposition did a fair amount of business. During the six days the gates were opened 243,775 half-dollars or their equivalent were passed in at the ticket windows. Those half-dollars do not represent the total admissions, however.

Attendance Statistics.

There are perhaps 25,000 passes that are in use every day, most of them of course, belonging to workmen, employees and people connected with the exhibits. The paid admissions, not taking into account the souvenir tickets that were sold before the opening day were as follows:

Monday, 155,828; Tuesday, 12,833; Wednesday, 21,374; Thursday, 14,000; Friday, 10,798; Saturday, 16,952; total, 243,775.

The paid admissions at Philadelphia for the first six days were as follows:

May 10, 79,172; May 11, 34,722; May 12, 10,252; May 13, 11,559; May 14, 10,000; May 15, 7,956; total, 130,556.

Gates Closed to the Many.

The rule to close the gates of the World's fair Sunday was quickly enforced, at least so far as the ticket purchasing public was concerned. The fortunate hundreds who hold passes were admitted, however, and allowed to wander about the grounds at their will. It was a beautiful day, and thousands of workingmen, some of them with families, went to the fair grounds under the apprehension that the gates were to be opened. And when these toilers were turned away they left in anything but a good humor. It was highly aggravating to them to see the favored hundreds, even thousands, enter the grounds on passes, while they who worked all the week were excluded. The validity of the law of congress closing the gates is to be tested in the courts this week. Charles W. Clingman, who is a stockholder in the fair, has served notice on Secretary Edmonds that he will appeal to the courts to open the fair on Sunday. In his letter he, in the interest of working people and as representative of working stockholders, demanded that the people be admitted Sunday the same as other days in the week.

THE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD.

The expected duel between Colonel Collyer and Editor Carmack of Memphis did not come off.

The New York Sunday World consisted of 160 pages.

Sam Jones' tabernacle at Memphis was blown down.

A dynamite boom was exploded in Dublin, but no one was hurt.

The Chicago police have just begun to investigate the death of Rebecca Berghold of New York city.

The World's fair gates were closed Sunday.

A gigantic conspiracy to smuggle in Chinamen by the wholesale was discovered at Tacoma.

General W. S. Rosecrans resigned as registrar of the treasury.

Alderman Rohe of Pittsburg was arrested for a violation of one of Pennsylvania's blue laws.

Michael Davitt, the eminent anti-Parnellite, has been adjudicated a bankrupt.

THE PRESIDENT GIVES WARNING.

He Asks the Office Seekers to Stay Away From Him.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The following has been issued by the president for publication:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, May 8.

It has become apparent after two months' experience that the rules heretofore promulgated regulating interviews with the president have wholly failed in their operation. The time which under these rules was set apart for the reception of senators and representatives has been almost entirely given up intruded to applications for office, which have been bewildering in volume, perplexing and exhausting in their iteration and importunity of remembrance.

A due regard for public duty which must be neglected if present conditions continue and a observance of the limitations placed upon human endurance oblige me to decline from and after this date all personal interviews with those seeking appointments to office, except as I, on my own motion, may especially invite them. The same considerations make it impossible for me to receive those who merely desire to pay their respects except on the days and during the hours especially designated for that purpose.

I earnestly request senators and representatives to aid me in thus securing for them uninterrupted interviews by declining to introduce their constituents and friends when visiting the executive mansion during the hours designated for their reception. Applicants for office will greatly facilitate their prospects by reputable importunity and by remaining at Washington to await results.

The German Situation Grave.

PARIS, May 8.—The feeling aroused by the rejection of the German army bill is still elation. In political circles the defeat of the bill is regarded as a guarantee of peace.

BERLIN, May 8.—The London Times correspondent wires his paper: "The issue of the political contest is doubtful even in the view of the most acute and far seeing observer. The prospect while dark is not hopeless. The government is not cheerful for its principal opponents. It must be viewed with grave forboding by all patriotic Germans."

Troops Will Meet Whitecaps.

JACKSON, Miss., May 8.—Governor Stone has ordered the military companies of Crystal Springs and Mount Hanburst to report at Brookhaven for duty. The excitement there is greater than it has been at any time since the mob's visit. The Whitecaps are organizing at several places. They have purchased immense quantities of ammunition of the surrounding towns and design making an attack tonight. Adjutant General Henry has instructed the troops to fire just as soon as the Whitecaps enter the town and to keep on firing as long as one is left.

University of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—A report of the financial success of the Mask and Wig club has recently been given out. For the several performances given in Philadelphia the club took in $14,769. The entire receipts for the season were over $21,000. Besides the financial success, the club has the honor of having played for a week before the largest houses on record at the Chestnut Street Opera House. The last performance was watched by the largest number that the house ever held.

Finishers Leave the Amalgamated.

PITTSBURG, May 8.—The Finishers' union is holding its first annual convention at Youngstown, O. Delegates representing 800 members, from Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana, are in attendance. The union has decided not to return to the Amalgamated association. A schedule of wages for next year has been decided on, which is the same as the western iron scale of this year. The new scale will regulate the wages of rollers, roughers, catchers and heaters.

A Cut For Iron Workers.

PITTSBURG, May 8.—When the present scale of existing between the Manufacturers' association and the Amalgamated association expires in June the manufacturers will present a scale making a sweeping reduction of the present wages. The reason they give for these reductions is the bad condition of the iron market.

Cyclone Picked Up a Train.

GAINESVILLE, Tex., May 8.—The cyclone which did considerable damage to property in this city also struck near Palo Pinto on the Santa Fe, and a train was completely lifted from the track and buried into a ravine 20 feet away. The cars being turned completely over twice in their journey. Brakeman Gunn was killed outright.

Death of Editor Fallwood.

PITTSBURG, May 8.—Thomas S. Fallwood, a well known sporting writer and for 18 years sporting editor of the Pittsburg Dispatch, died at his home in this city. Mr. Fallwood had been suffering for the past few months from an abscess in the head, which finally resulted in his death.

Jeubuiter Ahlwardt Arrested.

BERLIN, May 8.—Rector Ahlwardt, the anti-Semite agitator, was arrested and will be returned to prison to serve his sentence for having libeled the Loewen small arms manufacturers. The period of his immunity expired with the relchstag.

Kansas Farmers Complain.

TOPEKA, Kan., May 8.—Kansas millers and elevator men are criticising Secretary Mohler severely on his report of the Kansas wheat crop. They charge him with knowingly over estimating the probable yield in the interest of buyers.

Eight Hour Demonstration.

HAMILTON, Ont., May 8.—Thousands of workingmen march in Barnabeck to demonstrate their desire for an 8 hour day.

LONDON, May 8.—The annual 8-hour demonstration of London workingmen was made in Hyde Park.

A Novel Method.

DURANGO, Colo., May 8.—Henry Hunt, a cowboy just in from Mancos, reports that a murder occurred at Cross Canon, Dolores county, near the southern Ute reservation Friday morning, and it is attributed to renegade Navajos.

That Peltier's Duel.

MEMPHIS, May 8.—The Carmack-Collier duel may be said to rest in statu quo, as the principals and seconds have made no move so far as known, toward another meeting.

Sugar May Be Higher.

LONDON, May 8.—Reports from the continent show that the drought and heat have spoiled the beet root crop and that an enormous rise of sugar prices is in progress.

Murderer Fee's Case.

SARATOGA, May 8.—The district attorney has been served with a notice of appeal in the case of Martin Foy, Jr., convicted of the murder of Henrietta Wilson.

Spurgeon Will Come to the Fair.

LONDON, May 8.—The Rev. Thomas Spurgeon will stay a few days in Chicago and will probably assist Dwight L. Moody, the revivalist, in his work there.

sequently more attractive on a hot day. The skirt is reasonably full and clears the ground all around. It is finished by a band of navy blue braiding.

The waist is plain, but it fits perfectly. Its only decorations are a narrow little vest of navy blue braiding, a braided collar and braided cuffs to the tolerably large leg o' mutton sleeves.

To complete this natty costume she wears a double cape trimmed with row upon row of narrow blue braid and finished with a rolling braided collar. The cape is lined with dark blue surah. A little dark blue felt walking hat and buttoned suede or light weight dogskin walking gloves give the finishing touches to one of the neatest, coolest looking young women who will travel this summer.

GOOD HEALTH

HOW NATURE CURES.

The Science of Health In a Nutshell—The Main Requisite For Health Growth.

Dr. Emmet Densmore, in a work recently published under the title, "How Nature Cures," asserts at the start that health is man's birthright. It is as natural to be well as to be born. All pathological conditions, all diseases and all tendencies to disease are the result of the transgression of physiologic and hygienic law. This is the science of health in a nutshell as set forth by the writer in question. The doctor assumes that a tendency toward abounding health and vigor is inseparable from life, and that as soon as the conditions natural to the organism are restored a movement toward health is certain to follow. He defines the law of cure as the unfailing tendency on the part of the organism toward health.

The main requisite for health growth, to quote from Dr. Densmore—after the required temperature, light and air—"is nutrition; hence a breakdown in health is caused more by errors in diet than all other causes put together. Errors in diet are divided into two general classes: 1. The use of food unsuited to the organism. 2. The partaking of food in quantities greatly in excess of the needs of the system." On experience and reasonings connected with these fundamentals rest the conclusion against the use of starchy foods. It is further shown that the natural average period of human life is at least 100 years, which is abbreviated to the present short average span by ignorant or reckless transgressions of the laws of nutrition and health.

Microbes and Carpets.

In our endeavor to be comfortable in this vale of tears there is a tendency to overlook the elementary laws of hygiene, and in no respect perhaps more so than in the superabundance of curtains and carpets—those nonpatented contrivances for hindering the circulation of fresh air and stultifying nature's automatic arrangements for the deodorization and disinfection of our homes. Carpets are always objectionable when they are not designed so as to allow easy removal for cleaning purposes without the necessity of turning the room topsy turvy. In most houses the carpet comes up only once a year, by which time it is as full of microbes and accumulated filth as its interstices will allow. No wonder, then, if our rooms preserve a musty smell in spite of the periodical opening of windows and vigorous sweeping, which only displace a portion of the dust to settle promptly elsewhere in some less accessible spot.

Fixed carpets are even more objectionable and unwholesome in bedrooms, for there they absorb the fetid emanations of the night and soak up various decomposable materials for future use.

The ideal would be a polished floor garnished with rugs in sufficient number to give an aspect and feeling of comfort, while admitting easy exposure to the salutary influence of air and light. Rugs, carpets and curtains ought to be frequently shaken and hung up in the air if they are to remain sweet—not once a month or year, but twice or thrice a week, if not oftener. At this price only can we hope to deprive contined spaces of their native unwholesomeness, and the sooner housewives lay this maxim to their hearts and act upon it the better, says The Hospital Gazette in giving expressions to the foregoing ideas.

ETIQUETTE

BAD FORM.

Offenses Against Conventional Good Breeding and Refined Taste.

Certain conventional solecisms the world has agreed to consider "bad form" and worthy of social reprobation. These are of the kind best expressed by a hazy understanding of one's persons, moods and tenses; difficulties over adverbs and a general hash of prepositions; too great familiarity with the blade of one's knife in eating; or, worse still, some unpleasant personal habit which brings into the drawing room and before folk tricks and feats of manipulation, such as the free use of toothpick, paring nails, etc., which should be restricted to private performance. Of these things and their congeners we make great account—also of what we mean by "unsuitable dress"—i. e., diamonds in the morning and feathers in the hair for a home supper; huge gold ornaments, a superfluity of bracelets and a vulgar because ostentatious display of rings, staring colors inartistically matched and obtrusive patterns not even beautiful in the pattine. These are the things at which the cultured sniff and look upon the perpetrators therefor as beyond the pale of consideration. But there are other items of bad form which escape notice which are yet infinitely more damaging as revelations of character and breeding than these solecisms against conventional good taste. These may be classed as moral vulgarities.

There is the vulgarity of those who quarrel and fight in social jangle before folk. And of these the worst sinners are the hopelessly lost who turn to the bystander and ask him for his advocacy, his sympathy, his verdict. Better a knife playing about the tongue and lips than this horrible lapse of good breeding—this selfish want of consideration for others.

Another form of vulgarity is the habit of contradiction. Certain people are, as it were, cursed with this propensity as with a disease they cannot shake off. You state the simplest fact, known to you as well as you know the alphabet. Your otherwise minded interlocutor contradicts, objects, reads differently. If you are a novice and easily caught, you quite seriously, quite conscientiously, state your reasons and then mathematically that you are right. Your contradictious friend, unable to controvert, closes the discussion by saying loftily, "I do not agree with you." Some of this kind will not even allow you to agree with them. If they make a statement and you back it up, they inconsiderately turn around on you and read you, "No, I did not mean that at all," they say in a displeased manner. They do not state explicitly what they did mean. All they maintain is, they did not mean what you do.

Vulgarity marks the man or woman who is given to general backbiting and unrefreshing slander—to the glad propagation of scandalous stories respecting people of whom he or she can know nothing.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

The Little Dancer.

Here is a lively little fellow who will dance as long and as often as you please. Take an old kid glove and cut off the fingers. Then sew upon the body of the glove any bits of bright silk or cloth to look like a jacket and hide the doubled up fingers. Make two mittens and two little socks with stuffed toes, remembering to staff one sock higher than the other, as the forefinger is shorter than your middle finger, and the little dancer must of course have legs to be sure of. After dressing up the glove to your satisfaction, paint a face on the back of the wrist with water colors, mixing a little gum with them if the colors will not "lay," and then the little dancer is ready to dance as long as you like.—St. Louis Republic.

Two Little Girls' Lofty Home.

On the very top of a mountain near Constantinople there live two little girls. Their chubby brown feet are unprotected even in chilly March weather, but they don't seem to mind it, for they are just as healthy and happy as the well dressed little European girls in Paris whose parents would be horrified at the mere mention of bare feet. These mountain children are orphans, and their cheeks have the color of the small red flower that grows among the sparse vegetation on the ragged side of the height. They live with their father, who is a Greek, and their home is little more than a pile of yellow rock, with an Elsevir vegetable patch in the yard.

The father serves visitors—who climb 100 feet from the end of the carriage road—with good thick Turkish coffee in cups about the size of an English walnut shell. Of course you give him something, and if you have any love in your heart for the sweet morning glory of childhood and any spare coins in your pocket you will give the youngsters a couple of kuhs. They will take your hand, raise it to their lips and then touch it to their foreheads. They are grave, serious little people, with large, wondering blue eyes. That is perhaps because they cannot understand a word you say. And it is perhaps because they have contemplated so long the impressive view from their humble eyrie.—Cor. New York Advertiser.

American Boys In Paris.

I remember some years ago that an American woman settled in one of the neighborhoods of the Champs Elysees, who were of an age not to conveniently stand being caged within the narrow walls of a Parisian apartment, and they went out to play in the streets as they had been accustomed in America. To keep themselves in trim they fought with each other after they had exhausted childhood's list of the neighborhood, and the stones they threw sometimes took the wrong direction and damaged doors and panes of glass. The tongues of door bells, too, became so obstreperous that the people of the offset went to the commissaire de police of their quarter and complained.

The mother, who was politely asked to keep her boys indoors, laughed at the intolerance of her neighbors and said that her nerves forbade her doing any such thing, and declared that as the concierge was a public thoroughfare she would send out her boys to play whenever their noble dispositions led her. The boys of course also laughed in the face of Parisian urban regulations and continued their pranks. But the French police signified to the woman on government paper that within a certain time she must leave the house or be locked up. She, indignant at the want of freedom in European cities, went back with her boys to America.—Paris Cor. Brooklyn Eagle.

What Jamie Wanted.

Jamie's father had taken him in to see the baby.

"There, my son," he said, "is a little sister for you. Won't she be a nice present?"

"Yes," replied Jamie, "she's nice enough, but I reckon I'd rather have a goat."—Chicago Tribune.

A Model and Student.

Miss Dottie Coxe, the little 8-year-old girl who posed as Velasquez's "Infanta of Spain" at the recent tableaux vivants for the benefit of the New York Decorative Art society, is a pretty, chubby faced little damsel with short, fluffy locks and an adorable smile. She not only poses in tableaux as entertainments, but also as a model for artists. She has thus assisted F. S. Church, Miss Maud Humphrey, A. C. Earle, Granville Smith, Francis Jones, J. Barclay, T. W. Wood, Mr. Hill, some amphoto of Percy, W. T. Smedley, Amy Kellogg, Walter Satterice, Katherine Pyle and Mr. Walker. She is herself studying art with W. J. Whittemore.—New York World.

Twilight Time.

Won't you tell me a story—a nice one, please?
For I've been so lonely all day,
With no one but poor old Nero to tease,
And he doesn't care any way.

Tell me of fairies that live in the brook
And down by the old mossy dell,
When I shut my eyes to see how they look,
And make all I then go to sleep.
—Floyd Scott Mines.

A DINNER LOST.

The Third Man Didn't Come In Until the Last.

Dashaway—Candole with me, old man. I have just lost a very excellent dinner.

Cleverton—In what way?

Dashaway—Over a bet. The other day Van Winkle, Stuffer and myself were strolling down the avenue, and I happened to mention that a few nights before I had met a certain Miss Miller at a dinner for the first time, and the question came up as to whether, if she met me on the street, she would know. Van Winkle and I put into a heated discussion over it. He maintained that she wouldn't bow; that it wasn't consistent, and I said she would. Then I bet him the finest dinner that could be bought that the next time I met her she would bow, and he took me up. We got quite excited over it, when, by Jove! what do you think happened?

Cleverton—You met the girl.

Dashaway—Precisely. I happened to look up, and there she was, bearing down on us.

Cleverton—And she of course didn't bow, and you lost your bet.

Dashaway—She did bow, and I won the bet. But (sadly) I l. t the dinner, old fellow.

Cleverton (puzzled)—I don't see how that could be.

Dashaway—You forget that Stuffer was there. While Van Winkle and I were betting and were so excited he had made a remark that we agreed to. We didn't exactly grasp the meaning of it until afterward.

Cleverton—What on earth could it have been?

Dashaway (gloomily)—He said he would hold the stakes.—Truth.

Two Reflections.

"Bah Jove!" said Willie Fairfax.

Willie had made a similar remark every minute for the last quarter of an hour.

"Bah Jove!" he muttered for the sixteenth time, "she seems to be an awful pretty girl—a wather weak, insipid face, you know, but quite nice. I wish to goodness I had my glasses with me." Willie struck an attitude. His fair enslaver did likewise. "Gwacious," murmured Willie, aghast. "She's an awful flirt. I'll have to walk by and smile at her."

He started to carry out this laudable enterprise.

Miss George Tomson was leaning against the mantel in another part of the same hotel.

Straight and prim was she in her tailor made suit. She was evidently ill at ease.

"By George!" she murmured, "I wish that man would not stare at me so. He seems to have a strong masculine face. How perfectly fits coat fits him! What immaculate linen! He rather interests me. But, great guns! I wish he would not stare so fixedly. I shall have to sail by and freeze him."

It was about at this time that Willie Fairfax had started on his more amiable project. A minute later Miss George Tomson and Willie Fairfax crashed into a mirror.—Brooklyn Life.

Saw the Force of It.

The consciousness that a youth whose necktie exactly matched his eyes in shade awaited her coming in the front parlor sent the hot blood coursing through her veins.

Suddenly her brow was darkened with doubt.

"Mamma!" she called petulantly.

A tired looking boy with pale, wan cheeks came and stood beside the maiden.

"Shall I wear my crinoline down tonight, mamma?"

"Yes, my child, by all means. Rest"—The mother's hand fondly caressed the golden curls.

"—forgotten that thou partookest of onions tonight, and that too great a degree of proximity oft tends to dis[illegible]ment"—Life.

The girl sighed regretfully, but the exigencies of the occasion were apparent to her mind.—Detroit Tribune.

He was silent for almost a minute, and then he murmured patiently, "There is such a thing as a man's being altogether too painstakin in his work."—Washington Star.

Absentminded.

Neander, professor of theology in Berlin, was one day overtaken by a thunderstorm. He jumped into a cab, but could not give either the number of his house or the name of the street. The driver thought the man was mad and was about to sell him to get out when the professor, espying a student, called out to him and said, "Just tell the man where I live."

Neander's sister, who kept house for him, took fresh apartments near the university, so that the professor might be so great for her brother. A few days after their removal he complained of the long and tiring walk, and it then turned out that he had always gone back to the old lodgings and so round to the university.—Chronik der Zeit.

They Were There.

The Rev. B. E. Smith is pastor of a congregation in a town in upper New York. His hearers are the richest people in town, but not celebrated for generosity in supporting the church. The good preacher has been trying to get the poor people to come to his church, and recently through the columns of the local papers extended to them a cordial invitation to attend. Last Sunday at the close of the service he said:

"Brethren, I have tried to reach the poor of our town and induce them to come to our church. I infer from the amount of the collection just taken—$7.35—that they have come."—Mount Vernon News.

MR. MANTZ GETS $1,500

DAMAGES FROM THE PHILADELPHIA AND READING R. R. CO.

For Injuries Received at South Plainfield September 10, 1892, by being Struck by an Express Train. His Horse was Killed and His Wagon Demolished.

The trial of the suit of Simon Mantz, of this city, against the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company for $10,000 damages for injuries received in an accident at the South Plainfield grade crossing, was finished yesterday in the Union County Circuit Court, before Judge Van Syckel, and the jury brought in a verdict against the railroad company for $1,500.

Mr. Mantz is a baker and was delivering bread to his customers at South Plainfield, on September 10, 1892, and while attempting to drive over a crossing of the South Plainfield branch of the railroad, which at that time was being operated by the Philadelphia and Reading Company, was run down.

Mantz's horse was struck by an eastbound train and killed, the wagon was demolished and himself badly injured. He says that before he attempted to drive on the track he used all due precaution to see whether a train was approaching from either direction. He failed to notice the approach of the eastbound train which struck him, owing to the fact that the view was obstructed by a piece of woods near by and a trestle beside the track.

There was no flagman at the crossing, when the accident occurred, and it was thought by many that Mr. Mantz would receive the full amount sued for.

WAS ROBBERY HIS OBJECT?

Mr. John Stevens Has a Midnight Visitor.

About 12:15 o'clock this morning, Mrs. John Stevens, who lives at the corner of Second and Peace streets, was awakened by a noise in the lower part of the house. She aroused her husband, who went below to see what the cause of it was, and found there a journeyman blacksmith named Murray whom he had discharged Saturday night.

Mr. Stevens called Policeman Frederickson, who took Murray to the lockup.

In the court this morning Murray said that he had found the door open and walked in. Mr. Stevens stated that the door was locked. As it could not be proven that the man intended to steal, he was simply held for disorderly conduct. Judge Coddington sentenced him to 15 days in the county jail.

BREVITIES.

—The case of Hulett vs. Gwynett, in attachment was laid over to-day to Thursday, May 18.

—The Young People's League of the First Baptist church is arranging for a sociable to be held in the lecture room of the church.

—The train due in this city at 1.59 p. m. was an hour late to-day. The delay was caused by the engine blowing out a cylinder head at Westfield.

—James Tracey, the shoemaker, of East Front street, was arrested yesterday, by Delinquent Tax Collector Nash, and taken to the county jail, for nonpayment of poll tax.

—The Catholic Young Men's Lyceum has decided to run an excursion to Highland Beach on August 3. The following committee has been appointed to make the arrangements: T. Comerford, D. Carty, M. W. Whalen, J. J. Kenney, and T. McInerney.

—Marsh, Ayers and Co., the painters, have just completed painting Mr. Brainard's barn on Fifth street and are now at work on Mr. Bland's barn, next door. This enterprising firm has also commenced work giving Mr. Chas. Smith's saloon a fresh coat of paint.

—Mr. Clark of this city, a brother-in-law of ex-Freeholder Pierson of Westfield who received $24,000 damages from the Central Railroad Company, as told in yesterday's News, says that the statement in another paper to the effect that Mr. Pierson had been offered $25,000 before the trial to settle the matter, is untrue.

Fire Officers at Scotch Plains.

Last Wednesday night the Chemical Engine Company of Scotch Plains elected the following officers:

Foreman—W. H. Buckley.
First Assistant—Chas. Haberle.
Second Assistant—Geo. A. Clark.
Treasurer—Jas. A. Baker.
Secretary—Fred. Hoppell.
Representatives to Relief Association, P. R. Reddin and Chas. Haberle.

The Warren Mission Transferred.

The final meeting of the Warren Union Mission Society for the transfer of the chapel to the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, was held last evening. Trustees David Kyne, and Edward R. Ryder were present. The other member of the Board, Mr. Frank H. Gardner, was unable to be present, owing to illness.

Bicyclist Stigler Fined.

John Stigler of Fanwood appeared before Justice Nash, last evening, to answer to the charge of riding a bicycle on the sidewalks at Fanwood. He pleaded guilty and paid a fine of three dollars and costs.

THE OLD BOARD RE-ELECTED.

Annual Meeting of the Music Hall Stockholders.

The stockholders of the Music Hall Association held their annual meeting last evening in Music Hall parlors, for the election of a Board of Directors.

There was no opposition and the old Board was re-elected. They are as follows: Mayor Alexander Gilbert, C. A. Marsh, O. T. Waring, W. J. Roome, J. W. Murray, R. A. Hegeman, L. V. F. Randolph, M. W. Tyler, W. E. Lowe, A. T. Gallop and J. B. Dumont.

The annual report of the association was read and accepted, also a report of the president of the Board, Mayor Gilbert, stating that since the last meeting the hall had been rented for a term of three years.

The inspectors of election were Wm. M. Stillman, Col. Julius Scott and Edward D. Pope.

NUPTIALS.

Worth—Pease.

A very pretty home wedding occurred at 209 Park place at six o'clock last evening. The contracting parties were William Owen Worth, son of the late Thomas Worth, of Grove street, and Miss Mary Whitmore Pease, daughter of Mr. Edward G. Pease. Owing to the serious illness of the groom's mother, the marriage was made a quiet affair, only the immediate relatives of both families being present. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church. The decorations consisted mostly of roses. The gifts were numerous and costly. Prof. Conde and Rogers furnished the music, and Rose was the caterer.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Benton of New York are at the Albion for the Summer.

Miss Caroline Knowland of Logan's Ferry is visiting Miss Streull of Hillside avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Davett of Washington avenue, North Plainfield, have moved to Newark.

Mrs. S. J. Taylor and her daughter, Mrs. Webster, are visiting at Mrs. F. C. Harder's on Madison avenue.

Mr. William D. Brady of Raritan was the guest yesterday of his brother, Mr. Irving Bradley of East Fifth street.

Next Thursday morning Bishop Scarborough will be at Holy Cross church to administer the rights of confirmation.

Dr. Aspinwall of New York was the guest Sunday of Mr. Frank E. Miller, proprietor of the Albion, on Park avenue.

On Friday, May 26, Miss Spangenberg will speak before the Young People's League of the First Baptist church in the interest of the Christian Endeavor Society.

Mr. Carl Bohm of New Dover and Miss Mary E. Smith of Isella were united in marriage on Wednesday, April 26th, by the Rev. Dr. Barnes, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in this city.

The president of the Ramahai Circle, Mrs. S. P. Taylor, requested that the members of the Circle kindly send all dues to her previous to the annual meeting, to be held about the 20th of this month, notice of which will be given later.

The wedding of Miss Sophia M. Mowinkel, daughter of William Mowinkel, to Mr. George W. Cheshire, of this city, was solemnized March 11, 1893, by the Rev. Wesley Martin at the home of the bride's parents, 136 Inter street. Many of the friends and relatives will be surprised to learn of the wedding.

The one hundred and fifth General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, will begin in Washington on the 18th inst. The delegates to represent the Elizabeth Presbytery are ministers Rev. J. C. Hanmer, of Lamington, and Rev. N. W. Cadwell, of Westfield; alternates, Rev. Dr. Ketchum, of Plainfield, and Rev. George H. Payson, of Rahway; elders, H. C. Squire, of Plainfield, and Hon. William H. Corbin, of Elizabeth.

The Rev. Dr. Richard D. Wheatley of Irvington-on-the-Hudson, preached a sermon before the Methodist ministers at their regular weekly meeting in New York yesterday, on the "Sovereignty of Christ." The Rev. Dr. C. Barnes, of this city, the President of the meetings, presided. The other speakers were the Rev. O. W. Lightburn, the Rev. J. A. Roche, the Rev. J. R. Knowles, and Mr. Edwin Arrowsmith of London, who represents the Seaside Missions of England, which work among the young people at the seaside resorts.

Suicide in State Prison.

Charles Fogel, a convict just beginning a sentence of ten years in the State prison at Trenton, committed suicide on Sunday. He arrived at the prison last Thursday, having been sent from Union county, convicted of breaking and entering.

He tied a handkerchief around his neck and then hitched it to a long hook used to hold in place the upper cot when not in use. He then buried his face in the lower cot and strangled quickly. The book left a deep indention in the neck. The body has been claimed by relatives.

A FAMILY DIVIDED.

THE BRUNSONS AND VANDEVENTERS SUITS AND COUNTERSUITS.

The Result of a Codicil to the Late Jeremiah Van Deventer's Will—History of the Cases—A Case in which Law and Relations are Sadly Mixed.

Jeremiah R. Vandeventer, deceased, who was for many years president of the First National Bank of this city, had a daughter, who, a quarter of a century ago, became the wife of Peter Brunson of New Brunswick. They had two children, a girl and a boy, both now of age.

Mrs. Vandeventer was greatly attached to his son in law and wife, and particularly so toward their children, as referred to—his grand-children.

He made a will, leaving nearly all his property to his grand-children, subject to provisions for the care of his daughter, their mother, during their father's life. Mr. Peter Brunson, executor.

Later, through some cause unknown to Mr. Brunson, a codicil was added making Mrs. Brunson and their son the executors, leaving the father out in the cold.

Then Mr. Vandeventer died, leaving property valued at about $200,000. That was some four or five years ago.

Mr. Brunson had claims against the estate which he sought to have recognized, but his wife and his son opposed his claim, and he says life was made so intolerable for him that he was compelled to leave his wife and children and live alone in New Brunswick, where he owns considerable property.

His seeking settlement of his claims led to a series of litigations, which have kept the matter in the courts for several years past.

Some confusion and misunderstanding as to just what was decided by Judge Magie in the case of Vandeventer vs. Brunson, as reported in THE NEWS of May 5th instant, may arise unless a brief history of the litigation, which has several times been referred to, be given:

In November, 1890, Mr. Brunson commenced suit in the New Jersey Supreme Court against his wife and son, the executors of Jeremiah R. Vandeventer, deceased, through his counsel, Messrs. Jackson & Codington, to recover $15,000, which he claimed was due to him from the estate for money loaned and services rendered. For a part of this claim he holds Mr. Vandeventer's note.

In January, 1891, the executors, through their counsel, Mr. E. V. Lindabury, filed a plea of the general issue alone, which means that they had decided to contest the claim.

The case was postponed from time to time, until the fall of 1892, when a motion was made by Mr. Lindabury, before Judge Magie holding the Circuit Court at Somerville, for leave to amend his pleading by filing the plea of the statute of limitations, that is to set up that by reason of the lapse of six years between the time of the right of action accruing and the bringing of suit the right to sue was barred by the statute.

Judge Magie denied this motion.

Mr. Lindabury then renewed the motion before the Supreme Court, and his motion was again denied, the ground being that such a plea as he sought to interpose was an impertinence, and would not be allowed to be filed after time.

Mr. Lindabury then applied to Judge Magie for leave to file the plea—that one of the defendant executors is the wife of the plaintiff, and therefore could not be sued in this action. The motion was opposed by plaintiff's counsel and Judge Magie declined to grant it and referred it to the Supreme Court for the reason that when the matter has been argued before the Supreme Court and his decision reserved.

This is the present status of Mr. Brunson's suit for services and money loaned to Mr. Vandeventer.

In the meantime Mrs Vandeventer, the widow of Jeremiah R. Vandeventer and the mother of Mr. Brunson's wife, has held a bond and mortgage against him on real estate owned by him in New Brunswick, for $3,000, on the 23rd day of May, 1889, commenced suit against him on this bond. As an offset to the claim in this suit Mr. Brunson filed a claim for services rendered during the years 1889 and 1890, in the supervision of the mortgaged premises and in re-investing her money for her when mortgages would be paid off. He claimed that he secured about $100 per year and giving her credit for $40 per year on account it left the balance $120, not $3,000 as was stated in the article referred to.

For the previous seven or eight years she had paid him for like services $100 each year.

This last suit to which the same counsel were engaged on both sides as in the other suit was the suit which was decided last week by Judge Magie. Mr. Brunson admitted he gave the bond and mortgage and amount due thereon in fact further than the amount in the trial he offered to pay Mrs. Vandeventer the amount due her on the bond against the bond and mortgage she held against him to a party who would furnish the money to pay her. He also offered to the plaintiff being ample security for the amount. This she refused to do giving as a reason that if the mortgage were assigned the assignee would have the right to foreclose and sell the dower right of Mr. Brunson's wife, Mrs. Vandeventer's daughter, in the mortgaged premises.

On the trial of the case the only witness who testified against Mr. Brunson's claim for $120 was Mrs. Vandeventer, and Mr. Brunson's counsel claimed to be aware that he did the services for which his father claimed payment during the last year.

Judge Magie thereupon gave judgment in favor of plaintiff (the father) and decided against Mr. Brunson's claim for $120.

Thus the matter rests at the present time. It is an unfortunate family trouble in a family long highly respected in this community.

NINTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

Meeting of the State Foreign Missionary Societies.

The ninth annual convention of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Baptist Church of New Jersey was held in the Baptist Church of Haddonfield Thursday, Mrs. F. A. Pike, first vice-president, of Plainfield, presiding.

The report of the secretary and treasurer showed contributions from the Baptist associations for the year amounting to $15,106.15, an increase of about $2,500 over the report of last year. Encouraging reports were read from the female missionaries in Africa, China, India, and Japan.

At the evening session reports were read from the young women of New Jersey who are engaged in foreign mission work, and addresses were made by others who are preparing for the foreign mission fields. Mrs. A. Pettit of Elizabeth, Junior State secretary, who presided, also made and interesting address on the work of the society.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. W. C. Butler, Plainfield; vice-president, Mrs. F. A. Pike, Plainfield; Mrs. I. C. Wynn, Camden; Mrs. A. Pettit, Elizabeth; Mrs. A. R. Rembower, Salem; Mrs. A. M. Brooks, Morristown; Mrs. C. C. Tiley, Bridgeton; Miss C. P. Whitehead, Trenton; Miss Maggie Morford, New Monmouth; Miss Julia Higgins, Flemington, corresponding secretary, and treasurer, Mrs. B. J. Shreve, Plainfield; recording secretary, Miss Maggie Morford, New Monmouth.

Executive Committee—Mrs. J. Conklin, Trenton; Mrs. T. Greenelle Glenwood; Mrs. H. P. Stilwell, Freehold; Miss Emma Levan, New Brunswick; Mrs. Thacher, Florence, and Miss Agnes Bannister, Haddonfield.

WRECKED HIS BREECHES.

Sorrowful Experience of a Cyclist from Plainfield.

[From the Elizabeth Herald.]

A bicycle which has pneumatic tires is just the proper thing to ride on over our county roads that are nicely macadamized and smooth as a board, but when it comes to rolling over trap block and cobble stone like Broad and Jersey streets, "not to speak of Elizabeth avenue, it is quite a different thing, and the cyclist who rides it runs a big risk of coming to grief.

Yesterday afternoon about 3.30 o'clock, a young man seated astride a Royal Blue pneumatic, went spinning down East Jersey street. When in front of the old Presbyterian mansion, the tire on his front wheel burst, making a report like a heavy pistol. The sudden collapse of the tire pitched the rider headforemost over the wheel to the hard uneven pavement.

At first it was thought that the young man was badly injured, but this happily, proved not to be the case, the only damage he sustained being torn breeches and one or two slight bruises.

The young man, after gazing mournfully for a minute or two at the collapsed and useless wheel, as though wondering within himself what it all meant and how it came about, turned sadly toward the prostrate form which he had come, pushing his damaged steed before him. He was a stranger to Elizabeth, and is said to live in Plainfield.

THE DIOCESAN CONVENTION.

Began at New Brunswick this Morning.

The 109th annual convention of the diocese met this morning in Christ Church, New Brunswick, for the transaction of routine business. The deputies to the General Convention hold over, and no election of delegates to the election of standing committees is the most important business of the coming session. In case of the death, absence or disability of the Bishop, they are the ecclesiastical authority of the diocese. This will be the fourth time the deputies in their choice. The first assembly of clergy and laity after the revolutionary war was in Christ Church, New Brunswick, in 1785. It is therefore historic ground.

All Saints' Mission, Scotch Plains, has just been changed into a parish, and has chosen wardens and vestrymen of its own. The Rev. Edw. H. True, who has been officiating for some time, has been elected rector of the new parish.

Amusements.

To the question as to how stars are made, the Business Manager for Miss Herndon says: "It might appropriately be said they are born, not made. I am supported in this view of the case by all that has occurred theatrically within the last ten or fifteen years. The proportion of successes is marvelously small. In the case of Miss Herndon her great reputation has been gained solely by her ability as an actress. She has resorted to none of the advertising devices which have been used by other women of many other actresses prominently before the American public. Her claim for favor is based upon her merits alone, and the favor which has been accorded to her proves that her merits are recognized and appreciated."

Miss Herndon will be at Music Hall in "A Woman's Revenge," Thursday evening.

To Meet at Washingtonville.

At the Washingtonville memorial chapel, Thursday evening, the Spring Convention of the Plainfield Local Union of Christian Endeavor will take place. The Rev. Dr. Lewis, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, will make the principal address.

WORLD HUNTS A DEMON.

A New York daily paper, taking up the idea conveyed in Ramarion's exciting novel, "Omega: The last days of the World," has interviewed a number of the leading men in all professions as to what they would do if science were to predict to-morrow that the end of the world would arrive within the next thirty days. The answers are various and curious, and heighten the interest which is felt in the second part of Rammarion's great novel, which appears in the May COSMOPOLITAN. It is a question which everyone will find interesting to ask of himself: What would you do it within six weeks the end of the world were certain.

HOW MR. SELOUS BEGAN.

But from his youth up Mr. Selous was seized with a passion for wandering adventure, which could only be satisfied in other lands than ours. He himself speaks of an inborn love for all branches of natural history, which was stimulated by the early study of all works on sport and travel on which he could lay his hands, until the belonging for the free and easy gypsy sort of life described by Gordon Cumming, Baldwin, and others became insupportable, and leaving England behind him he began his career of adventure in South Africa at the early age of nineteen. This was in September, 1871. He started life with £400 in his pockets and a constitution that was worth many hundred pounds. He remained in the hunting field from 1871 till 1875. After a year in England he returned to his first love, spent another five years in the African interior. He returned home in 1881 for a brief visit, but since then, although he has twice run over to the old country during the season, he has practically made South Africa his home. For the last three years he has been working with the Chartered Company in Mashonaland. He is now arranging the wonderful collection of trophies and writing his book.

Base Ball Notes.

The game next Saturday in this city will be between the Crescents and the young Americas of Philadelphia.

The Young Senators have been organized with players under 14 years of age. They will be ready to engage with any teams composed of boys under that age. For particulars address F. Howitt, captain, 66 East Third street.

Some complaint has been made by the patrons of base ball, that the score board on the ball ground was not clear and distinct enough, so Captain Holford has taken the matter in charge, and will give the public the benefit of his extensive experience by having a new board so arranged that all will be able to see the score.

Were They Pallister and Roehl?

William Manetel, a Rahway farmer, thinks Pallister and Roehl, the escaped Sing Sing murderers, spent Saturday night in his barn. Sunday morning he found two men in his barn. They wanted to know the most direct line to steamers to Key West and the West Indies. His description tallies with that of the escaped prisoners.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Ever Read the Constitution?

The editor of Harper's Magazine suggests mildly that instead of so many attempts at amending the United States constitution an effort be made to amend the general intelligence in regard to that constitution. The hint is a good one. It has been proposed as a requirement for naturalization that the applicant be able to read the United States constitution and show that he understands its provisions. Did it ever occur to the reformers to apply the same test to native born citizens? Or to some cases have been voting 40 years or more?

In fact, if put upon the witness stand under oath to tell the truth in fear of death, how many of even intelligent people, men and women, would be forced to confess they had never read the constitution of their own country, that admirable document which Professor Goldwin Smith recently held up to the whole British nation, as showing how much superior our government is to theirs?

The average American citizen ought at least to read that precious document twice a year. Classes should be formed for its study, if not now, then next winter. The confounding—not to say confounded—commentaries that have been written on it are not needed. It is not hard to understand in its splendid simplicity, with the added light of American common sense. The instrument alone, with the history of its adoption, will be the true basis of work and study. Teachers should first acquaint themselves with both, then teach the same carefully to their pupils. This would save many fool ideas in regard to legislation.

Paddy's Piano.

We regret to learn that the hair of the ages will probably not appear to delight visitors at the World's fair. Paderewski, the pianist—Paderewski, the adorable—before whom women go down as grass before a prairie fire, at whose feet one frenzied feminine indeed did throw herself bodily in a public concert room—Paddy of the flowing red mane may not be able to play at the World's fair.

The reason is that there has been music in that line among pianos which is far different, as proof from that which drips from Paderewski's paws. Some New York piano men secured valuable space at the Chicago exposition, then at the last moment backed down and declared they would make no exhibition at all. New York loves Chicago, and Chicago adores New York, as all the world knows, and the queer conduct of the piano men increased on both sides that affection, such as it is.

The secretary of the fair decided that the seceding piano men should not be allowed to use any pianos of their make at the entertainments during the exposition. This threw out the only piano which the Paderewski ever uses; therefore it threw out Pad himself, with all his hair. New York is sat upon, Chicago is satisfied, but womankind is sad. Doubtless Pad is mad enough to cut his hair.

We Hope It Is True.

Marion Crawford thinks American taste has improved wonderfully in the past 10 years. He is probably correct in the main. It says that the aesthetic impulse which our ladies especially have manifested is only the natural outcome of the womanly nature which refines itself as soon as it has the opportunity. In illustration of the general elevation and refining of taste in the social realm Mr. Crawford says in The Ladies' Home Journal:

> There used to be an extraordinary stiffness, of which all who can remember must be aware, which contrasted unseemly enough with the grammatical license of the speech of those days. Within the last few years the language of which itself society has improved by resuming something, if not all, of the Anglo-Saxon rigidity. Waste, on the other hand, has grown more fanciful, pliant and graceful. *It is no longer a dis*tinction to have a solid mahogany to have a semiclassic marble statue in the hall and the stone effigy of an uncle or aunt in the dining room. Moreover, the movements of these aesthetic monstrosities are fast disappearing, too—the expensive and bad imitations of oriental stuffs, the profuse crops of useless knickknacks which used to make tables unserviceable for ordinary purposes and rooms almost unhabitable for beings endowed with reason.

This is probably true. All the same we observe that directions for constructing homemade burned match holders trimmed with yellow ribbons still follow the rounds of the woman's page in the newspaper as regularly as the mother-in-law joke.

Mrs. Frances E. Russell is one of the leaders in the present agitation for the wearing of short dresses by women. She presents the strongest argument yet advanced for the short dress in the following two sentences, which she quotes from Frances M. Steele. It refers to a class of gymnasium girls: "The grace of the feet and legs below gymnastic dresses that fell a little lower than the knees was a delight and something to be desired for all womankind. These girls were to me like draped souls, so utterly unconscious were they of arms or legs." Once women are persuaded that they will be beautiful and graceful in short dresses, the work which doctors, scientists, saints and reformers have striven in vain to accomplish will be done.

All the world will be glad to know that Maud S will trot again, and to a bicycle sulky on a kite shaped track. Maud is eighteen years old now, but will be put into training to break the bicycle sulky record. Mr. Bonner believes she can do it.

HOSTS OF REPUBLICANS.

The "Grand Old Party" Leaders Gathering In Kentucky.

HATCHING PRESIDENTIAL PLOTS.

The Friends of Ex-President Harrison Expected to Make Some Move—President Clarkson May Resign, and He May Not.

Programme of the Convention.

LOUISVILLE, May 9.—This place is rapidly taking on the appearance of a city about to be plunged into the throes of a national political convention when presidential hopes are blasted or made to bloom. The present convention of National Republican league clubs is almost of as much importance as a president nominating convention. The city is full to running over this morning with prominent Republicans, and the air is full of startling political rumors. The interest centers on the movements of ex-President Harrison's friends and on the attitude of League President Clarkson.

J. S. CLARKSON.

One of the rumors is to the effect that ex-President Harrison intends to succeed Mr. Clarkson as president of the league. The ex-president's friends are quartered at the Galt House.

When General Clarkson was approached by a reporter he said Mr. Manley was the bureau of information. Mr. Manley said: "I do not know a darned thing. If I did I would not be here. I came here to find out what was to be done and to answer my country's call."

At the headquarters of the league in the Galt House at noon today there was a lively scene. The members of the executive committee of the National league were gathering for the meeting which is now in session. What will be done at this meeting will be to feel the pulse of the convention *and reap out tomorrow's and Thurs*day's programme.

Kentucky Elects Delegates.

At 10 o'clock this morning the Kentucky State league's convention was called to order in McCauley's theater by President J. L. Crawford of Newport. The election of delegates to attend the National league convention was then begun. There is a large attendance, and the convention may not get through before late tonight.

The programme of the meetings of the National league proper will be as follows:

Wednesday, 10 a. m. to 12 m.—Convention called to order; address of welcome; appointment of committees on credentials; order of business, resolutions, league organization and work, place of meeting, etc.; report of former committee on league work, and discussion on same.

Wednesday, 2 p. m.—Report of committees on credentials and order of business; general business, continuation of discussion on league and league organization and annual address of President Clarkson.

It is probable that the league will likewise be had Wednesday afternoon in order that the delegates may attend the derby.

A mass meeting will be held at Phoenix Hill park on Wednesday night. Each State will be represented by one speaker.

Kentucky's representative will be Hon. W. O. Bradley. The other State delegates have not yet chosen their speakers.

A business session will be held Thursday morning. Reports of committees will be heard, standing committees will be chosen, and the officers of the league to serve during the coming year will be elected.

Two Thousand Delegates.

The number of delegates to the league convention is about 2,000. Besides there will be several thousand visitors.

From 2 to 3 p. m. on Thursday the annual meeting will be held at Phoenix Hill park on College league ball ground. President James Francis Burke of Pittsburg will deliver his address. A vocal and instrumental concert and promenade will follow. The Woman's Republican association of the United States will hold a convention, but the exact time has not been fixed.

Special excursions will be arranged for today. The New Albany Republicans took the visitors down the river on the Sunshine. An excursion to Mammoth cave was also made by many delegates.

The Philadelphia delegation arrived in a private car tendered to National Committeeman Boyle by the Pennsylvania company. They were accompanied by President J. S. Clarkson of Iowa, Lieutenant Governor Stewart Charles H. Bartlett of New Hampshire, Garret A. Hobart of New Jersey, David Martin of Philadelphia and J. H. Manley of Augusta, Me. General Hastings of Bellefonte, Pa., and James F. Burke, president of the college league of Pittsburg, were also in the party.

It is likely that there will be a spirited fight for the position of secretary of the National league.

Mr. A. D. Humphrey, who at present holds the position, could be re-elected if he so desired, but he has issued an ultimatum to the effect that he will not accept under any circumstances, and a choice lot of candidates has been presented to succeed him. Among the most prominent of these are Theodore Stubb of Philadelphia, A. J. Lewis of Springfield, Ill., P. J. Burke of Pittsburg, who is now president of the College League club; R. H. Lindsay of Pittsburg and Wm. R. E. Morley of this city, deputy collector under Colonel Scott. Mr. Rielly, although he has not announced his candidacy, is the favorite of a large proportion of the delegates, and many are of the opinion that he has a splendid chance to win. His local republican enemies will, however, do all in their power to down him. In fact, they have already gone to work.

Mrs. Foster Takes a Hand.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster of Iowa is here. Mrs. Foster is president of the National Women's Republican association, and she expects to meet a hundred or more representatives of that body here. She has engaged rooms at the Galt House. Mrs. Foster has for years been actively engaged in the fight for prohibition in Iowa and also in the organization of women Republican clubs in all the western states. Just after the presidential election she formed 125 Republican ladies' clubs in Kansas, and the fact that the Republican party has won in a majority of the local elections since is attributed to her work. Mrs. Foster and Mrs. Lease are bitter opponents, and the former's entire efforts are at present directed to defeating the plans of the latter—to organize the women of Kansas and Iowa into an adjunct of the Farmers' Alliance.

The New York delegates are expected to arrive this afternoon about 4 o'clock.

There are 38 delegates representing the various Republican organizations and congressional districts of New York city, but about 70 delegates are expected to go from the entire state. The New York city party was joined by other delegates at Poughkeepsie, Syracuse, Albany and Buffalo. At Syracuse they took a special car for the rest of the trip.

The New York party, in addition to the regular delegates from the congressional districts, had also a representation from the Republican county committee of the city and the local branch of the College league.

The party was in charge of Colonel E. A. McAlpin and Henry Gleason. Among the prominent delegates were James A. Blanchard, Thomas F. Wentworth, C. T. Shane, L. F. Guigg, W. D. Barron, T. C. Campbell, Lucius Scapp, R. B. Hertford and John K. Milholland.

WARNER GIVES UP.

After a Brilliant Career as a Money Maker He Assigns.

ROCHESTER, May 9.—H. H. Warner, the patent medicine man, has given up the struggle against adverse fate and filed his general assignment for the benefit of creditors in the Monroe county clerk's office. The assignment is in the usual form and gives of course no hint of the amount of either the assets or liabilities. Job E. Hedges of New York city is the assignee.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Mr. Warner's business career has been of more than ordinary interest. He first acquired money as agent in Rochester for a Cincinnati safe firm. With this beginning he started his patent medicine business, which brought him a fortune. About five years ago he decided to sell English rights in this preparation and offered stock of the H. H. Warner company, limited, in the London market. The English brokers bought at him and sold his stock before they owned it. He forced them to pay him well to make good their delivery contracts and came back to this country with a bag of English money and nearly all the stock of the company. At about that time he is said to have sold all except a nominal interest in the Rochester business.

Mr. Yates says he began to take care of Mr. Warner's paper in March and continued to do so on Mr. Warner's assurance that money was coming to him from England, with which the advances would be made good. Its failure to arrive swamped Mr. Yates, and Mr. Warner is believed to have been unable to stand the strain which this assignment and the attendant publicity put upon his resources.

Lizzie Borden Arraigned.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 9.—Lizzie Andrew Borden was arraigned on three indictments before Justice John W. Hammond. The first indictment was for the murder of her father and stepmother, and the second and third indictments for their murder at one time. On each indictment the prisoner answered in a clear voice and without hesitation, "I am not guilty." She was then taken to the county jail and met the gaze of the curious crowd with apparent indifference. She was taken back to Taunton jail. It is generally known that the case will be called at the regular term early in June.

Election Expenses Bankrupt Davitt.

LONDON, May 9.—Michael Davitt, anti-Parnellite member for northeast Cork, has applied for the Chiltern hundreds. This means the resignation of his seat in parliament. Although the Chiltern hundreds allows a man six months grace after he has been declared a bankrupt Mr. Davitt prefers retiring at once. Davitt's financial troubles were caused by the costs attendant upon the north Meath election contest.

The Chemical National Shuts Up.

CHICAGO, May 9.—The Chemical National bank of this city, which established a branch at Jackson park, where World's fair concessionaires have been depositing their cash, has closed its doors. It is hoped that the assets will satisfy the liabilities, but nothing definite in this respect could be discovered by National Bank Examiner Scripps, who was asked to take charge of the affairs of the institution.

Once Cost a Year.

BONDOUT, N. Y., May 9.—Probably the cheapest road ever constructed in the United States was accepted this spring in Delaware county. The distance between Bloomville and Delhi is eight miles, and the contract price of the entire line has agreed to carry the mail between the two places for four years at one cent per annum.

Infanta Eulalia's Movements.

HAVANA, May 9.—The Infanta Eulalia, an aunt of the young Spanish king, and the representative of French royalty at the Chicago exposition, arrived in this city from Porto Rico. She was accorded a splendid reception. When their sojourn here is over they will proceed for New York aboard a warship.

Released the Hats.

WORK FOR A WHITE SHIP

Trouble at Nicaragua Demands a War Vessel There.

PROTECTION FOR OUR CITIZENS.

The United States Without a Representative There—The Atlanta Will Probably Be Sent—The President Preparing to Move in the Country.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The serious aspect of the revolution in Nicaragua will probably result in the United States sending a war vessel to the west coast of the perturbed country. Such action is being considered by Secretary Gresham, and if the revolution assumes the proportions that now seems imminent, he will request Secretary Herbert to send one of his ships to the scene of the trouble. No information has been received at the state department concerning the fighting since Consular Agent Holeman wired Mr. Gresham late last week that a serious revolt had occurred. Newspaper accounts have, however, shown the administration that the affair is of no mean dimensions. It is probable that the question of sending a vessel to Nicaragua's being discussed at the meeting of the cabinet today. An unusual number of vessels are available for sea service on account of the presence in home waters consequent on the naval review, but it is the event that it is decided to send a ship the Atlanta will doubtless be selected. She is in New York and can be made ready for the journey in four hours.

It has always been customary for the government to send a naval vessel to the scene of disturbance on any serious internal dissensions have taken place, on account of the large interests of United States citizens in nearly all of those countries. An additional reason for sending a vessel to Nicaragua at this time is that the United States is left without a diplomatic representative at the Nicaraguan capital on account of the expulsion of minister Jot following the incoming of a new administration.

Mr. Richard C. Shannon, minister at Nicaragua under Mr. Harrison, sailed from Colon Saturday for New York, while Mr. Lewis Baker, his successor, reached Panama on the same day, and at last accounts was waiting for a steamer to take him to a Nicaraguan port.

Office Seekers Scared Off.

The White House was almost deserted today. The halls no longer resounded to the noise of the office seekers. The politicians and office seekers gathered at the hotels and discussed the president's order with earnestness, and frequently in anything but good humor. Many senators and representatives were inclined to view the order favorably, but it was not popular with the rank and file. The objectors said the order was an arbitrary and unprecedented exercise of power.

Baby Ruth Going to the Country.

President Cleveland and Colonel Lamont will go out to their country house in all probability within the next week. The mansion repairs are now about finished, but there is considerable work to be accomplished in getting the stables ready. Mrs. Cleveland is personally looking after the work about the place, and drives out there nearly every day. It is said that the change to the country will be in many respects much more attractive than Oak View was in its day.

The New York's Trial Trip.

The board appointed by Secretary Herbert to conduct the trial of the armored cruiser No. 2, the New York, will assemble on board the vessel at Philadelphia tomorrow. The purpose of the board is to examine the vessel and witness the trial of the cruiser and her machinery.

After the examination in the harbor, the vessel having been weighted to a draft of 24 feet, the board will proceed in her to the vicinity of Cape Ann, Mass., for the purpose of conducting the four hours' runs over a measured course 40 nautical miles in length.

Deaf for a Year
Caused by
Catarrh in the Head

CATARRH is a CONSTITUTIONAL disease, and requires a CONSTITUTIONAL REMEDY like Hood's Sarsaparilla to cure it. Read:

"Three years ago, as a result of catarrh, I entirely lost my hearing and was deaf for more than a year. I tried various things to cure it, and had several physicians attempt it, but no permanent relief was given. I could hear people speak in front of me, but not distinctly enough to understand. I was finally prevailed upon by friends to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before one bottle was gone I could hear the ticking of a watch held in my hand. I continued taking it without the expectation of any further benefit, for my deafness had grown so deep seated that I had given up hope. But I am glad I did, for after three more bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla my hearing was perfect again. I can hear perfectly well. I am troubled but very little with the catarrh. I consider Hood's Sarsaparilla a valuable medicine, and cordially recommend it." HERMAN HICKS, 20 Carter Street, Rochester, N. Y.

HIS WORDS SUPPRESSED

Carlyle Harris' Statement Withheld by the Warden.

ANOTHER BURDEN FOR MRS. HARRIS

At Last She Accompanies Her Son Carlyle Away From the Grim Walls—The Interview Between the Mother and the Warden—The Death Notice.

SING SING, May 9.—The lifeless body of Carlyle Harris has left the grim walls which he hoped so long and so vainly to leave alive.

After a simple and private service this forenoon, the remains, inclosed in the antique oak casket, were taken to the station and mother and son left the town.

But a mystery still remains to be cleared up.

Before Carlyle Harris was executed he wrote a statement which he intended for publication the day after his death. No one knows but Warden Durston what that statement consists of, for where it is, and Warden Durston has refused to talk.

This adds a post mortem chapter to the career of the young medical student, who gained a widespread notoriety and lost his life because he was accused and convicted of poisoning his wife.

What Did Harris Write?

What does that statement contain? If it has been only temporarily suppressed for revision the public may some day know.

When Warden Durston was asked for the statement by the reporters, as it is said to be addressed to the press, he replied that when Mrs. Harris sent for it she could have it. It was learned that the statement had been revised by Carlyle Harris, at the warden's request, on Saturday and again on Monday morning. The warden had practically acted as censor over his prisoner even up to the moment of his electrocution.

Chaplain Wells was found by the reporters, and he admitted that the state ments was in his pocket, but he refused to give it out until he took it to the warden. He said the warden had already seen the statement, and that it had been revised and partly rewritten by Harris, as the warden objected to a portion of its contents. Young Allan Harris said his brother told him the same thing. Mrs. Harris also said that the warden had compelled her son to omit some things that he had written.

Chaplain Wells took the statement to Warden Durston, and then dropped mys teriously out of sight. A few minutes after the warden saw the chaplain Mrs. Harris sent her son Allan on the press to ask for the statement. The warden was looking over his correspondence when Allan Harris called. When the young man said that his mother desired the statement and was very anxious about it, the warden said sharply:

Spoke Sharply to Her.

"I haven't got it. I can't be bothered attending to the matter. Mrs. Harris, I've got this prison to run. Tell your mother that as soon as I get the statement I will send it to her."

Young Harris went away very much shaken up. Mrs. Harris was at her boarding house on the hill all this time. With her was Mrs. W. J. Goldey, who arrived in the afternoon with a handsome wreath of immortelles and violets bearing the inscriptions "At Rest" and "Innocence." Mrs. Harris decided to call on Warden Durston herself and ask for her son's statement. The two ladies, accompanied by Allen drove to the prison. They took with them the wreath of flowers to place upon the coffin. Warden Durston refused to allow them to take the flowers to the coffin. Then Mrs. Harris asked for the statement made by her son. The warden remained seated with his hat on during the interview and replied that he had not got the statement and had not seen it. Mrs. Harris protested that he certainly had seen the statement, and she had been told that the chaplain had left it with the warden. Mr. Durston said:

"I haven't got it. That's all there is about it."

"Where is it then?" asked Mr. Harris.

"I have mailed it to Superintendent of Prisons Lathrop at Albany."

"But you promised my son that you would hand it to me."

"I can't help that."

"And can I get it at Albany?"

"I don't know."

"Oh, this is terrible!" said the agonized woman, and she seemed nearer to the point of breaking down than when the news of her son's death reached her. Supported by herson Allan, she wildly ran to the carriage. She paused before entering the carriage to declare that Warden Durston had disregarded his own promises and the dying request of her son, and was now endeavoring to prevent the statement from ever being published.

Warden Durston said afterward that he could use his own discretion about giving out the statement, and he therefore thought it the best policy to send it to Albany. He said that it was mailed last evening.

Allan Harris gave the following notice to the newspaper correspondents, with the request that it be inserted in the columns of their notices:

HARRIS—Carlyle Wentworth, eldest son of Charles L. and Frances McCready Harris, judicially murdered May 8, 1893.

Funeral private.

Not Heard From at Albany.

ALBANY, May 9.—The last statement of Carlyle W. Harris, which Warden Durston said had been mailed to the state prison department in the afternoon, had not yet reached here General Lathrop, the superintendent of prisons, is not in town, but his chief clerk was seen. The latter was not yet heard from Warden Durston, either by wire or mail regarding the statement.

A Chip Hat.

Here is an effective hat which owes its chief charm to the accommodating bend of its brim. It is of chip in two colors black on one side and yellow on the other. At the front the brim inclines toward a slight poke. At the side it flares straight up as though it delighted in showing every wave of the hair. In the back it has a tendency to roll over, giving a glimpse of the yellow side of the chip.

The crown is covered with broad loops of yellow watered ribbon, which appear to be held in place by long pins of black jet.

Playing at hide and seek with the ribbon loops are three-quarter length ostrich feathers. Those which rest against the ribbon are in black, and the one which falls over the brim in front is of pale yellow. This hat would go well with a black lace dress.

Plaid Waists.

Plaid silk waists are to be worn this summer with dark skirts. The silks are very cool and always look well. They are to be seen ready made, with full ruffles down the front and large, loose puffed sleeves. The waists are made so as to be worn either outside the skirt or inside with a fancy belt. Plaid skirts, however, are not as nice for summer wear as the light wash silks, which come in delicately colored patterns. These are made without lining, and when washed carefully preserve their good appearance for a long time.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP

THE SUNSHINE RECORDER.

An Instrument That Measures the Amount of Each Day's Brightness.

Science tells that the first sunshine recorder was the invention of Mr. John C. Campbell of Islay and consisted of a hemispherical bowl in which a spherical glass ball stood on a low pedestal. As the sun passed across the sky its rays, concentrated by the ball, burned a groove in the side of the bowl. With this instrument the amount of sunshine during six months was roughly recorded, and the character of individual months was fairly shown, but the grooves of two successive days could not be distinguished from each other, the change in the sun's declination being very slight. Slips of cardboard were afterward substituted for the wooden bowl, and in the present form of apparatus, devised by Sir G. G. Stokes, according to The Scottish Geographical Magazine, three brass grooves, concentric with the spherical lens and adjusted for the latitude, hold the cards for summer, winter and the equinoxes respectively. The cards are changed daily at sunset. This instrument is not without defects. When the sun is low, it ceases to act, and at all times the slightest film of cloud, hardly visible to the eye, is sufficient to check the burning power of the sun's rays.

Americanisms and Britishisms.

Mr. Brander Mathews in his book "Americanisms and Britishisms" discusses the differences of speech and spelling, and it is made apparent that these differences are much less than, say, 30 years ago. Here are a few of the differences in speech:

American—Railroad, conductor, grade, to switch, depot.

British—Railway, guard, gradient, to shunt, terminus.

Again:

American—Farmhand, to stay at a place, boots.

British—Agricultural laborer, to stop at a place, best root.

There never has been, Mr. Mathews points out, a perfect English language. There never will be one; or, at least, when one arrives it will be like the French of Racine—no longer spoken—or the Sanskrit of India—a sacred language. There must be always Americanisms, and these again breaking out into new forms in Florida or Oregon or South Carolina. There must be always Australian words, Indian words—all kinds of words.

Shetland Laces.

One of the picturesque features of the Shetland Isles are the women knitters, who produce quaint laces, the patterns of which are invented as they work and no two of which are alike. There are legends of how this peculiar knitting originated. Here is one of them: A lame girl who could only sit in a corner and watch the busy lives of others evoked the wish a trow (fairy), and one day, when the cripple sat listlessly plying her thick coarse knitting and watching a spider at work by the window, the trow whispered: "Copy the spider's web! Copy the spider's web!" The girl set to work, and thus was invented one of the most beautiful of the Shetland lace patterns. The knitters use no books, no patterns. A shell upon the seashore, an alpine blossom, a branch of seaweed, frost on a window pane, suggest devices. It is quite impossible for that reason to procure two lace articles exactly alike.

Atlantic Cables.

In July, 1866, the first permanent Atlantic cable was laid from Valentia bay, Ireland, to Trinity bay, Newfoundland, and in September of the same year a cable which had been lost in 1865 was recovered and its laying completed, thus giving two lines between the two points. The lines were known as the Anglo-American cable and were managed by a company of the same name. The French Atlantic Telegraph company was formed in 1869, and it laid a line from Brest, France, to Rexbury, Mass., the following year. The possibility of laying an electric cable in the Atlantic from Europe was suggested by Professor Morse as far back as 1843, but it was not until 1854 that Mr. Cyrus W. Field discussed the means of practically realizing the idea, and it is to his energy that the successful completion of this great work is due.

A Celebrated Piece of Metal Work.

Signor Boni, a well known Italian architect, has recently been renovating the celebrated metallic winged lion on the pillar in the Piazza San Marco, Venice. Originally, Signor Boni says, the lion was gilt, and traces of gilding were found on one of the paws. The eyeballs are of a vitreous material, white and pelucid, with triangular facets, but these do not appear to be the original eyes, which are supposed to have been of cornelian, chrysoprase or other opalesque quartz. The animal is constructed of small pieces of bronze about one-third of an inch thick, secured by screws to an iron framework. The framework and screws having rusted, it became necessary to remove the lion from the column and to replace the iron framework by a structure of bronze.

Paradoxes Among Animals.

The "birds of a feather" that "flock together" do not belong to the penguin family, as they are entirely destitute of feathers, having for a covering a kind of stiff down. Another penguin peculiarity is that it swims not on but under the water, never keeping more than its head out, and when fishing comes to the surface at such brief and rare intervals that an ordinary observer would almost certainly mistake it for a fish.

Ducks swim the world over, but geese do not. In South America a domestic species is found that cannot exist an ordinary hen in aquatic accomplishments. It has lived so long in a country where water is only found in wells that it has lost its aquatic tastes and abilities entirely.

Bible Inspiration.

The Boston Gazette advises:

If you are getting lazy, watch James.
If your faith is below par, read Paul.
If you are impatient, sit down quietly and have a talk with Job.
If you are just a little strong headed, go and see Moses.
If you are getting weakkneed, take a look at Elijah.
If there is no song in your heart, listen to David.

Truths Tersely Told.

It was George William Curtis who said: Age is a matter of feeling, not of years.

The depth may be calm, although the surface is dancing.

Anger is an expensive luxury in which only men of a certain income can indulge.

A pair of spectacles and a bad temper are not the most promising capital for success in life.

CURIOUS FOLKS

GRANDFATHER'S CLOCK.

An English Story of the Stirring Days of Cromwell's Time.

Yes, we all loved the grandfather's clock. No one quite knew how old it was, but it must have been very, very ancient. That was proved by the story attached to it—the story we children knew by heart, and yet that we could hear over and over again with ever fresh delight. Many were the visitors who came to see us who would ask the meaning of the words inscribed upon a silver plate let into the head of the clock, "A loyal friend and true."

HIDING THE DISPATCHES

And then we would tell them how in the stirring days of Cromwell, when all fair England was brought low with bloodshed and quarrels and civil wars, a young cavalier—a kinsman of our house—on his way to London with secret dispatches staggered into the hall one night breathless, exhausted and wounded, and sinking half fainting upon the floor had just enough strength left to hold out the packet of papers and entrust his kinsfolk to hide them before a party of Roundhead soldiers, who had been pursuing him for miles, came up and hammered loudly at the huge door (which had been hastily shut and barred) for admittance. Then we told how every one racked their brains for a safe hiding place for the papers, which if found by the Roundheads would bring death and ruin upon many noble families, and at last how some one suddenly thought of the clock, and the dispatches were slipped hurriedly in the narrow space behind its carved head.

And then the door was opened, and Cromwell's stern soldiers marched in and searched the young cavalier and every one in the house and the old mansion itself from garret to basement, but somehow not one of them thought of the clock, which stood regarding them gravely and ticked on as innocently as if it knew nothing about the precious secret it held. And the papers staid a week in their strange hiding place before an opportunity came to remove them and take them to their destination. And, by and by, when the barbarous times had passed, the family had the silver plate engraved with the words, "A loyal friend and true," and placed it upon the faithful old clock.

Penalties For Forfeits.

Penalties for forfeits there are in abundance, such as to laugh, cry, cough and sneeze in different manners, to dance, sing, to count 40 backward, to kiss your own shadow without laughing four separate times, to compose a rhymed verse, to buy on one foot three times round the room, to ask a riddle of each person in company or to repeat without hesitation or mistake some such brain puzzle as the following:

Robert Rowley rolled a round roll round;
A round roll Robert Rowley rolled round;
Where rested the round roll Robert Rowley rolled round?

Or the still more heartbreaking epic:

There was a man, and his name was Cob;
He had a wife, and her name was Mob;
He had a dog, and his name was Bob;
She had a cat, and her name was Chittybob

"Bob," says Cob;
"Chittybob," says Mob.
Bob was Cob's dog;
Mob's cat was Chittybob;
Cob, Mob, Bob and Chittybob!

The Sparrows That Quarreled.

Two little sparrows fell out one day
As they sat up in a tree.
One said, "I'm sure the nest is mine."
The other, "You were not here in time.
I'm sure it belongs to me."

Two pussy cats stopped to hear the dispute,
And they said: "'Tis sad to see
Little birds fall out and quarrel and fight.
Suppose we catch them both tonight
And eat them up for tea."

How Lord Macaulay Read.

That learned man, Lord Macaulay, tells in these words how he learned to read. He says:

When a boy, I began to read very earnestly, but at the foot of every page I read I stopped and obliged myself to give an account of what I had read on that page. At first I had to read it three or four times before I got my mind firmly fixed. But I compelled myself to comply with the plan, and also stopped short the farm and the house As busy as ever is bee;
When she rocked you all to sleep, dears,
And sent you all to school,
And wore herself out and did without
And lived by the golden rule.

And so your turn has come, dears.
Her hair is growing white,
And her eyes are gaining the faraway look
That goes beyond the night.
One of these days in the morning
Mother will not be here;
She will fade away into silence,
The smaller so true and dear.

Then what will you do in the daylight,
And what in the gloaming dim?
And father, tired, lonesome, then,
Pray, what will you do for him?
If you want to keep your mother,
You must make her rest your care;
Must give her a share in the frolic
And draw her into the play.

And if mother would listen to me, dears,
She'd buy her a gown of silk,
With buttons of opal to shine,
And ruffles as white as milk,
And she'd let you do the trotting.
White shoes not still to be worn,
That mother should have it hard all through,
It strikes me, isn't fair.

—Margaret E. Sangster in Interior.

Cleaning Pictures.

In cleaning house one of the principal cares should be the pictures. It is too often overlooked or left to the care of servants, when the mistress should give it her personal attention. Each picture as it is taken down should be carefully dusted, and the cord or wire wiped. Then lay it on a table, wash the glass and polish it until it is perfectly clear. Wipe the frame with a soft cloth wet in warm water and rub off all fly specks and other dirt. If the picture is framed with a glass, paste paper smoothly all over the back to keep dust from sifting through the cracks.

Frames of polished wood, oak, walnut, or in fact anything but gilt will be greatly improved by rubbing them with a solution 3 parts linseed oil and 1 part turpentine. Apply with a woolen cloth and rub with a dry woolen cloth until perfectly dry.—Philadelphia Press.

Little Things In the Sickroom.

When the little one is ill, the first thing is to make the sufferer comfortable. See that his pillow is not too high and is often shaken smooth; that the sheets are not crumpled and are well tucked in at the foot of the bed. A bath no more can be comfortable with the bedclothes untucked and working up about the ankles. How much greater is the discomfort when one is ill and the grasshopper is a burden and the rose leaf a weight! The same thing applies to the nightgown. See that it is pulled down under the child—it will not stay down, but the operation can be repeated often without injury to mother or patient.

Japanese Women at Home.

There is a marked similarity in the daily routine of the inmates of Japanese homes, whether they be homes of the rich or poor, the official or tradesman. The wife is always mistress of the house, and hers is the duty of in every way possible rendering the life of her husband happy and to be happy herself as far as she knows. The instruction of the daughters of the house is like the various domestic duties devolves upon the mother. The wardrobe of the entire family is the work of her hands, with the assistance perhaps of an aunt (obasan), maid or her growing daughters.—Dr. W. D. Eastlake in Popular Science Monthly.

Beware of the Mirror When Buying Hats.

"The mirror is woman's worst enemy," said a Fourth street milliner the other day after a hard day's siege fitting bonnets. "The mirror is all times a flatterer. A lady will stand in front of the glass and imagine that a bonnet becomes her and the colors are just the thing to suit her complexion. In many cases it is just the reverse, but there is no use of my saying a word about it, for the reason that the purchaser would think I had some object in view in making the suggestion, and nine times out of ten it would spoil a sale."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Women In Office at Swarthmore.

Swarthmore college faculty contains four women, the registrar, the dean, the professor of mathematics and professor of German. Of the board of management 17 out of 34 are women. The executive committee consists of eight men and eight women; the instruction committee of seven women and three men, and of the five honorary degrees conferred by the college two have been received by women, as equality in the directors of the college is carried between men and women which does not exist in any other coeducational institution.—Exchange.

Words From an Old Advisor.

In an old fashioned book of recipes it is written: "A woman's hair should smell only sweeter than her skin, and her skin only fresher than her breath. To insure this she should be very careful, for a woman who looks not altogether lovely belies the purpose for which nature created her. Therefore if ye would be ever fresh and daisy in your sofet keep upon your table a bottle of myrrh with the which to freshen your mouth, a bottle of benzoin to sprinkle in the washing water, and a bottle of lavender water with which to dampen your hair."

A Suggestion For Washday.

My idea is that all the work should be done on Monday by some member of the family, if only one girl is kept, and done so completely and in such an agreeable fashion that it would be a stimulus to the girl to try and emulate it, besides giving her the feeling that she is looked upon as worthy of this assistance. The greater the sacrifice the greater the reward in the approval of one's own spirit.—Detroit Free Press.

The Value of Manilla Paper When Cooking.

Clean manilla paper is far too useful to be thrown away. It will instantly absorb all grease from fishcakes, fried potatoes, ham or anything of the sort, and it is but a minute's work to slip one of the paper and put it in the fire when the dish is ready to serve. A piece laid over the bread dough, under the cloth, will prevent the formation of the hard crust so annoying to breadmakers.—Exchange.

Any One Would.

In one of the kindergartens the teacher was endeavoring to familiarize the children with the words "cold" and "hot" at sight without spelling them by letters. When she asked them what they would get if they went out of doors in winter without their cpats, and pointed at the word, they caught the one at once and answered "cold" instantly. But "hot" proved a puzzler for a moment.

"Now, Mary," said the teacher to the little girl at the end, "suppose that you were standing right close up in front of a tremendously big fire, just flaming and fanning and burning and blazing away, what would you get?"

"I'd get right away from there," replied the child in a matter of fact tone that upset the instructor for the afternoon.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

THE KINDERGARTEN.

MRS. ALICE A. CHADWICK FULLY EXPLAINS WHAT IT IS.

Her Lecture at All Souls' Church Yesterday Afternoon Listened to with Interest by An Audience of Ladies and Children.

Mrs. Alice A. Chadwick lectured yesterday afternoon on "The Kindergarten," at All Souls' church, Park avenue.

Previous to the lecture a half hour was devoted to an exhibition of what the kindergarten children do while at school, by Misses Scribner and Newton's school.

First a class of five bright little ones—Arthur Finch, Natalie Sullivan, Annetta Hoagland, Eva Brown, Wilbur Jackson, and Dorothy Fleming—delighted the audience with their excellent work, describing careful and patient training. First they built churches, then followed in succession, monuments, railroad stations, and cottages. It was all done with such dexterity and quickness that the ladies present applauded them.

The children then executed a difficult march. This was followed by several imitations of "Where do all the birds go in Winter." In this they all sang and several went out of the room, illustrating birds flying to the south for the cold season. Then followed the "Butterflies," "Pigeon House" and the "Carpenters." In each as they sang the subject would be imitated. For instance in the "Butterflies" a few of the children imitated butterflies going from flower to flower, while the remainder of the class acted as the flowers. It was a pretty scene with pretty little ones as the actors.

Everything was done with such preciseness and earnestness on the part of the children, that it presented a strong argument in favor of the kindergarten.

At the conclusion the audience was invited into the auditorium of the church, where they listened to a very instructive and strong plea for the kindergarten by that eloquent speaker, Mrs. Chadwick, who said in part:

It is almost useless for one to read a paper on the subject of the kindergarten, after such an exhibition as you have witnessed. I was never taught in a kindergarten, but I have prepared my paper from a mother's standpoint in appreciation of the work. America is proud of its educational branches, but it remained for other countries to teach it the worth of the kindergarten. It was to Miss Peabody that this children's branch owes its introduction in this country. She visited Germany and there observing its value, returning was the means of establishing one here.

To import improvements seemed ridiculous to many, but at the centennial Germany, Spain, Sweden and other countries showed a decided lead in this particular.

There are those who hold to the belief that the world of knowledge is in a book and that the world of action is in a pen.

It is claimed that our children are two years behind those of other countries. This I am sorry to say is the truth. When you begin to send a child to school, he is like a flower that has been basking in the sunlight. Take the flower in out of the sunshine entirely and it would begin to wilt and droop. Such an action takes place in the child when first sent to the public school. He is kept inside pouring over a book until his eyes ache. At the kindergarten a child learns of an object by coming in contact, and touching it.

Young women have done the kindergarten a great amount of injury, by setting up sewing schools where children do fancy work and sewing, and calling them kindergartens, while they are nothing of the kind.

What is this kindergarten? Some say it is a playhouse, others that it is a nursery. The most comprehensive of the answers comes from a man. He says it is a humbug. This answer shows that he has never entered a kindergarten.

What is a kindergarten? Why it is a place to teach child nature. A child is a living being. He has will power; thought power; heart power and body power. He is all activity and observes and investigates. He plays untiringly. Very well, then, what does the kindergarten do? It keeps him alive by letting him act like, as well as learn of, the object in question. If, for instance, he is learning of the frog, let him hop like a frog. While he is learning he is being active. Let him learn also the sounds of nature—of the birds, cows, etc. Let him learn to be instructive and not destructive. Children should learn first to imitate sounds. Boys love to imitate the moaning of the wind or the mooing of the cow. This will amuse them and at the same time develope their voices for singing when they grow older.

Few of the older schools ever taught anything but reading, writing and ciphering. They never taught anything that would tend to develope the physical nature of a child. A strong body is indispensible to a student. Morality was left to the church. Now all three are taught at once.

The trend of the kindergarten is to teach the relation of things to each other. We open their eyes to look upon mother earth as a delight.

I advise you to first select a board of trustees and become incorporated, and select teachers after you have personally interviewed them.

Who will be the ones in Plainfield to see that it comes in on the homestretch? To those who have never been to a kindergarten I say "Out any good thing come out of Nazareth? Come and see!"

DOINGS AT POND'S.

ITEMS THAT WILL INTEREST THE WORKINGMEN AND THE PUBLIC.

A 120 Inch Planer, 72 Inch Lathe and a Traveling Crane with a Lifting Capacity of 20 Tons now Being Constructed.

The 120 inch planer for the World's Fair is nearing completion. It will form part of an exhibit.

A 72 inch lathe is being constructed for an Eastern firm.

A traveling crane with a lifting capacity of 20 tons, Shaw Electric Crane Co. patent, is being built for the Parrel Foundry and Machine Company of Conn. It will be finished, it is thought, this week.

The workmen are speculating on the report that the Pond Company are expecting to receive an order for an 85-ton crane from the Government, for use at the Watervliet Arsenal.

About 500 men are constantly employed at the works.

New additions, on account of increased business, are being added to the factory building.

The Pond Machine Tool Company's exhibit at the World's Fair will occupy a space about 200 by 125 feet. Their exhibit will be one of the attractions.

Work now is commenced at 6.30 o'clock a. m., and ended at six o'clock p. m. There is a half holiday every Saturday.

A cruse, such as the one now being constructed, costs between $15,000 and $20,000.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Louise H. Worth, widow of the late Thomas Worth, of Grove street, and mother of Mr. William O. Worth, who was married Tuesday, died to-day of pneumonia. The funeral will be Friday, at four p. m.

At the annual election of the Union County Country Club, last evening, the following Board of Governors was elected: Messrs. J. B. Dumont, Pliny Fisk, Howard Fleming, H. G. Runkle, G. K. Thomas and Rowland Cox.

The thirty-fifth annual conclave of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of New Jersey was held in the Masonic Temple, Trenton, yesterday. Upwards of 100 Sir Knights were present. Mr. W. H. Sebring of this city was elected sword bearer.

—A colt belonging to Frank Linke, while being hitched to a wagon about two o'clock this afternoon, became too frisky and dashed down Somerset street dragging the wagon pole behind him. He was stopped near Front street by Henry DeMott. No damage was done.

BREVITIES.

—Justice Nash heard summons to-day in the case of Harrihan vs. Bolger, demand for premises. The case will come up Wednesday, May 17.

—The Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers will take a run around the Irvington-Milburn course next Sunday afternoon. The start will be made at 2.30 from the club house.

—Ground was broken at Elizabeth yesterday for the new Fowler Car Company works, which will cover three acres and give employment to several hundred persons.

—One of Pope's water wagons became fast in the soft ground in the gutter at the corner of Fifth and Sycamore streets yesterday afternoon. The driver had to let the water out before the team could start the wagon.

—To-morrow evening, the annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A. will be held for the election of officers. Reports of the president and treasurer will be read. An architect will explain the plans of the new building.

Caught a German Carp.

This morning, as Mr. Frank Bastine of Pearl street, was at work in his garden, back of which the brook runs, he saw something shining in the water. On going closer, he found it to be a large German carp, which had become stranded in the shallow water. Procuring a shovel, he threw the fish out on the bank. It was a fine specimen of this species of fish, and measured two feet in length, and weighed 18 pounds.

TILL A DOCTOR COMES.

DR. MURRAY TELLS WHAT TO DO IN CASE OF ACCIDENT.

The First of a Course of Four Emergency Lectures Delivered at the Irving School Last Evening by Dr. Murray.

The first of the course of four emergency lectures was given in the Irving school last evening by Dr. W. H. Murray.

Dr. Murray talked about the various parts of the body, and gave a practical lesson in bandaging. He began with the head and worked down to the feet. The bones are the basis of the body. We have three kinds of bones, the flat, the short and the long. The flat ones are such bones as we have in the head. The short bones are those of the fingers. The long bones, generally speaking, are those of the limbs. In our subject we have little to do with the short and flat bones. The injuries received by these are either too slight to need immediate attention or so serious that all that a bystander can do is to treat the wound through the skin. The bones have too main elements, the animal tissue and the mineral tissue. In children the animal tissue is much greater in quantity than in older people so that children will often have severe falls and receive no injury, because their bones will bend and spring back, while the bones of an older person would break.

The muscles are those parts of the body which enables us to live or in any way to act. A muscle is a mass of fibers, each muscle being made up of bundles and each bundle of smaller bundles, and each smallest bundle having the power to contract. There are two kinds of muscles, voluntary and involuntary. Voluntary muscles are those that will obey our will, and involuntary muscles are those that carry on all the processes of life without being controlled by our will, such as the heart. A cord is the termination of the end of the muscles. If you pierce your hand it sends a message to the brain and the brain sends back a message to the hand to draw up. The heart is the most important of the blood vessels. The only reason why the heart is able to keep on beating for so great a length of time is because the heart is at rest for a short time. The blood, starting from the heart is pumped into arteries which carry the blood to points in the body, giving the body a supply of matter where it passes through a partition into veins that right side is carried to the same side of the heart from which it came, all the while gathering impurities, and from the heart to the lungs where it is purified, and into the opposite side of the heart. When an artery is cut the blood will spurt when a vein will not. If we are going to stop a flow of blood that we cannot stop by putting one hand over the wound or wrapping a piece of cloth over it, we have got to press the vessel against a bone on the other side. This is the point from which the blood is coming and the cut. If an artery, toward the heart, above the cut, if in your arm for a vein, below the cut, since the vein blood flows in an opposite direction from the artery to the heart. If the cut is in the head and the beat of the artery in the neck and press there. A wound high up in the shoulder must be stopped by pressing down well behind the collar bone. In the lower extremities there is only one place where pressure can be made in such a way as to control bleeding, and that is on the groin. If you press deeply into the groin you are pretty sure to control that bleeding. You can control it in the thigh to some cases by pressure in the middle of the bone on the inside. The next point is on the ankle, on the inner side, just behind the bone. If there is a hemorrhage in the front foot press directly in the middle of the instep. Always press so near the bone that the vessel is flattened. If bleeding in the skin of the head no matter that is left when the rest of the waste is evaporated by contact with the air."

The doctor said, in connection with sores, that the main idea of a bandage was to keep dirt from the wound. He said that stuff was put on a sore, not to make it heal, but to prevent the action of any poison that might get in the wound. He illustrated how to put on bandages, using as patients a man and a boy. To illustrate the thing two men way to bandage the chin. Tear a piece of broad cloth down the middle, leaving four inches in the centre. Put the centre on the chin. The two ends around the neck and two on the head near the forehead and then connect the two parts.

The lecture was very interesting and occupied about an hour.

Water Company Directors.

The stockholders of the Plainfield Water Supply Company met last evening at the company's office, on North avenue, and elected the following Board of Directors: John Kean, Jr., Henry G. Runkle, Frank Borgen, Elias R. Pope and James McGuire.

DIOCESAN CONVENTION.

NO ACTION WILL BE TAKEN IN THE JOSEPH B. JENNINGS CASE.

The Committee Finds the Westfield Church in Arrears and Not Entitled to Lay Representation—The Two Vestries Go Home.

Bishop Scarborough presided at the opening of the one hundred and ninth annual convention of the New Jersey Episcopal diocese, comprising all that section of the State lying south of Essex and Hudson counties at New Brunswick this morning. The business of the convention in the morning Rev. E. K. Smith, of Lambertville, was elected Secretary. The sermon was delivered by Rev. C. H. Hibbard, of Burlington.

Mr. Hibbard said the ministers had too much to do. The chief burden of parochial duties falls on the rector, and he had no time to study the word of God. The study of theology had been neglected. The remedy, he thought, lay in the laity. They should relieve the rector of the pastoral duties. This would elevate the priesthood.

The Finance Committee of last year was reappointed, consisting of Messrs. Charles Ewen Morris; Mount Holly; John N. Carpender, New Brunswick; William Doughty, Jr., Bordentown; Sheriff Hinsdell, Elizabeth, and J. H. Pugh, M. D., Burlington. The following were elected as the Committee on Constitution and Canon: Rev. E. M. Rodman, Plainfield; Rev. G. U. Watson, Swedesboro; Rev. H. M. Barlow, Trenton; Rev. W. Parker, Perth Amboy; Frank Lavis, Burlington.

In the afternoon the Bishop delivered his annual address. He said the diocese had increased in the number of churches and membership, and spoke at length of the improvements made in various sections. He recommended a continuance of the present active missionary work, and said he was often surprised that wealthy Christian men seldom remembered widows and orphans in their wills. He thought the church should have a large endowment fund for the widows of deceased members. The introduction of political methods in the recent election of a bishop was denounced. He said the use of such methods was little less than blasphemy. He appointed as Chancellor of the Diocese B. F. H. Shreve, of Mount Holly.

It was expected the discontented parishioners of Rev. Joseph B. Jennings, of Grace Episcopal Church, Westfield, would appear before the annual convention. The vestry recently elected by his opponents both had representatives at the convention. Pastor Jennings, as a clergyman, was allowed a seat among the other clerical delegates, but all others from Westfield were excluded.

The double representation from Westfield was first referred to the Credentials committee, and it was thought that in the fight for the seating of the delegates all the grievances on both sides of the dispute would be aired. The committee took hardly five minutes over the matter, however, reporting back to the convention that the Westfield church was not entitled to any lay representation on the floor, because for years in less than the canons of the diocese it has steadfastly refused to pay up. This practically disposed of the whole matter, and those of Mr. Jennings's opponents who were present took the next train for home.

The convention could not have tried Mr. Jennings even had formal charges been made against him. Secretary Smith made this statement yesterday.

"This convention is not an ecclesiastical court and its duties are confined strictly to business connection the affairs of the church. If charges were made against Mr. Jennings they could not come up here, but would be heard by a court appointed by the Bishop. The Westfield church has no standing here because it is delinquent.

Those attending from Plainfield and North Plainfield are: Rev. T. Logan Murphy, J. Taylor, E. M. Bodman and S. F. Simpson.

The Ramapo Circle.

Will the members of the Ramapo Circle kindly send all dues to the president previous to the annual meeting, to be held about the 20th of this month, notice of which will be given latter.

Respectfully,
MRS. S. J. TAYLOR,
President.

128 Madison avenue.

Move Linemen Expected to Strike.

Manager Root, who has charge of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company's lines at Elizabeth and on Staten Island, expects the linemen in the latter place to strike to-day, but says there will be no strike among the linemen in Elizabeth, as they don't belong to the union.

A Y. M. C. A. Museum.

The directors of the Y. M. C. A. are endeavoring to secure material for a museum for the young men's auxiliary. They wish to request, through The News, that all the friends of the Association who can help by sending rare coins, etc., will do so. They guarantee the safety of all curios loaned.

A Painful Injury.

Mr. Leonard Bass, foreman of the laborers in the Pond Machine Tool Company's foundry, had his left eye severely injured by a chip of iron flying from a piece that was being chipped.

A physician dressed the eye and says that although it is badly bruised and very painful, the sight can be saved.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

BOEHL FOUND MURDERED.

His Body Floating in the River.—Pallister Probably Dead too.

Bric Bric, N. Y., May 10, (Special.)—The body of Frank W. Boehl, who escaped from the death house at Sing Sing on April 20 last, in company with Thomas Pallister, was found in the river this morning at 5.45 o'clock near Rockland Lake landing.

Found by Fishermen.

There is a bullet hole in his temple, and it is thought Pallister shot him.

The body was found by three fishermen who were out last night.

The three fishermen say that they passed another body further up the river, but did not stop to pick it up as they had the other in tow. The latter is probably that of Pallister, and a search will be instituted at once.

Scanning parties were sent out to try and find the other body.

Will Get the Reward.

The fishermen will obtain the reward offered by the State for the recapture of the murders, dead or alive.

Mr. Hammer's House Ransacked.

About one o'clock yesterday afternoon Mrs. George Hummer of Warren street, North Plainfield, locked up her house and went out to make a call. When she returned, at four o'clock, she was surprised on entering the house to find that someone had been there during her absence and ransacked the house emptying the contents of the bureau drawers on the floor and otherwise disarranging things.

Mrs. Hummer relocked the door and hurried after Marshal Pangborn.

The marshal returned with her and together they went through the house to ascertain if anything had been stolen.

Nothing was missing, as Mrs. Hummer had taken about $60, that was in the house, with her.

Amusements.

The Music Hall manager says: Miss Agnes Herndon's great comedy drama is one of the very few plays that can be said to please everybody. Its strong comedy, pathos, sentiment, thrilling denouements, startling climaxes and laughable oddities are so admirably woven and blended together that there is not a dull moment from the rise to the fall of the curtain. The talent at in the play is never allowed to lag, and the evening passes away before one is hardly aware of it. It is one of the truly great comedy and dramatic successes of the day.

It will be at Music Hall to-morrow night.

Inspection of Winfield Scott Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Hawaii's revolution might perhaps better be called Hawaii's evolution.

Under the law of 1890 the United States treasurer may at his discretion pay either gold or silver coin for the silver treasury notes issued in exchange for the silver bullion purchased. But they will not be paid in silver at present. There is no fear of that. President Cleveland has issued, to use his own words, "my emphatic contradiction" of any rumor that Secretary Carlisle will redeem any kind of treasury notes in anything but gold. "The president and his cabinet are absolutely harmonious" on that point, quoth President Cleveland.

A recent traveler through the rural districts of France writes that the country people there wear a crushed and subdued air. The reason is that ceaseless toil and pinching parsimony take all the life out of them, so there is nothing but mere existence. He writes: "You see in their faces the grinding care and greedy thrift which fill the lives of these people. They are not a lovely folk, these ever toiling French peasants. The joy seems to have gone out of the lives of young and old." There is only one subject that really awakens their interest outside of scraping money together, and that is talk of war between France and Germany. They would give their lives as one man to fight again and take back Alsace and Lorraine from Germany.

Why We Are In Sheol.

A document recently issued by our theosophical brethren lays down as one of its basic propositions the following startling statement:

This earth is hell.

We do not know whether this is so or not, but if it is then we know why it is so. It is because the man who makes a business engagement with you, promising faithfully to be on hand at a given hour, comes an hour afterward or not at all. He puts you to no end of inconvenience and loss from which you suffer indescribably, but he does not care. It is a way he has of distributing sheol along each side of his path wherever he goes. Then there is the laundress. She never on a single occasion has washed your clothes clean, and that is a good slice of sheol which continues without intermission half a century. The hired girl never has been able to sweep or dust a room properly. It is an impossibility to get unadulterated food from the grocer or baker, or well cooked, nourishing food for a month at a time anywhere.

Then there are the spiteful, bad tempered people. They make life a sheol on their own hook. No more exquisite torture can be inflicted on a sensitive person who loves harmony and good will than to be forced to live with them. And it soon happens that the sensitive person almost always must live with one of these tormenting spirits. There, too, is the evil spirit who tells lies, the fiend who tries to cheat you and the boss fiend of all who is dirty and offensive in his personal habits.

Do you know anybody except yourself who is always good tempered, perfectly truthful, sincere and honest, and who is entirely cleanly and has courteous manners besides? On the whole, perhaps the theosophical brethren are right. This may be sheol.

Last of the Stalwarts.

Notable was that banquet given in Philadelphia to the survivors of the memorable "306" who voted for Grant at Chicago in 1880. All but the very youngest among our voting citizens can recall the sensation produced at the Republican presidential convention of that year, when, with Roscoe Conkling at their head, the 306 stood together and voted through 36 straight ballots to nominate Grant for a third term. One of the humors of their opponents, after the convention was over, was to have huge cast iron medals struck, bearing in big letters the figures "306," and send them to the members of that band. But it was settled then and there that the American people would never consent to let any man be candidate for president for a third term. It was at this time, too, that Blaine gave Conkling and his men the name of "Stalwarts." One might have thought it was forgotten, that name, but William W. Hicks of Florida, who was one of the 306, assured his hearers at the banquet that the Stalwarts of 1880 would still be living in the hearts of the American people when the Stalwarts themselves had "attained the freedom of eternity and looked down from loftier altitudes." On the whole, it is a good phrase that—"attained the freedom of eternity."

Another of the old Grant guard at the banquet was Webster Flanigan of Texas, who gave to American political literature the immortal question, "What are we here for?" Hon. George S. Boutwell was one of the speakers and presided at the banquet. But the occasion was not all festive because of the members of the old guard who were absent. Conkling, he of the sneer, and the earl, and the eloquent bitter tongue, has "attained the freedom of eternity." So has General John A. Logan.

Of the 306, 61 are known to be dead, and of 28 more it is unknown whether they are dead or alive. Of the rest 36 were too infirm to bear the journey to Philadelphia. To the years Grant only 87 of the survivors of the 306 remained who were able to attend the banquet in honor of their old Philadelphia.

SUNSHINE ON THE FAIR.

Warmer Weather Increases the Daily Attendance.

THEY SHUT PHŒBE COUSINS OUT.

The Vermont State Building Dedicated Today—An Artificial Cow That Looks Real and Gives Genuine Milk—Foreign Exhibitors Complain Loud and Long.

JACKSON PARK, May 10.—Now that the weather man has let his machine slip a cog or two, either by design or mistake, the attendance at the exposition is beginning to climb up to pleasing figures.

Crowds move over the elegant pavements watching the gondolas and electric launches glide over the glassy surface of the pretty lagoons, while many thousands more are taking in the sights in the main buildings and on the Midway plaisance.

PHŒBE COUSINS.

The latter place is becoming more popular every day, and when the summer weather, for which Chicago is famous, gets settled down to a sense of its responsibilities the plaisance and avenues of the exposition will be alive with enthusiastic spectators.

Miss Phœbe Cousins has been routed, horse, foot and dragoon. By a unanimous vote of the judiciary committee her application to sit as a member of the national commission has been denied.

Routed Miss Cousins.

Commissioner Massey of Delaware, chairman of the judiciary committee, presented the report. The decision of the judiciary committee was based on section 2 of the act of congress creating the national commission. By this act Mr. Massey held that the membership of the commission was limited to two members from each state and territory and the two alternates. Miss Cousins was not appointed under that act, therefore could not be regarded as a member of that commission, and consequently could not be allowed to participate in any of its debates or enjoy any of its prerogatives.

Shortly before the report was presented Miss Cousins asked that by request a communication of hers be read. This communication was simply a protest in her case to the national commission. In it she demanded admission to the commission and continuous enrollment. A side from the communication contained nothing new.

Foreign exhibitors are loudly protesting against Chairman Boyd Thacher's one judge system for judging exhibits.

A number of them, especially those of Australia and Germany, have already sent in to Director General Davis notice that the French, Spanish and the Netherlands exhibitors threaten not to unpack any more exhibits unless definite assurances are given them that juries and not judges shall pass on their exhibits.

Director General Davis appears to be helpless in entering the assistance demanded of him. Nearly every foreign government has sent in a list of eligible names from which a jury of awards for their different sections can be selected. These lists have been turned over to Mr. Thacher by the director general, but Mr. Thacher has simply pigeonholed them. The director general asks that immediate attention be paid to these requests, and a letter from him to the national commission will be presented calling attention to the inexcusable delay and asking for immediate relief.

Pasteboards Removed.

Holders of season passes who have not yet received their pictures have been in a state of nervous excitement for the last three days. They have been anxious to know whether the time of the passes with out the photographs would be extended.

Passes without photographs are good until today, according to the statement stamped in the space to be occupied by the picture of the holder, if he be lucky enough to get it. Hundreds of persons who have not succeeded in getting their pictures made complaint to the department of admission. Chief Tucker issued instructions that the passes without photographs would be good until May 15.

An agent representing a famous clown was on Midway plaisance looking for a location for one of the most unique schemes to rake in the elusive dollar. Asked of as yet in connection with the exposition. Some months ago an eastern rubber firm was given an order to manufacture a life sized Jersey cow, mounted over fine steel wire netting. When the artificial cow was finished, it was touched up with brush and paint, making it quite genuine looking and hard to distinguish at a distance from a real cow.

Fresh milk is to be pumped into the cow and milked out by the glass at the small price of a nickel a glass. This animal has reached the city, but a site has not yet been located.

The Sons of Vermont visited the fair grounds in great numbers, and the state building was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. Among the visitors were members of the Vermont Press association, their friends and a number of Chicagoans who claim the Green Mountain state as their home.

Booth Getting Well Fast.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Every indication now points to the speedy recovery of Edwin Booth from his recent serious illness.

New York Has 7,183 Bars.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The annual report of the board of excise says that there are 7,183 drinking places in the city.

The Trial of Pigott.

BROOKLYN, May 10.—The jury to try the case of Pigott was completed, and the case was proceeded with.

THE EMPEROR'S SPEECH.

It Stirs Up the Germans and Causes Much Comment.

BERLIN, May 10.—The speech of the emperor at Tempelhofer is causing enormous excitement among the people. It appeared in the North German Universal Gazette in double leaded prominence. Those who heard the emperor speak say that he spoke with unusual emphasis, pausing at every word in order to convey the sense of his determination to abide by his declarations. There is a profound and widespread impression that the emperor would not hesitate to risk a conflict with the new reichstag should it prove hostile to the bill.

The officers who heard the emperor's words maintained absolute silence, although evidently in deep sympathy with the kaiser's views. Leading men in German politics who have heard of the emperor's speech are now sanguine that he has embarked on a policy of Prussian high toryism, and that the chances of the Freisinnige party to form about a moderate liberal era have vanished.

Madison Square Garden For Sale.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The man who has a few million dollars to invest can buy the great Madison Square Garden property. A committee of bondholders is looking around for the purchaser with the best price to offer. This committee was appointed at the annual meeting of the stockholders, held in the Garden. The decision to negotiate for the sale of the property, which represents an investment of $4,000,000, was arrived at after the minority stockholders had demanded that a committee should be appointed to examine the books and accounts.

Let the Escaped Convict Go.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 10.—Henry B. Barnes, an escaped convict from the Weldon (N. C.) penitentiary, was arrested here. Over a year ago Barnes escaped from the convict gang and made his way north after suffering severe hardships. The keeper of the Weldon jail informed the Asbury Park authorities. Barnes at one time having lived here. The prison authorities were notified, but as no reply was received from them Barnes was discharged.

Threaten the Recorder.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Carlyle Harris' trial and all that followed has been a fruitful source of inspiration to cranks of the blood and thunder sort. Scores of them have written letters to Recorder Smyth threatening to call him, to shoot him or to blow him up with dynamite. The district attorney and his assistant, Mr. Wellman, who prosecuted Harris, have been threatened with horrible deaths.

The Electrical Row.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—George Westinghouse, Jr., was asked if he had anything to say regarding the statement of Superintendent Rice of the General Electric company that the Westinghouse searched his desk for plans in an improper manner. "I have nothing at all to say," he replied. The hearing has been fixed for 4 o'clock this afternoon, when some sensational developments are expected.

Deacon White Settling Up.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Stephen V. White bustled about Wall street today straightening out his affairs. He has paid 25 per cent of the claims of all outside creditors and the same amount of those on the Exchange. His settlement with the put and call brokers was liberal. He has also taken upon himself the losses of many of his customers who followed his advice.

The Murder Hidden Two Months.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., May 10.—Pietro Marsocci, 25 years old, was arrested at Stamford, Conn., charged with the murder of Nicolai Summa, whose body was discovered, covered by two planks, in Pelham Heights on last Saturday week. The body of the murdered man had evidently been lying in the park for at least two months.

Mrs. Shann Probably Indicted.

TRENTON, May 10.—At the opening of the May term of court here Judge Abbett charged the grand jury, in the course of which he alluded to the Shann poisoning case. He simply stated that it constituted a prima facie case, it was their duty to indict. It is regarded as very certain that Mrs. Shann, the victim's mother, was indicted.

Irishmen in Convention.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The forty-fourth annual convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians is now being held in Tammany hall and will remain in session until Saturday. This convention, which is held in affiliation with the board of Erin, in this city, will be one of the most important that has been held for many years.

Chambermaids Make Demands.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The chambermaids employed by several up town hotels appointed a committee to see the proprietors of the Waldorf, Savoy, Holland and Plaza hotels and make a demand for higher wages, better food and shorter hours. Fourteen cooks struck at the Waldorf because the chef was discharged.

Arbitration For Linemen.

JERSEY CITY, May 10.—The state board of arbitration met in this city last night and heard the statements of the striking linemen of the Telephone company. Today they will go to Trenton and confer with the company's officers.

Counterfeiters Sentenced.

BROOKLYN, May 10.—Judge Benedict sentenced Joseph Walters and William Brown, the Long Island City counterfeiters, to terms of six and five years respectively in the Erie county penitentiary.

Burglars Poorly Paid.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 10.—Burglars broke into the depot at Scarsdale and also the one at Hartsdale, on the Harlem railroad south of White Plains. They got very little money.

Will Adjourn June 1.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—The Niles revenue bill was defeated on final passage in the house by yeas 69, nays 129. Both the senate and house agreed to adjourn sine die June 1.

Trial of Mackay's Assailant.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—The trial of Wesley C. Ripley, charged with assault to commit murder in having shot John W. Mackay, is on the calendar for today.

Graves Trial Again Put Off.

JUNIPER, May 10.—Dr. Graves, the alleged murderer of Mrs. Josephine Barnaby of Providence, R. I., will not be tried until the fall term of court.

Celebrated a Royal Betrothal.

LONDON, May 10.—The betrothal of the Duke of York and the Princess May of Teck was celebrated with a family dinner at Buckingham palace.

REPUBLICANS CONVENE.

Welcomed to Louisville by the City's Democratic Mayor.

THE LEAGUE'S SESSION UNDER WAY.

There May Be Harrison and Anti-Harrison Lines Drawn Before the Adjournment. The Candidates For Clarkson's Mantle and Their Chances.

LOUISVILLE, May 10.—When the gavel was rapped for order at 10 o'clock this morning it was seen that this is to be the largest convention of the National League of Republican clubs that has been held since the birth of that organization. Many states that failed of representation last year and the year before responded to the roll call with good sized delegations. The event is also notable for the large attendance of men that for years have been prominent in the councils of the older heads of the party. In this particular the scene was a reminder of the assembling of a Republican presidential convention. The committee on resolutions, on 2, Blood Point of New York, J. H. Manley of Maine, the trusted friend of the late idol of the Republican party; Powell Clayton of Arkansas, R. C. Kerens of St. Louis, Governor Nelson of Minnesota, M. H. DeYoung of San Francisco, Thomas Goody of Indiana, J. K. Dubose of Idaho, John M. Thurston of Nebraska and others of the leading lights of the party testifies to the interest that is manifested in the movement toward enthusing renewed life and energy into the junior brigade.

Temporary Chairman Absentee.

At the same time, many of those whose presence had been confidently relied upon have found it impossible from one cause or another to put in an appearance. Among these are Vice-President Harrison, ex-Vice-President Morton, Governor McKinley, ex-Governor Foraker, Thomas B. Reed, ex-Senator Spooner and Henry Cabot Lodge. The suggestion, however, that their absence is considered by the league tantamount or the belief that it is yet too early to commence to lay plans for future Republican success is emphatically repudiated by General Clarkson and his colleagues. They say that each and every absence is accounted for on the score of prior political or business engagements, and that each of the absentees has written an expression of his warmest interest in the future of the league.

The convention was opened by an address of welcome by the Democratic mayor of Louisville, who, with true Kentucky hospitality told the thousands of Republicans that he was glad to see them there, and that he hoped they would have a special time.

At noon the convention was rapidly getting into working order, but not much is expected to be accomplished today, for after the annual address of President Clarkson many of the delegates intend to hurry out to the fashionable Kentucky derby, which begins at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

It was said this morning that there was no substantial ground for the rumor of a fight in the Republican national committee between M. H. DeYoung of California and T. S. Martin of Virginia. Mr. Carter's elevation to the chairmanship of the Republican committee by the Republican executive committee following the resignation of Mr. Walker of Illinois at the beginning of the last Republican national campaign, is effective until the sitting of the 53d congress, next March.

Until that time Mr. Carter is and will be recognized as ex-officio chairman of the Republican national committee. Mr. De Young's contention that the resignation of the committee will be passed upon by the committee at its session.

The Fight For the Presidency.

Of course the people of all shades of political opinion are deeply interested in the fight for the presidency of the National Republican league. It has finally narrowed down to Tracy of Illinois and W. P. Squires of Toledo, Tracy claiming Illinois with 98 votes; New York, 104; California, 9s; Colorado, 18; Maine, 26; Maryland, 8; Massachusetts, 62; Rhode Island, 18; Kentucky, 24; Pennsylvania, 64; New Jersey, 42; Vermont, 18. Squires' friends are making no specific claims as to support outside of the Ohio delegation, but they declare that there are enough anti-Harrison votes, now claimed by the Tracy supporters, which will be theirs in the decisive ballot.

There is some chance that both the squire's and Tracy men lose—an anti-Harrison contingent. This fear is grounded on the rumor that Spooner of Wisconsin is looming up as a dark horse for the national league presidency today. This, say the friends of the two leading candidates, would draw Harrison and anti-Harrison lines and make the situation beyond all possibility of forecasting.

Indiana has no candidate for the presidency, but is making a desperate fight for the convention for her capital city. Indianapolis has but one formidable rival—Denver—almost a new quantity in the field, but seconded by all to be a powerful one.

Impeaching Judge Dubose.

NASHVILLE, May 10.—The trial of Judge Julius J. Dubose of the Memphis criminal court is in session in the state senate, sitting as an impeachment court. Judge Dubose is accused of tyranny and corruption in office. His counsel entered a flat denial. The trial is likely to consume at least 10 days.

Foresters in Session.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The annual convention of the Ancient Order of Foresters of America is in progress in Stapleton, S. I. The visitors are being entertained by the Staten Island Foresters. There was a parade last evening.

Massachusetts Sticks to Hanging.

BOSTON, May 10.—The Massachusetts house decided against abolishing the death penalty. It also voted by a large majority against substituting for some other form of death penalty in place of hanging.

Pitied Ambassador Bayard.

WILMINGTON, Del., May 10.—The Young Men's Democratic club of this place gave an elaborate dinner in honor of Hon. T. F. Bayard previous to his departure as ambassador to England.

Long and Terrible Illness from Blood Poisoning

Completely Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

MRS. MARY E. O'FALLON, a very intelligent lady of Piqua, Ohio, was poisoned while assisting physicians at an autopsy 5 years ago, and soon terrible sores broke out on her head, arms, tongue and breast. Her hair all came out. She weighed but 75 lbs., and saw no prospect of help. At last she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and at once improved; would soon get out of bed and walk. She says: "I became perfectly cured by and am now a well woman. I weigh 138 lbs., eat well and do the work for a large family. My case seems a wonderful recovery and physicians look at me like one raised from the dead."

HOOD'S PILLS should be in every family medicine chest. Cure sick, always prefered.

JACK TARS' DAY.

American Sailors Entertained Nine Yachts of Many Nations.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The sailors of the United States flagships Philadelphia and Newark gave receptions to the jack tars of all the foreign ships. Uncle Sam's crack cruisers were gay with bunting. Flags of all nations fluttered on the decks, making a background of brilliant color for the dark blue, brass-buttoned visitors who swarmed over the sides of the Philadelphia. For-ward, the decks were packed with the happiest, jolliest lot of jack tars imaginable. They were of all nations. They jabbered in Brazilian, Italian, French, Dutch, German, Argentinian and Russian. The blue jackets of one nation could not talk the language of another, but they understood each other just the same.

The American sailors had prepared an excellent luncheon, and the band played the airs of all nations. On the Newark the airs of all nations were entertained at a similar spread.

Landlords to Blacklist Strikers.

CINCINNATI, May 10.—At the grand meeting of the United States Hotel Keepers' association the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas certain elements of discontent have been and are being fostered among hotel employees tending toward strikes;

Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that the secretary of the United States association shall be supplied with a list of the names and descriptions of all agitators and strikers, and this list shall be sent to all reputable hotels and restaurant keepers, members of this association.

Lizzie Borden's Quarters.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 10.—During her trial in this city Miss Lizzie Borden will occupy a cell in the women's prison, which is located in the south wing of the old prison building. Her room will face toward the west, overlooking the prison yard and the new jail. Another interesting character here is Bridget Sullivan, who is an inmate of Keeper Hatch's matrimonial family. The governess, it is said, place great dependence on the testimony of this woman. She is not exactly a prisoner, but the prison officials know where she is all the time.

Mrs. Harris Goes to Massachusetts.

ALBANY, May 10.—The last statement of Carlyle W. Harris was written in a bold and steady hand, without any apparent evidence of nervousness on any of the three sheets of legal cap. The last two pages were written on the first sheet, and then there was an extra page devoted to his wishes for its distribution and to a brief statement that the erasures were made by himself. Mrs. Harris announced that she was going directly to Massachusetts and would not talk, either at the prison department or on Governor Flower's action.

The Chemical Bank Break.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Bank Examiner Sturgis says that it will be at least a week before he can prepare a statement of the assets and liabilities of the Chemical bank. So the only thing he has ascertained was the amount of cash on hand. What the figure was he refused to say. It is probable that the World's fair directors will devise some means to relieve the bank's custodians. The banking concession at the grounds will be promptly awarded to some concern of undoubted standing.

Navahoe Will Sail From Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 10.—The Navahoe has been entered at the custom house here, Mr. Carroll has also decided to decline the complimentary dinner and reception tendered him in New York before he sails, and will sail direct from this port for England. On Sunday she will again go to Providence to go on the dry dock, and will then have more lead affixed to her keel.

Mrs. Depew's Funeral.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The funeral of Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew was held this morning at St. Bartholomew's church. Among the pall bearers were Cornelius Vanderbilt, Whitelaw Reid, William M. Vanderbilt and D. O. Mills. The interment was in the Peekskill cemetery.

THE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD.

Receivers were appointed for the United Paper company.

The officers of the Holland cruisers Van Speyk are entertained by the Holland society in Albany.

ATLANTA GETS ORDERS.

She Sails Away to Protect American Interests.

BLOUNT WILL SUCCEED STEVENS.

The Minister to Hawaii Deposed Because He Was Too Strong an Annexationist. Congressman Bynum Wants a Special Session In June.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The Atlanta is now on her way to Nicaragua, if her captain has been able to carry out the instructions which were sent to him last night from the war department. This was the result of the discussion in the cabinet of the serious condition of affairs existing in Nicaragua, arising out of the revolution. Captain Higgins has been ordered to proceed immediately to Greytown, on the east coast of Nicaragua to protect American interests in that country and especially our rights in the interoceanic canal now building.

It will take her about a week to reach Greytown. It is believed the Atlanta will be able to fully protect our interests without assistance from any other vessels. As a matter of fact, however, there is no other vessel easily available, though of course if the emergency were great enough quite a fleet could be speedily collected. The Pacific station is less well equipped than the Atlantic station, for the reason that several vessels were ordered from the Pacific to the Atlantic to take part in the naval review.

Blount to Succeed Stevens.

Officials of the state department confirm the predictions heretofore made that ex-Representative Blount would be appointed minister resident to the Hawaiian islands. It has been supposed that Minister Stevens would remain in charge of the legation until the 4th of this month, at which time he had announced his intention of sailing for San Francisco. It is now shown that Mr. Stevens has been instructed to forthwith turn over the legation to Commissioner Blount, who has been appointed his successor. There is reason to believe that Mr. Stevens was not allowed to remain in charge of the legation until the 4th inst. because of his activity in behalf of annexation.

It is further stated at the department that Messrs. Brown and Sewall, who went to Honolulu shortly after Commissioner Blount's arrival, have been active in their efforts to stimulate sentiment on the islands in favor of annexation and are thought to have created the impression that in so doing they were representing the president. Secretary Gresham has informed Mr. Blount that the president repudiated everything said and done by these gentlemen.

Applicants Stay Out of Sight.

Of the senators and representatives who called on the president in the morning a few of them had office seeking constituents with them, but the most of them remained down stairs while their congressional backers ascended to the president's rooms. The known firmness of the president caused the matter issued Sunday to work perfectly, and while many doubtless would have liked to have had an interview with the president, none of the office seekers had the temerity to do so.

Congressman Bynum of Indiana in his interview with the president urged him to call congress together in June instead of waiting until September. Mr. Bynum believing in a brief session now, to be followed by another short session after the hot weather is over.

Preparing to Receive a King's Aunt.

Mr. Muruga, the Spanish minister, had an interview at the state department with Secretary Gresham regarding the programme for the reception and entertainment of the Princess Infanta of Spain and her party. The princess is due to arrive in New York on the 19th inst. and will probably come immediately to Washington, although this has not been definitely decided. It is expected that either in New York or Washington the Duke of Veragua and his party will meet the party of the princess and pay their respects to the latter. The duke will come east from Chicago at once that time to take leave of the president preparatory to sailing for home.

Surgeon General Tryon.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The secretary of the navy has appointed Medical Inspector J. Rufus Tryon surgeon general of the navy, to succeed Surgeon General John Mills Browne, who will retire today.

The Hope Walk Closed.

BROOKLYN, May 10.—Tucker and Carter's big rope walk in Classon avenue, Brooklyn, has been closed in consequence. It is said, of complications arising from the failure of the National Cordage company. The superintendent notified the 600 employees that work would probably be resumed next week.

Swept the Islands Clean.

SYDNEY, May 10.—The mail brings details of a hurricane which swept the New Hebrides. The whole settlement at the port of Sandwich was obliterated and half of New Caledonia was submerged. The floods washed 10,000 tons of nickel ore into the sea. The natives are shelterless and destitute.

Admirals Back From Chicago.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The admiralty special, having on board the naval officers, who have just given up the hospitalities of Chicago to resume the actualities of service, made a magnificent run over the Pennsylvania railroad from Pittsburg to New York.

He Annoyed the President.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Lawyer Samuel M. Ashbaugh, who was arrested for annoying President Cleveland at the inauguration in Washington, has been declared to be of unsound mind, and he was taken to the Ward's Island insane asylum.

Why They Struck.

Their Thirty-third Convention.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 10.—The thirty-third International convention of the Young Men's Christian association was called at Roberts' Park church at 10 o'clock this morning.

Senator Frye Gets an Encore.

LEWISTON, Me., May 10.—In response to an invitation from leading citizens Senator Frye will repeat his eulogy on Blaine in City hall, Lewiston, Friday evening, May 12.

SCALDED WITH HOT GREASE.

An Exciting Fight Between Hungarians and Policemen.

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 10.—Officers Schein and South attempted to arrest a gang of Hungarians for larceny. The Huns resisted, and the battle which followed resulted in the killing of John Ilko, a Hun, and the serious wounding of two others of the Hungarians.

Officer Schein was shot in the arm and Officer South was terribly scalded by a skillet of hot grease which a woman dashed in his face. The officers succeeded in arresting six of the Huns, and they were lodged in jail.

The City Was Ignored.

CLEVELAND, May 10.—Three of Cleveland's street railroad companies recently consolidated without asking the consent of the city council. The city officials refused to recognize the existence of the Cleveland Electric company, which is the name under which the companies consolidated. John Stanley, the superintendent of the consolidated, with a force of men, attempted to tear up a track and replace it by a new one on Wilson avenue. Police interfered and a lively scene ensued, resulting in the arrest of Stanley and 23 employees.

Fell One Hundred Feet.

AKRON, O., May 10.—Gus Schuler and Miss Martha Kline started out for a drive to Cuyanoga falls. The big bridge that crosses the Cuyahoga river just above Akron was being torn away, and danger signals were not out. The following morning the horse was discovered standing on a ledge about 90 feet below the bridge, but thus far no trace has been discovered of Schuler and Miss Kline. The bridge is 100 feet above the water, and the couple must have met instant death.

A Grizzly Hunt In Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 10.—The big grizzly bear recently placed in Lincoln park escaped from his den and had to be choked to death before he could be overcome by the police, who sought to capture him and haul him back to the pit. Since his arrival at the park two weeks ago this ferocious grizzly has kept up a continuous fight with the three other bears in the pit. They forced him to remain in a tree, and it is surrounded that he made his escape by climbing out over the bars.

Where Is Lieutenant Plummer?

DENVER, May 10.—The report that Lieutenant Plummer had been killed by Navajoe is not generally credited here. The latest news concerning him is to the effect that with two companies of cavalry he left Ollo on Sunday for Bluff City, where a disturbance was reported. The settlers in the San Juan valley are very uneasy. Costicans's band held a war dance Sunday night.

St. Paul's Auditorium Opened.

ST. PAUL, May 10.—The opening of the mammoth new St. Paul auditorium was a great artistic and social success, its 6,000 seats being filled by appreciative auditors for the two concerts. There was an orchestra of 45 pieces and a chorus of 300 trained voices. Today the Mills society meetings begin and will continue in the big auditorium for three weeks.

Miss Markham's Damage Suit.

LOUISVILLE, May 10.—Pauline Markham, the actress, now filling an engagement here, has filed a $10,000 damages suit as the result of the fall and injury she received upon arriving in this city Sunday evening. Miss Markham, while going from the Union depot to the Watson House fell, into an excavation, and two bones in one of her legs were broken.

United Brethern of Christ In Session.

DAYTON, O., May 10.—The general conference of the Church of United Brethren in Christ is held every four years. The next session will convene here tomorrow. For the first time in the history of the church laymen have a voice in the body. Ministers and laymen are arriving from all parts of the United States.

Seized The House Maker.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Deputy Sheriff Mulvaney has taken possession of the office of The Home Maker company, at 29 Fourth avenue, which publishes the Home Maker magazine, on an attachment for $58,219 in favor of John Carnrick, who has been the president, for money loaned.

Pauls at a Circus.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., May 10.—While the performance of Walter L. Main's circus was in progress here the dressing room tent took fire. There were 3,000 people in the main tent. The cries of fire and the panic through the crowd started a stampede. A number of persons were badly trampled, but will recover.

All Went Over the Ledge.

FITCHBURG, Mass., May 10.—Albert Houghton was driving a team up Rollstone hill, on the west side, when one side left the road and the horses, wagon and man went over and down the ledge, a distance of 150 feet. The horses and man escaped without any serious injury.

Tony Mullane Blacklisted.

CINCINNATI, May 10.—Tony Mullane has reached the limit of his ball playing. President Brush has decided to blacklist the celebrated pitcher for good. President Brush satisfied himself that Mullane purposely threw the game to Pittsburg on Monday.

Verdi and "Falstaff" Suppressed.

VIENNA, May 10.—It is rumored that the government has forbidden the production of "Falstaff," which Verdi is leading in Trieste, as it fears that Verdi's appearance would be made the occasion of an Irredentist demonstration.

A Triple Lynching.

LITTLE ROCK, May 10.—Jacob Norman, a young mountaineer of Scott county, was murdered and robbed by three negroes, who were arrested shortly after and lynched by a mob of 30 men. The negroes confessed.

Rebuked.

Dr. Charles O'Reilly told the following story the other day: "About two years ago an old farmer living in the back woods suffered the loss of his wife, a most estimable Christian woman. Shortly after attending the age of the widower, who was about 70, he married a young and giddy girl about a month later. The neighbors, all of whom had great respect for his departed better half, became very indignant. So the night of the wedding festivities they gathered from all points—men, women and children—about 100 in number. They carried the pans, tin kettles and horns, and at 9 o'clock there commenced such a din as was never heard before. The old man stood it as long as possible, but finally he threw the door open, and waving his hand for silence said, 'I should think that you folks would not make such a racket around here so soon after there has been a funeral.'"—St. Louis Republic.

To the Purpose.

Cholly—And now that you've finished school, Miss Daisy, I suppose you can conjugate love in several languages.

Miss Daisy—No, but I can decline "you" in English.—Brooklyn Life.

Wash Dresses For Girls.

Finely striped gingham dresses for girls of 6 to 14 years have a slight skirt four breadths trimmed with three insertions of open patterned embroidery stitched on four inches apart above a 4-inch hem. This skirt is gathered to a belt of gingham 2½ inches wide overlaid with a band of insertion, a rosette of gingham concealing the hooks at the back. The waist, over a fitted lining of French cambric, has a square yoke of bias gingham edged with insertion in front, back and over the shoulders, with also a bias collar band holding the fullness. The full lower part of gingham has three shirrings below the yoke and is drawn down in ten meeting plaits at the waist line, then continues lower to cover the lining and pass under the skirt out of sight. A side form is let into large sizes of this waist. The sleeves have a bias puff to the elbow and are close below with a band of insertion at the wrist.—Harper's Bazar.

Flower Bonnets.

Flower bonnets are to be fashionable. They are made entirely of flowers set as closely together as a carpet. This rests flat on the head, but the fullness is gathered by a couple of wings of wired lace at the back, supplemented often by osprey. Flowers are trented in a curious fashion this year. They are made into balls and hard, oblong confections attached to long pins and are so placed on the hat or bonnet. Some of the hats are completely covered with primroses and crown composed of lace with only the finest and most invisible wires. Diamond shaped crowns of flowers or cord or fancy straw appear on both hats and bonnets.

BEAUTY OR POWER.

One or the Other Fascinates the Crowds at Chicago.

WALTER WELLMAN AT THE FAIR.

How the Great Exposition Swallows Up Crowds of People—The Spots at Which the Throngs Are Thickest—The Plaza, the Roller House, the Ragtime, the Japanese Palace.

WORLD'S FAIR, May 9.—[Special.]—One of the remarkable things about this exposition is the manner in which it swallows up a crowd. It seems as if half the people of the earth could be poured into this vast enclosure without producing any unpleasant congestion of humanity except at the spots where sight-seers are drawn together by some magnet of unusual power. On the opening day, May 1st, 400,000 people were within the gates. Of course there was a tremendous crowd around the grand lands and near the Administration building during the ceremonies. Every one wanted to be near the president of the United States, the duke of Veragua and the other high dignitaries. But in the afternoon, after the president and the other distinguished guests had gone, the vast throngs scattered throughout the grounds according to their bent. The vast exposition swallowed them up as if they were a flock of sheep turned loose in a forest.

This is not to be wondered at when we stop to consider how large the fair is. Within the enclosure are nearly 600 acres of ground. In the Midway plaisance or official side-show are eighty acres more. Of the total number of acres probably 400 are occupied by buildings or are available for the movements of the crowds, the remainder being waste land or covered by the waters of the lagoons and ponds. Since it is possible for 15,000 people to stand upon a single acre if compactly but not incompactly massed, it will be seen that 500 or even 300 acres of available space will accommodate a vast crowd of moving, wondering people. Here the buildings are measured by the acre, and last fall when the dedicatory ceremonies were held in the lavishan known as Manufactures and Liberal Arts, which is a mile in circumference, 150,000 people looked lonesome within its vast enclosure.

Of course 150,000 people would now find it difficult to gain entrance to this building. Then its farm-like floor was bare acres of sents, while now it is an expanse of palaces within a palace, and these 500 palaces rolled into one contain and represent fifty nations and twice as many millions of dollars worth of goods and treasure. Even before the exposition opened I saw at least 5,000 men and 500 teams and wagons at work in this building together, with all their litter and paraphernalia, and I have since seen 20,000 men and women and children wandering amid the hundred millions of treasure without crowding each other or anything.

Why, when a building has a mile of circumference, forty acres of floor and eight miles of streets its capacity for swallowing up human beings is almost limitless. If you place a man every ten feet throughout the length of these streets and alleys you will need more than 4,000 men; and if you give to each man a family or group of ten persons you have a grand total of 40,000.

Remembering, then, that within this mighty hall of arches are only one-sixth the floor acreage of the whole exposition, and that all out doors remains, one may easily see that a half million people may easily and comfortably assemble within and distribute themselves over the enclosure without inconvenience from numbers. Some of the millions represented here, and richly and proudly represented, have not so many inhabitants within their borders.

Sometimes in watching the crowds I have thought I would give a fortune, had I one to give, to be able to ascertain in some statistical form what the people think of all that they see, what their emotions are, what impresses them most. Since this is impossible we must follow the only method open to us in learning something of the sort of negative the bright light of the White City casts upon the sensitive soul of the multitude, and that is to watch the multitude and see where it most congregates. There, be sure, the emotions, the curiosity-love, the artistic sense or some other sensibility is strongly touched.

It is a genuine pleasure to be able to record the fact that, judged by this standard, love of beauty appears to be the strongest sentiment of the multitude; for it is before the most beautiful things that we constantly see the most people. Every day in the week there are swarms of human bees sipping the honey of beauty from the grand plaza. It is not alone that this is the show-spot of the whole exposition that explains its fascination. Nothing that was merely spectacular or gaudy could fascinate as this place fascinates. It is beauty, art, magnificence combined that has the triple magnet for human particles. I have known men—practical, commonplace, even sordid Americans at that—to reach this point early in their first day at the exposition and never get away from it till nightfall. There is no need of my going into rhapsodies about this scene, nor of vain attempts to describe it. My only wish is to tell you how people are impressed, and that is the best description.

Not alone Americans are fascinated here. Englishmen, Frenchmen, Germans, Italians bow before the power of art as expressed by masses of lath and plaster, bits of grass and water, a few mounting jets and a dash or two of golden color. That is all there is of it—a mere stage setting with real earth and real water and not much else that is real about it—but designed and constructed by genius of the highest order. I met here one day a Mr. Thompson, an English artist of note. He was leaning against an imitation granite pillar.

"I was just thinking," said he, "in fact, I have been here two hours thinking, what a pity this must all come to an end in six months. To say that I am amazed does not half tell the story. I have traveled all over Europe, have seen the finest architecture of all the capitals and the most lavish decoration, but nothing to compare with this. The like was never known in the world before. Why must it perish? Why must it be a thing fleeting and evanescent, vanishing in the autumn like a flower? Is there not wealth and public spirit enough in America to preserve in solid marble, even if millions be required, the glories which we now see before us in mere plaster?"

This is a question often asked by strangers, especially foreigners. And, do you know, it would not be at all surprising if

IN THE BOILER ROOM.

Chicago found some way to do the very thing which Mr. Thompson, with his quick eye and artist's enthusiasm, suggested. Perhaps she will vote to reproduce these palaces in marble and offer them to Uncle Sam for a capitol!

As I have said to crowds are greatest before the beautiful things—the fountains, the statues, the flowers, the pottery, the paintings. Next to beauty it seems the people love power. A curious test of this is found in that part of Machinery hall where the mighty energies of steam are converted into the magic current of electricity. Go any hour you will, and in the huge boiler house may be seen as many people as the narrow gallery will hold. A boiler house is not usually considered much of a show place. It is rather dull, somewhat grimy, damp, odorsome. Probably this explains why the projectors of the building made so far too little provision for visitors here. But while one boiler is a tame and uninteresting thing a hundred boilers set all in a row, and extending in a true perspective up to the vanishing point, become at once majestic and inspiring. They form an aggregate of power which awe and overwhelm and at the same time fascinate, just as the man who has been accustomed all his life to handling one dollar bills will gasp for breath when confronted by a million dollars tied up in one package.

It is not surprising that the mighty engines, which are a mere manifestation of the power which the one-fifth of a mile of boilers generate, should fascinate their now, georgie, sed bil, we hatv got 2 mak the studnons likn we seed to barnims an wat mister bingo sed was maid with lukin glasses.

wer kin we get the glasses, i sed.

ho, sed bil, u hatv got a lot of them in your house wy cant u get sum ov them.

the day we had the circus ma is ill went 2 visitin, so tel i got home from r house an got the lukin glasses out ov the parlor and tel rumer. we put them 2 gether a little mask in shape ov a hed a mans hed cut off, but we coodent do it. it jest luked like a boy with 2 hads.

wen we got redy 2 give the circus an opendin' the boy at lot ov people cum in wat filled the barn. a boy wat we call cropsey was ring man an he toll the people 2 keep still 4 a wile cuss they mite wake up the 3-headed boy. I was the 3-headed boy. sez i said it was grate. bil jonson was on a platform wot we maid an was fixed up 4 the wun in. he had on a sute ov curly hair an gined long pieces ov tin 4 his finger nails so his nails wood look long like a wild man an he had his fale painted red and blak wen ringin a man in eyes he had his hair al shaved off an had sum long feathers stuck up on the top ov his hed. he luked jest ortful. The ring man gived a lecture on bil and sed he was caught in bermoo near guttenburg jest after the battle ov bull run an was supposed 2 be 87 years old, wos never known 2 eat an wood oull take trish. I was also 2 hatv a boy in me, so i cood hardli help lafin rite out wen i herd wat cropsey was sayin.

then al the people cum 2 ware i was, an cropsey commenced 2 talk about me. I was standin b hind a curtain with onli my hed up with the lukin glasses around it. my bill gote, was to talk part in the circus, wos rite b hind me, but the people coodent see him cuss the curtain was thair.

this, said cropsey, pointin 2 me, and i used al the people lukin at me & kinder smilin, is the great 3 headed boy. the greatest thing abote him is that he was borned with not his hed in hands, he wosent even borned with 4 feets, or a hand, so he cood walk or spin a top. i luked over at the wus is it and smiled but, sed cropsey, he kin sing three songs at 1 time.

just then mi bill gote out his roip al tangled up in mi lakes an i fell hed over heels, pullin down the curtain an brakin all the glasses.

u darn chump, yelled the wat is it, i told u if u left that gote standin. thair u wood hatv trouble. the people commencid 2 laff, cos wen they stole that the wus in it was onli bill an that I was the 3 heded boy.

then they commencid 2 say they had been swindled an wantid their money bak, but we told em it wos al fun and that thay wood get their mont wurth out ov the circus part. so they sed they wood stay, an we went on with the bare bak ridin an things.

p. s.—munk b ieve i dident get most killed 4 brakin the lukin glasses. an munk b leve bil jonson dident get clubbed 4 havin his hare shaved off.

What Was Done.

During Stonewall Jackson's campaign in the Shenandoah valley it became necessary that a bridge over a small creek should be built in great haste. One evening Jackson sent for his old pioneer captain, Myers by name, and pointed out to him the urgency of the occasion, saying that he would send him the plan of his colonel of engineers as soon as it was done. Next morning Jackson rode down to Captain Myers' quarters, and assisting of the veteran said, "Captain, did you get the plan of the bridge from Colonel ——?" "Well," said the captain, "the bridge, general, is built, but I don't know whether the picture is done or not!"—Argonaut.

How It Was.

Out west—that is to say, in the wild west—it is the custom to mark a man's grave by the post or cross surrounded by a little white fence. One day it happened to notice that there was but one cross in the cemetery at Mud Flat. "Look here, Dick," said I, turning to a cowboy friend, "this must be a remarkably healthy place, eh?" "Waal, it's this way, pard," he replied. "Timber's d——d scarce out here, and the last man gets the fence."—Harvard Lampoon.

It Takes Material.

"Let's see," said the lady, "how many yards are there here?"

"Fourteen yards, madam," answered the salesman.

"Enough for a dress?"

"Quite enough."

"Then give me 14 yards more."

"For another dress?"

"No, for the sleeves."—New York Press.

Papa—How did you like the sermon?

Johnnie—The beginning was good, and the end was good, but there was too much middle to it, papa.—Boston Commercial.

TERRORIZED BY TRAMPS

WASHINGTON PARK RESIDENTS FORCED TO GIVE THEM FOOD.

In Several Instances They Demanded Money from the Women, who were Alone in the House,—The Whole Gang Caught.

Tramps yesterday terrorized Washington Park residents by going from house to house, demanding food and money, and threatening violence if they did not get it. In most cases the women were alone. The tramps knowing this scared them into giving them clothes and shoes as well as food.

Marshal Pangborn by his vigilance has kept the borough rid of these unwelcome visitors to a certain extent. Yesterday the "knights of the road" came in at the farthest end of the borough, having, no doubt, been posted by their companions as to the most desirable territory.

But one of them found out to his sorrow that the marshal was alert, for when they thought they had everything to themselves he swooped down upon them, and nabbed one of the party and landed him in the borough lockup. This morning Justice Crossley sentenced the tramp to 30 days in the county jail. He gave his name as Thos. Ryan.

The remainder of the troupe then started operations in Chief Grant's domain. Here again they began to terrify the women folks who were at home alone. Chief Grant's forces has been specially charged to look out for these fellows. Hardly had the tramps begun their work when they were spied by the police.

Policemen Cooney and McCue succeeded in capturing the whole gang—three in all—and lodged them in the lockup.

When arraigned in court this morning the tramps pleaded guilty to the charge of begging. They gave their names as Thomas Carney, John McCormick and George Fulon. The judge sentenced both Carney and McCormick to 60 days in the county jail. Fulon, who is a cripple and walks by the aid of crutches, was given 30 minutes to get out of town.

One of the tramps entered a house in the Park and drove the women from it by pointing a revolver at them.

A Bicycler in a Collision.

A bicycler collided with a milk wagon this morning at the corner of Somerset street and Manning avenue. The bicycle was slightly injured and the rider wrenched from the front wheel. The rider escaped injury.

MEETING OF THE "Y'S."

THEIR FINAL BUSINESS SESSION OF THE YEAR.

The Secretary's and Treasurer's Reports Read and Accepted.—The Latter's Report Showed the Society to be in Good Standing Financially.

ITH yesterday's meeting the regular business meeting of the Y. W. C. T.U. closed for the season.

The young ladies were delighted to have their friend and advisor, Mrs. S. J. Taylor, with them at this meeting.

The president, Miss Greeo, opened the meeting with Scriptural reading and prayer.

The yearly reports were next read and accepted.

The secretary's report showed that the "Y's" have held two meetings each month, one business and one devotional. Much help has been derived from the latter, at which different ministers and friends interested in the work, have presided.

In October, Miss Lulu Lewis represented the society and read a "Y" paper at the W. C. T. U. convention held at Roseville.

On November 23, the young ladies held their regular Thanksgiving cake, candy, and pie sale.

The work of the Loyal Legion was begun rather later than usual this year, on account of the illness of Miss Winter's father. But they began with a full school and in a few weeks had about one hundred and twenty-five enrolled members. At Christmas time the children were given a little entertainment, at which Miss Winter sent her own Christmas tree and decorations. Each child received a box of candy and an orange. In January, the children gave an entertainment, at which they raised about thirteen dollars. At various times the Rev. Drs. Hurlbut, Schenck, Herring and Goodell, Mr. Newell and Principal Maxson have spoken to the children. Dr. Lewis will address them this week.

Every other week there has been a drill for the boys, of a military nature, and on the intervening Friday, the children have had a mind drill.

The teachers of this little band, will continue their work for this season a few weeks longer, and they are more than glad to welcome their able superintendent, Miss Winter, back again, she having been unable to be with them regularly during the Winter on account of her father's death.

The treasurer's report shows a balance in the treasury of $18.58, not including the receipts for the last entertainment which they gave on April 27. The tickets not yet being all accounted for.

From November 23 to May 1, the Hospital Committee have paid fifteen visits to the hospital. Once three young ladies gave the patients a great treat by singing for them. Twice books and papers have been carried, five times fruit, and several times bowls of jelly.

At the "Y" convention held in Hackettstown in April, the Plainfield society were represented by Miss Annie Wyckoff and Miss Mary Lewis. They reported having had very pleasant and instructive meetings.

A concert by the Rutgers Glee Club was given in the Unitarian church, Thursday day evening, April 27, under the auspices of the "Y's." After the concert the students were tendered a reception by the young ladies, at the home of their president, Miss Amey E. Green.

After the report of the Literature Committee was read, it was moved and carried that the "Y's," if so permitted by the mother society, place a box, bearing their initials in the W. C. T. U. rooms. This box shall be there to receive any papers donated for the purpose of supplying the need of any persons who are not able to procure food literature.

The following motions were also made and carried: First, that an invitation be sent to the "Y" convention to meet in Plainfield next Spring. Secondly, that fifty cents be sent for the World's Fair souvenir fund. Thirdly, that a dollar be sent to the Isabel Gibson fund. It was then left to the discretion of the president, whether the name of our "Y" be put upon the quilt, for raising the debt on Prohibition cottage.

After a few farewell remarks from the president, the meeting adjourned until October, when the members expect to take up their work with renewed vigor and continue in helping their poorer and more needy neighbors.

Wanted the Whole Street.

A man driving with a load of wood, yesterday afternoon, along Somerset street, evidently wanted the whole street. As he drove from one side to the other his wagon collided with a vehicle left standing on one side of the street. Policeman Kiely went to the rescue and after awhile the man with the wood again started on his road rejoicing. Rejoicing that the "cop" did not take him in, for being under the influence of liquor.

Notes of Pond's.

Mr. Garrett T. Dunham, time-keeper for the Fond Machine Tool Co., will move his family to Plainfield about June 1st. Mr. Dunham has always resided in North Branch, N. J.

The Rev. Mr. Adam C. Nicholson of Pondville has changed his place of residence. He now resides at No. 3 Fond place.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

THE FIRST ANNUAL STATE CONVENTION NOW IN PROGRESS.

At the Central Methodist Episcopal Church, Newark.—This is the First Time That Anything Larger Than a County Convention has Been Held.

The first annual convention of the New Jersey Epworth League began yesterday afternoon in the Central Methodist church, Newark. Rev. C. F. Nettleship began the devotional exercises shortly after one o'clock, at the conclusion of the hour. Henry Spellmeyer delivered an address of welcome. Benjamin F. Clark, President of the Newark Epworth Union, spoke of "Our Union," which, he said, was composed of fourteen leagues, including Harrison and Irvington. The number of the members of the local leagues are: Bailey street, 271; Roseville, 170; St. Luke's, 120; Centenary, 150; Central, 125; Franklin street, 179; De Groot, 125; Irvington, 80; Union street, 80; St. Paul's, 75; South Market street, 65; Dashiell, 41; Trinity, 40; Davis Memorial, 32.

It was reported that there are in this State 320 Epworth chapters, having 25,127 members, besides thirty Christian Endeavor Societies with 1,336 members.

Eleazer Drake, in the course of a brief address, said that during the past year three new Methodist churches had been started in Newark. Rev. C. F. Nettleship spoke of the evangelistic work that had been done.

T. J. Lovatt, corresponding secretary of the State League, then submitted his report. Mr. Lovatt stated that in the latter part of March there had been sent to every Epworth League and Christian Endeavor Society a blank report to be filled out.

Two hundred and fifty-nine of these were returned, seven of which were from affiliating societies, which showed a membership in senior organizations of 19,864. Seventy-one reports show 9,320 members. The answers to financial questions show $22,206.06.

The Camden district shows the largest membership, both senior and junior, while Newark district is next largest. The Newark district has the most money, with the Elizabeth district second. The Paterson district is second to Camden in point of junior membership.

These committees were appointed:

Credentials—Arthur W. Johnson, Rev. M. Toolson, William F. E. Holmes; auditing—Rev. James B. Dare, Charles G. Wheeler, Milton R. Kenworth; Resolutions—S. Winters, Rev. E. O. Robbins, Rev. W. H. Morgan; Nominations—A. K. Roberts, Rev. R. H. Boyd, R. C. Stroebell, E. B. Moore, Rev. E. M. Cresto; perlodicals—Rev. J. Boswell, H. Hendrickson, A. L. Pierce. Next Convention—Rev. E. H. Jay, M. FitzGerge, Rev. W. M. Trumbower.

After hearing from the district secretaries the convention adjourned till evening, when there were fraternal meetings, praise services and a social hour. To-day's session will be devoted to business and the convention will conclude to-night.

ASCENSION DAY SERVICE.

Bishop Scarborough at Holy Cross Church.

Bishop Scarborough held a confirmation service at the Holy Cross church this morning.

The service was opened by the singing of the hymn, "Awake, my soul, awake." The Bishop then prayed according to the prescribed form of the service, after which the rector, Rev. T. Logan Murphy read the Scripture lessons appointed for the day. The Bishop spoke to his usual earnest and impressive manner from Mark xvi: 14, dwelling at considerable length upon Christ's love for human nity.

Four new members were admitted to the church.

The communion service followed, after which the Bishop pronounced the benediction.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Fred. Sandford of Philadelphia is visiting his mother on Washington avenue.

Miss Lou Kerwin of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., is the guest of Miss Mamie Casey of West Third street.

At the regular Wednesday evening meeting at the Washingtonville schoolhouse Mr. Clark spoke on "A Trip Westward."

Mrs. Samuel H. Frood of East Third street is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter S. Van Fleet, of North Branch.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Pound of East Second street left yesterday for Eatontown to attend the quarterly meeting of the New Jersey Society of Friends.

The first grand annual ball given Tuesday night at the Zouave Armory, Elizabeth, under the auspices of the Association of the Ancient Order of Foresters, which is composed of representatives from the several courts in that place, proved to be a brilliant affair. Among the courts was C. O. Hines, S. C. R., of Court Pride, this city.

Goods to be Sold for Taxes.

Yesterday Justice Nash levied on the household goods of Thomas Martin of Plainfield avenue, Thomas Buckley of Liberty street, and Lawrence Bray of South Second street, for non payment of taxes.

CORRESPONDENCE.

IN THE LAND OF STREET RAILWAYS.

A Letter From the Famous Teller of Tales "Pan Jan Drasa."

To the Editor of The News:—Once on a time, a certain Village in Asia, or some Remote Country across the Water, did have a Great Upheaval of the Streets by a Curious and Wonderful Growth of City. Hamlets named a Street Railway. Now this Street Railway was Governed by Wise men, who had only hired men of sombre colored skin and motive tongues to do their work, but did also draw up with this village a certain agreement in which they did say they would do Thus and So. Now, when the streets of this Village were being ordered, and great slices of its overcoat removed, these sombre hued workingmen, who, of course, knew not of agreements, did work with such enjoyment and energy as to raise warts on the smooth face of that street, and cause certain rustic drivers much loss of temper, and they did also break into small pieces the agreement which their Governors did make.

Now the Mighty men of this Village did Council together, and, behold, the result of their Learning and Wisdom of wits was that they did appoint another man of mite, who was to talk gently to those sombre hued and active workingmen, and request them to shock the street, not all at once, but just a little at a time, by removing its too covering, and then when that was done, and a few incidentals, replace it. This was also so that these drivers might have less wear on their tongues in conversing, in many syllabled words, with these workingmen. And as a Reward for Exercise in this gracious Service, this last named Person was to receive, for Services Rendered in Times Past, of the savings of other persons, which had been loaned the village, the vast sum of three hundred pennies per day. It was no Sin nor duty. He was only to get $3 a day when off duty. Now these active planters of the Street Railway did rise with the Sun and Hustle. On the Contrary, the Man of mite did Commence to Think about Arising when the Sun got up, and breakfasted somewhat Later. Therefore, the Working Company did make that street look like a Field of Battle by the Time this Mitee Man picked the Quail on Toast from his Bone Crushers. He did observe this in a respectful manner to Isiah Dobbin, Master of the Company, But, upon being informed that he was a Good Fellow, let it proceed. In the time that followed, the Rustic Drivers having Exhausted their Vocabulary, this Man of Mite had his Hair Combed for the Head of the aforesaid drivers. Have you observed the Result? Verily, for a day he did make those Company men do as the agreement said, but alas, now he Has Overworked, and having borrowed a Chair from the Hotel Stairs, he sat down and perched down to the Freeholder's room to time to head off Mr. Trabon's motion. Freeholder Bouchelle's motion to table Trabon's motion was carried by every vote except Trabon's. The late Speaker of the Assembly smiled over his account and then leaned back to discuss figures on the Grand Jury.

County Collector Oliver reported that the financial condition of the county was expellent. The receipts during the past year were $446,147 85, expenditures $426,-276.16.

Director Sauer appointed as committee on appropriations Freeholders Donahue, Moory, Hunt, Hubbard, and Howard.

In Justice Nash's Court.

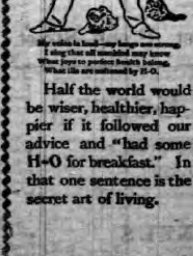
The civil suits of Coriell vs Rogers and Coriell vs. Burrell, came up before Justice Nash today, and were laid over for one week. Both cases are on contract.

The suit of Noel vs. Price, demand for premises, which was to have been tried to-day, was settled out of court.



My advice to fond young lovers everywhere: I sing that all who would be wise may know When joys to pardon found to belong, What life are outlawed by H-O.

Half the world would be wiser, healthier, happier if it followed our advice and "had some H+O for breakfast." In that one sentence is the secret art of living.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

PALMER GAVE ONE MAN $60,000.

A Committee Examining Into His Sanity.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., May 11. (Special.) —The Committee to examine into the sanity of Henry Palmer met at the Court House to-day. Many prominent men were examined either as witnesses or counsel. It was shown that Palmer was worth half a million dollars ten years ago. Now he has only about $100,000. He gave money away right and left to men and boys.

He gave one man, now in Chicago $50,000.

An effort is being made by his brother to have the court appoint a guardian.

The examination will probably last several days.

REPUBLICANS ELECT A DEMOCRAT.

John S. Sauer Chosen Director of the Board of Freeholders.

The Union County Board of Freeholders for 1893 and 1894 met at Elizabeth yesterday for organization. They called the board to order and the Democratic nominated Freeholder John S. Sauer and the Republicans Capt. Hubbard, of Plainfield, for director. The first ballot settled it, as one Republican voted for Sauer and another threw a vote away on Freeholder Bellsby, Democrat. The ballot stood: Sauer 9, Hubbard, 6; Bellsby, 1. No attempt was made to elect a County Physician.

Freeholder Trahon (Dem.), who does not like Assemblyman Lane, offered a resolution that the Samuels Knabel Editor Smythe's paper, be made the official organ of the county instead of the Sunrise Scorcher, edited by Mr. Lane. He called those who were in the Grand Jury room upstairs, and they filed and marched down to the Freeholder's room to time to head off Mr. Trahon's motion. Freeholder Bouchelle's motion to table Trahon's motion was carried by every vote except Trahon's. The late Speaker of the Assembly smiled over his account and then leaned back to discuss figures on the Grand Jury.

The amount thought to be necessary for the purpose is $16,000.

9 2* S. B. JOSEPH, District Clerk.

This is to be remembered about our gold export: The more millions of it we send to Europe the more plentiful will it become there and the less the demand will be for it. When Europe has enough, more will be a glut, consequently there will cease to be an export demand here.

A New York rabbi is cut up in his mind because the children of Polish Jews in that city are being enticed into Christian Sunday schools by gifts of cake, candy and shoes. He complains of it as an unfair way of attempting to make proselytes. Then he remarks that all this will do no good, however, for Jews cannot be enticed away from their faith. Then what is he making this rackes for?

It may be, it certainly will be, of interest to students everywhere to know about a law that has just been passed by the Ohio legislature. The said law makes hazing at school or elsewhere a misdemeanor punishable by fine and imprisonment in the penitentiary. The amount of the fine is from $100 to $300 and the term of imprisonment from six months to two years. Branding or tattooing by nitrate of silver or other means gets a dose of penitentiary too. Now the young ladies and gentlemen of Ohio may look out. Every state in this Union ought to have just that kind of a law.

Landscape Architects.

The editor of The Century believes that the Columbian fair will do more than anything else could to convince the American mind of the great need of trained landscape gardeners in this country. The necessary connection of the landscape gardener with the architect has not impressed our people heretofore. The landscape architect should be consulted along with the building architect before the structure is begun, not after it is completed.

The feature which will strike the visitor in regard to the World's fair grounds and buildings is the beauty of the whole considered as one work of art. Buildings fit the grounds, and grounds fit the buildings. This was made a most important part of the planning of the great Columbian exposition. The lack of landscape architects who can worthily co-operate with our artistic building architects is, however, a most serious one at present. There is richly paying employment for talented young men who are willing to take up the profession of landscape gardening. There are, however, almost no schools where a course of instruction in this department can be had. The Century suggests that there should be a department of landscape gardening established in connection with one of the universities or technical schools. Really, however, it ought to be one of the courses at the agricultural colleges. So ought instruction in forestry. Every school that can should assist in the work of changing our scarred, mutilated American landscapes into ideals of artistic beauty.

The Homestead Law.

If you want to get a free farm from the United States public lands, the first thing to do will be to find out just where you want to go. Take not the word of any honey tongued railroad agent or agent of any kind, but find out for yourself by inquiries which will suggest themselves to you. Having decided where you will go—to the Cherokee Outlet perhaps—next get a copy of the United States homestead acts and study them carefully. Take the word of no interested person in this respect either. It is to be supposed of course that any one who has intelligence to settle in a country as a pioneer has intelligence enough to understand the homestead law when he reads and studies it.

Any citizen or expectant citizen of the United States who is 21 years old and over may acquire a homestead—any person except a married woman, that is. In respect to getting a homestead, a wife is not a person in the eyes of the law. Having chosen your farm, go to it and begin work. You may claim as a homestead 160 acres of the public lands, provided you do not already own that amount somewhere else. If so, you must get rid of enough to bring it below 160 acres before you can lay claim to a homestead.

You must honestly begin to cultivate the soil of your 160 acres and proceed to show that you intend it bona fide for your home. It is the surest way to settle down upon your farm and stick to it. Within three months of the time you have made settlement you must go to the nearest land office and file your claim, paying the land entry fee of $5, $10 or $14, according to the amount of land you have entered. You must also record your affidavit that you intend to make that farm your home. Five years' residence upon and cultivation of the land will make it yours permanently, and the government will give you a patent for it. If the husband and father dies, the widow and children may continue upon the land and obtain the title at the end of five years.

While actual residence upon the claim is desirable it is not absolutely necessary. The law does not say you must live elsewhere, making trips to the homestead to cultivate it. It does say that for at least five years in as long a period as 14 months at a time you shall be on the land or losing it. Finally the new homestead must be established for any lands to his credit at the time of death.

ELECTING A PRESIDENT

Republicans at Louisville in the Midst of Business.

THE BIG MASS MEETING AT NIGHT.

The Convention Will Be Held In Denver Next Year—The National Committee Elected Carter Chairman and Then Left For Home.

LOUISVILLE, May 11.—This is the most important day of the national Republican League convention. Today the most important business of the season, the election of officers of the National league and the choosing of the various committees, was on the programme.

The convention was called to order shortly after 10 o'clock this forenoon and immediately the business was begun. The reports of the various committees were hurried through and listened to with evident impatience. It was clear that the delegates were in a hurry to get to balloting for the president of the league.

All the morning there has been an amount of log rolling and electioneering that has surprised Kentucky Democrats, who stand by and see it all. The result of the voting will probably not be reached until late this forenoon.

The annual address made by President Clarkson has been the subject of much favorable comment. He said in part:

As we begin here today the morale of victory in 1892 we have neither complaints nor apologies nor explanations to make for the defeat of the last year. Indeed the Republican party feels better today over the situation than the country itself. The Democratic party that saw in the Republican policies only reverses if the American people has now been in power two months, and the robbery still goes on by Democratic consent and under Democratic auspices.

Cleveland and his secretary of the treasury have already given us a plain, practical taste of Democratic ideas of finance and business. They have already frightened the business world, made a suspension of discount in all the banks of the country, and created uneasiness where prosperity ruled before.

The new administration has also shown an adverse balance of foreign trade in the last four months of $60,000,000 as against a favorable balance of over $60,000,000 in the last months of the Harrison administration.

When the Democratic party accepts the means as a voter, and as a man also, and as a man fit for office and lawmaking, how is Watterson any longer going to maintain the right of the Republican party to do this same thing? So we say to him and his party in the words of Lincoln and Grant that the cause of civil liberty itself is involved in this question and that the quietest must go on, and at every voting place in the land the rights of every Republican shall be as fully admitted and as fully protected as the right of every Democrat.

Thousands at Mass Meeting.

Last night's grand mass meeting in Phoenix Hill park was a brilliantly successful affair. There was a large list of well known Republicans who spoke from the platform, and they expounded the principles of their party with eloquence and fervor. The mass meeting was attended by several thousands, which is an evidence that many Kentuckians must have listened to a new gospel for once at least in their lives. Speeches were made by Colonel Brady, who was almost elected governor of Kentucky a few years ago; Congressman Dolliver of Iowa, Congressman Hepburn of Iowa, Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, Colonel Trumbo and Frank J. Cannon of Utah.

Having disposed of its international difference in its own way, the national Republican committee adjourned, and many of its members got away from town on the first trains. The net result of its deliberations was that Mr. Carter was confirmed as chairman, and Joseph H. Manley of Maine succeeds Mr. McComas as secretary. Mr. Carter admitted to Mr. DeYoung (maybe he did not) that he only chairman of the executive committee last summer, and Mr. DeYoung had the further pleasure of playing with the gavel until the full committee had adopted the resolution passed at the caucus on Tuesday night. That resolution declares that the "action of the national Republican committee at its meeting on July 14, 1892, in New York, in selecting Hon. Thomas F. Carter as chairman of the national Republican committee, be, and the same is hereby reaffirmed and ratified."

To the above was added one paragraph accepting the resignation of Mr. Campbell of Illinois as chairman, and another declaring that the national committee continue as at present. Mr. DeYoung drew a small consolation prize in the choice of Mr. Manley as secretary, as Manley and Carter are not politically "chummy," and if Mr. De Young wants the chairman watched he may be gratified. The fight on Carter had about all been made on Tuesday night.

Denver the Next Place.

Southern members showed some opposition to a resolution that was revived in the committee to the effect that the basis of representation in the next national convention be one delegate for each 2,000 votes cast in the last congressional election, instead of one for each congressional district and four for the states at large, as at present. This move is on the line of the discussion last June that the representation in the national convention in both parties has become unwieldy and that they ought to be reduced in size. The final settlement of the question was left for the meeting in preparation for the convention of 1896. Messrs Manley of Maine and Martin of Pennsylvania left for Chicago and the World's fair last night in their private car.

The committee appointed to consider the place and time for holding the next convention has decided in favor of Denver in preference to Milwaukee and Omaha. They will also report in favor of holding the meeting in May. It is supposed that the convention will finish its labors tonight.

FATE OF THE CHINESE.

Arguments In the Geary Exclusion Cases Heard.

BRANDED AS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Mr. Choate Holds That the Government Has No Power to Banish Any One In Time of Peace—Mr. Blount Had Been Appointed Commissioner Several Days.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The special session of the supreme court heard the arguments upon the constitutionality of the Geary Chinese exclusion act, upon appeal from the judgment of the United States circuit court for the southern district of New York. It attracted an attendance that more than exhausted the limited accommodations of the court room. The visitors included many prominent members of the bar and a large number of ladies.

The attorneys did not occupy the full period of time allotted to them by the court, there remaining 30 minutes of the time unspent at their disposal when court was adjourned until Monday next, at which time it is expected a decision will be announced.

Joseph Choate of New York opened the case for the Chinese, and argument was closed by J. C. Black for the Chinese. Solicitor General Aldrich speaking for the government after Choate. The argument was marked by an absence of oratory and was a presentation of legal points almost purely. The court listened quietly to counsel, and the only interruption was by Justice Gray, who put a question to Choate on a technical point of procedure not vital to the merits.

Mr. Choate's Argument.

There were three cases before the court all being in the form of applications for writs of habeas corpus. Fong Yue Ting and Wong Quan, in their applications stand on the ground that they properly refuse to apply for certificates of residence required by the Geary law, while Lee Joe's case has an additional point in it, he having applied for the required certificate, but having been denied it because he produced two Chinese witnesses and not one white witness, as required by the law, to swear that he came to this country prior to the passage of the Geary law.

Mr. Choate in his argument began by calling attention to the fact that the 13 treaties recently entered into between the United States and China to immigrate from one country to the other "as persons in the most favored nation" all provided expressly that the court cannot impute to congress the intent by the Geary act to banish from the soil of the United States Chinese laborers who at the time of its passage were lawfully within this country.

He advanced several propositions in support of this point. Congress, he said, has no sovereign power to expel alien residents in case of peace. Banishment not being the object of congress the purpose of the act evidently was only to construct a scheme by which the right of every individual Chinaman of the laboring class might be adjudicated.

An examination of the scheme adopted by congress, he submitted, would show it to be a violation of the constitutional guarantees of personal liberty. It required a deprivation of liberty without due process of law in direct violation of the fifth amendment of the constitution, in the case of every Chinese were not identified. The test gave to the collectors of internal revenue the absolute and arbitrary power to determine the right of each Chinese applicant to receive a certificate and remain within this country. Without that Chinese were to be deported at once if they did not secure certificates, and this procedure, depriving as time for winding up business affairs, deprived them of property without due process of law. The act also violated the constitution in that its attempt to vest executive powers in United States judges, who, in the great majority of cases which could arise under the Geary law, have no duty other than the ministerial duty of signing orders directing that men arrested by the revenue officers be deported from the country.

In Lee Joe's case, Choate made the point that congress could not deprive a man of his right to have as his witness anybody who knows the fact, whether white, black or otherwise. Moreover, there was nothing in the act to prevent the government having one Chinaman as a witness against another.

Mr. Aldrich's Reply.

Solicitor General Aldrich, for the government, insisted that counsel for the other side were erroneously assuming that its purpose was to secure the deportation of Chinese laborers from the United States, when an examination of the act would show it was to provide a system of registration and identification of such as are here. This was a lawful purpose whether applied to citizens or aliens. The means adopted to attain that purpose, he submitted, were lawful and also reasonable and humane. Ample time—one year—was given to procure the certificate, and no complicated process was necessary and cheap by requiring no charge and practically no travel to secure one.

As to the charge that arbitrary power was given collectors, the simple answer was that the act opened the courts to Chinese, so they might therein gain their rights if the collector denied them certificates. There was nothing in these provisions which violated any clause of the constitution. Moreover, it did not violate the treaty of 1868 as was contended. That treaty expressly reserved the right on the part of the United States to "regulate or suspend the coming or residence of Chinese whenever it may be deemed necessary." Congress alone was the judge of what was necessary. Aldrich further contended that under international law every nation has a right to prescribe the terms of admission of aliens into its territory, to forbid such admission or, having admitted aliens to limit or regulate their residence within the country and to suspend such residence altogether when it chose to do so. He asserted that there is such a thing as a police power of the United States, under which the government had the widest latitude of action.

Ashton, in closing, elaborated on some of the points made by Choate.

Purpose of Mr. Blount's Appointment.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The news that ex-Representative Blount of Georgia, who is on a special mission to Hawaii, had been appointed several days ago to be United States minister to that country in place of Mr. Stevens, the former minister, is to be denied. It is signified on behalf on the part of President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham to emphasize the fact that Mr. Blount represents their views on the Hawaiian problem, and that they wish it understood that various Americans, including Minister Stevens and Mr. Bowen and Mr. Sewell, who are now in Hawaii working up a sentiment favorable to annexation, do not in any sense represent the views of the administration.

Jones Succeeds Evans.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The president has appointed Frank H. Jones of Spokane Falls, Wash., first assistant postmaster general, vice H. Clay Evans resigned.

Drowned In the Reservoir.

PATERSON, N. J., May 11.—Two children, one 7 and the other 5 years old, sons of James Dooley, a saloon keeper, fell into the middle reservoir of the Passaic Water company and were drowned.

ROSHI'S BODY FOUND.

Slew One of the Sing Sing Convicts Last Fall.

SING SING, May 11.—The body of Frank W. Roshi, who with Thomas Pallister escaped from the deathhouse in Sing Sing prison on April 30, was found in the Hudson river, opposite Haddingham, several miles above Sing Sing, by ferry fishermen.

The prison authorities at first believed that Roshi was drowned immediately after his escape, but this theory was somewhat shaken by a subsequent discovery when the body was washed. It was then seen that Roshi had a bullet wound on the right side of the head. The prison officials were then inclined to the opinion that the men had had a quarrel and that Pallister had shot his comrade. Both men carried revolvers, which they took from the keepers when they escaped.

The verdict of the coroner's jury was "F. Roshi came to his death between April 30 and May 10 in Westchester county, N. Y., from a bullet wound and fracture of the skull produced by a person or persons to this jury unknown, and supposed to have been done by Thomas Pallister, who was in company with him while escaping. April 29, from the condemned cells in Sing Sing prison."

THE KENTUCKY DERBY.

Lookout Won the Famous Race and a Fortune.

LOUISVILLE, May 11.—The nineteenth of the long line of honored winners of the Kentucky derby has been crowned, and his name is Lookout. He won it grandly, beating the field from start to finish and winning under the wire unbounded by whip or spur and with his noble neck arched under a strong pull. Fifteen made a noble struggle for the prize, but it was not in his winner nature to beat the son of Troubadour.

Boundless, under whip and spur, was close behind Lookout, while Dudie McGinn was next in line, throwing dust in the eyes of Mirage, with Linger trailing far behind, an ignominious last.

Never in the 19 years in which the famous Kentucky trophy has been won has such a host gathered at Churchill Downs. Twenty thousand is a fair estimate of the multitude which was present to witness the running of the laurels which mean for him a future life of ease and honor and after death a place in the Valhalla of equine heroes.

Stokes Was Pardoned.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Argument was heard before Judge Cowing, in the court of general sessions, in the libel suit of Edward S. Stokes of the Hoffman House against W. E. D. Stokes and Lawyer William R. Mackey. Counsel for Mr. Edward Stokes created a sensation in the court room by handing up to the court a pardon of the state to Edward S. Stokes, dated Dec. 1, 1884, and signed by Grover Cleveland, then governor, releasing Stokes from all consequences of his crime. This introduction of the pardon is the first information that has been given as to the restoration of Mr. Stokes to citizenship. Judge Cowing reserved decision.

Thanks From Carlyle Harris.

NEWARK, N. J., May 11.—Mrs. F. A. Amidon of Roseville, who did yeomen service in the extraordinary effort made to save Carlyle Harris, received a letter from him which was written last Saturday. A copy of it is as follows:

My Mother's Friend and Mine:

How can I thank you for all your labor and love! That it has been in vain is not our fault, but God's. Let us bow to His will and bless you and goodby. Do not grieve for us, my dear friend. I have fought my fight, have suffered and believe that I run die with courage.

With last love, CARL.

Supervisors In Deadlock.

ALBANY, May 11.—There was a deadlock in the organization of the Albany county board of supervisors. At a ballot taken to elect a chairman of the board the organization (Dem.) candidate received 15 votes, the Republican candidate 14 votes and the Democratic anti-organization candidate 2 votes. This deadlock promises to last for a time.

Reception to a Lutheran Bishop.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Among the passengers on the steamship Majestic was Knut Hennig Gezelius von Schinie, S. T., bishop of Visby, Sweden. The arrival of this bishop will be of unusually keen interest to the Lutheran bishop that has ever visited America, and in consequence all members of that denomination tendered him a reception.

A Requisition For Hopkins.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Seldon R. Hopkins, president of the Money Check book company, was taken to the district attorney's office on a requisition from the governor of Illinois, which called for Hopkins' arrest for the larceny of $3,800. Hopkins says it is an old case and has been beaten in the courts of Chicago.

Horse Racing His Downfall.

NEW YORK, May 11.—William B. Van Dyke, who is 21 years old, who was a confidential clerk for the Ballard Pipe company of Cincinnati, pleaded guilty to forgery and was sent to the Elmira reformatory. The amount of the forgery—$1,000—he said he lost on horse racing.

HARRIS WAS ENGAGED.

While in the Tombs He Was Made Love to by a Mysterious Girl.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The Herald today publishes the following:

"Carlyle W. Harris was the hero of a romance while he was awaiting death in the Tombs prison. A girl who met him by chance one Sunday in one of the gloomy corridors fell in love with him, visited him daily and hourly awaited the moment of his release, when she expected that he would marry her.

"Her devotion to him was as great as his mother's, and she is believed to be the young woman dressed in deep mourning who accompanied Carlyle Harris' cousin, E. M. Hill, alias Edward Morrell, from New York to Albany and attended the funeral of the executed criminal. At the tombs the girl called herself Carrie Jones. That was not her real name.

"She deliberately broke an engagement of marriage with a worthy and estimable young man.

"As nearly as any one about the Tombs can remember, the gruesome love affair began some time early in December, 1891. Carrie Jones had visited the gloomy old prison with a band of young women and a few young men, who had volunteered to cheer the inmates by singing hymns to the accompaniment of a small organ. Up to the last moment she never lost faith that Harris' life would be saved. She was one of the hardest workers in bringing forward new evidence to help him to a new trial."

BOOTH'S MIND STILL CLOUDED.

Little Hope That He Will Ever Recover Say the Doctors.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The following bulletin in regard to Edwin Booth's condition has been given out:

PLAYERS' CLUB, May 11, 1893.

In regard to Mr. Booth's condition, it may be stated that while the acute nephritis which at one time threatened a fatal termination has now subsided, and while there is now no present or immediate danger from that source, the condition of hemoplegia with aphasia which has been present for the past three week has not materially changed. Mr. Booth's mental condition is still somewhat obscured, but there is little probability of any rapid or complete recovery.

HENDERSON, Ky., May 11.—The late floods caused the Ohio river to overflow the Indiana bank for three miles above and below this city, submerging the farming lands 2½ miles back to a depth of from 12 to 16 inches.

Above Evansville the flood has cut through a channel 1½ miles long, deep enough to float large steamers. Should this divergence become permanent it would save a 10-mile detour, but leave Evansville an inland city.

CHICAGO, May 11.—Exposition visitors are now seeking the shade of the buildings. The sun beats down upon the glistening white walls with midsummer intensity and makes the shade decidedly welcome.

Ladies stroll about protected by parasols, and spring overcoats are shed before the sun is many hours high.

While the change in temperature is a welcome one to the musicians who shivered in the cold and damp of last week, the unhappy chair rollers pray for a respite from the spring sunshine. Toiling behind a roller chair with a 200-pound passenger under a beaming sun is not the most desirable of occupations, and the blue coated college students grimed their dollar if they ever did.

Vermonters Still In Town.

The visitors from Vermont who came down to dedicate their state building yesterday are still in the city.

They are headed by the Hon. Levi K. Fuller, governor of that state. The governor is accompanied by a long list of ex-governors, ex-lieutenant governors, officers of the different departments of the state government and the Vermont Press association.

The Vermonters are very proud of their building. With the exception of some of the furnishings, which were purchased in Chicago, the material used in its construction was brought from Vermont. The floors are of marble from near Rutland. The tiling at the entrance is from Swanton. The beautiful marble mantels capped with decorations furnished by Alva Dana of New Haven, Vt. There are no exhibits in the building, it being intended for a place of rest for Vermonters who will come to the fair.

Rumors of a disagreement between the members of the committees and the council of administration are rife. It is said that Mr. Lannon and his fellow committeemen insist upon the discharge of Mr. Thomas. President Higinbotham, backed by Mr. Massey, counseled a compromise. The special committee are to make a report to the national commission today.

The representatives of the carpenters who struck at the fair three weeks ago, after their executive committee had agreed not to do so, will have to pay their way into the big show like anybody else, although the passes with pictures of Jackson in them are all ready. L. Larsen and other members of the Carpenters' council called on the council of administration and asked for the six season passes which the fair officials had agreed to give the representatives of the united trades. The requests were refused. Mr. Massey of the council of administration told the delegates that inasmuch as the carpenters had broken their promise they were not entitled to any passes. The representatives of the other trades here already got their passes.

New Feature of the Sunday Issue.

"The World's fair will be open next Sunday, you can depend on that," said the Hon. W. F. Mason. "I am not prepared to give the details of the bill I intend to file, but I know that the United States has no right to legislate on any question appertaining to religion.

"I will say this much, that I will represent in suit a number of people who really observe the Saturday as their day of worship. They are consistent in their observance of the day, and we will see if the government has the right to declare another day as the only Sabbath. This is only one of the points, but it is a strong one, and the suit will virtually rest on it. An injunction will be issued before the week is out."

The Irish village has been formally opened. It was a large and hearty crowd that took part in the ceremonies, and over them the green flag of Ireland waved, flanked on four sides by the stars and stripes, and the sun shone down upon the Blarney stone and kissed it in the face of all. The queen were received by Lord and Lady Aberdeen, and every one got a warm Irish welcome.

The Irish village is situated in the southeastern corner of Midway plaisance, and in the middle of the quaint miniature town is located the most interesting spot in the village—Blarney Castle. The castle is two-thirds the size of the real structure, and is an exact reproduction, not forgetting, either, the celebrated old piece of stone which gives the castle its name.

The Nicaraguan Revolution.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Secretary Gresham has received information which leads him to believe that the Nicaraguan revolution will be successful. The latest dispatches received by the secretary say that the revolutionists are in possession of six towns of the country and also of all the vessels on the canal.

WANTED TO SEE HIS HEART.

A Novel Request In a Murder Trial Which Was Refused.

PHILADELPHIA, May 11.—Attorney Russell Duane, George S. Patterson and William Draper Lewis presented a petition to Judge Hare on behalf of John Haley, who is now awaiting trial for the murder of Daniel O'Leary, requesting that Dr. William Hunt and Joseph Leidy be allowed to make microscopic examinations of the heart and clothing of O'Leary, for the purpose of proving that the knife now in the possession of the commonwealth, with which Haley is accused of having done the stabbing, could not have inflicted the wound.

The petition was opposed by District Attorney Graham, and after a lengthy argument it was refused by the court.

The Fleet In the Hudson.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The departure of the four British men-of-war for Bermuda leaves a gap at the head of the line of war vessels nearest the New York shore. The Russians now head the line. The American ships and those of Germany, France, Italy, Brazil, Argentina and Holland, still remain in the Hudson. The caravels will leave for Chicago by way of the lakes and canals about June.

Mr. Gladstone Said Away.

LONDON, May 11.—There was some comment today over the fact that Prime Minister Gladstone was not among the distinguished men present at the opening by the queen of the British Imperial institute. Mr. Gladstone's wife and daughter were present, but he was conspicuously absent. John Morley, the chief secretary for Ireland in Mr. Gladstone's cabinet, was also absent.

Army May Cheat the Gallows.

CONCORD, N. H., May 11.—Governor Smith, with Councilors Parsons, Blunt, Fay and Moulton and Sheriff Hurlburt, went to the state prison to consider the arrangements for the execution of the murderer, Abbey. Sheriff Hurlburt found Abby much changed in a week, and in lines to the belief that he will die as before next Tuesday, the day he is to die.

Dug Up Indian Relics.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., May 11.—Mr. John Frost while at work in his garden discovered a large amount of Indian relics and the skeleton of an animal. They were beneath flat rocks, cemented together, and nearly 100 implements of all kinds were found.

WHAT IS THE FASHION?

Anything and Everything Between the Dates of Louis XIII and 1830.

A woman of fashion can dress in the costume of four or five different epochs in the course of one day without being remarkable. For instance, she may wear a morning gown or peignoir in the watteau style, don a modern tailor made costume for her morning walk, a Louis XV casaque and waistcoat for afternoon visits, a tea gown to dine in and an empire ball dress. Sometimes these costumes set dates and history at defiance and assume the composite style, the sleeves of one era being worn with the skirt of another, and so on. A century or two seems a trifling difference. At the same dinner party or ball you may meet your most intimate friend in a dress of the first empire and suddenly behold your dearest foe arrive looking as if she had stepped out of a picture frame, in a superb costume of the time of Anne of Austria, with perhaps a medici collar, while you may be garbed in a dress with a deep berthe, 1830 mode, and shoes with sandals.

Worth appears to give a little preference to the 1830 style, with qualifications. In a number of gowns recently made the sleeves were all balloon form at the top, and frills or flounces of the material or lace formed capes, pointed at the back and front and passing over the top of the balloon sleeve, forming a most fetching and comfortable to the width of the wearer's shoulders. The skirts were close fitting in the front and at the sides, the fullness being gathered at the back and the length moderate.

The cut shows one of the free modifications of old styles which furnish some of the most attractive of the new spring costumes. The costume is in gobe brocade with ball skirt, with band of oriental and gold galloon at the knee, square jacket with shoulder caps forming a double fold over the bust and full vest. The sleeves are of a fancy shot silk in shades of peach and green, and the collar and waistband of the material. The bonnet is in fancy straw and gold. The trimmings consist of an upright bow and ends in peach satin, three tufts of small velvet flowers in shades of peach and green, and peach satin strings.

THE HOUSEHOLD

MARKING LINEN.

A Revival of the Neat Hand Marking of Former Days For Household Linen.

Once more it is the fashion to mark linen in dainty manner with the needle, as in the years before marking inks were known. Again, too, cross stitch, the old fashioned orthodox marking, is in vogue, as well as outline, stem and chain stitches. These, and especially the cross stitch, are used on the simpler kinds of house linen because they are quickly and easily done. But Harper's Bazar tells us that fashionable marking is now done in French or raised satin stitch and is almost always all white, though sometimes on towels a little color is mingled with the white, and from the same source is learned the following about this fascinating and useful employment for the needle:

The ordinary size of marking letters for house linen is 1½ to 2 inches. Exceptionally fine tablecloths or ornamented sheets are fancifully marked with much larger letters anywhere from 3 to 7 or even 9 inches in height.

Initials for satin stitch marking can be either regularly stamped or they can be transferred from the design by means of carbon paper. The latter is placed between the letter and the linen, and the letter is firmly gone over with a blunt point. The outlines are then run with embroidery cotton: the space between the outlines is padded lightly with a long and short running stitch if the line is a narrow one, more heavily by laying strands of darning cotton and catching them down if the line is a broad one, for a large letter. The padded spaces are then covered in close satin stitch, worked either straight across or slantwise. French embroidery cotton is used. It is chosen coarse or fine with reference to the material. An ordinary sewing needle is employed. Some seamstresses, however, prefer the shorter length, the size called "betweens."

Tablecloths are marked at the middle of the end in small letters just above the hem or larger initials half way between the lower edge and the edge of the table. Napkins are marked diagonally across the corner. Sheets are marked on the middle fold two inches below the top hem, long pillowcases at the end two inches above the hem, and square cases at the middle of the top; towels at the middle of one end just above the border.

It is optional whether a single letter or full initials be used, many housekeepers preferring to mark all household goods alike with merely the initial of the family name and many the initials of the names only on personal linen. Others use three initials, and these again may be the house mistress' own initials or they may be the joint first initials of husband and wife together with that of the family name.

Violet Baths and Perfumed Pillows.

The flower baths, rendered fashionable by a great Parisian perfumer, are quite within the possibilities for a popular girl with a thrifty turn of mind. They are prepared by tossing three handfuls of dried violets in the bottom of the tub, soaking them in boiling water for a half or three quarters of an hour, when the rest of the water is added, and the bath is ready, delightfully perfumed and refreshing for the nerves by virtue of the fragrant blossoms. Flowers that have been worn of an evening or done duty in vases for a day can be utilized for the bath as well as the fresh blossoms. They have but to be stripped of their petals and then dried with a sprinkling of salt upon a newspaper or towel in a sunny window. Another pet fancy of ladies is to fill a pillow with the dried flower petals, a pillow made of the strong, fine bolting cloth of silk, through which the tint of the blossoms may be plainly seen. Then for the delicate part of the work write upon the pillow, in soft shades of sepia, the initials of the donors of the blossoms, interwoven in fancy curves and spirals, or the dates, or any little catchword to remind you of pleasant associations with the flowers. The pillow is restful to a tired head and is supposed to bring reflections and dreams as sweet and as subtle as the faint fragrance of the dead flowers.

An Easily Made Screen.

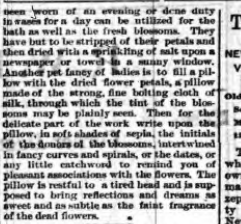
A very simple but effective idea for a screen is to be found in the accompanying illustration reproduced from The Decorator and Furnisher.



SCREEN COVERED WITH LEATHER PAPER.

It shows a fourfold screen with shaped top, covered with leather paper and furnished with brass nails.

Fruit Fritters.

Sweet dishes, generally speaking, are rather difficult to prepare at a short notice, but fruit fritters are an exception to this rule, and, what is better still, they can be made nearly all the year round with apples or whatever fruit may be in season. For frying them a deep pan half filled fat must be used, and be sure it boils. Make a batter with the beaten whites of two eggs, a tablespoonful of flour, one of cold water and one of oil. Mix these before putting the whites to them. Pare the apples thinly and remove the core without breaking them. Cut them in rings, and look shiny. Apricots and peaches require cutting into quarters and strawberries merely picking. Dip each piece of fruit into the batter, then drop into the boiling fat. Two minutes will be quite long enough to cook them crisp and brown. Lift them out with a pair of sugar tongs. Dip each into powdered sugar and pile on a glass dish. Keep hot, but garnish the dish with a few green leaves before sending to table.

To Remove Stains From Carpets.

The safest plan, especially if the color is delicate, is this: Buy some oxgall of a butcher, dissolve a teacupful of the same in hot water, and with it scrub the carpet gently with a clean soft brush. Rinse quickly with a clean sponge and lukewarm water. The smell will be found very objectionable, but the remedy is generally satisfactory.

THE COOL BATISTES.

NEVER WAS BEFORE SHOWN SUCH VARIETY OF SUMMER MATERIALS.

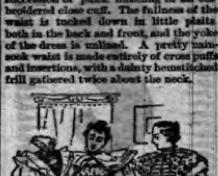
Old Fashioned Dotted Muslins Are Much Sought After—Grenadine and Foulard Make Up Beautifully, as the Illustrations Show—Several Pretty Conceits.

The gowns of most interest to ladies who have a hand at fashioning their own garments or in superintending their making at home are the cool batistes and zephyrs, the sheer silk muslins and pretty colored grenadines and organdies. Never was shown such a variety of cool summer materials so artistic in design as those which may be purchased now at moderate prices. The secret of success in making up these gowns at home lies in the fact that their exceeding daintiness and prettiness divert attention from deficiency in style or finish, and it is not the dressy gown, but the severe and elegant, that demands the master hand. Some of the lightest, coolest summer gowns are made of old fashioned dotted muslin, with bands of insertion let into the skirt or run on the outside, showing a colored ribbon. The waist is shirred in fine little puffs around the shoulders, and in the dress from which the illustration is copied a sash belt of pale green above these crosses the waist in front and joins beneath a rosette bow at the back.

DAINTY, PRETTY AND COOL.

A pretty model for a grenadine or a foulard has two inches of lace about the middle of the skirt or of bordered silk muslin plaited very full and about 4 inches in width. Over the shoulder appears the Anne of Austria collar idea, only that it is satin or velvet of a color contrasting prettily with the gown, bordered all around with a lace insertion and over the velvet. This piece is lost in the shoulder seam, and plaited caps of velvet, bordered in the same way, fall over the sleeve puffs. From the lower edge of the collar pieces there depends a full piece, and lace of the same pattern falls in a fit from the collar over the full front of the dress. A folded satin belt and collar finish the waist. A pretty feature of the sleeve is the scarf of silk, unlined, but folded together and about 4 inches wide, which is tied around where the puff sews down to the sleeve. The puff falls over this and hides nearly all but the bow, which ties on the outside of the arm. Now the skirts of wash gowns are cut full and straight, trimmed with narrow ruffles or embroidered lace frilled on beadings and threaded through with ribbons. The bodices are the interesting feature of the gowns, and all manner of dainty little waists, without corresponding skirts, are shown of gingham and cambric, of white muslin and lawn, trimmed with colored borders.

One pretty white waist has a deep pointed yoke of needlework with two ruffles on the edge and the back precisely like the front. The sleeves are a succession of ruffles, finishing in an embroidered close cuff. The fullness of the waist is tucked down in little plaits both in the back and front, and the yoke of the dress is unlined. A pretty mauve cloth waist is made entirely of cross puffs and insertions, with a dainty beautified frill gathered twice about the neck.



SOME NOVELTIES IN WAISTS.

Another waist of white dotted muslin has a capelike collar of guipure embroidery and is made with a daintily trimmed frill hanging below the belt.

Orange Jelly With Whipped Cream.
Chocolate. Fruit.

The Carriage Turban.

As we are just entering upon the days when driving is especially delightful our women may like to know that French ladies complete the driving toilet with a specially made skirt; it has two openings, each terminating at the side, so that it can be slipped on or off with ease. The headgear for driving is a little toque of cloth, with a puffing of velvet where it touches the hair and a bird's plumage for trimming. Tiresome hats also are especially stylish this season. They are trimmed with brotchwantz, a sort of feather band, with a few folds of velvet and a stiff straight plume.

Ruchings.

Ruchings made of gauze or tulle, intermixed with white or colored feathers, are a new introduction, patented by the manufacturer. Their effect is very soft and beautiful, and they are exquisite trimming for ball dresses.

To Cleanse Japanese Mattings.

To keep Japanese mattings fresh and clean, rub them once a week with a cloth dampened in salt and water.

SOME VULGARITIES.

MANY LITTLE THINGS THAT MAKE PEOPLE OBNOXIOUS.

Unenlightened Lapses of Good Breeding Committed by Otherwise Eminently Delightful Acquaintances—Women are the Chief Offenders.

By vulgarity we generally mean certain conventional solecisms which the world has agreed to consider "bad form" and worthy of social reprobation. These are of the kind best expressed by a struggle with one's h's; a hazy understanding of one's persons, moods and tenses; difficulties over adverbs and a general lack of perception; too great familiarity with the blade of one's knife in eating, or, worse still, some disgusting personal habit which brings instant disapproval from all refined observers. Such are the things which the cultured sniff and look upon the perpetrators thereof as beyond the pale of consideration. But there are other forms of vulgarity which escape notice, which are yet infinitely more damaging as revelations of character and breaking than these solecisms against conventional good taste.

What is it when two young people "spoon" before folk? Engaged, they are embarrassed—merely embarrassed, intolerable. They speak in whispers, flirt with their eyes, hold each other's hands, give sly caresses in the fond belief that no one sees. The awfulness of this is the vulgarity of those who quarrel and snap and jangle before folk. And of these the worst sinners are the hopelessly lost who turn to the bystander and ask him for his advocacy, his sympathy, his verdict. Better a knife playing about the tongue and lips than this horrible lapse of good breeding—this selfish want of consideration for others. To be sure, that knife is not pleasant to look at, but it is a thousand times less objectionable than the leering of a well engaged pair who do not care to control themselves in society, and who try to drag in the unoffending neutral and force him to take sides in an affair that does not concern him.

Another form of vulgarity is the habit of contradiction. Certain people are, as it were, cursed with this propensity as with a disease they cannot shake off. You state the simplest fact, known to you as well as you know the alphabet. Your otherwise rational interlocutor contradicts, objects, reads differently. If you are a novice and easily caught, you quite seriously, quite conscientiously, state your reasons and prove unmistakably that you are right. Your contradictious friend, unable to controvert, closes the discussion by saying loftily, "I dare say agree with you." Some of the kind will not even allow you to agree with them. If they make a statement and you back it up, they immediately turn round to you and say, "No, I did not mean that at all," they say in a displeased manner. They do not state explicitly what they did mean. All they maintain is they did not mean what you say. Is not that a vulgarity worse than a few gold warming pans plastered over the breast and neck?

Another of the same kidney volunteers advice unasked. This kind knows better than you do on all matters under heaven. You are a young mother, and she is a childless wife, but she can give you instructions how to manage yourself and your baby, which for aplomb, if not for accuracy, would make her appear as a mother in issue at the very least. When associated with this kind, your soul is not your own, nor your body, nor your life. You are schooled and drilled and lectured and arranged till not as much free will is left you as would serve a 2-year-old in nursing its doll. You are with your superior, and whether you like it or not you must presidentially acknowledge the fact.

Again, a vulgarity that a great many worthy people commit—people whose h's and syntax are impeccable—is in a certain coarse and callous want of sympathy with what you say to them that is even more rasping than contradiction, more annoying than interference. You tell them a pitiful story of some loss or woe, and they claim their sympathy. They answer you and cap your account by something that has happened either to themselves or to their friends or something that they have heard of in the vague.

Now, how does it help your poor sweet protégé in her trouble to be told of some one else in the far off distance who has gone through a like melancholy experience? Does thinking on the frosty Caucasus cool your fever? Does the misfortune of A. make the misery of B. less painful to your sympathies? What good does it do you when you want a kindly voice to echo your reflected sorrow for you to have a heartsympathetic reference to some other person's affairs, some one whom perhaps you do not know, or knowing do not like?

This, too, is one of the unmoted vulgarities of life, as is also that graver offense of making you regret a confidence. It is always wrong and not quite straight to retail to a third person the doings of a friend. Sometimes, however, the heart gets overburdened and seeks a sympathetic bosom into which to pour its overflow. Say then it is a love affair which is less wise than passionate—less circumspect than whole hearted—a love affair whereof cool reason can see the flaws, but which in the principal actors sees only the beauty—you deprecate and deplore, but you sympathize all the same—you have no hand feeling of censure, nothing but soft and tender regard.

You tell the story to your friend, asking for sympathy for your poor girl's trouble. You are met by stern condemnation—by the knowledge that you have given this censor a handle against the one you love and would protect and gain all men's sympathy for her sorrow. Your friend refuses to see the sorrow—to accept the extenuating circumstances—to believe in the tragic sincerity of this foolish choice.

Now, what makes you suspect that you have opened your heart and so far given away the one you would defend. That, too, is among the moral vulgarities which do not pass under the ban of society—the defective grammar and flashy dress. But when we consider the question fairly and from a higher standpoint than that of mere convention we shall come to the conclusion that these things are signs of a lower state of breeding than difficulties with one's h's or a too free use of one's knife.—London Queen.

It is a mistake to believe that children can do as much work as grown people, and that the more hours they study the more they learn.

VOTED FOR EXTENSION.

BOROUGHITES FAVOR THE ERECTION OF THE SCHOOL ADDITION.

Bonds to be Issued to Secure the Sum of $16,000, the cost of Erection.—One of 75 Persons 60 Vote for the Building.

Pursuant to call the voters of School District No. 28 met in the basement of the school house on Somerset street last evening to take action as the proposed extension to the school building.

Dr. H. D. Carroll was chosen chairman and Mr. Bonney secretary of the meeting. After the reading of the call the report of the trustee was made by Mr. S. S. McCutcheon, who stated that at the last annual meeting in March the question of the need was called to the overcrowded condition of the school, and that the present system was neither convenient nor safe for the health of the children. The smaller children especially were being neglected, as owing to the over-crowding of the class-rooms the primary department of the half day sessions were held to accommodate the overflow. At present one class is taught down in the basement, which at times is very damp and unfit for children to sit in. After careful consideration the Board had decided that the extension to the present building would be the most advisable and least expensive. The extension is to be 41 feet deep, and 25 feet wide, making room enough for eight additional classes. It is not intended to use more than three class-rooms at present, so that the extra class-rooms will allow for an increase for the next ten years. There will be no increase in running expenses with the exception of the salary of one more teacher, which will be necessary owing to the two sessions now being taught in half day sessions by one teacher. The Board advertised for, and received bids for the erection of the extension, and the cost will not exceed $16,000.

Mr. McCutchen then offered a resolution authorizing the trustees to have built such an extension as spoken of above at a cost not to exceed $16,000. A ballot was taken and resulted as follows:

|---|---|
| For the resolution | 60 |
| Against the resolution | 15 |

The chairman declared the resolution adopted.

Another resolution was presented by Mr. McCutchen authorizing the issuing of bonds for the sum of $16,000, for the erection of the building, of denominations of $500 each at a rate of interest not exceeding five per cent, the bonds to mature as follows:

| No. | Year. |
|---|---|
| 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 | 1903 |
| 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 | 1904 |
| 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 | 1905 |
| 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23 | 1906 |
| 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30 | 1907 |
| 31, 32 | 1908 |

Mr. McCutchen stated that the reason for the date of the maturity of the first bonds was placed at 1903 was because the bonds on the present school building would then be paid off, and they could commence on the new. A ballot on the motion to adopt the resolution resulted:

|---|---|
| For resolution | 56 |
| Against resolution | 5 |

It was declared adopted by the chairman, and the meeting adjourned.

TWO DESPERATE TRAMPS.

They Attempt to Stash a Colored Man With Razors.

A little tragedy was enacted yesterday afternoon, under the Berckman street bridge, the actors being a colored man, named Johnson, and two tramps. As Johnson was passing under the bridge, he spoke to two tramps who were standing there. In answer the men drew razors and started for he of the dusky hue to finish him. Johnson was equal to the emergency and went them one better by drawing a revolver and threatening to shoot if their weapons were not put up. The tramps, finding they had been foiled, put the razors in their pockets. Johnson hunted up Chief Grant, who, in company with Policeman Eisly, secured a wagon, and after a chase and a hard tussle, the tramps were captured. They were only customers to handle, and kicked and bit like wild lions.

Judge Coddington sentenced them each to 60 days in the county jail, and fined them $25 besides.

BREVITIES.

—There will be an Entertainment at the Boys Club Tuesday, May 16.

—There will be a special Holiness meeting at the Elkwood hall to-night.

—A wheel on Electric Car No. 2 broke down, at about 7.30 last evening, in front of the Irving school.

—At their next meeting the Independent Order of Foresters have four candidates to initiate.

—A "Rainbow Festival" will be held in Grant Chapel the 1st, and 2d, of June. An interesting programme is being arranged by the committee of arrangements.

To Open a New Street.

Mr. J. Fred MacDonald, who, with his brother-in-law, purchased recently a large tract of land at Netherwood, has surveyors at work laying out a street through the property. When the work of grading is finished, which will be begun at once, the property will have a frontage of about 5,000 feet. This will be cut up into building lots of 50x150 feet.

THE CARE OF WOUNDS

DR. HEDGES' LECTURE AT IRVING SCHOOL LAST EVENING.

The Second in the Course of Emergency Lectures very Interesting and Instructive—What to Do for Wounds.

The second in the course of "Emergency lectures was delivered at the Irving school last evening by Dr. Hedges.

He told his hearers what to do in case an artery was cut and described how an improvised tourniquet could be made and applied.

Only such accidents as were likely to occur at any time were used as illustrations.

Scalp Wound—The best thing for that is to get all dirt out and put on bandages.

Mouth Injuries—If it is with the inside of the mouth take a little alum and hot water and rinse the mouth. A tooth sometimes may be very bad after having it pulled; the gum may bleed for a long time; take the old tooth and put it back in the socket or take a piece of cotton moistened in alum and put it in the cavity.

Nose Bleed—People often bleed a great deal for the want of some simple little remedy to stop it. Take cold water and sniff it up the nostrils, or alum water. The old method of a cold spoon down the back may not be bad, or take a strip of gauze about one inch wide and four or five inches long and take a pencil or something and stuff it up the nostrils, or in a very bad case, the nostrils may be plugged from behind in the following way—take a shoe string and tie a loop in it and put it on the end of a small stick and push it up the nostrils to the back of the mouth, then with draw the stick and run your finger in the loop and pull out the string. Tie a piece of cotton on the end and draw the string back again and then the nostrils are plugged up completely.

If a wound on the forearm, take a small flat stone and put it inside of a handkerchief and place it over the large vein which passes at the side of the muscles and tie loosely. Take a stick or anything and twist the handkerchief up

Hemorrhage of the lungs—it is seldom a man dies from that you can assure a man that he will not die from it. Let him get all the rest possible. Whenever there is any pain an application of chopped ice in a towel may be applied. Give him a little salt to swallow. Don't move him around too much.

A snake's bite should be sucked immediately, or, if that can not be done tie the —— above to prevent the poison going up in the arm or limb.

A dog bite should be treated the same, or, take a heated knife or needle and burn it out.

For a spider or a wasp sting take ammonia or wet clay.

In handling wounds always be sure and have clean hands."

PERSONAL.

Mrs. J. P. Mann of LaGrande avenue, accompanied by her son and daughter, left to-day for Richfield, N. Y., where they will spend the Summer.

Mr. Ed. Joy of this city was elected a member of the Executive Committee at the election of the State Epworth League Convention, at Newark, yesterday.

"How Young Men go to Ruin; or Messages from Sing Sing," will be the theme of the discourse by Dr. Lewis, to morrow evening, at the Seventh Day Baptist church.

Miss May Lewis, daughter of Dr. Lewis, has gone to Port Allegany, Pa., to attend the wedding of her friend Miss Binman, which takes place on the 18th of May. She will spend several weeks in Pennsylvania and Western New York, visiting friends and resting.

A large and appreciative audience was present to see the amateur theatricals for the benefit of the Manual Training Fund of the Boys' Club, which was given at the Casino last evening and which was a pronounced success. The two comedy plays which were given were "Partners" and "Second Thoughts."

The Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut of this city will deliver a lecture at Park M. E. church Elizabeth, this evening on "An Apostle of the 19th Century." The lecture will be illustrated by the stereopticon views, and will be the first of a series of three to be given in the same place on successive Friday evenings.

Tax News has repeatedly called attention to the insufficient police protection for the borough. The people of Washington Park have a right to demand that an officer be placed in that section all the time, and another policeman ought to parade the territory north of Jackson avenue. One policeman per 1,000 inhabitants is none too many.

Struck Him with an Iron Bar.

S. Frucht, the proprietor of a West Front street curiosity shop became involved in an altercation with a man over the possession of a railroad ticket, when Frucht hit him on the head with an iron bar, inflicting a severe scalp wound. Dr. Jenkins dressed the wound.

Lost Three Ten Dollar Bills.

Station agent Nelson has received a letter from James Dorgey or Trenton of station, stating that while in the Plainfield station Wednesday night he lost three ten dollar bills. He requested the the agent to make inquires concerning the money.

THEIR ANNUAL MEETING

A PROSPEROUS YEAR CLOSED BY THE Y. M. C. A.

President Murray's Report Read Showing the Association to be in a Flourishing Condition.—Officers Elected for the Ensuing Year.

At the annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association, last evening, after the devotional exercises and the reading of the minutes the reports of the president and treasurer were presented.

The following officers were elected:

President—W. D. Murray.

Vice-President—D. E. Titsworth.

Recording Secretary—E. L. Wais, Jr.

Corresponding Secretary—E. B. Redford.

Treasurer—H. O. Nevius.

Directors—John Valiant, G. Q. Proker, R. Cornwell, Nelson Runyon, J. W. Gavett, Charles E. Boss, E. H. Ackerman, E. L. Bonny, W. Thompson, Stephen Osborne, A. D. La Boyteaux, T. E. Hazlett and A. B. Beers.

The following is the president's report:

To the Members of the Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield, N. J.:

Since this is the end of the 15th year of our Association has added another year to its history; you and I have added another year to our lives. If, during this year, the work of the Association has been well done it is because you and I have done our part; if it has not been well done we have neglected our duties. If this year has been a blessed one to the Association we have labor before have reaped some of Christ's blessings.

The membership has not changed much during the year, in number, though 34 have been added and 34 have left the association. We now have 141 members, of whom 279 are active, that is members of evangelical churches.

As in the past our rooms, inconvenient as they are, have been a useful and welcome place for the many organizations such as the Relief Association, Children's Home Directors, Choral Society and others.

The daily visitors to the rooms have been about sixty in number. This includes those who come to the rooms to read, play games, meet friends, and to seek information. With the much patronage our library ought to be in better condition, but we have not had money to expend on it. Dr. Redman has set our friends a good example by contributing a number of suitable books.

The question of our present quarters brings to mind the beautiful building we have arranged to erect. To our great joy the "Million Dollars for Young Men" was actually begun on the third day of April, 1893, and we sincerely hope that the work will go on without interruption until we are able to welcome all the young men of Plainfield to a home of which they will be proud. On April 2, 1893, contracts for the building were signed for the sum of $33,000, exclusive of heating, electric lighting, furnishing, hardware, etc. So far we have subscribed $20,000 and $4,000 in cash, $24,249 61 have been paid in, and $15,338.02 expended, mostly for land. We were promised about $4,000 at the time of the opening of Peace street, which ought to reimburse for part of our outlay.

Financially we are about in the same condition as we were a year ago. Our expenses depend somewhat on the amount we receive from rent; that is, we could always spend to good advantage more than we receive. A ballot on the question has been: $2,800.67, and our expenses $2,783.93, and we have bills unpaid amounting to $300, against which notes are matured due of $350 and $65 in cash.

During the year we have conducted classes in Bible study, penmanship, stenography, mechanical drawing, English branches and singing. These classes, except in stenography, have been taught by volunteers, and the twelve men who have so freely given their time and energy in this work are deserving of our gratitude. The time is coming soon when we cannot get along with volunteer workers if we wish to do the work which needs to be done. The teachers will have to be paid. This will give the classes a permanency and regularity which they cannot have under the present system. There are more bills than our classes have not done good work, for they have, as reports from the men testify, been a help to many. We need, another an increase, and many in answer to the question, "Have you received benefit from the classes?" said, "Yes, and more too."

The papers which are given in the rooms are also educational. Among the subjects discussed have been Birth, Fire, Water, Spreading Eagleism, etc. More extensive, and extremely interesting were the war lectures arranged by Secretary Miller, and the course of lectures netted a handsome sum for the building fund.

Our Association is blessed above all in having for its general secretary one whose untiring faithfulness has made him a power for good. While we are personally towards advancing that Kingdom for which we pray so earnestly. Whatever of success has attended our efforts this year is due in large measure to the self-sacrifice and perseverance of Mr. Bond. He ought to have the chief credit for it. Largely through his efforts we can have three days of unbroken rest secured, eighteen boardings houses recommended, twenty-seven letters of introduction sent, and twenty-three visits made to the sick. He has furnished commercial travelers tickets to Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, and Bound Brook, and has counselled with many young men.

While we are meeting here to-night hundreds of delegates from all parts of America are meeting in Indianapolis in the International Young Men's Christian Association Convention, and I am pleased to call your attention to some of the vital principles in association efforts. Definite local work at home coupled with a broad missionary spirit should reach out over the whole land. Our own missionary enterprises, however, has been very successful. We contributed two hundred dollars to the International Committee, the result of the meeting held on the last day of prayer for young men, and we raised one hundred and twenty-six dollars through our extension fund. We have one hundred and seventy dollars pledged for the same cause this year.

A characteristic feature of Y. M. C. A. work has always been the social department. Receptions at which the ladies of our work has had to be nearly neglected. We have succeeded, however, in doing better than that during the past year. Receptions for men were held in our rooms, also one for boys, on Thanksgiving day, and New Years Day we kept open houses and helped a large number of men to have a good time. Socials have been held every evening in our active members. The most delightful social event of the year was the supper served on the occasion of our fourth anniversary to the former presidents and our present officers and directors by our efficient ladies committee. We have had besides three social conferences of members, committees and training class members. Out of doors our work has been even more limited, and has consisted of base ball games and one gathering of committeemen. A class in light gymnastics was then conducted by a member of the association. All our work has been by young men for young men, but we have been constantly assisted by our Ladies' Committee, and desire to have to thank them for their kindness.

But above all is the religious work of the association. That had demanded our best efforts. It has consisted principally of a young men's meeting held every Sunday at four p. m. The average attendance at this has been forty-one. Also two Bible classes hold every Sunday morning. The one taught by the writer in 1877 has studied the great doctrines of the Bible, and the other, taught by the president has studied Prof. Harper's Inductive Studies in Luke's Gospel. For a while a Bible class for boys was held, and also a Saturday night prayer meeting. Every Sunday night outpost meetings have been held at 81, Pleasant and at Washingtonville.

The association stands before the public as a representative of strong, manly Christianity, we have also had several results in this work. The Sunday afternoon meetings have been the means of leading some men into Christian life, and others have been led to feel that they could attend them. The Bible classes have been exceedingly helpful, and most of the men in them have been going to advantage the information and knowledge gained in the class.

As we look back over the year we are conscious that we have many things to be thankful for, aside from the results of the work of the association, and that among them is the kindly feeling which the editors of the city, without exception, have shown us at all times. We appreciate their interest and are always glad to have a good word said in print. We rejoice, too, that the people of Plainfield have always been so ready to help us when we have asked for assistance, and people have been so well disposed towards us because this year as always we have tried to make Christ known to Jesus Christ. We believe that Christianity not only assures citizenship in heaven, but also secures the highest citizenship on earth. And all our work had for its end the upbuilding of the Kingdom of Christ. We have not done as much of what we had hoped to do; but if there is joy in heaven over one sinner that repents, we do well rejoice to-night and take courage as we enter upon a new year.

Plainfield, N. J., May 11th, 1893.
Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM D. MURRAY
President.

THREE PERSONS INJURED.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCarthy and Their Grand-daughter Hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCarthy and a little grand-daughter of 376 West Front street were thrown out of their buggy, yesterday, at the corner of Second street and Grant avenue, and all were more or less injured.

It is thought Mrs. McCarthy is seriously hurt as her scalp was badly cut. Dr. Gaston attended her.

The little girl was also severely injured. Mr. McCarthy was hurt about the head and shoulders. His injuries are not serious.

It was to avoid a collision with a street car that the wagon was upset.

Apron and Necktie Sociable.

The members of Iona Council, D. of P., gave an apron and necktie sociable last evening in Red Men's Hall, on West Front street. It was well attended and all present enjoyed themselves. The night was spent in dancing.

Among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bonney, Mr. Fred. Westphal, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Caufield, Miss Ella Sebring, Miss Kittie Reed, Miss Emma and Hettie Wikoff, Mr. Bert McVoy, Mr. W. Angleman, Miss McClane, Miss M. Sheppard, Miss E. Page, Mr. Fred. Page, Mr. Wikoff, Miss Jessie Cresse, and Mamie Lamus of Newark, N. J. Miss Lizzie Sears, Mr. Walter Healey, Mr. Sam Clouston, Mr. W. Perbles, Miss E. Thorn, Mr. D. Bodine and Mr. W. Talamy.

Base Ball Notes.

The Young Americas of Philadelphia are booked to play with the Crescents to-morrow. A fine game is booked for, as this team is said to put up a good game.

The batting order of the Crescents to-morrow will be as follows: Redford, c.; Smith, s.s.; McIndoe, 1.f.; Torner, c.f.; Heckman, 3b.; Fritz, r.f.; Kemp, 1b.; Jones, 2b.; Sweden, p.

The batting order of the Young Americas to-morrow, will be as follows: W. Dwyuit, s.s.; J. Dwyuit, 3b.; Grizzo, c.f.; Kerr, 2b.; Miller, c.; Radcliffe, r. f.; Van Horn, 1b.; McDonald, 1.f.; Moore, p.

Christian Unity Illustrated.

Under the above head, the Christian World, published in London, in its issue of Thursday, April 20, has the following:

A pleasing demonstration of Christian unity was witnessed on Good Friday in Plainfield, New Jersey, a city of some 13,000 people near New York. The rector of Grace Episcopal church invited the Baptist, Congregational, Methodist, Reformed and Presbyterian churches to unite services in commemoration of the day. They crowded the house, and listened to seven addresses, each upon the topics of address being the Seven Words from the Cross. In response to his invitation, the rector dispensed for the occasion with his usual vestments.

Literary Notes.

"Merely Mary Ann," a new publication by Messrs. Raphael Tuck & Sons Company, Fine Art and Book Publishers, of 302 Broadway, New York, is not only pleasing fiction, but, what is unusual for 20 cent novels, is completely bound in an ornamented, embossed and colored cover.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

The Campania Beats all Records.

QUEENSTOWN, May 12, (Special.)—The new Cunard line steamship Campania, Capt. Haines, which sailed from New York for Liverpool on May 6, arrived at Queenstown at 9.35 o'clock this morning, having made the passage from Sandy Hook to Queenstown in five days, seven-teen hours and forty-two minutes, the quickest passage ever yet made by any steamer.

Among the Wheelmen.

The Union County Roadsters of Rahway will hold a race meet on Decoration day. Six races will be run, including a one mile novice, half-mile handicap, and one mile handicap.

In 1891 Plainfield stood second in membership in the League of American Wheelmen, with a total of 101 members. Since that time it has dropped off 25, and now stands 8th, with a membership of 76 to-date.

A number of the Elizabeth Athletic Cyclers who were training for the Irvington-Milburn race are said to have covered the course within the last few days in time close to the record. They rode under the direction of Capt. Saltonstall.

Ten high-priced bicycles have already been offered by as many manufacturers as prizes for the twenty-five mile Irvington Milburn road race which takes place on Decoration Day. Among numerous other prizes are a couple of saddles, bicycle suits, sweaters, gold watch, fine cup, Marlin rifle, sewing machine, umbrella, bicycle shoes, and gold-plated bell. The prizes are coming in daily. The entry list for contests will close on May 15 with H. L. Saltonstall of Elizabeth.

Joseph D. Racey Disappears.

Joseph D. Racey, a dealer in bicycles in Orange, who formerly lived here, disappeared a day or two ago. He was indebted to the McKee & Harrington Company $2,300 for machines and his stock was seized by Schoverling, Daly & Gales, of New York, on an attachment for money owed them.

Mrs. George Marshall Allen, a well known woman of East Orange, with whom Racey had been friendly for a long time, and from whom Mr. Allen escaped a divorce some time ago, on the ground that a large number of well known East Orange men co-respondents, has been for some time in a Newark hotel and left there only a few days ago to move into apartments on the second floor of No. 98 Central avenue, East Orange.

She denies that Racey is with her and says she has not seen him for several months.

Convention at Washingtonville.

There was a convention of the Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavor at Washingtonville, last night. Three stage loads from Plainfield returned home at about 10.30 p. m.

Dame Fashion's Latest Decrees Concerning Dress.

As one strolls along our thorough fares to this charming weather, one realizes how completely has been the revolution of fashion's wheel. The clinging, soft draperies which revealed lovely woman's outlines are entirely superseded by full, ample skirts, which are cleverly stiffened at the foot to produce a flaring effect.

Throughout woman's world a piteous wail is heard: "What shall we do with our sleeves?" They cry. In connection with the full, smart skirts of this season, even one's favorite gown of '92 seems a very limp back number indeed. But how to redeem it, you ask.

With the extremely rose an opportunity and a simple expedient is within the reach of all. Haircloth, known to our grandmothers, is, by the swing of the pendulum of Time, restored to the front rank; indeed, is the only bridge by which we may hope to reach the boundaries of fashion. If our wrist is wide enough to prefer the umbrella, or gored, skirt last season, by a judicious abbreviation of its train, making the skirt an even length all around, and facing it deeply with this latest woman's friend, silk, haircloth, carrying it to the back of the dress clear to the waist line, the transformation will be marvelous, and your old gown will assume the modish flare, and prove quite as smart as your neighbor's new one.

This treatment is only possible for a lined skirt; but the Summer girl is not forgotten. In some of the large shops haircloth skirts, very simply made, to be worn under cambric petticoats, are offered for sale; in the dainty toilettes of July and August will assume a virtue—or a flare—even if they have it not.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Flags.

The opening of the World's fair has [illegible] country such an assortment of flags as our people have never seen before. Uncle Sam's dominions are full of bunting. At Chicago national flags from every corner of the globe wave from the domes of the White City of industrial art. At New York the foreign banners stream from ships our sister nations sent us that they might take part in our great Columbian ceremonial. The ceremonial is over, but the foreign ships still linger. The officers want to see what a great republic is like perhaps.

In peace and not in war they came to us, these foreign standards. The World's fair festivities cannot help spreading the kindly recognition of the brotherhood of nations. We are all kindred. Perhaps hereafter our people may not be so narrowly and partisan-like patriotic when they see the foreign standards unfurled in honor of some of our national holidays. Certain it is that during the Columbian celebrations in the two cities the British flag was allowed to float peacefully from the windows of private houses. 'Tis well. Perhaps hereafter we shall have learned good manners and international good feeling enough even to allow a British subject to unfurl his own country's flag in honor of the American Fourth of July.

They are an artistic study, these foreign flags. There is the beautiful tricolor of France, our sister republic, with our own national colors, the red, white and blue. There are the white cross of Switzerland; the red, white and black of the German merchant flag; the eagle of the German imperial flag. Countries governed by monarchs have mostly two flags—one for merchant ships and common people, the other for the use of the king or emperor alone. So it is with Great Britain, with Austria, with Germany, Denmark and Italy. But the flag that is most beautiful of all is "Old Glory," our own stars and stripes, and may it float over the United States of America to the end of the world!

Carlyle Harris.

Except the Maybrick case in England the Harris poisoning case is the most celebrated of this decade. Everything that the love of a mother, the money of relatives and the ingenuity of the law could do to save Carlyle Harris was done. He had every chance that the courts give for appeal and new trial, but at the end the conviction that he was guilty seemed only more firmly fixed in the minds of judge, jury and the public. He was a handsome young man, well known in good social circles in New York and Brooklyn. The charge that he had murdered his young wife by administering morphine to her was more of a shock and a blow to his acquaintances than to anybody else except his devoted mother. They said at first it could not be possible that this brilliant, polished young man, with his fine manners and courteousness toward men and women, could have been guilty of such a crime. But criminology shows that poisoners more frequently than otherwise have such pleasing manners and address. The state of New York spent $40,000 in the prosecution of the case. The evidence on which he was convicted was wholly circumstantial, yet it was deemed sufficient to condemn him. It is a ghastly comment on the times that in the last day or two, while the case was in the hands of the governor, bets were freely made on the probability of his sentence being commuted to imprisonment for life.

In more respects than one our World's fair is the greatest that ever was. It is the first international exposition in history in which women took active official part in the management and the first one in which the work of women has assumed such proportions. Empresses and queens have been warmly interested in the Woman's building at the fair and have sent from their countries specimens of all the kinds of the distinctive work of women. Thus on a broad scale attention will be attracted to woman as an industrial factor. This was the especial idea of Mrs. Bertha Honore Palmer and her coadjutators. Then, too, there was the women's own ceremonial opening of their world's fair. Not even the president was called on for that. The ladies made their own speeches. The fact that addresses were made on this occasion by titled ladies from Spain, Italy, Great Britain and elsewhere, and how deeply the women of all nations are at present interested in the question of women's wage earning work. The display at the fair cannot do otherwise than have a beneficial influence in bringing up the pay of women workers.

In the president's World's fair address occurred this truly Clevelandesque sentence: "We who believe that popular education and the stimulation of the [illegible] citizens lead the way to a realization of the proud national destiny which our faith promises gladly welcome the opportunity here afforded us to see the results accomplished by efforts which have been exerted longer than ours in the field of man's improvement, which in appreciative return we exhibit the unparalleled advancement and wonderful accomplishments of a young nation and present the triumphs of a vigorous, self reliant and independent people."

NEWS ABOUT THE FAIR.

The Belgian Exhibit Thrown Open to the Public.

THE CONTEST FOR WELL BRED COWS.

Famous Milk Giving Herds In Competition—Talk About Opening Gates Sunday—Electrical Display Will Not Be Finished This Month—Flowers From Texas.

CHICAGO, May 12.—The World's fair will probably be closed on next Sunday too, President Higinbotham says so, and he is in excellent position to know. He is not positive about it, but he has very few doubts. The directory, which is in session today is wrestling with the subject, and it is not at all improbable, many think, that it will open on Sunday closing rule which is at present operative and pass a rule providing for Sunday opening. But unless the commission pass upons the rule President Higinbotham will hardly give an order to open the gates. If the commission remains in session over today the action of the directory, should it be for Sunday opening, will come before it and will, it is thought, be indorsed.

The six months' competition between famous milk producing breeds of cows has begun at the Dairy building. The chief object of the test is to determine what breed, all things considered, is the best for milk, cream, cheese and butter production. The strictest rules were formulated to govern a dairy test are in operation, and only three breeding associations—the Short Horn, Jersey and Guernsey—were willing to submit to them. They have 75 cows, representing the pick of their breeds. They will be milked three times a day, each cow's milk being weighed and the specific gravity and solids in the fluid recorded. Records will be kept for butter produced by each cow and the results of the tests made known after the fair.

The Belgian Exhibit Opened.

The reception held in the Belgian exhibit section in the Manufactures building marked the opening of the exhibit to the public. The reception was not a formal one, and there was no speechmaking, but invited guests were simply and cordially welcomed by A. Verspeyen, president of the Belgian commission; A. Simonis, commissioner general; Edward Guerette, deputy commissioner general, and the three secretaries—Raymond LeGhait, Andre Simonis and Raymond Vexelaire. Among the guests were Duke de Veragua, Mayor Harrison, President Higinbotham, Director General Davis, the Belgian commissioners and many prominent citizens of Chicago.

German exhibitors will give a splendid banquet in honor of the commissioners of the German empire for the World's fair at the Lexington hotel at 7 o'clock on Saturday evening.

The German emperor has presented the high decoration of the Red Eagle to the German commissioner for the World's fair, Mr. Wermuth.

The Electrical building will not have all its exhibits in place before June 1. Chief Barrett's order to have all ready by Saturday night on pain of having the space taken from those who failed and given to some one else has been received with a shrug. The delay, the exhibitors say, is not due to them. The responsibility, according to them, rests upon the installation department, which has shown a marvelous capacity for keeping loaded cars on the grounds for days before delivering them.

Director General Davis has commenced to use the electrical launch which has been prepared for him. It is a handsome piece of marine architecture, and the trial trip proved a success.

A Carload of Flowers.

The main gallery of the Woman's building is redolent of Cape jasmine today. Two thousand were received from Galveston through the lady managers from that state. The sprays of the flowers will sensibly a load of jasmines for distribution in various parts of the exposition.

The Nicaragua Canal Construction company of New York has completed its model of the Nicaragua canal in the gallery of the Transportation building and placed it on exhibition. The model has been very carefully colored to show the nature of the canal country very well. The total length of the canal as represented is 170 miles.

The fruit exhibit of New South Wales was received at the fair after being on the way 52 days. The exhibit was delayed between San Francisco and Chicago by accidents, and as a consequence 18 of the 18 cases of the fruit were spoiled and had to be thrown away. Two cases of "the passion fruit," which is unknown in this country, were entirely ruined.

Ordered Out the Waiters' President.

NEW YORK, May 12.—There was an exciting time at the waiters' meeting when President Tucker reported that he had been ordered out of the Hotel Logerot by the proprietor. President Tucker said that the result would be the wholesale walking of a mass meeting Monday night. The waiters have decided to make the whisker question a side issue for the present, in view of questions of greater importance.

Ten Years For Manslaughter.

JERSEY CITY, May 12.—William Givens of Bayonne has been on trial charged with the murder of Patrick Ward. He shot Ward in the back, but the jury accepted his plea of self defense and found him guilty of manslaughter. Judge Lippincott told the jury that their verdict was not warranted by the facts of the evidence and sentenced Givens to 10 years in state prison, the extreme penalty.

Tried Twice to Kill Herself.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 12.—Mamie O'Rourke, a very pretty young woman, 18 years old, has twice attempted suicide. Once she took paris green, but her cries of pain were heard and a physician was summoned. Two hours after the visit of the physician she jumped into the Bronx river. She was pulled out half dead and carried to her home. Now a strict watch is kept over her.

The Exclusive Union League.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The Union League club has adopted a resolution which will make it difficult for a candidate for admission to get before the meeting unless he can be known to be acceptable to the great majority of the members. This resolution was probably the outcome of the recent blackballing of Mr. Seligman.

Raised a German Election Fund.

NEW YORK, May 12.—There was a special meeting of the New York Socialistic Labor association to raise a fund for the socialists to voters of Germany at the election to be held in that country June 15. The meeting was several days ago and $10,000 was raised, according to the secretary's report, was raised.

REPUBLICANS LEAVE LOUISVILLE.

After Electing Tracy President They Start on Excursions.

LOUISVILLE, May 12.—The few Republicans who are here today are going in a dozen different directions on excursions for pleasure only. Their business was finished up yesterday, when they adjourned after electing officers of the National League of Republican Clubs.

Their choice was W. W. Tracy of Illinois, on the first ballot he received 902 votes, M. H. De Young 404 votes and General Daniel Hastings 413. The election of Mr. Tracy was immediately made unanimous. The official announcement from the chair of Mr. Tracy's election caused a storm of applause that fairly shook the building. The new president was then escorted to the chair. He made a graceful speech of acceptance.

The election of a secretary and treasurer was referred to the executive committee.

Supplementary resolutions were reported favorably from the committee on resolutions and adopted relating to the deaths of R. B. Hayes and James G. Blaine. The League adjourned to meet in Denver next May.

Only 13 delegates responded to the roll call in the evening at the annual convention of the League of Republican colleges, and hence it was held in one of the rooms of a local hotel instead of McCauley's theater, as originally planned. According to President Burke the sparse attendance was due partly to the fact that it is a bad time of the year for delegates/students to interrupt their routine, and partly because the movement had been boycotted by the faculties of certain eastern colleges in which free trade ideas are rampant, and who refuse the delegates the necessary leave of absence. The convention was held with closed doors.

ARBITRATORS WAXED WROTH.

There Was a Hot Discussion In the Behring Sea Court.

PARIS, May 12.—In the Behring sea court of arbitration yesterday there was a hot altercation. Sir Richard Sir Charles Russell's assertion that Mr. Bayard had never tried to justify the Behring sea seizures on the ground that the United States had property in the seals." At one time it threatened to jeopardize the whole arbitration. Sir Charles Russell, Senator Morgan, Lord Hannen, Baron de Courcel, Mr. Phelps and Justice Harlan spoke with high spirit and occasionally with bitterness. Senator Morgan and Mr. Phelps declined to guarantee that the United States would accord damages for seizures, even if the tribunal decided against them. Finally the difficulty was adjusted temporarily by the decision that the discussion of the question of liability be postponed.

WATCHING FOR FILIBUSTERERS.

A Revenue Cutter at Key West Ready to Stop Them.

KEY WEST, May 12.—The revenue cutter McLane, which was telegraphed for by order of the secretary of the treasury to return to key immediately on account of the demonstrations of the Cuban filibusterers here, has arrived at this place.

Every preparation has been made to intercept the vessel containing the party having the harbor. A force of customs officers nightly patrol the south beach with a code of signals arranged between them and the cutter. McLane is ready to slip her moorings and steam out at the signal. The federal officers here say that they have reliable information of preparations to send an expedition from here or one of the adjacent islands to Cuba, and are of the opinion that the attempt will soon be made.

Tramps Burned With the Cars.

WHEELING, May 12.—A south bound freight train on the Ohio River railroad was wrecked while crossing a trestle. Five cars were burned and two rolled down to the bottom of a ravine. The cars, which were loaded with oil, caught fire and 250 feet of the trestle was burned. Two tramps who were stealing a ride were burned to death.

Funeral of Ex-President Gonzalez.

CITY OF MEXICO, via Galveston, May 12.—Ex-President Manuel Gonzales, whose death occurred on Monday, was buried with elaborate ceremony in the rotunda reserved for illustrious dead. His body was followed to the grave by a procession three miles long, including a detachment of troops and 40 cars of appropriate design.

Fell Down the Air Shaft.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Julius Ruff and John Murphy were salooning the walls of an air shaft at the sixth floor of 19 and 21 Sixty-fifth street, when a rope holding the swinging scaffolding on which they were working broke. Both men fell to the bottom of the shaft, 59 feet or more below, and were killed.

Train Met Head On.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 12.—Two heavy freight trains on the New England division of the Reading railroad came together head on four west of Pine Plains station. The engineers and firemen of both trains jumped, but were badly hilt. Two engines and 12 cars were almost entirely destroyed.

The Columbia National Failure.

CHICAGO, May 12.—The Columbia National bank did not open for business yesterday. It was claimed that the failure will not be a serious one, and that depositors will be paid in full. The cause of the suspension is placed at bad collections.

A Merchant Missing.

JERSEY CITY, May 12.—Joseph Larrabee, a wholesale flour and feed merchant of this city, is missing. When last seen he was on his way to deposit a large sum of money in the Hudson County National bank.

TO ELUDE THE SEEKERS

Office Hunting Congressmen May Be Shut Out Next.

CURE FOR THE PATRONAGE PLAGUE.

Another Warship Sent to Guard the Other End of the Nicaragua Canal — The President's Country House All Ready For Him.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Men who have talked with the president and have observed the political drift say they would not be surprised if there should be before long a radical reform in the present methods of patronage distribution and the entailment if not the abolishment of the system under which congressmen are the active and persistent seekers of patronage for constituents. The proposed method would go a step beyond that contained in the order by the president refusing to see office seekers personally, and would be applied to congressmen who are now exempt from the restrictions of the order.

It is suggested that there may be an agreement between the president and the members of his cabinet not to recognize congressmen recommending nothing for appointment, but to call on them whenever thought proper for the opinion of congressmen as to any applications on file for the positions under consideration. It is not unlikely that many of the congressmen themselves would be pleased at the adoption of such a plan, just as they were nearly all openly or secretly gratified with the civil service law, for the reason that it took away from them a vexatious and dangerous part of their duties.

It is pointed out in favor of the proposed change that under the present system congressmen do not get time to attend to their official and public duties for the reason that they have to constantly press the claims of their constituents to office. Moreover, in some districts a congressman's ability is no longer gauged by his usefulness as a legislator but by his ability to secure office for his people. Some of the congressmen object to this duty of making personal appeals for patronage.

President's Country House Ready.

The country home and surrounding grounds of President and Mrs. Cleveland are now receiving their finishing touches. The garden in front of the house is already blooming with flowers, and the house can be moved into whenever its distinguished tenants choose. The furniture was brought from New York and was used in that city by the Clevelands for several years prior to their coming to Washington again. The president, in conversation with friends, said that he did not expect to be absent from the city for any length of time this summer, and was therefore anxious to find a nice place in the suburbs in which to pass the hot weather.

The White House is undergoing a little extension at present. A number of new girders being put in the west end of the mansion in place of old ones, which it was feared were not strong enough.

The Atlanta Gets Orders Too.

It has been deemed desirable because of the revolution in progress to station a United States war vessel on the west coast of Nicaragua. The Atlanta was ordered to sail from San Francisco for Corinto, Nicaragua, at once. The likelihood of severe fighting between the opposing forces along the banks of the canal, with the chances of great damage being done to property belonging to the canal company, would have caused this government to make some display of an armed force from one end of the canal to the other.

The Nicaraguan army consists of between 3,000 and 5,000 men under command of the best generals in Nicaragua, while the government troops number but 2,000 men, who are in a weak and demoralized condition. The revolutionists are in possession of Managua, the capital, and five other cities and both ends of the canal and of the vessels on it.

New Consul to Amoy.

The president has appointed J. Hampton Hoge of Virginia to be United States consul at Amoy, China, vice Charles Denby of Philadelphia, and John A. Michel of Texas to be collector of customs for the district of Brazos de Santiago.

Dynamiters In Spain.

MADRID, May 12.—A large cap with a lighted fuse attached was found in a street near the parliamentary building early this morning. The nature of its contents is not known. Three dynamite cartridges were exploded in Barcelona late last evening. Half the city was alarmed by the shocks. Several arrests were made.

Labor Troubles at Tonawanda.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., May 12.—Wm. Brough, a nonunion man, working at Fassett & Bellinger's docks, was attacked by union lumber shovers. He was knocked senseless and was taken to the hospital. Four of his assailants were arrested. The union men held a secret meeting and serious trouble is expected.

Sparrow Found Not Guilty.

NORWICH, Conn., May 12.—The jury rendered a verdict of not guilty in the Sparrow-Caswell murder case. Edgar F. Sparrow was then discharged after having spent six months in jail. He drove at once to his home in Ledyard.

Police Killed Five Mexicans.

DURANGO, Mex., May 12.—At a holiday celebration here a desperate affray occurred between a mob of intoxicated Mexicans and the police, which resulted in the killing of five of the mob and one policeman.

Dropped Down In the Failure.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., May 12.—The announcement of the failure of the Columbia National bank of Chicago sent the Sioux City Engine works to the wall, and William M. Thompson was appointed receiver.

A Bicyclist Drowned.

WHAT LAWYER PURDY KNOWS.

He Says That Pallister Is Now Safe In Some Foreign Country.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Lawyer Ambrose H. Purdy, who defended the fugitive murderer, Thomas Pallister, was visited by an expert burglar, who was one of Pallister's pals, and an extended conversation over the finding of the body of Murderer Roehl ensued.

"The man who came to see me," said Lawyer Purdy, "wanted to talk with me about Pallister and Roehl. The first thing he said to me when he began to talk about the accused murderers was: 'Now, look here, Mr. Purdy, the very first thing Pallister would do when he escaped from prison would be to shake the Dutchman. He would know better than to travel anywhere in company with Roehl, for that would be the surest way in the world to attract attention.'

"Despite what Inspector McLaughlin or any one else may say about Pallister not having been in this city," continued Mr. Purdy, "I am as positive of the fact as any one can be without having actual evidence of it. I am morally certain that he has successfully eluded the police here and escaped to some foreign country.

"I know that a fund was raised among Pallister's friends to give him a decent burial in case of his conviction, and I know in whose hands the money was placed. Well, the man who held the money does not hold it now."

THE LEVEE GAVE WAY.

A Disastrous Crevasse on the Arkansas Side of the River.

GREENVILLE, Miss., May 12.—The first break in the levees restraining the mighty Mississippi river occurred on the Arkansas side about 37 miles above Lakeport, Ark., and about 14 miles below this city. The crevasse is in a small levee against which was about 7 feet of water. The width of the break at first was about 200 feet and it is widening rapidly.

While this break will inflict considerable damage upon the section of the country south of the break, the relief given to the levees in the Mississippi side will be material. The county of Chicot, in which is located the crevasse will make the heaviest to be the sufferer. About 5,000 acres of lands in that county planted in cotton will be inundated. Directly south of Chicot, Ark., lies that of Carrol parishes, La. These will also receive the water from the crevasse as will probably Madison and Tensas.

Efforts to tie the ends of this crevasse will be made. The levees on the Mississippi side are in excellent shape.

OUR TARS AT THE OARS.

Crews of the White Ships Hold a River Regatta.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Crews from the American men-of-war raced for prizes and over another crowd of visitors to the squadron in the North river. The championship "man-of-war's crew of the world—that of the United States steamship San Francisco—took no part in the contests. There were two crews, one of three miles for 10 and 12-cared double banked boats and one of two miles for 4 and 8-oared whaleboats or dingies, single banked. The races were started three and two miles up the Hudson, and the finish was a line from the Chicago to the Arethusa. The races were started before breakfast and the men rowed against the tide and also had a strong head wind.

In the first race of 12-oared boats the Newark crew took the lead early in the race, winning by nearly one minute.

In the second race a crew from the Vesuvius came in first, with the Dolphin's but 10 seconds later, and the Philadelphia's boat rowing almost a dead heat with the second Vesuvius boat, but winning by less than one foot.

Two Fast Ships In.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The steamship Lahn was the second North German Lloyd liner to bring smallpox desperation among the crew. There were three patients when the Lahn reached quarantine. Dr. Jenkins ordered the smallpox patients sent to Swinburne Island and had the seven passengers, who occupied adjacent compartments to the ship's hospital, sent to Hoffman island. The cabin passengers were landed. Gustav H. Schwab, agent of the line, said that the smallpox patients on the Lahn and Aller were not from Bremen but from Russian Poland.

A Slight Fot Satolli.

NEW YORK, May 12.—That peace has not been restored in the Catholic diocese of Newark, N. J., is shown by the evident design to slight the papal allegate when he visits the diocese. A monster reception had been planned in honor of Mgr. Satolli. Bishop Wigger, all the priests of the diocese and many distinguished clergymen from other dioceses were invited to this reception. Bishop Wigger will not attend, and it is thought not more than 30 of the 98 priests in the diocese will be present.

Poor People In Quarantine Left Without Food.

IMPRISONED BY SMALLPOX CASES.

The Brooklyn Board of Health Charged With Neglecting Unfortunates Whom They Caused to Be Shut Up In Tenements—Lived on Half a Loaf Four Days.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The World today publishes the following:

Twenty-four adults and 10 children, representing nine families, have been quarantined since last Saturday in the 4-story double brick tenement at 155 Prospect street, Brooklyn. The condition of the unfortunates at present is deplorable. The place was quarantined on account of the breaking out there of smallpox. Two of the families are without a mouthful of victuals, and have been saved from starvation only by the kindness of neighbors. The other families are dependent on the day labor of the head of the family, and have already spent all they had left from last pay day.

The inmates say that the doctors of the health department who called upon the sick, and then quarantined the house, promised to see that the unfortunates were kept supplied with food. Up to date the promise has not been faithful. Unless something is done by the authrities today the quarantined colony in Prospect street will be well nigh starved to death.

Cooped In Tenements.

When the second case of smallpox broke out and the authorities were notified of it a stricter quarantine was put on the tenement, and no one was allowed either to enter or leave the place. That was the beginning of the present hapless condition of the inmates. Some of the heads of the imprisoned nine families had collected their weekly wages before they were caught in the trap by the orders of the health department. But for the kindness of those who got their pay and the kindness of neighbors many of the unfortunates would have gone hungry. The prisoners were helped out by some of the poor families in the street, who divided their scant provisions with the occupants of 155. The inmates of the tenement were famishing.

When a world reporter visited the house last evening the doorway was filled with an excited group of men, women and children, whom Policeman Dougherty of the Second precinct was watching to see that they didn't step across the danger line. Policeman Fitzgerald was in the area to prevent the half crazed people from jumping over the back fence.

According to the stories which the inmates at the door told the reporter one of the health officers called on Sunday and was notified of the lack of food. He promised to see that they had something to eat, but not as much as a loaf of bread was sent from the health department, and Monday it got noised about the neighborhood in some way that the families at the back run out of eatables. A collection was made by the neighbors and sent in to the half starved people. When the physician called on Monday, children gathered about him and piteously begged that something to eat be given them. Again the doctor promised that something should be done for them.

Lived on Half a Loaf.

The faces of those grouped about the doorway were pinched and showed signs of suffering.

Officer Dougherty said there was no doubt about the pitiable condition of the inmates, and he added the use of sulphur in fumigation had made their situation all the more uncomfortable inasmuch as the tenement was insufferable for a time. Captain Keenan is afraid that in their desperation some of the unfortunates may attempt to escape. Therefore one policeman is kept constantly in front of the house and one constantly at the back.

As an instance of the shifts to which the inmates have been reduced Frederick Schwerer said that his only food since Saturday was a half loaf of bread and some coffee which he had been warming over and over.

Nicaragua Revolutionists Won.

PANAMA, via Galveston, May 12.—News has just been received from San Juan del Sur that the Nicaraguan revolutionists have been successful in their attempt to overthrow the government of President Sacoza. They have also obtained complete control of the Nicaragua canal, but it is not thought American interests in that enterprise will be imperilled. Sacoza had 2,000 fighting men in his army, while the revolutionists had about 5,000. Both were well armed.

Killed by Harris' Death.

DELP, L. I., May 12.—The circumstances attending the death of Mrs. Frances Broadway are the subject of considerable discussion here. Mrs. Broadway died rather suddenly while cooking her husband's midday meal. The cause of her death was said to be apoplexy, but the villagers ascribe it to grief over the execution of Carlyle W. Harris.

The Mayor as a Witness.

BROOKLYN, May 12.—One feature of the trial of James H. Egan here was the appearance of Mayor Boody as a witness against the people.

THE BULLET KILLED TWO.

A Father, In Commiserating Suicide, Kills His Daughter.

WARREN, Mass., May 12.—Warren G. Butterworth, aged 70 years, a blacksmith, while temporary insane, committed suicide, and in doing so killed his daughter Emma, aged 22. Mr. Butterworth had said that he was tired of life.

He went to the barn with a small rifle and was quickly followed by his daughter. As she approached him he placed the barrel to his mouth and pulled the trigger. The ball entered the roof of the building, coming out of his right temple passed through the young lady's left eye and lodged in her brain. Mr. Butterworth dropped dead instantly. His daughter lived an hour.

Two Huge Telescopes.

BOSTON, May 12.—There are now in process of construction at the shop of Alvan Clark & Sons, Cambridgeport, two huge telescope instruments. One is an enormous 40-inch lens telescope for the Kenwood observatory of the University of Chicago and the other is the Bruce photographic telescope, which is being made for the Astronomical observatory of Harvard college. The lenses for the Chicago telescope are four inches larger than the lenses in the telescope at the Lick observatory and are 40 inches in diameter.

Comstock In Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, May 12.—Jedediah S. Ayer of Norwalk, was arrested by United States Marshal Strong in Norwalk on a complaint made by Mr. Anthony Comstock, who is now a postoffice inspector. Ayer, who is the son of a prominent New York business man and figures prominently in Norwalk society, was charged with sending obscene letters through the mails to a New York gentleman named Rose, who is connected with the New York Central railroad. The hearing was set down for Saturday afternoon.

Caring For the National Banks.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Comptroller Eckels has designated D. A. Cook, bank examiner for Illinois outside the city of Chicago, to take charge of the Columbia National bank of Chicago, which failed yesterday. He has also designated Rush Young, bank examiner for western Pennsylvania, to proceed at once to Indianapolis, Ind., and take charge of the Capitol National bank of that city, which also failed yesterday.

Liquor Men Use Dynamite.

MUSCATINE, Ia., May 12.—The residences of Postmaster John Mabin, N. Rosenberger and E. M. Kessinger were blown up by dynamite and totally wrecked. No one was injured, but the families had an almost miraculous escape from death. The crime is laid at the doors of the saloon men who are being prosecuted for violating the prohibition law. No arrests have yet been made.

Died Doing His Duty.

HAVERHILL, Mass., May 12.—At a grade crossing of the Boston and Maine railroad, as the express from the west was due, an old man attempted to cross the track. Crossing Tender Donovan tried to save him, but failed. The old man was killed and Donovan was knocked down, his left foot crushed off and his right leg horribly mangled, death resulting.

Engine Went Into the River.

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., May 12.—The trestle over Otter creek, at the edge of this village, built by the Central Vermont railroad to replace the bridge which collapsed on Friday morning last, fell while a freight train was passing upon it. The engine and a car went down with the engineer saving himself by jumping into the river and escaped.

Another Alleged Wife Poisoning.

NEW YORK, May 12.—During the trial of a suit brought by one Charles Gyllenhammer, against the Home Benefit society for the recovery of $5,000 on a policy of insurance issued to him upon the life of his wife, who has since died, Lawyer Charles Blandy, for the defendants, referred to the case as one of wife poisoning.

No Sewing Machine Trust.

CLEVELAND, May 12.—The great sewing machine trust is a thing of the past. In its inception. After the general details had been arranged and the combination of the five companies practically decided to be matured; the Domestic people suddenly announced that they did not care to consolidate.

Believes In Dr. Briggs.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Dr. Thomas C. Hall, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, has declared himself on the Briggs heresy question and he will withdraw from the church if Dr. Briggs is expelled. Dr. Hall is one of the most popular and successful ministers in the city.

Landlords as Guests.

CHICAGO, May 12.—About 50 big hotelkeepers from New York and vicinity, accompanied by their wives and guests, swooped down on the Auditorium hotel to become guests. They visited the World's fair in their special train, and today they leave for New York.

Proposes to Connect the Lakes.

OTTAWA, May 12.—Conway C. Wyatt, a civil engineer of Duluth, is here seeking to obtain a charter for the construction of a ship canal, 11 miles long, to connect Lake Erie with Lake St. Clair. The proposed waterway will shorten the distance 16 miles.

Smith Wants It Postponed.

BOSTON, May 12.—Billy Smith is on his way to Portland, Or., with the remains of his wife. Smith wants the Coney Island club to postpone his fight with Jack Dempsey till 6 weeks. If Newton will not do this Smith will forfeit.

Synods as Joint Owners.

LANCASTER, Pa., May 12.—The board of trustees of the Reformed Theological seminary decided to so amend the charter as to allow the Ohio and Illinois synods to become joint owners of the institution with the eastern synod.

A Plague of Caterpillars.

LONDON, May 12.—The drought of the last eight weeks has caused a great loss in the south of England. A plague of caterpillars is destroying the leaves, blossoms and small fruit in the apple and pear orchards.

Canada's Governor Generalship.

LONDON, May 12.—It is officially stated that the Earl of Aberdeen has been appointed governor general of Canada in place of the Earl of Derby; formerly Baron Stanley of Preston who is about to retire.

Have Been Around the World.

ST. LOUIS, May 12.—Thomas F. Allen and W. L. Stockbiden of Washington university have entered the home stretch of a world encircling tour, departing from this city to wheel to New York.

FASHIONS

The Kilmarthan Pantiness.

While apparently no one wants the wild and skirts these are slowly but surely working a place for themselves. The novelty in petticoats here depicted is intended to keep out the lower part of the dress, as is now demanded by fashion. By adopting it there is no need to have recourse to crinoline or wires of any description. Its object is to obviate the difficulty that will be experienced as the season advances of lingering thin materials, such as crepon, silghtsilks, etc., with horsehair stiffening. This petticoat has a deep silk band in front, terminating with a flutting of horsehair. The plaited back is entirely of horsehair.

A NOVELTY IN PETTICOATS.

It is claimed for the Elizabethan petticoat that is is light in weight and strong. It can be made in black, white or gray horsehair and will doubtless be preferred by many ladies to a bonped skirt.

A Becoming Blouse.

The prettiest model for a blouse is a bodice of sheeny shot silk, with sleeves of the bishop pattern. The front consists of two box plaits of silk, which are arranged crossover fashion by the wearer herself, passed round the figure to the back like a belt, brought forward again and tied or fastened with a pretty ornament on the left side of the waist. If smartly put on so as to follow the lines of the figure, it is most becoming.

HE BUILT THE "WHITE CITY."

The Man Who Solved the Greatest Architectural Problems Ever Presented.

Daniel Hudson Burnham, chief of the bureau of constructions for the Chicago World's fair, has by common consent achieved one of the greatest triumphs of the age. He was appointed in September, 1890, and since then has had the direction of the greatest mechanical enterprise ever known to man. Perhaps no man living is better qualified for the work. This is no light praise, but since it is based upon what Mr. Burnham has actually accomplished it cannot be considered undeserved.

DANIEL H. BURNHAM.

He was born in Jefferson county, N. Y., 47 years ago. He went to Chicago in 1855 and received his early education there. He has devoted himself to architecture since 1867, and many of the largest and finest business buildings in the city bear testimony to his skill. In his position as chief of the bureau of construction he had to act as judgment on the work of his associates in planning the buildings and grounds of the "White City," and as executive head of the department of construction to see that those plans were carried out to the minutest detail. Many men doubted the possibility of completing the exposition buildings on time. The seeming impossibility did not daunt Mr. Burnham, who wasted no time in words, but went ahead and worked.

In Honor of Hendrik Hudson.

Hendrik Hudson may almost be called the patron saint of New York as a state, and she keeps his memory green. In her state building at Jackson park, Chicago, she has a bronze statue of him, and on the walls thereof are to be seen large pictorial representations of notable incidents in his life. One of the scenes chosen shows Hendrik's ship, the Half Moon, at anchor off the highlands of the Hudson. The painting is an enlargement of an old wood cut and the picture of the Dutch vessel is a good deal like a child's sketch of a house.

Hudson left Amsterdam in the Half Moon on April 4, 1609, under commission to the Dutch East Indies company to seek out a more direct route to their eastern possessions. When he sailed inside of Sandy Hook on Sept. 3 of the same year, he thought he had found the western passage he was seeking, and his hopes ran high for the next two weeks, to be continued his exploration of the picturesque "River of the Mountains," as the Manhattan Indians then called the Hudson. By Sept. 19 he had reached a point opposite the site of the present city of Albany, where he lay at anchor for four days; then, concluding he was in a river and not a sea passage, he returned.

Professional Beauties at the Fair.

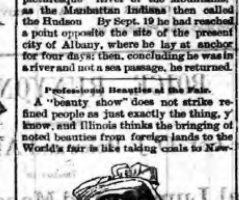
A "beauty show" does not strike refined people as just exactly the thing, y know, and Illinois thinks the bringing of noted beauties from foreign lands to the World's fair is like taking coals to Newcastle. But there is on the Midway plaisance just such a collection, representative of the different types of beauty and dress of modern European womanhood. There are 50 of them, and they will make a "beauty show" that is well worth a visit. The three considered most beautiful are Miss Enid Scott of England, Miss Ladizok Kellinnharf of Hungary and Mlle. Gabrielle Rinsont of France. Those ladies have all achieved more or less fame for personal charms and various eccentricities of temper and taste, and it is only reasonable to suspect that they will fully sustain their reputations.



(English. French. Hungarian.)
TYPES OF BEAUTY.

Of course many other beauties can be seen, and all types of beauty, as all nations are represented. In the Egyptian village, for instance, are 125 people from the land of the pharoahs—109 men, 82 women and 18 children. Most prominent among them is the venerable looking priest with his loose flowing robes and long whiskers, though Khabel Nada, a celebrated conjurer well known to American visitors to Cairo, attracts the most attention. Then there are camel men, water boys, fencers, jesters, cooks, waiters, printers, dancing girls, flower girls and, loniliest among the lonely ones, one of lords paramount, the special correspondent of an Egyptian newspaper.

WORLD'S FAIR EVANGELS.

Brother Moody Conducts an Active Religious Campaign in Chicago.

Evangelist Moody has arranged for a series of meetings in Chicago during the exposition that he expects will be the crowning religious work of his career. The meetings began on May 1 and will be held every night in every part of the city. Mr. Moody has selected his assistants from the ablest Christian workers in this country and Europe, and services are conducted in churches in the different districts and in four large tents which have been secured for the purpose.

The music is furnished by Mr. Moody's well known colaborers, Ira D. Sankey, George C. Stebbins and H. H. Mcdonald.

D. L. MOODY. GEORGE M'KAY. JOHN M'NEIL. J. WILBUR CHAPMAN.

Mr. Moody will be absent awhile to conduct conventions at Northfield and Mt. Hermon. Other laborers in the meeting will be George McKay, a Wall street broker, who will deliver a series of illustrated lectures during May that had great success in Dr. Taylor's church in Brooklyn. Mr. McKay has ransacked Europe for pictures for these lectures and is said to have a complete life of Christ in illustrations. Also John McNeill, recently of the Regents Park church, London, who was heard in America a year ago and is said to be an able and forcible preacher. Some of the other speakers who will assist are Dr. T. De Witt Talmage, B. Fay Mills and Dr. Theodore Cuyler.

Old Vienna at the Fair.

"Old Vienna" is the pet name applied the Austrian village on the World's fair grounds. It is on the Midway plaisance and is a fourteenth century quaintness peculiar to itself. Its main entrance gate is an exact reproduction of the original gate of the Austrian city and bears the legend "A. D. MDCLIV." Austria's crown and eagles are to be seen in front of the department buildings and ornament all the Austrian pavilions in the Manufactures building, where the empire makes a great show.

OLD VIENNA.

Under the gallery in the German space, adjoining that of America, little rooms have been made between the girders, and each is occupied by some particular line of goods. One is entirely devoted to cuckoo clocks made in the great Black Forest, and not less than 50 different varieties are shown. An adjacent room has a collection of the tall old clocks of our grandfather's days, and another is fitted to represent a cosy corner in a library, the shelves being all hand carved, and a handsome seat of embossed leather being set in the corner.

Of course all the different parts of the Austrian empire, which is probably the most complex and heterogeneous empire in existence, will be shown in this world's fair represented in the several departments of the fair, and the Bohemian, Hungarian, Tyrolese, Greek and other work is of great interest.

A Transplanted Algerian Village.

Of all the semi-civilized peoples to be represented at the Columbian exposition none will display their home life more faithfully than Algeria. Africa and none will be more interesting. The Algerian and Tunisian concession is to Midway plaisance. Admission is free to everything except the two theaters. The central building is the Cafe Concert Algerian. It is flanked on both sides by semicircular rows of booths, terminating at one end in the Kabyle concert hall and at the other in the Tunisian concert hall. Along this front the visitor walks as in the finest section of an Algerian city with the indices all about him of a civilization which has changed but little in 3,000 years.

Inclosed by the semicircles will be a regular oriental garden, one of the luxurious kind described in the "Arabian Nights," with kiosks, fountains and tropical foliage. The buildings are finished as far as possible in oriental tiles, thus presenting a marked contrast to the other structures. Not only will the sale of Algerian productions go on, but their manufacture may be witnessed. One may hear also the famous Algerian orchestra as I quite a variety of minstrels, Kabyle and others.

NORWAY'S HEADQUARTERS.

One of the most Unique and Attractive Buildings at the Fair.

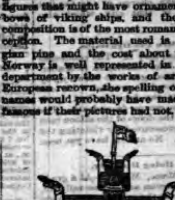
The buildings being completed and the debris cleared away, the visitor to Jackson park sees the World's fair buildings in all their beauty. The national buildings especially show up well. Norway's design is particularly striking, and it is what is called the stav kirke style and is distinctively Norwegian. Its mass of gables and pinnacles is decorated with figures that might have ornamented the bows of viking ships, and the whole composition is of the most romantic conception. The material used in Norwegian pine and the cost about $10,000. Norway is well represented in the art department by the works of artists of European renown, she spelling of whose names would probably have made them famous if their pictures had not.



NORWAY'S HEADQUARTERS.

Sweden also stuck to home talent in the matter of architecture. She has an old triangular Swedish cathedral with a dome and tower in the center. The interior is fitted up for exhibits, Sweden being the only European country making a collective display in her own building. Except in the art gallery, the Agricultural building and Machinery hall she shows little in the departments.

British Railway Exhibit at the Fair.

Great Britain's system of passenger trains has long been the subject of criticism and ridicule among Americans, as the passengers are shut up in small groups in separate compartments, without communication by platforms and there is no system of checking baggage. Nevertheless the conservative Britons have modified their system but little and have sent to the Chicago exposition some of their best coaches, with a locomotive, to show what they can do. One of the coaches is a sleeper and the other a drawing room. Each measures 63 feet over all and weighs 23 tons. The sleeper has four compartments and will accommodate 14 persons. The beds fold up snugly. Except not in use, and the compartment becomes a regular English drawing room.

The other coach is the regular English composite affair, with two compartments for first class travel, one for second class and two for third class, accommodating altogether 32 passengers. There is a lavatory in this coach too, and also a luncheon compartment. Of course the entrances are on the side, in the prevailing English fashion, but some of the dangers of that arrangement have been obviated by making it possible to pass from one car to the other.

BRITISH LOCOMOTIVE AND DRAWING ROOM CAR.

The locomotive is of the so called Queen Empress type, a 60-ton affair. The driving wheels are 7 feet 6 inches in diameter and the boiler 27 feet long. It is said that the engine can make as much as 100 miles an hour under full pressure and can run at the rate of 70 or 80 miles an hour on the stretch. It is intended to try to demonstrate this before sending the Queen back to England.

They Worked With a Rush.

The view on the Chicago World's fair grounds during the last few days and nights was well worth seeing, for every one was driving his particular job at the very highest possible speed. In Machinery hall particularly a failure was to be avoided, for without power to move the machinery in the other buildings the opening would not be at all successful. Men worked day and night here, too, and when President Cleveland touched the button that started things going Machinery hall was ready to do the rest.

The same may be said of the Transportation and Electricity buildings, the Liberal Arts, the Agricultural and Mines and Mining buildings and of the various state and foreign buildings. Nobody comnected with any of them had any time to waste in worrying, and there certainly seems no need for it. Armies of men worked everywhere, exhibits were rapidly placed, and everybody says things were in first rate shape. Of course no great exposition ever was in just the right shape at the opening, but that at Chicago came as near it as any on record.

THE BOROUGH COUNCIL.

AS ADJOURNED MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT.

The Mayor and Council Invited to Attend Memorial Day Services—The Extra Marshal Question Discussed—Committee Reports—Other Matters.

The Borough Council held an adjourned meeting last night. All the members were present except Councilmen Connolly and Edwards.

The following bills were ordered paid:

|---|---|
| W. R. Pangborn | $ 56.25 |
| Plainfield Gas & Electric Light Co.. | 2.50 |
| Edison Electric Light Co. | 250.00 |
| F. Entlegher | 10.00 |
| T. Feirine | 1.00 |
| F. Seader | 2.00 |
| C. W. Tallman | 80.87 |

In a communication the Mayor and council were invited by Mr. Asa Collier of the joint G. A. R. committee, to attend the Memorial Day services in Music Hall, May 30, at 1 to o'clock. The communication was received and filed.

The residents of Prospect place petitioned Council to macadamize that thoroughfare. It was referred to the Committee on Streets.

Mr. Neal, of the Street Committee, reported that the work of laying the street railway tracks was progressing rapidly; that the work of macadamizing Greenbrook road is to be finished to-day, and that the Somerset County Board of Freeholders had had the bridges in the borough put in good repair.

The Clerk stated that he was unable to balance the accounts owing to the negligence of ex-Clerk Brokaw in not balancing the accounts before he gave up the books.

Councilman Edwards, who was unable to be present, in a communication reported progress in the matter of procuring a safe.

The Committee on Marshals and Licenses reported that the jail had been inspected and found to be in need of several improvements. The committee recommended that the walls of the cells be whitewashed, and that a water pipe be connected so as to wash out the cells when needed. Also that a new lock be procured as the present one could be unlocked with any ordinary key, and that an extra light be placed at the rear end of the building. The report was received and filed.

A resolution was adopted fixing Borough Registrate Crossley's salary at $100 per year.

The reports in the New York papers of the tramp episode in the Park, Thursday, were very much overdrawn and were repudiated by Councilman Howell, who said that while it was a fact that the tramps were at his house, there were no pistols used and no attempt to harm the inmates was made.

Mayor Saunders said that while it was quite evident that there should be two regular Marshals in the borough—one for day duty and the other for night—the expense would be more than the tax payers would care to stand. The remedy seemed to be the appointing of police of special marshals who could be called upon at a moment's notice. They could be scattered in different parts of the borough.

Every citizen should consider himself a marshal in cases like that of Thursday, he said, when tramps terrorize a neighborhood, the Mayor evidently forgetting that at such times the men are usually absent at business. He added that if any district feels that it needs more police protection it is only necessary that the residents send in an application requesting the appointment of "John Smith" as special marshal and immediate action will be taken on it by the Mayor and Council.

The Mayor also requested Mr. Needham, of the Finance Committee, to have the accounts balanced and report at the next meeting. As the accounts stood now it was impossible for the Clerk to make out each month the standing of the different accounts. He also told the Clerk he would expect a report from him each month hereafter as to just how the borough stands. Mayor Saunders said the reason he wished Mr. Needham to attend the matter was that he had always attended to matters left in his charge with promptness and accuracy.

Marshal Pangborn's contract with the borough and his bond were accepted and filed.

Council then adjourned.

Epworth League Anniversary.

The fourth anniversary of the Epworth League will be appropriately observed by the Plainfield Chapter No. 1, in the Methodist Episcopal church to morrow evening. Mr. Henry W. Knight of Brooklyn will be present and make an address. A very interesting time is expected and everyone will be cordially welcomed.

More Tramps to the Borough.

Early this morning Mr. John F. Wilson's home on Greenbrook road was visited by four tramps, who demanded food and clothing. The men lingered around, and Mr. Wilson was compelled to remain home from New York, from fear they might attempt robbery or even worse, attempt to harm his family.

A Runaway Averted.

Thursday afternoon a team of horses belonging to Mr. Robinson Pound of this city, became unmanageable owing to a broken rein and started to run away, near Dunellen. The driver guided the team into a bank alongside the road, stopping them. The only damage was a broken pole.

PRINCETON QUARTETTE CONCERT.

A Pleasing Entertainment at Vincent Chapel Last Evening.

The Princeton Quartette gave a very pleasing and interesting concert at Vincent chapel last night, under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Mission Circle, of the M. E. church. The back of the platform was beautifully decorated in the Princeton colors of orange and black, and underneath in large letters was the word "Princeton."

The quartette rendered some of its best songs that called forth an encore in each instance. The quartette consisted of Mr. F. P. Bliss, 1st tenor; Mr. C. L. Fisk, 2d tenor; Mr. A. E. Holmes, 1st bass; Mr. R. Z. Hartzler, 2d bass.

The following was the programme:

"Old Nassau."
Medley.
"Breeze of Night."
Recitation.....Miss Anna Teale
Solo.....Mr. E. E. Holmes
2. "Moonlit Night."
"Madrid."
Plantation Melodies.
Piano Solo.....Miss Barnes
Reveries.
Recitation.....Mr. R. Z. Hartzler
Medley.
"Throbbing Miss."
Recitation.....Miss Etta Baybert
"Orange and Black."
Sleep Thou, Wild Rose."

The concert was closed by the singing of "Jesus Saviour, Pilot Me," and "Rock of Ages," by the quartette.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Charles A. Reed has returned from the South.

John Gant of Grove street is ill with ulcerated sore throat.

Mrs. Elias Pangborn, has removed from 26 West Fifth street to 7 Arlington avenue.

Miss Daisy Mitchell, formerly of this city, is the guest of Miss Minnie French of Craig place.

Miss Carrie Chickener of Somerville has returned from a three-weeks' visit with relatives in this city.

Mr. H. G. Rankle gave a dinner to a party of friends, last night, at his home on West Eighth street.

Mrs. Augustus M. Frazee of Second is seriously ill with pneumonia. She has been sick three times this winter with the grip.

Mr. J. C. Vannatta of Scotch Plains has resigned his position as night baggagemaster at the North avenue depot. Mr. James Anderson takes his place.

Editor Frank W. Banyon of the Courier, who has been spending several weeks in the woods of North Carolina, for his health, returned yesterday much improved.

William Ruth, of Westfield, who has been way bill clerk of the Central Railroad at Communipaw, has been appointed cashier of the United States Express Company in this city.

At the Diocesan Convention held this week in New Brunswick, the Rev. T. Logan Murphy was elected the clerical delegate to represent the diocese at the general missionary meeting which is to be held in San Francisco in October next.

In the Park Avenue Baptist church, after a half hour prayer meeting next Friday evening, there will be a question match on China, conducted by the Foreign Mission Committee, and this will be followed by a social, during which refreshments will be served. Admission free.

Scarlet fever caused the death at four o'clock this morning of Miss Mary Keenan of Clinton avenue, in the twenty-fourth year of her age. She is to be buried privately from the house of her parents, where her death occurred. She was the daughter of Patrick and Mary Keenan. They have several other children older and younger. These, however, seem to have escaped the dread disease.

Messrs. F. G. Langhorne and Robert Happersett of Putnam avenue, and Mr. James A. Lowe of New York, will start this evening for a week's fishing trip in Vermont and Canada. Their headquarters will be on the banks of Lake Champlain. In that vicinity they have on previous occasions caught as many as nineteen black bass in one haul before breakfast. Mr. Happersett, who is one of the party, is superintendent of Bradstreet's Commercial Agency in New York and has charge of seven hundred employees.

BREVITIES.

—To-night a song service will be held in the W. C. T. U. rooms.

—Boys were in swimming in Green Brook, at Evona, Friday, for the first time this year.

—Van Emburgh & Son have a new announcement to-day of special interest to housekeepers.

—The Arlingtons defeated the Dunellens, this morning, in a game of ball, by the score of 14 to 3.

—The first bricks of the New Y. M. C. A. building were laid this morning. Mr. Pangborn has the contract.

—The last of the Somerville Assemblies was given at Fiederoe, last night. A number of Plainfielders attended.

—The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Plainfield Camera Club will be held on Tuesday evening, May 16, at eight p. m.

—The date of the visit of Winfield Scott Post, No. 75, G. A. R. to James A. Garfield Post of Newark, has been changed from May 24 to June 8.

—The Union County Grand Jury for the May term has concluded its labors and Tuesday morning will present the indictments found by it to the Court.

—The new polished stone pillars for the Babcock building, on West Front street, arrived yesterday. There are eight pillars and bases, and weigh three tons each.

—The annual meeting of the Choral Society for the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place on next Tuesday evening, 16th inst., at eight o'clock at Vincent chapel.

—At a public meeting of citizens held in the New Market hall on Wednesday evening it was decided to light the streets by electricity and a committee of three was appointed for one year, viz: Z. P. Osmun, J. R. Dunham and F. Holden.

—Quite some excitement was caused on East Third street Thursday night by the shooting of a dog, in which four men, two boys, two revolvers and a shot gun were the factors. The dog was killed but not until the whole neighborhood had been aroused by the shooting.

—The new constitution and general laws for the government of the jurisdiction of New Jersey A. O. U. W. adopted at the session recently held at Trenton, provides one representative from subordinate lodges for each one hundred members or fraction thereof.

—The Woman's Friendly Aid Society of Evona will hold an afternoon tea and apron sale in the lodge rooms in the Hill building, 34 West Front street, Wednesday afternoon and evening, May 24. The proceeds will be used to establish a building fund for a Sunday-school and parish house.

—The Street Committee recently called for bids from the three local papers for publishing the official list giving the old and the new numbers of houses. The Press was willing to publish it at considerably less than it charges the city for other advertising or charges private individuals, and as the other publishers declined to do any such thing the matter was given to the paper referred to. No objection is made to this, but we do not think it fair to the other papers for the Council to place itself in the position of selecting the paper in the manner wrongfully stated in the Press. To publish it as has been done is in our judgment a penny wise and pound foolish course. It will not reach the people as thoroughly as the specified method for circulating the maps, which will be distributed through all the papers next week.

Ran a Nail Into Its Foot.

Mr. J. W. Haviland's horse was injured this morning on North avenue. It stepped on a nail which penetrated its hind foot, causing the animal to become lame. The nail was extracted and some turpentine poured into the wound.

More Levies for Taxes.

Justice Nash, as delinquent tax collector, yesterday, made three more levies for taxes, as follows: On the household goods of Peter Cuff, of Liberty street, Sylvester Cuff, of Plainfield avenue, and Patrick Corrigan of South Second street.

TO ESCAPE A SUBPOENA.

The Alleged Cause of a Woman's Disappearance.

Mrs. Hannah Clark, of Westfield, disappeared from her home a week ago last Wednesday. She went away in the night, taking her child, aged four years. Her husband, does not know where she has gone.

The theory of her disappearance is that she is hiding somewhere to escape a subpœna. Some two months ago she made a complaint against a man named Johnson for assault and battery. On Wednesday Constable J. M. C. Marsh went to the house to subpœna Mrs. Clark, and learned that she had been missing as described for a week.

For our Free Public Library.

The Free Public Library has just received a very valuable collection of books on genealogy, given by Mr. Charles W. Opdyke of this city. One of the books, "The Op Dyck' genealogy" is written by Mr. Opdyke himself. The others are Munsell's standard work on American ancestry" in seven volumes, giving the history of many families and can trace their ancestry as far back as the revolution. "The Hoagland Family in America." "The Chad Browne Memorial" and the "New Jersey Society of the Sons of the American Revolution." "American Ancestry" will form part of the reference library and many be consulted at any time during library hours.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Drowning Season.

It has begun already, late as the warm weather has been in appearing. Every day news items are telegraphed about the drowning of men, women or children. It is nearly always the venturesome boys who head the melancholy roll. In every case the news item states that the drowned person was unable to swim. Those who have been drowned thus far have usually gone out in a rowboat, which from some cause capsized and precipitated them into the water. It is to be noted, too, that in these cases it is the persons who know nothing of the management of a boat and who cannot swim that are the most unfortunate in running into danger.

It ought to be that such lessons every year of our lives would impel each man, woman and child to learn to swim without delay, but they do not. Every one thinks that whoever else is drowned he himself will escape, and so half the race neglects what should be as much a part of a child's training as learning to walk. Every inland city, however small, should have its swimming tank and school if there is no convenient river where this graceful and useful physical accomplishment may be acquired. Besides that, those who do not know how to swim have no idea how much pleasure they miss out of their lives. A good swim will chase away the blues and bring one back to joy and a fine love of life when he is on the verge of suicide. Learn to swim. Let not this summer go over your head without it. Five years old is not too young to learn this art, which ought really to come naturally to us all. Ninety years is not too old.

Corn Is Our National Flower.

We have not said it poetically, but we have insisted over and again in honest, matter of fact prose without any frills that the American national flower should be the splendid Indian corn plant in its glorious young greenness just after it has blossomed into tassel. America gave it to feed the world. It is our own original plant, and it is the all round most useful and profitable vegetable product on this globe. How could it be made to serve the purposes of art is exemplified in some of the buildings of the World's fair.

We are glad to see our opinion re-enforced poetically by the excellent judgment of Miss Celia Thaxter in The New England Magazine. "Maize For the Nation's Emblem" is the name of the fine ringing poem in which she sets forth the claims of corn. Following are some of the stanzas:

God's gift to the new world's great need,
That helped to build the nation's strength
Up through beginnings rude to lead
A higher race of men at length.

How straight and tall and stately stand
Its serried stalks upright and strong!
How nobly are its outlines planned!
What grace and charm in its belong!

What splendid curves in rustling leaves!
What richness in its close set gold!
What largess in its clustered sheaves,
Ripe every grain, to eyes old!

America, from thy broad breast
It sprang, beneficent and bright,
Of all thy gifts from heaven the best,
For the world's succor and delight.

Then do it honor, give it praise!
A noble emblem should be ours—
Upon thy fair shield set thy maize,
More glorious than a myriad flowers.

The saddest fact connected with intense political or religious excitement is that it unbalances weak minds and makes crazed murderers of individuals who would otherwise pass through life merely as excitable and eccentric human beings. The quarrel between Conkling and Garfield developed Guiteau, the assassin of Garfield. The terrible strain of the civil war brought into activity the latent insanity in Wilkes Booth, and he murdered President Lincoln. Of the same character is the attempt on the life of Gladstone by the crank Townsend. Bitter passions, engendered by the attitude of that party in Ireland, threw him off his balance. Doubtless he believed that he would be the savior of his country if he killed Gladstone, and thus deprived the home rule cause of its leader. Persons who deliberately appeal to passions and prejudices in times of intense feeling and do all in their power to fan the flames of excitement take a grave responsibility in their hands, and the same, if Gladstone had been slain, home rule would have received the most powerful impetus to a successful conclusion. Always the blood of the martyrs is the seed of sure success for any cause.

It is not unknown that there are in New York city societies of Cubans devoted to freeing their native island from Spain and making of it a republic. They work so quietly that they never get into governmental entanglements. If now they and their friends in Cuba should organize a determined rebellion, one thing most assuredly should stand to their ground and at length defeat the Spanish forces, drive them home, proclaim the independence of Cuba, then just beg and entreat the United States to annex Cuba, precisely as happened in the case of Texas, what would the United States do?

It has been found that ignorance and carelessness on the part of workmen themselves have caused many of the mine disasters in Pennsylvania. Just so. Ignorance and carelessness is the cause of all the [illegible]

Country Banks Go Down Like Tenpins.

THE WEEKS' DEFALCATION.

The Promoter of West Superior Short Over $400,000.

He Disappears, Leaving Big Shortages In Money Trust Funds and Estates—He Is Thought to Be In Canada or Cuba—Removed as Trustee and His Property Attached—Western States Excited by the Many Failures of Banks Connected With the Columbia National, Which Suspended In Chicago.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Many people are wondering today where Francis H. Weeks, lawyer, ex-president, ex-secretary and ex-treasurer of the Land and River Improvement company of West Superior, Wis., and ex-treasurer of the West Superior Iron and Steel company can be.

There is little doubt that he is a fugitive from justice. He may be in Canada or Cuba. Reports differ.

He fled from this city two weeks ago, before the news of his failure and assignment were made public. He was last heard from through a letter received in this city a few days ago written from a town on the northern borders of New York state.

The scene of his country house at Cold Spring harbor, L. I., says that the entire family has gone away for a year, but it may be a long year.

Not at Cold Spring Harbor.

The assignment of Mr. Weeks was made public on Monday, May 1, at a meeting of the stockholders of the Land and River Improvement company. It was stated at that time that Mr. Weeks was prostrated by his misfortunes and had gone to his country house at Cold Spring harbor to recuperate. His home in this city was at 11 East Twenty-fourth street. He has not been there since Sunday, April 30.

The investigation into Mr. Weeks' affairs which has been going on ever since his assignment has revealed a most extraordinary state of things. Mr. Weeks was co-trustee in a number of estates, and had charge of large amounts of other people's money. Much of this has disappeared, and those who were examining his books can only conjecture where it has gone to. He is known to have been a heavy speculator in Wall street during the past year, and this fact and the recent declins in the market may explain where the money is gone.

Nearly $400,000 Short.

One eminent lawyer, who is counsel for a number of trust estates of which Weeks is sole or partial trustee admitted that Weeks had taken from these estates over $250,000. He would not give the exact amount, but further inquiry points to a larger and more correct estimate of nearly $400,000.

Francis H. Weeks was removed yesterday by Justice Ingraham, executor of Cecil T. Griffith under the will of J. Jacob Astor Bristed. Bristed was Mrs. Griffith's foster brother. The plaintiff charges that Weeks has embezzled $70,000 of the trust estate.

An attachment was issued against the property of Weeks, and the sheriff executed it at Weeks' office, 74 William street. A letter has been received from Weeks and postmarked Cuba. Lawyer Beaman of Searing, Chester & Beaman has left for Vermont. The firm is looking out for Mrs. Griffith's interests. He said that he was going to spend Sunday at his country place and that he is going to Canada to see Weeks.

The Times puts the amount of embezzlements at $1,000,000 and says: "Francis H. Weeks, bankrupt since May 1, has disappeared. With him, it is charged, have vanished securities, representing nearly $1,000,000, owned by estates and placed in his hands in trust."

THE COLUMBIA BANK'S STRING.

When It Closed the Country Banks Went Down Like Ninepins.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Interesting disclosures are promised in connection with the investigation into the Columbia National bank failure. The directors have held a meeting to discuss the practicability of resuming, but the result of their deliberations was not given out. The affairs of the bank are in such a thorough mix that it is not known just how matters stand.

Zimri D. Wiggins, president of the Columbia bank, was a banker in Attica, Ind., 10 or 12 years ago, and at that time established close relations with G. W. Wiggs and J. M. Starbuck who were running a system of bucket shops under the name of Wiley, Sturtevant & Co. They determined to start a bank and organized the United States National bank, with a capital of $500,000. The bucket shop business was subsequently broken up under the bucket shop law, the bank being left in Wiggins' control while Wiggs went to Jersey Mesdow. The stock of the United States bank was swelled to $500,000, and Wiggs, who had discovered an alleged gilt edged mine, drew $300,000 to pay for it. The mine proved to be sold to English investors. The mine was a "stead horse" and never panned out. Nothing daunted by the failure of the first scheme, Wiggins and Starbuck undertook the establishment of a chain of country banks. It is not known how many were then organized, but after the Columbia was established they went at it with vim, and their connections are now more extensive than before.

History of the Bust.

The plan was to visit some well known and well to do farmer in a town and secure his services as cashier of a bank, the farmer taking a large block of stock. The money was advanced by the Columbia and some one put in control when they could outnumber. The country bank stock thus acquired was either used as collateral for loans by the Columbia National or bought outright. As the money went out into the country soon came back to the reserve center the bank was not out of cash long, and practically no capital was required in the organization of bankers.

The Columbia, however, finally got loaded up with country bank stock for which it had no special use, and then it was determined to organize a company to take this stock, issue debenture bonds on them and sell the bonds. The United States Loan and Trust company was accordingly put in the field, with Zimri D. Wiggins president, and incorporated under the laws of Indiana. The company represented that $500 in the stock of country bank stocks yielding 8, 10 and 12 per cent dividends 5 and 6 per cent debenture bonds would be issued. It made the bonds good the United States Loan and Trust company guaranteed the payment of principal and interest. The venture was laid on in royal style, and it is known that at one financial concern's office $500,000 of the United States Loan and Trust company's debentures had been pigeonholed. The enormous amount of bank stock held for this is $450,000, and President D. Wiggins has $500,000 more on hand.

List of Suspended Banks.

The following country banks connected with the D. Wiggins-Starbuck-Columbia bank combination have failed:

Commercial bank of Brookston, Ind., (copartnership concern); Bank of Dunkirk, Ind., (copartnership); Bank of Greenwood Ind., (not incorporated); Commercial bank of Morristown, Ind., capital $25,000; Commercial state bank of Rusdaville, Ind.; Citizens bank of Edwardsburg, Mich. Union bank of Richland, Mich.

The following is a list of other correspondents of the Columbia bank:

Indiana—State bank of Anubis, capital $25,000; State Exchange bank at Argos, $25,000; Citizens' state bank of Boswell, $40,000; Union State bank of Bremen, $15,000; Citizens' State bank of Cherubusco county, $25,000; Clay County bank of Clay city, $50,000; Commercial bank of Lowell (D. Wiggins & Co.); Commercial bank of Lacy (not incorporated); Recker, Packer & Co. of Hanover; Beach, Pritchard & Co. (co-partnership) of New Palestine; H. Light cut of North Judson (co-partnership); Citizens' State bank of Rochester, $25,000; Commercial bank of Walkerton (Horatio Nelson); Central State bank of West Lebanon, $25,000; Peoples' bank of Windfall, $40,000.

Illinois—Byron's bank of Byron (D. Wiggins, Starbuck & Co.), Farmers' and Mechanics' bank of Casey, Bank of Lynn, East Lynn (O. — Rose); Georgetown bank (D. Wiggins, Starbuck & Co.), First National bank of Hoopeston, $50,000; Peoples' bank of Martinsville, Farmers' and Mechanics' of Mt. Carmel, State bank of Orion, $25,000; Farmers' bank of Ridgefarm, A. W. Borden & Son's bank of Sheffield, Sprine Valley national bank, $50,000.

Ohio—Bank of Brookville, Citizens bank of Lewisburg, Union Bank company, New Holland, $25,000; Central bank at Versailles, $25,000.

Crowds of people congregated around the offices of the Columbia National bank, but were assured from notices posted by those who had drawn on the bank that they themselves would see to the liquidation of all such drafts, and other assurances were given by officials that all would get their money.

Failures Expected In London.

LONDON, May 13.—More failures are expected to take place on the Stock Exchange today, owing to the default of a Greek speculator who is said to have liabilities of $250,000. Although he had but a modest capital this speculator had £100,000 open for a rise in Portuguese securities and £30,000 more in Greek securities.

Whisky Firm Suspends.

LOUISVILLE, May 13.—The wholesale whisky firm of W. H. Thomas & Sons has suspended payment. The suspension at first caused some excitement which quickly subsided when it became known that this action was the result of dullness of the whisky trade and the tight money market.

Two Firms Go Down.

MILWAUKEE, May 13.—The large dry goods and house furnishing store of Frank A. Lappen & Co. is in the hands of the sheriff. It was known at the banks that the Lappen dry goods company is also involved. The executions aggregate $65,000.

Bank Managers Left Town.

PAW PAW, Mich., May 13.—Great excitement prevails at Lawton. The managers of a local bank there did not open up the institution yesterday morning, but left town the night before. Citizens have some $18,000 deposited in the bank.

The Robinson Failure.

WILMINGTON, Del., May 13.—John R. Robinson, son of Henry C. Robinson, has opened the doors of the closed banking house of R. R. Robinson & Co., and will conduct business in his own name. There are no new developments in connection with the failure.

Receiver For an Ice Company.

TRENTON, May 13.—Colonel A. Husey, principal stockholder and creditor of the Hygeian ice company of Trenton, applied for the appointment of a receiver for that company, and John Muthrieid was named. The total liabilities are said to be $150,000, and the assets about the same.

Went With the Chemical.

KOKOMO, Ind., May 13.—The Bank of Greentown has closed its doors. The suspension is due to the suspension of the Chemical bank of Chicago.

Left Only a Book.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The sheriff has received an attachment for $4,223 against the Standard Coal and Fuel company of Boston, in favor of J. W. Thompson, and found only one desk to levy upon at the office, 35 Broadway.

The Tanner Speculated and Failed.

GATES WILL BE OPENED

Visitors May Enter Jackson Park Sunday For Half Price.

BUT THE BUILDINGS WILL BE SHUT.

This Rule Does Not Go Into Effect Until a Week From Tomorrow Though—Today a Gala Day at the World's Fair—Columbian Guards Shut Out.

CHICAGO, May 13.—The World's fair gates will be swung wide open to the public, and the vexed question of Sunday opening is settled.

Early last Sunday morning crowds began moving into Jackson park, thinking that perhaps the gates of the grounds would be opened, but they were disappointed, and fully 40,000 people were turned away from the gates of the fair proper and spent their money with the side shows surrounding the fair, a fact which the fair authorities were not slow to grasp. As a result, at the regular monthly meeting of the local directors of the World's fair it was decided to open the gates of Jackson park to the public for one-half the price of admittance to the fair during the week—viz., 25 cents.

This action has nothing to do with the opening of the buildings. The latter will remain closed as required under the laws passed by congress and as agreed to when the sum of $2,500,000 was accepted from the hands of the Fifty-second congress. The gatekeepers will admit to the grounds everyone paying 25 cents. They can examine the buildings on the outside, so everything there is to be seen, in fact, but they cannot enter the buildings. The action of the board will go into effect a week from tomorrow, or on the 21st of this month. The vote by which the resolution was passed was 25 to 7. Under the resolution Midway plaisance will also be thrown open.

Tonight the Illuminations.

Today is again day in Jackson park. The grounds are ringing with music, which to this exhilarating weather is very stimulating. Illuminations will be one of the finest sights ever seen. Rain or shine, the illumination will take place, and there will be other provision for the entertainments of visitors besides sightseeing.

If things do not change for the better there is every prospect that the Turkish village will open its doors unto itself wings and fly away from the plaisance to some place where backasheesh is more plentiful. As a matter of fact it is now the main chair in its odeon, with the dancing houris, and its scenes of oriental life, the Turkish village is not a financial success. There is no more dejected face on the fair grounds than Robert Levi. Business is dull. It is very dull. No money comes in and bids goes out.

There came near being a physical conflict between about 100 of the gaudy Columbian guards and the gatekeepers at the sixty-third street entrance. The passes for the guards are not ready, and by an order of the bureau of admission the temporary passes issued on May 1 were suspended. The guards were not provided with any other means for getting into the grounds except their uniforms and badges, and when they sought admission at the ticket gates were refused to let them in without a ticket or pass of some sort. There was quite an argument, and about 100 guards demanded admission.

The ticket takers refused to let them in, and the guards bodily pushed their way through the gates. The ticket takers say they have been instructed to admit no one without a ticket or pass, Guards claim that they need no other tickets than their uniform.

Nine Thousand Rooms to Let.

There has been published under the auspices of the auxiliary bureau of public comfort a directory showing the rooms in the north, west and south sides between the city during the World's fair period. The list is a comprehensive one, covering the north, west and south sides between the boundaries of Fullerton and Fraser avenues, and the southern boundary of the city, and shows some 9,000 rooms, outside of hotels, which are available for the use of transient visitors.

Exhibits from foreign countries are still being received in great numbers at the fair. In one day the customs officers handled $100,000 worth of goods from England, France, Italy and Spain. Nearly all of the exhibits received now is in small packages and of great value, such as works of jewelry and pictures One of the consignments from France was the big bronze statue of Washington which is to be set up in the main rotunda of the Fine Arts building. Domestic exhibits are also being received in large quantities, and the installation in buildings is being pushed with the utmost vigor.

The Louisiana State commission is greatly distressed over the unavoidable delay in furnishing the interior of its building. The cars containing furniture and displays have not only been lost on the railroads, but several have been broken open by thieves and much property stolen or destroyed. A few of the shipments from New Orleans, however, have arrived and are being put in place.

The Belgian department has received a big cheval glass from the factory of Antwerp. It is a monster affair, and is an account of its extreme purity and size is valued at about $750. It is oval in shape and is mounted on a heavy black frame with golden flood to accomplish, the whole bordered with scarlet fringe, the combination forming the Belgian colors. The glass will occupy a position in the north wall of the department in the Liberal arts building.

THE BROOKLYN HANDICAP.

The Great Racing Horses Will Race For the Richest Purse In Years.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Next Monday afternoon at the Gravesend track will be run the Brooklyn handicap. It will be the fifth annual handicap of the Brooklyn Jockey club, and the purses will be the richest ever offered.

This year it is said the winner will be worth $18,000 to the winner, and to get the place, and $1,000 will go to the third horse. The next richest Brooklyn was Judge Morrow's of a year ago. It was worth $17,750 then.

The poorest was the first one. It was won by Ivy Monopole and was worth $5,850. It is hopeful if a better field of horses ever faced the starter for this event than the one which will do battle for riches and fleety next Monday. It now looks as if the field will be narrowed down to 10 starters. Only the best horses entered will go to the post.

The 10 are the greatest stake horses in the country, enough to put up a struggle that will add much to the turf history of the world.

THE ARCHBISHOP LOST THE LAND.

The Conditions of a Will Neglected For Twenty-Nine Years.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Archbishop Corrigan has been defeated by the general term of the supreme court in his claim to the title of 30 lots in One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street near Boston road. The land was deeded to Archbishop Hughes on Sept. 16, 1862, by Mrs. Mary McDonough Davy for a nominal consideration.

The deed contained a condition that it was to be void unless the ground was consecrated and a church was erected on it "within reasonable time." This condition has never been fulfilled, and Mary E. Upington, a grandniece of Mrs. Davy, brought a suit to recover the property.

The Campania Won.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The new Cunard steamship Campania achieved a great triumph by smashing the eastward ocean record between this port and Queenstown, the best the record of 5 days 19 hours and 27 minutes, made by the Inman line steamship City of New York, now the American liner New York. The time of the Campania's trip was 5 days 17 hours and 42 minutes. The American liner Paris left her dock in the North river at 9:23 a. m. on the same day. The Paris was bound for Southampton. From the fact that the two vessels left at about the same time it was known that the steamships would race across.

He will rest until Sunday when he will take part in a pontifical mass and will also bless the statue of St. Michael, the patron saint of the monastery. In the evening he will celebrate pontifical vespers. On Monday he will go to Hoboken and take part in Father Corrigan's dinner and reception.

Mobbed by 4,000 Strikers.

VIENNA, May 13.—After a meeting of 4,000 striking skin dressers the whole audience, men and women, marched to Blenchin's factory, where they broke the windows and tried to force the doors. The police were unable to disperse the mob. A company of infantry was called and after a stern fight the soldiers drove off the strikers. Two men were wounded in the fight.

Pleased With the Messengers.

CAIRO, Ills., May 13.—The Mobile and Ohio officials decline to say what amount was secured by the robbers at Laketon Tank, but assert that the loss is only about $1,000. They are much pleased with Messenger S. H. Ray, who managed to secrete the larger portion of the money and valuables in the car before the robbers gained entrance.

What It Cost the Government.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Judge Lacombs, in the United States circuit court, awarded $10,100 to the owners and lessees of the property at Bowling Green, which the government intended to use as a site for a new custom house. The condemnation proceedings were discontinued and the government had to pay all the costs of the suit.

May Destitute Russian Jews Landed.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The 1,000 immigrants who were brought by the steamship Dania were landed on Ellis Island. They were mostly Russian Jews. Commissioner Senner said that many of the passengers were absolutely destitute, and it is quite likely that a number of them will be returned by the Dania.

THE SEA GIRT REPUBLIC

Hawaiians Are Divided and the Situation Is Doubtful.

ISLANDERS WANT TO SEE BLOUNT.

Should He Make the Tour He Would Be Received With Royal Ceremonies—The British Keep a Cruiser Near—Island Islanders Are Monarchists.

HONOLULU, May 13.—The Hawaiian republic's position has not been materially promoted during the past week. The projectors say they have concluded it is best to wait and see what the United States intends to do. The Spreckels' boom for a republic has also apparently come to a standstill. A meeting of planters was held April 25, at which Spreckels explained his ideas in detail and offered for adoption a communication to president Cleveland opposing annexation because of the difficulties it would place in the way of obtaining the cheap labor necessary in plantation work. The communication was referred to a committee, and at a meeting on April 27 was shelved. Some of the planters present declared themselves ready to concede anything to secure annexation.

A convention of the Hawaiian Patriotic league, which was probably the first of the kind ever held on the islands, assembled May 1, there being about 50 delegates present from all the islands. Joseph Nawahi presided, assisted by John A. Cummins, honorary president. The object of the convention was to frame a memorial to Commissioner Blount which should be expressive of the natives' wishes in the matter of government. President Nawahi made a patriotic speech, in the course of which he said although a few Hawaiians were in favor of annexation, yet God is merciful enough to bring the erring ones into the fold again.

"We have no home," he said, "but Hawaii. We have no right to barter away the country which we are building up for our children."

Natives Favor Monarchy.

Petitions from country districts for the perpetuation of the monarchy, opposing annexation, for the perpetuation of independence and to continue the Hawaiian flag as the flag of Hawaii was presented, and a committee was appointed to draw up in secret session a resolution to the United States embodying the memorial was presented to Mr. Blount May 2.

A delegation from the Maui Annexation club called on Mr. Blount May 1 to assure him that the annexation sentiment was growing in favor among the natives as well as the foreigners on the Island of Maui. When the commissioner asked if, in the event of annexation, the natives would expect to become voters, the chairman replied in the affirmative. The advisory council, headed by Queen Dowager Damon, also called on Commissioner Blount a few days ago.

Replying to their address he said: "I came here to examine into the state of the country and must therefore confine myself to my duties. I have of necessity interviewed a great many people and have accumulated a large quantity of material, but as yet have not gone very deeply into statistics and figures connected with the island. This, however, I intend to accomplish later on. The shortness of time at my disposal has necessitated my meeting individuals as I can arrange for them. In order that I must husband my time and condense my work."

Other Islands Want to Be Visited.

The natives of the other islands are exceedingly desirous that the commissioner should pay visits to them, and it is not to be questioned that his reception by them would exceed that given any personage except the queen. Commissioner Blount at different times has expressed different ideas as to the trip.

To a member of the supreme bench he said a few days ago:

"I do not want to go to the other islands. I have taken considerable responsibility upon myself in lowering the American flag, and I want to remain here so that I could order troops ashore in case of any trouble."

The situation here may be summed up in this way: The Provisional government believes itself strong enough to quell any internal disturbance and maintain itself in authority. The minister of finance states that the feeling on the government are ample. The annexation sentiment is quietly strengthening, but the delay in the settlement of the question is having a telling effect on business interests that desire to expand or invite capital.

British Minister Wodehouse has written his government asking that the cruiser Hyacinthe remain on this station until the pending political troubles are settled.

Fire In an Armory.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 13.—A fire in the armory of Company B, Second regiment, R. I. M., ruined the property of the company. Explosions of cartridges greatly scared the firemen, but no one was injured.

McGlynn Expected at Rome.

ROME, May 12.—The Rev. Father Edward McGlynn, who was recently restored to his priestly functions by Papal Delegate Satolli, is expected daily in Rome.

THE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD.

The last day of the trial of James H. Pigos, the Brooklyn official, was made exciting by several altercations.

Ignatius Donelly, president of the Minnesota alliance, has demanded a special session of the state legislature to remedy the farmers' elevator bill.

The New York tax commissioners are holding the examination into the assessment on Gould's personal property in secret.

Representatives of an English pottery firm were arrested for selling exhibits at the World's fair.

Edward O. Leech, director at the mint at Washington, resigned.

Two men were hanged in Sherman, Tex., and the widow of the man they had murdered saw the execution.

Train robbers near Laketon, Ky., held up a train, blew up the express car with dynamite and secured about $1,000.

A cyclone near Pinckey, Mich., injured several persons and much live stock.

By the breaking of a boom 10,000,000 feet of logs were swept out into Georgian bay, Lake Michigan.

A Chicago firm have begun suit against the Cordage company to recover a lot of hemp and twine.

Charles and George Hogermann, brothers, of Flatbush quarreled over the division of their father's property, and George is now under arrest charged with using a pistol and knife on Henry.

BURNED THE TABERNACLE.

The Watchmen Thought It Stood on Land Which He Owned.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 13.—The Methodist tabernacle in Scranton has been twice destroyed by fire within three years, and each time the edifice was nearly ready for dedication. This twice entailed a loss of $200,000. The first fire was thought to be accidental, but the second looked very much like incendiarism. The best of detectives were employed to catch the firebug.

At last Peter Humbach, the watchman at the church while it was being built, has confessed to Detective O'Brien of this city that he was the incendiary. The first time he set fire to the church himself. The second time he hired another man to do it. Humbach had a delusion that the church was being built on ground that was bequeathed to him by an uncle in Cincinnati.

Burned In the Barn.

OSWEGO, N. Y., May 13.—Willis Scully and Thomas Lavere, each 3 years of age, locked themselves in a barn to play. Shortly afterward Mrs. Scully heard their screams, and on rushing to the barn found it in flames. The frantic mother rushed to the barn door, but could not open it. Seeing a pole in the barn she attempted to tear off the boards with her fingers, but the flames drove her away, and the cries of the children ceased. They were burned beyond recognition. Mrs. Scully house was also destroyed. It is supposed the children started to build a bonfire on the barn floor.

Some Treasury Appointments.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Secretary Carlisle has appointed J. J. Golden of New York immigrant inspector at Ellis Island, N. Y., and James Nolan of Pennsylvania, a special inspector of customs.

FOR SMALL BOYS AND GIRLS.

Kilts, Blouses and Reefers, Empire Frocks, Gulpees and Round Waists.

Very attractive are the picturesque yet simple styles in wraps and frocks provided for very little folks this season. Our cut shows two characteristic models. The little boy's suit is of brown velvet, with frilled collar and cuffs of fawn silk. The little girl's coat is of rich white silk, with a pelerine of fine lace and feather trimming round the neck. A pretty frock for a little girl of this age is of soft white silk embroidered with a tiny sprig. Its short empire skirt is confined by a band of silk entwined which also heads a deep flounce of silk embroidery round the skirt. Still more effective frock for the same small miss is of white cashmere. The yoke is tucked and feather stitched. Around the skirt and sleeves are two rows of white satin ribbon. A scarf of white embroidered silk is brought from the shoulders crossed, in front and tied at the back.

All the new dresses, whether for little ones of 3 or older girls in their teens, are much fuller than they have been. Jacket and blouse effects are exceedingly popular. For girls of from 6 to 10 years guimpe dresses remain popular, but little ones under 6 wear one piece dresses, with yokes and sleeves of white lawn. These are made in Mother Hubbard fashion, the dress falling from a round yoke of white embroidery, with wide sashes at the back coming from the side forms. A wide ruffle of the material of the dress is frequently placed below the yoke. Dresses for little girls under 4 years are made two inches shorter than has been the fashion.

Boys of 3 and 4 years are put into kilt skirts with a full blouse, over which may be worn an Eton jacket. Trilled cottons in narrow stripes of white, with brown, pink, tan or blue, make good wash suits. It should be added, however, that many little fellows are put into knee breeches as soon as their third or fourth year. Girls of this age wear the skirt reaching just to the knee.

Little reefer jackets will be much worn by both girls and boys and are especially attractive over white dresses. The girls' reefers are made elaborate, with a triple cape over the shoulders.

Moires and Brocades.

Old fashioned moires are coming in again, watered exactly as they used to be some 30 years ago. They display real lace to the best advantage and are admirable in black or white. The mirroire velvet, trilled from golden brown to pale pink or pale blue, is found to be a valuable adjunct in dressmaking. The newest brocades represent either waves or clouds, and nothing could well be more beautiful than these undulations shot in crevette and pink, with the waved outlines marked by a line of contrasting color. Rainbow silks will be much worn, and in this luxurious age we are lining our coats with pink shading into blue and other rainbow devices.

A HIPPOMETER.

It Measures the Distance Traveled by a Horse With Varying Pace.

The instrument depicted is the invention of Captain Buisson of the French cavalry. It is described as follows by The Jewelers' Circular, to which journal thanks are due for the cuts here presented.

INSIDE AND OUTSIDE VIEW OF THE HIPPOMETER.

The hippometer is based on the same principle as the pedometer, with the difference that in the former the propelling hammer extends by itself to an amplitude proportionate with the pace and according to the length of the horse's steps. The instrument being regulated, the distance covered will be indicated on a dial with two series of divisions, one for fractions and the other for the total. In the hippometer, as in the pedometer, the acting power is a hammer (A, Fig. 1), mounted on an oscillating lever and acting through its alternate oscillations by means of a click with a spring, B, on a ratchet wheel with fine teeth, which is caught by a counter click also provided with a spring, B, and constantly brought back to a fixed position by a large spring, R. This ratchet wheel sets on a gearing that conveys the motion to one or several registering hands which turn round dials showing well calculated divisions.

The oscillations of the hippometer's hammer extend more or less according to the pace of the horse; consequently the hammer causes the ratchet wheel to turn more or less. For the slow pace the hammer extends from the point 1 at the end of the screw V to a stop finger, D, whereas for the trotting pace it moves from 1 to 2 near the end of the other screw, V1, while the finger D retreats in pivoting toward D1 to allow the lever of the hammer A to pass. The differences between the amplitudes reached by the hammer are obtained as follows: On the lever of the hammer A is fixed a console, C, the table of which has on the left side a bevel whose top edge is perpendicular with the lever. This console meets the slanting base of the finger, which can only be moved through the efforts resulting from the trotting pace. Beside the finger, which turns around, an axis perpendicular to its plane of rotation may be moved laterally toward the left, through a determined measure. A stumbling pin, G, prevents the finger from moving toward the right. This finger is always brought back to rest against the pin by means of a spring, R, properly regulated and acting on the curved end of the finger.

The slow pace does not cause the hammer to go beyond the movable obstacle D, whereas the trotting pace gives it a sufficient impulsion to move it. In the first case the amplitude is reduced; in the second it is extended. These two amplitudes are transmitted through the ratchet wheel to the hands which move around the dials.

Yet in order that indications should be accurate a horse with a varying pace must be taken into account. To that effect the screws V and V1, which can be moved separately, are used to regulate each one of those amplitudes resulting from the slow pace and the trotting pace.

The hippometer is placed on the left side of the horse's withers (Fig. 2). The hammer is turned toward the back to allow the mechanism to act freely. It is inclosed in a leather case held by a band fixed over the withers, and it is held in a close contact with the withers by means of a strap connected with the middle girth. For the oscillations of the hammer it is sufficient to press a spring placed outside through the case. The hands may be easily brought back to zero.

How to Prevent Rust.

A simple but effective and inexpensive preventive of rust to which attention is called in The Industrial World is calcium chloride, which has an affinity for moisture. The arrangement devised for preventing rust upon fine cutlery and edge tools and employed by dealers, physicians and others consists of a bottle with a glass funnel, which is placed in the case with the goods, and the funnel partly filled with lumps of calcium chloride, every trace of moisture being speedily absorbed. The arrangement of the bottle and funnel permits the liquefied portion of the calcium chloride to trickle from the funnel into the bottle drop by drop, leaving the salt exposed, and in this way it continues active until it entirely dissolves.

Aluminium Files.

A very radical advance has been made in files by a mixture of a small portion of aluminium with the file steel. No one as yet has been able to explain the cause, but The Age of Steel says the fact remains unquestioned that the aluminium does make quite a pronounced change in the character of the steel.

In the first place, it renders the steel softer when the file is cut, so that the teeth are much cleaner and more evenly cut than with the regular file, and on the other hand when the file is hardened it gives a toughness and fineness unknown before, so that the result is a file that will do more work and with less clogging up than the ordinary file. It has been thoroughly tested and has given great satisfaction.

How the Ancients Engraved Gems.

The art of gem engraving is a very ancient one, and it is a curious fact that the tools used in this work have changed less than any others known except perhaps the potter's wheel. In a lecture delivered at the Metropolitan museum in New York Professor Rood, in tracing the history of the art from the early Egyptians, through the Assyrians to the latter Greeks and Romans, stated that the bowstring drill and the disk as used in very early times did not differ materially from the tools in use at the present day, while the corundum point was generally used for handwork.

FAIR SIDE SHOWS.
Special Attractions in the Midway Plaisance.

WHAT IS TO BE SEEN THERE

Queer People of the World and Pretty Women from Foreign Countries—Lady Aberdeen's Irish Village—The Ferris Wheel—The Plaisance Full of Curiosities and Wonderful Buildings.

CHICAGO'S FAIR, May 11.—[Special.]—The managers of the exposition discovered very early that they would be compelled to find a place outside the grounds of the fair proper for the many special attractions and curiosities which were pouring in from the four quarters of the earth. They decided to make the Midway plaisance this gathering place of all these novelties, and to permit the concessionaries to charge gate fees there—for the plaisance has become a series of side-shows. It is still an open question with many visitors whether the principal circus, the exposition proper, or the side-show is most interesting. For one who likes to look upon the queer people of the world, their peculiar costumes, customs and amusements, the plaisance is a favored spot. If one likes to note the art with which our innocent friends from the Orient and from Africa extract the nimble quarter from the pockets of Americans, he should pass a day or two along the single thoroughfare bisected by the aggregation of side-shows. He will himself be called upon to drop many a good dollar in the slot before he has seen one-half the curiosities, but he will have had fun enough to repay him for his day and his time.

As yet the plaisance is rather backward. Only a few of its attractions are entirely ready for the public. So far a majority of the visitors to this motley spot, this tawdry international alley, are men who like a lark and whose curiosity has been roused by tales of the dancing girls, hoari and all-world beauties to be found in the various villages and halls. It is well to say that the man who goes to the plaisance hoping to see something "racy" because improper or vulgar will be very much disappointed. No such displays or performances are to be found there. Pretty women in large numbers there are, and many of them dance in the music halls, but there is no phase of their efforts which one would be unwilling to take his wife or daughter to see. In truth, the dancing girl shows is rather tame in every way.

Much more interesting are the forty young women who appear in what is generally known as the international beauty show. Technically the affair is called a display of costumes, the scheme being to show visitors the apparel worn by women in all times and all countries. If the women chosen to perform this graceful task should chance to be pretty enough to make their assembled beauty an exhibition of the comeliness of the women of all the world, all the stronger would be the attraction. This clever scheme was worked up by some young newspaper man, and they visited Europe, Asia and Africa in search of beauties and costumes. Their efforts were successful, and they returned to Chicago with a carload of women who are really worth a day's travel to see. They are not only handsome women of many races and types, but they are for the most part modest and gracious, and apart from any interest which attaches to their presence, the costumes which they wear make an exhibit worthy the study of man or woman.

Though not intended as a beauty show the Irish village presents an array of winsome lassies who are already creating somewhat of a sensation along the plaisance. Lady Aberdeen set up this village, which is housed in a lath-and-plaster model of the ancient Donegal castle, famous in song and story. Her intention was to promote the sale of Irish linens and laces, and thus help in some measure the prosperity of the people of the Emerald Isle. To add to the attractiveness of the exhibit she brought over seventeen Irish maidens who are as pretty as pictures, and will smash the hearts of half the young Irishmen in America before the summer is over. These seventeen Irish lassies are not only pretty and winsome, but they are famous for their soft fingers and domestic skill. Many in the lot can crack lace maker of Limerick. Of all the lacemakers that Limerick boasts Ellis Murphy is conceded to be the best and fairest. Local poets have sung her praises and London pictorials have printed her picture. Kate Berry, Maria Connelly and Johannah Dougherty come from the Munster dairy school, and their business it is to dole out to visitors dainty "pats" of butter that melts like honey in the mouth. Besides the butter and lace makers there are Irish lassies who spin, embroider and knit and others who sell blackthorn sticks, shamrocks from the old dirt, and various articles carved out of bog oak. The Irish girls live in the castle, and several million Americans will call to see them before the summer is over.

The Austrian village is likely to prove one of the most attractive features of the fair. Central figures among the many quaint structures here, designed to show life in Hungary and Bohemia, will be the Tyrolese in their picturesque costumes and forty-two Vienna coffee girls selected for their beauty to serve customers in the genuine Vienna cafes. The cafe girls of Vienna are noted all over the world for their personal charms. Several of them have fascinated traveling counts and barons and the sons of rich Americans and contracted thereby ambitious marriages. Not all of the forty-two Vienna belles are here yet, but those who have arrived look as if they might be what their manager claims for them, the pick of the lot. There are more than thirty buildings in the Austrian village alone, and the German village has quite as many.

As I have said, the plaisance is not complete yet. While the terms of their contracts required the concessionaries to be in readiness for the public May 1st, a majority of them are now opening their gates. They are pretty shrewd people, these managers of the side-shows. Many of them had experience at the fair of 1892 ago. They knew the big fair itself would not be perfect May 1st, and that during this month the crowds would not be very large. Hence there was no special reason why they should exert themselves. In time they expect to begin reaping the rich harvest of American money which brought them hither.

There are so many novelties and curiosities here that at a first visit one is almost overcome by them. Imagine a section of ground a mile long and 200 yards wide, enclosed by a high board fence, and this space subdivided by forty minor enclosures, each containing a native village from some far-away land or some strange and extraordinary mechanical device or process. Right in the center of this cosmopolitan thoroughfare, along which one may hear a score of languages spoken, stands a structure which is without doubt to this exposition what the Eiffel tower was to the Paris show. Doubtless you have all read descriptions and seen pictures of this revolving monster. You have noted the figures which were given to help you to a conception of its immensity. But descriptions, pictures and dimensions all fail of their purpose. The only way in which one may comprehend the vastness, the almost weird wonderfulness of this construction, is to see it. Overshadowing everything else in that part of the World's fair region, it grows and grows as one approaches nearer. Finally it appalls and overwhelms. One wonders at first how any man could have been crazy enough to put up such a monster, or how he found the capital with which to do it. Evidently the Chicago papers took the same view of the enterprise, for it is not long since they were writing up Ferris as a man who had wheels in his head.

But Mr. Ferris isn't crazy, any more than Mr. Eiffel was crazy when he built his great tower. Ferris appears to be an accomplished engineer, and when his wonderful structure is completed, which will be in a couple of weeks, he may have the laugh on the doubters and sneerers who have made sport of him. I have noticed that even those people who pretend to think this daring engineer a little crazy say they wouldn't miss a ride on his wheel if it were to cost them $10 instead of one or two. The genesis of this great wheel may be found at Atlantic City and other eastern summer resorts. There the horizontal merry-go-rounds, which charged a nickel a ride, earned fortunes for their owners. Some one changed the form and stood the merry-go-round vertically, and made another fortune out of the nickels which dropped into his box. These outside wheels are sixty or seventy feet high, and even at the lowest figures the attitude is so great that women and even men shudder at the thought of riding round it, though finally fascinated into doing so. The World's fair vertical merry-go-round carries one not sixty or seventy but 250 feet from earth. Each of the thirty-six cars is nearly as big as a Pullman sleeping coach and will carry sixty passengers. Imagine if you can the spectacle this mammoth structure will make revolving through the air day and night, during the day visible fifteen miles away, and at night to be seen forty miles as a huge moving circle of electric lights.

Of course a monster like this will catch the crowds. It is not as tall as the Eiffel tower was, but it has life and motion, which the tower had not. From the sightseeing standpoint the wheel is a greater marvel than the tower. It is the engineering wonder of this fair, and in a month it will be talk of the country. Great numbers of people may not be willing to pay $2 each for a ride upon it, but as long as he has it in his power to take as many passengers as his cars are ordinarily carried by a half dozen railway trains together, all "well loaded, Mr. Ferris will probably be able to carry the people at $1 a head, or even 50 cents, and still get rich.

The marvelous plaisance is full of such curiosities. One may ride at the speed of 100 miles an hour, toboggan on real snow or skate on real ice in July, ascend the tower of Babel, make a tour of the world and spend all his money in a week. Is it not a great place?

Dahomey Amazons.

CHICAGO, May 11.—People whose knowledge of Amazons is confined to the shapely maidens who march and wheel in the glitter of the footlights, will probably gaze in distrust at the genuine article, twenty of whom, female warriors of the army of Dahomey are at the Dahomey village. Several shades darker than the shades of Erebus, their appearance is repellant in the extreme. Their conversation was rendered doubly hideous by scars and lines, some self-inflicted, some received in battles and others being "brands" to distinguish families. Tall and heavily built, they are easily the superiors of the men in the party. Some of the latter are said to be soldiers as well, but they don't look it. There is nothing military or suggestive of the tented field about the black, woolly little men, while they jabber in their native tongue.

The Palette club has completed the hanging of its pictures in the Illinois building, and will shortly have a hideous local record, as it is called, of the pictures on exhibition. The record is at present in the hands of the printers and will be profusely illustrated.

THE SEWERAGE SYSTEM.

PROPOSED FOR THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD.

Route Illustrated by Map Showing also Location of Mains and Laterals —Detailed Statement of Cost, and Other Matter of Interest.

In accordance with the recommendation in report of the Finance Committee adopted by the Common Council at a meeting held April 4, viz.: that the Committee on Water and Sewerage prepare a map showing the portion of the city proposed to be sewered, with the location of the mains and laterals, said map to be published in the newspapers, if possible, with full explanation, the Committee on Water and Sewerage have prepared said map, which we publish today in a supplement.

On the map, sewers of 8 inches diameter are shown by light red lines; more than that diameter by heavier lines of the same color.

At Berckman and East Front streets an 8 inch pipe sewer commences at a depth of about 5 feet below the surface and runs on a grade of 1 in 800 to Richmond street, where it is about 15½ feet below the surface and where it is joined by an 18 inch pipe running West 1,000 feet. The line turns into Richmond street and continues on the same grade to Second street: at this point the pipe is enlarged to 10 inches, and runs along Richmond street on a grade of 1 in 333 to Broadway: at Putnam avenue a junction is made with an 8 inch sewer commencing at La Grande and Woodland avenues and running along Woodland and Putnam avenues on grades of 1 in 100 to 180, 1 in 130, and 1 in 200 to place of junction at Richmond street: these sewers will receive the drainage from the district lying between Washington street and the Eastern limit of the city, including all of Netherwood. North of Broadway: it is designed for a population of 3677, allowing 100 gallons per capita per 24 hours: at Richmond street and Broadway a junction is made with an 8 inch sewer starting at Woodland avenue and Highland place and running along Woodland avenue and Broadway on grades of 1 in 80, 1 in 110 and 1 in 200 to Richmond street: this sewer will provide for Netherwood South of Broadway and of the district East of Kensington avenue and North of Prospect avenue and will accommodate a population of 5767 at 100 gallons per capita per 24 hours.

At Broadway and Richmond street the sewer is about five feet below the surface. At these changes to a 12 inch pipe and runs along Broadway on a grade of 1 in 250 to Ninth street, where it is 10 feet below the surface. It then turns into Ninth street and continues on same diameter and same grade to Park avenue, where it is about 11 feet below the surface; laterals from Franklin place, Broadway from the west, First, Second and Third places, Crescent avenue and Park avenue are taken on the route as shown on the map; the pipe then increases to 15 inches and on a grade of 1 in 600 runs on East Ninth street to Central avenue, thence to West Eighth street, thence along Eighth street to Plainfield avenue, and thence to West Seventh street, at which point it is 14 feet below the surface; and an 8-inch sewer, starting at Crescent avenue and running along Seventh street, joins the main sewer at this point. The district between Sixth street and Stelle avenue is drained by laterals running to these sewers. At Plainfield avenue and Seventh street the sewer is increased to 18 inches diameter and runs along West Seventh street on a grade of 1 in 800 to Grant avenue, where it is about 13 feet below the surface; it continues on same grade and same size of pipe to South Second street, where it is 9¼ feet below the surface.

Laterals are shown on several streets and avenues south of the railroad. These all converge to the intersection of Plainfield avenue and South Second street and complete the system as projected south of the railroad. The main sewer on Grant avenue is designed for a population of 25,540, allowing 100 gallons per capita per 24 hours.

At 100 feet east of Washington street and Second street an 8-inch sewer commences at about 8 feet below the surface and runs west along Second street on a grade of 1 in 150 to Peace street, where it is 9 2-5 feet below the surface. It then increases to 10 inches and continues along Second street on a grade of 1 in 266 to Plainfield avenue and South Second street, at which point it is about 12 feet below the surface. It then increases to 12 inches diameter and runs on South Second street on a grade of 1 in 220 to Grant avenue, where it is 9¾ feet below the surface, and is joined by the south main sewer. Lateral sewers from Sandford avenue to Plainfield avenue and from Front street and Third street are received, as shown on the map. The main sewer on Second street, from Plainfield avenue to Grant avenue, is designed for a population of 11,000, allowing 100 gallons per capita per 24 hours.

At Grant avenue and South Second street the sewer enlarges to 24 inches and runs along to South Second street on a grade of one in 1,000 to the city limits. This diameter pipe when running full on the given grade, will discharge 4,400,000 gallons in 24 hours, which would allow 100 gallons per capita for a population of 44,000.

Manholes, allowing entrance for examination, will be placed at all intersections of streets, and in case of very long blocks at intervals of 300 to 400 feet.

No action towards the location of filter beds has been taken, nor can be until the Common Council shall be petitioned in the requisite amount of assessed valuation to construct the proposed system.

It will be found on careful examination of the map that the projected system provides for the most populous portion of the city and especially for all that is in immediate need of such service; it must be particularly understood that the pipes are laid on such grades that as fast as extensions are called for for they can be made in accordance with the general system.

It is the aim of the Common Council to provide the city with a system of sewerage which will combine the greatest immediate service with excellence and economy of construction, and in as close accordance with the recommendations of the Citizens Committee as practicable.

Estimated cost of system laid complete as shown on map:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 59,060 ft. 8 in. pipe at | .65 equals | $38,384.50 |

EPWORTH LEAGUE ANNIVERSARY.

Held in the Methodist Episcopal Church Last Evening.

The Epworth League anniversary held in the M. E. church last night was a success. In the absence of the president, Mr. J. R. Joy, Mr. Ritteshouse, the first vice president, presided. The program consisted of several hymns, lead by a choir of young people, a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Barnes, a short speech by Mr. Ritteshouse, a solo by Mr. Hood, and an address by Mr. Henry Knight, formerly of Brooklyn, but now a Jerseyman. Mr. Knight displayed considerable oratorical power. His address was to the point that, after all, it is the little things that count in this life. He told how he himself, a poor, hard treated boy, had been helped by the kind act of a fellow boy.

FORGED A CHECK.

William Meeker Arrested and Held for the Grand Jury.

Saturday William Meeker called at both the National Banks and tried to get a check for $35 cashed, bearing the signature of Charles P. Rice. The cashiers discovering that the check was a forgery, refused to cash it, and notified Chief Grant of the matter. The police were unable to find Meeker as he had disappeared from town.

Meeker was employed by Mr. Rice, who is a contractor. Saturday Night Mr. Rice found Meeker sleeping in his barn. He turned him over to the police, who locked him up. This morning when arraigned in court he pleaded guilty and was held for the Grand Jury.

OVER A CROWBAR.

A Free Fight Among the Italians This Morning.

There was a free fight this morning among the Italians at work on the Somerset street railway. Two of the men got into a wrangle over the possession of a crowbar and finally came to blows. They got out of the excavation and commenced fighting on the sidewalk. This seemed to be the signal for a free fight and the sons of Italy took the handles from their picks and with these as weapons rushed to the scene. For a time it looked as if several broken heads would be the result. They were finally prevailed upon to return to work.

Frightened by an Electric Car.

About 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon a horse driven by Mr. N. W. French became frightened at a street car at the corner of Front and Somerset streets, and sprang to one side, breaking one of the shafts. A runaway was averted by Wm. Stewart, who caught the horse by the head and held on until the animal was stopped.

CONFIRMATION AT GRACE CHURCH.

Bishop Scarborough Present at Yesterday's Services.

Bishop Scarborough was at Grace church yesterday morning. He was present at the early celebration at 7.30 o'clock and at the eleven o'clock service, at which nineteen persons were confirmed.

The Bishop preached a very appropriate sermon on the Ascension of Jesus, yesterday being the first Sunday after Ascension. He took for his text: "Two men stood by them in white apparel; which also said: ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." —Acts 1:11.

At the conclusion of the sermon the confirmation took place, then the Bishop addressed the candidates very impressively.

The collection was for the benefit of the missions of the diocese.

In the afternoon Bishop Scarborough went to the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Evons, and in the evening to the Church of Our Saviour, Netherwood, where eight persons were confirmed. The Rev. Mr. Rodman accompanied the Bishop to Netherwood.

BREVITIES.

—The members of Engine Co. No. 2 will meet in Gazelle's parlor to morrow night.

—On Decoration Day St. Mary's parish will hold a festival in the hall of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum.

—The Rev. Chas. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will preach to the Grand Army men Sunday, May 28.

—A photograph of the new truck of Zephyr Hook and Ladder Co. will be taken Tuesday afternoon, May 30, from in front of the Crescent avenue church.

—A young man named Hess, while riding a bicycle yesterday afternoon, attempted to turn down Church street from Front, when the wheel broke throwing him to the ground. He narrowly escaped striking his head on the curving.

—Mr. J. C. Allen says the farmers in this section of New Jersey all agree that this is to be a great fruit year. Reports from elsewhere all tend to confirm this report. Two years ago, there was so much fruit it was sold for almost nothing. Then the demand for fruit jars exceeded the supply and very high prices were paid. To help all who wish to save money Mr. Allen has secured a large number of fruit jars which he will sell as advertised elsewhere.

PERSONAL.

Miss May Cain of Summit is the guest of her uncle, Mr. B. R. Cain of Grandview avenue.

Yesterday a little boy came to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Schorb of Grove street.

Mr. William Kiely, who has been for seven years in the employ of Mr. J. M. Harper, of this city, has secured a position with a New York printing and stationery firm in which Mr. I. L. Miller of this city and Mr. Corey of Dunellen are interested.

Two Princeton students, Walter Darly and John Bowman, of this city, walked from Princeton to Bound Brook, a distance of 20 miles, last Saturday. From Bound Brook they came home on the train. They returned to college this morning, after spending Sunday with their parents.

Italians Have a Runaway.

Four Italians came to Plainfield from Scotch Plains on Saturday afternoon, to get their weekly rations. On the way back the horse became frightened at the corner of Fence street by an electric car, and ran away. At the corner of Washington street the wagon collided with a tree, throwing the Italians out on the pavement. The horse broke loose from the wagon. One of the men was knocked insensible. The front axle of the wagon was badly bent.

OUR FIRST LOCOMOTIVE

THE JOHN BULL IS NOW AT CHICAGO.

It is Only 63 Years Old, but When Compared with a Modern Locomotive its Age Seems Double. It Cost a Little Over $4,000 to Build.

The John Bull, said to be the first locomotive ever used in this country, left New York April 17th with its two old fashioned passenger coaches en route to Chicago, where all three will be exhibited at the World's fair.

One of these coaches was drawn by John Bull many years ago, and some of the noted men of the century have occupied its seats. On its way to Chicago the train will make frequent stops to afford the people who will not be able to get to the fair an opportunity of inspecting it.

The John Bull was constructed in England in 1829 by Robert Stephenson. It was built for the Camden and Amboy Railroad company and cost £2808 15s. 9d., a little over $4,000. The machine was shipped on the packet Allegheny early in 1831. The cautious capitalists constructed a stretch of track three-quarters of a mile long at Bordentown, N. J., and thoroughly tested the speed of the engine and its power before extending the track from Bordentown to Camden and retiring the old stage coaches.

The first trial trip was made on Sept. 15, 1831, but it was not until Nov. 13 that the first public trial trip took place. Isaac Dripps was the engineer, Benjamin Higgins fireman and R. L. Stevens conductor.

Dripps and Samuel R. Dougherty, who succeeded him, both octogenarians, were present at Bordentown on Nov. 13, 1882, when the Pennsylvania Railroad company erected a monument at the spot where the John Bull was first placed on the rails. Dougherty is still living at Jersey City.

It was not until 1833 that the road was completed between Camden and Bordentown and the John Bull began to draw trains daily. Its services were not dispensed with until 1866. It was then given a place of honor in the National museum. The Pennsylvania Railroad company, by leasing the Camden and Amboy road, obtained control of the veteran engine and has put it in shape for the World's fair.

PLAINFIELD ATHLETIC CLUB.

A Social and Dance at Their Hall Saturday Night.

The Plainfield Athletic Club gave a social and dance at its hall on West Front street last Saturday night, the proceeds to help swell the club fund. There was a large number present.

The reception committee received and took charge of the guests in a pleasing and entertaining manner. The reception room was under the management of President Dixon with Messers. W. E. Kiely, H. Drier, J. Johnson, W. Campbell and W. Dennick as assistants. The reception committee consisted of J. Wagner, F. Boden, T. LaRue and G. McComas.

To-morrow the members of the club will go in a body to Elizabeth to visit the Neptune Club of that place.

THE JOHN BULL IS NOW AT CHICAGO.

It is Only 63 Years Old, but When Compared with a Modern Locomotive its Age Seems Double. It Cost a Little Over $4,000 to Build.

The John Bull, said to be the first locomotive ever used in this country, left New York April 17th with its two old fashioned passenger coaches en route to Chicago, where all three will be exhibited at the World's fair.

One of these coaches was drawn by John Bull many years ago, and some of the noted men of the century have occupied its seats. On its way to Chicago the train will make frequent stops to afford the people who will not be able to get to the fair an opportunity of inspecting it.

The John Bull was constructed in England in 1829 by Robert Stephenson. It was built for the Camden and Amboy Railroad company and cost £2808 15s. 9d., a little over $4,000. The machine was shipped on the packet Allegheny early in 1831. The cautious capitalists constructed a stretch of track three-quarters of a mile long at Bordentown, N. J., and thoroughly tested the speed of the engine and its power before extending the track from Bordentown to Camden and retiring the old stage coaches.

The first trial trip was made on Sept. 15, 1831, but it was not until Nov. 13 that the first public trial trip took place. Isaac Dripps was the engineer, Benjamin Higgins fireman and R. L. Stevens conductor.

Dripps and Samuel R. Dougherty, who succeeded him, both octogenarians, were present at Bordentown on Nov. 13, 1882, when the Pennsylvania Railroad company erected a monument at the spot where the John Bull was first placed on the rails. Dougherty is still living at Jersey City.

It was not until 1833 that the road was completed between Camden and Bordentown and the John Bull began to draw trains daily. Its services were not dispensed with until 1866. It was then given a place of honor in the National museum. The Pennsylvania Railroad company, by leasing the Camden and Amboy road, obtained control of the veteran engine and has put it in shape for the World's fair.

PLAINFIELD ATHLETIC CLUB.

A Social and Dance at Their Hall Saturday Night.

The Plainfield Athletic Club gave a social and dance at its hall on West Front street last Saturday night, the proceeds to help swell the club fund. There was a large number present.

The reception committee received and took charge of the guests in a pleasing and entertaining manner. The reception room was under the management of President Dixon with Messers. W. E. Kiely, H. Drier, J. Johnson, W. Campbell and W. Dennick as assistants. The reception committee consisted of J. Wagner, F. Boden, T. LaRue and G. McComas.

To-morrow the members of the club will go in a body to Elizabeth to visit the Neptune Club of that place.

A HOUSE FOR 1000 YEARS

CHANGED OWNERS SATURDAY.—TO BE GREATLY IMPROVED.

Cost $28,000, Bought for $9,000.—The Purchaser Mr. J. M. Emerson of Brooklyn, a Retired Merchant.

The stone house on the mountain was sold Saturday to Mr. J. M. Emerson of Brooklyn for $9,000.

The house originally cost $28,000, and the building was built so substantially that, as an old builder remarked, the walls would last a thousand years, long after probably every other structure now in Plainfield had passed away in decay and become not even a memory.

It is built of blue stone, and trimmed with brown stone. It is commonly called the brown stone house, as if it were a brown stone house. The reason for the name is that it was built for a man named Brown, and became known as Brown's stone house, which sounding the same led to the incorrect understanding of the designation.

Mr. Emerson is a retired manufacturer of pure wines for communion service and for medicinal uses. He found such great benefit during a brief visit here for his health that he determined to locate, and hence the purchase.

It is located about 400 feet above sea level, and the view from it covers a distance of probably twenty miles away, including Long Island sound, and completely overlooks Plainfield. At night the view of the city lit up is very beautiful, and day or night the prospect is grand.

Mr. Emerson is having Mr. Sohl wire the house for electric lights. He is to have the landscape designer in charge of Prospect Park, Brooklyn, out here to fix up the grounds, and will probably make it the place one of the most beautiful here.

There are three fountains on the place, which are to be put in operation.

Mr. Brown built the house about 1873, when he was prosperous. He was engaged in the sugar importation business in New York. He lived in the house but a few years, when business reverses overtook him. Worry made him ill, and he died, leaving a son, who obtained from the United Life Insurance Company, of New York, a loan of $15,000 on the place, which with the interest amounted to the sum it sold for. This is the reason it went so cheap. The son died a few years after the death of his father, and the property has remained in the hands of the insurance company ever since. no one wanting it because of the difficulty in reaching it, a condition which the new electric street railway, now being built to within a short distance of the house, will remove.

THE CITY'S MAP.

Some Things About It which is Well to Know.

The handsome lithograph map which we issue to-day as a supplement to The News, was prepared by Common Council under the direction of the Sewerage Committee and shows the plan of the route of the proposed system for the sewerage of the city of Plainfield.

It is not a correct map of the city. In fact it is surprising that the city would get up a map so full of blunders.

For instance so important a street as West Front street appears on the map as East Front street, down as far as Washington avenue. Bay street, Plainfield, appears as Westervelt avenue. North Randolph lane, which connects West Front street and West Second street, and is probably as old as any thoroughfare in the city, and is used more frequently than many of them, Prudden's lane, of which the same is said, and, Bank place, and Stiger's lane, quite largely used, are omitted altogether, and as there are so many mistakes noticed in reference to the very heart of the city, it is presumable that there must be some others in other parts. We mention this so that if one wishes to locate streets and cannot find them on the map it is probably the fault of the map. As the map is so excellently done in other respects these errors are all the more to be regretted.

A member of the committee having charge of the work, when his attention was call to the errors by a News reporter, was surprised, and it is no wonder, because he had taken so much care to have the map correct, referring it for revision to city officials who are supposed to know, and who overlooked these mistakes.

The main object of the map, however, is to show the sewerage plan, and that it does most creditably.

The committee included North Plainfield merely as a matter of convenience to show how the system would be extended into the borough if desired.

Inaccuracies appear in that section of the map also. Among these are noticed that Craig place and Prospect place appear as Pearl street, which is the least significant of these three thoroughfares. Emily street is spelled "Emly" street, and there may be others, to which the the caution given herein will apply.

Mr. Flack Hurt in a Runaway Accident.

A horse driven by Mr. Flack ran away this noon on Fifth street. Mr. Flack and his two children, who were in the wagon were thrown out. Mr. Flack was severely injured and was taken to his home on Sixth street.

A bicycle scared the horse.

STRUCK OUT THIRTEEN.

SWEEDEN'S CURVES AN ENIGMA TO THE YOUNG AMERICAS.

White the Crescents' Heavy Hitters Bat Pitcher Moore Out of the Box —Score: Crescents, 9; Young Americas, 1.

Philadelphia's crack team, the Young Americas, came to Plainfield, Saturday to do battle with the Crescents.

The team played well for five innings, and greatly surprised and pleased the spectators by their fine playing. It was a battle royal up to the sixth inning, each team having scored only one run. Then it was that the crack part came in—the pitcher's arm cracked and the Crescents cracked his delivery for four base hits, earning three runs and making the score four to one. Another pitcher was put in the box in the next inning. He held the Crescents' heavy hitters down until the ninth inning when his curves were sized up for four runs, and the hopes of the team from the "Quaker City" were shattered.

The following is the score:

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Artemus Ward's Notebook.

Mr. Don C. Seitz contributes to The Century an account of the only literary relic left by Artemus Ward, the first American humorist who made a reputation in Europe. The relic is a little old black morocco notebook. From 1860 till the close of 1864 it traveled with Artemus. It was his guidebook, memorandum book and notebook. In it he jotted down the humorous ideas that came into his brain from time to time on railway trains, in hotels, anywhere and everywhere. From these scribblings the quaint, half mirthful, half melancholy humorist made up the lectures that used to convulse audiences with laughter from Boston to the Pacific coast.

But Artemus Ward's greatest success was in England. Even in his day a London success made the reputation of an American in his own land. Poor Ward was always worried about financial matters, we find. His lecture tours paid well, but the agent got the lion's share, as always. On the long, comfortless journeys to fill his engagements he diverted the time between trying to get his jokes into shape and wondering whether he would have a good audience in the next town.

In the old book now in Mr. Seitz's possession are some of the sentences which afterward became world famous as the sayings of Artemus Ward. We find here, "Coffee is a slow poison—the slowest on record." "Why do the summer roses fade? Because it is their life." Kin to this, though not mentioned by Mr. Seitz, is that other reflection on the musical ability of a young lady who lifted her voice to the music of the well known air, "I'm Saddest When I Sing." "She ought to be," quoth Artemus.

The old book contains the figures of the amounts which Ward received for his lectures, also the agent's share of the proceeds. They are suggestive, to say the least. Next to his European tour his most gratifying professional success was made by Ward in the west. The miners went wild over him, and in Nevada they gave him a gold chain so long and heavy that it was a burden to wear it. "He first taught the citizens of the republic how funny they really were," truly remarks Seitz. As funny as anything in the story is the fact that Ward's mother was utterly destitute of humor and could see not much else than idiocy in her son's performances. The humorist's private, personal life was "full of mental melancholy."

Actual State of the Pension List.

We find from Dr. Albert Shaw's paper in The Review of Reviews that since 1863 more than 2,000,000 applications for pensions have been filed by people who solemnly swore with corroborative witnesses that they were entitled under the laws to a place on the government pension list. In 1866 there were 50,177 new pensioners. After that the list declined somewhat till 1876, after which year it began to increase. After "the memorable law of 1890" it jumped up with a great bound. In 1875 only 9,977 new names were added to the list. During the year ending June 30, 1892, 224,-047 additional claims were allowed.

Dr. Shaw admits that these are two points of view to the pension question, diametrically opposite, which different individuals may honestly take. But when it comes to the concrete administration of the present laws he is sure both sides will agree on the one point that "there should be the most searching scrutiny used to keep the rolls clear of frauds and perjurers." As to the present number of pensioners and the sum required to pay them, he writes:

"Since we settled to the roll since the outbreak of the war nearly 1,500,000 pensioners, of whom not far from 1,000,000 survive to this day and are on the rolls to-day. Of these now on the list more than half have been added since the inauguration of Mr. Harrison in 1889. Until 1880 yearly disbursements for pensions had never reached $30,000,000. In 1885 (fiscal year) they approached $50,000,000. In 1890 they reached $100,000,000. Existing requirements can hardly be met with less than $175,000,000 a year, and it is foreseen that $200,000,000 annually will very soon be needed. The act of 1890 admitted to relief any surviving Union soldiers who had grown disabled and needy, providing their physical disabilities were in any way traceable to their service in the army."

The idea of government agricultural stations, and by their means of improving farming methods and aiding the rural population, was evolved in France. As the World's fair is a complete model of a French government agricultural scientific station. Chemistry of the soil plays a great part in French scientific farming.

May it not be possible that there is some little exaggeration in this storm story?

The very excellent motto of a certain agricultural paper is this, "It pays to think." So it does, brother; so it does. ## FUSS OVER THE INFANTA

No One Knows How to Receive a Royal Guest.

AND SHE MAY NOT COME AFTER ALL

Many Men of Many Minds Worrying About the Etiquette Which Should Govern the Reception of an Infant King's Own Aunt by a Democratic People.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The uncertainty surrounding the visit of the Princess Eulalia Emilie to the United States, to visit the World's fair, which has been attributed on the one hand to a fear on the part of the infanta that she would not be able to undergo the fatigue of the round of the entertainments arranged for her, if she were able to withstand the rigors of the climate, and on the other hand to a dissatisfaction by the Spanish officials with the character of the reception and the manner of the entertainment provided by this government for its guest, has not been settled even.

While it is true that the infanta is in delicate health, her health is not in such a critical state but that if everything was satisfactorily arranged she would be able to brave all possible danger thereto involved in a trip to Chicago and return. And it is denied that dissatisfaction exists or has been expressed by the representatives of the Spanish government with the arrangements for the entertainment of the princess and her party.

There has been no demand or request that the infanta should be invited to stay at the executive mansion while in Washington, nor has it been expected that President Cleveland would in person receive her either in New York or in this city upon her arrival. According to her people the infanta would be perfectly satisfied with whatever quarters might be provided by this government in carrying out the invitation extended to the queen regent of Spain (whose personal representative she is) to visit the United States as its guest. But it now seems that the representatives of Spain and the United States have thus far failed to reach a satisfactory understanding regarding the precise manner courtesies to be exchanged between the president and the infanta in the course of her stay in Washington.

Should Be a President Call.

According to custom, the princess, at a convenient period after her arrival would call on the president and Mrs Cleveland at the White House. Whether or not the president should return the call upon the princess at her quarters in the hotel, is the question upon the settlement of which depends the future course of the infanta. The Spanish representatives, it is understood, insist that the return visit is one that is due by courtesy and should be paid. They argue that the princess is the personal representative of the queen and is in the United States on the express invitation of the queen regent of Spain. Under these conditions, and these only, they feel that the return visit should be paid. If the infanta was traveling through the country as a tourist merely, although he owes respects to the president, but no visit from him would be expected; nor, indeed, would it be proper; so, too, if she were here as the representative of the government of Spain no answering visit would be expected to her call upon the president.

But on the other hand in her person of the queen having been delegated by her under the invitation of the United States to visit this country, the Spanish officials are quoted as saying that the courtesy which should obtain individuals of the same rank, not etiquette, demands that the visit of the infanta be reciprocated by the president.

The subject has been very thoroughly discussed in Washington and Madrid, and the differences from the diplomatic expressing an apprehension that the infanta's health would not permit her to continue on her journey to the United States is considered here as preparing for her return to Spain from Cuba, if it is found necessary to change the original programme.

The situation is interesting and many suggestions have been made of expedients to relieve it.

Not Invited to the White House.

One of these, it is understood, was that the infanta could be entertained at the White House during her stay, thus obviating altogether the difficulty over the visits. There is no precedent for the guidance of the officials here, as no one assuming to be the personal representative of a sovereign has ever visited this country.

Naturally the incident has been discussed in diplomatic circles, in all of which the members of the corps are interested. One of the best informed members said today:

"In Europe it is the universal custom for the rulers of a country to promptly return the call of the ruler of another country. And this custom extends also in a certain degree to the members of the royal families. In republican France President Carnot has returned the calls of the grand duke of Russia and other visitors to Paris, members of the families of sovereigns of other nations by whatever title they are known. But then in France more ceremony attends the reception of foreign representatives and noble or royal visitors than in the United States. For instance, on the occasion of the recent reception of Mr. Eustis, the American ambassador to France, by President Carnot, two carriages were sent to convey him and his attendants to the Elysee, escorted by a squadron of cavalry. Then upon his arrival at the palace the ambassador was received by a regiment of infantry at present-arms, while the American national air was played by a military band.

"This was far different from the ceremonies observed at the reception of Mr. Patenotre, the French ambassador to the United States, by President Cleveland. In company with Secretary Gresham Mr. Patenotre drove to the White House with a total absence of pomp or display of any kind, and without so much as a soldier in sight. It was a case of pure Republican simplicity."

More Difficulties In New York.

NEW YORK, May 13.—It is reported that the Infanta Eulalie of Spain had indicated her royal vote to any preparations for her reception that look to ostentation, for at the Hotel Waldorf. The regal apartments at that hostelry have been occupied by the Duke Veragua, a Spanish subject, and the etiquette that betrays the loyalty of the most Catholic kingdom forbids a princess to lodge where a subject has lodged.

This is no objection of over-inconvenience than appears on the surface. There is not another hotel in town that has apartments furnished with the sumptuousness that would make it even endurable for her entertainment. Her royal highness is accompanied by the Saragossa band of 80 pieces, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

PREPARING TO HANG ALMY.

The Gallows Tested and the Historic Rope All Ready.

LEBANON, N. H., May 15.—Arrangements for Almy's execution tomorrow have all been completed. C. E. Eyre, superintendent of the Laconia Car works, who made the gallows, met Sheriff Hurlburt at Concord this morning. The gallows was put together and erected at the state prison, after which it was taken down and put away in the prison, to be set up again Tuesday morning immediately after the prisoners go to their work.

The rope has been in Lebanon the past two days, and has been subjected to a very careful stretching process devised by the sheriff. The rope is of Russian hemp, and made, 7-16 of an inch in diameter, with a breaking strain of 1,800 pounds. It was originally purchased by Sheriff Hayes of Stratford county, to be used in the execution of Sawtelle, whose death cheated the scaffold. It was cut from the same piece of rope that was used in hanging the Chicago anarchists.

The deputies who are to assist at the execution have not been absolutely determined upon, because one or more deputy sheriffs are obliged to be present at the session of the supreme court, now being held in Plymouth, and the execution will occur as soon as practicable after 10 o'clock. Dr. E. A. Knight of Lebanon will be one of the three attending physicians, the others being Dr. Gilbert of the regular profession and Dr. Sullivan of Concord. An immense pressure has been brought to bear on Sheriff Hurlburt for tickets of admission, requests having been received from all parts of the country. Hardly one out of 50 of the applications will receive the coveted invitations.

TEN MEN DASHED TO PIECES.

Fell Over Three Thousand Feet Down a Mine Shaft.

HOUGHTON, Mich., May 15.—Ten men were dashed to pieces in the Red Jacket perpendicular shaft of the Calumet and Hecla mine while coming up in the cage to dinner. The engineer hoisted the cage against the timbers of the shaft, the coupling pin broke and the men and cage were dashed downward over 3,000 feet to the bottom. The names of the killed are:

Allen Cameron, son of Captain Cameron, in charge.

James Cocking, single, supporting widowed mother.

Joseph Pope, leaves a wife and one child. The wife was at the mouth of the shaft with the dinner and saw the terrible fall of her husband and his comrades.

John Rodgers, leaves a wife and several children.

Josh Ricks, single, aged 24.

Andrew Edno, aged 40, married.

Robert Wemple, leaves a wife and three children.

Michael Leavitte, widower.

James Trevri, leaves a wife and three children.

Con S. Sullivan, single, aged 40.

There was no way of reaching the bottom nor getting the dead men out except by going through another shaft half a mile away, so that it was nearly three hours before the true state of affairs could be ascertained, and it was toward morning before the bodies could be brought to the surface.

SATOLLI'S RECEPTION.

All Was Harmony and the Event Was a Remarkable One.

JERSEY CITY, May 15.—Delegate Satolli is resting at the Hoboken monastery today after the ceremonies of yesterday. The delegate celebrated a private mass at 8 o'clock Sunday. Later in the day Archbishop Satolli, in his robes of office, attended by the Passionist superior, occupied the position of honor on the episcopal throne at the Passionist church.

After services about 50 sat down to dinner in the great hall of the monastery. Speeches were made in Latin by the Passionist rector, by Mgrs. Seton and Donnelan and by Bishop Wigger and the delegate. Bishop Wigger proposed the health of the pope and his representative in a speech of deep feeling. In reply the delegate expressed his pleasure in the reception loyally accorded to him.

Colored Democrats Want Offices.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The National Negro Democratic league has, through its president, G. H. J. Taylor of Kansas, addressed a letter to President Cleveland upon a question "seriously affecting the cause of negro democracy in this country." After criticising the Republican party for its treatment of the negro the letter says that the league stood with the Democratic party, as it was pounded in 1888, and those who had received recognition were promptly chastised and summarily dismissed by the successful Republicans. The letter recites that the league is placed in a false light before the country, because of the failure so far to recognize them in the distribution of patronage, and asks the president "if the place held by colored Republicans, who have been and now are hostile to the league and the party with which it is identified, are to remain longer in the hands of political enemies?"

Says China Will Retaliate.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The Rev. Dr. J. S. Baldwin, for 23 years a Methodist missionary in China and for nearly a quarter of a century secretary of the missionary board of the Methodist Episcopal church, says that he has positive information from dignitaries of the Chinese government and from his own Chinese missionaries that if the Chinese exclusion act is carried into effect and Chinese are shipped from this country to China, that Americans in China will be likewise deported from that country to the United States.

Levee Broke Again.

GREENVILLE, Miss., May 15.—The break in the levee at Lakeport on Thursday morning last was followed by another at Brooks' mill, three miles below on the Arkansas side of the river. The crevasse is about 200 yards and gradually spreading. The Lakeport crevasse has widened to over 600 feet and the country around is now all inundated.

A Son of Harvard's President.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The Rev. S. A. Eliot, a son of the president of Harvard university, preached his first sermon as pastor of the Church of the Saviour, Pierrepont street and Monroe place, Brooklyn. He was recently called from Denver. The installation of the Rev. Mr. Eliot will take place at the church at 8 p. m. next Thursday.

Shine Was Drowned.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., May 15. — Frank Shine and a Mr. Smith were upset from a row boat on the Connecticut river at this place and Shine was drowned.

The Rose Goes to Belgium's Queen.

ROME, May 15.—The pope will send the Golden Rose of Virtue this year to Maria Henriette, Queen of the Belgians.

LETTER IN A PEPPER BOX

An Alleged Missive From the Escaped Convict.

CONFESSION SIGNED "PALLASTER."

It Was Directed to Warden Brown and Was Either Intended to Be Misleading or Else Is Not Genuine—Dated at the Umbria.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The World today publishes a story to the effect that a letter written by Pallister, the escaped convict, was picked up, in which Pallister confesses the killing of Roehl. The story is as follows:

T. S. Lynch, a mechanic, employed in the city and living at 1809 Willow avenue, Hoboken, was walking along the shore of the North river, at the foot of Phillips and Communipaw streets, Jersey City, late in the afternoon of April 28, when he picked out of the water a little tin box. It was a small, round box, about the size of those used to hold a quarter of a pound of pepper.

A Message In a Box.

There was no label upon it, and the water had caused a coating of rust. It was partially filled with water, and in the bottom was a piece of crumpled paper, torn from a small notebook. There was writing upon the paper, but it had been done with a lead pencil, and Mr. Lynch could only read a few words.

When he read in the papers that a body had been found in the Hudson, opposite Sing Sing, last Wednesday morning which was identified by the prison authorities as that of Roehl, Mr. Lynch wrote to The World telling how he had found the letter.

A World reporter called upon Mr. Lynch, and he showed the reporter the letter. It had evidently been written in haste with a blunt lead pencil. In several places where the note had been folded the paper had been worn away. The quality of the paper, the faint blue lines upon it, the roundof corners, the edge and the jagged portions of the other showed that it was a leaf from an ordinary pocket memorandum, torn out hastily, probably after the writing had been completed. Several of the words could not be made out until the reporter examined the letter with a strong magnifying glass.

The Alleged Letter.

MR. WARDEN BROWN—I am on the Umbria to let you hunt high and low for me. I done the best of murder in self defense and am not guilty of murder. So goodby, Mr. Brown.

PALLASTER.

P. S.—Your dear friend, Mr. Robin, is dead, with a stone around his neck in the Hudson river opposite Sing Sing, so it is equally certain that it was never in the Schuylkill river.

If the letter is genuine it is possible that these two inaccuracies were intentionally made to throw his pursuers off the track.

Thinks It Was Not Roehl.

SING SING, May 15.—It is expected that the body of Jacob Sharp, the man identified as Roehl, the escaped convict, will be exhumed today to satisfy all doubts about identity. Assistant District Attorney McIntyre, who prosecuted the case against Roehl, doubts the accuracy of the identification. So do Ambrose H. Purdy and James V. McLaughlin, who defended Roehl before Judge Martine.

An Exchange of Courtesies.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Ex-Minister Robert T. Lincoln and Ambassador Bayard were the principals in an exchange of courtesies between the old Republican and the new Democratic administrations, which was unique and interesting. The outgoing representative of this government at the court of St. James, Mr. Lincoln, called on his successor, Mr. Bayard, as soon as convenient thereafter Mr. Bayard called on Mr. Lincoln. The interchange of courtesies was almost an impromptu affair.

Farewell to the Russians.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The Russian cruiser, the General Admiral, has taken her departure from this international port. She was given a farewell that gladdened the hearts of the homeward bound tars.

Boston Wanted Yale's Pitcher.

NEW HAVEN, May 15.—Walter F. Carter, pitcher of the Yale baseball nine, has received a flattering offer from the Boston league team to join that club at once. He immediately declined.

BITS OF NEWS.

Mrs. Thomas I. Dixon, wife of a Brooklyn manufacturer, is missing, and it is feared she is insane.

James Mayhew and Thomas Stacher, both colored, fought about a girl near Huntington, L. I., and Mayhew is expected to die from a knife stab in the breast, while Stacher is locked up.

Joseph and Robert Hall, brothers, of Steelton, Pa., went to Greenpoint, L. I., to buy grass seeds, and shot one of the swindlers who tried to rob them of $650.

England's home secretary has refused to shorten the term of imprisonment of the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland.

The Yale freshmen's crew beat the New York Athletic club's crew.

William Pisanelly was arrested in New York with fatally shooting Mary Sexton, a girl with whom he ran away from Jersey City.

It has been found that the carwels will be the best route to Chicago by the St. Lawrence route.

Theodore Hill, paymaster on the New Jersey and New York railroad, is missing again.

The new postmaster at Terre Haute, Ind., was installed and his new force of letter carriers with him.

The New York Press alleged that James Gordon Bennett had been succeeded in control of the New York Herald by John W. Mackay, the California millionaire.

Mrs. Hall, matron at the Connecticut state prison, has been suspended.

Eugene and Jeanne Lecoux, who were held in Brooklyn as suspicious persons because they had a fortune in gems, were discharged and rearrested for smuggling.

BAKER LIVED HIGH.

He Ended It by Forgery and Suicide In the Street.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 15.—Arthur St. Clair Baker committed suicide by putting two bullets through his heart while walking through the public square. He had been in this city since May 5, stopping at the Luzerne House and representing himself as a commercial drummer, and giving his name as Clarence Coleman of Montreal. The body was found on a stretcher and other bills that he had successfully contracted while in town. On being confronted with the facts by the night clerk of the hotel, he evidently concluded to put an end to his life.

A Big Hotel on Fire.

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—A fire caused by a defective flue in the bakehouse of the Allens hotel badly gutted the building and caused a loss estimated at about $140,000. The 130 guests in the house and the servants escaped unhurt after an exciting experience. The Allens hotel is on Chestnut street above Nineteenth street and is one of the largest hotels in the city. There were about 120 guests in the house, among whom were many prominent business and professional men. A. A. McLeod, ex-president of the Reading railroad, had the apartments on the second floor. The servants were first awakened and scattered through the house arousing the sleeping guests.

Passengers and Crew Drowned.

LONDON, May 15.—The captain of the steamship City of Hamburg, which arrived at Swansea from Hamburg, reports that at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon the vessel collided in a fog with the ship Countess Evelyn, bound with passengers and iron ore, from Bilboa, Spain, to Newport, Wales. The captain of the Countess Evelyn jumped aboard the City of Hamburg, and Mate Richards crawled to her through a hole in the Countess Evelyn's quarter. Shortly after later the Countess Evelyn went under with her crew of 16 and with 9 passengers.

Revolutionists Still Winning.

PANAMA, May 15.—Advices from Nicaragua show that the revolutionists are gaining and daily are becoming more aggressive. San Juan del Sur and the country towns up to Granada are in their hands. Corinto is being fortified by the government to resist the expected attack from San Juan. The opposing forces are massing at Masaya. Two battles fought near Masaya have resulted in favor of the revolutionists, who are now actively pressing the government troops heavy losses.

Lizzie Borden Is Ill.

TAUNTON, Mass., May 15.—For the first time since the incarceration of Lizzie Borden at Taunton jail she is under the care of a physician. She has a slight attack of tonsilitis, and it is thought that no more alarming symptoms will appear. She caught cold on the day of her arraignment and has been suffering ever since. Should anything more serious result, she will be removed from her cell to the keeper's house and will continue to receive the best of care.

Indemnities For Jack Tars.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—At Mare Island navy yard payment of the final indemnity awarded the Baltimore sailors has been made. Four sailors injured in the assault on the American marines received their recompense for indignities and injuries received at Valparaiso. P. McWilliams received $1,000; P. Loughlin, $900; Hermes Fredricks, $1,500, and George Pouter, $250.

Thrown Into a Mine Hole.

HAZLETON, May 15.—While going to his home in Jeddo John Senshock was attacked by highwaymen, who, after robbing him, threw him into a deep mine hole. Pa fractures going over the road traced blood marks into the cave and found the unconscious man. He was taken to the hospital, where it was found that his skull was fractured. He cannot live.

Lincoln's Car Brought to Light.

OMAHA, May 15.—An interesting relic of old time railroading is the private car in which the martyred president, Abraham Lincoln, traveled about the country back in the forties. The car was brought here from North Platte, where it has been for years. It will be taken to Chicago for exhibition at the World's fair.

For Colgate's New Gymnasium.

UTICA, N. Y., May 15.—Ground has been broken for the new Colgate gymnasium at Colgate university with due ceremony.

A Bad Case.

Once I was assistant to an elderly doctor in Ontario, who also ran a drug store. He was as peppery as a cayenne pod, and from time to time customers and patients sprung jokes on him. One day I took the liberty of hearing him blow off. On one occasion a well dressed young fellow called at the shop and asked the doctor to prescribe for a breaking out with a rash on his left arm. The doctor examined the limb and pronounced it to be a bad case of psoriasis and eczema.

"I suppose, doctor, you can cure it?" said the patient.

"Why, certainly," replied the doctor.

"How long will it take to get well?"

"Oh, I guess about two months," said the doctor.

"Quite sure, sir—is it a bad case?"

"Positively the worst I've seen."

"Then I will leave it with you and call for it again when cured," solemnly said the patient, slowly unfastening his arm, which was an artificial one and painted for the occasion.—Chemist and Druggist.

FASHIONS

Popular Fancies In Jewelry.

The chrysoprase is likely to be all the fashion. It is not a stone of much value, nor is it particularly pretty, but it looks well combined with diamonds, and most people are tired of moonstones and welcome the chrysoprase as a change. One of the daintiest watches is in a diamond case about an inch and a quarter across. It falls from the beak of a diamond bird, intended to be worn as a brooch. The newest "tricky jewelry" consists of horseshoe shaped brooches with gold nails. Short watch chains, bracelets, brooches, earrings, etc., of polished wrought iron are made of these lucky horseshoes. A fashionable bracelet appears to be a gold chain of some kind, with a pendent heart shaped ornament.

Sad For the Stout Woman.

How the stout woman must detest the fashions of this season! Bodices are all made with belts or else cut off quite short at the waist, and the absolute trimmings that are worn on everything add enormously to the width of the back. The only way to look nice is to have a soul above fashion and wear what suits you.

GOOD HEALTH

THE BATH.

Its Relations to Health, Vigor, Beauty and Complexion.

The majority of people bathe with a view to comfort and cleanliness without much thought of the relations of regular ablutions to the preservation of health and good looks. In olden times there existed the idea that too frequent bathing of the face and neck injured the skin. Now the general belief is that the beauty of the skin cannot be preserved unless its pores are kept well open. Proof of this is readily seen by observation among people who bathe infrequently and insufficiently. A good complexion is almost unknown among them, and although improper food and impure air do their share in muddying and thickening the skin its unhealthy appearance is largely due to that clogging of the pores which prevents their carrying off as they should the waste matter of the system.

The temperature of the bath is a mooted question. To some persons there is nothing more bracing and invigorating than a cold plunge, while others do not recover for hours from the chill such a bath gives. Certain physicians recommend a very hot bath and assert that it is as stimulating in its after effects as is the cold plunge and less likely to produce ill effects. Nearly all unite in declaring immersion in the tepid bath relaxing and thus detrimental to health. The question is one that each bather must settle for herself. What suits one may be positively harmful to another. Certain it is that the hot or warm bath is more cleansing than cold water. The sudden chill of the latter closes the pores and prevents the escape of the effete matter it is the object of the bath to remove. The woman who takes a cold plunge for its after effects should first sponge herself off in warm water and secure the cleanliness before she indulges herself in her "bracer," says a writer in Harper's Bazar, who adds:

Whoever finds a chilly sensation after a warm plunge and experiences difficulty in regaining a normal temperature should try the experiment of sponging off with cold water when leaving the bath tub instead of if the slight shock will not tone up the skin and prevent any subsequent chill. The beneficial effect of a bath is greatly heightened by a hard rubbing after leaving it. A rather coarse or rough Turkish towel should be used, and the friction should not be stopped when the moisture has been removed, but continued until the body is in a glow from head to foot. This operation will only require a few moments, and it is well worth the trifling labor.

The best time for taking the bath must, like its temperature, be decided by individual preference. Some persons find a bath taken late at night most soothing; to others it is provocative of insomnia. The early morning bath is sometimes fatiguing to delicate persons, while to others it serves as a tonic and is in its stimulating and refreshing qualities as valuable as an extra hour's sleep.

Treatment of a Bunion.

Bathe the affected part in hot water to which a teaspoonful of soda, a tablespoonful of starch and a few drops of arnica have been added. Wipe dry with a soft linen towel and apply iodine with a camel's hair brush. Wear a loose shoe out of doors and while in the house a shoe which has the leather covering the bunion entirely cut away. Bunions are caused by undue pressure. A good plan, if you have to be out a great deal, is to have the shoemaker cut a piece from your shoe where it presses upon the bunion and replace it with an invisible patch.

ETIQUETTE

A MAN'S CALL.

A Society Man Tells How to Make an Agreeable First Impression.

A call upon a woman should always be made in the afternoon. At least in New York we call at no other time, choosing, if possible, the hour when the tea is brought in, and it is neither daylight nor dusk. Bend your card slightly at one end, so that it lays over about a quarter of an inch when you hand it to the man. Never stay any longer than 15 minutes and always—as in whist—reserve your best card for the coup d'etat. Rise immediately after you have said or have tried to say something either brilliant or entertaining, or at least amusing. Go then at once and do not dally for a long adieu, keeping your hostess standing. Your visit will then leave an agreeable impression, and you will no doubt have—if it is your first call—from the man who brought you that Miss Jones or Miss Smith had remarked to him a few nights afterward at the assembly, or the theater, or the vaudeville club: "What a charming man that Mr. Brown is! He was in such form. I wish he would call again, and I intend to send him a card for dinner at an early day."—Vogue.

The Etiquette of the Signature.

So far as the etiquette of the signature is concerned, there is one unvarying rule for women, married and single. It is never right nor in good form to sign one's name with the addition of Miss or Mrs. You are Mary Emily Jones, not Mrs. Patrick Fitzgerald Jones, to whomsoever you are writing. If it is necessary to notify your correspondent of your married style and estate, you may do so in one of several ways. Please remember that a correspondent should not be left in doubt as to this, much embarrassment being frequently caused by the omission in letters between strangers of exact information as to whether the writer is married or single. You may readily indicate all you wish to tell. You may place Mrs. P. F. before the Mary Emily aforesaid in parentheses. You may write Mrs. Patrick Fitzgerald out fully and plainly in the left hand corner of your sheet—below your proper signature—or you may simply inclose your engraved visiting card in your letter, this being on the whole the most elegant and also the most convenient method of showing one's relation to society. Harper's Bazar, authority for the foregoing, remarks, however, that the visiting card is out of place in an exclusively business letter—one which has not even remotely a social bearing.

Transfer Paper.

To prepare transfer paper take some thin post or tissue paper, rub the surface well with black lead, vermilion, red chalk or any coloring matter. Wipe the preparation well off with a piece of clean rag and the paper will be ready for use, says Pearson's.

TRANSPORTATION.

How World's Fair Visitors Are Carried About.

MOVABLE SIDEWALK ON THE PIER.

The Sliding Railway in Midway Plaisance Which Can Attain a Speed of 150 Miles an Hour—Sugar's Horses, Dromedaries, Reindeers and Other Means of Transportation.

WORLD'S FAIR, May 13.—[Special.]—Not the least interesting phase of the exposition is its horsemanship. We may see here a comparative display of the horses and riders of many countries. It happens that a number of hussars or other cavalrymen are attached to the foreign commissions here to serve as official messengers. Hence one may see, almost any fine day, a German hussar, a Russian cossack, an English horse guardsman or an Arab courier flying about in the vicinity of the exposition grounds. There are American cavalrymen, too. The foreigners all use big horses and resplendent trappings. The American horse soldier alone looks as if he were outfitted for actual service, the others being mere parade soldiers. More serviceable than any of the military horsemen in the capacity of messengers are the cowboys of the plains, twenty or thirty of them having been constantly employed in the days of construction, carrying messages and orders to and fro. They are today the most interesting horsemen in all this international menage. Their little mustangs or broncbos fly about with soft, sure foot, dodging obstructions and pedestrians, swift and intelligent.

A magnificent specimen of the horsemanship is to be found here in the outfit of Colonel Rice, commandant of the Columbian guards. It is no small responsibility the colonel has undertaken—captaincy of the troop of 2,000 men who are a sort of cross between policemen and soldiers. In management and training of his men the colonel finds it necessary to go slightly from one part of the grounds to another. In fact, he acts like a man who would, if he could, be at forty widespread spots in one minute of time. He rides a massive iron gray charger, a noble animal who carries himself with a proud stride as if he were the bearer of the general of a great army.

It is indeed a cosmopolitan showing of horsemanship and beasts of burden which we have here. Buffalo Bill's cowboys, rough-riders, steer tamers and Sioux horsemen are to be seen on the same bridle-paths with the Cossacks and Hussars. Immediately after them may be a pack-mule from the Andes going over to State street for a load of feed for his fellows, or a dromedary from the Egyptian village in the plaisance. Now and then, at rare intervals, a Laplander may be seen quit exercising a big reindeer. In Hagenback's famous animal show Ilona may be seen riding horseback, and two or three of the elephants are often ridden about the neighborhood of the plaisance by their trainers.

The horse show proper will not begin till late in August. Then it is expected there will be here the greatest horse show ever seen. Certainly the management of the exposition has been liberal enough in its preparations and plans. There are twenty-five acres of stock sheds, and in a huge amphitheatre that will seat nearly 7,000 persons the horses of all kinds will be elaborately exhibited. It is elliptical in shape, 800 feet wide and 440 feet long, and looks like an enclosed track. Beyond that, however, it is to be erected for the accommodation of horses, and if these prove inadequate more will be built. The second floor of the building is a very liberal, consisting of both cash awards and medals. There are cash premiums on single animals as high as $500.

There is a wonderful variety of contrivances and vehicles for people to ride upon within the enclosure of the exposition. The elevated electric railway, which runs around the grounds, the steam and electric launches on the lagoons, the gondolas and the rolling chairs are all well known. But this does not exhaust the list by any means. One of the most interesting spots in the exposition is visited by only a small proportion of the people who come here. It is the steamboat pier which runs more than half a mile into Lake Michigan from the Casino at the southern end of the peristyle. One is not surprised to learn that this is the most popular pier in the world, for these Chicago people have a habit of building everything a little larger than any similar thing was ever built elsewhere. This pier is the landing place of the many big steamboats which run between Chicago and the fair, and on a warm day this is the best route to and from the city. The pier alone is worth going to see. Its vast proportions may be better understood from the fact that it contains fifteen acres of space, and that 10,000 people may move about upon it without crowding. The view of the lake and the exposition from this pier is very fine, and one may go out on the pier for the purpose of witnessing without taking passage on a steamship for the city.

It would not be like Chicago to build a pier more than half a mile long and not provide no means of transportation from one end to the other of it. A pier so long that a passenger railway is named on its surface will be a novelty to most people, but a greater novelty is the railway itself. It is what is known as a movable sidewalk, and is a very ingenious contrivance. Two low platforms, endless, run side by side on a series of small wheels. The outer one runs constantly at a speed of three miles an hour, and the inner one is designed to take on or let off passengers one has no difficulty in stepping upon it. With the same ease one may pass from this platform to the next one, which moves at a speed of six miles an hour. This faster platform has comfortable seats, and a letter means of conveying one's weary limbs the while refreshing body and soul in the cool breezes which nearly always blow over Lake Michigan, could not well be devised. The fare on this novel railway is only a nickel, and already it is quite popular. The road is four-fifths of a mile long, and 6,000 passengers may ride upon the platforms together.

Over in the plaisance or side-show sections of the exposition is another novel method of transportation. It is known as the sliding railway, and is the same system that created such a sensation at the Paris exposition four years ago. The structure much resembles an ordinary elevated railroad, but the speed attained is something tremendous. One hundred and sixty miles an hour may be reached under pressure, but about ninety or 100 miles is the speed at which passengers are carried every day. The cars have no wheels; instead there are shoes which closely fit the rails, the latter being about eight inches wide. Into each shoe leads a small pipe bearing water under pressure of 100 pounds to the square inch, and thus a film of water probably no more than a sixteenth of an inch thick is produced between the shoe and the rail. In other words, the car is lifted from the track and floated along upon a stream of water, thus reducing friction to an ideal minimum, averting all jar and rumble. It is literally a sliding or floating train. The motive power is water, also. Under every other car of a train is a powerful engine, which receives the force of the jets of water automatically thrown out of a pipe running between the tracks.

Of course there are plenty of places in which one may ride in an elevator to a considerable hight for a view of the exposition and the city. There is no Eiffel tower, except a model of that famous structure; but the gigantic Ferris wheel is an even greater curiosity. One may go up in a captive balloon along with fourteen other curious passengers, and rise to a hight of 1,500 feet, or a third higher than the top of the Eiffel tower. The balloon seems perfectly safe, and it always kept safely anchored to the earth by heavy cables. Then there is curious looking structure which is called the tower of Babel, and it is something like 400 feet high. Like the ancient structure upon the plains of Shinar it has a walk or road winding about it like the threads of a screw from bottom to top. This tower of Babel has—or will have if its owner ever finishes it—an equipment which it is safe to say the original Babel structure did not have, namely an electric railway on which one may ride corkscrew style to the summit.

For those visitors who are fond of going up to great hights—and this appears to be a wide-spread aspiration in the human race—I would recommend one of the elevator in the northern end of the big Manufactures and Liberal Arts building. Two hundred and fifty feet straight up from the floor, with the forty acres of exhibits and people spread out below like a valley seen from a mountain side, is of itself a spectacle most impressive. But the best is at the top. Passing through the center of one of the five great screws of which hundreds of electric lamps, and through the roof a little farther on, the traveler finds himself in the open air. Hundreds of people are there before him, and now, if never before, they appreciate the vastness and the beauty of this great exposition which is before them like a panorama.

THE COLUMBIAN TOWER.

If one wishes to follow the transportation question still further he has only to go into the immense building devoted to this purpose. Outside the buildings is an exhibit of transportation in actual use, ranging from the mule and the burro, the dromedary and the elephant, the gondola and the savage dugout, to the electric launches, the elevated, the hydraulic, the continuously moving railways. Inside the Transportation building is a series of object lessons which show the history of all of man's efforts to move his goods and himself to and fro by mechanical appliances. There is no more fascinating spot in all the exposition than this, and some day I mean to come in here and write you a story about it that I think you will be glad to read.

Probably nine persons out of ten are strangely fascinated by the railway and the steamship. Common as they are in this and most other civilized countries, one never ceases to watch them, to wonder and admire. In traveling about the country how often will you see men and even women peering under the huge bellies of the locomotives which haul their train, gazing between the driving wheels at the machinery there half concealed, and then step back and say what a wonderful or magic these ponderous creatures are made to fly like birds. Or you will see passengers on fast steamships begging the privilege of going down into the hot, grimy, greasy hold to see the marine engines, the boiler rooms, the half-naked stokers. A railway train transforms by a locomotive round-house how many passengers glance within and say to themselves they should like to visit that stable of the iron horse. Or they ask permission to see the switch towers, with their innumerable levers controlling the tracks and the signals and have a desire to know the secret of the operation!

Well, all these and countless other things are spread before the eye from the transportation of the models to that of the moderns—on land and sea, through air or under water—in the transportation department.

WALTER WELLMAN.

The Connecticut Building.

Up among the state buildings, at the northeast corner of the fair ground, near the sea wall where the surf makes music, there is a handsome old mansion which the state of Connecticut has erected as headquarters. It is a faithful reproduction of a colonial mansion. Before the revolutionary period such buildings were the pride of the wealthier class of residents of the various states. There are many people living who remember the older structures, and the rural towns of the state still contain glorious architectural examples of these manor houses long after their original owners have passed away. When it was decided to erect a headquarters for Connecticut on the fair grounds the state commission instructed its architects to reproduce one of those historic mansions. This has been done. Commissioner J. H. Valli, who is executive manager and secretary of the Connecticut state board, has taken up his residence in the building with his family until the fair is over. Mr. Valli's family will occupy two of the rooms upstairs and the janitor's family will occupy another room. The living apartments are on one side of the spacious hall upstairs. On the other side of the hall are three rooms, which will be open to public inspection. It is difficult to do justice to the dainty furnishings of these three rooms. They are fitted up with old-fashioned bedsteads and antique furniture. The bed quilts, curtains and hangings are loaned by prominent families of Connecticut, who value them as heirlooms. One room is called the Charter Oak room.

Dropsy—Do you believe Sprinkler's assertion that the stylish umbrella he carries was one of your family heirlooms?

Poorse—Oh, yes; he says his grandfather put a new stick in it, his father a new frame, and Sprinkler has had it covered.—Clothier and Haberdasher.

A STREET NUMBER DIRECTORY SHOWING LOCATION OF OLD NUMBERS, AT STREET INTERSECTIONS.

The old system of numbering houses in Plainfield has been so faulty that it has been difficult to know one's correct number. With a view of helping people to locate themselves the News some time ago acquired at considerable expense a map and street and number directory. This directory, republished to-day, will show the old numbers of houses at the intersections of each street, and will be well worth the price. It is published as a public to help those trying to determine their old number in order to know their new No. as shown by the list circulated Saturday by order of Common Council, or copy at every house in Plainfield. This supplement will be sold separately. This list, as given below, includes North Plainfield, and as the streets are arranged alphabetically, they may be readily found.

The big letters in the second column apply to the News map.

The third column shows the length of each street, the fourth column shows the width, and last column indicates the direction the street or avenue runs in.

CITY COMMON COUNCIL.

AN ADJOURNED MEETING HELD LAST EVENING.

An Invitation to Attend Memorial Day Services Accepted.—Fire Officers Confirmed. — Hose Carriage Sold. — Hotel Netherwood License Granted. — Broadway Changed to Watchung Avenue.—Other Matters.

The City Common Council met in adjourned session last night. Present:—Councilmen Erickson, Frost, Fisk, Prazer, Gross, Marsh, Millington, Bee and Weber.

The minutes of the regular May meeting were read and approved.

An invitation was read and accepted from Mr. Asa Collier, chairman of the joint detail of the two Grand Army Posts, inviting the members of the Council to attend the Memorial Day services in Music Hall on May 30th, at two o'clock p. m.

Residents of West Eighth street petitioned Council to place a street light at the corner of Eighth and Liberty streets. Referred to the Committee on Public Lights with power.

The list of officers elected at the last annual election of the fire companies, approved by the board of engineers, was confirmed.

The Sawood fire company, through its chairman, offered Council $125 for the old hose carriage. The offer was accepted.

Mr. Weber, of the Committee on Licenses, reported the hotel and liquor application of Mr. Miller, for Hotel Netherwood, as complying with the law. The license was granted.

Mr. See, of the Street Committee, reported favorable on the petition of the property-owners of Broadway and Pesce street, for the changing of the name to Watchung avenue. He also reported favorable on the petition of Central avenue property-owners for the cutting down to grade of that thoroughfare from Eighth street to Randolph road.

Mr. Frost of the Sewerage Committee, stated that 2500 maps of the proposed sewerage system had been distributed in the newspapers of the city, in that portion of the city for which the system is proposed, that petitions had been placed about the city for the signatures of taxpayers and that they were being signed quite freely. Mr. Frost offered a resolution authorizing the expenditure of $200 to have the plan carefully gone over by an expert on sewerage matters, in order that no mistake be made at the outset, owing to Plainfield's flat surface.

The ordinance changing the name of Broadway and Pesce street to Watchung avenue was passed on its first and second readings, ordered engrossed and advertised.

The ordinance to establish a grade on Central avenue, from Eighth street to Randolph road was passed on its first and second readings, ordered engrossed and advertised.

The library tax ordinance was read for the third time and adopted, as was also the ordinance referring to the licensing of hackmen, peddlers and cartmen.

Mr. Frost moved that a vote of thanks be extended to the newspapers of the city for the publishing gratuitously of the sewerage maps, and that the Clerk be authorized to send a copy of the resolution to each of the papers. The motion was carried.

Council then adjourned.

KRUPP'S GREAT CANNON

HOW THE WORLD'S LARGEST GUN LOOKS AT CHICAGO.

A War Weapon That Cost $1,100 For a Single Shot and Cost $250,000 to Construct.—How it Was Made, and What It Can Do.

The largest cannon in the world, the work of Herr Krupp, the gunmaker of Essen, is now in position on its carriage in the Krupp pavilion at the World's Fair and is the cynosure of all eyes. Krupp's mammoth engine of war is 37 feet long and weighs 270,000 pounds. The range of the monster is miles, and a single gunner by simply touching a lever may send a 2,000-pound steel projectile crashing through the buildings of a city over five leagues distant.

The diameter of the big gun's yawning mouth is 18½inches. The barrel was first bored from a solid piece of steel. Great rings of the same metal were then shrunk about it until it was built up enormously thick at the breech, where the strain of the explosion comes primarily. From the breech the great gun tapers gracefully to the muzzle. As it costs $1,100 for a single load the gun will probably never become popular for firing salutes. If it were used, for instance, to do honor to President Cleveland, the 21-gun pyrotechnics would cost about $23,000.

The carriage on which the great gun rests is built of steel, the different parts revolving on ball bearings. Cog wheels, levers and multiple chains are so arranged that it is easy work for the gunner to raise or lower or turn in any direction the long barrel of shining steel. At the rear there is a steep leading to the platform, on which the gun crew is placed when the piece is in action.

Herr Krupp's agents do not tell the story that the great gun is to be presented to Chicago when the fair is over with any display of enthusiasm. If there has any such idea in view, they know nothing of it, and after the fair the gun will undoubtedly be returned to the works in Essen. The gun cost about $250,000, and Herr Krupp has expended $50,000 in mounting it at Chicago.

EXCITEMENT AMONG CHINAMEN.

Gee Wash's Visitor Rifles the Money Drawer.

There was excitement among the Chinamen on North avenue this afternoon. A Celestial visiting Gee Wash, who is proprietor of a laundry, took all the money from the cash drawer when he thought he wasn't observed, and skipped out.

Gee Wah and another Chinaman gave chase and closely followed the thief, who ran up over the railroad and down Park avenue to Fifth street, where he was overtaken and brought back. Policeman Kiely placed the whole lot of them in jail, until he could ascertain what the trouble was. Then all were released except the guilty one.

SUING FOR $20,000.

One of the Victims of the Greenville Collision Sues the Company.

A suit for $20,000 damages was commenced yesterday in the Union County Court, by Julia F. Gilroy, against the Central Railroad of New Jersey. The plaintiff was one of the victims of the rear-end collision on the Central Railroad at Greenville on December 6, 1892, and was badly hurt. She spent several weeks in the Jersey City Hospital, and since her removal to her home has not been able to leave her room. Since the accident it has cost her $200 for medical attendance.

Several Plainfielders were in the Greenville collision. Mr. Elmer Runyon was one of the injured and Mrs. Frank Vail another. Mr. Runyon has settled with the company, but Mrs. Vail's suit will come up this term.

PLANTING CORN IN THE ROAD

Dr. Ripley Making a Farm out of the County Road.

Dr. Chauncey B. Ripley, of Westfield, is taking liberties with the county roads which has opened him to the accusation of being a trespasser, and the County Road Inspector has been complained to by those who use the roadway. Inspector Corbet on visiting the locality found Mr. Ripley's men engaged in plowing up the road between the curb and the macadam, and planting fodder corn.

One side of the road at Oakland, between Cranford and Westfield, has been plowed, and it was stated that Dr. Ripley intended the same thing would be done with the other side. Mr. Corbet, however, says orders that the encroachment on the roads must be stopped, and he will proceed against Dr. Ripley as a trespasser unless his order is obeyed.

In this action Mr. Corbet is backed by members of the Board of Freeholders and the supervisor of Director Sauer. It is contended that Dr. Ripley has no right to do as he is doing. His apparent purpose is to improve the appearance of the road, and by sowing grass next season, raise lawns of the space on both sides of the macadam, but it narrows the road way to the paved portion, about ten feet in width.

The contention of Director Sauer and others who oppose Dr. Ripley's plan is that the public have the right to the full width of the roads from curb to curb, and no one has a right to make any use of the road that limits the privileges of people driving on the road.

LECTURE ON DAVID COPPERFIELD

Given by Mr. Powers in the Baptist Church.

Mr. Leland T. Powers lectured on David Copperfield in the First Baptist church, last evening for the benefit of the Sarah Leslie Missionary Society. Mr. Powers began by saying that he would give his lecture in four parts. Beginning with the scene at Yarmouth, with Lawyer Wickfield and his daughter Agnes, David Copperfield, Mr. Micawber, old Peggotty, Daniel Peggotty, little Emily, Mr. and Mrs. Micawber, Betsy Trotwood, Martha and Uriah Heep.

David Copperfield and Agnes are first seen out on the promenade talking when Uriah appears on the scene. Uriah's delightfully conversation upon different matters, his servile sentiments, his humble manner upon being very humble, etc. Copperfield leaves them and going down to the beach meets Peggotty and Emily, and they go down to visit old fisherman Peggotty, who seems glad to see them. Peggotty's nephew is living with him. Also of Ham who seems to be greatly in love with her. It then appears that Mr. Micawber has come to London and Mrs. Micawber is left at home with the twins. He then goes on and tells some very pleasant anecdotes concerning Mrs. Micawber received callers, etc., which made part one.

Miss Grant then sang the solo, "A Little Flower Girl."

Part II opens with Lawyer Wickfield, Uriah Heep and Mr. Micawber, as the principal characters. Mr. Wickfield owns a house to which Emily and Ham go after Ham has proposed to her and she has turned him down. Ham then goes to London and Mrs. Micawber received callers, etc., which made part one.

Telautograph.

It means literally your autograph at a distance. Its inventor, Elisha Gray, looks in his portrait like the benevolent man sometimes depicted in the crescent moon—a tuft of thick white hair at his forehead and a tuft of thick white beard at the point of his chin forming the two horns of the crescent. He worked six years at his telautograph before perfecting it.

By means of the invention of Mr. Gray a man may sit down at his desk and with a lead pencil write a letter to anybody in another city, no matter how far away. At the same moment he writes each word will be copied in ink at the other end of the line. His own writing, his own signature, will be reproduced. Of course electricity is the magician that has been once more made to serve man. Attached to the lead pencil near its point are two silken cords. These connect with the transmitting instrument upon the desk and convey the message from the writer's hand to the uttermost parts of the earth. The writing is done upon a roll of paper attached to the little machine. Another similar machine upon the desk constitutes the receiving telautograph, and upon this latter one is the pen which writes the answer when the man's friend sends it back to him.

Thus without any more delay than is necessary in sending a telephone message, and with satisfaction and certainty, a letter can be sent and the answer received. The pen which records the writing at the receiver's end of the line is a small glass tube held between two aluminium supports. Ink from a reservoir flows automatically down the tube as it writes.

One advantage from the telautograph is that drawings of any kind may be reproduced in exact outline at the other end. Maps, diagrams and outline pictures necessary for hurried newspaper illustration can thus be transmitted. Bankers, brokers and business men may by its means send any message, which they do not wish to trust to a confidential clerk or even to a pretty typewriter girl. Signatures to documents can be transmitted quickly. One advantage, too, is that it will write a letter to you when you are not at home and leave it for you in miraculous manner, as the spirits are said to do. It is safe to say, however, that the telautograph, admirable as it is, will be as expensive a luxury as the telegraph and telephone are.

Anti-Bellamy.

A book that is bound to make as great a sensation as Edward Bellamy's "Looking Backward" has lately been written by a German, Eugen Richter. Mr. Richter is a leader in the German parliament and an opponent of state socialism. His book is entitled "Pictures of the Future," and it promises to be the most telling blow that Bellamyism has yet received.

The story purports to be told by an ardent state socialist, one Schmidt, a workman whose dream it had been that all mankind were equal and that the state should enforce this equality and regulate all things. At the beginning his dream has been realized; the socialistic republic has been proclaimed. People are no longer to live in little separate homes, but they are to lodge wherever the state orders them to and take their meals in great public kitchens all alike. There are no more rich and no more poor.

The golden dream is first rudely shaken by the breaking up of the socialist's family. The state took charge of all the children and sent members of families wherever their work was most needed. In the republic, Schmidt and his wife were separated, their youngest child was turned over to a public nursery, and the older children were scattered far and wide. The little girl died, and Schmidt's wife went insane. Nothing turned out as had been expected; nobody was prosperous; everybody was wildly unhappy. At the close the socialist state was destroyed by revolution and a French invasion.

President Cleveland has made up his mind that the interests of the country demand the repeal of the law of 1890 which requires the United States treasury to purchase 4,500,000 ounces of silver per month, issuing silver certificates therefor. But silver men say if this is done then some substitute for the law must be had. As a compromise, the re-enactment of the Bland-Allison law has been suggested, which called for the coinage of not less than $2,000,000 nor more than $4,000,000 in silver per month.

It is satisfactory to learn that Colonel C. J. Murphy, European agent of the United States department of agriculture, reports a continued and increasing demand for American cornmeal food products. This is especially true of Germany, where the problem of cheap subsistence for human beings is so serious a one. At the same time we must not forget that the increased demand is greatly owing to the patriotic efforts of "Cornmeal Murphy" himself.

The needs of the agricultural experiment stations in all the states ought to devote considerable of their time and some of their appropriations to road improvement. It is an agricultural question quite as important in that of finding out what kind of corn gets fat fastest on whole corn, the kind cold or corn-stalks chopped and steamed and served hot.

FRANK C. ALMY HANGED.

The Slayer of Christie Warden Paid the Penalty.

HE WAS A REMARKABLE CRIMINAL

The Story of His Crime, His Escape, Conviction and Desperate Fight Before He Was Captured—Before He Was Tried and Convicted and Then Confessed.

CONCORD, N. H., May 16.—Frank C. Almy, whose real name was George H. Abbott, the murderer of Christie Warden, was hanged today at the state's prison.

His execution marks the closing chapter in the life of one of the most desperate and notorious criminals ever known in New England. Almy's father was a woolen manufacturer in Vermont, and the son had every opportunity for living a respectable life, but he began with stealing, passed on to burglary and ended in murder. Ten of the last 18 years he has been spent in state prisons, and yet the prisoner was not 36 years of age until January, 1890. In 1887 he escaped from prison in Windsor, Vt., where he was serving a 15 years' sentence for burglary. After wandering about the country he went to Hanover, N. H., and in July, 1890, applied for work at the farm of Andrew Warden of Hanover. Here he met Christie Warden. The story of his unsuccessful attempts to win her regard, and her final rejection in addition to accept a man who could tell nothing of his antecedents, is a familiar one.

FRANK C. ALMY.

On the 1st of April, 1891, Almy's time expired, and he was not re-engaged. The family, who had become alarmed at his violent temper, were glad to have him go, but tried to send him away in good humor.

The Story of the Crime.

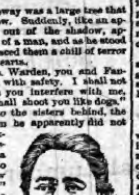
After leaving Mr. Warden's, Almy went around among the farmers to get work, but no one wanted him.

On June 14, 1891, he was hiding in Andrew Warden's barn. About 9:30 o'clock in the evening of July 17 Mrs. Warden, accompanied by her two daughters and a friend, was slowly walking homeward along a deserted road.

Close by a gateway was a large tree that cast a deep shadow. Suddenly, like an apparition gliding out of the shadow, appeared the figure of a man, and as he stood in the road and faced them a chill of terror stole over their hearts.

He said: "Mrs. Warden, you and Fannie may move on with safety. I shall not harm you unless you interfere with me, and if you do I shall shoot you like dogs."

Then turning to the sisters behind, the younger of whom he apparently did not recognize, he exclaimed: "Christie, I have come a thousand miles to meet you, and now our time is short."



CHRISTIE WARDEN.

Thereupon the speaker drew from his breast a revolver, which he cocked. As the weapon clicked, the frightened women saw the barrel shining in the moonlight. It was a moment of horrible suspense. The four women stood petrified, and the silence was only broken by the stranger saying in a harsh, cold voice: "Mrs. Warden, you know me, I believe. I am Frank Almy, and you have never known me to break my word. Move on, or I will shoot. Move on, I say."

Almy dragged her into the woodland beyond. At this point the ground was cleared. When once inside he threw his victim to the ground, and began dragging her toward a small brook.

Holding her there in his embrace, with a background of darkness to shield him, he fired twice at Christie's sister, then shot Christie herself. Then he fled.

The cruel assailant, with smoking revolver in hand, returned to his hiding place in the Warden barn, and was there, looking out between the boarding when the lifeless body of his victim was borne carried into the sorrow stricken home. There he remained for more than a month, forging his way to Canada at night, often visiting the grave of Christie.

Aug. 18 Mrs. Warden, the mother, found some empty cans under the barn and notified the authorities. Wednesday night, Aug. 19, Professor George H. Whittier and Deputy Sheriff Brown watched the Warden premises and at 11:30 in the morning were rewarded by seeing Almy come around the corner of the barn and go to an apple tree for fruit. The alarm was given. The barn was surrounded and after a siege of 10 hours and after having his leg broken by a bullet fired by Charles Hewitt, Almy surrendered on the assurance of John M. Fuller that he should not be injured.

He was taken to the Wheelock House, where he was identified as George H. Abbott by his relatives. He was subsequently followed by officers who had arrested him previously and by the authorities from the state prison at Windsor, Vt.

Arrested at Last.

On Aug. 25 he was committed to the jail at Manchester and on Sept. 30 was taken to Woodsville, where he pleaded "not guilty" to the charge of murdering Christie Warden. He purposely broke his leg again on his return to Manchester.

On Nov. 14, 1891, his trial commenced at Plymouth. Almy himself took the stand, his attorneys claimed that his deed was not premeditated, and on the second day a decision was arrived at, sentence being pronounced after the prisoner had left the courtroom, and he was sentenced to be hanged on the first Tuesday of December, 1892. The irregularity of this sentence, while he was not in court, caused a commotion in legal circles, and in order to quiet the apprehensions of the people, lest Almy would escape by legal methods, a new trial was asked for by his attorneys. In April, 1893, he was again taken to Plymouth, the same was reopened, and a second time, but this time in open court, Frank C. Almy was sentenced to be hanged by the neck until dead. The judge's former error had given him six months' lease of life, and the date of his execution was now placed at May 16, 1894.

Almy in prison has been quiet, reading much and talking little, and giving his guards no trouble. The desperation of the fugitive, however, aroused the apprehension of his keepers, and resulted in the adoption of a course unparalleled in New Hampshire, as the last 10 days of his life each watch. Day and night he was guarded. His cell was changed, and the prisoner was thus deprived of any opportunity to end his own life in order that justice might have its own and that the expiation of today should be complete.

His Last Day Spent in Reading.

Almy's last day on earth was not more eventful than many previous ones, he having passed a greater part of it buried in some book. For breakfast he ate wheat bread, molasses and coffee; at noon meat, bread and fruit, and for supper bread, coffee and fruit. He ate heartily of the same, having dined this at noon in company with his regret.

Almy did not talk with the chaplain on religious topics yesterday, neither did he express a desire to see him. The night he was taken from the cell which has been his home for more than 18 months and removed to the matron's room in the main building of the prison, where he remained until he was turned over to Sheriff Hurlbut by Warden Colbath this morning, a few minutes before the execution.

He was in charge of Messrs. Pillsbury and Colby, who have been his death watch for several days.

In his conversation with the warden he again expressed his desire for a decent burial, and his aversion to having his body sent to Hanover for dissection, while not designating the place he wished to be buried in or near this city, his wishes will be complied with.

The sheriff purchased a neat black suit, and arrangements with a local undertaker to provide a casket. Last week ex-Deputy Sheriff Foster of Hanover called on the warden and asked if a man claiming to be Almy's uncle could have the body. The warden replied that he should want to think it over before deciding. Almy was in fine spirits and physical condition.

WON BY DIABLO.

There Was Much Surprise When the Brooklyn Handicap Was Over.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Amid a deep and oppressive silence Diablo, the aged son of Rotus and Grace Darling, won the rich Brooklyn handicap at Gravesend in the presence of 20,000 persons.

Lowpligster, the favorite, who went to the post carrying a ton of money, was second, and Leonawell third. The winner's time was 2:09, made fractionally as follows: Quarter, 0:35½; half, 0:51; three-quarters, 1:16; mile, 1:42½; mile and a quarter, 2:09.

This was the fifth victory since 1880 which Diablo's victory was received was that the people felt instinctively that they had, in a measure, been the victims of what is known as a gamble. Diablo had been regarded simply as a high class selling plater that was likely to break down permanently in any race in which he started. The horse has raced three times at the recent Elizabeth meeting, winning only once out of three.

This year's Brooklyn handicap was the seventh in the history of the event and was guaranteed to be worth $25,000. Of this sum the winner gets $18,000, the second horse $3,000 and the third $2,000.

John L. Sullivan In Jail.

BANGOR, Me., May 16.—John L. Sullivan was arrested on a warrant sworn out in Biddeford, for assault upon M. L. Lesotis, a lawyer of Biddeford, committed on the 6th inst. Sullivan was arrested in a dressing room shortly after the performance of "The Man from Boston," by Officers Nickerson and Jacobs. He offered no resistance and was taken to the county jail by the officers. The manager of the company telegraphed to Biddeford to ascertain if they would allow Sullivan to give bail for his appearance in Biddeford today, but it was several hours before a reply was received. Sullivan was locked up in jail meanwhile.

Another Banquet to Satolli.

JERSEY CITY, May 16.—The Rev. Father Corrigan entertained Delegate Satolli at a public banquet in the school hall of St. Mary's parish, Hoboken. Dr. Corrigan presided, Delegate Satolli sat at his right and Governor Werts at his left. At the main table sat the mayors of Jersey City, Hoboken and Weehawken, the Rev. Drs. O'Gorman, Milz and Sylvester Malone. The toast to Bishop Wigger was deferred, as Dr. Corrigan expected his arrival. The Bishop, however, did not attend the banquet. Dr. Satolli was kept busy writing his autograph on the menu cards for the assembled guests.

The Gorilla Escaped.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 16.—A circus gorilla broke open his cage from the hinges and escaped from the tent. The people immediately scattered in every direction. # THE CHINESE MUST GO.

But How and When It Is Difficult to Decide.

CABINET DISCUSSING THIS POINT.

It Will Cost $2,000,000 to Send Them All Out of the Country and the Appropriation Is Almost Gone—China May Retaliate—Boats Received In San Francisco.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The president and his cabinet officers are deep in a discussion of the Chinese case today. The United States supreme court, in affirming the constitutionality of the Geary Chinese exclusion and registration act, has said that "the Chinese must go," but it remains for the president and his advisers to decide how and when and where they must go.

Until they do no order will be issued to the deportation of the Chinese. The instructions under which collectors of internal revenue and United States marshals are now operating direct them to make no arrests of unregistered Chinese, save on the further conclusion. Collectors may be given insight after the cabinet meeting as deferred for a longer period.

Secretary Carlisle, soon after he heard by the decision of the supreme court, went to the executive mansion and had a talk of an hour with the president on the subject. He remained for an hour or more.

It Will Cost Millions.

Attorney General Olney said that the department of justice had no money for deporting Chinese. Congressive estimate the amount necessary to deport the unregistered Chinese at $2,000,000. The suggestion is made in official circles here that the Chinese minister might pay the costs and ask to be allowed to register and remain in this country.

At the Chinese legation the Chinese minister declined to be drafted to express any opinion upon the decision of the court or to give any intimation as to the course his government might deem proper to adopt under the circumstances. He especially declined to say anything upon the alleged retaliatory policy of ordering the expulsion of American born China.

Government officers expressed surprise at the decision, but refrained from venturing opinions as to the future action in carrying out the law.

It is estimated that there are 110,000 Chinese in the United States. Reports from 54 districts show that 5,100 have registered. The 39 districts not yet heard from it is estimated will increase the number to 6,600, which is regarded to be the maximum registration. During the present fiscal year 189 Chinese subjects have been deported. The cost of deportation from San Francisco is $35 per head. Only $35,000.00 of the appropriation for the enforcement of the Chinese law remains unexpended. This amount will go but a small way toward paying the expenses of deporting the 106,000 Chinese who have not registered. It is not known at the treasury department that any other fund can be drawn upon to provide for the deportation of Celestials in the requirements of the law. Intimations are heard that congress may be convened to consider the matter.

The News In San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—When the news that the United States supreme court had sustained the Geary act, entirely upon the Chinese exclusion act reached the Chinese section where the 30,000 Chinese reside, representing nearly one-third of the entire number in the United States, they stood about in large groups before their own lottery boards, for some statement from the Six Companies which had compelled them to refuse to register. They were not prepared to accept the report through the American newspapers. During the first hour the effect was extremely depressing among the Chinese, but it was evident the news was distasteful and unexpected, as it had not been telegraphed that the decision would turn the other way.

Chinese Vice Consul Chong Owang said: "I have nothing to say in regard to the important decision of the United States court of the supreme court on the Chinese race in America. It will be a great blow to business in Chinatown. As to what the Chinese government may do in the matter I have still less to say. The treaty between China and America has been broken by the government at Washington and is no longer a contract, and will not be regarded by the Chinese government as a factor governing any action they may see fit to take."

Lyman Mowry, attorney for the Chinese Six Companies here, says he thinks the law unjust, and says he thinks no immediate action will be taken by the government to deport the Chinese. He declares that it will cost $10,000,000, which has not been appropriated. He thinks the president will have action in view in matter deferred until congress convenes, and says there is no doubt in his mind but congress will repeal the Geary act.

The decision of the supreme court was received throughout the city in a quiet manner. The afternoon papers made large sales in announcing it. The extras on the newspaper bulletin boards were neither large nor demonstrative, although the feeling seemed general that some excitement would naturally follow the enforcement of the law in this city, representing as it does such large numbers of Chinese, and the headquarters of the six companies from which had such a controlling influence over Chinese laborers in this country. Crowds were attracted to the vicinity of the Six Companies' headquarters and those of Dr. O'Donnell and Dennis Kearney, local anti-Chinese agitators, who urged their followers to hold mass meetings approving the decision.

The Three Still There.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Deputy Internal Revenue Collector Kervin has not yet been notified of the decision of the supreme court in the Geary act case. Chief Deputy United States Marshal Kennedy is waiting for orders what to do with Lee Joe, Wong Shoo or Fat Ji, the three Chinese, who were ordered to be deported by Justices Brown and Lacombe, and whose appeal to the supreme court was decided against them. In the meantime Mr. Kervin and all the other deputy marshals are not losing no rest after the 3,246 delinquent Chinese in this city

Suicide of a Boy.

Simply Awful

Worst Case of Scrofula the Doctors Ever Saw

Completely Cured by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

"When I was 4 or 5 years old I had a scrofulous sore on the middle finger of my left hand, which got so bad that the doctors said the finger must be cut off, or the disease would spread all over my body. I had been to my family physician, and he said he could do no more for me. Then I went to the hospital, and they said they could do no more. Then I went to another doctor, and he said it was the worst case of scrofula he ever saw. He said he could do nothing for me. I kept on and I had taken two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I believe I got the first benefit. A short time after I had taken three bottles I was entirely cured. For the past 4 years I have had no sores. I Work all the Time. Before, I could do no work. I know not what to say strong enough to express my gratitude to Hood's Sarsaparilla for my cure." GEORGE W. The President Thinks She Should Be Met In a Democratic Manner — Spaniards Horrified at the Thought — Must Not Call the President a Mugwump.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Infanta Eulalie is coming, and the cloud that overspread the sky of international etiquette has partly cleared away. From what can be learned in reference to the courtesies to be paid the Infanta on her arrival in America it is now not been definitely settled whether the president will go beyond the bounds of American custom and meet the infanta at New York or remain in Washington and receive her at the White House in the same simple manner in which other distinguished persons have been received.

The Infanta's decision to continue her journey to America, it is therefore assumed, was not influenced by any unusual concessions to Spanish royal etiquette promised in advance by the United States authorities. The president is said to be thoroughly in favor of doing all that can be done to pay proper honor to the infanta during her visit, but he wants to do it in the American way. The royal lady is due in New York on May 19, and the time intervening will give plenty of opportunity for the arrangement of the details of her reception.

New York Is Perturbed.

In New York, society's leading question at present is: Will there be a gala ball in honor of the Infanta Eulalie?

Up to Sunday there seemed to be no doubt in the fashionable mind that a royal reception was to take place on the evening of May 24. But the disquieting news on Sunday that the Infanta might be called back to Spain from Havana took the wind out of the sails of anticipation.

Arturo Cuyas, Enrico Rossa and the other gentlemen on the committee for arranging the ball of the Circulo Colon-Cervantes are very much perturbed over the position reported to have been taken by President Cleveland in not promising to return the call which the infanta would make when she visited Washington.

"Mr. Rossa said: "The affairs of the ball have taken a most unfortunate turn. The arrangements were almost completed when the news of President Cleveland's action came in a dispatch from the Spanish minister.

"Why should not the president meet the infanta as King Humbert met Queen Victoria and offer an international courtesy? If the infanta came here simply in a private capacity it would be a different matter, but the princess is here at the request of congress, and therefore as the guest of the nation. Under these circumstances for the president to neglect to greet the infanta, or even to return her formal call would be nothing short of an insult.

"Spain cannot afford to be insulted, and rather than run the risk her representative will be recalled. Spain is a poor nation, but nevertheless the government went to great expense to fit up the cruisers and send over her men-of-war to participate in the naval review.

"I am waiting to hear further from the Spanish minister, and I do not dare to make any further arrangements for the ball until I hear from him. I sincerely hope the matter will be cleared up without further embarrassment."

Mr. Cuyas, president of the ball committee of the Circulo Colon-Cervantes, said: "Any difficulty could be obviated by President Cleveland promising to show a simple international courtesy. The Infanta would not consent to become the guest of president and Mrs. Cleveland at the White House. By this evening or Wednesday morning the whole matter will be decided, and nothing will be done until that time."

A dispatch from Havana says the Infanta Eulalie and her husband, Prince Antoine embarked at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon on the steamer Maria Christina for New York.

The President Was Angry.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The New York Herald correspondent sends his paper the following:

President Cleveland has dealt the mugwumps a severe blow. He resented being called a mugwump himself and said he would not appoint any man to office who doubted his Democracy.

Mr. Cleveland was angry when he said this. His very emphatic declaration was made to Secretary Hoke Smith, who had been backing W. C. Owens of Kentucky for the consul generalship to Berlin. The other prominent candidate for the position was Beacon Myrick, editor of The Times-Recorder of Americus, Ga., where Speaker Crisp lives. Mr. Crisp has been making a strong and determined fight for his fellow townsman and would probably have succeeded but for the action of the secretary of the interior.

Mr. Smith told the president the editor had called Mr. Cleveland a mugwump and had called his Democracy into question. The president demanded that copies of the issue of the paper containing the editorial "allegs" at him should be produced. Secretary Smith took them to the White House, and after reading them Mr. Cleveland declared that he would appoint no man to office who doubted his Democracy.

The Russian Treaty Delayed.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The official copy of the Russian treaty addressed to the secretary of state in Washington by the United States minister at St. Petersburg is overdue, and state department officials are complaining at the delay in its receipt. On April 27 the treaty was sent from St. Petersburg by express, and it was confidently expected in New York last Saturday by the mail steamer.

ROME, May 16.—The ministry of justice is preparing a bill which will prevent priests from meddling with politics at elections.

FALES' PLAN FAILED.

The Boy Murderer Had Planned to Escape the Gallows.

NEWARK, N. J., May 16.—Robert A. Fales, the boy murderer, who is confined in the Essex county jail, made an attempt to escape. He had asked permission to scrub the floor in the bathroom. The wardens became suspicious and the floor of the bathroom was examined, and it was found that two boards had been sawed through, making an opening into the cellar of the building.

When Fales took his usual exercise keepers were stationed to watch him. He slipped into the bathroom. The keepers followed and surprised him as he was about to lift the boards. He was taken before the warden to whom he admitted that he had intended to escape. By jumping through the hole in the floor he could easily have reached the street. Fales is under sentence to be hanged for the murder of Thomas Haydon.

Columbia Must Explain.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The Norwegian steamer Antonio Zambrana on Dec. 29 sailed for South America with clearance papers for Barranquilla on the Magdalena river, but not finding the stream navigable to that place made an effort to land her cargo at Port Colombia, United States of Colombia, 20 miles to the westward. This she was not allowed to do by the authorities there, and after having lost her captain and four of the crew by drowning and the first mate, Stubbs, having been arrested and imprisoned, she slipped her cable and left the scene of difficulty without formality. Serious trouble may grow out of the occurrence, as she was under an American charter.

Another Bank Suspends.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 16.—The Farmers' and Merchants' State bank has suspended payment with the following notice posted: "Pending a run, this bank has suspended payment. Expect to resume in a few days. D. T. Lacy, Cashier." What the bank is a very small one, its paidup capital being but $60,000 and its surplus about $7,000, it has been looked on as weak for some time and no surprise is caused by the suspension, which it is believed, will prove only temporary at first.

Northwestern Guaranty Loan Affairs.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 16.—The Northwestern Guaranty Loan company is now in an embarrassed condition owing to the financial stringency. The company is about 20 years old and its stock is $1,250,000. Bowns the $2,000,000 building in which its offices are located, and holds as collateral and is for simple a large amount of real property here, in Chicago and elsewhere.

the skirt out very stiffly. The style of the dress is in the arrangement of pink ribbon on the waist, which is shown by the sketch. Another very becoming little gingham frock has five small knife plaited flounces on the skirt, with a baby waist and puffed short sleeves, to be worn with a white guimpe. These "robes d'enfants" will, it is said, be very popular next season.

WOMAN AND HOME.

THE "SACRED BAND" WHO IN THE KITCHEN ARE HOUSEHOLD ANGELS.

Correct Comment Concerning Matters Which Are of Especial Interest to Women—Useful Information For Matrons and Maids—Points For the Cook.

One of the most intellectual women I ever knew was oftener found by me when I went to see her in the kitchen or dining room than in the parlor, but the attractive nerve hindered the flow of thought upon any subject upon which I wished to gain her views. Knowing that money and servants (such as they were) were plenty in her dear's family, I one day asked why she kept herself so much occupied with different kinds of household work. "Oh," she replied, "because what I do contributes as much to the comfort of the family," and she quoted Schiller to me as saying that some of the happiest hours of his life had been those in which his hands had been occupied with mechanical employment.

The work of the kitchen gave this lady no sense of degradation, and all over the land there are wives and mothers who, toiling for their own families in their own kitchens, never think themselves less ladies than they are in their parlors. But society says that when this same household work is done for others and for hire those who do it belong to a degraded class, and the barriers between this class and society are insurmountable, consequently domestic service belongs to the lower order of humanity. Now, while the lower orders live under our own roofs how can we expect family life to be without the plagues which at this day are tormenting housekeepers all over the land?

It was Ralph Waldo Emerson, I think, who said that when he inquired of a gentleman his errand in going to Boston he was answered, "I am going to hunt for an angel to do work in my kitchen." The gentleman was quite right. It is an angel precisely that is wanted for the place. When housekeepers look upon those who "make the family comfortable" as a "sacred band," then we may find angels in our kitchens, and the domestic servant problem will be solved.

Progress, slow perhaps, but sure, in many directions is being wrought out of the house and giving it to trades, still help forward the condition of having "angels" in the kitchen, for this is the result to which we should aspire. The Boston gentleman knew what he was wanted there, and it is not too much to say that there are many ladies in our land toiling as teachers, clerks, and even in library work who could get more money and better homes with less care and anxiety than they now have if they were engaged in domestic work without loss of social rank, as it might be if the notion that is now generally believed in the dignity of labor, really were faithful to true Americanism.

It is in the power of the women of the land to carry out the true American principle. It has never yet been carried out. Perhaps it were better to call it the true Christian principle—the one taught by our 1,800 years ago.—H. C. Ingersoll in New York Post.

The Higher Education of Women.

Anxiety is exhibited in many quarters about women who are striving for the higher education, meaning the education usually given to college students. What is it for? What will they do with it? What will they become? The professions are already full, even that of teaching, the most desirable, will eventually, at the rate of supply, be overcrowded. There are more women now who write than those who can read discriminatingly. Why urge so many into the higher education, the college training, for which they will have, if the world goes on marrying and baking and sweeping and keeping domestic establishments running, so little use? The question might be briefly answered, to make them women. In detail it might be added, to make them more interesting women, better company for themselves and others, fuller of resources for a life alone or a family life, with an intelligent apprehension of what is going on in the world.

To improve the tone of society is excuse enough for the higher education, even if it were not desirable that typewriters should be intelligent. And beyond the needs of society can it be doubted that if all the mothers of this generation were educated—capable of rightly directing the intellectual development of young minds—the next generation would show a marked improvement over the present? The disappointment about this education arises from misplaced expectations. It isn't the office of education to upset society, but to make it better. The professions can absorb a limited number only. Society needs an unlimited number of highly intelligent persons.—Charles Dudley Warner in Harper's.

What Riches Would Mean to One Woman.

"If I were rich," remarked a woman, "I would be clean, beautiful and happy. As a matter of fact it costs a great deal of money to be clean. Personal cleanliness means clean clothes and plenty of them, not water, a private bath, individual toilet articles and an occasional purchase of drug gists' supplies. A good flesh brush alone costs $2, and linen towels, velvet sponges and pure soaps are not to be had for the asking. If I had money I would take 12 vapor baths a year. I would have a shower, a foot bath, scales and a health lift in my bathroom. I would have one milk bath a month as a skin tonic and three hot tubs a week for beauty sleep. I would use 75-cent toilet bar toothbrushes, $12 a dozen web towels, and odors, oh, a plan violet water and alcohol by the gallon for morning sponge baths.

"Every day 'Boots' should come to polish my shoes and brush my wraps and dress, and every other day I would receive a coiffeur to brush out my hair, but my head. I would have white lambs' wool body garments for winter and white woven silk for warm weather. So much for the toilet. If I could afford $2 worth of cab service for a week's shrinkage, a two weeks' voyage, or month of travel, two complete outfits a year made by a French modiste of my own selection, $25 a week for the table supplies I know to be health producing, hence beautifying, and had access to the professional advice and professional service of a medical surgeon and a surgeon dentist, I would be a very good looking woman."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Defect In the Mother's Training.

An incident happened the other day which would seem incredible to me if I had not personally witnessed it. A woman entered a horse car, preceded by a girl and boy of about 12 and 13 years, I should say. Near the front end there were just two seats, which the boy and girl at once took. Passengers looked amazed, but came to the instantaneous conclusion that the children did not belong to the woman or she would hardly allow the boy to sit while she stood, but indignation rose to a white heat a few seconds later, after a young fellow touched his hat to the woman and gave her his place, when the boy leaned over and began some remark with "mother."

This was too much for an old man near, who growled out with unmistakable severity in his tones: "Mister, what do you expect your boy will become when you allow him to sit while a stranger rises to give you a seat?" Then turning to the young man, "Sit down again, sir, don't be imposed upon." But the latter quietly walked to the other end of the car to avoid a scene, while the boy, who had never once attempted to rise, looked as black as a thundercloud. "I hate that boy rules the whole household." "Did you ever see anything quite like that?" and "What a mother!" were some of the half smothered exclamations on all sides.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Sandwiches For the Children.

Until a mother has tried it she will not know what an unerring aid to the children's luncheon table are sandwiches. A plate piled up with these appetizing dainties will fade before a group of hungry children like snow before the sun. It is also an excellent way to disguise unattractive cold meat that would be refused by the youngsters if offered in its normal state. Two or three kinds of cold meat, the accumulation from several meals, can be utilized in this way more palatably. Remove all coarse fat and gristly pieces, add a bit of tongue or ham if possible to flavor, or chopped parsley if the children like it, and after seasoning it with salt only spread between thin pieces of homemade bread, brown or white or both.

The success of sandwiches, to children as well as to others, is in their making. Thick pieces of alum risen bread choke little throats as quickly as big. Jam, relish (stewed and spilt), dats and fig sandwiches are all acceptable to small fry and are wholesome sweets. Maple sugar is considered an especially delicious filling by them. Also grated granulated sugar has done duty, by way of variety, with great success. —Chicago Journal.

A Frenchwoman's Plan.

A French mother has hit upon a plan to preserve the health and beauty of her daughter and has given it to her friends with the strength of her indorsement as to its success. She declares that "the young lady went to a ball six days a week, but on Sundays staid in bed, rising only for 5 o'clock tea and retiring again at an early hour. The results of this system were very happy. When the time came for going to the seaside, she was the only one of her companions who did not need its benefits. She was like a country girl, as fresh as a rose." This experiment, by the way, has been tried in this country, but not in the old-Christian Gallic manner, and has been found efficacious.

Two sisters, with arduous household duties, make a practice of spending one day each week—say Tuesday or Thursday—in bed, with the result that they never have ill, and for that matter never tired—never required a vacation or a change of air. The suggestion, therefore, is not a new one, but it is at all times worth considering. Picture, however, the average nervous, careless girl-wife giving herself up to the whole day in bed!—New York World.

The Princess of Wales Is Not Beautiful.

The Princess of Wales spends a great deal of time in the open air, but she doesn't take any more exercise than an infant. She drives, goes coaching, yachting and sleigh riding in season, but never walks in public, owing to a slight lameness, about which she is said to be very sensitive. She has a small supply of black hair, her teeth are so defective as to be the occasion of much embarrassment, and she has an ugly nose on her face that she keeps the dog collar necklace in style for nearly a quarter of a century. It is said in the beauty shops of the Rue de la Paix that it takes three hours to make a toilet for her twice a week to keep her head dressed. Her face is as distinctly tinted as a miniature portrait. Her wigs are dressed in Paris, and all her ornaments come from the same firm. She is rarely seen without a dotted gauze veil, her bonnets are exquisite, her dresses are the very perfection of the dressmaker's art. She has a most beautiful figure, her manners are charming, and she is adored by the English people, but she is not beautiful.—London Letter.

Little Things in the Stockroom.

Says a trained nurse: "Don't let the patient see the bottle you get for her. Bills coming duty in the stockroom. I've known persons weak from long illness become positively exhausted from receiving the memorandum bills the bad perhaps going for weeks. I nursed a woman once, following her daughter, and she confessed to me the whole time my arrival that she relied in the way I managed the replenishing of the open fire was alone worth my salary. I brought the coal in from the cellar in a pail always when she was asleep, wrapping it in a cloth, and of course putting it on piece by piece with my hands gloved.

"You have no idea how I have drained the coalbin process," she said. "My daughter had the coal scuttle standing ready, and as I would note the fire growing low I would dread for an hour beforehand that crash of coal which seemed inevitable.'"

Loving care cannot always be trained care, and it is the latter a sick person needs. —Her Point of View in New York Times.

Two Things About Canned Goods.

It is rather the fashion to decry tinned goods, and one may overhear ladies and (they say) people who ought to allow them to appear upon their tables, alleging that they are both unhealthy and "very dangerous." Yet when the whole of the stock-in-trade of all trades upon a yacht or steamer without remark. If properly treated, they are perfectly harmless and wholesome, those being two essential points which should be invariably remembered. The first is that when a can is opened the edible, whatever it is, should be turned out at once into some other dish and should never be kept standing in the tin.

Careless cooks are apt to leave tomatoes or mushrooms or other tinned things used for seasoning in the can sometimes for several days, in which case they are sure to be injurious. The other rule is that a vegetable should never, under any circumstances, whether at a picnic or to save the cook trouble, be warmed in its own tin.—New York Tribune.

A Pretty Lamp Shade.

One of the prettiest lamp shades I have seen recently is very easily made at a cost of about 20 cents. Get a yard of red gauze veiling as 15 cents, gather it with strong silk two inches from the top, to a length that will fit the neck of a white porcelain shade. Inside of the gathering fix a piece of brass wire, fastening to the gauze by stack stitches here and there. Now fit it to the shade and blind stitch the ends of veiling together, which will now hang several inches below the shade. Catch up the gauze at regular intervals in six places, fasten with a few stitches, and cover the place with a bow of narrow red ribbon. This bow should have four loops and two ends, each about 2 inches long. The current of air drawn by the flame of the lamp will keep these little streamers in constant motion. The same shade, developed in yellow mull with yellow ribbon, is even a prettier, to my thinking.—Housekeeper Weekly.

Housekeeping In the White House.

The interior of the White House has little trouble in housekeeping for all the servants are paid for out of the President's salary. On him devolves the duty of, preparing a bill of fare and of marketing. Then he sends to market and gives the order. Often he is variably remembered. The first is that when a can is opened the edible, whatever it is, should be turned out at once into some other dish and should never be kept standing in the tin.

Careless cooks are apt to leave tomatoes or mushrooms or other tinned things used for seasoning in the can sometimes for several days, in which case they are sure to be injurious. The other rule is that a vegetable should never, under any circumstances, whether at a picnic or to save the cook trouble, be warmed in its own tin.—New York Tribune.

The Vienna Twist.

Women who cannot wear the "bun" clinging are favoring the Vienna twist. You make it this way: Dress, have your fringe (or bangs) at least from 4 to 6 inches long and curl it tightly. Then you comb it out from, not toward, your face, gather all your hair into one tail, tying securely just above the nape of the neck. Then ease out the hair over the r's and weave it with the bangs. Twist the tail into a smooth rope and loop it up, twisting the end around the ribbon and tying the hair above. Coax any short hair on the nape of the neck and the bangs back into place with invisible hairpins. Some women add a bow of velvet with upright bows; others affect a wide fold of surah silk fastened around the coil and finished by a paste buckle.

Appearances at Home.

Don't say that it doesn't matter how you look around the house, for it does matter a great deal. It matters for the general credit of the establishment that the wife, feminine head is the creditable or gay slipshod representative; it matters in its example to the children and to the help; it matters to the husband and failing the moral, if he is half a man, feels a sense of pride in the appearance of his family.

It is poor encouragement to him to find confusion and carelessness in dress and waste and destruction running riot about his dwelling. It is one of the important duties of every woman to keep herself and her house in a condition as presentable as possible, considering her circumstances.—New York Ledger.

A Way to Save Tired Feet.

If people who are troubled with tired feet could know the relief that comes from the use of onions placed in flannel in the shoes where they stand when dishes are washed or vegetables prepared, they would provide themselves with one or more of these pads at once. They may be made with several thicknesses of old cloth, bagging, carpet lining or loose blanket stitched together and covered with old carpet or drug get, the whole cut to fit the shoe nicely, and the whole then tacked like a comfortable. Hang it up by two loops when not in use, to keep the edges from curling up. In fact, to prevent this it is not a bad plan to have it oblong in shape.—Albany Cultivator.

Economical Gloves.

To reduce the glove bill is always a perplexing problem. The most economical way, after all, is to select the best gloves in shades that will not easily soil and to make sure of a perfect fit. Gloves that are too large, that wrinkle, soil more easily than those that fit perfectly. The heavy kids in 4 and 5-button lengths, with broad stitching on the backs, are not only very fashionable, but durable. The seams of these gloves are lapped, and they are finished with broad and large bone or brass buttons. For street wear nothing can replace the tans and deep grays. For calling and theater wear light gloves with black stitchings are much worn.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Recipes In Autographs.

The autograph craze has revived, but with a practical rather than a poetical motive. Instead of signing on the bestowal and truth of friendship, one is requested now to write on the blank pages of the collector's album his or her favorite recipe with date and signature. It would seem as first thought to be a more wholesome fancy than the gathering together of rhymes, but considered in the worst sense of the digestive apparatus upon which these numerous recipes may be tried by an ambitious housewife swapping sentiments may be less destructive and undesirable.—Exchange.

Orange Biscuits.

Orange biscuits are made by boiling whole orange in water or brine until tender. Drain them and take out the pulp and juice, then pound the peel (previously dried) very fine in a mortar, and put to it an equal weight of dried and sifted sugar, pounded and sifted. When perfectly mixed to a paste, spread it thin on china dishes and set them in the sun and before the fire. When half dry put into whatever form you prefer and dry both sides. Keep in a box with layers of paper.—Boston Globe.

A Hint About Conversation.

Avoid in conversation all mention of your own affairs. The clever woman guards her heartstrings, its sorrows, troubles and annoyances carefully as she does the sacred ness of her religion. The world admires your cheerfulness, your attractiveness, your brightness. Your griefs belong to yourself. They are your life, which should be closed with iron portals. Even if your heart break, recollect the critical public as all those likes a smiling face and cheerful manner.—Harper's Bazar.

Mrs. Hicks-Lord of New York, according to her history, posts her tea from a Dresden pot that looks like a big bunch of Parma violets. The handle is a lilac ribbon of china, and each cup of violets rests in a saucer of green violet leaves.

The Marquise Lanza of New York has some fine diamonds and some Mexican garnets which resemble rubies. She is also the owner of a scarfpin which formerly belonged to the French prince imperial, who was killed by the Zulus.

Every woman before leaving her room after the morning toilet should open wide the windows, placing the bedclothes so that the air will freshen the sheets, blankets and pillows.

When hot grease has been spilled on the floor, the best thing to do is to dash cold water over it, so as to harden it quickly and prevent it from soaking into the boards.

The best school of good manners is the family gathering, and the basis of good manners is courtesy.

Burns Knew Better.

It was the fate of a practical and patriotic Scotchman of Rochester to assist at a meeting of a certain improvement society, the while an ambitious young scholar dilated upon the virtues of his favorite writer. At the close of the meeting the stranger approached the lecturer, and the following dialogue ensued:

"Ye think a fine lot o' Shakespeare, doctor?"

"I do, sir," was the emphatic reply.

"An ye think he was nae mair clever than Rabbi Burns?"

"Why, there's no comparison between them."

"Maybe no, but ye tell us the night it was Shakespeare who wrote 'Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown.' Now, Rabbi would never has written sic nonsense as that."

"Nonsense, sir!" thundered the indignant doctor.

"Aye, just nonsense. Rabbi would has kent fine that a king, or a queen either, disna gang to bed wi' the croon on their head. They hang it ower the back o' a chair!"—Exchange.

A Friend In Need.

Mr. Gadling—Yes, the grief I feel over the loss of my mother drives me across the water. I will never return.

Mr. Chumley—Never return? Are you sure of that?

"No, you will never see me again."

"Say, lend me $5 until you get back."—Texas Siftings.

THE CHORAL SOCIETY.

THE ANNUAL MEETING HELD LAST EVENING.

Officers Elected for the Ensuing Year—The Reports of the Secretary and Treasurer Show that the Past Season Has Been Eminently Successful.

The annual meeting of the Choral Society for the election of officers was held at the Vincent chapel last night. President Howland presided. The election of a president, as Mr. Howland declined re-nomination, was deferred until another time, no other candidate having been previously decided upon, as it was taken for granted that Mr. Howland could be prevailed upon to accept a renomination. The following are the officers elected:

Vice-President—Charles W. McCutchen.
Treasurer H. C. Otis Newman.
Secretary—Nelson Runyon.
Directors—D. E. Davis, R. J. Shaw and G. T. Rogers.
Librarian—Stacy Reynolds.

The annual reports of the secretary and treasurer were read, giving very satisfactory results and showing that the past season has been one of eminent success. From a musical standpoint it has been a highly successful season for the society.

The report of the secretary shows that at the first concert there were 110 members on the roll and the average percentage of attendance at the rehearsals was 74, for the second concert, out of 111 members the average percentage of attendance at rehearsal was 68; for the third concert, with 118 members, the average percentage of attendance at rehearsals was 67.

The secretary in his report was very severe on those members who persistently neglected rehearsals, and, in order to enforce his point, said that if a member's absence from rehearsal made no difference as to the effectiveness of the chorus then the reelection of such a member should not be delayed beyond the next regular meeting of the Society.

In the secretary's report, which was adopted unanimously, was the following: "We desire to bear testimony to the generous and courteous treatment extended to our society by the entire city press, and to the highly commendatory reports of our concerts, which have appeared therein during the past season."

The society's conductor, Mr. Fitzhugh, was present, and spoke for a few moments, complimenting the society on its work of the year.

The Choral Society aims to foster in the community a taste for the best music, and realizing that its mission is in some degree educational, its members devote earnest work to the study of serious compositions in preference to those that are more successful. The society inaugurated this year the plan of giving at the middle concert of its series a program of carefully selected part-songs and accompanied by choruses. For the season of 1893-94, the society will pursue a musical study similar to that of the term just completed, and it is proposed to give for the first concert, Gaul's "Holy City," and for the third, "Elijah," or perhaps a new work not before produced in Plainfield.

The program of the second concert is expected will contain selections and short numbers of a more varied character.

TUESDAY EVENING SOCIAL CLUB.

A Pleasant Time Enjoyed at the Home of Mr. Van Winkle.

The Tuesday Evening Social Club held its final meeting last night at the residence of Mrs. Nelson Van Winkle's, on Central avenue.

A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all present. The evening's entertainment consisted of singing, recitations, games and refreshments.

There were duets by the Misses Van Winkle, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Winkle and Messrs. Leland and Talmage and recitations by Miss Greenand Mr. Carter.

The committee were complimented for the manner in which they arranged and conducted the affair.

Last night's meeting will be the last until October.

PERSONAL.

Miss Elsie Reed will give a party to a number of friends at her home in Nethewood to night.

In the head pin tournament at the Crescent League Mr. Charles R. Theirs won first prize and Mr. Charles E. Vail second. The prizes were bowling balls.

Ex-Councilman J. K. Myers and wife, of Seventh street, start Monday on a visit to the World's Fair, and propose to remain as long as there is anything worth seeing. Good luck to them.

The Rev. K. F. Ketcham started this morning for Washington to attend the one hundred and fifth general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States, which begins to-morrow.

On Thursday, June 1st, Miss Florence Tilsworth, daughter of Mr. John D. Tilsworth of Madison avenue, will be married to Mr. Henry Siebreicht of New Rochelle, N. Y. The ceremony will take place in the Seventh day Baptist church.

Miss Emily Sandford played several choice selections on the piano, Mr. L. S. Bond sang and Mr. Chas. L. Case told of some interesting personal experiences, at the entertainment for the boys, at the Boys' Club, last evening. There were about 90 boys present.

HOW TO RESTORE LIFE

IN THE APPARENTLY DEAD FROM DROWNING.

Artificial Respiration, Says Doctor Murray, Would Save Many a Life if Continued for the Proper Length of Time, Which is Hours.

The third in the course of emergency lectures, at the Irving school, was given last evening, by Dr. Murray.

The doctor spoke first of the treatment of the partially drowned. In the first place a person who has been in the water for any length of time, although apparently dead may be restored if properly treated. If you delay a moment he may lose his life. It is therefore necessary that what is done must be done quickly. The first thing to do is to rid the mouth of water by laying the person flat on his back, turning the head to one side and taking the tongue between the thumb and finger pull it out as far as possible until the water is entirely out of the mouth. After a few seconds begin artificial respiration. This is done by taking hold of the arms above the elbow and raising them above the head until they are straight. Then return them to the sides and press the elbows against the body, thus filling the lungs with air and then forcing it again. This should be continued for an hour at least, if necessary, as many persons are given up for dead when a little more work would restore them. If the persons gasps and then shows no signs of life the artificial respiration should be kept up for an hour afterwards. After getting a person back to life, the next thing to do is to get dry clothing—a blanket which has been heated, is the best thing, as it gives the required heat to the heart, which is very necessary. Artificial respiration is also good in case of suffocation by gas. In every case place the person flat on his back. In going into a room in which a person has been suffocated with gas great care is necessary, in order that you may not be overcome by the poison before reaching a window to let in fresh air.

When entering the room be careful to cover the nose and mouth with a handkerchief. After fresh air is let in you should retreat in order to recover your breath. Then return and take the person out of the room and place him flat on his back. The head may be raised slightly, but never sit a person up, as an upright position would stop the heart beating entirely. The heart is weak, and when in a sitting position its work is greater. After placing the person on his back, begin artificial respiration as in the case of drowning. Take hold of the arms above the elbow and raise them above the head. Then close the arms, return them to the side and press the elbows against the side, thus forcing the air in and out of the lungs, forcing them to breathe and so bringing the person back to life.

BURNS AND SCALDS.

In the case of burns and scalds the first thing to do, is, if the clothes are not burned off, to cut them off. Never use a knife for this, but always a pair of scissors, even if you have to wait a little longer for them. The cutting of a knife is very painful to the injured. Do entirely away with everything that holds moisture as it will dry and make the burn worse. Keep out the air. Nothing is better for a burn than vaseline. If you cannot get this, linseed oil and lime water are the next best, or a little baking soda dissolved in a glass of water is a good remedy, but it must be applied constantly to keep the wound from getting dry. Give to the patient all the water he requires, the more the better. Some people have an idea that a person burned must not drink water. This a wrong impression. Give them all the water they want, unless they vomit. If they were vomiting no more water should be given. Stimulants, too, may be given. If the patient is pale give him whiskey. Not enough to cause sickness, but enough to act as a stimulant. It is better to give whiskey than not to.

FROZEN LIMBS.

Frozen limbs are known by the whiteness of the parts affected. The idea is to restore warmth. Use a handy rub the frozen portion with it, if not, use cold water. After you have restored the circulation of the blood bind cotton on.

POISON OF BITES.

The poison from a bite can often be kept from invading the system by tying a bandage above and below the wound, thus stopping the circulation of blood. Make the wound bleed freely, even if it has to be cut with a knife. Wash it thoroughly to remove the poison. You cannot wash the poison into the body. To cauterize a bite heat a stove poker red hot and burn it into the flesh.

FRACTURES.

The main object in the case of a fracture is to keep the parts still. The ragged ends of a broken bone may penetrate a blood vessel if moved about much. Then put the fractured part in splints. If it is the leg an ordinary flat strip of board on each side with bandages above and below the fracture will hold it until a doctor can be reached.

Dr. Murray illustrated the care of fractures by putting splints on a boy's legs, arms and hands. The lecture was very interesting.

Firemen to Play Ball.

Plainfield Engine Co. No. 3 has received a challenge from Lincoln Hose Co. No. 1, of Perth Amboy, to play a game of ball on Saturday, June 24. The challenge was accepted and the game will be played at Perth Amboy.

AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

This congress of representative women is intended to afford a proper and convenient opportunity for presenting the progress of women in all lands more fully than there would be opportunity to do in the other departments of the world's congress work. In this congress, all organizations of women of whatever name or object, and all distinguished women, whether they belong to any particular organization or not, will meet on absolutely equal terms for the advancement of the interests of women everywhere.

GESANG AND TURN VEREIN FAIR.

The Hall Prettily Decorated—Large Attendance Nightly.

The Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein Fair was opened Monday night at their hall on Somerset street.

The booths are prettily decorated in red, white and blue. In the centre of the floor is the flower stand, decked with evergreens. It is beautifully decorated, and is in charge of Mrs. Kentenfield. On the left of the hall is a large booth, running nearly the whole length of the building, which is very prettily decorated and arranged with the many beautiful things furnished by the ladies of the society and their friends. At this booth are Mrs. Vogeler, Mrs. Linke and Mrs. W. J. Pearson. On the right of the hall are the larger articles which are to be "chanced" off this week. At the farthest end Mrs. Denver and Mrs. Carl Feller preside at the refreshment counter, and they did a lively business the whole evening. Dancing began at 10 p. m. The floor is under the management of Mr. Charles F. Meyer. There will be dancing and bowling every evening. Mr. Pearson and Mr. Sanger have charge of the bowling alleys.

There was prize bowling last night. The score was as follows:

| ORIGINAL. | | DUPLICATE. | |
|---|---|---|---|
| G. Richter | 147 | C. D. Taylor | 118 |
| C. Dressell | 124 | C. Giles | 123 |

Captain G. Richter was awarded the prize.

There will be prize bowling between the ladies for a barrel of flour to-night.

BREVITIES.

—The Gas Company is having new pipes laid on West Front street.

—The Burlingham house is now in the centre of Park avenue on its way to its new location.

—There will be a Mothers meeting in the W. C. T. U. rooms to-morrow afternoon to be led by Mrs. Fernald.

—The Crescent League Wheelmen will go for a run to-night. The start will be made from the club house on East Second street.

—The committee, consisting of Mr. Cashin, D. Galbraith and W. E. Kiely, in charge of the festival to be given at the Lyceum Club house Decoration Day and afternoon and evening, for the benefit of St. Mary's parish, held a meeting last night at the club house and completed the final arrangements.

Notes of Fond's.

Business is still increasing at the shops of the Fond Machine Tool Company. They hired four more new men yesterday morning.

The friends of Mr. A. G. Nicholson will no doubt be sorry to hear of his leaving Plainfield. Mr. Nicholson has procured a position in the Montauk Iron Works, in Brooklyn, N. Y. He will leave here to-morrow afternoon.

TWENTY-EIGHT INDICTMENTS.

The Union County Grand Jurors Finish Their Work.

The Union County Grand Jurors having completed their labors for the term, returned to court, at Elizabeth, yesterday morning and presented to Judge Van Syckel a batch of twenty-eight true bills of indictment as a result of their deliberations.

Prosecutor of the Pleas F. C. Marsh took occasion to inform the court that the Grand Jury had failed to indict James Kenney and James Donovan, of this city, charged with assault and battery, and asked that they be discharged.

Among the indictments returned was one for manslaughter against Captain William Dundore of the barge Allentown, who, on the night of March 16 shot and killed Captain Noah Cross, whose body was found lying on the deck of the Allentown, where he had been shot down.

Dundore, in the case of his arrest, swore that he shot Cross in self-defense. This story he still adheres to, although he expresses deep regret at having been obliged to shoot Cross.

Whether Dundore will be tried this term is not yet positively known, although some of those in a position to as certain such facts express an opinion that he will.

If Rich, they are also Generous.

The collections at the Crescent Avenue church, Sunday morning, for the benefit of the three mission chapels, amounted to over $4,000.

Last year the amount of the church collections for benevolent purposes reached nearly $18,000.

The church receives from pew rents upwards of $11,000 per annum. There is seating capacity for 1,060 people.

Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell, the former pastor of the First Methodist church here, now pastor of a flourishing church in Kansas City, once said of them, "And what a people!"

The Male Partition Suit.

The Male partition suit came up yesterday in the Court of Chancery at Trenton. Motion was made and granted that the money now in the hands of Washington R. Williams, Esq., the Master who sold the Jersey City property, be paid over to Elias R. Pope and John W. Harrison, administrators, to be by them applied with other property in their possession towards the payment of debts and expenses of administration. The Jersey City property sold for about thirty five thousand dollars.

May Have to Take Down his Elevator.

Chief Grant, yesterday afternoon, arrested Mr. Saydam for the erection of an elevator in the rear of his building, No. 21 East Front street, without permission from the city. He gave $100 bail to appear before Judge Coddington next Saturday morning.

First Tennis Tournament.

The members of the Hillside Tennis Club have been getting in practice lately so as to be ready for the first tournament of the season, which will be held May 20, on the club grounds on Hillside avenue.

"The Girl I Left Behind Me."

The mere fact that a theatrical play touches on frontier life and Indian warfare often prejudices many people from seeing it, because they imagine that it is on the style of the dime novel tales.

The second season of "The Girl I Left Behind Me" which will continue throughout the season at the Empire Theatre, New York, is due entirely to its excellence. The story is very similar to the plot of Ok Kitty.

The exciting battle between the United States troops and the Indians, who are not allowed to proceed with their Ghost Dance, reminds the spectators vividly of the recent occurrences in the West of which the newspapers had such stirring accounts, and at the climax the brave General is about to shoot his own daughter rather than have her become a captive to the Indians.

Yet throughout there is a clever bit of laughter-provoking boiling on the part of a dainty young Miss and a young M. D. just from college.

No successful has this play been that another company will produce the play in Chicago beginning on the 29th, and the original company, with the exception of a few members, will continue at The Empire.

EDITORIAL NOTES

That Russian Treaty Again.

Mr. George Kennan holds up to the light some of the methods commonly made use of in the awful system of Russian jurisprudence. Russia is the friend of the United States, it is true, but that is no reason why we should assist the Russian government in perpetrating crimes of revolting cruelty.

Mr. Kennan writes in The Forum. He reminds us in the beginning of that well established principle of international policy which forbids an extradition treaty between nations whose systems of criminal jurisprudence are totally different. We would not conclude an extradition treaty with the shah of Persia or the emperor of China. An American criminal is tried by a jury of his peers in open court. A Chinese criminal may be put to death with secret tortures by a single irresponsible and cruel official.

Practically the Chinese system is in vogue in a large part of Russia. Trial by jury exists in only a small part of the Russian empire, and even where it is allowed it has been so limited by the present emperor that it is of little effect. For 12 years a large and important part of Russia has been under martial law, and the trial of thieves and civil criminals is by military court martial. On May 31, 1886, two mail robbers were hanged by sentence of court martial in Tiflis. Plenty of such instances are on record.

Even where a civil trial is granted the law processes are so medieval, the Russian prisons so foul, that not infrequently the accused dies of typhus fever before his case comes off. The Russian government is not an honorable government and cannot be trusted in its methods of dealing with either civil or political offenders. Mr. Kennan mentions a perfectly authentic case in which it forged telegrams to a refugee in Bulgaria, inducing him to go to Constantinople in haste. There he was kidnaped by Russian minions and sent to prison in St. Petersburg.

A man who would be tried by jury in this country certainly should not be given up to be tried by secret court martial in Russia. It would be an outrage. Mr. Kennan urges this as an argument why even civil criminals should not be extradited to Russia, much less political offenders. By the interpretation of Russian law a person who even "by thought" enters into preparations against the "life, health or honor of the czar" is regarded as guilty of the actual crime itself. Do we want to make an agreement with Russia to send back to her ferocious clutches a person who so much as thinks the word "No" against the czar?

One fact recorded by Mr. Kennan is to be particularly commended to the attention of our high authorities, who propose to force on the American people a Russian extradition treaty whose provisions are kept a secret from the American people themselves. For over 50 years Russian government spies have been in the habit of opening and reading the private letters of members of every foreign legation accredited to the czar's realm. "I have the highest authority for saying that even now the Russian secret police at St. Petersburg open and read the private letters of the American minister and members of the American legation." Nice country that, is it not, for any civilized government to send even a starved dog back to?

Some of the free silver men themselves begin to favor changing the ratio of silver to gold as a way out of the present difficulty. One gentleman proposes that instead of coining the two metals on the present basis of 16 ounces of silver equaling 1 of gold, the amount of silver be increased in a ratio making 20 ounces of silver equal 1 of gold, and that coinage be reconstructed on that basis. In the market it takes more than 24 ounces of silver to pay for 1 ounce of gold, but the advocates of the 20 to 1 plan think finances would adjust themselves to that basis without great disturbance. With the 20 to 1 ratio they would have free coinage of silver.

The London Daily News gave three columns to the opening of our fair, and other London papers said exceedingly complimentary and good natured things of the event. We thank them and present assurances of our distinguished consideration. We appreciate praise and good will from Great Britain. The Anglo-Saxon race is one the earth over—in Europe, in America and in Australasia. English speaking races are to dominate the world.

The stiff necked Behanzin of Dahomey has at length given up the tussle and formally surrendered to the French forces under the leadership of their brave mulatto general. He agrees to let the French take possession of Dahomey for their own if they will give him a residence and a pension. It is to be noted that the French did not refuse the country thus offered to them, but accepted it with a promptitude that does them credit.

While the government of Great Britain has been engaged for years in abusing American protection and bimetallism she now has her attention called to a hot fire in her rear from her own farmers, who in convention assembled loudly demand both these measures passed in their behalf. They have come to the concluding that the words rotten British agriculture depression.

IT CANNOT BE ENFORCED

Chinese Exclusion Act Practically a Dead Letter.

CABINET REACH THIS CONCLUSION.

Officials Were Disappointed In the Decision—The Chinese Will Probably Not Be Disturbed—The Request of the Chinese Six Companies.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The Chinese question, as complicated by the decision of the supreme court, has been discussed from every point of view, and it is understood that the conclusion reached is that the law could not be enforced for the reason that there was no money available for the purpose. The act only carries an appropriation of $100,000, and Secretary Carlisle showed that no more than $35,000 of that sum remained, with some bills still outstanding to be met. It was estimated that it would cost to deport all the Chinaman now in the country who have not complied with the law more than $6,000,000.

This statement exhibited what one member of the cabinet called the utter inability of the government to give any effect to the law itself without further action by congress. Under the circumstances it was understood that nothing could be done, and it is said there is little if any probability of the government making any immediate effort to put the law into effect.

One member of the cabinet, who holds a high place and is looked upon as a man of force and strength of character, made the broad assertion after the session was over that the law was a villainous, it was a political scheme, enacted for political effect, and he intimated that there had been a general hope among the administration that the court would have held it to be unconstitutional.

The Six Companies Ask Delay.

Numerous telegrams have been received at the treasury department respecting the decision. Most of these telegrams ask that the law be suspended for at least six months, as its execution at this time will impose great hardships on Chinamen in the United States. Among the telegrams received is one from the attorneys of the Chinese Six Companies, who also ask for a suspension of the law. Treasury officials acquainted with the record of the Six Companies during the past three or four years regard this request, coming from them, as rather surprising in cool assurance.

These officials assert that of the 110,000 Chinese now in the United States probably one-third have come into this country illegally; that the Six Companies have persistently encouraged the violation of the law by furnishing transportation from China to this country to Chinamen, supplying them with fraudulent certificates on their arrival and taking collateral from them when they landed in the United States for moneys advanced for passage. In fact, the Six Companies, it is asserted, have practically mortgages upon the labor of thousands of Chinamen for years to come, and if they be now deported in accordance with the decision of the supreme court the Six Companies will lose hundreds of thousands of dollars advanced by them to Chinese immigrants.

Secretary Gresham declined to discuss the question of law concerning the Chinese exclusion law from a diplomatic standpoint has yet been taken by the state department. The Chinese minister in Washington has not communicated with the department relative to the enforcement of the law. The rumors and surmises of Chinese retaliation are not given credence to.

Not even an intimation bearing on the report that the Chinese government intends to deport American missionaries and all other citizens of this country has come to the ears of department officials. Mr. W. W. Rockhill, chief clerk of the state department, who has correspondence in the Chinese diplomatic service and also a number of American friends in that country, says he has not heard a word concerning retaliation, and, furthermore, that there is hardly a likelihood that such action will be considered, much less taken.

The President Still Puzzled.

Commander Davis saw Private Secretary Thurber prior to his departure for New York in reference to the final details of the official reception of the Infanta Eulalie in Washington. A portion of the president's time with reference to the infanta remains as much a mystery as ever.

Captain Higginson Asks a Hearing.

Captain Higginson of the United States steamship Atlanta, anticipating that Secretary Herbert would not be satisfied with his delay in getting the cruiser Atlanta started for Nicaragua when ordered, has written the navy department requesting a court of inquiry in the matter. Secretary Herbert has decided to grant the request, and a court will be ordered as soon as Captain Higginson returns to the United States.

No News From Nicaragua.

The paucity of news from Nicaragua is considered as somewhat remarkable at the state department. Nothing whatever about the revolution has been received by Secretary Gresham for several days, and there is no hint even that the big battle predicted by Senor Horacio Guzman, the Nicaraguan minister, has taken place.

Some Treasury Appointments.

Secretary Carlisle made the following appointments in the treasury department:

E. S. Palmer of New Jersey, special inspector of customs; J. S. Neal of Indiana, special inspector of customs; Lewis Jordan of Indiana, chief of division of mails, etc.; John F. Walsh, assistant inspector of hulls at New York.

Government Exhibits to Be Closed Sunday.

Attorney General Olney has rendered an opinion in which he holds that the laws of congress providing for the World's fair prohibit the opening of the branch postoffice located in the postoffice department exhibits on Sundays. In accordance with this opinion the postoffice and other government exhibits will probably be closed on Sundays.

The Baltimore Ordered to China.

The navy department has decided to send the cruiser Baltimore to China as the flagship of the Asiatic station. While this determination has no direct bearing on the present agitation over the Chinese exclusion act, the effect of this order to the Baltimore has probably operated to precipitate the decision of the department to carry out its long contemplated purpose of sending a new flagship to China.

Distributing a Papal Pamphlet.

BERLIN, May 17.—More than 500,000 copies of the pope's labor encyclical have been distributed among the electors of the empire. The object of this distribution is to influence Catholic workingmen against voting for Socialist-Democratic candidates.

TO RECEIVE THE PRINCESS.

She Will Land In New York Friday and Go to Washington at Once.

NEW YORK, May 17.—The Spanish club, Circulo Colon Cervantes, is making elaborate arrangements for the reception of the Infanta Eulalie. A committee from the club will go down the bay Friday morning to welcome her to the land of their adoption. They will be accompanied by the Spanish Minister Senor Muruaga, who will remain in this city until the infanta arrives, the Spanish consul general and some of the officers of the Spanish vessels now in the North river.

Commander Davis will go down to meet the infanta as the representative of the nation to whom guest the infanta is. Commander Davis will have a government vessel placed at his disposal for the trip. He will invite the royal representatives of Spain to board his vessel and proceed to Jersey City, where a special train will be waiting to convey the party to Washington. What time it will be immediately after their arrival there has not been definitely settled as yet. The princess will probably remain in Washington several days, after which she will return to this city.

The mayor's committee of one hundred is in a quandary. On her return from Washington she will be met by the mayor's committee at Jersey City and conducted on a special steamer to this city. Carriages will be waiting to conduct the princess and the party to the Hoffman house. It is possible that before the party lands a trip will be made up the Hudson to show the princess the beauties of the American Rhine. It will be held in honor of the princess in Madison Square Garden. The Spanish commanders will detail a number of their marines to act as an escort of honor to the infanta on the night of the ball, and the stay of the princess will be a gala time on the fleet.

MADRID, May 17.—An official statement has been issued concerning the reception of the Infanta Eulalie in the United States. It says that the Spanish government regarded it as certain that the ministers to Madison Square Garden. The Spanish commanders will detail a number of their marines to act as an escort of honor to the Infanta on the night of the ball, and the stay of the princess will be a gala time on the fleet.

MADRID, May 17.—An official statement has been issued concerning the reception of the Infanta Eulalie in the United States. It says that the Spanish government regarded it as certain that the ministers to the royal guests invited by the American people to attend the World's fair. Unsolicited, however, an intimation had been given by the government at Washington that the infanta, as representative of the Spanish dynasty, if desired at America, would be received with the highest honors.

SHE CLAIMS ALMY'S BODY.

Dr. Mary Walker Says She Will See the Governor About It.

CONCORD, May 17.—Dr. Mary Walker is in town for the purpose, she says, of claiming Almy's body and of having an interview with the governor. The only written request made by Almy was to the warden of the prison, that his body be buried in some Concord cemetery.

Sheriff Hurlburt says: "I am perfectly satisfied with the execution. It went off in good shape, and I cannot see how it could have been better. It is true that the noose slipped at the critical moment, but I am sure that it did no harm. I do not understand how it happened. We had the best style of noose that was ever used, and one that has been well tried a great many times in Vermont. I tied the noose myself under the direction of ex-Sheriff Lovell of Springfield, Vt., an old and experienced man."

HANOVER, N. H., May 17.—Everybody here is thankful that at last justice has been done and that the people of Hanover may begin to look forward to the time when Almy and his terrible crime may be forgotten.

Women at the Polls.

AUBURN, N. Y., May 17.—Considerable interest was taken in the school election here for the reason that a woman was one of the nominees and that organized labor ran an independent ticket. Women were allowed to vote. The labor man polled 841 votes and the women received 266 votes, but their candidates were defeated. Two hundred and fifty-four women voted.

The Case of Murderer Martelli.

SARATOGA, May 17.—Counsellors Brunsmus and Tefft went to Albany to present the case of their client, James Martelli, the Italian murderer, to Governor Flower for executive clemency. They were informed that Governor Flower had directed Dr. Carlos F. McDonald to examine Martelli as to his present sanity and report.

Cave In the Canal.

ZANESVILLE, O., May 17.—On the Panhandle, near Frazeysburg, O., an axle broke on the west bound freight just as the train entered the bridge over the canal. The bridge was dragged down and 15 cars piled up in the canal. The trainmen escaped by jumping, but the tramps who were stealing a ride were killed.

This Bank Will Continue.

MONROEVILLE, Ind., May 17.—The Citizens' bank of Monroeville, which closed its doors last Friday after a run of one hour and depleted its cash on hand, has opened its doors for business with the statement that it would pay dollar for dollar on all indebtedness.

Comstock After Banks Men.

HARTFORD, May 17.—Anthony Comstock appeared before the judiciary committee of the legislature in favor of a bill to prevent bunkoing in Connecticut by green goods men. He advocated the passage of a law similar to those of New York and New Jersey.

Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank Resumes.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 17.—After a heavy run of two days the Farmers' and Mechanics' bank of this city resumed business this morning with room cash in its vaults than it had when the run started.

Garrison Bought The Baron.

NEW YORK, May 17.—A mixed lot of racehorses in training from Marcus Daly's stable was sold. Jockey Garrison paid $5,000 for The Baron, a good looking 3-year-old by Ridaigo.

Trying the Prison Murderer.

AUBURN, N. Y., May 17.—The trial of John Johnson, the negro murderer, who ran amuck in Auburn prison last April and killed two fellow convicts, has been commenced.

Will Close a National Bank.

FONDA, N. Y., May 17.—The secretary of the treasury has appointed John E. Ashe of Fonda to close up the affairs of a national bank in Arkansas City, Ark.

An Italian Duel Probable.

ROME, May 17.—It is reported that Signor Bonacci, minister of justice, and Deputy Pugliese are to fight a duel today. The provocation is not generally known.

Lizzie Borden's Health Improving.

TAUNTON, Mass., May 17.—Miss Borden's condition is much improved. Dr. Fulgo says he thinks in a week she will have entirely recovered.

THE FAIR DOES NOT PAY

There Is a Prospect of Bankruptcy In the Near Future.

WORKMEN MUST WAIT FOR WAGES.

The Paid Admissions Are Not Sufficient to Cover a Small Fraction of the Daily Expenses—Columbian Guards Arrested a High Official and There's Trouble.

CHICAGO, May 17.—Considerable discontent and uneasiness is apparent among some of the laborers on the grounds and janitors of the different buildings because their salaries are not forthcoming. The carpenters and staff workers erecting the boat pavilions in Administration plaza, who struck for back pay, are still out. The men have not been paid for three or four weeks, and another month's pay will be due on the 31st. The contractors have been putting them off from day to day by with the information that they will be paid when the exposition gives them the money due on the contract, giving the impression that everything from $1 cents to $1 at different times for our fare.

It is said the contractor will not be paid anything until he has finished the job. Many of the contractors are behind in the payments, and they tell the workmen that they cannot get their money until the treasury. The red tape necessary in the proper auditing and forwarding of accounts through the departments is no doubt responsible for a part of the delay.

There are about 2,000 janitors and helpers on the grounds who have not received their pay for the last month of another year. Much of this has been due to the great dissatisfaction among the men, and they have been put off from day to day and sometimes twice daily since the 1st of last month. The men say they "are not going to stand it much longer." When the attention of A. F. Seeberger, treasurer of the exposition, was called to the complaint of laborers and other workmen in the fair regarding the nonpayment of long overdue wages, he said:

"I do not know why these men are complaining. They have no just cause for complaint. They are being paid just as fast as the payrolls can be made out. Of course there has been a delay due to the verification of the payrolls. That cannot be helped where there are thousands of men to pay every week. But as for the report that the exposition company is short of money and cannot pay its employees and the contractors, there is no foundation for even suspicion in that direction. Ample provision has been made for just such a contingency. Of course our funds are not as large as they would have been if the weather had been favorable to large attendance, but we will meet all emergencies."

The Fair Not Paying Expenses.

In spite of Treasurer Seeberger's assertion that the exposition treasury officers were not playing a "stand off" policy the fact is that nearly all day long lines of clerks, receiving workmen were to be seen outside of the office of Paymaster Meehan. When asked why they were there, the men said they had been waiting for their pay for several days and it was not the first time they had stood in line there only to be put off with the announcement to "come around the next day and you will be sure to be paid for several days." By which is meant the various department clerks.

A national commissioner, in speaking on the subject, said: "I have no doubt that the exposition authorities are hard up for money. Everything has worked to the detriment of the fair for some time now, particularly the weather. It would not be surprising if several of the Chicago capitalists would be asked to help out before this month is over.

"The running expenses of the fair are about $65,000 daily. That means 20,000 paid admissions every day to pay the bare running expenses, to say nothing of what stockholders should have on their money invested in the enterprise. Since May 1 the average attendance has not been over 17,000, and as the turnstiles have not been in working order all the time it is a hard matter to tell just how many paid admissions there were."

Chief Allison's Arrest.

Columbian guards laid violent hands on Chief Allison of Manufactures and Liberal Arts building, and arrested him in not unconsequence. The chief is not only bent upon having the scalp of every guard who lays a hand in his arrest, but he is determined to obtain an apology from high official floors. The department chief presented himself at the exposition gates with several assistants at nearly the midnight hour. The guards on duty refused to admit the chief of the biggest department in the White City, but they discredited his story and doubted if he was Chief Allison. This did not improve the situation, and the end of it was the chief and his party were arrested as suspicious characters, taken in the patrol wagon to the guardhouse and confined there nearly three hours before being identified and released.

Building Will Be Open Tuesday.

The local directory of the Columbian exposition have decided to open the fair on Sundays in all departments. The directory have adopted resolutions reversing their former action in closing the buildings to the public, and submitted the amended rule to the national board for approval.

This decision has been arrived at in view of the extraordinary pressure brought to bear upon them by the people, who demand the absolute freedom of the great show.

Russell Sage Sued.

NEW YORK, May 17.—William Laidlaw of John Bloodgood & Co., who was injured in the Arcade building by the bomb thrown by Norcross on December of 1892, with bails suit to recover $50,000 damages from Russell Sage in the supreme court tomorrow morning. Laidlaw was in Mr. Sage's office at the time of the explosion, and his allegies that the millionaire broker pushed him between the bomb thrower and himself. His injuries are said to be permanent. There has been no notice of a disposition to compromise the case.

Fighting Over $2,000,000.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Some 20 lawyers are in the supreme court of Brooklyn engaged in a suit which involves the validity of the will of Francis N. Lemoh, who died in 1889, leaving an estate valued at over $2,000,000. Lemoh was at one time one of the partners of Jacob Astor in the fur business.

PALLISTER'S BODY FOUND.

How Supposed That He Was Shot by Roehl, Who Committed Suicide.

SING SING, May 17.—The finding of the body of Thomas Pallister, who escaped from the deathhouse at Sing Sing prison with F. W. Roehl on the night of April 30, clears up some of the mystery of that famous escape, but leaves much of the story still untold.

The body of Pallister was found in the Hudson river opposite here by two fishermen. State Detective James Jackson and Principal Keeper Connaughton positively identified the body as that of Thomas Pallister. The identification was effected by means of two keys found on the remains, one being the key of the deathhouse and the other of the condemned men's cells. A thorough investigation was made, and a bullet hole was found under the left eye. The supposition is that Roehl shot Pallister and then committed suicide.

In addition to the keys found on the body were a fully loaded 38-caliber revolver, 5 cents—the money taken from Keeper Hales when the murderers escaped—and a rosary which was given to Pallister by Father J. J. Cresden of this place. The body was very much decomposed.

A quarrel between the men is supposed to have occurred for some unknown cause, possibly the question of which should be favored to save the boat from swamping, which was promptly ended by Roehl's revolver.

The autopsy showed that the cause of death was a pistol shot wound in the head, in the opinion of the two physicians Pallister was dead before reaching the water.

Land Leaguers Burned a Town.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., May 17.—Nepler, a Crawford county village with a population of 800, was reduced to ashes. It is alleged that the fire was started by the "Land League" of Allen, Crawford and Bourbon counties, which a few years ago was brought to national notice by its numerous and wholesale thefts. Nepler was the stronghold of the antileaguers. The league was organized for the purpose of protecting its members against the usurpation of land by the railroads and new settlers.

BOMBS FOR POLICEMEN

Startling Plot of New York Anarchists Come to Light.

DYNAMITE TAKEN TO UNION SQUARE

A Satchel Full of Murderous Missiles All Ready For Superintendent Byrnes' Men.

If They Should Interfere—Confession of One Who Helped Carry the Bombs.

MASEPETH, L. I., May 17.—A remarkable statement was made by a prisoner in a little courtroom in Middle Village, L. I., that will be the reverse of quieting to the nerves of Superintendent Byrnes and his New York policemen.

It was that on at least one occasion, a little less than a year ago, preparations were complete at an assemblage of anarchists to take the lives of any New York policeman who might undertake to break up the meeting and that there was a colony of anarchists close to New York who were seemingly ready and anxious for the opportunity to use dynamite against the peace officers of that city.

The occasion of the confession was the trial of Henry Ruppercht of Maspeth, charged with an attempt to blow up the factory of the Standard Whiting works, of which E. V. Crandall is proprietor, and where Ruppercht was foreman.

Constable George Hock of Maspeth testified that he had found three dynamite bombs in the cable of the Whiting factory in March last, and within the next day or two a big tin can of the explosive under the floor of the factory itself, directly under the costly engine and machinery. The hiding place was pointed out by Otto Eckholdt, who was brought from the Queens County jail for the purpose.

Eckholdt Told the Story.

Prisoner Eckholdt's testimony was sensational in the extreme. He said that Ruppercht, while foreman of the factory, had the men in fear of him; that he would employ none but anarchists, and that even Mr. Crandall "had to dance when he whistled." He swore that Ruppercht made the dynamite and made the bombs. The witness had put the dynamite bombs under the engine room floor at Ruppercht's direction, because Ruppercht was too large a man to crawl under the floor himself. Ruppercht had assured him they were placed there for safe keeping only, but witness believed that they were put there to blow up the factory.

Pressed by counsel for Ruppercht to tell a single other occasion when he had seen Ruppercht have bombs in his possession, he said:

"Well, one night when we all went to New York to an anarchist meeting in Union square, about a year ago, Ruppercht took a satchel full of bombs with him for—"

"Well, I might as well make a clean sweep. He took them to blow up the police with if they interfered with the meeting. The police didn't interfere, so they were not used. There were not enough of them to blow up the whole police force."

Other witnesses corroborated him. When the testimony is laid before the district attorney he will probably hold Ruppercht for the grand jury.

The Grand Lake Levee Break.

NEW ORLEANS, May 17.—Grand lake levee broke as the result of a heavy storm. It is situated in a thinly settled part of Arkansas, just above the Louisiana line, and lies between the river and an old slough. The extent of the break is not yet known. The water from it will reach Bayou Macon, into which the water from the previous crevasses are now flowing.

A Boy Accidentally Killed.

DAYTON, Wash., May 17.—Clay Kenny, 7 years old, was instantly killed yesterday by a shot from a needle gun. With another lad he entered a barn where the gun was kept on a rack. His companion in taking the gun from the rack let it fall. The gun was discharged, the shot striking young Kenny in the face, causing instant death.

Divorced and Married Soon After.

CHATTANOOGA, May 17.—Judge H. D. D. Twiggs of Augusta, Ga., who recently secured a divorce at Sioux Falls from Lucie E. Twiggs, a leading society woman of Augusta and a relative of Senator Gordon, arrived in Chattanooga and was immediately married at the Stanton House to Mrs. Gerard C. Harrison, a charming young widow of Charleston, S. C. The judge is fully 20 years the senior of Mrs. Harrison.

Sullivan Buys Satisfaction.

BIDDEFORD, Me., May 17.—John L. Sullivan and his attorneys succeeded in setting aside the civil suit brought against him and recurring bonds on the criminal indictments. Sullivan paid a certain sum to Lawyer Max L. Lizott, who is alleged to have been employed on Sunday night on the train. Lizott acknowledges satisfaction.

Interfering With Students' Duels.

VIENNA, May 17.—Baron Bauer, minister of war, recently issued an order to the effect that reserve army officers attending the universities would not be allowed to become members of the students' dueling corps. The students at all Austrian universities have received not to go to lectures until this order shall be revoked.

Some New Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Among the appointments of fourth class postmasters were as follows: Connecticut—A. H. Hinckley, Old Mystic. New York—P. H. Sullivan, Four Mile. Pennsylvania—John S. Wyrick, Anderson's Valley; John Kane, Fayetteville.

Southern Bank Suspends.

CHARLESTON, May 17.—The doors of the Bank of the Carolinas, with home office at Florence, this state, is closed, with a notice of temporary suspension until a meeting of the directors. It has several branches in this state and in North Carolina.

Was a Soldier to the Pope.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 17.—Rev. Father Everest Pelletier, aged 45, pastor of the French Catholic church at Chicopee, is dead. He served at one time in Rome as soldier to the pope.

Six Years For Manslaughter.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 17.—Simon Alsmen, the Polish Pole convicted of manslaughter in stabbing to death Matzi Janasa, was sentenced to six years in the state prison.

Coal Cars Wrecked.

TAUNTON, Mass., May 17.—An Old Colony freight jumped a switch at Somerset, throwing the engine across the track and scattering about 20 coal dumps.

The Australian Penis Subsidy.

SYDNEY, May 17.—The financial proposals including the Australian subsidy, although in the provinces it has not abated.

SUIT AGAINST MINISTER RISLEY.

To Stop Payment After Paying the Fees in Question to Sommers.

NEW YORK, May 17.—John E. Risley, the newly appointed minister to Denmark, was in the city to-day in a suit for an accounting of his fees as joint counsel with the late Senator Joseph E. McDonald. Papers have been filed with United States Commissioner Shields. The petition asks the court for a writ restraining Risley from departing out of its jurisdiction. A permanent injunction against the sale of his property is to be withheld and Kings counties is also asked.

The case grows out of the partnership of Risley and McDonald in the collection of claims awarded by the Alabama commission. It is claimed that Risley received a larger amount in fees for which he has thus far failed to account, and that McDonald received but $6,000 of these fees, although entitled to a much larger amount.

For Cruelty to a Sailor.

LIVERPOOL, May 17.—Captain Crawford and Mate Fitzgerald of the British bark Watchman were committed for trial at the Liverpool assizes, each on the charge of manslaughter. During the voyages of the Watchman from New York to Rio Grande do Sul, between Sept. 29, 1892, and Jan. 12 last, Crawford and Fitzgerald are charged with treating George Orr, a seaman, with unreasonable brutality. Each beat him repeatedly with a belaying pin, and eventually Crawford had him handcuffed to the mast during a storm. Orr was then half dressed and was exhausted by his punishment. He fainted at the mast, and died shortly after he was released.

Four Escaped Underground.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., May 17.—At the Indiana prison four convicts—Albert Adams, Nathan Bell, Frank McCarthy and William Nelson, alias Rodgers—confined in a cellhouse on the ground tier, effected their escape by drilling a 4-foot hole through a 24inch flagging to the ground. This accomplished, they tunneled under the flagging a distance of 22 feet to the north wall of the range, and at that point the task of tunneling through a 2-foot wall made of Bedford lime was the work of only a few hours. From this place the prisoners went to the improved wall made of upright boards on the east side of the prison, which they scaled.

The New York's Trial Trip.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17. — The cruiser New York is now out at sea on her official trial trip, which will be made over a measured course between Cape Ann, Mass., and Cape Porpoise, Me. The expense of the trip will be $60,000. Should she maintain the record made on her unofficial trip, she will earn nearly $200,000 premiums for her builders, William Cramp & Sons. Four hundred persons are aboard the cruiser, including naval board of inspection appointed by the secretary of the navy, and the Russian grand duke is on board by special invitation of the Cramps.

The Borden Skulls as Evidence.

FALL RIVER, Mass., May 17.—The defense in the Borden case will have something to say about the skulls of the murdered couple. The ghastly relics are to be in court for the use of the state, but Lawyer Jennings has notified the government that he also wants to put them in evidence. This action of the defense settles apparently the question of the hatchet which it is alleged was used to murder the Bordens, for it is believed the defense will undertake to show that none of the hatchets in the hands of the government could have inflicted the fatal wounds.

The Situation In Oregon.

PORTLAND, Or., May 17.—Great satisfaction is expressed here over the decision of the supreme court on the Geary law. Chinamen have nothing to say, but are waiting for instructions from the Chinese Six Companies. Regarding their deportation, federal officers state that nothing can be done without instructions from Washington. There are now 14,000 Chinese in this district, and less than 1,000 have registered.

SOME BIG WORDS.

Ethnology, Anthropology and Archæology.

TRANSLATED, "THE WORKS OF MAN."

One of the Most Interesting Exhibits to Be Seen at the World's Columbian Exposition—A Comparison of Heads—Mummies from the Tombs of the Incas.

WORLD'S FAIR, May 16.—[Special.]—It goes without saying that the most interesting study at the Columbian exposition is man himself. Here we have object-lessons not only in the man of the present and his industrial and artistic achievements, but graphic representatives of the man of the past. Ethnology, anthropology and archæology are big words. To the popular mind they suggest only dull and dry scientific inquiry. But in fact they signify studies which are not only interesting but fascinating. When it was decided to have in the World's fair a department devoted to this purpose the professor naturally wanted it called by its proper scientific title. The exposition managers, however, said the words "ethnology," "anthropology" and "archæology" would repel instead of attracting the people. Was there not some popular title that would do just as well? Possibly. The professor would see. A little later, with a sigh for professional pride cast down, he reported that a popular interpretation of the trio of big words would be "Man and His Works." So, "Man and His Works" it is. This may not be a strictly accurate title, but it suffices; besides, it doesn't drive people away from the door.

This department has a building all of its own, a large structure on the shore of Lake Michigan but a little way from the Convent of Rabida. There are sections of this building which superstitious man will do well to stay away from, and which timid people should avoid. It is rather startling, indeed, to look up suddenly and find one's self surrounded by several thousand grinning skeletons and skulls. It is no relief to pass along and at the next step to find yourself in the midst of a hundred mummies. The skulls are in two principal collections. One is composed of all the types of those peoples known to the anthropologist as "long-headed," while the other is devoted to an exposition of the characteristics and peculiarities of the "short-headed" people. Between the two are a large number of queer heads, deformed heads, extraordinary heads that can be assigned neither to one class nor to the other. Here also are seen in great numbers types of the artificially formed heads, most conspicuous among them being the skulls of the Flathead Indians of the northwestern part of our own country, who grew from infancy with boards strapped tightly across their craniums. But it is not inside this and similar customs have existed among savage peoples in many parts of the world.

For months doctors and medical students have been going through the public schools of the large American cities measuring the heads and bodies of boys and girls. Probably many who read this letter have had their heads measured, and as yet do not clearly understand the why and wherefore. All these measurements—and many thousands of them were taken—are now in a most interesting form. There are diagrams and charts showing the shapes of heads of American boys and girls who have had the advantages of good homes and educational development, and these are compared with charts of the heads of children of less favored peoples. Very interesting are the diagrams of the heads in Japan, and the charts which show the influence mental training has had upon the brains of the boys and girls in American Indian schools.

The mummies carry one back a good way along the vista of time. There are two or three hundred of them in all, and they come from the tombs of the Incas of Peru, from the cots of the cliff-dwellers in Utah and New Mexico, from the burial places of the ancient Egyptians and from the graves of the prehistoric people who inhabited the region now known as British Columbia. Except in two or three of the great government museums of Europe no such collection of mummies as this exists anywhere. The specimens from South America, which are more numerous than the other types, were collected by Professor Dorsey of Harvard university, who was employed for sixteen months in the work. He and his assistants opened 197 graves and tombs and obtained 189 mummies. Some of the specimens were obtained by excavation of great heaps of sand, and these are the finest in the lot because they were intact, with all their carvings and paraphernalia. Nearly all the ancient tombs in Peru have been ravaged by the modern who eagerly sought the valuable trinkets of gold, silver and precious stones which were buried with the bodies of the rich.

They are not pretty things, these mummies. They are ugly, almost, as death itself. They show the remnants of their teeth, the black strings of matted or braided hair the shriveled limbs often with feet and hands, the yawning eye sockets in a manner calculated to make the blood run cold. The best specimen of the collection already spoken of, was obviously a man of considerable importance when he was alive, and the earth something like a thousand or twelve hundred years ago. Professor Dorsey told me how "He" as the mummy is generally called by the men who work about the building, was found.

"He had evidently seen better days," said the professor, "for he was not pitched headlong into a hole and covered over with sand, as most of his companions in the burial places of the Ancon plains had been. It was in a rather old way that we came upon him. I used rods to penetrate the soil, and when unusual resistance to its progress was encountered we generally dug down and found a mummy. On this occasion the native who was manipulating the rod for me found himself unable to push the instrument farther within the sand. As this was an every day occurrence I thought nothing of it and would have passed on had not the native called me back and insisted there was something extraordinary buried underneath. We removed the surface sand and came upon a bed of hard clay; then we knew we had found something worth our attention, for there is no clay within 200 miles of the Ancon. Under the bed of clay we found a roof that had been made of bamboo splints lashed together with willow withes. Under this was the grave proper. It was a circular hole ten feet deep and in the center of it, sitting on his heels, was 'He.' From two stakes, one on his right and the other on his left, hung two gonfalons, the one at his right being a red flag and having embroidered upon it a perfect Greek sigma.

"All around," continued Professor Dorsey, "were scattered articles of the finest pottery. Examine them carefully and you will see that they are of superior design and workmanship. As we found them they contained grain and vegetables, somewhat shrivelled, of course, but in a remarkable state of preservation. It was easy to determine the contents of the jars to be corn, beans, potatoes, dried shellfish and other articles of food. One jar had evidently contained a fluid, put there by workmanship. As we found them it seemed almost a pity to disturb such an august personage after a thousand years of rest, but we wanted him at the World's fair and how he is."

It would take pages instead of columns even to mention the interesting exhibits in this building which reach one into the dark past and throw light upon the condition and the development of mankind through the ages. In fact, one may trace the growth of his race from the rudest savagery to its present high state of civilization. It is a wonderful object lesson in the history of mankind. Here the eye of the visitor is carried back to the days of the Assyrians, the Greeks, the Romans, the Egyptians. Their tombs, their ruins have been ransacked that we may have the object lessons of what they were and of how they lived, their religion, their sports, their battles, their agriculture, their domestic establishments, their arts and their industries. It would be difficult to imagine anything more interesting, and I predict that this building, small beside its mammoth neighbors but mighty in the ages of time and periods of human change and progress which it covers, will soon be crowded from early morning till late at night.

The outdoor exhibit is quite as fascinating as that within the building. It is a type of supplement to the interior display. Here also only the canoe, the rude weapons, clothing and utensils of primitive peoples, but the people themselves. On the shores of the pond near the Anthropological building are grouped representatives of various tribes of Indians from North America. They live in their primitive habitations, row their rude boats or canoes, and engage in their customary occupations, such as weaving, pottery, chipping flint, building canoes, dressing skins and grinding corn. If one is interested in the American Indian—and who is not?—he may pass many an interested and well-spent hour in the Indian school which will be in operation near by.

New York contributes to this ethnographical display a council house and long bark lodge of the famous Iroquois, and a number of typical houses used by the various tribes which formed the powerful Iroquois confederation. The Indians are here, too, living in the houses, reproducing their ceremonies and paddling about in their canoes. Never before was such a good opportunity afforded for the study of the habits of the aboriginal dwellers in our own land. If one wishes to see the more modern Indian in his war paint, yelling his parry in battle or chase, he has but to visit Buffalo Bill's show without the exposition grounds.

One of the most picturesque displays here is that of the ruins of Yucatan. The structure which seems to show the queer architecture and decorations of these ancient people was skillfully built, and its carving and carvings are made from plaster casts taken by Consul Thompson amid the ruins of Labna and Uxmal. The structures represented are the Serpent house, the House of Nuns, and the so-called Governor's house. There are also moulds, columns and medallions from the prehistoric city of Copan. Tropical plants from Central America have been brought here and cleverly arranged over and about the ruins. All that is needed to complete the illusion is the presence of a few snakes basking in the sun or running to hide themselves in the grass.

A few yards from the Yucatan ruins are the picturesque homes of the cliff-dwellers. With consummate art the builders installed rocks with a frame-work covered over with sheet iron, the adobe mortar-mache, with just enough natural rock scattered about to perfect the illusion. There are habitations with the mass of rock, and specimens of the ancient Pueblos are destined to live in them. There are also mountain sheep and the little burros used by the cliff-dwellers as beasts of burden. From the ruins of Yucatan and the cliff-dwellings of Mexico and our own southwestern borders to the ice-bound habitations of the Esquimaux is a long way, but they are all here on the shores of the pond. A sort of half-way house is afforded by the village of Vancouver islanders, with their totem poles and their log houses. Here with fire and primitive tools, and their hideous wooden idols or totem poles, standing thirty or forty feet high on the banks of the lagoon. Two hundred yards away on the other side of the pond, are the headquarters of the gondoliers; and the Venetians in their gay costumes of two or three centuries ago add a dashing bit of color to the strange scene.

In this extraordinary commingling of tribes and races historic and prehistoric one may see Indians from British Guiana, standing before their thatched huts, Navajos weaving rugs, Tuscaroras and Onondagas making baskets, Winnebagoes and Omahas coloring skins, a few Flatheads with the boards tied upon the crania of the children, Esquimaux in their kyaks, Laplanders with their reindeers; and in the throng which moves about to see these children of nature are Amazons from Dahomey, Japanese with their silent, mild-mannered native of Ceylon, actors from China, Moors, Egyptians and Arabs, and representatives of all the nations of the earth.

WHEN THE CIRCUS COMES TO TOWN.

The sceting is comin round again, and soon on You'll hear th' blue birds singin, just as happy as kin be;
The frogs now pipin in th' lane, and on the big board fence
They've pasted up some lithographs about the circus tents—
Of elephants a-dancin with a funny white faced clown,
And you'd better b'lieve I'm goin
When the circus comes to town.

That's lots of golden chariots with queens and princes on 'em
Who've got tired of rulin kingdoms and had rather be with Barnum.
A cage of tawny lions, where a keeper sits in tights
And hits a lion with a whip, but the critter never bites,
For if he even whimpers he can still him with a frown—
And you bet, I'll see them lions
When the circus comes to town.

I ain't no hand for music, but when that circus band
Strikes up with "Annie Rooney," I tell you what, it's grand!
With the elephants a-waltzin and the horses
keepin time;
While clean up on the highest pole a spangled boy will climb
And send a shill right up your back to see him dive way down—
And you kin bet that I won't miss it
When the circus comes to town.

That's half a dozen camels and big elephants enuff
To clean this here hull town out if they got to start a fight;
And kangaroos and zebras, and a big long necked giraffe,
And a cage of monkeys, "nuff to make the parson laugh.
I'm a-savin up some money, and as sure as my name's Brown
I'll spend a half a dollar
When the circus comes to town.

Pretty Fair Hand.

There's a very pious and diffident young man in Detroit who is so very sensitive that a certain gentleman with a good looking daughter is forever teasing him on all sorts of subjects, and the young fellow has never been able to get even until now. The other day the old one met the young one in a crowd of people.

"Ah, my boy," he said, "you weren't at the club last night?"

"No, sir," was the response, "I was making a few calls."

"O-ho," laughed the old one, with great significance, "making calls, were you? What kind of hands did you hold?" And he winked and laughed again and nudged the young man in the ribs.

Then the inspiration came to the young man.

"They were just tolerably for anything," he said, with a smile. "Your daughter's was one, for instance." And somehow the old one hasn't felt so much like teasing the pious young man since that.—Detroit Free Press.

He had taken her to the opera, to the theaters, to dances, concerts and receptions, but never alone.

She had always included in her acceptance of his numerous invitations the prim proviso that she should be allowed to bring a chaperon, for she "never went anywhere without one."

Now, however, she felt that she was getting to know him very well, and as she was greatly desirous of hearing Bishop Heavystone of Northern Nova Zembla preach at the Church of the Heavenly Spire on Madison avenue next Sunday evening, she thought she could safely ask Jack to accompany her.

Jack had never fancied the chaperon act. In fact, it had wearied him exceedingly, but he had never dared to protest against it.

But when he received her invitation he saw a chance to give her a gentle hint of his sentiments on the subject; so he sent her an immediate reply written in her own sweet style:

MY DEAR MISS PROPER—It was ever so kind of you to think of me, and I shall be greatly charmed to accept your delightful invitation for next Sunday evening. I presume, of course, that you will have no objection to my bringing my mother? Yours sincerely,

YEE HING TIRED OF LIFE.

SO HE CUT HIS THROAT THIS MORNING.

He is Supposed to Have Committed the Deed While Crazy from Opium. —Said to be the Second Case on Record in this Country.

About eleven o'clock this morning it was descovered that Yee Hing, a chinaman, in the employ of Gee Wah, the North avenue laundryman, had cut his throat.

The deed was done with a small pen-knife, the blade of which being short the gash was not deep enough to be considered fatal, although he may die from the loss of blood.

After cutting the gash, which is about two inches long, the Chinaman placed his fingers in the cut and tried to tea r his throat open.

Another Chinaman was badly cut about the hands in attempting to get possession of the knife.

Mr. Roberts hearing the fracas ran for a policeman. When Policeman Kiely arrived he had to hold the Chinaman's hands to keep him from tearing his throat.

Dr. Field sewed up the cut. He was assisted by Dr. Berg.

It was intended to take the man to the hospital, and a wagon was secured to carry him there, but word was received from Dr. Long that he would not be admitted.

No one knows the cause of the act, but the story was circulated that it was due to the Geary act for the expulsion of the Chinese from this country. He was probably crazy from smoking opium, as he was the same Celestial that caused the fracas the other day by rifling the money drawer and then racing through the streets.

He was placed on a quilt and carried into the Chinamen's bed room, where he now lies.

That Yee did not finish the job is due to Policeman Kiely's prompt action in tying his hands, and thus keeping him from tearing his throat open.

It is said that the Chinaman does not fear death, but, notwithstanding this, he is not known to be given to suicide.

A Chinaman in New York a few weeks ago committed suicide, and a New York paper then said that that was the only case on record in this country.

If that statement is true then this appears to be the second case, if the wound inflicted shall prove fatal, and it seems certain that it will.

LATER.

At three o'clock Dr. Eodicott examined Yee's injuries and gave permission to remove him to the hospital.

A BOY RUN OVER.

Police Sergeant Ross' Buggy Runs Over a Newsboy.

Dorsey Conover, 10 years old, a newsboy, was run over at the corner of Front and Somerset streets, just before six o'clock last evening, by a buggy in which were seated Police Sergeant Ross of Providence, R. I., and a friend.

The wheels ran across the boy's body and legs. He was not seriously hurt, the only injury being to his legs, which were bruised.

Mr. Ross is stopping at the Hotel Greenda, to enjoy Plainfield's good air, and yesterday went out for a short ride when the accident occurred.

When the boy jumped up Mr. Ross stopped, and after learning that he was not hurt, gave him a dollar and drove on.

THE ITALIANS STRIKE.

THEY WONT SUBMIT TO BEING CHEATED.

They Gather Around Contractor Nevins to Mob Him.—He Escapes in a Hack.—One Boy was Told he Would Receive $1 per Day.—He Gets Only $2.25 for Nine Days' Work.—This is but a Sample of the Cheating.

Monday, May 15th, THE NEWS published the following:

"OVER A CROWBAR.

A FREE FIGHT AMONG THE ITALIANS THIS MORNING.

There was a free fight this morning among the Italians at work on the Somerset street railway. Two of the men got into a wrangle over the possession of a crowbar and finally came to blows. They got out of the excavation and commenced fighting on the sidewalk. This seemed to be the signal for a free fight, and the crowd of Italy took the handles from their picks and with these as weapons, rushed to the scene. For a time it looked as if several broken heads would be the result. Finally, were finally prevailed upon to return to work."

Yesterday the Italians had another fight. The quarrel was supposed to be due to the bad blood engendered in the previous fight.

The men were rolling over each other in the mud, and pounding one another ferociously, and ladies were afraid to pass along on the sidewalk.

A man, supposed to be a foreman, was seen escorting one lady past the fighting Italians, seeing her about to turn back through fear.

This is the second time this has occurred and it is high time it was stopped.

Where were all the special Marshals the Mayor has been telling about as affording abundant protection to the borough.

Not one was seen.

The regular Marshal could not be expected to be everywhere and didn't happen to be around when this row was in progress.

Last night the Italians went on a strike, claiming that they were not being paid the amount agreed upon, and many of them left town to-day.

Those who left seemed to be a better class than those who remained, and were not the most quarrelsome ones.

Another gang struck some weeks ago. They were getting $1.25 per day, and wanted $1.50. A new gang, the one which went on a strike last night, were substituted.

They were paid off yesterday afternoon, and then it transpired that they were to get $1.50 per day, but had been paid at the rate of only $1.40, the paymaster who furnished them it is supposed pocketing the balance.

The Italians were furious at what they seem to regard as a swindle, and gathered in groups on the streets, and acted and talked in a very excited manner.

The padrone was telegraphed for, and arrived about six o'clock.

He was a fine looking, well dressed and intelligent appearing individual, large of frame and gentle of manner.

He went among the Italians and calmly spoke to them in their own language, and seemed to quiet the more ignorant looking. The others, however, were clearly not appeased. They had not been boisterous, but they seemed to know their rights, and refused to submit to what they regarded as wrong.

The padrone saw a NEWS reporter after he had left the Italians, and in the purest of English, he endeavored to belittle the disturbance, saying it was nothing but a misunderstanding on the part of the Italians who were unfamiliar with our money, and when some one had told them they were being cheated they thought it must be so.

Just the same many of the Italians departed from town to-day, while the street is left in a miserable condition, and the Inspector continues to draw $3 per day from the borough looking at the mud.

One of the Italians this morning informed a NEWS reporter that they had all been swindled most outrageously, and in a way that no one would submit to. He gave numerous instances, among them that of one young man who was to be paid $1 per day for carrying water, and helping with pick and shovel. After working nine days he received only $2.25. It appears that the President of the Company has the contract, and was present yesterday afternoon while the Italians were being paid off, and when the row occurred. He saved himself from being mobbed by getting into a hack and being driven hastily off.

The story of the wrongs to the Italians has got around the city, and the people are denouncing Nevins in unmeasured terms—considering him responsible for the wrong. They sympathize with the Italians, and say it is a shame to cheat them in the way they seem to have been cheated.

Certainly there ought to be some legal protection against such imposition on the helpless poor.

There was another row among the men this morning. One of the men was discharged for being drunk. He refused to go, and the boss knocked him down. As once did not satisfy him he was knocked down twice more.

Again this afternoon there was another set-to. For calling a workman a name an Italian was knocked down.

LATER.

Mr. Nevins, at four o'clock, came to town with more money for the workmen.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Daniel L. Gulick of Central avenue is confined to the house with rheumatism.

Mr. J. B. Stickle of Newark, formerly of this city has returned home after a visit with old friends here.

The following Plainfielders were present at the exempt firemen's meeting, at Morristown, yesterday: Chief Doane, G. Thorn, T. Flannery, H. Force, A. Saltsman, E. Marseilles, W. Townley and J. Bailey.

Mr. George H. Fountain of West Front street has consented to loan his fine collection of Indian war axes, tools, etc., to the free public library. Mr. Fountain's collection will more than fill one of the cases.

The Woman's Club of Orange held its twenty-first annual luncheon in the lecture building of the Orange Athletic Club yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Theodore F. Seward, the president, presided. Mrs. S. M. Collins of New York city spoke on "The Women of '93." Other speakers were Mrs. Kate Upson Clark of New York, Mrs. A. W. Dimock, and Mrs. Benjamin Williamson, Jr., of Elizabeth. There were two original poems, one by Miss Kenyon of Plainfield and the other by Mrs. May Riley Smith of New York.

Richardson Pleads Not Guilty.

The Court of General Quarter Sessions convened at Elizabeth at half-past nine o'clock yesterday morning in order that there might be some arrangement before the opening of the Circuit Court, which is still occupied with the trial of the suit of Grinnell vs. the Bymer Ice Machine Company.

Among the defendants who were arraigned on the motion of Prosecutor Marsh, was Charles Richardson, who attempted to abduct Bryden from Mr. F. C. Martin of this city, and who afterwards stole Mr. George Wyckoff's bicycle. He plead not guilty.

Exempt Firemen's Convention.

The annual Convention of the New Jersey State Exempt Firemen's Association was held in Lyceum Hall, Morristown, yesterday. The following officers were elected: President, Wm. Exall, Newark; First Vice-President, John McKiernan, Paterson; Second Vice-President, August Schlamm, Jersey City; Secretary, Napoleon Hamburger, Newark; Treasurer, Thos. Leathers, Jersey City. Trenton was selected as the place for the next convention. Gov. Werts was present and he had a reception at the Park House.

Entries for the Tennis Tournament.

The Hillside Tennis Club's first tournament will be on May 20. Many of the best players in the county, including North Plainfield will, or have, entered.

The following well known players have entered for the singles: F. W. Walz, E. L. Walz, S. West, H. West, D. O. Tilney, F. K. Fee, Jr., Carl Walz, G. P. Mellick, Jr., R. Wharton, J. Murray, H. G. Squires, C. Mosman, J. Anthony, S. Mosman, Cutcheon, Messrs. Ellsworth, Ryder, A. B. Wadsworth, A. P. Simmonds.

HOW TO RIDE A HORSE.

THE DRILL OF THE PLAINFIELD RIDING CLUB.

About Sixteen Young People, Under a Skillful Leader, Put their Horses through Cavalry Manœuvres and Have a Good Time.

THE Plainfield Riding Club, consisting of about sixteen young people of both sexes cavorted around on horseback in the Crescent Riding Academy on "Watchung" avenue last evening.

There was a little delay in getting ready, but finally the little cavalcade got in line and the leader, Mr. Holly, after calling out the divisions to the riders and putting them through a few moves, signalled to the band to start some music. There were several very fine horses among the number in the turf and sawdust sprinkled enclosure.

All the horses, however, started when the band did. The music was enough to start anything. There were at least two good musicians in that band.

While the leader, Mr. Holly of New York, who is a fine horseman, was leading his squad of riders in "singles," "doubles," "fours" and a set of lancers, with more or less success, the riding teacher, Mr. Von Bamegtin, on a handsome dark bay horse, belonging to Mr. Bothfeld, was showing its paces. It was quite a relief to watch him.

The riding class did well in fours. They also turned well.

Of the ladies present the riding of Miss Holly, Miss Yates, Miss Stewart, Miss Von Bamegtin, Miss Bothfeld and Mrs. Ohl was noticeably good.

The gentlemen present were Messrs. John I. Holly, A. C. Vail, D. Glines, F. Streull, F. S. Ruttman and brother, Percy Ohl and Orville Waring.

The handsomest horses were ridden by Mr. Warine, Mr. Vail, Mr. Glines, Mr. Ruttman and Mr. Holly.

Riding continued until about 10.30 o'clock.

Base Ball Notes.

Saturday the base ball season at Westfield will open, in a game with Rutgers College team. John McLaughlin of North Plainfield will play left field for the Westfields.

The Sun says: "Is Keenan the Emeralds have a star player. He pitches with much success, and also plays behind the bat in the majority of games. His regular position is short stop, but he can play any position. Keenan will soon be found in faster company." Keenan was formerly a Crescent pitcher.

The Cranford Club will open the ball season on the Casino grounds May 20th, with the Oriental Club of Elizabeth. The Cranford team will be about the same as last year. Substitutes, however, will have to be provided for Waldo Rosecrans, who is playing on the Rutgers College team, and Fred Bindermerger, who is with the Pennington team.

The Murray Hills that play with the Crescents on Saturday next are considered a very strong team, good batters, hard hitters, and play first-class ball, and are well up in standing heaps. It has been stated by one of the cranks "that the Crescents may meet their Waterloo this time." The players and batting order are as follows: Foster, 2b.; Crane, ss.; Rodgers, c.; Lamon, 1b.; Lyons, 3b.; Fuchs, p.; Devereaux, l.f.; Dandis, c.f.; Bjortvedt, r.f.; and Gillies extra. Foster has played on the Montgomery team, Crane with Sayville and Riverhead, L. I., Rodgers with Camden, Lyons with the "Reds," Dandis with Trinity College, Lamon with the "Original Acmes" and Fuchs pitched for the Seaman Island Athletic Club, who defeated the Crescents in the game played here August 20th last year. The Chicago of the nine have played with the Flushings, Alberons and other teams. They have defeated the Crescents this year by 3-1; Ocean Club, 12-1; Llewellyn Club, 3-2; Acmes of Waterbury, 3-0; with Danielson of the New York team in the box for the Acmes.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Manslaughter By Trolley.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS.—Will you kindly benefit the community by publishing in your valuable paper the following editorial from the New York Times Thursday, May 11th. The trolley cars are run recklessly on our streets, and many accidents have already occurred here. Often the bell of warning is not sounded by the cars, and they are seen dashing along Front street at a high rate of speed. Must we have a series of shocking accidents before this town will be aroused to a sense of this daily menace to life permitted on the street. A. SUFFERER.

MANSLAUGHTER BY TROLLEY.

When a person of depraved nature and criminal intent does his fellow to death by authority of the State as a penalty for taking human life and as a deterrent to others for the protection of society, there is apt to be an outcry against the barbarity of the law from sentimentalists who are guided rather by feeling than judgment. Those who sympathize with the victim in the extreme of the killing his guilt in spite of proof may denounce it as judicial murder, and arriving relatives may even be permitted to parade upon a coffin plate an assumption that the State is the murderer, to the contempt of lawful authority.

Killing is a dreadful business, no doubt, even if inflicted by the State upon criminals from the stern necessity of self-protection, but it seems to excite less horror when it is done to public strees by a corporation authorized to operate a trolley car. The killing or maiming of innocent persons in this regard is of frequent occurrence in the streets of crowded cities in a matter of almost daily report. A conspicuous case was that of Amos Ohl on Tuesday of a well known civil engineer, but it is to be remembered that the fact that a prominent citizen thus a heedless child.

Is there anything to justify this killing of people and bereaving families by corporations, if not, where is the responsibility? There may be accidents upon railroads or in the streets by which life is lost, and it may be said that nobody is to blame. Railroads must be operated, trains and cars are a necessity in city streets, and fatal accidents are sometimes unavoidable. But experience has shown that this cannot be known as to the trolley car, by reason of the powerful control of it which may be exercised by the driver. The quick starting or stopping of the car, for instance, is constantly liable to kill people. Its victims are children and persons old and feeble and more numerous than those of the ordinary murderer in the same time. By reason of its cheapness the trolley is to be the popular and deadly disease by which we are wont to be visited.

Is the killing of people by the deadly trolley any less manslaughter because the operating of that device is authorized by law or by the Railroad Commission?

FOURTH DISTRICT CONVENTION.

Sixth Annual Meeting of the Y. M. C. A. at Long Branch.

The sixth convention of Y. M. C. A.'s of the Fourth District of New Jersey will begin at Long Branch on Friday, and end on May 21. The associations in the district are those at Asbury Park, Cranbury, New Brunswick, Rutgers College, Rutgers Grammar School, Plainfield, Rahway, Long Branch, Woodbridge, and Perth Amboy, which include the three counties of Monmouth, Union and Middlesex.

The convention will open in the Opera House at Long Branch on Friday evening at 7:45 o'clock. Among the addresses of the following morning will be one from Prof. Byron Cummings and W. D. Murray of this city.

In the afternoon Dr. D. C. English will talk on "Sins Prevalent Among Young Men." On Sunday there will be consecration services and platform meetings in the evening. With these the convention will conclude.

—The City Council of Elizabeth, N. J., will take action on the application by the Elizabeth and Plainfield Electric Railway Company for a franchise to build an electrical road to connect both cities. It is expected that the privilege will be granted.

A Natural Query.

The Church passed his tiny plate,
Thoughtful he lipped and slow,
"I'm blessed," he said, "if this ain't grass,
But—how—maple sugar is."

H-O is unique and unsurpassed as a child's food. Made into gruel it is also an invaluable delicacy for the sick and weak. It is the purest and most delicate oatmeal made, and differs from all others in every particular of quality. Is the best any too good for you?

MME. CHARLIER'S WILL.

The Old Fortune Teller's Son withdraws the Caveat.

In the Union County Orphans' Court at Elizabeth, yesterday the will of the late Mme. Charlotta Roulet Charlier, a fortune teller of Roselle, was finally admitted to probate. Her son, Joseph Charlier, withdrew the caveat he had filed and this ended the contest. The real estate is worth about $60,000, and her personal property several thousand. In a vault of the National State Bank there is a chest in which is stored much of the personal property, including the testator's mystic belt with twenty-six diamonds set in its buckle.

A part of her property is bequeathed to a son who has not been heard from in twenty years, and who is supposed to be dead. His mother, however, said it was revealed to her in a dream that he was held in bondage by South American savages. If he is not heard from in five years from the date of her death his share of the estate is to be divided between his brother and sister, the only two remaining heirs.

EDITORIAL NOTES

World's Fair Food Products.

In the agricultural department of the Columbian exposition the American will see ranged side by side the displays of the great nations that are our rivals in food production and wool growing. The exhibit is most significant on that account. Our chief rivals we find to be Australia and Russia. The greater part of the Australian space at the fair has been occupied by New South Wales. Such a quantity of wool was never before seen in the same shape. Bales of wool are built up into an immense pavilion, and inside this house of wool are displayed the agricultural products of the Australasian colonies. But it is Australian wool and meat that will appear steadily in competition with ours in the world's markets in the coming years.

The Russian agricultural exhibit is composed largely of wheat—wheat in every shape in which artistic design can arrange it. The grain is of excellent quality, esteemed rather more highly than ours in Europe. Russia is becoming more and more civilized; her fields are coming under more general and superior cultivation. Russia is henceforth to give us hard chase in the bread furnishing business. It will be well for American farmers to realize this and diversify their crops, especially since not only Russia but India and Egypt have joined the ranks of the wheat producing countries.

Canada rivals us in the cheesemaking industry. At the fair is a tremendous Canadian cheese weighing 26,000 pounds, and in front of the floor of the Agricultural building had to be strengthened to bear it. Ten thousand cows gave the milk that made this cheese, the largest that ever was, probably that ever will be. So Canada calls attention to her great and growing dairy industry. Not so much in the line of rivalry at present come the chief displays of some other nations, though with the new products with which our agricultural stations are constantly experimenting it is impossible to say what cannot be grown in our country. Brazil shows her hand as the world's greatest coffee producer. France and Germany stand pre-eminent in the production of beet sugar, and our little beet sugar show is nothing compared to theirs in the exposition. But there are a few articles wherein the United States stands first and always will. These are Indian corn, cotton, tobacco and sugar cane.

Some newspapers are trying to find a reason why the Jews do not mingle socially with Christians, as members of different churches among Protestants or even as Catholics and Protestants do. Some are inclined to attribute it to prejudice against the Jews on the part of Christians. The reason is very easy to find, and it is in the Jews themselves, not in the Christians. Hebrews remain apart from other races because they choose to be so themselves. They are proud of their ancient blood, proud of their religious and social customs. If they mingled with other races and intermarried, they assert that the Jewish distinctiveness would be lost. And so it would. The Jews stand off from the Christians more than Christians stand off from Jews, certainly in this country.

Since the Umbria broke her shaft in midocean and had to limp slowly into port in her disabled condition the bright idea has occurred to an electrician that it would be well for all ocean steamers to carry an assortment of electrical tools with which to mend breaks. All steamers have electric lighting machinery. It would be easy to add to this the attachment necessary for working tools by electricity. Holes could be bored by the electrical drill rapidly, and other tools could be fastened firmly to handles or holders and used in any part of a vessel in a place so small that a man could not work in it. The current could be sent to any part of the ship and work done in a few hours that would require days with the use of hand tools.

The Chautauqua Literary and Scientific circle was the happiest educational hit of the last half century. It has brought pleasure and profit to millions. Dr. Vincent's idea has been taken up in Europe. We have now in this country a Roman Catholic Chautauqua, and the next move will be the formation of a Jewish Chautauqua. It is now in process of organization. It will follow the system of Dr. Vincent's circle and belong to that body in all respects except in the matter of religious instruction. There it will branch off and provide lectures and textbooks for itself. The original Chautauqua circle was organized 17 years ago.

Our exports fell off $32,000,000 last year as compared with 1891. The cholera scare in the fall months is probably the explanation of it. But it will not surprising if our food exports contin to diminish from this on. This year they will certainly be smaller on account of the World's fair, and after that our population will steadily increase toward the point where we use up our own food products at home.

The greatest man of the nineteenth century in Europe is undoubtedly Gladstone, as even his enemies must admit. One way he proves his greatness is by becoming sweeter tempered and more full of fun the older he grows.

LIVES LOST IN FLOODS.

Fourteen Persons Swept Away by Raging Waters.

TWO STATES PARTLY UNDER WATER

Four Heroic Life Savers Drowned In Lake Erie While Attempting a Rescue—Great Damage Done by Swollen Streams In Pennsylvania and Ohio.

CLEVELAND, May 18.—The United States life saving crew undertook to rescue two men in a rowboat amid the awful sea at the mouth of the Cuyahoga river, and the men in the boat and three of the life saving crew were drowned.

The two men in the boat were Captain Stanley Flannigan and Michael Le Blonde of this city. They were going into the river in a rowboat, which they used for peddling milk along the docks. When near the mouth of the raging stream one of Le Blonde's oars broke, and the two men were left at the mercy of the waters. They were quickly carried into the lake by the rushing stream, and as it was evident that their frail craft could not live in the angry sea that was coming in from the north, preparations were quickly begun for their rescue by the life saving crew.

Seven men manned the lifeboat, and they pulled away toward the east pier of the breakwater, toward which point the boat containing Flannigan and Le Blonde had drifted. When the life savers were well out of the mouth of the river, an oar broke, and in an instant the surf-boat swung about, to toss upon the angry waves. The men in the lifeboat were totally helpless, and before assistance of any kind could be rendered their boat was overturned and all eight men were thrown into the water. Three of them succeeded in catching hold of the overturned lifeboat, where they hung on until they were rescued, in a terribly exhausted condition.

Four of their fellow life savers were tossed about so mercilessly by the wild waves that they were unable to swim back to the lifeboat, and after vainly battling for a few moments with the elements they were overcome and the battle of life had to be given up.

The names of the heroes who lost their lives in attempting to save others were: Chester Simons, John Johnson, Nicholas Serras and August Anderson. The life savers who were rescued were: George Wilson, Lawrence Driscoll and George Lober. Captain Bissell and the other two life savers who escaped were brought ashore by a tugboat. The lifeboat was found after the accident near the east end of the breakwater.

West Down With the Scow.

CONNEAUT, O., May 18.—The tug Walter Richardson, dredge Continental and a scow were anchored in the harbor. The creek rose rapidly, the scow was carried out into the lake with the tug. In cutting away from the scow, the tug's wheels were disabled and the tug washed ashore. The crew were saved. The dredge and scow carried into the lake and immediately capsized. There were seven persons on board, two of whom were washed ashore on the breakwater. The five others perished immediately. The following is a list of the lost:

W. Wilson, captain, aged 30 of Philadelphia; George O'Rourke, aged 27 of Detroit; J. Fife, aged 25 of Conneaut; Maggie White, cook, aged 40 of Cleveland; watchman, name unknown, about 50 years of age.

The sea is running heavy and no bodies have been recovered. The two men saved from the dredge were terribly exhausted. The property was owned by J. F. Baldwin of Rochester, and valued at $20,000.

The Flood In the South.

MEMPHIS, May 18.—The news from the overflowed districts in Arkansas and Louisiana are of the most discouraging character. Specials from points on the west side of the river below Memphis report a distressing condition of affairs. The water in the bayous is flowing toward the head of the levee system above Osceola, Ark., has inundated the St. Francis basin, the farmers being compelled to abandon all hope of raising a crop. Almost every foot of land in Chicot county, Ark., 200 miles below Memphis, has been flooded by the water from Lake Laport, Brooks Mill and Grand Lake crevasses. The Grand lake crevasse is reported to be 600 feet wide and still caving rapidly. The water from this crevasse is flooding the whole portion of Louisiana, and is making its way across the swamps into the Red river country. The Red river is already very high, and a disastrous overflow in that section is regarded as certain.

Three Men Lost.

ASHTABULA, O., May 18.—The schooner Pelican foundered off the piers here and three of her crew of seven were drowned. Two of these rescued were badly injured. The loss are: Peter Nelson, first mate; John Erickson, sailor, and John F. Knight, all of Cleveland. The steamer Ketchum and the Pelican, with ore from Escanaba, arrived off this port, but on account of the gale and heavy sea remained at anchor outside rather than risk entering the piers in the night. The hatches of the Pelican became loosened and the water poured in. Signals were then made signals of distress and the tug Sandusky went to her assistance. Only one man was got off before she went down, but three more were afterward picked up.

Depots Filled With Water.

MEADVILLE, Pa., May 18.—This city is underground the most complete inundation in its history. Business is practically suspended and the day has been one of terror and despair. There are several feet of water in the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio depot, and the train service has been abandoned.

Reams of Vallonia, Company Island and the lower part of the city were taken from their homes in boats. The Miller & Sibley race track is covered with four feet of water. The new railroad bridge over the French creek to the race track has been swept away, and other bridges are in danger of going. The French creek has been transformed into a raging river.

Erie Under Water.

ERIE, Pa., May 18.—The floods in this city caused by the heavy rains are the most destructive ever known here. It is impossible to estimate the damage done, but it is probably not less than $250,000. The damage to the Jarecki Manufacturing company's plant alone is placed at $100,000. Scores of houses were washed away, but no fatalities are reported since that of the boy Heberle. Railroad bridges and culverts are washed away on all sides of Erie. All trains are canceled on the Erie and Pittsburg and the Philadelphia and Erie. The gorges in Mill creek have been cleared away, and the flood through the heart of the city is subsiding.

A Lake on the Tracks.

ASHTABULA, O., May 18.—A lake of 20 acres has formed near the Pittsburg, Youngstown and Ashtabula depot, up town. All three roads across the gorge near the city are blocked. The Split bridge is dissolved, so that 400 men are out of work on the Lake Shore docks. The latter are under water from one to six feet deep. Twenty-four vessels are in the harbor. There is a current of 15 miles in the river and the water is rising rapidly, threatening every moment to break the big vessels loose at the head of navigation and thus do damage to the rest and take out the swing bridge.

Two Rents Cut Off by Floods.

CAMBRIDGE, Pa., May 18.—This place is under water. Two big summer hotels filled with guests are cut off from communication, and it is feared the Cambridge and Meadville branch of the New York, Lake Erie and Western railroad has been forced to suspend traffic because of washouts, and it will be several days before the damage is repaired.

At Titusville the water is the highest known in years, the entire lower part of the city being flooded. Factories and oil refineries have been forced to shut down and business is partially suspended.

Railroad Disaster Escaped.

BUFFALO, May 18.—Advices from points west and southwest of here report one of the worst, rainstorms ever experienced, and rivers and creeks are overflowing their banks and doing great destruction. Shortly after the east bound express No. 9 passed Hickory station on the Pennsylvania railway, which at that place spans the creek, gave away with a crash beneath the immense pressure of water. The Chicago express No. 3 is due and somewhere will be held. Several construction trains have been sent out from Buffalo.

High Tides Along the Jersey Coast.

MILLVILLE, N. J., May 18.—The rainstorm, supplemented by high tides caused the Maurice river to overflow its banks, and the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad of the West Jersey railroad below Belleville station. The weather is so rough in the Maurice river cove that very few oysters have been planted, and it will be almost near Elder point, and the tug Maurice of this city has been telegraphed to go to her assistance. The high tide has caused breaches in several banks along the Maurice river.

Flour Mill Swept Away.

WILLOUGHBY, O., May 18.—The heavy rainfall has done much damage in this section. Chagrin river has never been so high, and its banks were overflowed. The flouring mill of J. H. Boyce was entirely swept away, with a big loss. The family of Mr. Caldwell, residing on the flats, were rescued by boat, their dwelling being completely submerged. The Benfield Machine shops are flooded and work abandoned. A number of small buildings were down the stream.

Bridges Washed Away.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 18.—The heavy rains have done serious damage on the line of the Philadelphia and Erie railroad between Corry and Erie. In a number of places the tracks are under water and several bridges and culverts are reported below to have been washed by the floods. In some cases temporary trestles have to be erected to support the tracks, and it is probable that no trains will be run between Corry and Erie for several days.

The Governor Takes Action.

HARRISBURG, May 18.—Governor Pattison has wired the message of the mayor of Titusville regarding the floods at that place to the secretary of the state board of health at Philadelphia, with a request that the matter be given immediate attention.

The Water Main Parted.

GREENVILLE, May 18.—Several streets are under water and much damage has resulted. The town water main parted in the middle of the Shenango river.

New Iron Bridge Swept Away.

PARKERSVILLE, O., May 18.—Three bridges over Grand river have been swept away by the floods, one of them being a new iron bridge just erected.

Green Goods Dealing a Felony.

HARTFORD, May 18.—As a result of the appearance of Anthony Comstock before the judiciary committee of the house and senate passed a bill modeled on the laws of New York and New Jersey. It makes dealing in "green goods" and like swindling schemes a felony, punishable by imprisonment for not less than one nor more than five years, and by a fine of from $100 to $2,000. The senate passed the bill by a unanimous vote. Despite the fact that the prime minister was the guest of the Prince of Wales, he was received with a storm of hooting and hissing whenever and wherever he was recognized.

Bloody Mob Bloodier's Death.

SARNIA, Ont., May 18.—Mayle Bloodier, the strong man, traveling with Cole's circus, while doing his act of holding together two large horses that attendants endeavored to drive in opposite directions, received blood vessels of the head and chest burst. He fainted from loss of blood, and soon after he was carried from the ring he died.

Jail soon to Be Sentenced.

AUBURN, N. Y., May 18.—John Johnson, the colored convict, who on April 17 murdered Jailer Aubuchon, will on Friday be sentenced this afternoon.

Hawley's New Trial.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 18.—The second trial of John Hawley (colored) of Birmingham, who was sentenced on Oct. 7, 1892, for life, having been convicted of the murder of Mrs. Mary Mannion, is now on.

Discards Baseball For Tennis.

BOSTON, May 18.—Fred P. Hovey, who has been leading on the Harvard nine, has decided to give up baseball. He wants to win the championship in tennis this year.

Wanderobe's Passengers Rescued.

QUEBEC, May 18.—The government steamer Alert, well known for its Arctic expeditions, arrived at Levis with the passengers of the wrecked steamer Wandrobe.

MISSIONARIES WARNED.

Foreign Boards Cable the Agents In China.

CHINESE RETALIATION IS FEARED.

A Letter of Warning Also Sent Advising Missionaries to Keep Out of Harm's Way—An Appeal to the President—Day of Special Prayer For Protection Set.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Exclusion act unconstitutional; prudence urged; notify stations. WILLIAM DULLES, D.D.

That was the message that went by cable from the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church, 23 Fifth avenue, to its men and women in China. It was sent after a consultation of the mission council in view of possible dangers which might threaten the American missionaries now in China in consequence of any retaliatory steps which might be taken there by the inhabitants of that country.

The Geary exclusion act, which has always been fought by the churches and missionary societies, has given the home officials no little concern.

The Presbyterian board of missions is the most powerful, in addition to sending the above cablegram, ordered the Rev. Dr. James S. Dennis, acting in the stead of Rev. Dr. Ellinwood, who is ill, to write to the mission stations. There are four missions of the Presbyterian church of the United States in China—the Northern mission at Peking, the Shan Tung mission at Chefoo, the Central mission at Shanghai and the extensive mission along the Canton river, and the Southern mission at Canton. There has recently been established a separate mission at Hai Nan. To each of these missions the cablegram and the following letter were sent:

A Warning Letter.

The Geary bill has been declared constitutional by the United States supreme court. The council has thought best to send you telegrams giving information as to the present status of affairs in the United States, and also in view of possible troubles in China in case the anti-Chinese law should be enforced. Minute instructions are not practicable, but we have thought that brief hints to you and to the missionaries by mail should be sent to you to let you know of our solicitude and to urge on you the precaution included for the safety of life and property.

It seems to us desirable that while matters are in so critical a condition as they now are and in a situation where prompt communication would be possible and that visits to the interior of China by missionaries unless proper precautions are taken.

"I hope the press," said the Rev. Dr. Dennis, in speaking of the cablegram to the council, "will make it clear that we do not apprehend any danger in China. We have merely sent the letter and cablegram because we felt that we owed it to our missionaries to let them know just what was going on. We want them to be prepared for the worst. No danger is this country will get out in China and that the populace may do injury before the government can step in and prevent it."

Fear an Outbreak.

For instance a wild report might arise that the Chinese in the United States had been wantonly massacred on account of race prejudice. Of course the Chinese in China would resent this outrage, and the people there might be disposed to resent by violence and cruelty the humiliation to which their countrymen were about to be subjected, whether they are entitled to remain here or not.

We are not only the Presbyterian board of mission that took action upon the decision of the supreme court. The Methodist Foreign Missionary society has at Fifth avenue and Twentieth street and decided to take a final appeal to the president and cabinet against the immediate enforcement of the law and to recommend that Sunday, May 28, be set aside as a day of special prayer that the missionary interests in China might be saved from disaster.

Chinese Have Ten Days to Stay.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—The Chinese consul general has received a telegram from the Chinese minister at Washington instructing him to inform the Chinese that they must take care of their individual interests themselves if arrested under the provisions of law. He informed the consul that immunity for 10 day was guaranteed by the stay of proceedings granted by the courts. After that time he was ordered the Chinese must expect to be arrested.

Attempted to Poison Eckhold.

NEWTOWN, L. I., May 18.—The disclosures made by Otto Eckhold in Justice Schumacher's court have caused a feeling of unusual excitement. Eckhold is looked upon as a dangerous man, and his statements about the plans and objects of the band of anarchists who have made this village their headquarters for several days are believed to be true. Constable Hock believes that an attempt was made Tuesday to poison Eckhold.

Killed Himself on Their Graves.

LONG ISLAND CITY, May 18.—The body of William Rosenstein, member of the C. Rosenstein company, dealers in matches at 323 Washington street, New York, was found lying upon the graves of his two children in Calvary cemetery, Newtown, L. I. It is believed that financial troubles led him to take his life.

Political Legislation.

PROVIDENCE, May 18.—A bill was introduced in the house of representatives the object of which is to prevent the new contemplated unseating of Republicans by the Democrats in the next house before the meeting of the grand committee for the election of state officers.

Graves Wants a Change of Venue.

DENVER, May 18.—Dr. T. Thatcher Graves filed an application for a change of venue from Judge Risings' court on the ground that the judge is prejudiced and will not give the doctor a fair trial.

Trouble Over a False Report.

NEW YORK, May 18.—District Attorney Nicoll has issued subpoenas for Witnesses in the matter of the false report made of the failure of H. B. Hollins & Co., which was circulated on Wall street.

Aid From the Bank of England.

LONDON, May 18.—The representatives of three large Australian banks which have survived the panic attended the Bank of England meeting and were volunteered all necessary assistance.

Coroner of Albany County.

ALBANY, May 18.—Governor Flower has appointed Michael F. Conners, a Democrat, of this city, as one of the coroners of Albany county in the place of Joseph A. Dunn, deceased.

An Archbishop Prostrated.

PARIS, May 18.—Mgr. Gouvelsard, archbishop of Rennes, dropped dead in the restaurant of the railway station at Rennes.

Mrs. Sarah Muir
Of Minneapolis.

For Women

Hood's Sarsaparilla is Especially Adapted to Cure Difficulties Peculiar to the Sex.

The purifying and invigorating properties of Hood's Sarsaparilla, combined with its power to vitalize and enrich the blood, render it peculiarly effective for all troubles of the female system. Dizziness, headache, nervousness, that tired feeling, sleeplessness, and all that class of symptoms which make women miserable, are promptly overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It acts directly and gently upon the menstrual organs, regulating and strengthening them, and thus restoring health and vigor. Mrs. Muir writes:

"I spent a few months in Florida, hoping to regain my health, but found no benefit. I returned home and tried many remedies and physicians, to no good purpose. One day I read one of Hood's Sarsaparilla books, and thought I would try a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I found relief in my second bottle, and by the time I had taken three bottles I was entirely cured. I can highly recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all suffering women."

FRUIT PROSPECTS WONDERFUL. Prices going up rapidly.

Mason's pints, large neck, 70c., quarts, 75c., and ½ gallons, $1.00 per dozen. Two years ago they went up to two dollars per dozen, and they could not be had at that—then cold pitchers and stone jars had to be resorted to. If you can spare the money don't delay, but buy at once, and you will feel comfortable. Think of a two-burner Oil Stove for $1.20—several other styles in proportion—unheard of prices. We have twenty different styles of Hammocks, from the cheapest to the best—just read our prices. Corsets sells at 90c., $1.20, $1.50, $1, 75 and $2.00. The Domestic Sewing Machine is the wonder of the times, as it will make either lock stitch, outer edge, tambour or the chain stitch, using the single thread, two machines in one—get the best, the Domestic. The Smith Premier Typewriter is the best—call and see it. 1000 different articles to be sold at 5c. each. Buy House Furnishings of Us, and Save Money.

CHRISTIAN BURIAL FOR PALLISTER.

The Body Identified by the Convict's Mother's Handkerchief.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The body of Thomas Pallister, who escaped from the death house at Sing Sing only to lose his life, is to be given a Christian burial this afternoon. The body of Pallister arrived at the Grand Central depot in charge of Undertaker Kenny. It was decided not to remove the body from the undertaker's establishment, but to let it remain at the depot until the funeral. The interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. Pallister, mother of Thomas Pallister, went to Sing Sing yesterday in company with her son-in-law, Mr. Parker. The two were at once conducted by Principal Keeper Connaughton to the death chamber. Mr. Parker made a close examination of the body and then said it was that of Thomas Pallister.

Mrs. Pallister was then led into the death chamber and taken to the side of the coffin wherein lay the remains of her son. She gazed at the face a moment, then pushed the lid of the coffin aside, grasped the right hand of the corpse, and after closely scrutinizing the tattoo marks on the wrist said:

"That's Tom."

Mrs. Pallister then fell across the coffin, crying: "Poor Tom. Poor Tom." With her gloved hand she gently brushed back the hair from the forehead of the dead man. With some difficulty Mrs. Pallister was taken from the death chamber.

Father Smyth, who attended Pallister in the dasthhouse before Pallister escaped, gave Parker the following statement:

I hereby certify that Thomas Pallister, while under sentence of death and previous to his escape from Sing Sing prison, received the sacrament of penance and holy communion.

FATHER SMYTH,
Assistant Rector.

The Husband Charged With Murder.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 18.—The coroner's jury in the case of Elizabeth Dibble, whose mysterious death on Sunday last in the town of Beekman has already been reported, returned a verdict charging her husband, John H. Dibble, with killing her. Dibble was at once arrested, brought to the jail in this city and locked up.

Mr. Villard May Resign.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The story was repeated in Wall street that Henry Villard was to retire from the management of the affairs of the Northern Pacific railroad. It was said that his resignation was in the hands of President Thomas F. Oakes, and that it would be presented to the board of directors at the meeting today.

A Heavy Judgment.

NEW YORK, May 18.—In the United States circuit court Judge Lacombe granted a decree for $1,671,319.78 in favor of the Central Trust company of New York against the City Railway Improvement company. The suit was brought for the foreclosure of a mortgage held by the trust company.

Failed to Indict.

FONDA, N. Y., May 18.—The grand jury of Montgomery county heard the evidence in the case against John W. Eighby, formerly justice of the peace of Amsterdam, who was charged with forging a decree of divorce for one of his clients. The jury did not return an indictment against him.

Ten Lucky Mississippians.

MERIDIAN, Miss., May 18.—Mason Smyth, a brakeman on the Mobile and Ohio railroad, has received news from England that a rich uncle had died, leaving him $1,500,000. Smyth's sister, who lives near Jackson, and each of her eight children are also bequeathed with similar amounts.

The Jury Disagreed.

BURLINGTON, N. J., May 18.—The case of President Arrington, Vice President Troth and George Marshall of the National Association of Green Glass Workers, indicted for conspiracy, resulted in the disagreement of the jury after being out 70 hours.

Chinese Will Ship Back Their Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—A representative of the Ying company, one of the Chinese Six companies, has notified the health officials that within 10 days they will proceed to disinter 600 bodies of Chinese in this city and send the remains to China.

A Lawyer Locked Up.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Lawyer Everett D. Barlow of No. 396 Broadway was arrested and locked up in Ludlow Street jail on the charge of conspiring $2,500, the property of the Phoenix Manufacturing company of Taunton, Mass., to his own use.

An Eastern Beef Syndicate.

NEW YORK, May 18.—A large corporation under the name of the United Dressed Beef company has been organized by New York merchants for the purpose of making themselves better able to compete with the large western concerns.

He Married Bonaparte's Daughter.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 18.—Colonel S. H. Benton, who married a daughter of Jerome Bonaparte and resided on an estate which descended from the exiled king, died at his home near Ox Bow, this county, aged 83.

Exempt Firemen's Convention.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., May 18.—The twenty-second annual convention of the New Jersey State Exempt Firemen's association was held here.

MEANS TO ENFORCE IT.

President Intends to Carry Out the Chinese Exclusion Act.

MUST REGISTER OR GO TO JAIL.

A California Senator Says This Plan Would Soon Scare the Chinese Into Submission.

The Chinese Minister Visits Secretary Gresham—News of an Official Nature.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — Congressman Caminetti of California after a short conference with the president left the White House feeling assured that it was the intention of the president to see that the Chinese restriction act was enforced. Mr. Caminetti denied that it would take anything like the sum of money that has been mentioned to enforce the act, for the reason that those Chinamen entitled to remain would have to secure the certificates at their own expense, and those against whom the law is really aimed will be frightened out of the country the moment an honest attempt is made to enforce it. He says that the imposition of the punishment prescribed—a year at hard labor—upon a few of the offenders will be sufficient to drive all the others out, and that the United States will not be called upon to deport the great mass of the people.

Mr. Caminetti is of the opinion that what additional money may be needed will be voted at the next session, and he fears no repeal of the law. It was understood that the president is to hold a conference with the secretary of the treasury for the purpose of devising means for the enforcement of the law.

The Chinese minister, accompanied by his interpreter, Mr. Ho, called on the secretary of state and had a conference with him relative to the Chinese exclusion law. Secretary Gresham refuses to talk about the nature of the interview further than to say that it was very pleasant and that he considers the Chinese minister a man of great ability.

A Brigadier General Appointed.

The president has appointed Colonel William P. Carlin of the Fourth United States Infantry to be brigadier general to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Brigadier General F. A. Carr.

Disapproved of the Verdict.

The findings of the general court martial convened at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., for the trial of Captain William S. Johnson, retired, and their recommendation in the case have been disapproved by President Cleveland.

Dining the Grand Duke.

The Grand Duke Alexander of Russia returned to Washington from his visit to New York, and was again the guest of the Russian minister. A dinner was given in his honor by that official, at which the diplomatic corps, government officials and those prominent in society attended. Tonight an elaborate dinner and reception will be tendered the grand duke by Senator Brice, and the same courtesies will be extended him on Saturday night by Mrs. Barney.

A Postal Appointment.

Postmaster General Bissell has appointed John L. Thomas of Missouri to be assistant attorney general for the postoffice department.

THE FACTORY BLEW UP.

Six of the Eighty Employees in the Building Were Killed.

GENEVA, Ills., May 18.—C. I. Pope's glucose factory was the scene of a most disastrous explosion by which six persons lost their lives and one man was fatally scalded. The killed are Victor Anderson, Louis Schultz, Fred Stoerm, F. Lund, Alfred Anderson and J. Danielson. J. Kalberg is fatally injured and William Pratt is seriously hurt.

The factory was a large 4-story structure and there were 80 employees in the building at the time, most of whom escaped with only slight injuries.

The explosion occurred in a generator and scattered things right and left. The shock was a terrible one and was felt throughout a radius of three miles. That more lives were not lost borders on the miraculous.

Declined a Consulate.

BIDDEFORD, Me., May 18.—Frank W. Roberts of this city has been offered the consulate at Cape Town, South Africa, but he has decided not to accept because of his disinclination to take his children from the public schools to heathendom.

Postmaster O'Kelly Acquitted.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Postmaster Patrick J. O'Kelly of Davis island, who was charged with malfeasance in office by collecting canceled postage stamps for the purpose of securing a fraudulent commission, was acquitted.

Killed by an Electric Car.

NEWARK, N. J., May 18.—Six-year-old Isaac Marder of 945 Morris avenue was instantly killed by a Springfield avenue electric car. The lad was on his way home from the Hebrew school.

More Smallpox Comes In.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The examination of the steerage passengers of the Alsatia developed another case of smallpox. The person was removed to the reception hospital.

Street Laborers Still Out.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 18.—Twenty-five hundred street workmen are still on a strike.

BITS OF NEWS.

A fire in Utica, N. Y., burned part of a block on Genesee street.

Max Judd, consul to Vienna, sails from New York to his post on Friday.

Major Pond's request for an injunction against the Black Patti was refused.

Truffle on the West Shore railroad west of Buffalo was suspended by the washing away of a bridge.

A 6-day bicycle race for women was begun at Chicago.

The wife of Colonel William B. Hayes has sued Lole Fuller, the actress, to recover $3,500, money loaned.

Rear Admiral Gherardi is to be assigned to the command of the Brooklyn navy yard.

Mrs. Annie Weed won her suit against the heirs of Mortimer T. Weed, the Wall street broker, who left all his money to his brother, and she will be paid her dower right.

Gerard Enstine, 60, a wealthy Philadelphia manufacturer, went to New York and was drugged and robbed in a saloon.

The French dynamite garrison in the Me-Kong valley, India, had a serious conflict with the Siamese.

INK THROWING EXTRAORDINARY.

Irregular and Exciting Scenes at a Session of the Bohemian Diet.

PRAGUE, May 18.—The Bohemian diet was the scene of a display of violence unparalleled in the protracted and bitter struggle for supremacy between the Czech and German elements. Herr Funke attempted to speak, and some utterances of his were construed by a Czech deputy named Brzorad as alluding in a sarcastic manner to him (Brzorad). The offended deputy flung the ink upon the tribune and assailed Herr Funke. Brzorad and Funke had a lively encounter. Brzorad succeeded in ejecting Funke from the tribune amid the intense delight of the Czechs. Everybody in the house was shouting and shaking fists, and angry challenges to fight could be heard here and there in the din. Funke was quick to accept a challenge, and when a Czech deputy interrupted him with a large pot of ink, the contents of which were distributed over Funke and a number of others.

Then the Czechs next attacked the stenographers and maltreated several of them. Prince Lobkowitz himself was mauled with personal violence, and declared the sitting closed. The prince has since been occupied in the preliminary arrangements for duels with several of his antagonists.

Will Appeal to the President.

BOSTON, May 18.—J. W. Sloat, general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, is in Washington to interview Attorney General Olney on the subject of Sunday opening of the World's fair, with a view to obtaining an opinion favoring the fair management from taking any action in the matter. He will also call upon the president for an expression of opinion. If the fair is opened on Sunday, the society, he says, cannot consistently keep its exhibit open.

Retired For Four Days.

HALIFAX, May 18. — Frank Newell, George E. Bridges, Edward H. Green, Theodore Mathews, Chambers on the Alsatia, Fielding, Skinner, Hamilton and Boothby, Me., arrived here and relate a harrowing tale of their experience while adrift for four days in a dory. They were in an exhausted condition. After reaching land they caught a sheep, which they ate raw. They footed it to Sonora, some miles away, and took a steamer to Halifax.

New York to Be Tested Saturday.

BOSTON, May 18.—The speed of the great armored cruiser New York will be officially tested next Saturday, if the wind and weather permits. The handsome new battleship is now outside of Cape Cod, accompanied by the Vesuvius, Bennington, a lighthouse tender from Portland, Me., and several small tugs. They will anchor in 13 fathoms of the distance and begin the course clear of small craft. The run will be for four consecutive hours.

Chinese Cannot Go to Mexico.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—The steamer Oceanic brings advices from Hong Kong concerning the efforts that are being made to procure Chinese laborers from Mexico, that a proclamation has been issued prohibiting immigration until the treaty between China and Mexico has been satisfied. The object of the proclamation is stated to be to avoid a repetition of the treatment received by the Chinese in the United States.

Will Not Contest Midlothian Again.

LONDON, May 18.—Lord Randolph Churchill, speaking at Reading, said that Mr. Gladstone had informed the leading Liberals at Midlothian that he would not contest that constituency again. This decision, said Lord Randolph, proved that Mr. Gladstone realized what a revolution of feeling had been produced against him by the home rule bill.

A Rest For Arbitrators.

PARIS, May 18.—The Behring sea tribunal adjourned until Tuesday, May 23, the hall in which the sessions are held being wanted in the meantime for other purposes. M. Develle, French foreign minister, will give a dinner tonight to the members of the tribunal of arbitration and to the counsel in the case.

These Long Frock Coats.

"Why, Weginald, dear boy, what is the matter?"

"Oh, Arthur, I'm in the most terrible distress! Here The Proper Thing says frock coats are to be made longer this spring. If I don't follow the style at once, my reputation as the best dressed man at our club is gone forever. And if my new coat is made any longer I'll walk on it and trip over it, and vulgar people will laugh and say unkind things and—and!"— (Collapses completely.)—Life.

"How good digestion must be!
And health as both."

To secure both the above ends, good, wholesome, palatable food is demanded. It is next to impossible to procure a sufficient variety of appetizing bills of fare for our meals, with out a liberal allowance of pastry and other food in which shortening is required. How to make cooking healthful, digestible, pastry has puzzled the cooks. A difficulty in all good cooking in the past has been had. Always acids, more or less, and most medicated soda. Just what has been the bane of the cook and the obstacle to "good digestion."

YELLOWSTONE PARK.

Picturesque Features of the Nation's Wonderful Public Grounds.

Yellowstone park is situated the greater part in the state of Wyoming and the remainder in Montana and partly in Idaho and comprises 3,575 square miles. The adaptability of this section of the country to the purposes of a national park was first brought prominently before the public by a company of surveyors who visited the region in the year 1869. In 1870 and 1871 the territory was again explored by scientific expeditions, and the reports of the first visitors were confirmed. The expedition of 1871 was headed by Professor Hayden, and upon his representations an act was passed by congress and approved March 1, 1872, by which what is now known as the Yellowstone National park was "reserved and withdrawn from settlement, occupancy or sale and dedicated and set apart as a public park or pleasure ground for the benefit and enjoyment of the people."

This great park contains the most striking of all the mountains, gorges, falls, rivers and lakes in the whole Yellowstone region. The mountain ranges rise to the height of 10,000 to 12,000 feet and are always covered with snow. The banks of the Yellowstone river abound with ravines and canyons, which are carved out of the heart of the mountains through the hardest rocks. The most remarkable of these is the canyon of Tower Creek and Column mountain, which is about 19 miles in length and is so gloomy and gloomy that it is called "The Devil's Den."

The Grand canyon, which begins where Tower creek ends, is 20 miles in length, is impassable throughout and is inaccessible at the water's edge except at a few points, and its depth is so profound that no sound ever reaches the ear at the bottom. The park contains a great multitude of hot springs of sulphur, sulphate of copper, alum, etc. There are at least 50 geysers that throw columns of water to the height of from 50 to 200 feet, and the falls of this wonderland are considered marvelous. The altitude of the entire park is 6,000 feet or more above the sea level.

The Word Zero.

The word "zero" is from the Spanish and means nothing. Here is one story about its first use for a thermometer in 1705 by a Prussian merchant named Fahrenheit. From a boy Fahrenheit was a close observer of nature, and when only 10 years old, in the remarkably cold winter of 1709, he experimented by putting snow and salt together, and found that it produced a degree of cold equal to the coldest day of the year. And that day being the coldest day that the oldest inhabitant could remember, Fahrenheit was the more struck with the coincidence of his little scientific discovery and hastily concluded that he had found the lowest degree of temperature known in the world, either natural or artificial.

He called the degree zero and constructed a thermometer, a rude venitier glass, with a scale graduating up from zero to boiling point, which he numbered 212, and freezing point 32, because, as he thought, mercury contracted the thirty-second of its volume on being cooled down from the temperature of freezing water to zero and expanded the one hundred and eightieth on being heated from the freezing to the boiling point.

The Ass as Mentioned in Shakespeare.

The only ass spoken handsomely of or to in Shakespeare's plays is Bully Bottom in that guise, while, on the other hand, the opprobrious application of the name meets us at every turn. "What an ass art thou!" heartily ejaculates Speed to Launce ("Two Gentlemen of Verona," 2, 5). "Preposterous ass!" cries Lucentio, seeking to drown Hortensio's music. Even Caliban thus reproaches himself ("Tempest," 2, 1):

What a thrice double ass
Was I to take this drunkard for a god
And worship this dull fool!

Antipholus of Ephesus says blandly to Dromio, "I think thou art an ass," which provokes the retort ("Comedy of Errors," 3, 1):

Marry, so it doth appear,
By the wrongs I suffer, and the blows I bear,
I should kick, being kicked; and, being at that pass,
You would keep from my heels and beware of an ass.

Language In Sealing Wax.

An epistle conveying a proposal of marriage must be sealed with white wax, while accepted lovers may use ruby color. Jealousy is expressed by yellow wax, blue implies constancy and a brown melancholy, green suggests hope, and a paler shade of green conveys reproof. A letter of condolence should bear a violet seal in reply to the black wax intimating death, and the ordinary wax must be used for business. Invitations to dinner display chocolate seals, gushing young ladies fasten their confidences with pink, and gray is the general tint for letters to ordinary acquaintances.

As Old, Old Rhyme.

Married in white, you have chosen all right.
Married in gray, you will go far away.
Married in black, you will wish yourself back.
Married in red, you will wish yourself dead.
Married in green, ashamed to be seen.
Married in blue, he will always be true.
Married in yellow, ashamed of your fellow.
Married in brown, you will live out of town.
Married in pink, your spirits will sink.

Yale College.

Yale college was founded in 1709 under the trusteeship of the ten principal ministers of the colony of Connecticut, who each contributed a gift of books. It was first established at Saybrook, but in 1716 was removed to New Haven. Among its early patrons were Governor Yale, after whom it was named, and Bishop Berkeley. Of its four faculties the medical was organized in 1812, the theological in 1822, the legal in 1824 and the philosophical in 1847.

The Costermonger in Morocco.

In Morocco the costermonger recommends his wares by pledging the credit of a saint: "In the name of Mulai Idriss! Roast chestnuts!" "In the name of our Lord Mohammed Al Hadji! Popcorn! Popcorn!" "In the name of Sidna Ali-bu-Khaleb! Melons! Nice, sweet melons!" "God is gracious! Beans! Fried beans!" "There be no might nor majesty save in Allah! Water! Cool water!" These and the like are heard at every turn.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

A GRAND PARTY.

As Arranged and Conducted by Several Musical Boys and Girls.

"Mother," said Letty, "may we have a party and dress up like grown people?"

"Oh, yes," said Fritz, her brother; "it would be such fun. I would dress as a waiter and hand round the cakes and lemonade."

"We have thought so much about it, mother," said Letty. "We could invite our friends and have a concert. I could play on the piano, and Georgie on the violin, and Ellen and Harry Eden could sing, and Rosie Green can play on the accordion."

"And what would Nina do?" asked the mother.

"Oh, I should be one of the ladies who gave the party, and you would come to it, mother, would you not?"

"Oh, yes, mother, it would be such fun," said Fritz.

"Well," said their mother, "as you are good children I will do what I can to help you, and I will let you have the drawing room for your party."

Fritz and his sister gave a shout of joy. "There never was such a good mother as you are!" said Nina, kissing her.

And so it was arranged, and the young friends were invited, and Georgie and Letty got out their music and practiced it, and Rosie Green came with her accordion to practice also. Nurse made a grand velvet suit for Fritz and put a large white rosette in his buttonhole, and he had white stockings and shiny shoes and a white wig.

"And I shall be very polite to every one," said Fritz.

Robbing Birds' Nests.

Boys who rob birds' nests do not always realize what a cruel thing this is to do. I used not to think much about it myself until an incident occurred that showed me how I was robbing our feathered friends of the joys of their homes. One spring two linnets built their nest in some bushes near my window. We were all very much interested in the wee house, and when we found four little eggs inside the nest took every precaution to prevent it from being disturbed. But one morning when we went as usual to peep at the nest we found some cruel hand had robbed it of all its contents and left it half destroyed.

We felt very sorry, but thought the birdies would perhaps build again. Alas! no. When they returned and found their beloved home broken up, their grief was painful to see. Uttering all the while the most piteous cries, they frantically flew in circles high above the nest; then they hopped all around and round the broken building, I suppose, poor mites, that the eggs had fallen out. For two days they continued their search, and on the third we thought they had left, as we did not notice them about. We were partly right, for the father bird had really gone and did not return again, but the body of the poor wee mate was found by us, still and lifeless, on the ground by the bushes, and we felt quite sure then that the loss of her dear home had broken her tender heart.

The Avalanche.

Here is a graphic description of a snow slide that occurred one day in February on the Bitter Root mountains by one who was in it. He says:

Along the trail that wound up the mountainside great masses of snow seemed to overhang us, and more than once I noticed how anxious the grizzly haired old guide seemed to be. There was only a narrow path through the snow, and the 30 mules with five packers followed us in single file. The guide was of course in front, and I was second. We had come to a turn in the trail, and I halted to look back. I heard no warning—no cry of alarm. The snow on the mountain top began to move. The width of the avalanche was fully a quarter mile, and it moved like a flash. There was no rumbling, no crashing, and in 15 seconds later it was all over. I looked for our pack train. Not a hair on the mule had escaped. They had disappeared, and for a while space there was neither tree nor shrub. "Close call that!" said the guide. "Come on. All the men in Montana could not dig them out!" And we rode on in silence.

Soap, Hot Water and a Clean Skin.

There are many muddy skinned women who need to use hot water and any good superfatted soap on their faces once a day. After the face is washed in hot water it should be rinsed in cold and allowed to dry without using a towel. Toweling the face too much brings on wrinkles. In spite of the prejudice against using soap on the face there are many who still believe that no woman who fails to wash her face occasionally in soap and hot water can claim to have a clean skin.

SPEAKING IN PUBLIC.

WOMEN ARE PECULIARLY FITTED TO TAKE AN ACTIVE PART.

The Mother and the Schoolteacher Train the Future Voters and Public Speakers. Then Why Should Not Their Voices Be Heard?

The superstition that woman is out of place in a public capacity is manifestly incongruous of life because it is based on imagination, and imagination is one of the strongest forces in the human mind. It is responsible for all the worry, all the fears, all the apprehensions and two-thirds of the suffering that make up this mortal existence. Imagination rightly used is the source of our most exquisite pleasure; wrongly used, it teaches that life is a gruesome thing, that public life is even more fearsome and that she safest position for woman is that of the grub under the stone, which scampers out of sight the moment the broad light of publicity shines upon it.

What is this public of which women are expected to stand in such lively and unreasoning horror? It is merely an aggregation of individuals, each of whom was once a naughty little boy or girl, as the case might be. In every Hilltown and Valleyville countless good women are busily engaged caring for the welfare and improving the morals of their own particular Sammy and Dick. It's an unfortunate boy who has not a mother or elder sister to act as helper, adviser and trusted friend in all his affairs. Why should not the same motherly and sisterly wisdom be available when a few more years are added to Dick and Sammy's shoulders, and when they happen to meet with Peter and Joe and other friends and neighbors under a public roof?

Why should women be mute as herring on the very occasions when their womanly keenness of perception and love of truth and righteousness might impress a score of minds, or fifty, or a hundred, or a thousand minds, instead of the selfish few about their own fireside? A community is but a larger family, whose affairs have become hopelessly muddled, owing to the ancient custom of the men having everything to say while the women and sisters let the earnest word freeze upon the hesitating lip.

Every public school teacher is a public speaker. She speaks in a public place every day to an important part of the public. Is she less womanly or does she wield a worse influence than the private teacher whose attention is exclusively devoted to a single family? The woman who devotes her time to public speaking is not childless and does not deal entirely with young children. The twigs that she so patiently bends in the right direction are often well up in their teens. In a few years these same twigs will hold a public meeting, which it may be their old teacher will attend. She instantly recognizes Tom and Freddy and Jim.

There is the boy that she whipped. She hated to do it, but it had to come. There is the boy she had a serious talk with. It proved such a serious thing for him that he began to envy the boy who was whipped. There is the bright, wide awake fellow who always spoke before he thought. She had to keep him in a dozen times for thus slight fault. See, he is making a speech now—reeling off half truths just as of old. A few words from her would straighten out his thoughts, correct his conclusions and give his views some chance of adoption, but she is a woman, and this is a public meeting.

Another of her old boys quotes some words of her own which she uttered years ago. She would like to rise and say that she is wiser now than when she uttered those words, but this is a public place, and she is a woman. Two of her old boys get into a heated discussion and use language with each other. She can see that both are right and both wrong, and she longs to get up and make matters clear, but publicity and womanliness prevent. The right forces in the meeting need helping; the wrongs need quelling. Truth seems to be and she might so easily make both truth and wrong change places but—but this locality is so very, very public, and she is so extremely, so hopelessly womanly.

Not that all women invariably say the right things in public. But so long as women represent and uphold the moral worth of a community the moral quality of that community must suffer deterioration from the enforced public silence. The woman who is a poor speaker has no more right to be heard publicly than she who is a poor singer, but why should it be considered wrong to use a musical voice in song if it is unwomanly to use it in speech? Why should a woman with music in her soul pressing for utterance be more privileged than her sister whose ideas are equally urgent for expression? Is it so very much more feminine to lull the listening mind than to stimulate it to its highest endeavor? Wordsworth's perfect woman was "nobly planned to warn, to comfort and command." Is not that a higher ideal than the one who is "content to smile" to say, "I'd speak, but—I'm afraid!"

St. Paul's fashion items concerning veils and uncovered heads are not of nearly so much importance as the parable of the buried talent.

Not every woman is called to act in a public capacity, but she who hears that call which comes to her conscience all of it is so much more womanly to hide her light under a bushel rather than to let it shine before men.

This public of which we are so ready to say harsh things is made up of weary men and women like ourselves struggling toward the light.

In public affairs women's influence is equivalent to a large number of dark lanterns. It is as easy to carry those lanterns with the slides up as down, but "Simon says" slides down. Accordingly all the light of all our lives is concentrated upon our sweetest and darning needles, while we speak of politics as synonomous with outer darkness, as indeed they are and will be so long as the radiance of feminine influence is carefully kept from them.—Ethelwyn Wetherald in Wives and Daughters.

One Way to Amuse a Child.

To amuse a very small child, put an old gingham apron on it, put it on the floor or in a high chair and put some molasses in a finger bowl, give it a few tablespoons and a pillow, and as a rule it will amuse itself a long time picking the feathers from one hand to the other and will probably end by sucking all the molasses off its fingers. By that time nurse or mother will likely be at leisure and can amuse it herself.—New York Recorder.

He Was Right.

The story of the rich man's selling all he had and giving it to the poor was the subject of discussion in a certain Sunday school class not long ago. The teacher was illustrating the moral that the lesson conveys. One of her most attentive listeners was a little fellow scarcely 6 years old, but as bright as a dollar and with a tongue that uses the queen's English in a manner that would make that motherly old soul squirm if she heard it. "Now," said the teacher very impressively, "if a man is fortunate enough to make $1,000,000 in the course of his life, it is his duty to give half of it at least to the poor." She interrupted a prim little girl in one corner, "but how many men make $1,000,000 in the course of their lives?" There was a silence for a moment, when the little fellow replied in with the caustic answer, "Darn few."—Udica Observer.

His Share.

Tea, this is her picture, drawn
By the sun's resistless hand!
Eyes of heavenly blue are fawn,
Hidden by the drooping lash.
Such a neck and shoulders too!
Ah, I thought you'd like her arms.
Surely artist never drew
Any goddess with such charms!
Then her waist could never reach.
Her complexion's like a peach,
And her smile—that soulful touch.
Which the lucky artist never touch.
Lucky man! Well, maybe, sir.
But this picture and one curl
Are all I have left of her.
For Jack—Why, you've got the girl!

IN CASE OF EMERGENCY.

WHAT TO DO AND WHAT NOT TO DO.

The Last of the Emergency Lectures Delivered by Dr. Hedges at the Irving School Last Evening. — A Large Attendance.

Dr. Hedges delivered the third of the emergency lectures last night, at the Irving school, his subject being "What to do for those who have been stunned; the apoplectic inebriated or fainting, and in cases of poisoning." The largest attendance at the course was present last night.

He said in part: The way to tell the difference between a drunken man and one with an apoplectic fit is by the pupils of the eyes. If it is the former, one will be smaller than the other, and if you open the eyelid it will close again, while in an apoplectic it will not, although an apoplectic may have been drunk. Opium poison will cause an apoplectic fit. In this case the pupils of the eyes will be like little pin points, and the breathing will be very slow. Whenever you see a person whose eye pupils look like little pin points lookout for an opium fiend. It is a sure sign and a distinct give-away. A sure sign of opium intoxication is a stupor and very difficult breathing.

SUNSTROKE.

A sunstroke is not always caused by being in the hot sun. It may be caused by an overheated room, and persons are often overcome by the heat of a close muggy day, when the sun is not shining at all hot. Always get a person that has been sun struck into a cool place. If you have ice, cover him with it, if not pour cold water upon him. The main thing is to keep the body cool. A man who wears heavy flannels through the Summer is sensible if he has to work out in the sun. The flannels induce prespiration and then evaporation, thus keeping the body cool and moist. The first symptom of sunstroke is an irritable feeling. Now I do not mean that every person that feels irritable is sun struck, because then we might have more patients than we would know what to do with. But usually the first symptom is one of irritability, then a sinking feeling in the pit of the stomach. This will be followed by a hot feeling all over. The first thing to do is to reduce the temperature. A sprinkling pot is as good as anything. Fill it with ice cold water and then go up and down the person soaking him through.

EPILEPSY.

The first thing an epileptic does is to cry out and then fall back rigid. The muscles will then relax and the patient begin to kick violently. I remember the first case of epilepsy I ever saw. It was when I was a student in Philadelphia and boarding at a house on Thirty fourth street. There was a young man boarding there, who told me one day that if he thought he had epileptic fits he would jump into the Schuylkill river. This is one of the peculiarities of the disease; a person never knows he has the attack. One morning I came down to breakfast and the table was covered with the oddest collection of China I ever saw. I counted over 40 pieces and was told that my young friend had had a fit and jumped on the table smashing everything on it into fragments, breaking the chairs, the sofa and the table into pieces. He broke the landlady's china up so that she had to use all the odds and ends she had in the house in order to secure enough for use. Her boarder was bounced the next day. He secured another place and when he went to bed everything was taken out of the room but a mattress, and this was placed upon the floor. It was thought he couldn't possibly do any damage then. During the night he had a fit and commenced to kick. He splintered the floor and knocked the wall in and then drove his foot through the chandelier. This impressed the epileptic fit very strongly upon my mind. The only thing that can be done in a case of this kind is to place a handkerchief into the mouth and keep the person from doing himself injury.

Epileptic convulsions are common occurrences in children, and are caused by feelings, flatulency and worms in the bowels. The first symptoms are the rolling of the eyeballs and a deathly paleness. A hot bath is the best remedy. Also give two teaspoonfuls of epicac to cause vomiting. If this imple effective, give an injection of hot water.

The doctor here spoke of the hysterical convulsion, when the contemplation becomes angelic and the young lady almost always falls into a young man's arms. They never happen when she is alone, but always when there is a convenient place to fall. There is a deathly pallor, and if you attempt to raise the eyelids they resist. In each case of this kind, if you talk of getting a pail of water, the patient will revive.

THE STUNNED.

For a person that has been stunned by a fall or a blow on the head always apply heat to the body and cold to the head. Never give stimulants. It seems to be some people's second nature to always give stimulants. Don't give stimulants in a case of this kind. It is better to let any one suffering from being stunned wait until the doctor comes, after applying heat to the body and cold to the head.

FOR POISONS.

If a person has taken poison the first thing to do is to make him vomit. For an irritant poison, such as Paris Green, rat poison, paint or putty, two teaspoonfuls of mustard in hot water or of table salt in lukewarm water will usually have the desired effect. If an alkali has been taken give an acid; if an acid, then give alkali. The most effective remedy in case of poison in the stomach is the stomach pump. If you haven't got one, use the common rubber tubing of a fountain syringe. Cover the end well with vaseline and push it into the throat and down in the pit of the stomach. Place a funnel in the other end, pour in about two quarts of water, then lower the end of the tube and let the water run out. This may be repeated several times.

AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

FOURTH ANNIVERSARY.

Meeting of the Warren Mission Y. P. S. C. E.

The Young People's Society for Christian Endeavor, of the Warren Mission chapel, celebated its fourth anniversary, in the chapel, on Chatham street, last evening. A number of the members of the New Market and Dunellen Y. P. S. C. E. were present.

The president of the society, Mr. Henry Seader, presided. The secretary, Miss Lizzie Stafford, read the report of the society for the past years giving very satisfactory results and showing the society to be growing steadily, having a membership now of 50.

After the reports Mr. H. R. Goodchild of Roselle made an address, speaking most interestingly in behalf of the societies, and telling of their prosperity throughout the county.

Mr. Moore in a neat speech presented the efficient organist, Miss Maggie Shepard, with a pretty oak centre table.

After a short time spent in social discourse the meeting closed.

PASSING COUNTERFEIT MONEY.

An Italian Gives a Counterfeit Dollar in Payment for a Ticket.

Last night an Italian bought a ticket at the North avenue station from Ticket Agent Franks, and gave as payment a dollar which upon examination proved to be counterfeit. It is an excellent imitation of a silver dollar, but it is much lighter in weight.

The police have been notified but it is not likely he will be caught.

BREVITIES.

—Mr. White advertises ladies' oxford ties, common sense or tipped, worth $1.50, reduced to $1.25.

—The subject at the meeting of the Young People's League of the First Baptist church, to night, will be "Say So."

—The iron poles for the street railway on Somerset street have arrived and are being distributed along the street.

—The Dunellen Call says: "The Novelty Advertising and Publishing Co., formerly of this place, have rented an office in Plainfield and will hereafter make that their headquarters."

—Judge W. A. Coddington will conduct the suit begun by the late F. H. Cook of Bound Brook for damages sustained by Jacob S. Smalley at the railroad crossing there in last January.

—A balky horse on North avenue delayed the shopping expedition of two Plainfield ladies this morning. It was one of a team and after trying nearly an hour to persuade the animal to go, it was unhitched and left in a nearby livery stable while the coachman went home for another horse, the ladies meanwhile patiently waiting.

—If, as is said, the rails of the Street Railway Company are at grade, the road bed of Somerset street needs considerable stone to raise it to the proper level As it is now the rails project several inches above the road bed in many places, and this, coupled with the uneven surface where the stone has been thrown up, makes difficult, if not dangerous, driving.

Runaway this Afternoon.

Shortly before three o'clock this afternoon a horse driven by Edward Ubrhahn ran away on Somerset street. In front of French's mill it ran upon the sidewalk, upsetting the wagon and throwing Mr. Uhrhahn out, but not hurting him. Several men ran to his assistance and stopped the horse as it was about to plunge on top of its driver as he lay on the sidewalk. A break in the harness was the cause of the runaway.

Yee Hing Still Alive.

Yee Hing, the Chinaman who cut his throat yesterday is still alive, but his recovery is doubtful. Last night, owing to an internal hemorrhage the stitches were taken out of the gash by Doctors Long, Murray and Carman to let the blood out of the windpipe. The gash was then sewed up again.

ART IN ITS EVERY LINE.

MACMONNIES' BEAUTIFUL FOUNTAIN AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

A Creation in Plaster That is so Beautiful, Efforts Will be Made to have it Perpetuated in Marble.

One of the most artistic decorative effects at the World's fair is the MacMonnies fountain in the Administration building. It is work of Frederick MacMonnies, the famous young Brooklyn sculptor, and is called the "Fountain of Life." When the fountain is in action by day, 140 jets fill the air with graceful streams of water, and at night electric lights add to the fountain's wonderful beauty. The artistic figures are made of plaster, but are worthy of being immortalized in the finest of marble.

Mrs. Mary F. MacMonnies, the sculptor's wife, is nearly as talented as her husband. Her painting, "The Primitive Woman," is one of the attractions of the Woman's building.

MONROE AVENUE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Its Regular Meeting Concluded with an Entertainment.

The Epworth League connected with the Monroe avenue chapel held its regular monthly meeting in the chapel last evening. After some business the following programme was rendered:

Violin solo.....L. Hillman
Recitation.....Samuel Krieger
Instrumental trio.....Misses Hall
Recitation.....Florence Smith
Piano solo.....Elvira Hall
Interesting social time.
Recitation.....Mr. Hillman
Piano trio.....Misses Aldrich, Beckman and King
Recitation.....Walter McGee

The different numbers on the programme were well rendered, without exception, and called forth much applause. Mr. Hillman as the Dutchman, was very funny and kept the audience convulsed with laughter by his comical recitations.

A BANNER FOR THE Y. P. S. C. E.

Each Society Will Have a Chance to Hold it a Year.

Miss Cherry Du Bois of Westfield, has completed a unique and beautiful design for a Y. P. S. C. E. banner, which will be presented to the society having the largest attendance in proportion to its membership, at the annual meeting of the Union County Y. P. S. C. E. in Elizabeth, May 25. The banner will be of white silk, with the regular society emblem in the centre, and the society badge of each organization in the county worked in various colored silks, and arranged about the centre piece.

Miss Du Bois has in the past the victorious society this year shall possess the banner until the next annual meeting, when it will again be held for the organization having the largest attendance. In this way every society will have the opportunity to hold the banner for a year.

They Become Peaceful When They Get Their Just Dues.

Contractor Nevins settled with the striking Italians last night by paying them off, at least those who remained. Many of them went to New York disgusted with the way they had been treated. Those who remained had their baggage strewn about the streets, ready to start off unless they were paid. They resumed work this morning, at least there were men at work who seemed to be the same.

"Fibrine Clot" of the heart.

Wednesday afternoon a horse belonging to Mr. C. M. Ulrich was taken sick on North avenue. He was unhitched and taken into the Metropolitan stables, nearby, where the horse died almost instantly.

Yesterday Dr. Pocock made an autopsy to discover the cause of death. He found that the horse died from "Fibrine clot" of the heart.

—The sociable of the Young People's League at the First Baptist church has been postponed until next Tuesday night.

BAPTIST HOME SOCIETY.

Elected Second Directress.

The annual meeting of the Baptist Home Society held in the Mount Pleasant Baptist church, Newark, on Tuesday afternoon, was largely attend. Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. Foster of New York, Rev. Charles A. Cook of Bloomfield, and Rev. Mr. Hodder of New York.

Miss Kate S. Thompson, treasurer of the society, read her report for the past year, which showed a balance on hand of $1,110.98. The receipts amounted to $4,120.68, of which $1,356.55 was received from subscriptions and donations. The expenses of maintaining the home was $3,093.86.

The following officers were elected: First Directress, Mrs J. Thompson, Newark; Second Directress, Mrs. C. B. Leonard, Plainfield; Third Directress, Mrs. S. E. Colgate, East Orange; Treasurer, Miss Kate S. Thompson, Newark; Recording Secretary, Mrs. G. Weldkin, New York city; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. J. R. Rollinson, Rahway.

AT THE FAIR.

Many Visitors Present at the German Hall.

At an early hour last night visitors began to arrive at the German fair. There were 23 from New Brunswick, 20 from Perth and South Amboy and 14 from Somerville. In the early part of the evening the society rendered several pieces, as follows:

"The Sabbath Day".....The Singing Society
"The Quiet Valley".....Plainfield Club
"Still Night".....New Brunswick Society
"Morgenroth".....Plainfield Ladies' Society
"The Evening Star".....Plainfield Club
"The Bridge".....New Brunswick Quartette
Kinder Symphonie.....Three Germans

All the singing was under the charge of Professor F. W. Steins.

There was a large number present and all seemed to enjoy themselves. The visitors were taken care of by the reception committee.

Mr. H. Dicke won the barrel of flour, and Mr. R. B. McCullough was the winner of a large parlor lamp. To-night there will be rope climbing by the pupils of the Turn Society.

FOR SUNDAY SELLING.

Lorenzo Paoli, the North Avenue Peanut Vender, Arrested.

This morning Lorenzo Paoli, who keeps the peanut stand on North avenue, was arrested on two charges. The first is that of keeping his place open on Sunday and the other for selling spirituous drinks—hard cider. The complaints were made by Chief of Police Grant.

Paoli was taken before Judge Coddington. He pleaded not guilty and a hearing was set down for Wednesday next, at ten a. m. He was held for $100 in each case to appear for trial.

Base Ball Notes.

The Crescents batting order to-morrow will be as follows: Bedford, c.; Smith, s. s.; McIndoe, l. f.; Turner, c. f.; Beckman, 2b.; Fritz, r. f.; Romer, 2b.; Jones, 1b.; Sneedes, p.

The Murray Hill team, which will cross bats with the Crescents to-morrow will make their appearance in Plainfield for the first time, and as the pitchery box is now the property of the Crescents they may be able to get on to the cut curve, in curve, down shoot, up shoot, drop ball and slow ball of Pitcher Purdue, which they were not able to do when he was in the box last season for the Staten Island club. Purdue is known to have plenty of speed and has a good control over the ball. The Murray Hills play Secretary Day's team and the Cuban Giants on May 27th, and are scheduled to play the following clubs: Long Branch, Pastimes, Pa.; Staten Island A. C., Englewood, Elizabeth, Passaic, New York A.C., Wanamaker, Cuban Giants, Pennsylvania and other first-class clubs. Some of the clubs they defeated last season were Rutgers College, New Jersey A. C., Rahway, Englewood, Poughkeepsie, Montclair, Elizabeth, Academy of New York, Harvard, Cuban Giants, Orange and "Meix." In all they played 31 games, won 25, and lost only seven, three of which were as follows: one with the New York League club and one each to Albany and Troy.

SWARRENVILLE NOTES.

Probably Fractured His Leg.

Farmer Henry McKenzie of Warrenville started out with his team and farm wagon this morning. One horse rubbed his bridle off, so that Mr. McKenzie lost control of both animals. They ran away, and, in going down the steep Warrenville hill, Mr. McKenzie was thrown out. The wagon passed over his leg, and it is believed fractured it.

The horses continued until near the foot of the hill, about an eighth of a mile, when they struck a telegraph pole with such force as to shake off the insulators, which held the wires at the top, and loosened the wires. The horses were caught by Alfred Jennings, in front of whose blacksmith shop the collision occurred.

Mr. McKenzie was able to get home, and a physician was summoned.

To Start for Chicago and Will Then Locate in Plainfield.

James Lynch, who was injured severely in a runaway in Plainfield about a year ago, has sold his blacksmith shop at Warrenville to Alfred J. Jennings, the former owner. Mr. Lynch is going to the World's Fair, on an extended visit, and upon his return, will start in business in Plainfield.

From Cooztown to Dead River.

Rev. Frederick Oates of the Cooztown Congregational church is to preach at the Dead River school-house next Sunday, at 2:30 p. m., and the people of the Dead River section cordially invite everybody to attend.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Phoebe Foster of Somerset street has just recoved from an attack of the grip.

Dr. Lewis will take for his theme to-morrow morning: "Improved Methods of Bible Study."

Mrs. D. N. Groendyke and Mrs John Gray Foster left town this morning for Washington, D. C.

Mr. M. M. Dunham of Arlington avenue has been confined to the house by illness for a week past.

At the home of Mrs. C. I. Ames of Crescent avenue, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Ames, assisted by Mrs. Brooks entertained a number of friends.

Mr. J. W. Reinhart, of Netherwood President of the Atchison Railroad, is now in New York. He says that all the railways entering Chicago will do an enormous business during the World's Fair.

The entertainment at the Park Avenue Baptist church, to-night, will be a novel one. It will be in the form of an oldfashioned concert, with the "Sweetness on China." The Y. P. S. C. E. of the church will have charge of the affair.

The installation of the Rev. F. Fletcher, as pastor of the Baptist church of New Market will take place next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. Among those who will be present are Rev. Dr. Yerkes of New Brunswick, the Rev. Dr. Yerkes and Rev. J. W. Richardson of this city.

Mr. Alexander Grant had the meeting at the Third Street Mission last evening which was largely attended. The Rev. Dr. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, was present and spoke a few words of cheer to the mission and encouragemented the members for their work.

One of the handsome, and stylish looking horses at the Riding Club entertainment the other evening was a beautiful bay, well ridden by Mr. Eattman. The horse was long tailed and well mated and formed, in that particular also, a pleasing contrast to other in other respects fine horses there.

Col. Mason W. Tyler of this city is one of the attorneys for a number of importers of hair ornaments in New York, in a matter involving millions of dollars. It is estimated that the amount the Government will have to rebate to the importers under the recent decision of the Supreme Court is about $6,000,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Segfried stopped a few hours in this city this afternoon while on their wedding tour enroute for Trenton and Philadelphia. Mrs. Segfried is a native of Ireland and Mr. Segfried was born in Baden Baden, Germany. The bride is 20 and the groom 21. They will reside at White House.

One of the horsemen of Plainfield is Mr. Daniel Ginns of Broad way. He not only rides well, that is, with a firm yet easy seat, but he looks well on horseback, quite as though he was used to it. His father, Mr. B. A. Ginns of "Oh yes, Dan has ridden ever since he was a little fellow." Mr. Ginns is one the prominent members of the Plainfield Riding Club.

Bishop Vincent, formerly of this city, leaves Buffalo this evening to sail Saturday from New York for Europe. He will preach at City Road Chapel, London, Sunday, May 28, and open the Switzerland Conference at La Chaux-de-Fonds June 8, and afterward, in the order named, preside over the Methodist Episcopal Conferences in Germany, Denmark, Finland, Norway, Sweden, Bulgaria, and Italy, at Rome, returning to America in October.

Fussed No Furniture When She Returned Home.

The New York Herald says: "Miss Ella Smith, of No. 41 Hoyt street, Newark, N. J., returned from a visit to Plainfield and found that all the furniture had been removed from her room. The things were recovered later from a Mrs. Gidney, who bought them for $60 from two men whom she took to be peddlers."

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

IS THE BROTHER INSANE?

Joseph Palmer is Charged with a Serious Crime.

New Brunswick, N. J., May 19. (Special.) It is rumored that Joseph Palmer, the 19 years old brother of Henry Palmer, who was yesterday adjudged insane, is charged with inveigling young girls into dark hallways and taking improper liberties with them, and the police are said to be looking for him. The brother is going to appeal against the decision in his case, which was brought by Joseph to have the court appoint a guardian, as he stated that Henry was incapable of managing his estate. If the charge against Joseph is proven it will be used by Henry's counsel in his appeal.

The Indian Giant is Dead.

New York, May 19. (Special.)—Santos Manani died in Bellevue Hospital at 8.15 a. m. to-day. Santos was the big chief of the Bolivian Indians, now on exhibition at the Press Club Fair. He was seven feet, four inches tall, weighing 322 pounds, and was thirty-two years old.

Burglars at Work near Somerville.

Burglars are again operating near Somerville. The store of Amerman & Rogers at Raritan, was entered two nights ago and a lot of small articles taken. Wednesday night, the store of J. E. Fisher, at New Germantown, was broken into, and silks, shoes, gloves and hosiery taken to the value of several hundred dollars. The thieves got away without detection. Only a little over a month ago, the same store was robbed of several hundred dollars' worth of merchandise. The robberies are believed to be the work of some youthful gang of thieves who make their headquarters near Raritan in a cave.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Something Will Drop at Chicago.

It may be the prices for board and lodging, but if it is not, then Chicago herself will hear something drop that will make a tremendous racket. Despite the declaration that prices would not be raised exorbitantly, despite the official assurance of General Davis in a magazine article that Chicago had better sense than to kill the goose which lays the golden egg, the cry already goes up that extortion is the rule on all sides. One correspondent declares that it cost him 75 cents to get a cup of tea; another writes over his own signature that for $6 a day one can get only the commonest sort of food and lodging.

This looks as if Chicago has not the common sense the rest of the country has hitherto given her credit for. She is in debt deeply. On the great influx of visitors to her fair depends her ability to get out. Thousands of her citizens will be ruined financially, and the fair guarantors will be saddled with a debt that will bankrupt some of them if that show is a failure through the greed of boarding house keepers. Has the prevailing characteristic of the millions of hogs annually slaughtered at Chicago perhaps somehow entered into the spirit of the people of that town? Their conduct looks especially queer alongside the fact that the railroads are making liberal reductions in rates.

The stories that have already gone out about the dizzy prices for accommodations at Chicago will, if uncontradicted, prevent at least 500,000 people from visiting the fair. They simply cannot and will not pay the prices quoted as being extorted from visitors. We are the people, but we are not millionaires—to whose little admission fees and board bills are to make that fair a success. If the spirit of the favorite Chicago staple gets in the air to the extent of making the fair a failure, Chicago will get a name for herself that will go thundering down the corridors of time along with that of Shylock and the fellow who would not trust some of our soldiers for beef during the Revolutionary war. She will be anathematized from one end of this republic to the other, and her name will henceforth have an evil smack in Europe, till she could even wish the waters of Lake Michigan were rolling over her unquiet bed.

Let Chicago look out!

Sanitary Day.

The idea of establishing a state Sanitary day is making progress in Pennsylvania. A special committee of the state board of health have reported in favor of setting apart the first Thursday of each May as state Sanitary day. They do not recommend, however, that it be made a legal holiday, but that its observance be simply impressed on the people of the state and its hours be spent in instructing popular gatherings in the way to be healthy. If this were done and the people could be induced to follow of their own accord such instruction, then the state of Pennsylvania would be the healthiest in the Union. No epidemics, however dangerous, would affect her citizens to any great extent.

The methods proposed for teaching sanitary science to the people on the given day are described in The Public Ledger as follows:

The means proposed to accomplish this purpose are that only one session shall be held in the public schools, and that shall be devoted to an explanation to the pupils of the meaning and intent of hygiene; that the board of health shall prepare or have prepared popular pamphlets on hygiene to be distributed with the aid of the school children; that articles on the progress of sanitary science shall be prepared and submitted for publication in the newspapers; that clergymen shall be requested to call attention to the observance of Sanitary day; that athletic sports shall be organized in every community for the afternoon of Sanitary day, and that the board of health shall promote the holding of local mass meetings on the evening of that day, and that representatives of the board of health shall address the people upon the sanitary needs of the locality, and the people shall be urged to demand that sums of money the proper authorities should devote to sanitary work for the ensuing year.

The hopelessness of the fight against home rule in Ireland is manifest from the desperate and malignant attacks of the Conservatives on the Gladstone party, and especially in their abuse of the Irish nation. A British Conservative apparently hates an Irishman quite as much as he used to hate an American. The home rule Irishmen have shown much greater courtesy to their opponents than has been shown to them. Not one of them has descended to such depths as Colonel Saunderson, leader of the Ulster faction, did when he sneeringly alluded in the house of commons to the "squalid Irish parliament, with a hungry executive, floating in whisky." Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, who split off from the Liberal party because of home rule, almost outdoes the Tories themselves in contemptuous flings at the Irish in his remarks in parliament. That the Irish members keep their temper so well under the taunts is proof of their admirable discipline and determination to let no rash outbreak defeat their cause.

Reports from the San Juan gold region are flattering in the extreme. Several new properties are being developed with excellent results, and a number of abandoned claims have been taken up and are yielding gold in paying quantity.

Perhaps when people find they can get all the gold coin they want from the United States treasury they will not want it now more.

PRINCESS EULALIA AHEAD OF TIME.

The Royal Spanish Visitors Arrive Safely.

SHE BRINGS HER SUITE AND A BAND

Welcomed by a National Salute and Greeted by the President In Washington—The Programme of Her Future Movements Left to Herself.

NEW YORK, May 19.—A few favored persons, including loungers around the station at Jersey City, saw a representative of the royal house of Spain arrive and depart today. The royal guest was Princess Eulalia, the aunt of the boy king of Spain, Alfonso XIII, and the official representative in this country of Queen Regent Christina.

The infanta came on the Spanish steamer Maria Christina, which left Havana Monday afternoon. She is accompanied by her husband Prince Antonio de Bourbon and suite, consisting of the Duke of Tamames, chamberlain to the infanta, and two ladies in waiting. The famous military band of Saragossa also came with her.

The Maria Christina was first sighted off the coast of Long Island yesterday and reached Sandy Hook shortly after 8 p. m. She came up the bay very early this morning.

Commander Davis, U. S. A., who has been instructed by President Cleveland to attend the infanta during her sojourn in this country, was waiting down the bay on the dispatch boat Dolphin to welcome her. As soon as the Maria Christina was sighted the Dolphin approached her and fired the customary salute of 21 guns. Then Commander Davis boarded the vessel and extended to the infanta a welcome in the name of the president.

The princess and her party were taken aboard the Dolphin this morning and conveyed to Jersey City.

On to Washington.

Later the princess took a special train for Washington. The infanta and her suite will be lodged in the wing of the Arlington hotel, which looks out upon the White House, and which was once the mansion of Charles Sumner. The interchange of official courtesies between the infanta and the president will follow, and then the wishes of the princess will be consulted in regard to future arrangements.

It is considered fortunate that the infanta is to be consulted in regard to entertainments during her visit in this country, for otherwise some friction might arise between the local committee and the federal authorities. Commander Davis thinks that as the princess is an official guest of the United States she ought to accept only invitations to official entertainments.

The Spanish societies think that as she is a Spaniard, she should attend whatever fetes they may arrange in her honor. Trouble would have been almost certain to arise had it not been arranged to consult the wishes of the princess as regards entertainments of every kind.

A Royal Ball.

The princess will be invited to attend the entertainment to be given at the Hotel Waldorf on next Wednesday in aid of the fund for erecting a statue at the Fifth avenue entrance to Central park in honor of Queen Isabella of Castile. The following women have signed the invitations: Mrs. C. Van Etten Mack, Mrs. Eugene Kelly, Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer, Mme. De Barril, Miss Carola Livingston, Mrs. Marcy Raymond, Mrs. Robert Roosevelt, Mrs. Judson Kilpatrick, Miss Susetta Crimmins, Miss Maud Forrescue, the Misses Kilpatrick, Miss Josephine M. Mott, Miss Alga Smith and also Consul General Baldasano of Spain.

Chairman Arturo Cuyas of the Circulo Colon Cervantes committee, appointed to make arrangements for the ball in honor of the infanta, have announced a long list of prominent women who will act as patronesses on the occasion. As each patroness may enter the name of 16 subscribers in her book, it is probable that there will be more than 1,000 persons present at the ball. The subscription is $15.

The Madison Square Garden amphitheater and assembly rooms have both been retained for the occasion, but the exact date of the ball has not been fixed. It is probable that it will be held on either May 22 or May 26. The princess will be conducted to the private entrance to the garden on Madison avenue, and then she will enter the assembly room, where, on a canopied dais, she will meet the managers of the ball and the more prominent guests.

It is not yet known who will make the presentations, but it is considered probable that the Spanish minister, Senor Enrique de Muruaga, will be selected for the duty.

After this levee the princess will go to her private box. This box will consist of three of the regular boxes turned into one, and it will be decorated with the colors and arms of Spain and of the United States.

Those who know the infanta's habits say that she will not be willing to merely watch the ball from her box. They say that she will wish to take part in the dancing, and that as she is of royal blood she will have the privilege of choosing her partners.

It is said she will probably open the ball by dancing in a quadrille with the Spanish minister.

A Lone but Plucky Train Robber.

GAINESVILLE, Tex., May 19.—A lone robber held up the east bound Texas and Pacific train at Kemp and rifled the express safe of the valuable package in sight. The station agent was made to go into the train and wait till the robber finished his work. When he had taken what he wanted, the man leisurely disappeared in the darkness.

Billiard Champions to Meet.

LONDON, May 19.—John Roberts, the champion, and Mr. Ives have been matched at billiards. The game, which will be played some time during Derby week, will be for £500 a side and the championship of the world.

How Chinamen Get Into Detroit.

DETROIT, May 19.—Three Chinamen, who had evidently been rowed across from Canada, are being held by the federal officials, who have sent to Washington for instructions as to their disposal.

Suicide and Failures.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., May 19.—The First National bank and the Oglethorpe National bank closed their doors, and M. Unsan, president of the latter, committed suicide.

A Burning.

BUFFALO, May 18.—The old Gaiety Theater at Michigan street and Myrtle avenue was burned. One fireman was injured.

THE WOMEN AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

What They Are Doing Today In the Art Institute.

NEW YORK MUSICIANS IN THE STAND

Arrangements For a Big Electrical Display Tomorrow Night—Mayor Harrison's Remarks Were Not Lifted by Directors.

CHICAGO, May 19.—The musical feature of the World's fair today was the New York Symphony orchestra concerts, under the leadership of Walter Damrosch. The concert was enjoyed by a great audience. Tomorrow another will be given by the Thomas orchestra.

With favorable weather it is expected there will be an unusually large attendance tomorrow. The management is making extensive preparations for an electrical display Saturday night, that will far eclipse anything ever seen in this city. Searchlights, followed by others, so that the larger part of the body was soon submerged, except the head. Then the body was carried to the shore and placed on the sand on his back. The head had a very distressed color, and ceased.

Insurance Meeting.

We cannot but hope that fewer fires will be kindled in all these years. Population did not admit a cure. At last I decided to give him Hood's Sarsaparilla. I bought two bottles, and before they were gone I could see a change for the better in him. He almost two months completed to heal up. The sores on his body and limbs soon began to heal, and he has since been well and hearty. We have never had occasion to use any other medicine for our children, and we believe there is no better blood purifier in the world. We have also taken it for the grippe."

Germany's building is finished and German Imperial Commissioner Adolf Wermuth will celebrate the event with a reception tomorrow night. The building is the guests of Herr Wermuth and the members of the German commission will have a chance to be made thoroughly acquainted with the beauties of Bachmeister and decoration of the interior of the stately building. The German book exhibits, which is installed there, will give a comprehensive idea of this part of the fair's drawing, especially music printing and the stained windows of the gothic halls. The beautiful chimes—an exhibit of the German empire—will be set in motion on the occasion.

Mayor Harrison caused some comment during his speech at the dedication of the Illinois building by earnestly advocating Sunday opening, and finally asked those of the audience who favored it to rise. Almost half of them did so. Members of the national commission who were present resented this freak of the mayor's, and after the exercises were over declared that his action had not helped opposers, so far as the commission was concerned.

The Women at the Fair.

A noticeable feature of the women's congresses is the unusually large proportion of young women who attend its meetings.

A department congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution met today in the Art palace under the auspices of the women's branch of the World's congress auxiliary. The president general, Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, presided. Papers were read on the Continental ball for the Daughters and Sons of the American Revolution; the patriotic quarterly Magazine; the adoption of a national hymn, and the relation the society should assume toward the proposed University of the United States, followed by discussions of these topics and others of interest to the society at large.

So wedged in the hallways of the Art institute were the crowds of women at yesterday's session of the great congress that at one time a panic was imminent. It was at the entrance of the hall in which Susan B. Anthony was speaking. Crowds completely filled the hall and dozens of less fortunate women found themselves packed outside the corridor. In a hysterical voice one woman called on the chairman to postpone the programme and send for the police. Wooden partitions filling the side doorways to other halls were crushed in, and the crash added to a growing feeling of alarm. The congress proceedings were temporarily discontinued until the officers succeeded in clearing the halls.

Paine Priest Was Not There.

HAVERHILL, Mass., May 19.—The body of Alex James, who died in Brooklyn last week, was taken here in charge of the local lodge of Odd Fellows, of which James was a member. Through some misunderstanding the authorities of the Catholic church of the Odd Fellows' burial was no priest present at the church at the hour appointed for the funeral, and the body was finally buried without the usual services. Father Doherty would not allow the lodge to hold services in either church or cemetery, and the sister of the dead man feels that he has not been properly laid to rest.

McCarthy Won the Fight.

NEW ORLEANS, May 19.—Billy McCarthy of Australia defeated Le Blanche, "The Marine," after a hard fought battle of 16 rounds, in the first mill decided in the ring of the Crescent City Athletic club since the Pendleton-Hall affair. The men fought for a purse of $2,000, of which the winner took $1,800. The battle was of a lively order from the start, but McCarthy showed his superiority at all stages.

Killed Herself and Babe.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., May 19.—Mrs. Michael Bierge, wife of a healthy farmer residing near Barnard, suddenly became insane, sprang from her bed, seized a razor and drew it across her throat and that of her 5-months-old babe, killing it instantly. She then cut her own throat, dying almost instantly.

Churches Will Ask a Repeal.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The principal Protestant denominations of the United States, if the calculations of the Methodists pan out, will soon be joined in an organized effort to secure the repeal, of at least a modification of the Geary Chinese exclusion act.

Mrs. Shann Indicted.

TRENTON, May 19.—Mrs. Mattie Shann of Princeton, who is suspected of having poisoned her son, Jesse Shann, to get the insurance on his life, was indicted by the grand jury for murder in the first degree.

Fell Out of the Window.

JERSEY CITY, May 19.—John O'Loughlin, who lived on the fourth floor of a tenement house, fell from the window and was instantly killed. He was sitting by the window reading to his father.

The Yosemite at Gloucester.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., May 19.—United States cruiser Yosemite arrived here from New York to remain until after the trial of the cruiser New York.

THE NEW YORK FAST.

Promises to Be the Greatest Armored Cruiser Afloat.

BOSTON, May 19.—The new warship New York is here awaiting her final test trip. She made a good run from the Delaware Breakwater. Though there was only natural draft in the firerooms, and at no time did the revolutions of the engines exceed 108 per minute, a speed of 19.43 knots was attained. The average rate which the vessel went through the water may be safely put down as 19 knots, though she may not have actually made this over the ground, owing to adverse currents.

It is to be remembered that this burst of speed was made under a steam pressure of 140 pounds to the square inch, that unselected coal was used and that no effort was made to force the cruiser. This record stands alone, theoretically speaking, if the existing conditions hold up on the official trial. When the blowers are in operation the steam pressure can run up to 160 pounds and the revolutions increased to 120, there is every reason to hope that the New York will exceed her contract speed by at least one knot, thus winning for her builders the premium of $200,000 and giving to the United States the fastest armored cruiser in the world.

The New York was met off Boston harbor by a tug chartered by the Cramps to act as a tender during the coming trial. Saturday there will be a preliminary run over the measured course, but Sunday will be a day of rest to both engines and men. On Monday morning early the New York will be started on the run to the south and reached Sandy Hook shortly after 2 p. m. She came up the bay very early this morning.

Strawberries Destroyed.

CORNING, N. Y., May 19.—On February 6, 1892, 1,000 bushels of strawberries were stolen from the house of Mrs. Austin Townsend in the town of Glenora, Yates county. The berries were put up in 12 barrels and weighed 1,000 pounds. The burglars have been captured and the berries recovered by officers on a steam yacht on the canal between Geneva and Waterloo. One of the prisoners is Frank Bisnetzah, who was an employee of the Townsend family at the time the berries were stolen, and the other was Leland Arnold, the son of a wealthy farmer living near by. They were taking the berries to Albany to sell.

Blow at the Whisky Trust.

CHICAGO, May 19.—An action at law to break the Distilling and Cattle Feeding company with its $65,000,000 capital, otherwise known as the Whisky trust, was begun in the circuit court in a quo warranto proceedings brought by Attorney General Moloney in the name of the people of the state of Illinois. The court ordered that a summons might be issued against any officer of the company, and the bulky petition was then taken down to the office of the clerk, where it was filed. President Greenhut was standing in the corridor of the Grand Pacific when an officer served him with a summons.

Pallister's Body May Be Exhumed.

LONG ISLAND CITY, May 19.—After the grave of Murderer Jacob Pallister had been filled in an order was received from Vicar General Mooney not to permit the the body to be interred in Calvary cemetery. The body was not taken up again. It is not known on what ground the vicar general's order was issued. At the cemetery Father Johnson said that he entered up all the interments made and that Pallister's name was not upon the list. It is said that the body will be exhumed today.

Sullivan Must Go to Court.

BIDDEFORD, Me., May 19.—Colonel A.W. Bradbury of Portland, counsel for John L. Sullivan, the Boston pugilist, appeared in the supreme court to answer to the indictment charging Sullivan with committing an assault upon Lawyer Max Lisotte of Biddeford. Counsel was informed that Sullivan must answer in person to the indictment. He will appear after the close of his theatrical engagement late this month.

Bishop Vincent's Tour.

BUFFALO, May 19.—Bishop Vincent will sail tomorrow morning on the New York for Europe. He will preach at City Road chapel, London, Sunday, May 28, and open the Switzerland conference at La Chaux De Fonds, June 8, and afterward preside over Methodist Episcopal conferences in Germany, Denmark, Finland, Norway, Sweden, Bulgaria, Italy and Rome, returning to America in October.

Dawson Will Meet Regan.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Billy Madden, backer and manager of George Dawson, the Australian lightweight, states that he has matched him to fight Jack Regan of New York. The date will probably be the last Thursday in June. Regan has not been seen in the ring for several years, his appearance being against Pete McCoy, with whom he fought a hard battle.

Guarding Against Desperadoes.

TOPEKA, May 19.—The town of Cedarville is in a state of intense excitement owing to the discovery of the Starr gang of desperadoes encamped in a cave near there. The Starr gang is the remnant of the old Dalton band. A posse of men well armed is guarding the town against any possible attack.

The Bobrig Sea Fleet Complete.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 19.—United States steamer Monican arrived at Port Townsend. The arrival of the Mohican completes the American fleet to do duty during the coming summer in Behring sea. The fleet is expected to leave for the north Saturday.

Found Still Again.

HACKENSACK, N. J., May 19.—Theodore Hill, who disappeared from his home May 9, was found at the Putnam hotel, New York. His son could not persuade him to return home, and Mr. Hill could not tell where he has been since he disappeared.

Charges of Election Frauds.

ELIZABETH, N. J., May 19.—The Elizabeth city council ordered a new election for chief examiner of the fire department. The committee of the council claim that bribery and intimidation had been practiced on both candidates.

Russian Ships Illuminated.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Vice Admiral Kasmakoff of the Russian navy celebrated the anniversary of the birthday of the Crown Prince Nicholas of Russia by illuminating the two Russian warships remaining in the port.

A Delayed Sunstroke Death.

DAMAGE DONE BY FLOODS.

It Will Amount to Over $1,000,000 in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

CLEVELAND, May 19.—The water in the Cuyahoga river is falling, and danger of further damage is now thought to be over. It will be several days, however, before business can be resumed in some of the shops and factories along the river. The Erie railroad resumed business, but the Lake Shore and Nickel Plate roads are still badly handicapped. The damage to property will exceed $200,000.

PITTSBURG, May 19.—The amount of damage that has been sustained by the railroads in eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania on account of the great floods is placed at more than $1,000,000. In the valleys of the Shenango and Mahoning river the railroads are covered with water to a depth of nearly 6 feet in some places, and for a distance of several miles nothing can be seen of the tracks.

Along the headwaters of the Allegheny river the same condition of affairs exists, railway communication is cut off between some of those sections owing to the washout of bridges and culverts, and in other points it is impossible to run trains owing to the great depth of water over the track.

BUFFALO, May 19.—The condition of the railroads affected by the floods has materially improved.

Johnson to Die July 3.

AUBURN, N. Y., May 19.—Murderer Johnson was sentenced to die in the electric chair during the week of July 3. When asked if he had anything to say Johnson made a speech in which he declared that he persisted in claiming he acted in self defense and asserted that under the same circumstances he would now do the same thing again. He received the sentence with scarcely a change of expression and sat down with a half smile on his lips. He was then taken back to prison and placed in the cell for the condemned, where Fitzhum and Taylor are also awaiting execution.

Congregationalists Regret It.

BOSTON, May 19.—At the annual meeting of the general association of the Congregational churches of Massachusetts resolutions were adopted expressing profound regret that the nation is violating the spirit of our free institutions by legalizing the Chinese exclusion act, and expressing its hope that congress may repeal or essentially modify the act.

No Army For Kansas.

TOPEKA, May 19.—The state military board had under consideration Adjutant general Artz's plan to organize a militia force of 50,000 men, the idea being to have an army in readiness to issue like bonds of last winter over the organization of the legislature should be repeated. The scheme finally failed of adoption.

Lead Mine In New York State.

COXSACKIE, N. Y., May 19.—Much excitement is manifest in this village over the reported discovery of lead on the farm of Luman Miller, about three miles northwest of the village. The owner of the farm has commenced digging for the metal, which, it is claimed, is a rich vein.

Crushed Under a Shed.

TROY, N. Y., May 19.—A coal shed in process of erection at Bath on the Hudson, fell and four men, R. J. Mellus, Nicholas Forbes, Martina Benson and Isaac H. Wands, at work on the structure, were injured. Benson's back was broken and he will die.

Cutting Columbian Expenses.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The board of estimate and apportionment went over the bills of expenses incurred during the Columbian celebration last October. Nearly every bill was cut, one man having his bill reduced from $30,980 to $10,000.

A Rapid Transit Ultimatum.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The rapid transit commissioners sent their ultimatum to the Manhattan company's committee on extension and refused to say more than that the matter rests now entirely in the hands of the Manhattan company.

New York State's Expenses.

ALBANY, May 19.—Governor Flower has signed the annual supply bill, vetoing items aggregating in round numbers $630,000. The bill as signed appropriates about $5,400,000.

Buffalo Bakers on Strike.

BUFFALO, May 19.—The union bakers of Buffalo to the number of between 60 and 70 went on strike for an advance in wages from $ to $ per week.

SECRETARY SMITH AND THE PRESIDENT.

Said to Be at Odds Over a Georgia Postoffice.

ORDERS AN APPOINTMENT REVOKED

The Climax of Congressman Livingston's Efforts to Parcel Out His Own Patronage—Mr. Hoke Smith Says He Is Too Busy to Talk About It.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The Sun prints the following Washington dispatch:

The contest between Secretary Hoke Smith and Representative Leonidas Livingston of Georgia reached a climax yesterday. President Cleveland interfered and undid the work that Secretary Smith had done, thus making a victory for Mr. Livingston. Wednesday, when Mr. Livingston called upon the president and complained of Secretary Smith interfering with the appointments of postmasters in his district, and particularly of Mr. Smith having had William M. Weaver appointed postmaster at Conyers during his absence, the president promised to investigate it.

Postmaster General Bissell carried the papers in the Conyers case to the White House and explained the matter to the president. He said that Mr. Livingston had seen the fourth assistant postmaster general before going to Georgia, and had requested him to do nothing in the matter of appointing a postmaster at Conyers until his return. Soon after Mr. Livingston left Secretary Smith requested Mr. Maxwell to appoint Weaver postmaster at Conyers, and insisted upon its being done at once. Mr. Maxwell complied by making the appointment. Then Mr. Livingston returned to Washington and made a vigorous protest, demanding that Secretary Smith's work be undone. He told the president that unless it was he would make no more recommendations.

The Appointment Revoked.

After going over the case with the postmaster general the president decided that Mr. Smith had no right to urge the appointment without giving a hearing to Mr. Livingston, and he instructed Mr. Bissell to revoke the appointment and reopen the case so as to give all the other applicants a hearing and allow Mr. Livingston to make a recommendation. Though the appointment had gone forward Mr. Bissell wired Weaver today that the appointment had been revoked, and he notified Mr. Livingston to file the papers of all the other applicants and make a recommendation.

"I do not care to discuss the matter," said Secretary Hoke Smi h. "I have my hands full attending to the duties of my department. Congress not being in session Mr. Livingston has nothing to do, and he can well afford to spend his time talking. Let him talk."

Poisoned Her Son.

LANSING, Mich., May 19.—The death of a boy named George Harre, 9 years of age at Okemus, is exciting much suspicion. The attending physician with the local authorities asked for a post mortem examination of the boy. Yesterday morning at 3 a. m. a crash was heard in the room where the dead body lay by two lady watchers, and it subsequently after recovery from their fright, it was discovered that the body had been removed. The body was afterward discovered at the bottom of a deep well on the farm. The mother now confesses to having poisoned her son to prevent his growing up to be a thief. She has been arrested. Neighbors think that she is insane.

Wants the Race Investigated.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Pierre Lorillard, the owner of Lamplighter, defeated favorite for the Brooklyn handicap, telegraphed to H. De Conrcey Forbes, president of the New York Jockey club, requesting that the race be investigated to see if there was not a job to foul and "pocket" the horse.

A Barn Full of Bodies.

JERSEY CITY, May 19.—Coffins containing bodies are piled high in a barn and receiving vault in the Catholic cemetery of Hudson county, N. J., and persons living in the vicinity have sought relief from the health board.

Six Thousand Miners Strike.

PITTSBURG, Kan., May 19.—All the miners, about 6,000, employed in the shafts of the Cherokee coal field went out on a strike today. The trouble is over the new Kansas coal mining law.

Heavy Gold Shipment Expected.

NEW YORK, May 19.—There has been considerable talk of exports of gold by Saturday's European steamers. Estimates placed the shipments on the day named as high as $3,000,000.

Canada Rings the Curfew.

TORONTO, May 19.—All Canadian cities and towns now ring the curfew at 9 o'clock, and all persons under 17 years on the street after that hour are arrested.

Declared Palmer Insane.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., May 19.—The jury in the case of Henry H. Palmer declared him insane. Palmer said that he would appeal the case.

SISTERS WERE ANGRY.

Actress Lotta Blackballed by Sorosis and Confusion Ensues.

NEW YORK, May 19.—A cog in the Times today at the last meeting of Sorosis Actress Lotta Crabtree was blackballed. It says: Sorosis held its last business meeting for the club year on Monday, and although the sun shone without and the birds sang and nature smiled, there was in the clubroom at Sherry's only storm and discord and frowns. If reports be true, it was one of the most sensational meetings ever held by that very exclusive and highly literary organization.

The first candidate was Miss Lotta Crabtree. It is the custom of Sorosis to discuss the qualifications of a candidate before the name is voted upon. The only objection made to Miss Crabtree was that she was an actress. But which the ballot was taken the chairman solemnly announced:

"Ladies, the candidate is not elected."

For a moment there was silence, or as near an approach to it as was possible in a gathering of more than 150 women. Then a long drawn murmur of dissent and protest was heard. Mrs. John Dillon was the second candidate, and she too was blackballed.

The ladies present were furious when the application of Miss Crabtree was defeated and they were still more furious when Mrs. Dillon was refused.

Referred to the Army Bill.

BERLIN, May 19.—The German emperor proceeded to Goerlitz, in Silesia, where he personally unveiled the monument to his grandfather, Emperor William I. A great concourse, crowds of people present, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. The emperor, in his speech, said with great solemnity:

"Our army requires increasing and remodeling. I have summoned the nation to provide the necessary means. All questions are inferior to this—the most serious question—upon which depends the very existence of the fatherland. And we need absolute unity in order to solve the question. Whatever separates us as Germany, whatever causes views to differ, must now be put aside, because it imperils the future of the fatherland.

The Naval Rendezvous Off.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Secretary Herbert said today that the proposed "naval rendezvous" at Annapolis on the occasion of the commencement exercises of the naval academy June 1 would not take place. The secretary and the mayor of Baltimore agreed that it would be unfair to the people interested to offer them a naval display that would be small and insignificant in comparison with the recent demonstration at Hampton Roads and New York.

Three Men Drowned.

CONCORD, N. H., May 19.—James Roy and Eugene Acho of Bartlett and Alexander Alsarow, with three others, attempted to shoot the rapids at Sewall's falls in a boat. The boat filled with water and capsized, and the three men named were drowned. Their bodies have not been recovered.

Saved From the Gallows.

MARLBORO, Md., May 19.—William Pinckney, who with Dan Barker, was convicted of the murder of Francis M. Bowie, and sentenced to be hanged on June 30, has confessed that he alone killed Mr. Bowie, and that Barker was not present at the time. This will probably save Barker's neck.

Their Money Tied Up.

CHICAGO, May 19.—The firm of N. R. Warren & Co. closed all its doors in the board of trade. It is estimated that 600,000 bushels of corn were sold out on the firm's account. Nathan Warren attributes the failure to the tying up of his money in the defunct Columbia National bank.

Run on Nebraska Savings Bank.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 19.—A run is in progress on the Nebraska Savings bank and a big crowd surrounded the doors. Assets are about $180,000. Among the stockholders are General E. A. Merritt and F. M. Heath of New York, and others in the same state.

The Pension Frauds.

FASHIONS

Some Fashion Notes.

A fine quality of ladies' cloth, which is now called habit cloth, is an extremely popular material. It comes in all the exquisite new shades and is used not only for tailor made costumes, but for those that are much more elaborate.

The old fashioned rolled hem, laid in place by blind stitches, is used for the lower edge of the fashionable flounce, while the upper edge is a standing ruffle of the material doubled.

Gorgeous little house jackets, closely copying those worn by the Turkish ladies, show rich embroideries of untarnishable gold; the ground upon a blue, black or scarlet velvet background.

The favorite shape in ladies' rings has either a long marquise setting or is a straight band of gold set around with gems. The smallest band rings, which are the merest edges of gold, set half way round with diamonds, rubies or emeralds, are still worn in groups of three, including one ring of each kind of jewel. Sometimes a single ring of this kind is worn as a guard to a more valuable one.

The old fashioned china silks have returned to favor and are exhibited in beautiful tints. They come with bunches of chrysanthemums, poppies, bouquets of flowers, etc., in the most exquisite combinations of colorings.

To Keep Tortoise Shell Clean.

To keep your tortoise shell combs and pins always bright rub with soft leather every time they have been worn. When dim rub with rottenstone and oil.

HUMAN NATURE.

An Interesting Study at the World's Fair.

REPRESENTATIVES OF ALL RACES.

The Human Interrogation Point To Be Observed All Over the Grounds and Buildings—Do Not Be Backward About Asking Questions When Your Curiosity Is Aroused.

WORLD'S FAIR, May 18.—[Special.]—No part of the big show is more interesting than the crowds which visit it. When you read in the papers that there were thirty, forty or fifty thousand paid admissions to the fair on a given day you must not imagine that these figures convey an idea of the size of the multitude to be seen wandering about the grounds and buildings. In addition to the paid admissions there are all the time fifty to seventy-five thousand persons within the gates who did not pay. They are the exhibitors and their assistants, watchmen, workmen, newspaper representatives, the guards, firemen, guides and rolling-chair men; also, commissioners, directors, both domestic and foreign, and their families. Even on the dullest days we have as a rule upwards of 100,000 human beings within the enclosure. But there is no crowding. The great exposition and its man-made buildings swallow them up as a field of corn takes in the butterflies which are attracted by its green and glistening fragrance.

It is curious to watch these crowds as they go on their sight-seeing rounds. If you want to study human nature this is a pretty place in which to do it. You behold here not only representatives of all races and countries, but about as great a variety of human animals as it is possible to get together in any one spot on the earth's surface. Every strong person has one characteristic which stands out strongly above all others. It is such a conspicuous thing that after a day passed on the grounds one goes away with a vivid recollection of having seen a large section of humanity in a certain posture. The posture is that of an interrogation point. Wherever you walk or ride or go, in the buildings or without, it is the same. A specimen of the race to which we all belong leaning forward, a look of expectancy upon his face, the word of inquiry trembling upon his lips. This is a world in which it seems one-half is put here for the purpose of asking questions and the other half for answering them. Later in the summer, when the crowds get bigger, the proportions will change. When the daily number of visitors rises to three or four hundred thousand, as it is expected to rise in September and October, we shall see each exhibitor, guard or other permanent resident of the White City surrounded by seven or eight strangers within the gates, while streams of inquiries and answers are sent running to and fro.

This is as it should be. This vast exposition is placed here for the education of the people. They are invited to come that they may ... [illegible] ... rights of every man, woman and child to convince himself or herself into a special committee of investigation. A great mistake will any one make who through timidity or indifference fails to understand everything upon which the eye rests and about which the curiosity may be roused. Fire your questions at whomsoever may be in sight—an exhibitor or his assistant if one is at hand, and if not at a guard or even one of the public. You may learn enormously by keeping the eye open and the mouth closed. But you will learn three times as much and remember what you do learn ten times as long if you ask questions of people who may be able to give you intelligent explanations.

As a rule Americans are not backward about asking questions. At least, western Americans are not. The visitors who come from eastern cities are not so free with their inquiries. They have a sort of reservation of manner, as a rule. They are interested, and would not attempt to deny that this is a wonderful school, but they assume that they will be able to get all the information they want out of it by simply looking. Not so with the westerner, the genuine, common, everyday American. He is from a farm out in Iowa or a mining town in Colorado. He stands, for instance before the marvelous machine exhibited by a New England watch-making company. He has never seen a watch made. All the ideas which he has ever had about it are that most of the work must be done by men who sit all day long at a bench with a magnifying glass screwed over their best eye, just as he has seen the watch-repairer sit in his home jewelry shop. But the complicated nature, the perfection of finish and the rhythm of the motion of these machines fascinate him. He must know all about it. If he asks one question he asks fifty, and in as soon as the attendant has explained to him that the machines need nothing but feeding in order to enable them to turn out all the parts of a watch, he wants to know all the particulars and details. This is the true method. Everybody has to advise all my readers to come to the fair in this spirit of inquiry and seeking after knowledge. It is the way to get your money's worth, and that is what we all want. There is no difficulty about getting it, either. For it does not matter what a man may be interested in he will find it here. Now and then you hear a critic pass judgment on this fair. In his opinion the buildings and grounds, their embellishment with fountains and statuary, their electric lighting and handsome effects, are simply unapproachable. But in the exhibits he finds a great deal that is commonplace. "What do I care," he asks, "about acres of agricultural products or long rows of pottery and silks and other fabrics such as I may see any day in the shops at home? What do I care about a display of saws and carpenter tools and axes and all that sort of thing?" Of course he doesn't care for them. But he does. It is not his line. But if he happens to be the publisher of a newspaper, and a practical printer, and a man who lives for his profession and his trade alike (as every good newspaper publisher, in my opinion, does) wait till he comes to that part of Machinery hall in which the presses are at work, where five or six daily newspapers are printed right before his face and eyes. Wait till he comes upon the complete printing office, the typesetting machine, and all the paraphernalia of his art. Then you will see him prick up his ears, linger, ask questions, come again after luncheon and return the next day. He has simply come upon the part of the show which is of acute interest to him. He has struck his line.

NOT INTERESTED IN THE FAIR.

Take, for instance, the undertaker, the physician, the minister of the gospel, the lawyer. Surely there isn't anything here of special interest to them?

O, yes, there is. They will find themselves attracted to particular spots just as the machinist, the electrician, the agricultural turist is attracted to his spot. For the undertaker there is an illustration of the burial methods and appliances of all nations, including cremation, and not omitting the mummies of a thousand or two thousand years ago, which must make him marvel at the art of his ancient forerunners in the business. For the physician there are all the medicines and tools of his trade, not only those made in his own country but those used by his brothers in all the lands of the world. For the minister there are no end of pulpits ancient and modern, rich and rare, too, the beloved Bible in all the languages of the earth, and the curious editions of Bibles, the Bibles of the ancients and the moderns, even the plates from which famous editions have been printed. For the lawyers there is a collection of curios from the department of justice at Washington which will delight his eye—rare old law books, curious and ancient briefs and opinions delivered by famous men.

As these crowds go about, each constituent part of them making a sort of walking interrogation point of himself, one can't help thinking that this is a great town or city, complete in itself, and illustrated for the mere purpose of showing the architecture of the period and the shops and wares of all creation. That is how what is a wonderfully complete city we find it when we think of all the arrangements made here for the care of everything and everyone. Under the ground are tubes upon miles of water pipes and sewers. Underground are conduits through which the electrical wires are carried to a thousand points where lights are given off at night in sparkling lamp bowls. There is a railway to carry people from one end of the city to the other. There are all sorts of cabs on the canals, hacks and hansoms. The city has its own pier, the greatest pier in the world, with a line of steamships touching at it, and even a tramway to carry people from one end of the pier to the other. There is a complete fire department, just such as any city has; only, perhaps, better than most cities can afford. The police department has more than 2,000 men under its control, and among them are smart detectives by the score on the outlook for pickpockets and confidence men. The police force has its guard houses, its patrol wagons, its police telegraph line. There is even a sort of police court in which complaints are first heard by a judge known as "the officer of the day," and he decides in case of arrest whether the offender shall be let go or turned over to the regular civil authorities without the grounds for punishment. There is a medical department, with hospitals and ambulances and surgeons on duty. There is a bank, where one may deposit or draw. The United States government has here a complete postoffice, with all departments, and a service of carriers just as in any other city.

In addition to all this there is a city council, composed of the board of directors of the exposition company and the national commission, and they make the laws and the ordinances. If there is any official corresponding to the mayor of the city he is Director General Davis. This quickly created city has its music hall, its restaurants, its telegraph lines, its railway stations, its streets and alleys, its palaces and its shops, like any other city. But it is a city in which people do not sleep, excepting the guardians of peace and property. It is a city in which there are no hovels and no dens of poverty, no public exhibition of vice. It is a city in which the weakness and the wantonness of man are excluded, where he has gathered to show all the good and all the beautiful things of which he is capable. Therefore it is an ideal sort of city. As a social study it is interesting, and as a study from any industrial or artistic point of view. You and I will live a long time if we survive to behold another like it.

Like any other city, too, it has its ideas and its drones, its indifferent people, its admirers who seek pleasure rather than knowledge. Down at the great pier I saw a score of boys and girls fishing. It was that of a score or so of men with fishing rods in hand, watching their lines in the waters of the lake. It was indeed startling to come upon men who had the time or the infatuation for such an avocation as fishing in the midst of assembled splendors of the world. But a man could sit watching a cork dancing on the water and jerking for a bite from some poor fish while the palaces and their splendid contents, the fountains and the statuary, and the moving picture made by the masses of people, were within a few steps from the spot, was more than I could understand. There was but one explanation, and that the trite one, that it takes all kinds of people to make up a world.

I was surely right in the observation made in the second paragraph of this letter to the effect that human nature is one of the most interesting studies to be seen at the World's Columbian exposition.

Brother Jones Stead Up.

"Long" Jones was in the habit of following the person at the Sunday meetings and preaching to the converts convicts for a full hour and a half on religious subjects. As the person was generally good for the same length of time the trees to the prisoners was very great. One day a temperance advocate named Campbell of Bloomington visited the prison, and after the person had spoken made a "talk" which was so eloquent that it fired the attention of the convicts. After the regular session there is always a meeting, where those who wish to stay tell their religious experiences.

On the platform this day were, besides other officials, the preacher, Campbell and the two Joneses. One after another the converts arose and told a little piece, and then stood up an old darky. He had been there for many years, but had never spoken before. Surprised at this, the presiding pastor gave him the floor.

"Mistah chairman," said the old man, "this yeah nigguh's much edified wid de sermon of Brudder Campbell. He's a mos' eloquent man, am Brudder Campbell, an' he gits right down into dis yeah nigguh's heart. Now, dar's one preacher done preach a fust rate sermon, ain't no doubt 'bout dat, but dar's one preacher I like to hyeah, an' he ain't no mo' dan a mile away, but he's a real good man, dis yeah nigger don't doubt for a moment, but den he don't reach way down in our hearts like Brudder Campbell.

"Now, dar's Brudder Jones; he's a real good man for sartin, ain't no shadder of doubt 'bout dat. He talks to dese boys on de Sabbath day for de good ob us all. Yes, Mistah Chairman, dis yeah nigguh hear Brudder Jones talk, an he talks as talks, an is 'peers to die afore he see Brudder Jones jus' talks ter hear himself talk."—Chicago Mail.

Any members are privileged to invite a friend or members of their family. The committee consists of J. Hervey Deane, Otto Ahrens, Curt S. Gotthelf and F. S. Smith.

Voices of the Spring and Summer.

A course of Sunday evening sermons will be given by the Rev. Chas. E. Herring, the pastor, in the First Presbyterian church, on East Front street, on "Voices of the Spring and Summer." They will be as follows: May 21, "Return of the Birds"; May 28, Sermon to the G. A. R.; June 4, "Springs;" June 11, "Weeds;" June 18, "Heaven on Earth;" June 25, "The Queen of the Flowers."

Organist William H. Clarke will play choice selections on the organ from 7.35 to 7.45 p. m. of each Sabbath. On Sabbath morning a course of sermons will be given on "Religion and Religions."

A Westfielder Injured.

Thursday night William Perrine of Westfield, while driving along the county road near Westfield, was thrown out of the wagon and his face and head were badly scratched and bruised. One of his hands was severely injured and he has to carry it in a sling.

The accident was caused by a load of crushed stone which a driver employed by Mr. Cook of Scotch Plains had dumped in the road. When Perrine's wagon struck the crushed stone it upset, throwing him out.

A Girl Who Can Hit a House with a Stone.

Yesterday Michael Sweeny of West Fourth street complained to the police that a little girl named Minnie Barry was continually annoying him by throwing stones at his house, and on complaint of Sweeny she was arrested this morning by Policeman McGee, who took her before Judge Coddington. She pleaded not guilty and a hearing in the matter was set down for Wednesday morning next at nine o'clock.

A Wagon Upset.

By the upsetting of a wagon at the corner of Somerset street and Summit avenue last night, three persons were thrown out upon the hard roadbed, and one of them, an elderly gentleman, was painfully injured. The horse did not run away, and the men righted the vehicle and drove off. Their names could not be ascertained. The accident was due to the street railway tracks which are higher at that place than the roadway on each side.

Tracey Tires of Confinement.

James Tracey of West Front street is still confined in the Union county jail at Elizabeth. He has send word to his friends that he is getting tired of the confinement and wants to be released. Unless his taxes are paid he will have to remain in the jail the remainder of his life, so the delinquent tax collector says, the law requiring that a person be held until the delinquent taxes are paid.

A FAT FRANCHISE.

THE NEW YORK POWER COMPANY'S QUIET SCHEME.

Mayor William L. Saunders is the President of the Company—To Furnish Power, by Compressed Air, to Manufacturers.

A bill has just been signed by Governor Flower of New York granting the New York Power Company the right to tear up the streets of that city by pipes with which to convey compressed air, and other pipes to carry salt water into buildings for the purposes of power.

Mayor William L. Saunders of North Plainfield, the president of the company, has made a statement which shows the privileges conferred so quietly that nobody knew what was going on, are of much greater value than was generally supposed. Mr. Saunders is secretary and engineer of the Inverseil Reinforced Rock Drill Company, which has headquarters in the Havemeyer building.

"I know nothing," said he, "about how the franchise was procured. That was left to other parties. But I believe all about it. I am interested in the project, which is a perfectly feasible one, and we hope will be profitable. There are four things which in large centres of population must be provided from central sources either by cities or by corporations—water, illumination, rapid transit and power.

"We purpose supplying power. Efforts have been made to transmit power in the form of steam, but the chief drawback to that has been in preserving the temperature when it had to travel long distances under ground.

"Now that difficulty is not met with in compressed air. It can be sent long distances, and we will supply manufacturers all over the city with power.

"We will put in a plant by which we can produce power, with triple expansion machinery, and etc., at a consumption of say two pounds of coal for each horse power. We will lay in the streets a pipe twelve inches in diameter to carry our compressed air. The man who owns a factory has simply to make a connection with our pipe at his back door, because we will occupy back streets as much as possible. Then he can do away with his boiler. All he has to do is to turn a valve and he has our power. Any engine which will run with steam will run with compressed air.

"It is also our intention to lay another 12-inch pipe to convey salt water—that is, river water. We must use that because we are prevented from using fresh water by the Consolidation act. The water will be used chiefly for running elevators by hydraulic pressure."

The franchise allows the company to enter upon and occupy any street or streets.

NO FRANCHISE GRANTED.

The Elizabeth City Council Table an Important Application.

After a rather exciting meeting lasting until midnight, the Elizabeth City Council on Thursday night laid on the table the application of the Elizabeth and Plainfield Electrical Street Railway Company, which wanted to get a franchise to run its cars into the railroad stations in Elizabeth up Morris avenue and through the western part of the city and by way of Linden, Cranford, Westfield, and Fanwood Townships to Plainfield.

The company proposed to divide equally among the different townships through which it might pass 13 per cent of its net earnings, which would give Elizabeth 3 per cent. Some of the Councilmen, notably Congressman Dunn, want the road to pay the city 4 per cent. of its earnings, but this its counsel, Foster M. Voorhees, declares it cannot afford to do.

Another attempt will be made at a subsequent meeting to secure the franchise, but it is doubtful whether it will be successful, in the face of the opposition aroused, unless it makes a better offer to the city than its present proposition.

A Powerful Sermon.

[From the Bound Brook Chronicle]

Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church of Plainfield, is always an interesting preacher, and for the past months, while the Congregational church has been without a pastor, he has filled the pulpit here in a most acceptable manner.

His sermon last Sunday morning deeply impressed the attentive audience. It was "A message from Sing Sing," inspired by the recent putting to death of Carlyle Harris, a case which has excited much interest throughout the land. The text was Galatians vi, 7: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that he shall also reap."

Dr. Lewis spoke of three principal lines along which young men permit themselves to be led to ruin. The first of these is social impurity, a fatal thickly strewn with the wrecks of lives of men and women. Another is the inordinate love of money. Too many young men desire to obtain riches hastily, and by wealth that is not honestly and legitimately earned. Hence they are led into the paths of embezzlement, defalcation, betrayal of trust and deceitful methods, which lead quickly to ruin. A third and rapid-transit road to death is the unwillingness of a young man to submit to strict religious morality and the duties and needs of religion.

In closing, the learned divine alluded most tenderly to the great loss the church and community had met with in the recent death of Mr. Cook, and expressed his deepest sympathy with the bereaved mother. Yet she had comforting assurance that the angelic saintly mother of Carlyle Harris could never feel.

THE ROYAL ARCANUM.

The Past Season a Successful one for Plainfield Council.

MORE has been done for the past season by the Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum than ever before. The efforts of the members of the council to make it the banner benefit organization of our city has met with unprecedented success. Its membership has not only increased beyond expectation, but the interest shown, as evidenced by a crowded council chamber every meeting night, proves that good work is being accomplished by its officers and members. During the past months several rare treats have been provided the members by the presiding officers, and it goes without saying that those who failed to attend and see for themselves the rarest of the season missed one of the greatest and most extraordinary good things of this life. Next Monday night it is announced that a complete surprise is afforded. A reminiscent meeting will be unearthed and all members, unsidesaddly with their friends, are requested to be present, as some of the best legal talent of the Plainfield bar has been employed to prosecute and defend the cases. Conspirators who will speedily be brought to trial at the close of the council meeting Monday night May 22d.

NO FISHING ON SUNDAYS.

Change in New Jersey Law that Anglers Should Bear in Mind.

For many years there was on the statute books of this State a law forbidding fishing on Sunday under a penalty of $5, but the law became obsolete by non-enforcement. But the last Legislature passed a law relative to Sunday fishing that will carry sorrow to the thousands of anglers who choose that day of all others for their favorite sport.

The new law imposes a fine of $20 for fishing on Sunday, and the person making the complaint is entitled to receive one-third of the penalties collected, and the person furnishing the evidence is entitled to one other third of the fine or penalty.

The season for catching black bass has been changed. The legal time for catching them begins May 30 and closes Dec. 4. The trout season is changed to open March 1 and close July 15. No trout less than six inches long and black bass less than nine inches long may be taken. The penalty is $20 for each trout or black bass caught and possessed for each fish smaller than the prescribed size.

The setting of nets of any kind is also prohibited, as is also any other contrivance. The hauling of seine or set or any kind above dam is prohibited. Trespassers are liable to a fine of from $20 to $200, as the Justice may decide, and the nets are to be confiscated or destroyed.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Fisher of West Fourth street, have returned from a visit at the home of F. S. Carr of Bound Brook.

The Rev. D. W. Moorehouse of New York will occupy the Rev. Hobart Clark's pulpit in All Souls' church, Park avenue, to-morrow.

Messrs. Edward French and Frederick Metcalf, of the Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers, have entered for the Irvington-Millburn race on Decoration Day.

Borough Councilman Bummer's son is called the "new Benjamin Franklin" by the New York Recorder, this morning, in a very interesting article about his wooden printing press and his printing establishment. It says he is to issue the Jersey Skeeter.

Rev. Lincoln B. Goodrich, brother of the Rev. Dr. Goodrich of this city, the new pastor of the Bound Brook Congregational church, was graduated at Yale Theological Seminary on Wednesday. He was one of the seven chosen to address the audience. His topic was "The Modern Prophet." The graduating class numbered 28 members. He at once enters upon his duties as pastor at Bound Brook.

Dr. Samuel Ayers, Vice-Principal of Grammar School No. 83, of New York city, an old Plainfielder, is on a visit to his father Mr. William C. Ayers, of West Second street, the agent of the Central Land Improvement Company. Mr. Schoolcraft Ayers is very enthusiastic over the work of the children as exhibited at the Press Club fair in New York, and says it is the most stupendous and interesting exhibit ever known in this or any other country. It represents the whole school system of the country, and no one can realize the latent ability in a little child, which only an exhibition of this kind calls forth.

At 4.30 yesterday afternoon as the home of his son Michael, on Somerset street, occurred the death of Mr. John Powers, after an illness of three days, from old age. Deceased was born in Ireland and came to this country about forty years ago, and located near New Market, where he became a prosperous farmer. Here he resided until about three years ago, when he and his wife, who survives him, came to live with his son. He leaves four children—two sons and two daughters. The sons are Michael Powers of Somerset street and John Powers of New Market, and the daughters are Mrs. Ellen Dogan of Elizabethport, and Mrs. Nora Enright of Jersey City. The funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon, at three o'clock, in St. Joseph's church, Royta Plainfield.

EDITORIAL NOTES

One of the Greatest Americans.

One hundred years ago this May Eli Whitney perfected his cotton gin and put it to practical working. Of its effects on the destinies of this country Macauley, the historian, said, "What Peter the Great did to make Russia dominant Eli Whitney's invention has more than equaled in its relation to the power and progress of the United States."

It is interesting to know that the first idea of a machine which should separate the seed of cotton from the fiber was a woman's inspiration. What is more, Eli Whitney could probably not have made it if he had not been a trained mechanic before he was a student, teacher and inventor. Whitney was born in Westboro, Mass., in 1765. During his early years he was a nailmaker, and in this humble occupation he earned money enough to take college. After a brief stay there he was scholar enough to teach a country school. That was his first step upward. He taught school and saved money sufficient to graduate him at Yale.

Time out of mind, teaching first, then studying law, has been the plan of impecunious young college graduates. It was Whitney's plan. He was visiting the widow of General Nathaniel Greene on the Savannah river in 1792, pursuing his law studies. Some of Mrs. Greene's guests were one day saying what a pity it was that the seed could not be separated more readily from green seed cotton, for then it would be the most profitable of all. At once Mrs. Greene proposed that Whitney should be set at the task of inventing a seed cleaning machine. "Whitney can do anything," said Mrs. Greene.

Whitney began the work and more than justified her expectations. But so few machinists were there in the south at that time that he himself had to weld, work and draw every part of the iron he used both for the machine he made and the tools with which he made it. Before his invention only one pound of green seed cotton could be cleaned by hand in a day. The cotton gin at once placed the United States triumphantly at the head of all the cotton producing nations, where it has remained and will remain. But the ingratitude with which Whitney was treated by his countrymen is almost on a par with the treatment Columbus received from the Spanish nation he enriched. The greatest benefactors of mankind fare the worst.

When We Have Enough Money.

The farmer who owns his home and lands could live very comfortably and happily with a free income of $50 a month. He could even save something for a trip to the World's fair in case the Chicago hotel keepers lower their rates to the bounds of reason and common sense. In the city, however, an income of $5,000 a year would be required to live as comfortably as the thrifty farmer who owns his home can do in the country. Five thousand a year would therefore not be an immoderate limit of desire for the city man of family. In our American cities one individual can live in modest luxury on $2,000 a year.

If a man is elected president of the United States or appointed embassador to France or England, $50,000 a year will not be too much for him to maintain the style of living that is expected of those who represent the dignity of a great and wealthy nation. Rest of all, however, are like Cy Warman's poetic expression of how much money a man needs. Cy writes in the New York Sun:

I want to find a place for me
Where love is all in tune,
A calm or a still on life's rough sea,
A place where it's always afternoon—
A place to rest, that's all I crave,
Between the tramp and the millionaire.

Where it's not all day and not all pain,
Not too much shine nor too much shade
Just a place to hide me from the rain,
An easy place where the rent is paid,
And not too close to the man of care
And not too far from the millionaire.

Of the 180,000 civil offices under the United States government, 43,700 have now been embraced within the scope of the civil service law, which forbids removals except for cause. Under each presidential administration since the Pendleton civil service act was passed the number of offices brought within the protection of the law has rapidly increased. The changes in political parties have added to the list greatly. As the Republican or Democratic president retires he wishes to keep as many of his own party in office as possible; consequently he issues as he goes out the order placing one or more classes of government employees under the ægis of the civil service law.

A correspondent says of our show at Chicago: "There is no longer any doubt that it is the best money's worth ever given at a world's fair. From the first there was no doubt about the splendor and beauty of the buildings. The palaces of Paris four years ago were small and few and plain beside these."

A fine looking young couple they will make, Princess May of Teck and George, duke of York. The bright, gentle princess will get a handsomer husband than if she had married the Prince of Wales' eldest son and one who is much more popular with the British nation.

Since 1870 the southern states have regularly increased their output of iron and steel 10 per cent a year.

VISITED BY A PRINCESS

The Infanta Eulalie Received at the White House.

SHE WILL RETURN TO NEW YORK

The Pretty Young Spanish Woman Already Delighted With the Country—Escorted by Cavalry and Seated In the President's Carriage—She Rode in Her Hotel.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—There were royal visitors at the White House today. Princess Eulalie, accompanied by her husband and suite, left their apartments in the Arlington and rode across the square to the presidential mansion.

The representatives of the Spanish government were received by the president of the United States and the first lady of the land in a democratic but dignified manner.

It is expected that the president will return the call, accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland, some time this afternoon, and this evening the Spanish infanta and her husband will dine at the White House in a brilliant company.

Thus far the arrangements for the reception of the royal party, the official guests of the nation, have been carried out perfectly.

Before the train started from Jersey City yesterday a crowd of several hundred people had gathered about the special train, the interest being particularly about the private car Wildwood, which was set apart for the exclusive use of the young princess and her husband, the infanta Eulalie. As she alighted from her carriage and faced the crowd that paused in respectful silence upon the party she betrayed the first sign of timidity, and for a second clung to the arm of her escort, Commander Davis. So far as her habit was concerned she might have passed for a typical young American matron—robed in a pretty light gray silk, with puffed sleeves, and made in a degree of fulness in the skirt just the least bit suggestive of a substitute for crinoline. But there was a hint of the Spanish leaning toward rich color effects in the small turban shaped gray cap, heavily trimmed with black lace and pronounced red and green feathers.

PRINCESS EULALIE.

Just a murmur of approbation by the crowd swelled into a genuine American cheer as the infanta stepped lightly upon the platform of the Wildwood, and gave a bright smile and bow of acknowledgement. As the train rolled away the visitors turned their attention to its appointments. The luxury of modern American railroad travel was all unknown to them, and they were not backward in admiring the plenty and novelty of the trip. Toadd to the comfort of the interior arrangements was the beauty of the landscape along the banks of the Delaware and the Susquehanna and the many pretty suburban homes nestling in a wealth of fresh green foliage on an ideal spring day, so that the princess finally remarked with a sigh of pleasure that she wondered whether Europe did not look small and unprofitable to the people who lived in this great country. An elaborate dinner was served on the train after leaving Baltimore, and so the time consumed in the run to Washington passed quickly and pleasantly.

The Arrival In Washington.

The royal train arrived in Washington at 8:30 p. m. An immense crowd of people gathered in the vicinity of the Pennsylvania railroad station more than an hour before the train arrived. The attaches of the Spanish legation were there in force at 7 o'clock. They were the first official comers.

Finally there was a stir among the rapidly gathering throng and a faint cheer as four troops of United States cavalry, under Colonel Henry from Fort Myer, across the Potomac in Virginia, rode up and formed in a long line on the Sixth street side of the station. They were in fatigue uniforms.

Secretary Gresham and Assistant Secretary Quincy came shortly after the arrival of the cavalry in Mr. Gresham's carriage, followed almost immediately by a handsome barouche drawn by four magnificent bay horses. It was President Cleveland's carriage and the presidential coachman with a broad new footman were on the box. The carriage was empty.

Other officials began to arrive. Colonel John M. Wilson of the army, the commissioner of public buildings and grounds, and Major Henry from Fort Myer, acting in his capacity as the military representative of the president. Assistant Secretary Adee and Chief Clerk Rockhill of the state department were also in attendance.

A number of railroad porters caused a flutter in the crowd by laying a double width of carpet along the east side of the platform. This was for the passage of the royal party from the train to the carriage. Then a detachment of police under a lieutenant marched into the station and drove back all outsiders who had secured entrance. A line of rope stretched from the east end of the platform to the other completed the arrangements for the infanta's arrival.

After two or three false alarms the special train steamed into the station exactly on time. Secretary Gresham, the state department officials and the party from the Spanish legation walked nearest to the tracks and the train came to a standstill.

Greeting the Princess.

The princess was the first to alight. She was assisted from the train by Commander Davis. The Spanish minister, Senor Muruaga, was just behind the princess, but before he could alight Secretary Gresham stepped forward, and Commander Davis presented him to the infanta as the representative of the president. The princess and Secretary Gresham greeted each other pleasantly, and then other members of the receiving party gathered about them. When the infanta saw Mrs. Curry, wife of the ex-minister to Spain, there was a pretty scene. The two had known each other intimately in Madrid, and the recognition was followed by a warm hand clasp, and Mrs. Curry imprinted a kiss on each cheek of the princess.

The greetings over, Secretary Gresham offered his arm to the princess, and preceded by Colonel Wilson and Mr. R. A. Parke, general southern passenger agent of the Pennsylvania railroad, followed by the infanta's suite and the others of the official gathering, they walked down the covered platform to the carriage entrance of the station. Outside and across the open sidewalk was a line of cavalry. The guard of honor detailed to escort the royal party consisted of a troop of the Fifth cavalry, Captain Ninth commanding. The troop was in charge of Lieutenant Mervine. The troop was drawn up in line, facing the station, and as the party appeared Lieutenant Mervine gave the command to present arms, and the troop saluted with drawn sabers.

At the Hotel.

The ride up Pennsylvania avenue was devoid of any special incident except on one or two occasions, when the horses became slightly unmanageable, but were soon brought under control.

Occasionally in response to salutations from the crowd, Secretary Gresham lifted his hat and the princess graciously bowed. She was seated on the right of the secretary of state, her husband, the Spanish minister, and seemed particularly pleased at the demonstrations of cordiality manifested, but kept up a continual conversation. The party occupied the suite of the princess and her suite at the Arlington are historic. Though annexed to the hotel, they form a separate house, the old residence of Charles Sumner, and is but a score's throw distant from the White House. The royal apartments consist of a spacious sitting room, three parlors and a private dining room, with four bedrooms in an upper floor for the use of servants.

A large bunch of sweet peas stood on a table in the parlor from Mrs. Curry. Other floral gifts were around, but the chief among them rested upon the table in the handsome private drawing room on the second floor. It was a tribute from Mrs. Cleveland, and consisted of a huge basket of magnificent American beauties, orchids and lilies of the valley.

Immediately upon entering the house the princess passed into the reception room, accompanied by Secretary Gresham, Secretaries Adee and Quincy and her suite. A moment later and the representatives of the government retired, and Commander Davis bade the party good night. A blood, expressing herself as not at all fatigued, the princess soon retired to her own rooms to secure a good night's rest preparatory to the fatigue of the morrow.

The Princess In New York.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Mayor Gilroy's committee of 100 have made the following arrangements for the entertainment of the Infanta Eulalie when she returns to the city from Washington.

On arrival she is to be met at Jersey City by reception committee with a special boat, escorted to Hotel Savoy, cavalry escort on shore. Received by mayor and committee of 100 at the hotel.

Second Day—Excursion on a fast steamboat to West Point and review of the cadets, committee of 100 and families to be the only guests on the boat.

Evening—Star party at some theater.

Third Day—Drive over the Brooklyn bridge and an excursion on the Dolphin to the public institutions on the islands. A drive through Central Park in the afternoon and another theater party in the evening.

Fourth Day—A reception to the committee of 100 and their families at the hotel and then a visit to the public schools.

Evening—Dinner party.

Fifth Day—Excursion all day, a special theater party, the committee of 100 to rent the entire theater and admission to be on invitation, all present to be in evening dress. A grand march to play the Spanish national air with the audience standing.

Sixth Day—A visit to the fire department and down town business districts in the morning, an excursion on the Dolphin in the afternoon and another theater party in the evening.

The infanta is expected to return to the city on May 26 or 27. The exact time of her arrival has not yet been fixed.

A Newsboy's Good Luck.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 20.—About two weeks ago John Walsh, a newsboy of this city, found on the depot platform here a chemois skin bag containing a set of diamond ear rings. It will receive a reward of $2,000 offered by Tiffany & Co., New York, for their return. The earrings belonged to Mrs. Edwin Johnson, a wealthy lady of Norwich, Conn. The New York police have been at work on the case in the belief that the gems were stolen.

An Appetite For Raw Alcohol.

LAWRENCE, Mass., May 20.—Patrick J. Kernan, when arraigned on two complaints for larceny, stated that since the sale of liquors had been forbidden in Lawrence by the no license law, he had procured large quantities of alcohol from paint stores, which he drank raw, consuming about a pint in one day. He was so much addicted to its use that he could not resist the temptation to steal articles to obtain money to gratify his appetite.

An Italian Government Crisis.

ROME, May 20.—The chamber of deputies rejected the budget for the support of the department of justice. The minister of justice and ecclesiastical affairs, Theodrico Bonacci, has therefore resigned. It is expected that the budget of the ministry of foreign affairs will be rejected also, and this will probably result in a crisis.

An Important Witness Missing.

PORTLAND, Me., May 20.—Ex-City Clerk John S. Russell has left the city, and his whereabouts is unknown. Russell is the Democratic official who divulged the election fraud in the late municipal election, and is the chief witness against Warden Harper, who was indicted on Russell's testimony.

Over a Nihilist's Papers.

PARIS, May 20.—The nihilists here threaten to make trouble unless the papers of Alexander, who recently committed suicide, be delivered to his relatives at once. The papers were seized by officers of the law and are now demanded by the Russian consul general.

Norman In Trouble.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 20.—A supposed forger was arrested here. He registered at a hotel as C. J. DeForest and gave his name to the police as M. T. Brennan. He claims to be a cousin of Secret Commissioner Brennan of New York.

Sunday Schools May Walk.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The second annual "May walk" of the Sunday School association of the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards of this city took place here. The procession was headed by a brass band and the marching forces numbered fully 8,000.

Electric Light Plant Blown Up.

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., May 20.—The boiler of the electric light plant at Albion blew up, totally demolishing it, together with two other buildings.

House of Commons Takes a Recess.

LONDON, May 20.—The house of Commons has adjourned until May 29.

GATES SHUT TOMORROW

Sunday Opening of the World's Fair Again Put Off.

CROWDS MAY POUR THEIR WAY IN.

Noted Women at the Women's Congress—Drank Tea and Talked of Reform—One Woman Who Was Angry—Mr. Thomas Has Not Yet Resigned.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Tomorrow again the gates of Jackson park will be closed. This is because Sunday opening of the World's fair has been postponed for a week. The board of directors held a meeting at which it was decided to close the fair tomorrow in order to give the national commissioners sufficient time to take action on the new Sunday opening rule, which has been submitted to them by the board.

While the local directors are anxious to have the sanction of the national commission in opening the exposition on the first day of the week it was apparent from their expressions that unless the courts intervened to restrain them they would on May 28, regardless of any action the national commissioners may take. The great public which has been clamoring so loudly for Sunday opening is hopelessly impotent at the present day, and it is not improbable that some difficulty will be experienced in keeping the people out of the grounds tomorrow, and the crowds may force open the gates.

Noted Women Were There.

The first notable social event at the Woman's building at the World's fair grounds took place last night. The board of lady managers of the exposition gave a reception to distinguished women attending the great congress of representative women. Among the members of the Fair Ed. the Woman's and the Fortnightly clubs, the ladies interested in home and foreign work at the exposition and a number of prominent women from abroad. The reception was accompanied by Mayor Harrison, the officers representing the women's department was given over to the guests, and a pleasant entertainment as tea arranged for the occasion.

The reception was held in Assembly hall. The members of the ceremonies committee met the guests as they arrived at the main entrance on the west side of the building and escorted them to the big hall, where Mrs. Potter Palmer and the nine vice presidents met the board, assisted by the commissioners, received.

The reception lasted two hours, and during that time the building was thronged with notables women from every part of the land. The music was furnished by Thomas orchestra, which occupied a position in the assembly room, where Mrs. Palmer and her associates received. The entertainment was informal, and for that reason the more enjoyable.

While hundreds of ladies were hurrying to and fro in the corridors of the Art Institute where the great congress of representative women is in progress, what is manifestly to have been a spicy session concerning the celebrated Mrs. Helen N. Gougar, was being held close at hand in the office of President Bonney. The contention, it is said, had a hard time trying to pacify the excited women participating.

Mrs. Gougar Was Angry.

The upshot was a letter from Mrs. Hendrickson, vice president of Woman's congress, denying that any order had been issued discriminating against Mrs. Gougar in speaking in the congress. Mrs. Gougar declared herself satisfied. No other anxious to say who was responsible for the statement formally denied by Vice President Hendrickson. Mrs. Gougar reported to spoke of spite work, and was about to say something regarding Mrs. Sewall, but checked herself. Mrs. Sewall is president of the National Council of Women, and was taken a prominent part in the congress. Mrs. Gougar's name has not appeared on any of the printed programmes of the congress.

Up to today Theodore Thomas has made no reply to Director General Davis' letter requesting the resignation or declining of the music bureau of the World's fair. He has consulted with certain members of the local directory, however, and expressed a willingness to accept the directorship of selects for future concerts only such artists as are willing to use instruments manufactured by exhibitors, provided he is retained at the head of the bureau.

At a special meeting of the local board of directors of the World's fair, a new rule was made admitting children between the ages of 5 and 12 at half rate, or 25 cents.

He Still Sees the Parade.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Vice President McMullin of the Chicago and Alton railroad still has critically ill at the Sisters' hospital. He was stricken with apoplexy just after the naval parade. Now he imagines the pageant is still passing, and it requires the combined strength of three men is required to prevent his leaping from the bed and rushing to the window.

Earl and Countess Homeward Bound.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The Earl and Countess of Aberdeen, who came to this country primarily to attend the opening of the World's fair, returned to this city from Chicago enthusiastic over the merits of the big fair. The party sailed for home at 9 o'clock this morning on the Cunard line steamship Aurania.

A Whisky Trust Rumor.

CHICAGO, May 20.—In whisky circles the air is full of wild rumors concerning the trust. One is that the conference at the Grand Pacific hotel will throw the trust into the hands of a receiver.

Want the Silver Bill Repealed.

CHATTANOOGA, May 20.—The bankers of Tennessee, representing 83 banks, assembled at Knoxville and passed a resolution petitioning congress to repeal the Sherman silver law.

Effects of a Landslip.

CHRISTIANIA, May 20.—A landslip at Vaerdalen converted 13 large farms into a lake of slime. Many farmers' families are believed to have been buried under the mud.

A Socialist Editor Arrested.

BERLIN, May 20.—Herr Fent of Mannheim, a socialist editor, has been arrested for having written a leader disrespectful to the emperor.

Big Peach Crop Promised.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., May 20.—The largest peach growers in this section report that the prospects for an immense crop are good.

A Concession as to Shaking Sea.

LONDON, May 20.—An order to counsel will be issued to prohibit rocking in the Behring sea until May 1, 1894.

Mrs. Ogden Goelet
Albany, N. Y.

"I Owe My Life to Hood's Sarsaparilla"

"Words are powerless to express the gratitude I feel toward Hood's Sarsaparilla, for under God, I feel and know that to this good medicine I owe my life. Twelve years ago I began to have a hollow feeling at the pit of the stomach, and later with shortness of breath, and fainting spells. I was treated by the best physicians in the city, but grew worse. Finally I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the first bottle helped me. I continued its use and the troubles were entirely overcome."

Caused by a Tumor.

For several months I had been unable to retain any food of a solid nature. I was growing emaciated, had frequent hemorrhages, and suffered the keenest pain. Physicians pronounced the disease a tumor and said I could not live. I began to feel hungry after taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and from that time on I improved rapidly. I am now well and strong, and can eat anything. Hood's Sarsaparilla has done me a great deal of good."

ATTACKED BY GAMBLERS.

A Party of New York Clubmen Defended Themselves and Were Arrested.

NEW YORK, May 20.—On a Long Island ferryboat Dr. Conroy Fowler, president of the New York Jockey club, J. W. Holmes, the owner of several race horses, Frederick Gebhard of this city and Daniel Riddle of the well known Riddle family of Philadelphia, were attacked by a "thimble rigger" and a crowd of toughs.

The gentlemen were compelled to defend themselves, Mr. Riddle knocking one of the men senseless to the floor. At the pier Mr. Hollenbeke and Mr. Riddle were arrested and taken to the station house, charged by a policeman with assaulting the thimble rigger." The sergeant refused to entertain the complaint and discharged the prisoners.

THE TRAIN KILLED A ROBBER.

Accidental Discovery of a Gang of Railroad Highwaymen.

PITTSBURG, May 20.—Charles Mylan was run down and killed by a train at Thirty-third street last Wednesday. The body was examined at the morgue and a revolver, mask and burglar's complete outfit was found. When killed, Mylan was accompanied by his brother and a man whose name is not yet known. B. G. Myland, the brother, has been arrested.

The evidence secured is to the effect that the men are members of a gang of thieves that have been operating along the line of the Pittsburg, Virginia and Charleston railway for several months. Myland was identified by the trainmen and locked up on seven charges of highway robbery.

To Investigate the Handicap.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Pierre Lorrillard has denied that he was satisfied with the Brooklyn handicap result. President Phillip J. Dwyer of the Brooklyn Jockey club when asked about the alleged crooked work that was said to have taken place in the Brooklyn handicap said: "I have received no word of complaint from any owner or trainer. My brother, M. F. Dwyer, has, however, been accused by a morning paper of having been a party to a scheme or plot. He has asked me, as president of this club, to order an investigation. I shall write a formal letter to President John Hunter, asking him to lay the matter before the board of control at the next meeting.

They Want to Wear Whiskers.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The waiters of the principal down town restaurants held a meeting and set on foot a new organization, which is to have as its first object the securing of the right to wear whiskers. The name adopted is "The New York Waiters' Civil Rights Protective association." Having obtained the endorsement of the public, it is hoped to obtain Governor Flower's stamp and finally that of President Cleveland to a petition.

That Sorosis Row.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Mrs. Fanny I. Helmuth, who was the temporary chairman at the meeting of the Sorosis club when the fiasco of Miss Leonie Gabtree, the actress, and Mrs. John Dillon were blackballed, says: "I believe the blackballing was the result of the ill feeling of a small clique, who are ready to blackball any name that came along, irrespective of whose it might be."

Another Yale-Harvard Ball Game.

NEW HAVEN, May 20.—Manager Soayre, of the Yale baseball nine, corroborates the report that there would be a third game to the Yale-Harvard series this year and that it would be played after the other two. It will take place in New York city on Saturday July 1, the day subsequent to the Yale-Harvard boat race at New London.

SPREADING CONTAGION.

Escape of a Scarlet Fever Patient From a Hospital.

SHE FEARED TO BE QUARANTINED.

Has Is In a Dangerous Stage of the Disease and Is at Large Somewhere.

Climbed Out of a Window—Probably Aided by Friends—Relatives Suspected.

NEW YORK, May 20.—A scarlet fever patient, at the most contagious point of the disease, escaped from the Willard Parker hospital two days ago, and is still at large. The patient was a young lady who has been an inmate of the hospital for about a month, and had just reached the period of desquamation or sloughing of the skin. It is while this sloughing is in operation that the disease is generally spread, the small particles acting as germs. The patient who eluded the staff of the hospital is Miss Mary Macall. She was nearly cured, and would have been discharged inside of a week or two.

She learned, however, that a number of the patients in the hospital, suffering from contagious diseases, were about to be transferred to North Brother Island to make room for the admission of new cases, and she was afraid she would be sent away with the rest. To the nurse she remarked that "it would be an outrage to send a lady to such a place."

Won Their Confidence.

She was well enough to move around and by her humor and general tractability won the good graces of those about the hospital. They anticipated no trouble on her account. When the nurse went to call her early on Thursday morning she found her gone. Matron Julia Sullivan and House Physician Frank Lester were informed, and a thorough search of the premises was instituted.

The window in Mrs. Newell's room was open and the officials concluded that she had either dropped or lowered herself to the ground, with the collusion of outside persons inside her escape.

The hospital is at the foot of east Sixteenth street, and the young lady's room fronted upon the street. The house physician, the matron and nurses, together with the watchman, were all positive that the escape was not made through regular channels of egress.

As soon as the disappearance of the patient was recognized as a positive fact the health department was informed, and Dr. Charles Benedict was sent out to investigate. He visited such of her relatives and friends as he could find, but could secure no trace of her.

The mechanism of the department was placed in operation and a thorough search made throughout the city yesterday and the day before, but the efforts were futile, as no trace of the patient could be found. According to the judgment of Dr. Benedict and House Physician Lester Miss Macall is a very dangerous person to be abroad. If desquamation has commenced she is subjecting all who come in contact with her to a most contagious and virulent disease.

If friends are concealing her, the physicians declare, they are doing a most injudicious, foolhardy and wicked thing. If she get alongside of any one in the surface of "L" cars she would subject them to the contagion. The health officers of neighboring towns has been informed, as it is possible the escaped patient may have a serious relapse and come into their hands.

Balked In The Search.

The department has been balked to some extent in the inability to find Miss Macneill's former address. She was taken to the hospital from 183 West Forty-first street. She was there visiting her mother when taken sick.

Dr. Benedict was then called in by Dr. Stevens, who lives in the house. The young lady was immediately removed to the hospital as she was undoubtedly in the first stages of scarlet fever, but the disease was not then contagious. Since then the mother has left this city for the interior of the state, and nobody at her old address can give any information concerning the escaped patient.

Her family are well connected and it is thought she may have fled to some out of town relatives.

At the hospital the authorities are very much chagrined over the apparent ease with which the young lady eluded them and the result has been a more strict watch placed on the remaining inmates to prevent any possibility of such an escape in the future.

Affairs In Nicaragua.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Ex-Senator Warner Miller, president of the Nicaragua Canal company, has received full confirmation of the report that the revolutionists in Nicaragua were in possession of Greytown and practically the entire country with the exception of a small strip above that point. They were proceeding to appoint their own government.

A Tailor Caught Smuggling.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 20.—Josephus T. Green, a member of a tailoring firm at Gananoque, Ont., was arrested at Clayton on a charge of smuggling. He had a package of clothing and dry goods which he endeavored to remove from the steamer without reporting at the custom office.

Wiggins Quits Prophesying.

OTTAWA, May 20.—Professor Wiggins the weather prophet, has retired, and will venture no more opinions as to prospective earthquakes, floods or cyclones.

BEATEN TO DEATH.

Grave Charges Against Officials of the Flatbush Lunatic Asylum.

NEW YORK, May 20.—An inquest was held in the Gates avenue police court, Brooklyn, upon the body of Mrs. Martha Emily Adair, who died recently in the Flatbush lunatic asylum. Mrs. Adair was 70 years old. Although the cause of her death was given as senile exhaustion, the bruises upon her body aroused the suspicions of some of her relatives.

Two physicians who examined the body reported that there were bruises on the breast and face, and that there was a fracture of six ribs on the left side and four on the right side, and they gave the cause of death as fracture of the ribs and shock. The physicians also testified that the bruises on the body could not have been made by falling out of bed, as the asylum authorities stated. The jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to her death from injuries received in the Flatbush Lunatic asylum and that there was culpable negligence on the part of the officials, especially in giving a wrong certificate as to the cause of death.

Postal Appointments.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The president has appointed Kerr Craigs of North Carolina to be third assistant postmaster general, vice A. D. Hagen of Pennsylvania resigned. The following fourth class postmasters were also appointed:

Connecticut—Mrs. Mary Jones, Winthrop. Massachusetts—C. E. Lathrop, West Warwick. New Jersey—E. S. Reid, Lambertown; Isaac Anderson, New York—Julius Landsteyd, Kerhonkson; J. F. Smith, Milford; Abraham Chiquanda, Williamstown. Pennsylvania—Elizabeth Crawford, Big Bend; L. J. Kirk, Kirk's Mills; Harry A. Waldlich, Mercersburg; C. H. Smith, Mont Alto; C. C. Newlin, West Whiteland.

A Cordage Manufacturer's Suicide.

ST. PAUL, May 20.—C. S. Rogers, president of the Northwestern Cordage company, one of the largest concerns of this city, jumped from the high bridge into the river, 120 feet below. He first asked a boy to take his horse and buggy home for him, and handed him a letter addressed to Charles S. Rogers, president of the Northwestern Cordage company. The man then got out of the buggy, and without a moment's warning climbed to the railing and jumped into the river. It is not thought that Mr. Rogers has been involved in any financial difficulties, and it is believed that a fit of temporary insanity caused him to commit suicide.

Old Hutch Back In Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 20.—After an absence of nearly two years "Old Hutch" walked into the Grand Pacific as unconcernedly as if he had just crossed over from the board of trade building. The famous ex-board of trade speculator looked younger and stronger than he did when he stepped out the case for New York two years ago. He was in high spirits, and when asked if he intended going into the wheat pit again he replied in a humorous way.

A Morphine Eating Match.

DENVER, May 20.—Kitty Conroy and Frank Daly, two well known gamblers at Zico, laid a wager as to who could take the most morphine. When discovered Daly was dead, but the hard work the life of the other one was saved.

Dunkards In Convention.

MUNCIE, Ind., May 20.—The eleventh annual conference of the German Baptists, better known as the Dunkards, is in session here and will continue for eight days. It is expected that 25,000 people will attend the services today.

Dahomey's King Defiant.

PARIS, May 20.—King Behanzin has placed himself at the head of the remains of his army and threatens to take the offensive. Colonel Lambert will start out in September to crush him.

NEWEST MODES.

Double Skirts, Triple Skirts and Skirts of Gathered Flounces.

The latest imported costumes show many double and especially triple skirts. These latter consist usually of three wide flounces overlapping one another to a considerable distance. These flounces are cut to shape.

COSTUMES SHOWING LATEST SKIRTS.

with no fullness from gathers and are mounted upon a foundation skirt. Some of the crepon skirts and silk skirts have their flounces edged with narrow white lace, while on a walking dress of rep and serge, etc., the flounces are simply finished with three rows of stitching along the edges.

Fig. 1 in the first cut represents a dress of china blue crepon in silk and wool, with a double skirt edged with antique lace and having a fine silk ivory with heliotrope stripes and spots). The seamless bodice is of this silk, with a cape of the crepon surmounted with a ruche, full on the shoulder and finishing below the waist. The sleeves are early Victorian, with deep puffs of the silk, guipure and crepon.

In Fig. 2 may be seen a variation of the triple skirt, the top flounce forming a tablier and the two lower having slight fullness. This costume is of light summer serge. Large gun steel buttons ornament the quaint directoire bodice, which is worn over a blouse vest of striped silk laid in large pleats, edged with guipure, from which the deep revers are also trimmed. The serge sleeves are puffed to the elbow, finishing with a narrow frill below, which are deep cuffs of the striped silk.

Flounced skirts figure among the latest creations of Worth, Felix, Doucet and other Parisian contouriers. On summer gowns this fall gauffered blue flounces of pongee-aided width, hemmed and overlapping one another, bid fair to be fashionable among elaborate dressers.

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN

Has come not a little knowledge as to cookery—what to do, as well as what not to do. Thus we have learned to use the most pure and perfect and popular cooking material for all frying and shortening purposes.

COTTOLENE,

PROGRESSIVE COOKING

is the natural outcome of the age, and it teaches us not to use lard, but rather the new shortening, which is for cleaner, and more digestible than any lard can be.

COTTOLENE,

The success of COTTOLENE has called forth many imitations under similar names. Look out for these! Ask your Grocer for COTTOLENE, and be sure that you get it.

How to Be Happy.

Old Gent—On the eve of your marriage let me give you a piece of advice. Remember when your wife's next birthday comes and give her a handsome present.

Young Man—Yes, of course.

"Give her the best your pocket can buy every birthday, but at Christmas, New Year's and such times give her only inexpensive little tokens. Form that habit."

"Yes, but why?"

"It will pay."

"I presume so."

"Yes. In a few years you can begin to forget the birthdays, and she won't say a word."—New York Weekly.

A Sure Sign.

Miss Summit—I invited some of my girl friends around last night, and we had a delightful card party.

Dashaway—Yes, I passed the house during the evening. You were playing whist, were you not?

Miss Summit—Why, Mr. Dashaway, how did you guess?

Dashaway—You were making so much noise.—Truth.

Didn't Want Them.

Mr. Billus was looking over the plans of a new barn he was preparing to build.

"I don't care about having any windows on the side facing the kitchen yard," he said.

"But you will need them for light," replied the architect.

"Light nothing!" roared Mr. Billus. "Those windows call for 64 panes of glass, and I've got a boy 5 years old! Leave 'em out!"—Chicago Tribune.

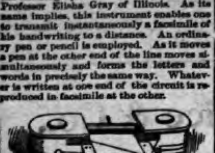
Science Progress

THE TELAUTOGRAPH.

To Transmit Instantaneously a Facsimile of Handwriting to a Distance.

In the accompanying cuts are illustrated the telautograph, invented and perfected by Professor Elisha Gray of Illinois. As its name implies, this instrument enables one to transmit instantaneously a facsimile of his handwriting to a distance. An ordinary pen or pencil is employed. As it moves a pen at the other end of the line moves simultaneously and forms the letters and words in precisely the same way. Whatever is written at one end of the circuit is reproduced in facsimile at the other.

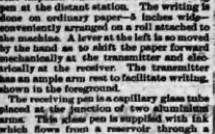


THE TRANSMITTER.

The instruments shown illustrate the transmitter, Fig. 1, and the receiver, Fig. 2. An ordinary lead pencil is used, near the point of which two silk cords are fastened at right angles to each other. These cords connect with the instrument, and following the motions of the pencil regulate the current impulses which control the receiving pen at the distant station. The writing is done on ordinary paper—5 inches wide—conveniently arranged on a roll attached to the machine. A new silk cord is then fastened by the hand as to shift the paper forward mechanically at the transmitter and electrically at the receiver. The transmitter has as ample arm rest to facilitate writing, shown in the foreground.

The receiving pen is a capillary glass tube placed at the junction of two aluminium arms. This glass pen is supplied with fluid which flows from a reservoir through a small rubber tube placed in one of these arms. The electrical impulses coming over the wire move the pen of the receiver simultaneously with the movements of the pencil in the hand of the sender. As the pen passes over the paper an ink tracing is left, which is always a facsimile of the sender's motions, whether in the formation of letters, words, figures, signs or sketches.

The receiver is a very compact, handsomely finished instrument. The pen arms are covered with glass, and all of the working parts are under cover, so that there is small liability of their being affected by dirt or impaired from extraneous causes.



THE RECEIVER.

By having the two instruments separated much greater simplicity is obtained, the parts are sturdily built, and the user has the advantage of having his own ruled paper on one blank and that of his correspondent on another, which facilitates filing. The Industries World, to which thanks are due for the foregoing illustrated description of the telautograph, says that it is destined to monopolize the private line business of the country. Requiring no operator at either end of the line, it will stand without a rival in this department of electrical communication.

Wasting Coal.

The scientist asserts that there is no economy to be gained by wetting coal, because, if the water is decomposed, it will require as much heat to effect the decomposition as is yielded by the reunion or combustion of the gases. There would rather, he says, be a loss, from the fact that the steam or vapor into which the water would be converted, whether dissociation took place or not, would convey heat away on its passage to the stack. On the other hand, the man who is constantly handling soft coal will tell you that it burns better and goes further if judiciously moistened, and he knows it. An explanation has been suggested in the fact that wetting retards the immediate and violent distillation which follows the introduction of new fuel and thus under these circumstances decomposition takes place in the furnace, where the gases get enough heat anyway, and the reunion or combustion of the dissociated gases take place further along in their passage to the stack, where the heat can be better applied. In other words, the water, by its decomposition, takes heat from the furnace and by its subsequent combustion distributes it over the heating surface of the boiler to better advantage than if it were concentrated under the first fire sheet. Recent experiments, too, have shown that a considerable quantity of aqueous vapor is necessary to facilitate the union of furnace gases with the oxygen of the air. Power suggests that it may be to this fact, rather than to the extra flow of air induced, that the steam jet owes its efficiency as a smoke preventer

Assaying Ore.

For the benefit of readers who live in mining districts and are desirous of analyzing a piece of ore suspected of containing silver these directions are given in The Horological Review: "Should the piece be an argentiferous galena or lead bearing silver ore, mix 300 grains of the pulverized ore with 900 grains carbonate of soda and 30 grains charcoal. Set it in a crucible on a furnace, melt, take off, give a few taps to settle the metal, let cool and remove the button. Then remelt the button in a porous cupel made of bone dust, which absorbs the lead, leaving the pure silver."

Waterproof Glue.

A scientific authority advises when waterproof glue is wanted to dissolve of gum sandarac and mastic each 2½ drams in a half pint of alcohol and 2½ drams of turpentine. Place the solution in a glue boiler over the fire and gradually stir into it an equal quantity of a strong hot solution of glue and isinglass; strain while hot through a cloth. Or to plain glue solution add bichromate of potash; on exposure to the air it becomes waterproof.

The Highest Towers.

The Eiffel tower in Paris, which is 984 feet high, is the highest tower in the world, while the Washington monument, which is 555 feet high, is the highest in the United States.

GOOD HEALTH

LITTLE DIGESTIVE TROUBLES.

Sydney Smith's Theory of the Source of Half the World's Unhappiness.

"The longer I live," said Sydney Smith, "the more I am convinced that half the unhappiness of the world proceeds from little stoppages, from a dust stopped up, from a vexed duodenum or an agitated pylorus. My friend says late. He eats some strong soup, then a lobster, then some tart, and he dilutes these succulent varieties with wine. The next day I call upon him. He is going to sell his house in London and retire into the country. He is alarmed for his eldest daughter's health. His expenses are hourly increasing, and nothing but a timely retreat can save him from ruin. All this is the lobster, and when overexcited nature has had time to manage this incumbrance the daughter recovers, the finances are in good order, and every moral idea is efficaciously excluded from his mind. In the same manner old friendships are destroyed by toasted cheese, and hard salted meat has led to suicide. Unpleasant feelings of the body produce corresponding sensations in the mind, and a great scene of wretchedness is sketched out by a morsel of indigestible and misguided food."

"Don'ts" for Visitors to Sickrooms.

The anxieties of the sickroom would be greatly lessened for patient, nurse and members of the family if sympathetic visiting friends could be induced to observe the following rules (especially the last), formulated by some very sensible and practical person of unknown name:

Don't sit by the side of the patient, for then she can't look at you without straining her neck.

Don't sit where the patient must change her position to look at you.

Don't, if there is already another person in the room, sit so that the patient will have to be constantly shaking her head to look from one to the other of them.

Don't rock your chair incessantly.

Don't play with anything in your hands or anything affixed to the furniture.

Don't speak with deafness or other disagreeable subjects.

Don't let the bureau knobs fall heavily or bang the doors.

Don't shut the register with a clashing sound.

Don't talk so fast that it is a strain on the patient's nerves to understand all you say.

Don't kiss the patient if you have just come out of the cold.

Don't come into the room with wet clothing on.

Don't stay so long as to tire the patient.

Ringworm of the Scalp.

Ringworm is always acquired either from a child wearing the hat of another child or coming in contact with some person having ringworm, or not infrequently from handling domestic pets, such as the cat or the dog. The first symptom that usually attracts the parent's attention to the disease is that the child scratches the head. Inspection will show that there are one, two or perhaps more patches on the scalp that are scaly and that the hair over them is broken off so that at first they look as if bald. The size of the patches varies from that of a marrowfat pea up to a silver half dollar. Examination of the body may show that the child has there also one or more ring shaped patches with red raised borders and scaly centers. For a child to acquire ringworm of the scalp is an unfortunate accident, because it takes six or more months to cure a case by the best of treatment if once it is well established. So go to your physician as soon as you find a ringworm of the scalp, advises The Mother's Nursery Guide.

A Family Doctor's Advice.

When a child gets a cut with a knife or any sharp object, such as glass, or from a fall, wash it well with warm water to remove any dirt that may have got in, and then put a piece of clean soft linen round the part and fasten it on by winding cotton round it or by means of a handkerchief or bandage. Should there be much bleeding or the wound be large, you should send for the doctor, as a stitch may be required to prevent a very ugly mark, which would be left if the cut were allowed to gape open.

ETIQUETTE

EVERYDAY COURTESIES.

Customs Observed in Public by Those Conversant With Good Form.

The etiquette of public places receives special attention by a well known social authority in a little volume on "What to Do," because, as she says, there is no place where good manners are more important than on the street, at the theater or elsewhere in public. Good form and good taste are stamped on the well mannered person on the street as well as in society. Here are some of the points noted:

A lady under all circumstances should first recognize a gentleman. It is her prerogative, and she should take pains to exercise it if she desires him for an acquaintance.

A lady or gentleman should conduct herself or himself on the street so as to escape all observation. A shrill voice, a loud laugh, stopping to inspect store windows, talking to acquaintances, obstructing the way of persons who are passing by and conversing the center of the sidewalk are very bad forms.

A gentleman should always recognize a lady when she strikes him, whether her face or manner is recognized or not. Women as a rule recollect persons, their names and as what houses they were introduced better than men.

When a gentleman offers his seat or rises a service to a lady, he should raise his hat.

When a gentleman offers his seat to a lady in a car or deposits her fare or opens a door, etc., she should reward him with a polite "Thank you" or a bow as a sign of acknowledgment.

When two gentlemen are promenading and one meets a lady acquaintance, both gentlemen should raise their hats, one because he is acquainted and the other out of respect to the lady his friend salutes.

Always arrive in time for any performance, either at the theatre or concert, and never under any circumstances rattle the programme. Frequent whispering or low talking is a nuisance to every one.

The tickets of admission to the Chicago World's fair are of various kinds, and some of them are truly unique. These good for the entire fair are claimed to be the most artistic admission cards of the kind ever seen in America. They are in four different designs. The paper used is of very fine texture of a very light gray color. Each ticket is 2½ inches wide by 2 3-5 inches long. In general appearance the tickets do not look unlike the fractional currency so familiar a few years ago. There are four kinds. In the left hand corner of each ticket is a portrait of either Columbus, Washington, Lincoln or an Indian chief in full war headdress. On the right hand side are the words: "World's Columbian exposition, Chicago, Admit bearer 1st May to 30th October, 1893." At the bottom of the ticket are the signatures, "A. F. Seeberger, treasurer," and "H. W. Higinbotham, president."

The reverse is also beautifully colored and ornamented. These have been spoken of as "souvenir tickets," the idea being that many visitors will buy and not use, but keep them as momentos. Some of the tickets good for shorter periods are also quite beautiful, and the passes issued to distinguished visitors are remarkably elegant.

Interesting to Irish Americans.

In the Irish village at the World's fair is a beautiful model in stone of the Daniel O'Connell Memorial church at Cahirciveen, County Kerry, Ireland. Though the church is not completed, the model shows it as finished, when it will unquestionably be one of the handsomest structures in the world. It is now built up to the roof, but it is estimated that it will take about $50,000 more to finish it and properly furnish it. This sum the Rev. Canon Brosnan, who has devoted himself to the work, expects to raise.

The site is in the center of Cahirciveen, commanding a splendid river and the structure faces toward Killarney. The length of the nave and chancel combined is 152 feet, and the width at the transepts 102 feet. The roof ridge is 70 feet high, and the spire of the tower will reach an altitude of 160 feet above the ground when it is completed.

O'Connell was born in Cahirciveen Aug. 6, 1775, and died at Genoa May 15, 1847, being then on a pilgrimage to Rome. He began his agitation with a speech at Dublin Jan. 12, 1800, toiled 45 years for Ireland and gained much for her, but was bitterly disappointed in his last movement.

Illinois' Great Building.

As the Columbian exposition of 1893 is the great event of the age for the state and city in which it is held, and as Illinois in a certain sense welcomes the rest of the world as her guests, it is naturally expected that her state building will excel all others. Its estimated cost is $250,000. Its plan is that of a Greek cross whose main axis is 450 feet long by 160 feet wide and lies east and west, while the shorter axis is 365 feet long, with an average width of 95 feet. At the intersection of the arms of the cross rises the dome, with a diameter of 75 feet at the base and a height of 153 feet to the top of inner dome.

In it are rooms for school exhibits, model kindergarten, general show of state products, social, ball and news room for visitors and official rooms where the governor of the state and his suite and the members of the board of commissioners meet to transact business. Some of the rooms have been set aside for the accommodation of the woman's board. The northern arm of the cross is a fireproof building 75 feet wide and extending 50 feet beyond the main building. Its walls are brick covered with staff. Its roof is galvanized iron and glass supported by steel trusses. The building is called the Memorial hall and is intended to contain memorials of the state that have been preserved in the capitol at Springfield.

$5 per Year in Advance. — T. W. Harrison, Editor and Proprietor. — Office, No. 9 Somerset street. — Printing of All Kinds. — 19 Centre-ave. West, Dunellen.

ESTABLISHED 1884. — PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," MONDAY, MAY 22, 1893. — ONE TWO CENTS.

BREVITIES.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. McGinnis of Somerset street, will celebrate the 30th anniversary of their wedding, this evening.

—A small boy was run over by a bicycle at the corner of Grove and Front streets Saturday afternoon. He was not seriously injured.

—Rumor says there was a four-round prize fight between two colored amateurs, on North avenue, Friday night, that ended in a draw.

—James Babbitt allowed a strange negro to lodge in his pool room last night. This morning he decamped with all of the pool balls in the place.

—On May 26, Prof. Davis' Thursday night dancing class will give a reception to the members and their friends at Eckel's hall, on West Front street.

—A number of Italians, who live in the "Notch," at the end of Somerset street, amused themselves yesterday by overturning the stones in Stony Brook and catching lamprey eels. One of the men was bitten on the foot by one of the eels. He held the injured foot up while another Italian sucked the poison out.

THREE RUNAWAYS.

One Saturday, One Last Night, and Another To-day.

Saturday afternoon Mr. F. F. Sykes of Scotch Plains was driving through Somerset street, and when in front of Townsend's marble works his wagon collided with a truck and upset. Mr. Sykes was thrown out. His horse ran down the street to Front street where it was caught. Mr. Sykes was not hurt.

Last night as an employee of the electric light company was standing on the rear of the company's wagon, examining a lamp on Plainfield avenue, the horse started off before he could get hold of the reins. The man was pitched headfirst into the road and slightly hurt. The horse ran through Fourth street and up Park avenue. It was stopped at the corner of Front street by John Rafferty. When caught there were only two wheels and the body left of the wagon.

This morning a horse belonging to Dr. F. C. Herbert, the veterinary surgeon, ran away on North avenue. A smashed wheel was the extent of the damage.

EXEMPT FIREMEN'S "SMOKER."

Mr. Oliver W. Wren a Guest at Saturday Night's Meeting.

Saturday night the regular meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association was adjourned for a week and instead the members held a "smoker" in honor of their guest, Mr. Oliver W. Wren, who is visiting at the home of Mr. C. J. Lawson of Seventh street.

Mr. Wren is a member of the exempt association of New York State, and is the one who gave such a pleasing entertainment in Reform Hall for the benefit of the firemen not long since.

Mr. Wren was made an honorary member of the Association.

Speeches were made by Messrs. L. E. Barkalow, J. A. Hubbard, V. W. Nash, Alex. Thomson, E. Anthony, C. J. Lawson and J. W. Murray, Jr.

Mr. Wren entertained those present with some of his laughprovoking selections and altogether it was one of the best times the firemen have ever had.

Mr. George W. Lattemon of New York was also one of the guests.

TWO BUGGIES WRECKED.

An Accident on Somerset Street Last Night.

Two buggies were wrecked last night on Somerset street in an accident but no one was injured. It seems that Joseph Gavin and Lorenzo Townley were driving toward Plainfield, each having a buggy. Gavin attempted to drive past the buggy in front. As he did so, he ran into a wagon coming from the other way, and which it was impossible to see in the dark. Gavin's wagon was upset and he was thrown out. The horse ran away but was caught and stopped by Watson Roth. The buggy was wrecked. The accident happened near Johnson's drive. The roadway is narrow at that point and to make matters worse there is a pile of railway ties protruding several feet into the street. When Gavin's buggy upset the one in which Townley was riding was forced into the pile of railway ties. The buggy was a total wreck. The horse broke loose and ran home. Townley was uninjured but his companion was slightly hurt.

A Slight Fire.

There was a slight fire Saturday night in the small brick building in the rear of Mrs. Bowman's boarding house, on West Front street. Alert hose company received a still alarm and had the flames extinguished before the other apparatus arrived. The alarm was sounded from box 43, but owing to some unaccountable difficulty, the whistle only blew four.

Free Scholarship.

The annual competitive examination for free scholarship to Rutger's College for Union county will be held at the County Court House, Elizabeth, on Saturday, June 3, 1893, commencing at nine o'clock. Applications may be made to city superintendent of schools or to the county superintendent.

NO SAND IN THESE HILLS

MURRAY HILLS GO DOWN BEFORE THE HEAVY HITTING CRESCENTS.

The Fine Weather Brought Out a Good Attendance at Saturday's Game.—Crescents Won by the Score of 12 to 5.

THE most enthusiastic base ball crank couldn't have asked for finer weather than that of Saturday after noon in which to sit on the "crank stand" and indulge in his favorite pastime—testing his lung power by giving vent to earsplitting yells. The attendance was very good and there was a decided gain over that of the previous Saturday. The Murray Hill team came here from New York, puffed up with several victories, but it met its Waterloo when it ran up against the mighty Crescents.

Turner, the Crescents' "phenom," and left hand twirler, was put in the box, while Sneeden went to centre-field. The visitors were unable to do much with his curves, although they secured eight base hits, netting them five runs.

The Crescents won by heavy batting. In the second inning all of Pitcher Fuchs' "castles in the air" of becoming a league pitcher must have been shattered. It was the greatest batting streak the Crescents have had since the season opened. It was a streak of luck that no pitcher could battle against, and base hits fairly poured down. It all started with Jones, who bunted the ball and beats it to first. Sneeden got his base on an error. Holford, who gets his base on balls more than any other player in existence, as he is so short it is almost impossible for a pitcher to get a strike on him, made a base hit. Smith, Molndoe, Turner and Heckman did likewise.

Jones, Crescent, Smith and Molndoe tallied but Holford was caught at the plate. Fritz was given his base on balls, Powers struck out and Jones was caught at first. Thus ended the second inning and when the smoke of battle had cleared away it was found that the Crescents had made six base hits and scored four runs. This gave them a lead of five runs and Murray Hill stock dropped below par.

The remainder of the home team's runs were due largely to the fielding errors of the visitors, only two being earned after the second inning.

The Murray Hills' runs were all unearned, and were either the result of a base on balls or an error of Romer's, who played very "rocky" ball. The following is the score:

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall will deliver the last of the six afternoon lectures in All Souls' church Wednesday, May 24. Under the heading "Books and Reading" she will treat especially of "The influence of Journalism on the Mind and Morals."

The Rev. Lincoln B. Goodrich, brother of the Rev. Mr. Goodrich of this city, who was graduated with honors at Yale Theological School last week, assumed the pastorate of the Congregational church of Bound Brook yesterday. He will be formally ordained and installed next month.

Col. Charles E. Moore, the engineer who so successfully discovered the source of supply of the present water works in this city, has associated himself with H. Ward Leonard & Co., of New York, as an expert engineer to protect their rights in the contracts which they now have on hand.

There was a special and most enjoyable service of song at the All Souls' church last evening. A trio, composed of Mrs. D. W. Fond, Mrs. S. E. Struthers and Mrs. Otto Abrons, sang and there was also a solo by Miss Abrons. Mr. Carpenter was the organist and furnished the instrumental part of the music.

The following were the Plainfield delegates at the Sixth Convention of the Young Men's Christian Associations of the Fourth District of New Jersey, at Long Branch, May 19 to 21st: President W. D. Murray, E. L. Wells, Jr., J. C. Whiting, John Dalziel, T. E. Hazell, A. C. Le Boyteaux, O. W. Dunham, C. T. Kissam, J. H. Manning.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin H. Rogg of East Second street celebrated the silver wedding anniversary of their wedding Saturday night. A number of the members and officers of Jerusalem Lodge were present. Among the guest were: The Rev. and Mrs. William Sites, Miss Ida Sites and Lizzie Sites, of Westfield, Mr. John Henry, of Joliet, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Swackhammer, and Miss Maggie Swackhammer, of Dunellen; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Oakley, of New Brunswick; Mrs. E. B. Sebopley, and Miss Julia Sebopley, of Elizabeth; Mrs. William A. Schooley, of Bloomsbury; Mrs. J. H. Hawk, of Springtown; Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Swachen, Mrs. M. E. Stone, Mrs. M. B. Pelts, of White House; Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Swackhammer, of Middletown; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smith, of Somerville; Mr. and Mrs. William M. Staunch, of Westfield, and about 150 others from Plainfield. The presents were elegant.

TWO CASES IN COURT.

McCarthy and Pickett Enrich the City Tax Dollars.

DRUNKEN man named Mc Carthy stood at the corner of Front and Roscard streets, yesterday morning, and wanted to fight everyone that passed. Policeman Frederickson took him to the lock-up. He was fined five dollars this morning.

Yesterday Michael Pickett of South Second street was arrested by Policeman McGee. Pickett had a little argument with Mrs. Pickett and as a result was arrested for threatening to kill his "spouse." Judge Coddington fined him five dollars.

A SURE SIGN OF SUMMER.

A Mad Dog Makes Its Appearance in Town.

This afternoon the first harbinger of Summer made its appearance on Park avenue, in the form of a mad fox terrier. It ran into wagons, but did not bite any one. It made its way into a Park avenue furniture store. The proprietor climbed out of the window, while a dressmaker took possession of his office. After dropping, frothing around the place it finally ran out into the street.

Policemen Kiely gave chase and succeeded in killing the rabid canine on Fourth street.

UNION COUNTY COURTS.

SEVERAL PLAINFIELD CASES AMONG THE INDICTMENTS.

John Morecraft Fined Five Dollars for Assaulting Patrick McClymont.—Another Pleads Guilty to Forgery.—Other Cases.

KEPT confined in jail for over a month and then fined five dollars will probably learn John Morecraft to be more careful how he perpetrates "jokes" on small boys. On March 14, he, and Martin Holmes, plastered young Patrick McClymont's face with black grease. Morecraft was indicted for assault by the Grand Jury. Morecraft's companion was convicted upon trial a few weeks ago, and was sent to jail for several months for the offence. Saturday morning at Trinchett, Morecraft entered the plea of not guilty. A man who accompanied him wanted him to plead guilty, and while Morecraft would admit that he put black on the boy's face he insisted upon the plea. His friend then refused to go his bail, and the prisoner was taken to a cell.

A few moments latter he returned to the court room and announced he wished to plead guilty. Prosecutor Marsh moved for sentence, and the court fined him $5, stating that his previous good character had saved him a severer penalty.

Joseph Necius, of Summit, was arraigned upon a charge of grand larceny for stealing 30,000 bricks from P. V. Huston. He plead not guilty, the bail was placed at $500, and William Cranstell went his security. Trail was set down for June 7.

Peter Murray, who, with Patrick Carley, was charged with assaulting Officer O'Laughlin, plead not guilty, and the trial was set down for the same day as Carley's on May 29 and C. Addison Swift was assigned as his counsel.

The trial of Michael Barry, indicted on the same charge, was set down for next Friday, and J. C. Connolly assigned to the case.

The alleged forging, Lawrence Wallace, of Fanwood, was arraigned on five indictments, all charges for burning buildings within the last few months. He plead not guilty to each, but reserved the right to change the plea. Trial was set down for June 2, and the court fixed bail at $600 in each case. His mother went his security on two counts, and Lawyer Marsh, of Plainfield, his counsel, is trying to secure the remainder.

An old indictment against Albert Welsh, for assaulting F. H. Stanford in September, 1880, was presented and the prisoner plead not guilty. Trial was set down for June 5.

William Meeker, plead guilty to an attempt at forgery, and the plea was accepted by the Prosecutor. Meeker passed a check for $95 with the name of C. P. Rice, and attempted to cash it at a Plainfield bank. Sentence will be passed next Friday.

Great Scott's Great Machine.

The New York Sunday World of yesterday had a four page supplement printed in four colors, from a new press from the Scott Printing Machine Works of this city.

It is the invention of Mr. Walter Scott, and prints in four colors at one operation, both sides, and folds and counts the papers at the rate of 10,000 per hour. The machine is run by three gangs of men, who work eight hours each so as to keep the machine in motion the entire 24 hours.

Discussion in a Sabbath Church.

So rapidly has discussion grown in the Calvary Episcopal Church, of Summit, since the holiday season of last Winter that the pastor, the Rev. John F. Butterworth, offered his resignation at a meeting of the wardens and vestrymen on last Friday night.

The rectorship have decided not to accept Pastor Butterworth's resignation, at least without fuller consideration.

AMONG THE WHEELMEN.

The Irvington-Millburn Race the All-Absorbing Topic.

WHEELMEN are now seen daily on the county roads practicing for the great Irvington-Millburn 25-mile race, which takes place Decoration Day. Over a hundred wheelmen are now entered and in training for the race, and it promises to be one of the events of the wheeling season. Two members of the Plainfield Bicycle Club—Messrs. Crawford and Clapp—have entered.

According to the Westfield Standard Wm. Chamberlin of Westfield and F. L. O. Martin of this city, are going to race 100 miles. This race will take place in the early part of July. Both men will soon be in training. The course to be raced over will be from Newark to Philadelphia.

The great annual 100 miles race given by the Atlanta Wheelmen of Newark will be run from Newark to Princeton and return on Saturday, July 15th, starting at 7.30 a. m. A $700 piano is offered as a special prize to the club furnishing the most men.

The Elizabeth wheelmen will hold a parade on June 7th to celebrate their tenth anniversary.

The managers of the ten mile road race, open to riders of Union county, which was to be held June 10th have postponed it until June 17th, because the former date would conflict with the Philadelphia century run.

PAID FOR FOUR GAMES.

To Save 25 Cents, Four Young Men Par $1 Each.

During the ball games last season, the trees around the enclosure were loaded with boys and men, who chose that method of seeing the game, and thereby saving 25 cents each time.

This year there was an increase in the "free grand stand." Marshal Pangborn was called upon to stop this practice, as they broke the limbs from the trees and otherwise damaged private property. Just before Saturday's game the trees began to fill with the same old crowd. Marshal Pangborn caught four of them and placed them in the lockup. The free audience lost interest in the game and sneaked off. The four arrested were: Thomas Lyon, Thomas McGrail, Charles Snyder and William Meyer. They were fined one dollar each.

THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST.

Service Conducted by the Sunday School Last Night.

The Sunday school of the First Church of Christ conducted the service, last night, consisting of singing, recitations, etc., after which Pastor and Superintendent Hand addressed the school and work. The platform was bedecorated with Bowers. The following recited: Masters P. Hand, H. Staats, J. Van Middlesworth, R. Wells and Misses Hand, Staats, Van Nest, Wells, Rockefellow, Ackerman, Wilson, Bush and Nestor. The chapel was filled.

Hereafter the young workers will conduct two meetings a week. Sunday services from 2. p. m. to 2.40 and Thursday evenings from 8 to 9.

At the Fair Saturday Night.

Prof. Schneider and Master George Barnes, his eight-year old boy partner from Brooklyn, gave an exhibition at the German fair, Saturday night, at club swinging and acrobatic feats.

The gold watch was won by Katie Butterfly, Emma Greenler was also awarded a gold watch. Mr. E. Sebring was the winner of the lounge. To-night the remaining articles will be auctioned off.

Work Commenced on a Railroad from Orange to Plainfield.

The Westfield Standard of Saturday contained the following: "The first shovel full of earth has been dug for the new trolley road from Plainfield to Orange via Dalton Road. Work on the roadbed on the boulevard over Baltus Roll Mountain has been commenced."

Honesty Rewarded.

Building Mover Johns, who is at work moving the Buringham house through East Fourth street, lost a pocketbook containing $60. It was found by Willie Van Nest, who returned it to the owner, and received two dollars reward.

DEATHS.

MULDOON—In this city, May 20, 1893, Mrs. Mary Muldoon, aged 70 years. Funeral from her late residence, 29 West Third street, Tuesday, May 23d, at nine o'clock. Interment at St. Mary's church 9.30.

Friends and relatives are respectfully invited to attend.

ODAM—In this city, Saturday, May 20th, Loella M., youngest daughter of Eli M. and Mary E. Odam aged four years one month twenty days.

Funeral services from the residence of her parents 139 Arlington avenue Tuesday May 23rd at 2.30 p. m. Interment at Hillside.

TRAMPS "HOLD UP" PEDESTRIANS.

They Demand Ten Cents to Buy Food.

At about 10.30 o'clock last night, a man and woman were held up on Berckman street by three tramps, who demanded that they be given ten cents each to buy them something to eat. Upon acceding to their demands, the couple were allowed to depart.

Policeman Mattox was told of the occurrence, but when he arrived no tramps could be found.

"Oatmeal, sir? Why, I am a sort of oatmeal epicure!"

Thomas Carlyle suffered so greatly from dyspepsia that he turned to oatmeal as the only possible relief from his misery. Oatmeals nowadays cause indigestion instead of curing it—that is unless you get the perfectgrain—H-O. The one, clear, clean oatmeal.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Liquid Air.

So quietly that few are aware of its fallimport has one of the greatest chemical achievements of all time been lately accomplished. The discovery of a process by which common air can be reduced to a liquid form is a victory for science with which it may well be satisfied to round up the nineteenth century. Professor James Dewar has found that by the application of a cold so intense that we can scarcely conceive of it—369 degrees below Fahrenheit's freezing point—the gaseous air becomes a liquid which can be poured in and out of bottles like water. He has solved, too, the problem, finally, of what makes the sky blue. Under his experiment the nitrogen of the air is turned into a colorless liquid, while the oxygen becomes a liquid of a faint exquisite blue color. The blue of the sky is therefore caused by a blue tinge to its oxygen, and as we look upward through miles of this cerulean gas we get the shining blue of the sky.

It is to be observed that the different forms of matter are due to the degree of heat that permeates their particles. Reasoning from the discovery of Professor Dewar, scientific men say that if the sun's heat were suddenly withdrawn the oxygen of our atmosphere would suddenly fall in a mighty ocean all over the earth and submerge it with a blue liquid to the depth of 85 miles. Still more daring reasoners wonder whether, after all, the celebrated theory may not be true that there is only one original substance and all the others are merely different forms of this original.

The side of Professor Dewar's great discovery in which the public is most interested, however, is the practical uses to which liquid air may be put—whether in future it may serve as important a part in ministering to our health, comfort and convenience as certain other liquefied gases have already done. One of these which is put to many uses is liquefied carbonic acid; another is liquefied ammoniacal gas. Street cars have already been propelled by both these gases. The sudden liberation of them from tremendous pressure causes mechanical motion.

Professor Doremus predicts that when the airship becomes a success it will be driven by liquefied gases. Certain it is that in a very few years the troublesome, sloppy and expensive practice of taking ice to keep food cool in hot weather will be done away, and people will cool their refrigerators by liquefied ammonia. When it returns to the gaseous state, it takes from the surrounding air such vast quantities of heat that it cools everything in its vicinity. Either small machines for releasing the ammonia will be adapted for use in every family refrigerator, or else pipes from a central plant will run not only to the refrigerator, but through the whole house, cooling all the atmosphere.

In a paper in The North American Review Professor R. Ogden Doremus says that the best disinfectants are liquid chlorine or sulphurous acid. Sulphurous acid is produced by the burning of sulphur. They can be carried in bottles and liberated in rooms where contagious diseases have held their victims, and the air will be purified. He says that enormous quantities of chlorine gas will completely disinfect anything from a cholera ship to a surgical ward.

An appropriation was made in New York state for the purpose of ascertaining whether it is practicable to run canal boats by electricity. The experiment will be made on the canals during the month of August. Nothing but mule power has ever yet been found satisfactory as a motor for the canalboat. Steam stirs the water up too much and destroys the banks. If electricity can supply the want, then canals may have a new lease of life. Freight transportation is cheap by this method. If we can have electrical canalboats, then thousands of romantic people who want a new sensation will take their summer outings on a canalboat.

The transmissisippi congress at Ogden, U. T., put itself on record in favor of government aid for the construction of the Nicaragua canal and of government ownership of the canal after it was built. In case the government helped construct the work and did not assume control of the canal, then this transmissisippi convention thought the history of the Union Pacific railroad grants would be enacted over again. The congress was the largest and ablest convention of men that ever assembled west of the Mississippi, it is said. All the interests of the great Pacific slope were represented.

If thousands of rich men and their families can get into the World's fair grounds on passes by a side gate on Sunday, then it is an outrage that workingmen and their families cannot have passes to get in too.

"When people visit our World's exposition of 1893, they will come to the cleanest, but most watered city on earth," say the Parisians.

ATTACK ON DR. BRIGGS.

Dr. Sunderland "Spoke Right Out In Meetin."

THE PRESIDENT IN THE CHURCH.

Caused a Sensation In One of Washington's Fashionable Houses of Worship. Argument Expected to Be Made In the Assembly Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The absorbing topic in church circles today is a sensational incident which occurred in the First Presbyterian church, the pastor of which is the Rev. Dr. Sunderland. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity yesterday, in the congregation being many commissioners to the general assembly.

The president and Mrs. Cleveland, accompanied by the Rev. Dr. W. Neris Smith, pastor of the church attended by Mrs. Cleveland's mother, who is a guest at the White House and the Rev. E. J. Thurber, a brother of the private secretary to the president were present. Dr. Smith had been invited to preach the sermon, and took for his text "Bear ye one another's burdens."

He spoke at length on the Evangelization of the masses, stating that one-half of our population was out of the church, 75 per cent of our young men and two-thirds of the laboring classes not being within its influence. The average Presbyterian church of 115 members, he said, was bringing in only eight additional members a year.

The young preacher charmed his hearers by his eloquent plea for union in the church. At the conclusion of Dr. Smith's address Dr. Sunderland arose and said:

"I never before have all enjoyed Dr. Smith's sermon this morning. But there is one important omission. He neglected to state the cause of the dissension and disunion in the Presbyterian church at this time—the reason why the church has failed to accomplish what it ought to. I want here and now to state the cause. That cause is Dr. Briggs. I would not be in that man's shoes today for all the world. Let us sing hymn No. 539."

His remarks were delivered in a deliberate and emphatic manner and in a loud voice. The whitehaired ministers in attendance were eager to catch every word. Many of those present went forward and congratulated Dr. Smith on his eloquent effort, but the latter, who keenly felt the rebuke of the aged pastor, could say nothing.

The Fourth Day Begun.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The fourth day's session of the Presbyterian general assembly was called to order by Moderator Craig this morning and business of routine order was provided to. Tomorrow is expected to produce the sensation of the assembly, the debate on the Briggs case. In that will perhaps it will come up cannot be definitely stated. The record of the appeal from the action of the New York presbytery has been placed in the hands of the judiciary committee of which Rev. George D. Baker, D.D. of Philadelphia, is chairman. Dr. Baker, while not the first choice of the Briggs men in the general assembly for moderator, gave him their votes after Dr. Dickey had declined to have his name used as a candidate for the office.

The committee will probably report tomorrow upon the regularity of the appeal and whether or not it should be entertained, coming as it does direct from the presbytery, without having gone to the synod. Upon the receipt of that report the debate may be precipitated, although the probabilities favor a postponement until after the reports from the boards of the church shall have been made and considered. These are special orders of business at ten o'clock until that of Thursday morning next.

A Free Thought View.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Free Thought Exchange of the District of Columbia unanimously adopted the following:

Whereas, The founders of the republic solemnly added an amendment to the constitution to the effect that "congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof;" and

Whereas, The Fifty-second congress did make a law to the effect that a certain private corporation doing business in the state of Illinois and city of Chicago under a certain contingency should do no business on Sunday; therefore,

Resolved, That the president of the United States be and is hereby most respectively requested to cause his district attorney and attorney general to make out a case against the said corporation and have it carried to the supreme court for the purpose of having decided, ing said controversy by the highest tribunal of the state and not by that of the churches of this or any other country.

Will Not Represent Boomers.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Ex-Secretary Noble, in a letter received, emphatically denies the published reports that he intends to make his home in Oklahoma with a view of representing that territory in the United States senate when it shall have become a state. The ex-secretary says that his visit to the territory was upon the invitation of leading boards of trade and the citizens there, and that he has no thought of leaving St. Louis.

Dog Caused the Fire.

BUFFALO, May 22.—The cottage on Grand Island, occupied by John Downey, wife and five children, was burned to the ground. Two of the children, John, aged 6, and Annie aged 6, and Frank, aged 5, perished in the flames. It is supposed that a dog Newfoundland dog belonging to the family was responsible.

They Are Racing Back.

QUEENSTOWN, May 21—The Cunard steamship Campania, which sailed from Liverpool, was delayed here in consequence of the derangement of a steampipe, but finally steamed away at high speed, so as to overtake the American Line steamship Paris, which sailed from Southampton.

Railroad Men in Session.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 22.—A union mass meeting of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen was held in this city. About 600 railroad men were present representing about 130 lodges in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

No Army Bill Manifesto.

BERLIN, May 21.—The government has denied the truth of the several statements that Emperor William, in his capacity of supreme commander of the federated armies, would issue a manifesto concerning the army bill.

A Cable Car Accident.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 22.—A trailer attached to a motor car was derailed and the passengers pitched unceremoniously into the street, many of those on board receiving painful injuries that may result seriously.

TEN COOKED ALIVE.

Right Were Penned In a Well With a Raging Fire Over Their Heads.

LAKE CITY, Mich., May 22.—The loss of life in the fire which destroyed Louis Send's lumber camp, eight miles north of here, is greater than at first supposed. Ten bodies have been recovered and the whole crew is now accounted for. The dead are: Michael G. Pagen, single; Charles Tuttle, single; James Healy, single; Edward Roerbacher, married Samuel Campbell, single; Foreman F. Camp; John Hill, single; Fred Sager, single; Hans Jacobson, married, widow and two children living here; Frank Sangrese, single; Mike Mulholland.

These 10 men with Edward Sullivan were burned to a to the camp by fire. A strong wind cut off all escape. Sullivan started north in the face of the fire, and by some chance escaped. He is severely burned, but will live.

Edward Roorbacker started east and got about 25 rods away before caught. Mulholland started west and got about the same distance. The remaining eight stayed too long and took refuge in a well about 20 feet deep. The top curb of the well burned, and the timbers fell on the men huddled in the well, literally cooking their heads, the remainder of their bodies being under water. A rescuing party tried to get the bodies out of the well with ropes, but it was too long, so the effort was postponed until the next morning, when the recovery was effected. A large force of men is still scouring the woods for missing persons, but as no other unfortunate has been overlooked. The camp employed 60 men. The remaining 50 were near the green timber and those escaped.

TABERNACLE DEBT LIFTED.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Announces the Fact and Says He Will Not Resign.

BROOKLYN, May 22.—In the presence of a congregation that crowded the immense tabernacle to the doors the Rev. Dr. T. De Witt Talmage officially announced that the building debt of the tabernacle had been liquidated and that his remaining with the church as its pastor was assured.

It had been pretty generally understood that the necessary money had been raised, but the announcement coming from the doctor himself created a furor of excitement among the congregation. Cheer upon cheer was given by the large congregation, and it was some time before he could continue. The cheering was repeated with emphasis when the divine added that he would continue as pastor.

Dr. Talmage was listened to attentively, and the news of his official declaration was quickly carried to all parts of Brooklyn. Among all classes of clergy the intelligence that Dr. Talmage would not abandon the tabernacle and Brooklyn was received with unfeigned pleasure. Dr. Talmage announced before preaching his sermon that next Sunday there will be jubilee services at the church in commemoration of the extinction of the floating debt. The day will be made a memorable one in the history of the tabernacle.

Called the Premier a Liar.

PARIS, May 22.—The newspapers are printing details of the scene in the chamber of deputies immediately after the division on the motion for the prosecution of M. Baudin. M. Baudry d'Asson, as soon as the vote was announced, ran to the tribune, caught M. Dupuy by the collar, and shook him as he shouted "coward," "liar" and "humbug" in his ears. Ushers drew away Baudry d'Asson and escorted the premier from the chamber. Despite all this it is the expected duel is not likely to be fought. Baudry d'Asson is reported to have been persuaded by his seconds to withdraw his challenge.

Tried to Rob Armour.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Two burglars made an effort to break into the residence of Philip D. Armour and were driven off by Officer McGary after a desperate fight. Both managed to escape. As they were climbing the iron picket fence McGary fired, bringing one man to the ground. He tried to reach him, but in climbing the fence the officer's clothing caught and before he could free himself the injured man was assisted off by his companion. McGary was badly injured by falling on the sharp pickets.

The Howe Factory Burned.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 22.—The Howe factory in East Douglas, containing the ax polishing and finishing departments of the American Ax and Tool company, a three story stone building, a grind shop, tempering shop and engine house, were totally consumed by fire. The fire is thought to have been the work of an incendiary.

Drowned the Second Time.

KINGSTON, Ont., May 22.—Dr. Hector MacDonald, Peter Bureau, Dr. Alexander Bureau and William Life of Morrisburg while sailing were capsized. They were rescued by men on the shore. Shortly afterward MacDonald and one of his companions went after the upturned boat and were again upset. MacDonald was drowned.

Unveiled by the Emperor.

BUDAPEST, May 22.—The proposed monument was unveiled in the presence of an enormous crowd. The people were enthusiastic but perfectly orderly. The emperor was received with cheers wherever he appeared. After the ceremony closed with cheers for him several students sang Kossuth's hymn.

Strikers Still Need the Police.

LONDON, May 22.—The bitterness of the union dockers at Hull against the non-unionists continues. Instances of violent abuse of nonunionists in the streets are multiplying almost hourly. The dragoons and extra police remain on duty.

Picturesque Jewish Exercises.

NEW YORK, May 22.—In the synagogues in this city services were celebrated in commemoration of the handing down of Thorah, the scroll of laws, from Mt. Sinai, and many children were confirmed with picturesque exercises.

Rocked the Boat and Was Drowned.

PASSAIC, N. J., May 22.—While Maurice Sloff and a friend were rocking a boat on Vreeland's pond the craft capsized. Sloff tried to swim to the shore, but his strength failed and he was drowned. The other man was saved.

Work of a Colored Desperado.

KNOXVILLE, May 22.—Allen Cansion, a noted colored desperado, shot and killed his wife and mortally wounded his father-in-law at his home in this city. He was immediately arrested and committed to jail.

Went To See The Warships.

JERSEY CITY, May 22.—The body of Werner Greve was found in the river, near Weehawken. Greve, who lived in Hoboken, went out in a row boat April 30, to see the warships, and was drowned.

GIANT SANTOS' DEATH.

Pathetic Fate of a Descendant of the Incas.

DIED HEART BROKEN IN BELLEVUE

Sad Ending to the Visit of a Party of Bovivian Indians to the World's Fair—The Princess Accused the Hospital Physicians.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Santos was a giant, but he had a tender heart. He is dead, and his friends say he died because his heart was broken. So one of them, a princess, declared dramatically and which a wood of pathos on the grounds of Bellevue hospital yesterday, where the most peculiar funeral services ever witnessed by the attendants were held under the waving branches of the trees.

She was the Princess Viroqua, in whose veins courses the truest blood of the old Mohawk warriors. As she told of the tender hearted giant's unhappy fate she raised her head toward the grim hospital buildings and solemnly charged the responsibility for his death upon the physicians there.

The giant's full names was Jose Santos Mamani, but Santos was what he loved best to be called by those who had befriended him. He was the largest but tallest manager of the Indians from Bolivia, who came to the United States some weeks ago expecting to be honored at the World's fair as the representatives of their people, descendants of the kings of Incas. There were 18 of the party.

Disappointed Indians.

Cruel disappointment met the party on their arrival. The World's fair management did not want them. They went to Philadelphia, gave an exhibition for a week, with no success, and started back to New York on foot. Miss Emma C. Sickels, long known as a friend of Indians, joined Indians, found Santos and some of the others at New Brunswick, N. J., without food, sleeping under sheds and exposed to a heavy rainstorm. She took them to New York and arranged for their appearance at the Press club fair, where they have been since.

Of all those who showed kindness toward him, he was fondest of laughing at little Zelda Sanderson, president of the Baby Ruth Sunshine league at the Press club fair, and little Zelda loved him in return.

But the spirit of Santos was broken. He fell ill. Little Zelda nursed him. It was thought best to send him to Bellevue hospital. On Friday he died. He had been there a little more than fourteen hours. During that time permission to see him was denied to unchief Adams of the life and death of Santos the giant was that performed under the trees on the hospital lawn. The mutilated giant form lay in a pine wood coffin which it had to be constructed in haste to accommodate it. It was because of an Indian superstition that only the sunlight of the open sky help under a roof that they were conducted in the open air. The coffin was not brought because of its great weight.

The Funeral Ceremonial.

The Princess Viroqua and Dayonhrahcosa, her sister, chanted a weird Indian dirge, beginning in low, solemn strains, which gradually rose in volume until they floated above the trees and over the old hospital buildings like a wail of despair, and again sank away into low, plaintive murmurings.

As the exercises were brought to a close a hearse bearing the great coffin containing the giant's body rumbled out of the morgue and it was then the Princess Viroqua exclaimed that poor Santos had died of a broken heart, for which she believed the hospital doctors were much to blame.

"I speak," said the princess, "as an Indian for an Indian. After the autopsy on Santos the doctors told me there was no definite cause of death, though they attributed it to a kidney trouble. One said Santos' troubles might have had as much to do with it as anything else—that he died of a broken heart.

"I believe it. That and fright. It was outrageous that no one was permitted to see him, when application was made twice by Dayonhrahcosa and myself in the poor fellow's own language. Reform is greatly needed if this is the way all patients that do not speak English are treated."

The Indian had stood 6 feet 7 inches. His brain was a little under normal size for a man. It weighed 83 ounces, or about the size of women of the race. His weight was phenomenal, being 50 inches. Corbett, the prize fighter, whose chest is unusually large, measures only 42 inches. The body of Santos was buried in Cypress Hills cemetery, the funeral expenses being defrayed by the Spanish society.

A Plea For the Chinese.

NEW YORK, May 22.—The Chinese question was discussed by the Rev. Madison C. Peters at the Bloomingdale Reformed church. Dr. Peters said: "In the name of God, who of one blood made all nations of men to dwell on the face of the earth, I protest against the cruelties of the Christian and anchristian treatment of the Chinese.

A Plea For His Winding Sheet.

CINCINNATI, May 22.—The funeral of the great actor, James Murdoch, was held here. Wrapped in an American flag and followed by 20 carriages the body was taken to Spring Grove cemetery, where the interment was made.

Died In the Pulpit.

LANCASTER, TEX., May 22.—Rev. James Mackay, pastor of the First Methodist church, while delivering the morning sermon, dropped dead in the pulpit from the bursting of a blood vessel in the head.

An Amnesty Meeting.

NEW HAVEN, May 22.—Governor Luzon B. Morris presided at a large meeting in the Hyperion theater in favor of securing amnesty for American citizens now imprisoned in English prisons.

Brandy Killed a Three-Year-Old Child.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Rosa Heller, 30 years old, was killed by drinking a tumblerful of brandy, and her little brother narrowly escaped death from the liquor.

Whisky Treat Breaking Up.

PEORIA, Ills., May 22.—Five of the largest distilleries in this city have withdrawn from the Cattle Feeding and Distilling company.

and could hardly get around the house. She began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and in one week she was improving. When she had taken but three bottles she was entirely cured. I was troubled with heart disease. If she was passed of that dreadful disease. If I was not afraid of taking cold I would throw away my crutches. I have improved rapidly since I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. I have not been able to work for two years before, but can now do my usual work. I used but three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and it has done me more good than all the medicine I have taken in the last ten years." H. C. RICHARDSON, Nelson, Madison County, N. Y.

CAME IN ON FIRE.

Steamship Roanoke's Hold Ablaze and 75 Passengers Aboard.

NEW YORK, May 22.—The steamship Roanoke of the Old Dominion line backed into her dock at the foot of Beach street with a fire burning fiercely in her hold. As the steamship was passing Long Branch smoke was seen issuing from her shaft tube, and an investigation showed that the wood was afire. Captain John G. Hulters and his officers went to the passengers and quietly informed them that there was a fire smouldering in some cotton stowed in the forehold of the ship, but that there was not the least danger, and even if there was the vessel was so near to land that everybody could be landed in safety and with little difficulty.

The 75 passengers behaved admirably under the circumstances, not one of them, according to the pursers story, even taking the trouble to pack a valise.

When the vessel reached quarantine, word was telegraphed to Fire Chief Bonner, and when the vessel arrived, the fireboat New Yorker was lying off her pier to meet her, and Chief Bonner and a truck company were on the pier ready to render assistance.

The steamer left Newport News, Thursday and had aboard a general cargo, mostly fruit. In the afterhold, where the fire originated, was a large quantity of cotton over into which were stored 150 barrels of turpentine. Captain Hulters said that the fire was evidently due to spontaneous combustion.

INDIANS COME TO BORROW.

The Cherokees Want a Loan of Only $6,000,000.

NEW YORK, May 22.—It is not every day that Wall street has a $6,000,000 loan asked of it, and it is not 'every Indian tribe that can produce collateral for such an amount of money. But such an offer is made and it comes from the Cherokee nation. Principal Chief C. J. Harris of the Cherokees is in this city, at the Ashland House, accompanied by Ezekiel Starr, treasurer of the nation, D. W. Lipe and J. T. Cunningham. The two last named are representative Cherokees.

Principal Chief Harris has in his pocket documents which he believes will enable him to borrow $6,840,000 before he leaves the city. Those documents show that the Cherokees have sold to the United States 4,800,000 acres of land known as the Cherokee outlet for the sum of $8,808,736, of which amount $265,736 was paid down, while the remaining $8,300,000 was to be paid in five equal installments and to draw interest at the rate of 4 per cent.

They also show that the United States has passed an act authorizing the Cherokees to negotiate the indebtedness, pledging the principal and interest due from the government to secure payment.

Fighting In Nicaragua.

GRANADA, May 22.—What it is believed will be the decisive battle of the revolution against the authority of President Sacasa has been opened. After days spent in preparation the government troops began their advance yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. Their purpose was to attack the revolutionists at Barranca, near Masaya. As the government forces advanced the battle was begun by the revolutionists, whose artillery opened a vigorous fire upon the attacking columns of the enemy. The revolutionists are enthusiastic. Large crowds are gathered in the streets awaiting news of the battle, which will be brought from the front by messengers.

King Kelly a Giant Now.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Michael J. Kelly met Manager Ward at the St. James hotel. It did not take the "King" very long to come to terms, and satisfactory arrangements were made, whereby the New York team will have the benefit of his services for the remainder of the season. The New Yorks, with Ward, left for Baltimore this morning. Kelly will play his first game here on Thursday against the Phillies, unless Ward finds it necessary to have him join the team in Baltimore sooner.

Insanity's Frenzy.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., May 22.—Samuel Worth, a wealthy member of the Society of Friends of this place, suddenly became insane and broke a mirror with which to cut his wife's throat. He attacked her savagely, and it is feared she will die. Worth was chloroformed and then taken to the Friends' asylum at Frankford, Philadelphia. His brother mysteriously disappeared several weeks ago and has not since been heard from.

Loyal Irishmen Meet.

NEW YORK, May 22.—A meeting of delegates from Irish associations was held in Odd Fellow's hall. A letter was read from Mayor Gilroy regretting his inability to be present at the monster meeting to be held in Cooper union on June 6 and approving of the movement. Senator Hill wrote in similar terms. James McDevitt, lately released from Portland prison, England, was introduced to the meeting and received an ovation.

Russians Visit Farragut's Grave.

NEW YORK, May 22.—About 200 members of the Farragut association of New York, accompanied by Admiral Komakoff and staff of the Russian fleet, with a detachment of sailors, went to Woodlawn cemetery to decorate the graves of Admiral Farragut and his wife, who are buried there. Admiral Komakoff laid the first carried a large floral wreath, which was to be put on Admiral Farragut's grave.

Pickpockets Follow the Dunkards.

MUNCIE, Ind., May 22.—Three thousand Dunkards, arrived which increased the crowd to 14,000. Their national business meeting will commence tomorrow, when it is expected that 20,000 Dunkards will be present. A gang of about 15 pickpockets are in Muncie and several people have been relieved of well filled pocketbooks, watches and diamonds. The police have captured two thieves.

SCRIBES IN CONVENTION

Newspaper Men and Women Gather at the World's Fair.

CROWDS FOUND THE GATES SHUT.

Outside Fakirs Coin Money, For Thousands Went to Jackson Park—No Disturbance Made—Women Ministers Conduct Divine Services.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Men and women who make newspapers are here today by the tens of thousands. There was begun today in the new Art building the general press congress of the World's fair. It will probably be one of the most interesting and profitable of the series of the congresses held during the exposition. This congress is composed of the actual newspaper workers, both men and women.

Through the National Editorial association 20,000 editors were invited, and they are coming into the city from all sections, state organizations, press club representatives and typothetae being present.

The American Newspaper Publishers association of which Mr. Scott is president and Mr. C. C. Bryant secretary, also meets here this week. Among other organizations represented are the Inland Daily Press association, the Women's National Press association, the Pacific Coast Women's Press association, the Southern Press association of Colored Editors, etc.

All of the problems which perplex journalists will apparently be solved by women at the Woman's Auxiliary of the World's Press congress. At the first session a paper entitled "Press, Newspaper, the Greatest Factor of Civilization," by Miss. Severin of the Paris Figaro, was read. As Miss. Severin does not speak English a translation of her paper was read by proxy. Many other papers are to follow.

Found the Gates Shut.

Tens of thousands of men and women wandered aimlessly up and down the thoroughfares outside the World's fair grounds yesterday peering wistfully through the closed gates of the White City and murmuring regrets at their inability to gain admittance. Some of the louder spoken ones called down maledictions on the powers that sealed the beauties of the fair to them, but on the whole the crowd was an orderly one. Men kept their tempers, evidently buoyed by the belief that it would be the last day of Sunday closing. It was by far the largest Sunday turnout since the exposition opened.

Transportation lines and the army of fakirs located in the vicinity of the grounds did an enormous business. From early morning until dark the elevated road, the cable lines, the steamers and the suburban trains poured a continuous stream of humanity into the streets surrounding the grounds. Dozens of policemen were kept busy in preventing street blockades. The pressure was in a large measure doubtless due to an ill defined hope that the closing order might be revoked during the day. Many doubted the truth of the announcement that the fair would be closed until denied admittance by the gatekeepers. The fakirs flourished as never before. The crowd had money and not being able to spend it in the exposition, they turned to the cheap amusements in the vicinity.

Hundreds of shouters yelled themselves hoarse and rendered the day hideous in their efforts to secure their share of the golden harvest. As night drew near the rush for home began, and for two hours every means of transportation was tested to its fullest capacity.

A Woman In the Pulpit.

In the shadow of four stony images of Pagan heroines and deities and under the approving glance of Pallas Athene, 18 ordained women ministers of the gospel, representing 13 different denominations, sat on the speakers' platform at the religious services held in Washington hall of the Woman's Art palace in the World's Congress of Representative Women.

Rev. Jennette Olmstead invoked the divine blessing on the work of the congress. Miss Anna H. Shaw delivered the sermon.

Whole Flocks Have Hydrophobia.

JACKSON, Mich., May 22.—A member of the state board of health visited Parma, Mich., to investigate a hydrophobia epidemic prevailing in a number of flocks of sheep in that locality. About two weeks ago a mad dog bit several sheep in a flock belonging to Gardner Hunn. The sheep were allowed to live, and they in turn have bitten other sheep, until some 60 or 70 have died from hydrophobia.

Crushed to a Pulp.

KOKOMO, Ind., May 22.—Charles Toney, aged 17, was employed at the strawboard works, and while in the pit feeding the hot, close meeting cylinders, his hand caught and he was drawn entirely through between the rollers, crushing him to a pulp.

Active Volcano In Japan.

SHANGHAI, May 22.—Advices from Japan say that the volcano Bandaisan has become active, and that widespread disaster has been caused by its eruptions.

TELEGRAPHIC TICKINGS.

The 8-year-old daughter of H. L. Roberts of Naugatuck, Conn., was burned to death, her clothes having caught fire, and she set fire to a bed, while dying, on which was Mary Monroe, who was also fatally burned.

A can containing human brains was found in a New York elevated train.

A dynamite bomb was found under a hotel in Fulton, Ky.

Rear Admiral Gherardi has been assigned to the Brooklyn navy yard.

A 13-year-old boy was attacked by Golden eagles near Bellmont, N. Y., and carried one of them.

Two electric street cars were in collision on De Kalb avenue, Brooklyn, and four persons were injured.

Young Mrs. James G. Blaine is to be married to Dr. William F. Bull, her physician.

The Archer & Pancoast company, manufacturers of gas fixtures, New York, is in the hands of receivers; liabilities $1,000,000.

James S. Dwight, a Yale student, was arrested on a charge of larceny and confessed.

Samuel Worth of Chester, Pa., a Quaker, became insane, and cut his wife's throat with a broken mirror.

Hon. E. J. Ormsbee of Brandon, Vt., has been appointed receiver of the Vermont Investment and Guarantee company.

Smallpox has broken out among Chinese at Portland, Or., brought from Victoria, B. C., by the British steamer Danube.

Miss Charlotte Wilcox, aged 85, of New Haven, Conn., drank aqua ammonia in mistake for a nerve tonic and died.

THE INFANTA SIGHTSEEING.

Today She Made a Tour of All the Places Which Tourists See.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Princess Eulalie is sightseeing today. Under the guidance of Commander Davis she and her party are flitting around the government buildings, where everything is thrown open for the inspection of the royal guest.

The Infanta Eulalie spent her first Sunday in the United States in the retirement of her hotel, excepting a brief walk, attendance upon church and a ride in the afternoon. She arose early, and at 8:30 o'clock, accompanied by her husband, Prince Antoine, and a lady in waiting, issued forth from the old Sumner mansion, now a part of the Hotel Arlington, and crossed the street to Lafayette park and took a short stroll about the walks admiring the trees and shrubbery.

After services the party under the escort of Commander Davis took a carriage and were driven to the Washington monument and through the agricultural and Smithsonian grounds. Later Secretary Gresham drove the infanta and her husband to the Soldiers' home. Returning they were caught in a heavy shower, but the landau was closed and they suffered no inconvenience. At night the infanta and party dined with Senor Muruaga, the Spanish minister, at the legation. Mrs. Cleveland and Colonel Wilson have been very attentive to the nation's royal guest, and a basket of white roses was sent over from the White House to the infanta's rooms.

The Saginaw Fire.

SAGINAW, Mich., May 22.—The great fire which raged here started in Sample & Camps mill plant burned over an area of a mile in length and four and five blocks in width. There are scores of instances in which entire families lost all their effects except their clothing on their backs. There will be some destitution but the majority of the losses are sustained by people in comfortable circumstances. Prominent citizens met at the clubhouse at which a plan was formulated for the people of Saginaw to take care of all the needy ones and no appeal will be made for outside aid. A close estimate places the number of buildings destroyed at 275 and the total loss sustained $600,000. The total insurance will aggregate $300,000.

A Big Coal Mining Company.

KNOXVILLE, May 22.—Articles incorporating the La Follitte Coal and Iron company with a capital of $2,500,000, and the La Follitte Land and Improvement company with a capital of $1,500,000, were filed at Jacksboro, Campbell county, Tenn. Fifty thousand acres of coal, iron and timber lands have been purchased in Campbell county. Electric plants, with a capacity of 10,000 tons daily, are to be used in mining coal, of which eight varieties are found on the property. One thousand coking ovens and iron furnaces, with a capacity of 1,000 tons daily, are to be erected within a distance of one-half mile. An industrial town to be known as La Follitte is to be built on the company's property.

Columbia River Very High.

PORTLAND, Or., May 22.—The Willamette river in this city is now 22 feet above low water mark. A number of houses along the river front on the east side have been upset and wrecked. A small steamer broke from its moorings and was wrecked against the bridge. All the cellars in the business houses along Front street on the west side of the river are flooded, and many of the merchants are getting ready to move their goods. The river is now almost on a level with the streets, and all indications point to a further rise. Dispatches from interior points say that the Columbia river and its tributaries are very disheartening.

Suicide In a Courtroom.

SPOKANE, Wash., May 22.—Frank E. Johnson shot himself in the municipal courtroom and died 20 minutes later. His wife had charged him with abusing her life. He was again arrested and taken to Judge Miller's court. Several policemen, the city attorney and many others were in the courtroom when Johnson was told to stand up. "Are you guilty or not guilty?" asked the judge. Johnson pulled a revolver from his pocket, put it to his left side and shot himself through the heart.

Revolutionists Waiting For Arms.

PANAMA, May 22.—The government of Nicaragua has notified the Pacific Mail Steamship company that their vessels must not stop at San Juan while that port is in the hands of the revolutionists, but may land passengers, mails and freight at Corinto. No movements of importance are being attempted by the revolutionists, as they are waiting for more arms and ammunition.

FIN DE SIECLE COSTUME.

The very striking French costume in the sketch cut is of a soft black silk made with skirt flounced to the waist and each flounce edged with a narrow white lace of the cluny description. There is scarcely any fullness in these flounces. They are almost plain. The bodice of this gown is made of a shot blue and red chiffon, with breast of black satin and full sleeves, gathered into innumerable frills and puffs at the elbows and slitting with delightful softness. There is a belt of black satin, and the costume is finished off around the "fin de siecle" is completed by a cape made entirely of flounces of black silk and edged with lace, which reaches to the waist.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP

ORIGIN OF THE NAME YANKEE.

Theories Probable and Otherwise Which Have Been Advanced on the Subject.

The theories which have been advanced as to the origin of the name Yankee are numerous. According to Thievary, it was a corruption of Jakin, a diminutive of John, which was a nickname given by the Dutch colonists of New York to their neighbors in the Connecticut settlements.

In a history of the American war written by Dr. William Gordon and published in 1789 was another theory. Dr. Gordon said that it was a cant word in Cambridge, Mass., as early as 1713, used to denote especial excellence—as a Yankee good horse, Yankee good cider, etc. He supposed that it was originally a byword in the college, and being taken by the students into the parts of the country gradually obtained general currency in New England, and at length came to be taken up in other parts of the country and applied to New Englanders as a term of slight reproach.

Asbury, an English writer, says that it is derived from a Cherokee word, Eankke, which signifies coward and slave. This epithet was bestowed upon the inhabitants of New England by the Virginians for not assisting them in a war with the Cherokees. The most probable theory, however, is that advanced by Mr. Heckewelder—that the Indians in endeavoring to pronounce the word English, or Anglais, made it Yangees or Yangees, and this originated the term.

Japanese Gardens.

Japanese gardens are the most fairylike of places. You see in them tiny trees and flowering plants, ponds, bridges, summer houses, lanterns—here dwarf pines 6 or 8 inches high, but 100 years old; there 1 acre 1 foot high, but 500 years old. In the garden of Yeiju-in—within the temple grounds—there are many peony plants, mostly old, but one is 100 years old and is eight feet high—quite a tree. Most of the soil of Japan is a rich, peaty loam. This is interspersed with a yellow, light clayey soil. Both are carefully fertile, and in such there seems to be planted that which is peculiar to that soil. The fertilizer most used is rice straw cut into small pieces, as with a hay cutter. But cultivators depend mostly upon irrigation and careful cultivation. Not a weed nor a waste piece of land will be seen in a long railroad journey. The farmer utilizes every bit of land he possesses, but farm tools are very crude. The hoe hoe is the chief tool used. Occasionally a black bull may be seen hitched to what is called a plow, but the implement is so small that it looks like a toy. With the hoe, the blade of which is 4 inches wide, the soil is turned over, left a few days exposed to the sun, then leveled and seed put in. Every crop but rice is planted in rows straight as an arrow. Men and women work in the fields.

History of a Penny.

The history of a penny as given in a Michigan historical paper runs as follows: The penny is the oldest of English coins. The word was originally used for money in general. It is first mentioned in the laws of Ina, King of the West Saxons, about the close of the seventh century and was of silver deeply indented with a cross so as to be easily broken in two or four parts. It is the radical denomination from which English coin is numbered, weighing 240 grains troy, being 20 to a shilling and 240 to a pound. It is stated elsewhere that Edward, king of Kent, coined pennies between 860 and 616 A. D. Edward I coined gold pennies. In 1797 copper pennies were issued and bronze ones in 1805, valued at half the copper ones. The United States coined copper cents and half cents about 1793. In 1857 a nickel cent and in 1864 a bronze cent. The word penny is derived from the old German word pfaut, a pledge. It was the only coin current among the Saxons. After Edward III the coin decreased in size. To the lowest coin Robert Morris gave the name of "cent" because it was the hundredth part of a dollar. Its first coinage was in 1793.

Charivari.

Charivari is a French term used to designate a wild tumult and uproar, produced by the beating of pans, kettles and dishes, mingled with whistlings, bawlings, etc., which are got up for the purpose of expressing a general dislike for the person against whom they are directed. During the middle ages a charivari was raised against persons contracting second marriages, especially widows. The people met in it, who were masked, accompanied their hubbub by the singing of satirical and indecent verse, which they continued till the wedding couple had purchased their peace by ransom. In certain country districts of the United States a relic of the charivari is still in vogue, known under various local appellations, as "hornings," etc., in which the newly married couple are treated to a serenade of fishhorns, drums, guns, bells, etc., but not always indicating dislike or disapprobation. This continues until the groom makes his appearance and entertains his self invited guests.

Why the Gallinaze Is Bald.

A black vulture known as a gallinaze is a familiar object in the isthmus of Panama. The inhabitants say that at one time the gallinaze had feathers on its head. According to tradition, after the deluge, Noah, on opening the door of the ark, said to the lobo, "My children, when you see a man coming toward you and stooping down, go away from him. He is getting a stone to throw at you!" "I very good!" exclaimed the gallinaze, "but what if he have one already in his pocket?" Noah was somewhat taken aback at the reply and decided that in future the gallinaze should be born bald in token of its remarkable sagacity.

The Title of Nabob.

The title of nabob belongs to the administrators under the Mogul empire of the separate provinces into which the district of Hindostan was divided. In Europe, and particularly in England, it came to be applied derisively to those who, having made great fortunes in the Indies, returned to their native country, where they lived in oriental splendor.

Pall Mall.

Pall Mall, the famous locality in London, it is said, is so called from the fact that in earlier times it was an alley for tennis playing and took its name from the game by which the mallet was known—pall mell or pall mall.

It was Burns who wrote:

Oh, life, thou art a galling load,
Along a rough, a weary road,
To wretches such as I!

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN ENGINES.

The Foreign Locomotive Lacks the Cowcatcher Because English Railway Tracks Are Never Bothered by Cows—English Cars Almost as Heavy as Our Locomotives—An Interesting Comparison.

WORLD'S FAIR, May 20. —[Special.]— There is one spot in the big Transportation building where a crowd of visitors may always be seen. It is an aisle on one side of which is a typical American railway train, and on the other a train from the London and Northwestern railway of England. A fully equipped English railway train is a novelty, sure enough, and the polite young men kept here for the purpose by the British corporation are busy from early morning till late at night explaining to inquisitive Americans the mysteries and peculiarities of the locomotive and coaches. It is a rather odd appearance that the English train makes in such close proximity to a locomotive and coaches of our own build. The foreign locomotive is without a cowcatcher and sometimes useful appendage known in this country as a "cowcatcher." This is not needed in England because the track—or "permanent way," as the English have it—is never bothered with cows. The line is protected by fences or walls which are cow-proof. The top of the English locomotive does not look much like one of our engines for many reasons. It has no bell, probably for the same reason that it has no cow-catcher, and for the additional reason that there are few if any grade-crossings in England. The streets and roads are all run under or over the permanent way. The foreign locomotive has a whistle, but it is so little like the American whistle that you would never guess its identity. The top of the big boiler has no huge dome, no ornamental work of brass or iron to white the lighting administrator of the aisle keeps along the route over which it runs. It is a locomotive, of course, but it surely doesn't look like one, according to our standard.

"The Queen" is the name of this famed flyer. It is an express engine, of the type used to make the rapid runs for which the road which sends it over here is justly famous. One of these locomotives will take a train of ten or twelve English cars, which are not as heavy as our American coaches, and haul it from London to Aberdeen, a distance of 580 miles, in twelve hours and five minutes, making a dozen or fifteen stops en route. This is very nearly forty miles an hour for the whole distance, and is a fast run—faster than any of the long distance runs in America. For shorter distances, such as between London and Liverpool, London and Edinburg, the express speed is fifty-six miles an hour, and is made many times a day and every day in the year.

All these English locomotives are made on what is known as rigid frames. They have no trucks before or after the drivers. It has been supposed they could not be run over our American roads, with their sharper curves, but this train was brought native from New York to Chicago over the New York Central line, and, as this fact proves, they can go anywhere any railroad can go. The English type would not do on the average American road. Just as soon as it struck a curve it would jump the track. Ordinary curves, that is, curves which are necessary on a hilly road, would be sufficient to get the English locomotive into trouble and perhaps its coaches.

It may well be doubted if an American engineer could be hired to run one of these British machines. He might admire it as a piece of mechanism, but as a machine for making time on the road with the scheduled day—half he would not care to stand with his hand on the throttle without some protection from the weather. That is effected by the fitting of "cabs" to the engines. The only protection offered is a mere upright, through which two holes are cut and glass covered. The engineer, fireman and guard ride on a narrow platform, and call this look-out window a "spectacle," and but the narrowest provision of a roof. In practice the rain and ice know, the hail and the snow must be met by the engineer with their pass as if he were standing in the open air. Of course the fireman or stoker is no better off. Neither driver nor stoker has a seat, either, and they have to do their work all the time. The police and intelligent young men in charge of the train explain that by act of parliament a railway company is limited to two hours as the engineer upon their engine, and that stations and signals are so numerous along the line that engineer could not sit down if he wanted to. The cab is provided for no other use and so the reporters, the company publicity agents claim, for the engineer. While in this country it is often the weather in England is not so severe as to be in this part of America, and engineer why such protection is needed as a cab. Besides, while it is true all American locomotives, it not attached also to the splendid machines of the English build.

Every detail of this English locomotive is made like an American locomotive, except that it has no trucks, but instead three wheels on a side also of the rigid frame pattern. Underneath it is the usual sand box for service in case the Pennsylvania and a few other American roads. It is simply a matter which is let down into a trough between the rails and the motion of the train causes a stream of water to rise and fall within the tank. This is one of the very few railway devices for which American railroads have not yet found a way of saving the time consumed by filling tanks on the old plan was first used by the London and Northwestern road, and was introduced in this country by an English engineer. In return for this improvement we have given our foreign friends the airbrake, the sleeping car, the dining car, the vestibule, the system of checking speed, interlocking signals, the block system and many other important features of modern railroading, some of which are taken kindly to in England and some of which are not.

There are but two cars in this train, and very queer they look without platforms or steps, and with their doors swinging outward. In order to get into one of these coaches as they stand it is necessary to climb up to the level of the carriage. One small graceful and sometimes useful appendage known in this country as a "cowcatcher." ENGLISH AND AMERICAN TRAINS.

to the fact that the runs there are short, the longest journey of a through train being from London to Inverness, nineteen hours.

The other coach of this train is a fine specimen of the typical English railway carriage. It is divided into five compartments, two being first class, one second and the other two third class. There is not a great deal of difference between the fittings of the various classes, though there is considerable difference in the fare charged. First class fares run about 5 cents a mile, second class 3 and third class 2 cents. The charge for a sleeping car berth is only $1.50, no matter what the distance may be. A first class passenger can hold a first-class ticket. In the compartments the seats are heavily upholstered, with high backs, and extend across the seat. A lavatory is attached to each of the compartments except the second and third class compartments, which is designed for passengers making short trips. All the compartments have doors on each side. These doors are locked by gas stoves. In the first class compartment the guard may in cold weather have the use of the ancient hot water bottle.

Travelers by English railways give up their tickets before entering the train, as there are no conductors. The ordinary cars are without attendants, except that there is a guard on the forward carriage and one on the rear carriage. The young men in charge of this train show you how easily one may step the train or call the guard in case of trouble in his compartment. They point out that contrary to the general belief passengers are not locked within their compartments. By lowering the sash in the door a window may be pulled, and this throws on the air-brake and rings a bell which warns both the forward and rear guard that something is wrong. When the train is at the guards rush along to find out what the disturbance is. It strikes the average American visitor that this is a dismal way of traveling, women traveling alone, and that he should feel a little timid about letting his wife or daughter go roaming about the kingdom on one of these compartments.

They have dining cars in England, too, though none are exhibited here. Usually they are run in pairs, and vestibuled to each other. The kitchen and a small dining saloon, while the other has no kitchen but a larger saloon. These saloons are occupied by passengers just as other carriages are, but when they are occupied by the occupants of the dining cars are the only travelers who enjoy the luxury of meals en route. As the passengers from other carriages may be able to get into the dining cars, but it depends upon whether or not there is room. There are also lunch counters at the railway stations. The charge for a full dinner on the dining car is only 50 cents.

Everyone has heard of the cradle and sausage of the English baggage-handling arrangement. Ordinarily, a passenger must see that his luggage is marked with the name of the station at which he is to be put off. Then he must see that it is put in the luggage van and that the name of the station at which he is to alight is written on the slate which hangs on the door of the van. When the train arrives at this station the guard, if he does not forget, will open the door and get the luggage out. Under the passenger must claim his property. The American system of checks has been introduced on some of the English roads, particularly for through travel, but the Britishers do not seem to care much for it. They prefer their good old way.

Visitors to the Transportation building will find this English railway train worthy study. Neither in beauty nor in comfort does it compare with the Royal Blue Baltimore and Ohio fast-flying train which stands on an adjoining track, nor with the luxurious "limited" train shown by the Pennsylvania company. But it is interesting, and its mechanical execution, it is, if possible, superior to the American one.

A BRAKEMAN'S DEATH.

FOUND CRUSHED AND MANGLED LYING BY HIS SIGNAL LAMPS.

John McGowen's Strange Ending—He was one of a Family of Giants.—The Father was a Railroad Man.—Five big Brothers as well Employees on the Railroad Also.—The Family well-known in Plainfield.

FOUND dead by the track. That was the ending of John McGowen, formerly section boss at the Central Railroad station in this city, later a resident of North Branch, N. J.

The story of his death is both sad, mysterious and interesting.

John McGowen was, at the time of his death, a brakeman on a Philadelphia fast freight, of which his brother is the conductor.

The train Saturday night stopped at Somerville, a suburb of Philadelphia.

While some switching was being done John McGowen was sent back with two lamps, one red and one white, to flag an expected express.

Some time later he was found lying beside the track with a big hole in the back of his head, his left arm cut off at shoulder—dead.

How he met his death is a mystery. The cause of death, of course was the train he was sent to signal. His lamps were lit and standing a few feet from him. They performed the duty he was set to do.

Deceased may have attempted to spring on the train before it stopped, slipped and rolled under the wheels.

John McGowen was one of an interesting family. He had five brothers. Four of them are over six feet four inches in height. Deceased himself was over six feet in his stockings. He was about 28 years old and unmarried. Two sisters live in this city. The entire male part of the family have been, or are now, connected with railroads. The father died about a year ago, and was, at the time of his death, a section boss at North Branch.

After the body of John McGowen was found, there was considerable, and, under the circumstances, annoying delay on the part of the county coroner, and the body did not arrive at North Branch until this morning.

The funeral service will be held at North Branch, Wednesday, and interment will be made at Hamotion Junction.

Deceased was a member of the Emerald Benefit Association of this city and was well known and very popular.

FOR A NEW PARISH BUILDING.

Corner Stone Laying at the Evona Chapel Next Saturday.

Next Saturday afternoon, at four o'clock, the cornerstone will be laid of the new Sunday school room and parish building in the rear of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Evona.

In the new building will be also a reading room, library and sewing room for the ladies.

Bishop Scarborough will be present Saturday.

The new building will not be attached to the church, so that it can be used for entertainments, etc.

The reading room and library will fill a long felt want in that vicinity, as many of the parties are employed in the Pond Tool Works and will be glad to have such a place to spend their evenings.

The corner stone is of Westerly granite and is being engraved by Mr. J. E. Townsend, proprietor of the marble and granite works on Somerset street.

The building will cost about $5,000. This figure would be larger but for the generosity of the contractors, who have donated part of their commissions.

ROBBED A TICKET OFFICE

Ernest Jones Arrested in This City for a Robbery at Aldine.

This morning Policeman Corsa, employed by the Central Railroad Company and stationed at the north avenue depot, arrested a boy named Ernest Jones, for breaking into the railroad station at Aldine, between this city and Elizabeth, and stealing a number of tickets. The robbery occurred last Thursday, but Jones could not be found until Policeman Corsa happened to spy him.

Justice Nash sent the boy to Elizabeth to appear before Judge McCormick. The Justice also sent a recommendation that he be sent to the reform school.

The Fair Closed.

The last prizes of the German fair on Somerset street were chanced off last night. Among the lucky ones were Mr. Alfred Jacob of New York who won the toilet set. Mrs. H. Weigman won a large range. Mr. C. Barry won a framed crayon portrait of Prof. F. W. Stines. Prof. W. Schneider of Brooklyn won a sewing machine and Mr. Robert Jahn was the winner of a rocking chair. The articles left were then auctioned off.]

—The Young People's League of the First Baptist church will hold a sociable in the lecture room of the church tonight.

—Thursday afternoon at two o'clock two wagons, three grocery wagons, harness, blankets, etc., will be sold at sheriff's sale at No. 29 West Front street.

BROKE HIS LEG.

Mr. John Meeker Meets with a Serious Accident.

This noon Mr. John Meeker, brother of Street Commissioner Meeker, in stepping from a car, crinted one of his legs in such a manner as to break the bone below the knee. He is a widower and lives with his brother.

He was taken to the house, where Dr Long attended him.

PERSONAL.

Mr. P. M. French has a very painful abcess on his right hand.

Mr. Abraham Smalley of East Front street started to-day to visit his sister who lives in Illinois.

The Hillside Tennis Club has announced its series of Saturday afternoon teas during the coming season.

Mrs. S. P. Simpson of Watchung avenue has issued invitations for an afternoon tea Saturday from four to six o'clock.

The friends of Miss Wood have been invited to meet the Misses Stokes Thursday afternoon, at her home, 11 Franklin place.

At a meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Park avenue Baptist church, Sunday afternoon, Miss F. Hawkins, Miss A. Spangenberg and Miss B. Van Winkle were elected delegates to the county conference to be held in the Second Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, Thursday evening.

The Asbury Park Journal says: "Mr. W. C. Kelly, the Plainfield lumberman, who formerly resided in Asbury Park, was a visitor on Tuesday. Mr. Kelly is largely interested in timber land and steam sawmills through Georgia, Florida, and other States, and to employ his spare time cultivates an orange grove at Crescent city."

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall will give the last lecture in the afternoon course at All Souls' Church to-morrow at four o'clock. Subject: "Influence of Journalism on Mind and Morals," Mrs. Hall read the same paper at the Rev. J. W. Chadwick's church, Brooklyn, before the N. Y. League, the general subject being "Books and Reading."

Mrs. Mary Thickstun, widow of the late David Thickstun, died at her home on Watchung avenue at eleven o'clock last night. Her death was very sudden and unexpected. She had been in very good health of late and was about the house as usual yesterday. At nine o'clock she complained of a choking sensation in the throat and an hour later she died. Death was due in a measure to her advanced age. She was 85 years old. She was an old member of the First Baptist church. Three children survive her—two sons and one daughter. The sons are Mr. John A. Thickstun, the lumber and coal dealer, who resides in North Plainfield, and Mr. Daniel Thickstun, the dentist, of Central avenue. The daughter is Miss Mary Thickstun, who lived home.

A host of the friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. George S. McGinnis gathered at their home on Somerset street, last night in celebration of the twentieth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. McGinnis' marriage. It was a China wedding, but the presents included many valuable and elegant silver gifts. During the evening the guests were favored with several piano and vocal solos, and Mr. J. B. Carney entertained them by impersonating "That Dutchman." The guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Elliott, of Elizabeth; Miss Miss Jarrard, of Pontiac, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Vosseler, the Rev. and Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. Kitchen, Mrs. Colthar. Mrs. Martin, Miss Martin, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Flower, Mr. and Mrs. Stilgitz, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Bosterli, Mr. and Mrs. G. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Hulick, Miss Eick, Miss Bosterli, Mrs. E. C. Cook, Miss Mattie Cook, Miss E. Allen, Miss Carrie Combs, Miss Hettie Polhemus, the Misses Mills, Mrs. Hudson and Messrs. J. Connolly, B. Johnson, C. Colthar. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Mr. Robert M. Field, the second vice-president of the Bowery Savings Bank, died at his home, No. 139 East Forty-fifth street, New York, at seven o'clock last night. He was eighty-five years old, and for many years has been well known in banking circles in New York. For over thirty years Mr. Field had been connected with the bank. At one time he was talked of for president, but declined to be a candidate on account of advancing years. He had frequently been acting president in the absence of Edward Wood, the president. Mr. Field was the oldest official of the bank. For several years he was a director of the Mechanics and Traders' Bank, and had been director in several other business institutions. Of late years, however, he had devoted himself entirely to the business of his office as second vice-president of the Bowery Savings Bank. Mr. Field was also a member of the church of the Messiah, of which he was a trustee for many years, and which he attended regularly. He went down to the bank on Friday last, and seemed at that time to be in his usual health. His death was due to old age more than to any one disease. Mr. Fields third wife, three sons and three daughters, survive him. His children are Robert M. Field, of New York; Samuel B. Field, of East Front street, this city; Lloyd T. Field, of Astoria; Mrs. William A. Morrison, Mrs. W. W. Rowe, of Mount Vernon, and Miss Field. Mr. Field was a man who was respected by all his business associates, and loved by his family.

HALF A TON MISSED HIM.

THOMAS M'CAULEY'S NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

An Accident to a Moulder at Pond's. He Was Taken to Muhlenberg Hospital.—His Injuries Not Serious.

THOMAS F. McCauley a moulder at Pond's Machine Tool Works, had a narrow escape from instant death this morning. As it is he was only slightly injured and will probably be out in a few days.

There is an immense mass of iron in the moulding department used to crush old castings for re-moulding. It is pulled up by steam to a heighth of about fifteen feet and then drops. Its weight is about half a ton.

At half past eleven this "masher" was drawn up. Suddenly something broke and it fell. Fortunately no one was underneath. When it landed it rolled over. Thomas McCauley, who was nearby, had his right leg caught between a partition and the weight, when it rolled over, and the lower half of the leg was pinched. It was thought at first it was terribly crushed.

He was at once taken to Muhlenberg Hospital. His injuries were found to consist only of a severe cut by the shin bone.

BREVITIES.

—The trolley cars did not run to-day, owing to a break in the machinery at the power house.

—A horse attached to a baker wagon ran away this morning near Grant avenue. No damage was done.

—Sergeant Kiely, this morning, arrested Thomas Conway, who was "beastly drunk" and unable to walk.

Another Runaway.

Early this morning Mr. J. A. Patterson's horse became frigutened at an ice wagon and ran away on Front street. It was attached to a phaeton in which the elder Mr. Patterson was seated. The phaeton collided with a tree and upset. Mr. Patterson was severely bruised about the face, but otherwise escaped injury. The animal broke loose from the vehicle. It was caught in front of March, Ayers & Co's paint store.

A NOVEL BICYCLE TOUR.

ONE-LEGGED BEEDLESON TO CROSS THE CONTINENT.

To Ride from San Francisco to New York in 100 Days.—He Started Yesterday.—The Champion One-Legged Rider of America.

The day has passed when a wheelman supplied with the orthodox number of legs can create a sensation by crossing the North American continent on a bicycle, for the reason that Thomas Stevens, Tom Roe, Frank G. Lenz and other hardy riders, have already made the feat somewhat common. But Frank S. Beedleson, who now proposes to attempt the transcontinental ride, will probably attract considerable attention, for the reason that he only possesses a single pedal extremity with which to push a bicycle pedal.

There is a great deal of muscle in Beedleson's leg, and thus far, an unknown quantity of pluck in the remainder of his anatomy, but leg and pluck will be on an equal footing if the young Canastota (N. Y.) wheelman succeeds in riding from Frisco to New York, as he declares he will. Beedleson expects to leave San Francisco, May 23, or a few days later, on his novel trip and arrive in New York City 100 days later. Beedleson has been station agent for the West Shore Railroad at Canastota for some time past, and claims to be the champion one-legged bicyclist of America. He lost one leg on the railroad, but proposes to compel the other one to make fame and fortune for him.

TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD.

MEMORIAL DAY ORDER ISSUED BY THE WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS.

The Observance of This Day is a Duty Cherished by Loyal Hearts in Memory of the Valor of our Fallen Heroes.

NOW that Memorial Day is drawing near the following will be of interest to G. A. R. men and W. R. C. members of this city:

"Time, on its ceaseless wing, brings us once more to another Memorial Day, the observance of whose hallowed rites is a duty and privilege cherished by loyal hearts in memory of the valor of our fallen heroes. Year by year the services of this day have become so dear to the hearts of our loyal people that it is cherished as a sacred season, the choicest in all the calendar of the Grand Army. It brings to mind the days of years ago when loyal men left home and fared forth to the blue, but who to-day are asleep on southern fields or in the northern cemeteries. It is at best a solemn day, but among the busy throng of life we halt upon this day, with sad but grateful remembrances, to pay our tribute to the memory of those who died to preserve us a nation. He who conceived the thought and gave the first memorial order to move, built for a monument to John A. Logan, in his decoration to his comrades, the stands Memorial Day. What more fitting tribute than the beautiful flowers, lovely products of Spring time, in which we cover the earth beneath whose sod the mortal forms of our dead heroes lie. Nature is smiling, with her gentle spring shower and warm sunshine, buds and blossoms which loving hands will weave into our tributes to comrades for their memorial offering and lay upon the green mounds that mark the resting places of their dead comrades. In our girlhood days we gathered flowers to crown the fair queen; to day a holier mission is ours—to deck garlands and twine wreaths on Memorial Day typify our loving remembrance of those who laid down their lives to preserve the Union. The tint of each blossom, the perfume of every flower, will be as an incense upon the air in commoration of the sacrifice laid upon the altar of patriotism where our brave lives were given on battle field or in prison pen. Whether buried beneath ocean's wave or on southern plain, beneath the waving pine forest or the northern pines, or on the prairie's broad expanse, yet will a grateful nation pay its tribute of devotion to their loyalty.

"Aye, come with flying banners and with muffled drums and music sather
With mufled drums and music sather
And then with bowed heads standing,
While we watch the maidens come
To strew our humble offerings on every sacred tomb;
And while the fires of sorrow burn in many a heaving breast
And hearts less used to grief bow down in speechless agony,
Oh, will there not be one earnest prayer arise to every tongue—
'God give to us such men as these, whatever may befall!'

The members of the Woman's Relief Corps should see that flowers are provided for the decoration of the soldiers' graves within their reach. Let each corps be especially helpful to the Post in which they meet. In this way that graves are gathered and prepared for the decoration of each veteran's grave. All over the land, in hospital and cemeteries lie thousands of our brave boys with the inscription, "Unknown," and over each one of these mounds lies somebody's loved one. Let the choicest garlands be given to them. Let the tribute paid to the unknown dead be erected in every cemetery, and at its base and about its columns let flowers and wreaths be placed. "Killed at Chickamauga," "Starved in Andersonville," "Buried in an Unknown Grave at Sea," "Died in Rebel Prison," are wondering youth of to-day mute lessons of anguish never to be forgotten and are inspired only by love of loyalty. To this end let the children be given a part in Decoration Day.

Let the brave women who have fallen also be remembered. The army nurse in loyalty cared in hospital and field for the dead and wounded soldiers, and let us keep her in memory. Of our members many have gone to receive the crown. Their chairs are vacant around our altar. Let us place our tribute of love upon their graves in memory of their work for us in the Fraternity.

Throughout the north in every city, village and town a loyal, patriotic people join the Grand Army, Woman's Relief Corps, and Sons of Veterans in paying homage to our nation's defenders. Few who have never visited the southern cemeteries can realize the magnitude of the labor of love borne by the small posts of the Grand Army in this part of our country. Their patriotic fealty moved with no sympathetic response from their neighbors, and their only especially they must depend for their memorial day surroundings in being met by the outburst of devotion to the memory of the confederate chieftain whose remains are to be borne in pomp to Richmond and by the people of Chattanooga and his fame extolled at the very hour when the loyal men and women of the south will be decorating the graves of our dead. The circular letter accompanying this general order from Phil Sheridan Post, Richmond, Va., addressed to every loyal heart and explains their needs. Its appeal has been received at National headquarters from Chattanooga Post, who not only see that 15,000 graves of our Union soldiers in that city are decorated with flowers and a flag placed above them but aid in sending decoration to the graves on Andersonville River and others having no post nearer than twenty miles away. Also an appeal from Salisbury, N. C., Greensboro, N. C., Whitesmile, of Virginia and North Carolina, asking contributions, and from the Department of Texas.

I believe few realize the magnitude of this work. There are many Posts there who regardless of the surroundings keep well the solemn trust. The graves of Andersonville stand as a monument of all the horrors in that fearful chapter of history. As over each grave waves the flag of our country, emblem of liberty bought and died, what a lesson of patriotism and loyalty is taught each year! Never, until standing in the presence of those vast acres of the dead, have I been able to realize the terrible cost of saving the nation and the great need of our extending the help from the north in decorating these graves. I most earnestly appeal to every member of the Order, upon this Columbian year, to put forth an extra effort to send flags and funds to these southern Posts. If your treasury is not in a condition to make an appropriation hold a social or entertainment for this special purpose, in order that the proceeds may reach them in time for use in services this year.

When the last soldier shall have answered to the roll call above, taps shall have been sounded and lights are out, when there is no longer even one comrade left to plant the flag and strew flowers, then will the members of the Woman's Relief Corps, Sons and Daughters of Veterans, and a loyal nation still perpetuate their memory and keep green their graves.

Corps chaplains will promptly report on the Memorial Day blanks to the Department Chaplain who will consolidate the same and forward without delay to the National Chaplain in order that she may make full report to the National Convention.

By command of
MARGARET RAY WICKINS,
National President.
FLORA PRESTON HOSBIE,
National Secretary.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

SUMMER IS HERE.

Probably Have a Thunder Storm This Evening.

New York, May 23d, (Special.)—At 10 o'clock this morning the official thermometer registered 76 deg. At the same hour on last Sunday it registered only 71 deg.

May 23 in last year did not compare with to day. At 10 o'clock a. m., on that day it was only 71 deg., while the highest temperature on that day was 75 deg.

The warmest May 23 was in 1888, 86 deg. was registered.

There will be thunder showers this evening, followed by cooler weather to-morrow.

The thermometer was at the freezing point at North Platte and Dodd City, Kan.

The heat-wave at present with us will practically remain till the end of August. It is the first real sign of Summer.

The official temperature at 11.59 o'clock this morning was 81 deg., and at noon 18 was 84 deg.

KILLED BY A CYCLONE.

Lives Lost and Buildings Wrecked this Morning.

CLEVELAND, May 23.—A cyclone with the biggest rain on record struck Cleveland at 4.30 this morning. Trees, signs and wires were blown down in every direction. Two men were killed.

LOUISVILLE, May 23, (Special.)—Again the wind has worked its will upon Louisville. Dwellings are ruined, streets are filled with the wreckage of roofs, with broken and uprooted trees, with remnants of walls and twisted wires. No lives are known to be lost, and few of the injuries received are serious.

EDITORIAL NOTES

So Glad to Find It Out.

If you were walking along the road some day and should find a bare, bald skull lying there, how would you know whether it was a man's skull or a woman's? A learned doctor has recently been at pains to tell us, and we shall do our best in our weak way to give the information to our readers. In addition, however, if you do not quite understand, don't blame us. If it is a woman's skull, we are told that its occipital region will be larger relatively than if it was a man's, likewise the superior mesial part of its forehead. But Dr. Thiem-Cottbus publishes in the Archiv fuer Klinische Chirurgie a dead sure test which means yet more. You can tell the sex of a skull from the relative height of the ostympanicum, which forms the dorsal part of the posterior wall on the glenoid or socket of the lower jaw bone and closes in the bony meatus of the ear.

Now, the ostympanicum rises perpendicularly from the petrous portion of the temporal bone posteriorly—that is, we think this is what the learned doctor thinks he means to say. In spite, however, of the fact that the ostympanicum rises perpendicularly from the petrous portion of the temporal bone posteriorly, we are informed in the next sentence that in a woman's skull it inclines backward at about half the height of the mastoid process in a woman, and not so far in man. If therefore your ostympanicum, which rises perpendicularly, inclines backward noticeably, then you are a woman; if not so much, then you are a man. Finally note the most important difference of all: In a man the fossa-tympanico-stylo-mastoidea is small, and it is impossible for the condyloid process to slip over the posterior wall of the glenoid cavity. Woman's skull, on the other hand, has a thundering great big fossa-tympanico-stylo-mastoidea. We always knew there was something wrong with women.

The Born Criminal.

The criminal tendency is sometimes born into the individual; at other times it is educated into him. Children among the criminal classes can scarcely become honest and respectable if they would, so thoroughly are they cowed and persecuted when they show any disposition toward honesty, good feeling and industry.

Those who have made a study of the physical characteristics of convicts have found that there is certainly a type of born criminal. Persons belonging to it have powerful jaws, small eyes, projecting cheek bones and small, retreating foreheads. Women of the criminal type have big, ill shaped ears and mouths, small eyes and large, pointed noses and are very masculine in appearance. This goes to show that women are morally better than men; for when they are criminals they look like men.

Deformities and lack of physical symmetry are much more characteristic of criminals than of ordinary persons. Many have deformed and unsymmetrical ears, cross eyes and squinting eyes and crooked noses. These born physical deformities are twice as frequent in criminal children as in other children. Murderers have large bones, thieves small ones, and the criminal is generally a person of feeble bodily constitution as well as of dull intellect, although he may have a large share of animal cunning. It is interesting to learn that poisoners are apt to be well educated and to have a pleasing, persuasive address.

At a meeting called in Philadelphia to consider the increase of crime among colored people some interesting facts and figures as well as "views" were advanced. Judge Gordon had mentioned the increase of crime in his address he made to the grand jury some time since. In his capacity of judge and lawyer he had noticed the large number of criminals among negroes—criminals of a violent and desperate character. At the meeting of colored people to consider the matter their white brethren were present and gave them good advice liberally. A Jewish rabbi was among the speakers. Judge Gordon advised the negro to move away from slum quarters in towns and cities, to become mechanics, and not depend too much on white people. That sounds well. But suppose negro men should become carpenters, masons and machinists, would white mechanics take them into their trades unions and be willing to work alongside of them? And if they would not, what then would become of the skilled negro mechanics?

Events that are at the time most disastrous prove often only the beginning of a greater prosperity. It is true of individual lives and affairs, of nations and of cities. The Chicago fire was the beginning of a greater development for that city than its inhabitants dreamed of before they were burned out. The fire only cleared the ground for grand, new structures. We look back now and find that the civil war was the beginning of this republic's greatest advancement to power and prosperity. We are reminded of those facts by the recent announcement that Johnstown, Pa., utterly wrecked by the flood of four years ago, has not only been rebuilt on a larger, handsomer scale, gaining back all its former population, but it has actually increased in population 6,000 since the disaster.

FASTEST IN THE WORLD

The Cruiser New York Is the Pride of the Navy.

MADE A RECORD OF 21.09 KNOTS.

This Speed Has Never Been Equalled by a Heavily Armored Cruiser of Any Other Navy—Even This May Be Increased by Allowances For Current.

BOSTON, May 23.—Down off Eastern point light was anchored this morning the fastest armored cruiser in the world. This was the New York. This record she made, when, with forward torpedo tubes buried deep in the sea and the water pushed almost as high as her forecastle, she steamed across the line, breaking the world's record and winning for her builders $200,000, the largest premium ever paid in any country.

When 21 knots was predicted as the speed for the new cruiser, many hoped, but few believed, that her engines would ever be able to drive such an immense mass of steel through the water at this rate. When she crossed the line, however, with a speed of 21.09 through the water, the enthusiasm was intense.

Trimmed For Action.

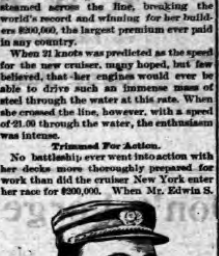
No battleship ever went into action with her decks more thoroughly prepared for work than did the cruiser New York enter her race for $200,000. When Mr. Edwin S.



CAPTAIN R. W. SAEGANT.

Cramp looked out across the water and saw the sea as smooth as the traditional mill pond and the wind blowing light from the northwest there was a sprinkle in his bright eyes.

The New York went over the line, making 180 revolutions a minute. The steam power was then 165 pounds to the square inch, and the vessel working a trifle over 20 knots. In a few minutes the revolutions jumped up to 185 and the steam to 170 pounds, both of which were held throughout the entire trip.

The great furnace began to roar and immense lumps of burning coal were driven out of the funnel by the powerful blowers. Thick and fleecy fell until the surrounding decks looked like the land at the base of a volcano. One of the sparks fell upon a canvas boat cover and igniting it caused quite a sensation. The flames were quickly extinguished, however, without any serious damage. On flew the great cruiser, increasing her speed at every jump.

The entire course was 41.65 nautical miles, which was steamed over twice. On the first run the speed was 20.83 knots and the second 21.35, the difference being due to the tide, which was against the vessel on the trip north.

The average of these speeds gives 21.09 knots, and a possibility of its being greater when the true current correction is added. On the whole the record is a triumph for American skill and genius and will stand pre-eminent for some until some of our new warships beat it.

The Blake Nowhere.

Yesterday's performance off the Massachusett's coast will be heard from one end of Europe to the other, for it places the United States in the van among the navies of the world and gives to her only the most powerful but the swiftest armored cruising vessel. There has been great enthusiasm in England over the performances of the cruisers Blake and Blenheim, some claiming that the latter has attained a speed of 23 knots.

In the first place those vessels are not armored, but simply protected by 4-inch decks over machinery and boilers. Even equal speed from them, therefore, would be nothing remarkable against a vessel carrying in addition to a 6-inch protective deck a 9-inch side belt and two turrets, each 11 inches thick. In the second place neither of these vessels has had an official trial over a measured course. The Blake broke down from leaky boilers after reaching a speed of 19.7 knots in short water and developing only 12,000 horse-power, while the Blenheim was gauged only by a patent log, which, it is claimed, indicated 22½ knots.

This same instrument on board the New York showed a speed of 23 knots, and the difference between that and the actual distance covered is a proof of how reliable patent logs are as official tests.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The navy department received a telegram from Admiral George E. Belknap dated Gloucester, Mass., announcing that the trial trip of the New York had been successful. The dispatch is as follows:

Successful speed trial of the New York. Speed approximately calculated at 21 1-10 knots. Correction for the tidal influences may change this a little. Average revolutions about 185. Machinery worked beautifully. All conditions excellent.

Spaulding a Catholic Again.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The Rev. James Field Spaulding, D. D., the Protestant Episcopal clergyman from Massachusetts, who about a year ago renounced the creed of his fathers, and joined the Catholic church and some months afterward returned to his former affiliations, has once more, it is said, espoused Catholicism.

Trying to Save Fitzhum.

BUFFALO, May 23.—In the supreme court Justice Lewis denied the motion for a new trial made by Murderer Fitzhum's attorneys. Fitzhum's attorneys will apply to the governor today for a reprieve and will then use the communications of sentence.

An Unofficial Dinner.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The Infanta Eulalie attended an unofficial dinner tendered her by Hon. J. L. M. Curry, ex-minister to Spain and Mrs. Curry.

Liquor and Jealousy.

DAYTON, O., May 23.—Charles H. Westbeer, crazed by liquor and jealousy, killed his wife and then himself.

NATIONAL BANK IN TROUBLE.

Connected With Ziegler Dwiggin's Colombia Bank of Chicago.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Today National Bank Examiner William H. Kimball took charge of the National Bank of Deposit, which went into liquidation yesterday. The clearing house committee, after examining the assets of the National Bank of Deposit, were of the unanimous opinion that the bank should go into liquidation. The committee expressed the opinion that in all probability the depositors would be paid in full.

President Lewis E. Ransom of the Bank of Deposit said:

Our bank was not a Wall street bank. It carried largely the accounts of other banks. Two weeks ago the banks in the interior began to withdraw their balances and then the Seaboard bank, without notification refused to longer clear for us. We have a balance of $80,000 with the Seaboard. May 1 we had deposits of $1,300,000. Yesterday our deposits were $500,000. Our capital is $500,000, our surplus $200,000. Our assets consist of the best commercial paper which cannot be at once realized on. We can pay depositors in full and should have done so short time ago the stock sold at 125. Ziegler Dwiggins of Chicago had no interest in the bank nor any option for its purchase.

The report of the clearing house committee implied that the capital, surplus and individual deposits had been used up.

Such is the story in circulation was that the bank was carrying a good deal of Dwiggin's paper. It was the correspondent of the suspended Columbia bank of Chicago, one of the Dwiggins's chain of banks, which are now in a financial tangle.

Methodists Boycott the Fair.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The Methodist preachers of New York, Brooklyn and vicinity resolved to withdraw the Methodist exhibit at the World's fair, because of the proposed Sunday opening. They voted to instruct the agents of the Methodist Book Concern at Chicago to close the premises as soon as the doors of the World's fair are thrown open on Sundays. According to Dr. Landon and the several clergymen who are with him in this matter, the object of the resolution was the boycotting of the World's fair by Methodists.

ROCHESTER, May 23.—All the Methodist ministers of this section of the state met in the Y. M. C. A. building here and passed resolutions condemning the local managers of the Chicago exposition for their proposition to open the exposition grounds on Sunday. They strongly intimated the probability of a boycott of the fair by the Methodist church.

Rebellious Priests Are Known.

JERSEY CITY, May 23.—Father Hennessy of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church of this city gave out a story in relation to Archbishop Satolli's recent visit to Hoboken and West Hoboken. He said that he knew the names of the priests who had put their false and slanderous stories in circulation, but he was not prepared at present to divulge them. The names had been sent to the pastor, who was absolutely able to deal with them as they deserved. He said there were no rebellious priests in Newark or Jersey City. His own relations with Bishop Wigger were pleasant.

Graves to Have a New Judge.

DENVER, May 23.—The case of Dr. Graves for the murder of Mrs. Barnaby came before Judge Rising on a motion for a change of venue. As this motion would have taken the case to Colorado Springs it was withdrawn by Dr. Graves' attorneys, and Judge Rising, who had declined to try the case again, transferred it to Judge Burns' court.

Accommodations For Women Convicts.

ALBANY, May 23.—Under a law passed by the last legislature the asylum for insane criminals at Auburn has been transformed into a state prison for women convicts of the state who are now confined in county penitentiaries. The prison is now ready for occupancy and has accommodations for 250 people.

DID HARRIS TRY SUICIDE

A Report That He Almost Cheated the Executioner.

POISON NEARLY DID ITS WORK.

Walked Up and Down All Day the Saturday Before He Went to the Chair to Be Kept Alive—The Fact Concealed From the Warden.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The World publishes a story to the effect that Carlyle Harris almost succeeded in committing suicide on the day before his execution. The story is dated Sing Sing, and is as follows:

It has just been admitted, according to reliable authority, that Carlyle W. Harris nearly succeeded in escaping ignominious death as an executed murderer on that last Sunday he spent on earth. According to the information, Harris succeeded in getting a poisonous dose of morphine just before the day set for his execution, and it acquiest the most heroic treatment to keep him alive through that last Sunday, the day before his legal killing.

That was why Messrs. Martin Mullin, James Brown and Rosenbaum McCann were removed from the death watch the night of Sunday and three new men put in their place by Warden Durston.

Dr. Irvine Mantly Beard said:

Harris' keepers noticed that he was walking queerly, and a little after 7 o'clock Sunday morning, May 7, they sent for Principal Keeper Connaughton. Connaughton was alarmed at Harris' condition, and sent a messenger posthaste out of the prison and up the hill to the house of the prison physician, Dr. Irvine, at Mapleplace. Dr. Irvine was still abed, but dressed hastily and went to the prison.

He went with an anxious face to the deathhouse and found Harris suffering from an overdose of some narcotic. The usual remedies and antidotes were brought into play, but the drug had got a good start, and it required the strongest treatment to prevent Harris from sinking into the coma which ends in death, as it did with his poor victim, his schoolgirl wife, Mary Helen Nellson, in Brooklyn.

The main duty of the death watch on that Sunday was to march the condemned prisoner up and down the corridor outside the row of cells to strive to keep him awake.

Dr. Irvine was in almost constant attendance. The offices of Warden Durston and Clerk John Millen were crowded with newspaper reporters and the arriving witnesses of the next day's execution.

To prevent the leaking of any suspicion among them of the fight with premature death that was going on in the chamber of the condemned man, Dr. Irvine occasionally came from the prison depths to these offices, remaining long enough each time to chat with two or three of those assembled there. But it is recalled now that the fine face of the physician was flushed and troubled, that he seemed to be absentminded.

The Fight Against Death.

After a little he would return again to the patient in the deathhouse, for Harris must not be permitted to die till those charged with the duty of killing him had performed that duty.

It was a hard fight—that of keeping Harris alive for the executioner—and it was not till 2 o'clock in the afternoon that Dr. Irvine felt sure of his patient.

He had hardly seated himself to the mid-afternoon Sunday dinner at his home when he was called back to the prison by a messenger sent to tell him that Harris seemed to be sinking into that second lethargy which is one of the characteristics of narcotic poisoning.

Again the physician hastened to the prison and passed through the assembly of visitors into the deathhouse, and from this time on till evening all his energies were bent to keep Carl Harris from cheating justice and escaping by dying from narcotic poisoning.

How Harris procured the drug that came so near preventing the state of New York from killing him is a mystery. An investigation seems to have failed in the slightest degree to point out to Harris, and the three suspected keepers, Mullin, Maher and McLean, have been restored to their posts.

The Borrowed Flour Was Poisoned.

NAPLES, N. Y., May 23.—The arrest of Mrs. Carrie Leach of this place on Saturday has created a sensation. Frank W. Clark and Mrs. Leach's husband are farmers and their families are neighbors. Over a year ago the Clark family were taken suddenly ill and came near dying. There were evidences of arsenical poisoning, and later developments showed that the illness resulted from eating biscuits made from flour borrowed from Mrs. Leach. Samples of the flour were taken to Rochester and tested to contain liberal quantities of arsenic. It is now shown that there was a quarrel existing between the two families at the time.

Two Were Drowned.

NEW HAVEN, May 23.—A sailboat carrying H. W. Holcomb, nephew of ex-Mayor Holcomb; Burt Holt, a son of A. S. Holt, and a son of C. L. Webb, all of this city, capsized in a squall. Holcomb and Holt failed to swim to the lighthouse, but sank. Young Webb clung to the boat for three hours, when he was seen from the lighthouse and rescued.

Farnham Post Disbanded.

ALBANY, May 23.—Commander Joseph P. Cleary of the state department of the Grand Army of the Republic has issued an order disbanding Noah L. Farnham post of New York city, which has a membership of 200, for a violation of the rules of the organization.

Bookmakers Beat De Lacey.

TRENTON, May 23.—Justice Van Sickle of the supreme court filed a memorandum in the suits brought by Peter De Lacey against the pool sellers, which completely knocks De Lacey and his followers out of court.

Saloons Destroyed By a Mob.

ELWOOD, Ind., May 23.—The prohibition element of Frankton banded together and destroyed the saloons that had sprung into existence in the last few months. Three of the leaders of the mob were arrested.

Italian Cabinet Reconstructed.

ROME, May 23.—Signor Giolitti has agreed to reconstruct the Italian cabinet, with Senator Gagliardo as minister of finance, and Senator Canonico as minister of justice.

Arrested For Catching Shad.

Posse After Thieving Indians.

GAINESVILLE, Tex., May 23.—A bold and wholesale robbery occurred last night from Stoneburg, Montague county. An establishment carrying merchandise was closed by attachments. The next night the store was robbed, and the entire stock of goods carried away on pack mules. A posse of citizens tracked the mules into the Indian territory. The tracks indicate that the robbers were white. The party in pursuit are well armed and mounted in anticipation of a bloody battle.

Whisky Trust Affairs.

The Operation Successful.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The Rev. Dr. John R. Paxton, pastor of the West Presbyterian church in West Forty-second street, underwent an operation at the Presbyterian hospital. There was no anxiety as to the outcome on the part of the surgeons as they considered it a small operation. Dr. Paxton will be out in about a week.

Reading Reduces Wages.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., May 24.—In pursuance of the economic policy of the Reading receivers in connection with President Harris the first cut in wages announced here for years has been ordered, but applies only to those who do not come under the regular established $2.50 basis.

Suffocated In Mud.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 23.—The body of Mark Gibbons, a brickyard employee near Fishkill Landing, was found in a mudhole near the railroad track at that place. It is supposed the man in his bewilderment got into the swamp and was suffocated in the mud.

Blown Up Purposely.

HAVERSTRAW, N. Y., May 23.—An old tank in the works of the Climax Dynamite company, near this place, which had become useless, was blown up by dynamite, causing the report to be published that the dynamite works had been blown up.

Another Cloakmakers' Strike.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Three hundred cloakmakers in the employ of Julius Stein & Co., 515 Broadway, are on a strike for an increase of wages, a recognition of the Cloakmakers' union and less stringent shop rules.

REBELS WIN THE BATTLE!

The Revolutionists In Nicaragua Successful Again.

GOVERNMENT FORCES RETREAT.

The Decisive Battle Was Hotly Contested. What Led to President Zacasa's Downfall—The Situation of the Republic Up to Date.

GALVESTON, May 23.—News comes from Granada, Nicaragua, that the revolutionists have won the day. The revolutionary soldiers stood bravely against the attack of Zacasa's soldiers and won the battle, which is admitted to be the turning point of the revolution.

As the government army advanced toward Massaya the artillery of the insurgents opened fire. The advance was temporarily checked, but the columns were reformed and the assault was renewed with vigor and determination.

The charge was ineffective. The insurgent troops pushed bravely into the struggle, and after a hot fight forced the government soldiers to retire.

The revolutionists are rejoicing over their victory and predict an early overthrow of Zacasa.

The Political Situation.

There has been no revolution worthy of the name in Nicaragua since 1856 until the present outbreak. The war of Walker and his filibusters has given them food for reflection. The energetic adventurer was first called to Nicaragua by revolutionists in the city of Leon, and since his time no revolution of any consequence has taken place, for the election rows between Granadinos and Leoneses or the occasional sanguinary pronunciamentos of the liberal faction when they advocated Central American union, were words, not deeds.

Parties innumerable in Nicaragua have no further significance but attachment to the petty ambition of a chieftain. They are mere names which practically but little difference in their platforms.

The chief political parties are the Conservadores and the Liberals. The Conservadores are again divided into the Conservadores proper and Conservadores Progresistos, in the latter division being the bright and wealthy men of the republic. There were numerous subdivisions, like the Cachos, who were opposed to Zacaza's government, and the Iglesieros, who were followers of Nayas, but who were soon forgotten.

The Liberals under the leadership of Santos Zolaya are great advocates of Central American union, but some subdivisions of them, like the Liberals Rojos or "red" Liberals, with men like Jose D. Gomez at their head, are simply professional disturbers or will anarchists.

Zavala, the leader of the present revolutionists, belongs to the Progresistas, as do most of the intelligent and well to do citizens of the republic. In the present crisis the Iglesieros, or church party, and the Liberals joined Zavala against the existing authorities, and there is but one rallying cry, "Abajo Zacasa!" or "Down with Zacasa!"

Vanity Led to His Fall.

Zacaza is a very vain man, and on succeeding to the presidency soon had his head turned. He made the mistake of estranging himself with men of small caliber, whose main interest, with few exceptions, was personal gain.

It was in August, 1893, that Zacaza made a fatal blunder. He exiled a number of the most prominent and influential men in the republic, among them being ex-President Zavala, Leocadio Rivas, editor of the best daily newspaper in Nicaragua. Enrique Guzman, a very able writer, who is the son of ex-President Fernando Guzman and brother of the present Nicaraguan minister at Washington. Many other well known men were ordered to leave the country. In an unfortunate struggle at the time two or three of these were killed, among them Jose Pasos, a man widely known throughout the republic.

The patience of a people has its limits in Nicaragua as well as elsewhere and retribution was bound to follow the wanton acts of Zacaza. Before the expiration of his term of office ad interim, Zacaza was determined to be elected president for a full term, and accordingly took all the means known to the wily politician in Spanish American countries to achieve his ends.

He Saw the Bowery.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Walter J. Chanler, the brother-in-law of Amelie Rives, left his apartments in the Everett House to gather information for a story on the lights and shadows of the Bowery. He succeeded beyond his most sanguine expectations. He reached the Everett House at 3 a. m. in a condition which accounted the fact that he had seen the Bowery in its most brilliant lights. He said he had been robbed and had been in a fight with the man who did the robbing. He made no complaint to the police and is now in Tuxedo.

Denies That He Was Bribed.

FALL RIVER, Mass., May 23.—The work of prosecuting illegal liquor sellers has been so relaxed during the past two or three days that stories intimating bribery of the mayor, board of aldermen and city marshal have been freely circulated. At a meeting of the aldermen Mayor Coughlin made a powerful speech denying the insinuation that he had been bribed, and called upon the board to support him in the enforcement of the no license law.

Bank Examiner Knocked Him Down.

ST. PAUL, May 23.—On Tenth street here State Bank Examiner Kenyon knocked down John R. Burke, representing several eastern financial institutions. Mr. Kenyon was temporarily placed under arrest, but allowed to go on his own recognizance. Burke said he had charged Kenyon with receiving money from Minneapolis banks for making reports showing them to be in good financial standing when he knew some of them to be insolvent.

Sewing Machine Company In Trouble.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The Astor Place bank has obtained two attachments against the Domestic Sewing Machine company. The great concern's offices are at Broadway and Fourteenth street. The attachments aggregate $67,853.

Booth to Go to the Seaside.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Mr. Booth will be removed as soon as his condition permits to the cottage of his son-in-law, Dr. Ignatius Grossman, at Narragansett, where it is hoped the sea air will hasten his convalescence.

Spaniards Serenaded the Mayor.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The Spanish band which came over with the Infanta Eulalie serenaded Mayor Gilroy at the city hall.

BLOCKED THE BRIDGE.

A Young Man Afflicted With Hydrophobia Kept a Crowd at Bay.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Howling, frothing at the mouth and snapping like a ferocious dog at every one who came within his reach, a young man kept back a crowd for an hour on the northern end of the Third avenue bridge across the Harlem. He was slim in build, not at all formidable in his appearance, but the paroxysms of the dreaded disease, hydrophobia, made him terrible to the surging mass of wayfarers.

No one dared to come very near the maddened boy. Those that were the nearest shrank in horror stricken fear when he would turn glaring toward them and made savage attempts to fly at them.

The bridge became blocked, the crowd making the roadway impassable even for cars and trucks. Three policemen struggled with the man before he could be forced into an ambulance and taken away to the hospital.

The young man was John C. Brassington, who is employed as an agent by a safe company in Harlem and who lives with his father's family at Mount Vernon, N. Y. The physicians at Harlem hospital say the case has every appearance of hydrophobia and think he will not recover.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

Connecticut—R. E. Clarke, Higganum.

New York—S. C. Churchwell, Boiceville. Theodore Gross, Bohemia; G. B. Turnbull, Deer Park; Henry Bohenbauer, Glenhole Station; Gustav Wilson, Hollis; J. F. Kelly, Kings Park; Miss Helen Mooney, Manseth; Francis S. Miller, Marrick; J. W. Skinner, Miller's Mills; Sarah A. Sammis, Mineola; R. Devello Jones, Newville; Abram Van Nostrand, Seaford.

Pennsylvania—Collins Dean, Annville; A. C. Clugston, Doylesburg.

Minister In a Shooting Affray.

VERSAILLES, Ky., May 23.—John Ball, a prominent horseman, his wife and Mr. Curry of New York, were standing on the lawn of Ball's country place, when two negroes—Sanford Howard of Lexington and Rev. Stephen W. Daugherty, pastor of the Colored Baptist church of Georgetown, who were passing in a buggy, shot at them. Ball and Curry gave chase to the negroes. Ball fired five shots, three of which struck Daugherty and resulted in his death. Howard escaped. There is great excitement here. The negro killed was held in high esteem by his race.

Presents From the Czar.

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—The Russian minister in a message from Washington to Francis B. Reeves asks that gentleman and Colonel Biddle and Rudolph Blankenburg to meet him on the Russian flagship Dimitri Donskno at this port next Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, when he will present them with souvenirs in the name of the czar. Messrs. Reeves, Biddle and Blankenburg visited Russia last year during the famine and superintended the distribution of the supplies sent by the citizens of Philadelphia on the steamers Indiana and Missouri.

Killed the Operator.

CLARION, Pa., May 23.—W. Crawford, the night operator at Foxburg, on the Allegheny Valley road, was assaulted by a gang of murderers. He was badly beaten and died from his injuries. Two of his assailants, Mock and McCann, have been lodged in Clarion jail on a charge of murder. Great excitement prevails in the town, and there was much talk of lynching when Crawford's death was announced.

The Dress of Wedding Guests.

Calling costumes are worn by guests at morning weddings, but all fabrics which are called, whether they take place at 12 o'clock, at 1 or at 3:30, the hours now most fashionable. The bride's mother wears silk in gray bengaline, or satin of a pinkish pearl tint lightly brocaded, the round waist elaborately trimmed with lace, the skirt not too full and just touching the floor, the whole completed by an extremely small bonnet of white guipure and flowers, with a white net veil and pearl colored gloves. She carries a bouquet of several rows of pearls and a square brooch of emeralds and diamonds worn to fasten the belt were the jewels of a rich pearl satin costume.

Younger matrons of the family, the bride's sisters and cousins, wear the lightest spring toilets, and with their children in white muslin frocks or boys in sailor suits come trooping into church. Just before the stately mother of the bride arrives, Gray is again a favorite with these elegant young women, but is always modified very much in color, as a waist and sleeves of pink chiffon trimmed with white guipure, and a ruffled skirt of gray taffeta, or a pale blue bodice of silver embroidered gauze with skirt of gray dotted silk, the tiny bonnet a mere border of white guipure, with a plus of colored stones, algrets and nestling arrangements that spoil on their stems.—Harper's Bazar.

Fashion's Echoes.

Coats are almost impossible while sleeves remain so large. The only kind of bodice they can be be worn with is a silk blouse.

A buttercup tint is seen among gloves for evening wear, and a good deal of tan.

Gray and white gloves are stitched with black; brown, tan and beaver are stitched with white.

New black parasols are lined with rainbow silks.

The crapy stuffs now to be worn are becoming very dressy.

LIFE IN CORSICA.

Dress and Customs of the Natives of the Old Mistress Town of Ajaccio.

Every boy and girl old enough to read this page knows of course that Napoleon I was a Corsican and that he was born at Ajaccio, the capital. They may not know, however, much about the daily life led in those modern times in this old, old town, around which cluster so many historic associations.

Very observful is the outward aspect of the town, with sycamores and acacias and palm trees planted about the streets and squares and cafes and shady seats and innumerable children playing on the pavements. Bright hued prints are much in vogue in their attire, but there is nothing specially characteristic in Corsican dress save perhaps the shady flat straw hats of the women, like inverted plates. These, however, are often discarded for a handkerchief tied under the chin. Wonderful to see is the ease and security with they poise upon their heads heavy jars of earthenware and brass full of water from the fountains. The men have good dark suits of corduroy, but work in their light shirt sleeves, with crimson sashes round the waist.

As for the houses—mostly let in flats—the tall, square blocks are far from beautiful, and the narrow streets, though full of animated pictures of family life, are very, very dirty. The mules and horses in the carts, wearing bells more musical usually than those of Italy, are directed chiefly by the voice of the driver and in many instances have no driving reins, and the slender, active little horses in the carriages cover long distances with willing speed. There is great variety in the drives around Ajaccio, and whether you choose to follow the shore lines or mount the hills above the town the ever changing combinations of granite peaks and sunny bays and the richness of the vegetation give unfailing pleasure. Here are olive yards, watered gardens of lemon and citron, rows of eucalyptus, prickly pear, fig trees and the cluster pine growing by the roadside. Here and there the dark foliage of ilex or the striped trunk of a cork oak, and on the hillside the beautiful brushwood of rare shrubs, myrtle and cistus, sarsaparilla and lentisk, tree heath and arbutus, which in their season are a mass of blossom.

FOR DECORATION DAY.

PREPARATION FOR ITS OBSERVANCE NEXT TUESDAY.

The Appeal from the Memorial Detail.—Timely Articles from the Pen of Col. Mason W. Tyler and Private Joseph T. Dunham.

JUST two, there are, of purely American holidays—Fourth of July and Decoration Day. The former signalizes our birth as an independent nation, and the latter celebrates the overthrow and defeat of an attempt at the nation's life in the interest of human slavery. The struggle began with our birth as a nation, and culminated in a war that cost hundreds of, thousands of lives and millions of dollars in treasure. But, by the results of that war, the nation was founded upon principles of eternal justice and the sacredness of manhood. This is the event celebrated by Decoration Day. We meet to mourn the fallen and to canonize the heroism that achieved such great results. In speaking of what our soldiers did, Mr. Emerson has said: "The duty so severe has been discharged and with such immense results of good, lifting private sacrifice to the sublime, that, though the cannon volleys have a sound of funeral echoes, they can not bear through them the benedictions of their country and mankind."

In Plainfield this year the preparations for the celebration of the day have been made by a committee selected from the two Grand Army Posts located in this city. The morning will be devoted to strewing the graves of our dead heroes with flowers, and in the afternoon a memorial service will be held in Stillman Music Hall, at which addresses will be made by the Mayors of the City of Plainfield and of the Borough of North Plainfield, and an oration delivered by the Rev. Calvin Stebbins, who is settled over one of the most intelligent parishes in the State of Massachusetts. Mr. Stebbins is a man of unusual intellectual force and has among his parishioners such men as Senator Hoar of Massachusetts, and by his broad sympathies and kind and genial nature, has won for his church in Worcester something of the same position that the "Church around the Corner" has in New York among those not connected with any particular denomination.

The Memorial Service will also be made interesting by appropriate music in the shape of quartette singing and chorus singing by children, and the ladies Relief Corps of the Grand Army post, who have in charge the decoration of the hall, and training of the children, will do all in their power to render the occasion one of the most attractive memorial celebrations that has been witnessed in our city.

We bespeak for the occasion the attention and sympathies of our citizens. Let us remember our blessings and by what sacrifices they were won, and do honor to the virtue and heroism that achieved such momentous results.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—At the joint meeting of "Memorial Detail" from Winfield Scott Post, 78, and Major Anderson Post, 59, Grand Army of the Republic, Department of the State of New Jersey, held May 23d, 1893.

It was unanimously voted that the newspapers of this city be earnestly requested, (through the editors), to solicit all of the citizens of Plainfield, and, North Plainfield, to display our nations] colors on Memorial Day, May 30th, 1893, from their houses, or elsewhere, in memory of the noble dead, (our comrades), who gave their lives in the defence of this Union, and its preservation.

Should any one have no American flag to throw out, then decorate with streamers of ribbon, or any colors, that are the old, The Red, White and Blue.

BY ORDER OF THE COMMITTEE.

---

WHAT BETTER CAN WE DO THAN TO PUBLISH THIS ELOQUENT APPEAL?

DEAR SIR:—As one of the Committee I was asked to do this loving work, and make the request to you, to make as earnest an appeal to the public as you can do for the benefit of those who are now reaping the fruits of peace following the terrible havoc of war in the past, and will you not endeavor to foster the teachings of loyalty to those who are now following after us, and who will soon take the mantle of government, single, for we shall not be here many years longer.

We wish to commemorate the dead, and also to inspire the young, and your assistance in the columns of your paper will greatly enhance this purpose.

Will you kindly assist us in our efforts and do all you can in your way to promote loyalty and love for the old flag.

JOSEPH T. DUNHAM.

To Administer Wm. Koch's Estate.

John W. Koch of this city, obtained letters of administration yesterday upon the estate of his brother, William Koch, who committed suicide last week in New York.

Koch owned the Bijou cafe. His personal estate is worth $15,000. Shortly before his death he assigned $25,000 worth of life insurance policies to his creditors. He left no real estate. Besides John W. Koch, the only living relative is a cousin, Mrs. Rina Wiebe, of Westphalia, Germany.

MR. FRENCH STOPS THEM.

He Won't Allow the Trolley Poles in Front of His Place.

This morning Mr. P. M. French of Somerset street stopped the street railway employees from putting down the poles in front of his property. When the men commenced to dig, Mr. French went for Marshal Pangborn and the workmen were compelled to stop.

Mr. Alex. Thorn also refused to allow poles to be placed in front of his block.

It seems that Mr. Joseph Bates also told the men they couldn't place a pole in front of his Arlington Hotel, corner of Greenbrook road. One day the men went there at three o'clock in the morning, and had the poles down before the proprietor was up.

A BLAZE IN WARREN'S HOUSE.

Borough Firemen Have a Fire Close at Home.

In removing the partition in Warren Engine Company's parlor, yesterday, the carpenters disarranged the electric light wires so that they came in contact with a gas pipe joint. The result was that the electricity melted the solder and the chandelier fell to the floor. The escaping gas caught fire, making a big blaze. As soon as the gas was turned off the flames went out. No damage was done.

PERSONAL.

Mr. George Watson, with his family, returned to Plainfield, for the Summer, yesterday.

The Rev. F. L. Hawks Pott will speak on missionary work in China, in Grace church this evening at eight o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jackson of Crescent avenue entertained the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Barnes and a few friends last evening.

Among the patents granted to New Jersey inventors during the past week is one for an ingrain carpet fabric to S. J. Achison of this city.

Harry R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vail of East Fourth street died yesterday. Funeral Friday afternoon, at two o'clock. Interment will be at Bound Brook.

Editor Aaron M. Powell and the Rev. Dr. Lewis, both of this city, are chairman and secretary, respectively, of the Committee of the World's Congress Auxiliary, on a Social Purity Congress, to be held at Chicago June 3, 5 and 4.

The charming little twins, children of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Emmons of Prospect place, are remarkable in the fact of their great dissimilarity. Almost universally twins are very much alike, but in the case of these bright little tots, one is light and the other dark, and they bear scarcely any resemblance to each other either in looks or disposition.

The tournament of the Knoxville Gun Club which opened yesterday is the greatest trap shooting event that has been held in this country for five years. There are no less than sixty five out-of-town shooters on hand, and twenty members of the local club are also taking part. In yesterdays event there was an average of seventy entries. Mr. T. H. Keller of this city is one of the number.

---

Sociable at the Baptist Church.

The sociable of the Young People's League at the First Baptist church last evening was a successful affair and thoroughly enjoyed by the few who attended. The attendance was slim owing to the storm, which began about the opening hour.

The programme consisted of recitations, vocal and instrumental music. After the programme, refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

Trapshooters' League Contest.

The fourth monthly contest of the New Jersey Trap Shooters' League will take place on the grounds of the Endeavor Gun Club at Marion next Saturday. Sweepstake shooting will begin at nine o'clock in the morning and continue all day. The team shoot will take place at two o'clock in the afternoon.

NEW EAST RIVER BRIDGE

ANOTHER GREAT LINK BETWEEN NEW YORK AND BROOKLYN.

The Proposed New East River Bridge Will be Five Feet Higher than the Brooklyn Bridge, and Seventy-Five Feet Longer.

The proposed new East river bridge from New York city to Williamsburg, a section of Brooklyn, will greatly resemble the present Brooklyn bridge in general appearance. It will be 140 feet high, or five feet taller than the Brooklyn bridge, and 6,675 feet long, which is 75 feet in excess of the length of the present East river bridge. The picture of the contemplated bridge is taken from Harper's Weekly.

The height of the piers of the new bridge above mean high water will be 335 feet. The piers differ from those of the Brooklyn bridge. They will be constructed of solid masonry to a point 40 feet above the railroad way, and then there will be steel towers 110 feet in height. These will be built up with 25 upright columns, with horizontal and diagonal bracings. The bridge is to have a width of 85 feet, or three feet more than the present one. The length of the cables will be 3,320 feet. The diameter is to be 18 inches, 6¼ more than those of the old bridge. The wire used has an initial strength of 18,000 pounds to the square inch. For each of the four cables 17,000 single wires will be used. These will be make up into 19 smaller cables, which when bound with wire will form the perfect cable. The dead weight these cables will stand is 196,000 tons, the weight of the bridge being only 96,000 tons.

The endless cable system used on the Brooklyn bridge will not be adopted by the builders of the new bridge. The grade will be so low that 40-ton locomotives may be run across the bridge drawing three or four cars. Work on the new bridge will be commenced the coming Summer.

A third bridge across the East river will also be constructed within a few years. It will be known as the Rockaway avenue bridge and will have a clear span over the river of 1,470 feet. The bridge will connect Pitkin Ave. crossing and Grand street, New York, to Myrtle avenue and Hudson street, Brooklyn.

BURNS COULDN'T SLEEP.

So He Went Upstairs to Throw Mr. Limbarger Down Stairs.

There was trouble between neighbors on East Third street last night and the injured parties aired the matter in court this morning.

No. 52 East Third street lives two families. The first floor is occupied by Mrs. McGowen, who keeps boarders. On the second floor live Mr. and Mrs. John Limbarger and their little son.

Last night it seems that the little Limbarger was playing on the floor. The noise he made annoyed John Burns, one of the boarders, and he went upstairs to clean out the Limbarger family, according to his story. He pounded on Mr. Limbarger's door and told him if the noise wasn't stopped he would throw him down stairs. Mr. Limbarger seized a shovel and warned Burns to go away or his would get hurt. Here the women intervened and the men refrained from spilling any blood.

After hearing the tales of woe of both parties the Judge discharged them, with a reprimand.

Fire at Westfield.

A blacksmith and wheelwright shop belonging to Beeman Bros., of Westfield was burned to the ground last night. Its was partly insured. Mr. J. E. Townsend, proprietor of the marble works on Somerset street, is a brother-in-law of the Messrs. Beeman.

Weather And Crop Conditions.

PLAINFIELD.—The week has been a cloudy one, but has not retarded any of the crops; berries, with the exception of blackberries, are abundant; lowest temperature, 40 degs.; rainfall, 0.02 inch.

JOHN NEAGLE.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.—It has been too cold, rainy and windy for crops to grow and do well; the ground has not had a good warming up yet this Spring; grass looks well; rye out in head; the conditions have been favorable for a good hay crop; fruit prospects good; the cool weather has even retarded the growth of weeds; all are busy plowing and planting as fast as possible.

The Ice Case Ended.

An interesting civil suit which has occupied the attention of the Union County Court for the last two weeks ended yesterday. The plaintiff, Elijah B. Cornell, who owns large orange groves in Florida, sued the Rhymer Ice Machine Company of Cincinnati for $25,000 damages for the failure of a machine which he purchased from the company for $25,000, paying $12,000 on account. It was to produce 25 tons of ice daily, but only turned out 20 tons. The testimony was mainly of an expert nature. The jury brought in a verdict of $16,620 for the plaintiff.

UNWILLING TO LOSE BISHOP VINCENT.

Buffalo Methodists want Him to Stay There.

The Methodists of Western New York are unable to smother all of their feelings at the preparations of Bishop W. F. Mallalieu, of New Orleans, to move to that city on July 1, when he will take possession of the official residence of Bishop John Heyl Vincent, whose family is now getting ready to move out. Bishop Mallalieu was elected to his present office a short time before Bishop Vincent, and considers that his seniority entitles him to choose any residence he pleases. He took a fancy to Buffalo, and in consequence Bishop Vincent has been assigned to the Topeka district, which has no bishop at present. Bishop Vincent, who is the "Father of Chautauqua" and one of the brightest bishops in the Methodist Episcopal church, has been beloved here since he succeeded Bishop Burst in the district. Furthermore, the business headquarters of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle are in Buffalo, and the Bishop's removal to Kansas would be a serious blow to this institution. It is said that a protest to the General Conference will be made in behalf of Bishop Vincent. The latter refuses to consider Topeka his official residence, and when he returns next fall from the European tour on which he started on Saturday he may be without a district. It is said that Mrs. Vincent is now in correspondence with the Topeka Methodists, and that if they will accept the offer Bishop Vincent will go there next fall to serve temporarily, and, to some degree, unofficially.

BASE BALL NOTES.

Murphy Will Pitch Against the Crescents.

"Bob" Murphy, the old Crescent pitcher, whose curves proved such enigmas to opposing teams, will pitch against his old friends, the Crescents, next Saturday.

Murphy won a game for the Crescents from Somerville last season. He is this season with the Imperial Athletic club team of New York, and is pitching a stronger game than ever.

He has been longing to get at the Plainfielders, and as he is to come here next Saturday there will be a particularly strong crescent behind him.

Malone will catch, and such heavy batters as Ryan, Mack and Paton will play the outfield. The batting order of the visitors will be as follows:

Paton, right field; Malone, catcher; Mooney, third base; Mack, center field; Ryan, left field; Mattucks, shortstop; Willy, second base; Hecht, first base; Murphy, pitcher.

Fielder Leidy, of last year's Crescents, is playing with the Scrantons in the Pennsylvania State League. He is playing left field and leads the batting order. In yesterday's game he made one run, had one put out and three errors.

A Mammoth Establishment.

[Somerset Democrat]

Nearly everbody in Somerville can remember back seven years when Edward White kept the little dry goods store in Cole's building, opposite the Court House office. Then Mr. White had one clerk, and he did all the business and had lots of time to carry. Mr. White is still in the dry goods business, but on a vastly more extensive scale. Any one visiting the Plainfield will only illustrate what a young man can do who has plenty of push and perseverance and some ability.

Seven years ago Mr. White was the proprietor of a business occupying a floor space fifty feet deep by twenty; to-day he is the sole owner of the largest store in Plainfield, and does a business which has grown to enormous proportions. Where seven years ago he employed one clerk, he now employs 25. His store not only occupies solely a fine four-story building on Front street, which is literally packed from floor to roof, with all kinds of every description which man, woman or child could use.

This extensive store is divided into departments as in a modern city store, comprising, hosiery, notions, underwear, millinery, dress goods, rugs, carpets, mattings, crockery, tinware, house furnishing goods, and the latest addition, a shoe department is a new departure this Spring and has apparently taken with the people.

In the millinery department seven clerks are kept busy all the time. Mr. White employs all of the trade in millinery for miles around, beside doing no little work for outside parties.

Each week special bargain days are made, at which time goods go at almost the buyer's own price. Mr. White believes that large sales and moderate profits is the way to draw trade, and he has surely found the secret of success. There are 25 days in this store—business is said to be brisk always. Mr. White is a hustler of the first magnitude, both buying and selling. He does all the buying and not a little of the selling. He intends to become the personal acquaintance of every visit his place, not to buy alone, but to see that a metropolitan store is right within easy reach.

Amusing Foolery.

Have you will power enough if you see a little smudge of dirt, or a thread, or anything on a friend's coat, not to attempt to remove it? Not one person in ten thousand could refrain. Knowing this, one youth, who wears a large hat and has also a well developed sense of humor, has left a little splash of white paint, originally put there by accident, on the lapel of his coat, merely for the fun of seeing acquaintances pause by the side of the conveyance and with the remark: "oh, excuse me—a little feather on your coat," attempt to flip off the patch with their handkerchiefs.

Whereupon, a black coat, put a speck of white thereon in the vest pocket and run the end through a needle hole to back, or, on the side. And then the fun of seeing the astonished friends face when he kindly volunteers to pick off that little piece of thread—and it keeps coming!

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Cremation Idea.

It is making its way quietly but surely in the northern and eastern portions of the Union. There are now 15 crematories in the country, mostly located in the eastern and middle states. New York alone has three—one at Fresh Pond, on Long Island, near Brooklyn, another at Troy and a third at Buffalo. In Ohio the Cincinnati crematory has held it. Even in the face of one of the most conservative communities in the Union. The crematory is, however, maintained by the Germans in that city, the old native element being mostly against the idea of burning instead of burying the dead.

The processes at all the crematories are similar. At Fresh Pond the furnace is fed by anthracite coal. At Buffalo wood is used for firing, while in Cincinnati coke is the fuel employed. A chapel is attached in all cases where simple funeral services are held if desired. At Cincinnati the body is lowered upon an elevator to the cremating receptacle, which is in the basement. At Fresh Pond the furnace and cremating ovens are on a level with the main floor. In the vicinity of New York cremation has become so popular that frequently there are two incinerations in one day at Fresh Pond. In the past four years 900 bodies have been reduced to ashes here, and the average is now 20 a month.

The cremation idea is becoming popular with women, especially with young women, and for a curious reason—that is, the dread of being buried alive. There would be no coming to life when all that remained of one's mortal frame would be a couple of pounds of white ashes. At Cincinnati some years ago there was a scandal because it was found that the crematory attendant was selling the coffins from which the bodies had been taken. At Fresh Pond the coffin, usually of wood, is demolished with an ax before the eyes of the dead person's friends. In case the death was from contagious disease, the coffin is metallic and is consumed with the corpse. It has been found not advisable, however, to burn wooden coffins with the bodies, as the wood ashes tend to choke the drafts.

A beautiful bit of German sentiment attaches to the disposal of the ashes at Fresh Pond. The superintendent and engineer is a German. In case the relatives do not place the ashes of the dead in the urns provided for sale and do not care to remove them, then the engineer gently sprinkles them upon the flower beds in the grounds, resurrecting them in rich bloom.

A New Terror.

The newest terror that has been added to civilization is undoubtedly the deadly folding bed. Within a few days in one place one of these infernal machines fell upon a woman in her sleep, crushing her leg completely from ankle to knee, and about the same time in another part of the Union a man and wife narrowly escaped being smothered by their folding bed suddenly flipping them upright and shutting them in, like one of the ancient devices for secretly murdering objectionable political persons. The list of accidents to babies and grown persons is so long that it is scary. It begins to be as much as one's life is worth to sleep in a folding bed. The insurance companies will presently begin to refuse risks on those who occupy them.

The most expensive ones are sham bookcases, dressing cases or wardrobes. With the books and bric-a-brac with which they are always loaded, with the heavy wood and iron springs of which they are made, the things undoubtedly weigh 400 or 500 pounds. When this weight suddenly falls across a human leg or arm, the limb is crushed.

The makers of these infernal machines either cannot or will not construct them so as to be safe. At least they do not. Until they do the only safety is in abolishing the folding bed altogether, convenient as it is in crowded rooms.

In some places a man must pay a poll tax if he votes, but in Kansas City he must pay a poll tax if he does not vote. Four years ago a clause was inserted in the charter of that city to the effect that whenever a citizen failed to vote at any general municipal election he should pay a poll tax of $2.50. This would have been calculated to make solid citizens take an interest in municipal government if the law had been enforced. It was not, however, but the auditor kept a record of the delinquents, so that they could be brought to time if necessary. The delinquent taxes now amount to nearly $30,000. The city at length sued one of the delinquents as a test case of the constitutionality of the law and gained the suit. Part of the judge's decision was in these words: "I uphold the tax upon the broad ground that it is in the power of a state to compel its voters to exercise the elective franchise, and if a state can do so a city is invested with the same power."

State boards of health are considering ways to disinfect railway cars in case of cholera, real or suspected, appearing in any of them. The best plan will be to take a leaf from the instructions given by the United States agricultural department for the disinfection of cattle cars that have been occupied by suspect animals from the Texas fever belt.

GUEST OF THE NATION.

How Princess Eulalie Is to See New York.

THE DINNER AT THE WHITE HOUSE

She Will Take Excursions by Land and Water—Go to Church and the Theater, Attend a Ball and See All the Sights, Including the Big Bridge.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Tomorrow the Infanta Eulalie comes here again, having finished her official visit in Washington. The reception committee appointed by the committee of 100 to receive and do honor to the princess upon her arrival have arranged their plans.

The infanta will leave Washington at 11 a. m., May 25, and will arrive in this city at 3 p. m. Troop A, the swell cavalry company, will be in waiting and act as an escort to the infanta. Upon her arrival at Hotel Savoy she will be serenaded by the Spanish colony. The United States dispatch boat Dolphin will be placed at the command of the royal visitor, and she will use the vessel as a private yacht during her stay here.

On May 26 the infanta and a small party will sail up the Hudson on the Dolphin. In the evening she will attend the ball to be given in her honor at the Madison Square Garden.

On Saturday, May 27, the infanta and her party will go to West Point in the steamer Monmouth. They will review the cadets and return to the city. On the trip she will be accompanied by Troop A as an escort. In the evening she will occupy a box at the casino. A special supper will be served on the roof garden in her honor.

To Church and Concert.

On Sunday the infanta will attend mass at the cathedral. Sunday evening she will attend a concert at Carnegie hall.

May 29 she will receive a procession of Spanish societies, and from 5 to 7 p. m. she will receive visitors at the Hotel Savoy. She will attend the Fifth Avenue theater in the evening.

The following day she will inspect the fire department and visit the Normal college. She will subsequently review the police. In the evening she will witness the performance at the Broadway theater. On this occasion no bonnets will be worn, and everybody will be expected to appear in full evening dress. The Spanish national air will be played between the acts, and the flag of Spain will form a great part of the decorations. The next day she will look at the Brooklyn bridge and witness the races of the Coney Island Jockey club. The royal party will leave for Chicago on Friday, June 30.

The invitation cards for the ball to be given in honor of the infanta at Madison Square Garden are finished. There are two cards—the first intended for complimentary invitations and the other for ticket buyers. Both are of parchment, the one printed in gold and the other in rich brown ink. Two hundred will be sent to high government officials and the diplomatic representatives of Spain, Mexico, Peru and Brazil, who will receive also cards of the other description.

The designs on the menu cards intended for the infanta's table, where 25 persons will be seated, are painted by hand, and the lettering on the cover is in gold.

The cover of the dance programme is of gray kid, lined with white padded silk. On the front the arms of Spain are stamped in silver. Attached to them by a white silk ribbon is a gold pencil. The members of the floor and entertainment committees will wear a silk button, wherein is stamped in gold the seal of the club. All the women who attend the ball will receive a blue and white rosette on which is fastened like a cockspur a gold wreath, with the letter "E" in the center.

A State Dinner.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The dinner given by the President and Mrs. Cleveland to the Infanta Eulalie was made an occasion of much dignity. The White House conservatories had been fairly depleted to furnish rare flowers for the decoration of the table and the apartment where the dinner took place. The large state dining room was used, and it never looked so brilliant or so tastefully arranged.

Stationed in the main hall of the White House was the Marine band and along the walls were a few spectators. The band rendered the Spanish national air as the guests marched down the private corridor to the state dining hall, where 36 covers were laid.

At the center of the table on the right sat the ex-President Cleveland with the princess on his right, and just opposite sat Mrs. Cleveland and Prince Antonio. On the right of the president and the princess were Secretary of State Gresham and the Marchioness of Arco Hermosa. The East room, where the president and his guests repaired after the dinner, was profusely decorated with green plants.

Mrs. Chauncey Depew's Will.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The will of Ella H. Depew, wife of Chauncey M. Depew was filed for probate. She gives her son Chauncey $100 to buy a memorial of her as she says she knows his father will provide for him. She leaves her mother Elizabeth J. Hegeman the income of $1,000 in railroad bonds. The residue of her estate she leaves to her husband.

Found a Loaded Pistol.

SING SING, May 24.—Michael Stanton, the 6-year-old son of Gladys Stanton, found a loaded revolver in his mother's room, pointed it at Emma Johnson, the 4-year-old daughter of a neighbor, and pulled the trigger. The ball lodged in the little girl's brain and she died two hours afterward.

May Abandon the Wandrahm.

MONTREAL, May 24.—The Hamburg-American steamship Wandrahm, ashore at Apple Island, may be abandoned, as the cost of getting her off and repairing her would be more than she is worth. The steamer is valued at $175,000.

Struck by a Train.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 24.—Philip H. Ellsworth, a resident of Tivoli, was struck and instantly killed by a train on the Central Hudson railway while he was crossing the track with a wheelbarrow.

Electric Company In Trouble.

CLAIRE, Wis., May 24.—Application has been made to place the National Electric Manufacturing company's plant in the hands of a receiver. Assets, $500,000; liabilities, $400,000.

Millard Fillmore Hartell Insane.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Millard Fillmore Hartell, a second cousin of the former president of the United States, was committed to the insane asylum at Flatbush.

STORM WENT NORTHEAST.

Damage Done In Canada by the Cleveland Tornado.

TORONTO, Ont., May 24.—A tornado which has caused the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars occurred in central and eastern Ontario. Church steeples were blown down, buildings of all kinds uncovered or partially or wholly blown down and people and live stock carried bodily to a considerable distance. At Tilsonburg, in the destruction of Tilson's oatmeal mill, Henry Joyce lost his life and another man was injured. At Perth a number of people were badly injured by the falling of a circus tent. At Orillia James Reynolds was seriously injured by a falling steeple, and near Napanee Frank Brooks was killed by lightning.

CLEVELAND, May 24.—Dispatches indicate that the entire northwestern portion of the state was swept by the storm. At Findlay the brick building of the Bell Pottery company was partially wrecked, the roof being carried away and the wall crushed in. Two hundred employees had a narrow escape. The Model Glass factory and the Salem Wire Nail works were unroofed. The house of W. H. Howard and Herbert Broome were wrecked, the wife and children of Broome being rescued with difficulty. Hundreds of oil barracks were blown down. The loss will reach $60,000.

At Hume station, Allen county, two churches were destroyed and 15 houses blown from their foundations, causing a loss of $25,000. In Utica the gas works were unroofed and the smokestacks of several factories blowndown.

At Fort Recovery the roof of the opera house was carried away and all the windows on one side broken.

When the storm struck Akron, Summit county, many people sought refuge in their cellars. In East Akron the new works of the City Boiler company were wrecked. At Fletcher, Miami county, the roof of the Methodist church was carried off by the wind and carried 300 feet. At Fremont, Sandusky county, several roofs were carried away.

Oil Derricks Swept Away.

BRADFORD, Pa., May 24.—A severe wind and rainstorm swept over this section, doing great damage to oil derricks, telegraph and telephone wires. In the immediate vicinity of Bradford 75 oil derricks were prostrated by the wind. A new 2-story dwelling on High street was lifted from its foundation and demolished. A falling derrick at the head of Congress street fell on a dwelling house, crushing in the kitchen. Trains on all the surrounding railroads were hemmed in by the fallen trees and were from four to eight hours late.

WERE ON THE PEST SHIP.

Damage Suits Begun Against the Hamburg-American Packet Line.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The story of the sufferings by sea and land of those transatlantic travelers who came to America last September on the scourge laden Normannia was retold in the United States circuit court by Senator McPherson of New Jersey, Judge Alfred B. Beers and John F. Hawley of Bridgeport, Conn., and Florence Fox of Philadelphia.

They were all passengers on the pest ship, and they all say that they were induced to take passage by misrepresentation on the part of the Hamburg-American Packet line agents, who assured them, so they asserted, that the Normannia would carry no steerage passengers, while in reality she was crowded with them. Suits against the steamship company have been pending ever since. That of Judge A. B. Beers of Bridgeport for $10,000 damages, now being tried, is the first to come to trial.

A Sudden Move to Jersey.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The Domestic Sewing Machine company, which has been attached by the Astor Place bank, suddenly removed the executive offices of the company from 853 Broadway to Newark, N. J. It is said that this action was done to avoid other attachments. It was also said that the removal was made to avoid the payment of taxes here. The store continues in charge of the sheriff.

Greased the Flagpole.

NEW HAVEN, May 24.—The liberty pole on the local green was found adorned with two Yale flags. The indignant sophomores, at whose supremacy the signs were aimed, spent over an hour trying to tear the banners down, and finally a local steeple climber was hired to mount the pole. After a long struggle he succeeded. The freshmen had greased the pole.

Farnham Veterans to Appeal.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The officers of the Noah L. Farnham post, the local organization of the Grand Army of the Republic which was expelled, say that they will probably appeal to the national organization in order to get a hearing at the next grand encampment. The aldermanic board meets tonight and will decide on the proper course to take.

Thought He Had Killed His Friend.

HACKENSACK, N. J., May 24.—James Rosecrans, an expressman, was accidentally shot by James O'Brien with a shotgun. Thinking he had killed his friend O'Brien gave himself up to Sheriff Bogert. When Dr. McFadden reported that the wound would not prove fatal, O'Brien was released.

Another Bad Crevasse.

NEW ORLEANS, May 24.—The worst crevasse of the season has just occurred. The levee has broken below Lake Providence at Judge Wylie's plantation, and the crevasse is now 200 feet and rapidly widening. A rich section of Louisiana will be overflowed.

Charged With Sending Poisoned Coffee.

SUNDAY OPENERS WON.

The Question Settled by the National Commissioners.

ONLY THE LAW CAN PREVENT NOW.

The "Closers" Walked Into a Trap and Lost Through Neglect—Fair Will Be Open on Sundays Too—Germany's Building Opened.

CHICAGO, May 24.—Once more the Sunday closing question has been decided and this time in the negative. The gates are to be open, the national commission hering virtually given its consent. The Sunday closers in the national commission were nonplussed by the turn of affairs when Vice President De Young decided that the Sunday closing rule of the local directory must stand, and they declare that they were trapped by skillful parliamentarians.

The law of congress creating the fair provides that the directors shall prepare rules governing the fair, and that they shall be submitted to the national commission for modification, the vote of the majority of the commission being required to change a rule. The Sunday closers that came blindly ahead on this supposition that the Sunday openers would have to get 32 votes to give vitality to the new rule prepared by the local board, not thinking that unless they developed enough strength to modify the rule it would stand. Fifty-five votes were present on the roll call vote and the Sunday closers mustered about 20.

Fought All Day Long.

But Sunday opening won the day. It was after one of the most exciting days that has ever agitated this unusually serene body. The hall was crowded nearly all day with many notable spectators, people interested in the city opening and the wives and friends of the commissioners.

The "closers" were championed by Mr. Massey of Delaware, and the "openers" by Governor Lee Cluff of West Virginia. Mr. Burton of Kansas spoke in favor of the opening, as did also Messrs. Elbeck of Iowa, Groner of Virginia and others. Commissioners Hundley of Alabama, Young of Minnesota and others supported Mr. Massey's report. The matter was focused into a motion to substitute the minority for the majority report, and it prevailed.

The motion to modify the new rule presented by the local directory, providing for the opening of the fair Sunday failed to carry by the unanimous majority of 55. Thus the commission gave passive consent to the opening of the gates, as there seemed to be no other alternative. The matter is now entirely in the hands of the local directory, and as the commission did not modify the new rule presented by them the local board can open the gates of the fair, unless proper judicial authority should intervene on the part of the government and assert that the souvenir coin act has been violated. Several weeks ago notice has been dispensed by the local directory and national commission, in public and in the committee room and at informal conferences.

Last week the local directory adopted a resolution to revoke the rule forbidding the gates to be opened on Sunday and sent the resolution to the national commission for its concurrence. The resolution was referred to the judiciary committee of the commission, and after a week's struggle the committee brought in two reports—one the minority, favoring the concurrence of the commission in the resolution, and the other the majority, opposing such action.

Germany's New Building.

GERMANY'S BUILDING.

Germany's building at the exposition is now open. The opening of the building was of a purely informal character. Herr Wermuth, the imperial commissioner, and those associated with him received invitations to prominent German citizens, the officials of the fair, representatives of other foreign governments, and such distinguished persons as were in Chicago. The Duke of Veragua and his family had been invited, and elaborate preparations were made for their reception.

The building stands in the northeastern part of the exposition grounds. All the material was sent from Germany and most of it shows as an exhibit. Rising the main building is a chapel of the height of three stories. The main tower is 150 feet high. In the building are combined all the prominent styles of German architecture, and as a result Germany's government building ranks among the beauties of Jackson park. The chapel is built in the gothic style, while the main building is a type of German renaissance—the old Nuremburg architecture. The office is a masterpiece of decoration, while the rich cabinetings, its gobelins and luxurious fireplaces, and an exhibit worthy to be admired.

The beautiful stained windows, the chimes sent by the Empress Augusta Victoria and many ecclesiastical articles are exhibited in the chapel.

The council of administration has decided to open the fair to the public three nights each week, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings being designated. On each of these evenings there will be concerts and electric displays.

A Schoolboy Lover's Suicide.

ATLANTA, May 24.—Louis Abbott, a 17-year-old schoolboy, has been desperately in love with Viola Tupper, aged 13, the daughter of the rector of St. Phillip's Episcopal church. They quarreled. A few minutes later Abbott blew his brains out in a room in the state capitol.

A Sympathetic Run.

ELMIRA, N. Y., May 24.—The suspension of the Elmira National bank caused a run to be made on the Elmira Savings bank. Hundreds of excited depositors crowded around the bank all day but the bank kept right along doing business and the depositors will all be paid in full.

Landslide on the Hoosick.

TROY, N. Y., May 24.—A bank 75 feet high and heavily timbered on the Hoosick river, which runs that stream near White House Mills and dammed the water for several miles.

Buy Fruit Jars Now, and Save Money!

FRUIT PROSPECTS WONDERFUL. Prices going up rapidly.

Mason's pints, large neck, 70c., quarts, 75c., and ½ gallons, $1.00 per dozen. Two years ago they went up to two dollars per dozen, and they could not be had at that—then old pitchers and stone jars had to be resorted to. If you can spare the money, don't delay, but buy at once, and you will feel comfortable. Think of a two-burner Oil Stove for $1.20—several other styles in proportion—inboard of price. We have twenty different styles of Hammocks, from the cheapest to the best—just quote prices. Croquet sets as low as 98c., $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00. The Domestic Sewing Machine is the wonder of modern times, as it will make either the lock stitch, using a double thread, or the chain stitch, using the single thread, two machines in one—not the best, but a domestic. The Smith Premier Typewriter is the best—call and see it. Bicycles, Guns, Revolvers and Ammunition of all kinds always in stock and for sale at the lowest prices. ## BRIGGS BEFORE THE COURT.

When He Wanted to Speak He Was Shut Off by the Moderator.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The Presbyterian general assembly was turned into a "judicial court of the Lord Jesus Christ" at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, and the appeal of Dr. Briggs was at once taken up. The court is now in session. This action is in accordance with the majority report of the judicial committee, which read in part as follows:

That three hours be allotted for such hearing—namely, two hours to each party, and after hearing from the members of the assembly, three hours being allotted for such hearing, the assembly shall then vote upon the following resolution:

Resolved, That the appeal from the decision of the final judgment of the presbytery of New York rendered Jan. 9, 1893, be entertained by the general assembly, and it is ordered that the case proceed to trial in accordance with the provisions of the book of discipline.

Mr. Critchlow of Detroit moved to strike out the limitation of time of debate, but the assembly refused to remove the restriction.

At this point Professor Briggs rose as if to address the assembly. Immediately a hum of comment swept over the house, while he and the moderator engaged in an animated colloquy upon his right to be heard at that time. Professor Briggs yielded to Dr. Craig and resumed his seat. This was the prelude of an incident that created some comment on the floor. The moderator said:

"I would suggest in the interest of brotherly kindness and peace"——

"Say justice," exclaimed a voice from the gallery, which was said to be that of Professor Henry Preserved Smith of Cincinnati, who is under condemnation of the Cincinnati presbytery for teaching similar to that of Professor Briggs.

"You wait," retorted Moderator Craig sternly. "Don't you put words in my mouth. I speak for brotherly kindness and peace, which are higher than justice, for out of them come justice."

The moderator then said that Professor Briggs had just asked him the privilege of speaking, but that he had insisted that the professor had no right to speak at that time. Dr. Craig said, however, that there would be a time when his brother, Professor Briggs, should speak.

The Herald After Reuter.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The Herald says today editorially: Because the proprietor of The Herald recently saw fit to remove his name from the list of James Hoyer's agency cabled to Europe the absurd report which appeared in the principal European papers. This report is absolutely without foundation, and as the ridiculous purchase price mentioned shows obvious malice the proprietor of The Herald has instructed George Lewis of London to inform Reuter's agency that unless they publish a categorical denial of the ridiculous report emanating from them—that The Herald would be turned into a stock company with a capital of $2,000,000—and print the substance of this editorial, which appears simultaneously in the European and New York editions of The Herald, legal proceedings for libel will be taken against them.

Twenty Years For a Panama Lobbyist.

PARIS, May 24.—At the Seine Assizes M. Arton, the Panama lobbyist, was sentenced in default to 20 years' penal servitude for frauds in connection with the dynamite scandal and to five years' civil imprisonment and the payment of 400,000 francs' fine for his unlawful and dishonest practices in his relations to the Panama Canal company.

Prince Luigi Will Travel Incog.

ROME, May 24.—Prince Luigi, duke of Abruzzi, is King Humbert's nephew, will begin on June 1 a trip around the world. He will sail on the warship Volturno. He will proceed eastward, will reach Chicago before the close of the fair and subsequently will visit New York and Washington. In the United States he will travel incognito.

VIENNA, May 24.—Nearly 100 houses were burned in the village of Strang, and many persons were injured by the fall of the church tower.

Receiver For the Order of Unity.

BOSTON, May 24.—Justice Holmes of the supreme court decided to put the Order of the Unity in the hands of a receiver.

ART STUDENTS ACCUSED

New York Art Leaguers Have the Last Laugh.

A RIDICULOUS CHARGE OF FRAUD.

The Wonderful Discovery of a Chicago Critic Found Out to Be a Blunder—No "Old Masters" Were Sent to the World's Fair.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The art students of this city are enjoying a great laugh at the expense of the art students of Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia and other cities from which the knights and ladies of the brush and crayon sent exhibits to the World's fair. Even while the New York students are laughing, the students from the other cities are pointing the finger of shame and scorn at them. That is what makes the students here laugh, for they know that when their defamers come to learn the truth they will find themselves completely "circumvented."

They Sent Prize Pictures.

The exhibits from the art schools form a part of the general great educational exhibit in the gallery of the Manufacturers' building at the fair. Three of the art schools of this city are represented there—the Art Students' league, the Cooper Union and the Academy of Design.

The students of the other cities were very ambitious, and their exhibits are much larger, both in number of pictures and drawings and in variety, than is the exhibit sent on from here. The New York students decided that it was better though to confine their exhibit to academical studies, so they just sent on the choicest specimens of their work as students, largely those which had taken prizes in the students' competitions for which they had been prepared.

The wisdom of their decision has been proved by the commendation that has been given to their display.

But some lynx eyed critic who was going around, microscope in hand, discovered that the exhibit of the Art Students' league of New York was not what it pretended to be.

Taken For Old Masters.

Then the word went broadcast that the Art Students' league of New York had attempted to gain an unfair victory over the art students of other cities by placing in among students' work the drawings of what might be called "old masters" works, indeed, that had been given to the world in 1865 and 1866, and that the effort had been made to conceal the trickery by erasing the dates.

Now it seems that the exhibits are genuine art students' exhibits. The partly erased dates are accounted for by the fact that the pictures had been submitted before to the Chanler Paris prize competition where one of the conditions of the competition was that the name and date of birth of all competitors should be on their work.

That is all there is to it. Every work that is in the Art Students' league exhibit is the work of a student now or until very recently in the classes, and all but 5 or 6 out of the 100 or more shown are works of the current season.

A Reorganization Syndicate.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Drexel Morgan & Co. have issued a circular to the security holders of the Richmond and West Point Terminal Railway and Warehouse company, Richmond and Danville and East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railway company and system, in which they state that they have decided to undertake the reorganization of the system, and have formed a syndicate to undertake the plan.

Their Father Dropped Dead.

BROOKLYN, May 24.—While three brothers, James, Joseph and Frank Risly of 222 Richardson street were engaged in a drunken fight at their home their father appeared and attempted to quiet them. The boys paid no attention to him. When a policeman reached the fighting trio he found their father dead upon the floor. It is believed death was due to heart disease.

Mr. Stevens Appeals For Annexation.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The Commercial Advertiser published a long communication from John L. Stevens, ex-minister to Hawaii, in which Mr. Stevens tells of the Hawaiian revolution and the events which have followed the establishment of the provisional government. He makes a strong appeal for annexation.

More of Weeks' Wickedness.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Francis H. Weeks as the executor of the estate of William Edgar Howland has been removed by Justice Andrews of the supreme court. Howland died in 1885, leaving an estate of $650,000. Mr. Roosevelt, co-executor, says he has been unable to find any of the securities.

A Great Forest Fire.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 24.—A forest fire is raging in Staffordville and Union, Conn., and is still uncontrolled. It is sweeping on toward South Willington, leaving a black and smoking waste. The area already burned over is 800 acres.

Will Loan the Six Millions.

NEW YORK, May 24.—A syndicate of Wall street bankers has been formed to handle the $6,000,000 worth of bonds which representatives of the Cherokee Indians are endeavoring to place, and the deal is being consummated.

The duke of Montemart died in Paris.

Another fire in Saginaw, Mich., burned part of a block.

Emily Egger, a 23-month-old child, was slowly roasted in Newark, N. J., her clothes having caught fire.

SEARCHED A PACIFIC LINER.

Revolutionists Trained a Gun on a Ship Bearing a United States Consul.

SAN DIEGO, May 24.—The Pacific Mail steamer City of New York, which arrived here from Panama en route to San Francisco, reports that on the trip down she was boarded by the government officers at Corinto, Nicaragua, and searched. The Nicaraguans suspected that she carried revolutionists from San Francisco.

During the search a heavy Krupp gun was trained on the vessel from the barracks. After the search the vessel put ashore Louis Bader, the new American minister to Nicaragua, Salvador and Costa Rica.

PANAMA, May 24.—Advices from Nicaragua state that the battle between the government forces and revolutionists lasted 12 hours. Counting deserters, dead and wounded, the government lost fully half its army. The rest are demoralized and disheartened. Of 13 departments, but four now remain loyal to President Sacasa, and he is believed to be ready to treat for surrender.

SACRELIGIOUS VANDALISM.

A Church Burned, Statues Destroyed and Little Children's Graves Desecrated.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., May 24.—The Catholic chapel on Mount Calvary was burned to the ground. Investigation conclusively showed that the chapel was fired by an enemy of the church. In the building was a statue of the blessed virgin Mary and one of the Lord.

These the miscreant took from the building about two blocks, then stripped part of the fence surrounding the cemetery of its pickets and setting them afire, threw the statues into it and burned them. After completing this fiendish act he proceeded to the North Star cemetery and knocked down and smashed about 14 tombstones from the graves of little children.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

Connecticut—Lewis A. Westcott, East Berlin.

New Jersey—James L. Decker, Sparta; L. L. Nunnally, West End.

New York—Thomas Traphagen, Corona; Jason E. Wager, Maryland; Annie A. Eden, Metropolitan; Byron Dutcher, Oliveres; S. D. Osborne, Sheldrake; Samuel P. Green, West Sayville.

Pennsylvania—John D. Garman, Berlinger; John H. Tracy, Diamond; John Heck, Paxinos.

Unionists In the Traces.

BELFAST, May 24.—Lord Salisbury was received at the railway station here by the lord mayor and a number of the municipal officials. The streets were thronged with Unionists, who unyoked the horses from the lord mayor's carriage and drew the carriage through the principal thoroughfares. At several points the carriage was stopped while Lord Salisbury addressed the multitude on the subject of Irish home rule, which he severely denounced.

That Clerical Manifesto.

BERLIN, May 24.—The Conservative and Liberal dailies comment unfavorably upon that clause of the clerical manifesto which says that the party will keep persistently at the landing the school bill withdrawn by the government last spring until it shall be passed. Red placards have been posted throughout the kingdom to inform the reserves and landwehr that they will not be called under the colors next month.

An American Schooner Seized.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., May 24.—A telegram from Captain Goodwin to T. Langford & Son reports that the fishing schooner Lewanna A. Moore was seized at Magdalen islands by a Canadian cutter and towed to Gaspe for a violation of the fisheries law, alleged to have been committed last year at Canso by Captain Mor. Joy, who was in command of the schooner at the time.

The Lumber Lockout.

BUFFALO, May 24.—The trouble between the Lumber Shovers union and the dealers is becoming serious. Railway and shipping interests are suffering. There are nearly 50 barges in the Lake harbor loaded with lumber and waiting to be unloaded. The dealers will not allow the union men to do a stroke of work and every slow progress is made with the green men.

Hanged on the Same Tree.

ATLANTA, May 24.—Ephraim Muchler, who brutally murdered J. J. Brown, a prominent business man of Nichols, Ga., and another negro were captured, and as the officers were taken them to Douglass they were overpowered by a mob and the prisoners were lynched. Muchler and the other negro were hanged on the same tree.

Getting Around It.

It used to be the law in California that justices of the peace had no jurisdiction in suits involving more than $200. Once, says an old Californian, A sued B before a squire in the Coast Range for $400. B pooh-poohed at the suit, however, and scrawled a "limb of the law," S. "We'll go down and throw him out of court on 'no jurisdiction,'" said S. The day for trial came, and B had his attorney there on hand. Just to see how far he would go, S let him enter judgment against him and then called his attention to the fact of "no jurisdiction." "Ah, yes," said his attorney, "Mr. S., the court has thought of that and discovered a remedy. The court enters judgment against your client for $200 and issues two executions for $100 each!" And he did it.—New York Tribune.

IT IS ALL GREAT.

The World's Fair Built on a Model of Vastness.

SOME SURPRISING COMPARISONS.

Great Piers, Great Railways, Great Hotels, Great Expectations of Great Crowds in Chicago—Optical Delusion Caused by the Bigness of Things in the Monster Exposition.

WORLD'S FAIR, May 23. — [Special.] — Every one who comes to see the Columbian exposition is at once impressed by the vast scale on which everything in connection with the fair has been planned or constructed. This is almost as noticeable without the grounds as within. Even in the central part of the city one observes immense hotels that obviously have been opened for World's fair trade. At the lake front park are still more striking evidences of the exposition boom and of the fact that the Chicagoans have made all their plans in anticipation of an enormous influx of visitors. In the harbor is a big fleet of steamships waiting to carry passengers to Jackson park, eight miles away. Some of the vessels are new, as the monster whaleback passenger steamer which has just arrived from Duluth, and which is said to be able to carry 6,000 persons. As yet not many people use the steamers, for the weather is not very warm here and every one is in a hurry to get to the fair. But later in the summer, when the mercury rises and the city becomes disagreeably hot, thousands upon thousands will be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity to refresh body and soul during an hour's ride on the cool lake.

For the accommodation of these crowds enormous piers and landings have been constructed. On one of the piers is an immense pavilion, in which is a restaurant, besides many other attractions designed to take the nimble nickels, dimes and quarters from the pockets of the multitude. Near by are other piers and landings, and the steamers constantly going and coming with their passengers and their bands of music make a scene of great animation.

Here, too, is the terminus of the Illinois Central World's fair railway. An elaborate system of platforms and turnstiles has been provided, and almost every minute of the day the special express trains are arriving from or departing for the exposition. To take care of the World's fair travel this road must have spent two millions of dollars. It bought a hundred locomotives and nearly a thousand cars. Besides, it elevated several miles of track in the vicinity of the exposition grounds. These preparations on so vast a scale have produced an admirable result. The special trains start out every two or three minutes, ten cars in a train and each train averaging when all the seats are occupied, 960 persons. There are eight parallel tracks, one line of double rails being used for the World's fair expresses, which make no stops and do the journey in fifteen minutes, another serving the suburban trains, of which there are 312 in a day (increased this summer from 180), the third carrying the through passenger and excursion trains, and the fourth the freight traffic.

On the way to the fair visitors behold a scene of much interest. In the lake, the steamers plying to and fro. At the water's edge the trains whizzing past each other every minute or two. Not far from the shore the cable roads and the trains on the elevated road may be seen, and now and then one gets a glimpse of the big coaches with their four horses swinging along the boulevards. All the way out may be seen hotel after hotel, many of them enormous structures covering half an acre of ground or a block and with from six to twelve stories. These increase in number as the region of the fair is reached, and extend for a mile or two back from the lake. After a stranger has gazed upon scores after acre of these big buildings, and noted the innumerable smaller structures and private houses which have been converted temporarily into inns, he rightly concludes that Chicago has gone into this World's fair business.

REGILDING THE GODDESS' WHEATH.

Around the fair gates, where a year ago there was nothing but open prairie, there is now a great city. Here, again, Chicago enterprise and Chicago expectations have built on large plans. The restaurants, the shops, the lunch-houses, the outdoor booths, the pavilions and the fakirs are as countless, almost, as the sands of the sea. Why, there is one hotel out here, not yet completed, which is nearly as big as the United States capitol at Washington. As an amphitheater it rivals the structures in which the Roman emperors were wont to enjoy cruel sports. Probably twenty thousand people may be accommodated at once in this vast auditorium. The structure stands on the lake shore, just outside the exposition enclosure, and being unfinished has doubtless led many a visitor into the error of supposing that one of the great exposition buildings was yet without a roof.

It is almost unnecessary to say that within the exposition gates everything is on a scale so vast as to almost defy belief. A queer thing about the exposition is that the longer one stays here the bigger it seems. Instead of appearing smaller as one becomes more familiar with it, through seeing it day after day, it swells and swells in a manner that is altogether amazing. I have been here almost a month, and have walked a dozen times from one end of the grounds to the other. Yet each time I do so my wonder at the vastness of the thing is greater than it ever was before.

One begins to realise a little of this immensity. Indeed, before entering the grounds. The gates are almost a show in themselves. Suppose you arrive at the Fifty-seventh street entrance. There, all in a row at least ten rods in length, are no fewer than eighteen turnstiles, each guarded by an official. There are twelve ticket windows, and at certain hours the men in all of them are kept very busy. A stranger would say, if he did not stop to think much about it, that there were gate and ticket facilities enough here for the whole exposition. He may even go so far as to wonder why they put all of their gates and ticket sellers in one spot. Much amusement will be his when he learns there are just nineteen other entrances, and that some of them are much more extensive than this one. If you go to the exposition by any of the excursion trains which run into the terminal station on the grounds you will have a choice of twenty-six windows at which to buy your ticket and of ninety-six turnstiles through which to pass. If you go by the steamship line on landing at the big pier—the largest in the world—you will be confronted by a score of ticket windows and an even hundred turnstiles. In all there are 128 ticket windows and 206 turnstiles.

What an enormous crowd they could care for if the people would only come in steadily at the all day long! But the people don't come in that way, and the surprisingly large number of ticket booths and entrances is provided so that there may be no more than tolerable crowding at the rush hours. A good many of these 206 entrances are used exclusively by the people who have passes, the number of these forming a persons being about 70,000. Four-fifths of them are exhibitors and their assistants or, other people employed on the grounds.

When one goes about the exposition he is impressed by the magnitude of the operations. I do not need to tell you how big the buildings are. You have read all that many times—you know even the minor structures are measured by the acre—but you will never realize their vastness till you have seen them. You will not perfectly appreciate their proportions till you have seen them many times. They are like mountains in one respect. They possess the optical delusiveness which accompanies great height or size. For instance, from the upper end of the grounds the golden dome of the Administration building and the mighty expanse of the Manufactures or main building appear but a little distance away. The stranger has no doubt of his ability to walk to these in two or three minutes. Yet they are nearly a mile and a quarter distant in a direct line. Every view and every building on the grounds deceives you in the same way.

TOUCHING UP THE GREAT HORSE.

If you stand at the portcoyle and look up the central basin at the Administration building your estimate of the distance will be, probably, two or three hundred yards. When you walk it you will find it the longest 900 yards you ever saw. The exact distance is 1,687 feet, or more than a third of a mile. Halfway, the Administration building will not seem to you a large structure. It is so compact, so symmetrical, so perfect and so proportioned by such magnificent palaces that your eye is deceived. Consult your guide-book and you will find that it is 202 feet square, which means about an acre and more than an acre and a half of ground. Each of the four pavilions which form its corners is eighty-four feet square, in itself as large as a good city block. Above the pavilions the beautiful dome rises 260 feet. How vast must be the surrounding palaces when they are able to dwarf an immense structure like this!

Turning your eye now toward the lake the golden statue of the Republic is the most striking object in view. It is beautiful, but does not seem very large. Approach it, and it appears to grow a foot taller with every step you take. When half way down the basin you see what you hitherto failed to notice: A workman is perched upon the head of the giant goddess, regilding a bit of her wreath. There is plenty of room for him within the circlet, and when he permits his leg to dangle over the golden forehead his foot does not reach her eyebrows!

So it is with the whole fair stairway. On one side of the great basin, looking across at the Agricultural palace, are a pair of colossal horses. You probably would not notice their enormous size if a couple of painters did not come up, and while one puts a ladder against the animal's body and climbs up it to his back, another stands under the huge trunk with room to spare. Colossal buildings require colossal statuary, and the Chicago people who have provided the work and shouldered the burden and the responsibility found it required a thick and fast-running stream of golden dollars to carry it through. The fair is just twice as big as the most sanguine ones made it, and instead of costing them ten millions of money it has cost them twenty millions.

Figures sometimes fail to express vastness, but twenty millions of dollars may be understood. Compare this sum with the cost of the finest public or private building in your section of the country. Add to this such summaries as two thousand policemen to guard the hundred and fifty millions of treasure here gathered and on which fifty millions of insurance is carried, three thousand employes of the restaurants which are to feed the people, fifteen hundred young men to wheel visitors about in rolling-chairs, and you begin to realize the enormous proportions of the Columbian exposition.

But the only true way to realize its bigness—and its beauty as well—is to see it for yourself. WALTER WELLMAN.

THAT OFFICE BOY.

A New York Specimen That Was Up to Snuff.

Everybody knows what the New York office boy is. He always comes from the east side, and he always owns the office within a week after he has entered it. He has his own ideas about dignity, and it is a calamity to change or attempt to modify them. His manifestations of "cussedness" are various. The writer was in the law office of a friend of his other day when an elderly gentleman entered and addressed himself to the black eyed office boy guarding the rail before the inner rooms.

"Is Mr. C—— in?" asked the white haired and venerable citizen.

"What's your name?" asked the boy coolly.

"I asked you if Mr. C—— were in," said he of the old school reprovingly.

"What's your name?" repeated the autocratic youth, looking the other in the eye.

"Tell him I want to see him," answered the venerable caller. "I came to see if Mr. C—— were in. That is what I asked you. That is what I want to know."

"Well, what's your name, then?" asked the boy placidly.

"Is he in?" demanded the old man sternly.

"What's your name?" repeated the boy calmly.

The venerable citizen looked around and then gave a gesture of impatience.

"I'm Mr. Brown," he said in a subdued voice.

"Well, you can't see him," said the czar of that office in a voice in which there was decision, but no trace of triumph.

"Why?" asked the conquered New Yorker.

"Because he's engaged."

"Well, take my name in and see if he won't see me."

"He's engaged."

"I don't care if he is. Take my name to him."

"I can't."

"Why not?"

"He's engaged."

"Well, young man, you can go into his private office and leave my card, can't you?"

"No, sir."

"Why not?"

"Can't."

"Why not?" with great sternness.

"Because he's engaged on a case in Boston and won't be in town till tomorrow." And the boy began to question another visitor in the coolest of cool manners.

The writer had an experience with the same boy. He called up the lawyer's office by telephone.

"Is Mr. C—— in?" he asked.

"No, sir," replied the boy. "What's your name?"

"Oh, never mind the name, I'll call him up again."

"But what's your name?" asked the boy again. "He may want to know."

"Never mind. I won't bother you to tell him. I'll call him up again or come in again."

"But what's your name?" persisted the boy.

"Never mind, I say," said the other, prepared to bang up the receiver in a temper.

"All right, Mr. E——," said the boy sweetly, that was the right name.—Detroit Free Press.

His Opportunity.

It sometimes happened during the era of "reconstruction" in South Carolina that the quondam slave was promoted above his former master. So it happened that Pompey Simkins, a coal black negro, became a trial justice."

I was not long before Pompey had a case before him. When the jury arose and began moving toward the adjoining room for consultation, one of the lawyers interposed and said, "May it please your honor, you have not charged the jury."

Whereupon Judge Pompey gathered up himself, and with all possible dignity said: "Gen'men of dis jury, as dis is de first time I have had yo' befo' me, I cha'ge each ove' yo' one dollah and a half."—Youth's Companion.

Too Much.

"Willie," said Bob one evening as we were unostentatiously seated upon a friendly bumper, "I think that's how we were seated; anyhow we were seated without any ostentatiousness). "Willie," he repeated meditatively, "we have missed our position and ought to take another shot at it."

"How's that, Bob?" said I interrogatively. "As long as we are able to run into debt, I should be satisfied."

"Willie," said Bob very severely, "do not speak in such trifling terms of the greatest American institution in America." Then he added philosophically: "Debt is but a short, intermissable hill. It's easy to run down, but you have to walk back."

I made a few incandescent remarks to the effect that I'd rather stay at the bottom or take the car back. But Bob interrupted me and favored me with one of his angelic looks. "Willie, said he theatrically, "I care not for self-denial. Then in a burst of generosity: "You may have them as long as you lend me an occasional V. But what I do want is fame. Now the only way for me to acquire fame is to train my voice and become a singer."

"But, Bob," said I.

"No. Every singer is famous."

"Oh."

"Yes. Is not every singer a person of note?"

"Yes, Bob," and I fell lifeless on the cold, hard curbstone.—F. Charles Hoy.

IN THE LAND OF THE POLITE CHINESE.

An Interesting Lecture at Grace Church Last Evening on China and the Chinese.—A Boy is a Treasure, but Girls Don't Count.—Other Curious Customs.

In the invitation of the Rev. E. M. Bodman, rector of Grace church, the Rev. F. L. Hawk Pott, missionary to China, came to Plainfield last evening and gave a very interesting talk on China and the Chinese, in Grace church.

Mr. Pott said that during his six years in China he had been among the young people almost entirely, being in charge of St. John's College. "In China boys are thought more of than girls, and when a boy is born there is much rejoicing in the household. When girls are born they are often put to death. If a Chinaman has four girls and a fifth is born he takes it as a sign of great calamity. There is a lack of appreciation, such as is not manifested here, of female children. If you meet a Chinaman and ask him how many children he has, if he has a girl he will answer, "I have none, only a little girl." The girls are not educated, but the boys are sent to school nearly every day in the year until they are 16 years old. The girl is kept at home to learn to keep the house tidy and sew, etc., so that when she gets married she can take care of her husband's house and be in reality what they call her: "a little star at home."

The birth of a boy in a family is a cause of great rejoicing, and eggs are colored, very much like our Easter eggs, and sent around to the proud father's friends, who then go to the house laden with gifts for the new born. The boy is taken to a fortune teller and if it is told of him that he is to be taken off by the evil spirit the parents will taken the boy home, bore holes in his ears and place ear rings in them, saying, "If the spirit comes after him it will see the rings in his ears, and, thinking it is a girl, leave him here."

The cruel process of making girls' feet small is very painful. A little girl's feet are bandaged until the toes bend underneath. A girl sitting and crying in the front door is a familiar sight in China. When asked why she is crying, you are informed that the old woman who tightens the bandages has just been there. Boy's feet while young when he enters school, for the teachers are very tyrannical and the boy has to attend school every day in the year. Their studies are very peculiar, the development of the memory being the main thing. He also taught three things—obedience, politeness and diligence.

A girl's trouble begins when she is married. The girls marry at 14 and the boys at 16. The match is made by the parents and the young people have nothing to do with it, and perhaps have never seen each other until the day they are married. It is a day of rejoicing for the boy, for on that day he becomes a man and is permitted to wear a man's costume. For the bride it is a day of weeping. Almost always if you meet a wedding party you will hear sobs as you pass the red chair. A bride is always carried in a red chair, covered with red embroidery, so that she can't be seen. The bride weeps because she is going to live with her mother-in-law, whose privilege it is to torture and abuse the young wife, sometimes killing her. The bride is taken to the bridal chamber where she receives congratulations, something of this sort: "How big her feet are!" "Hasn't she an ugly form!" These remarks are kept up for some time, but the bride is not allowed to speak. An old woman stands by her side, whose duty it is to answer all questions. Every time she answers a question she takes hold of the bride's hands and works her arms up and down like pump-handles. It is the duty of the mother-in law to make her son's wife miserable. If she kills her the son can say nothing, for he is taught piety while young and to revere one's mother; would not do. If a woman does kill her daughter-in-law she has only to say she will buy a coffin for the body. This is the only reparation necessary. If a man kills his wife he is fined ten dollars, but if a woman kills her husband she is put to death in a most cruel manner. She is sliced in pieces. Pieces of flesh are cut off until she dies from pain.

St. Mary's Orphanage has been founded there where we take little girls and educate them. We have now 30 girls in the school. They are trained as nurses and taught household duties. We get them by paying 20 cents to the mother for bringing them to us. They are glad to get rid of all girl babies. In St. John's College we teach them English and train the boys to become missionaries."

SQUIRRELS AND MATCHES.

Cause a Fire in a Park Avenue Barber Shop.

A Park avenue barber's pet squirrels came near causing the burning out of his place early this morning. They got out of the cage during the night and managed to get in a drawer where matches are kept.

In trying to eat the matches the squirrels ignited them, setting fire to the drawer, which was ablaze when the shop was opened at seven o'clock. The flames were easily extinguished.

MAY PUT DOWN ITS POLES.

But They Will Have to Take the Place of Others.

Mr. French stopped the street railway employes from erecting poles in front of his property, yesterday, because the company did not keep its agreement with him, but commenced to dig the holes without asking him where he desired to have them located. Mr. French says the company permission to plant the poles provided he was consulted in regard to the location. As the company did not keep its agreement he stopped them.

Superintendent Passmore called on Mr. French this morning and Mr. French consented to allow the poles put down in place of the electric light poles, which will be removed and their wires will be run at the top of the street railway poles.

Mr. Alex Thorn, on the opposite side of the street, also agreed to let the poles be placed in place of the electric light poles.

MUST BE IN THE AIR.

There is Surely an Epidemic of Runaways in Plainfield.

Last evening as Mr. Thomas McGann of Washingtonville attempted to step into his wagon in front of Mr. Marcikey's house on New street, his horse gave a sudden jump and Mr. McGann was thrown down. His head struck the curbing, cutting a painful gash in his forehead. He became unconscious from the blow. When he recovered he was taken to the home of his son, Z. J. McGann of Grandy street, who took him to Dr. Carman's office, where the wound was dressed. The horse ran away and was caught on Greenbrook road, when Marshal Pangborn took care of it until the owner was found.

BREVITIES.

—Friday will be bargain day at White's.

—Allen has a new announcement today, reasonable for housekeepers.

—The Plainfield Athletic Club will give another social dance on Monday night.

—Remember Dr. Hurlbut's lecture tonight in the Methodist Episcopal church, with eighty stereopticon illustrations.

—A lady was knocked down at the corner of Second street and Park avenue, about eight o'clock last evening, by a bicyclist. She was not seriously hurt.

—The petition of Mr. F. M. French before the Electrical Subway Commission, at Trenton, to have the work in the street railway past his place stopped, was denied.

—All the delinquent taxpayers, on whose furniture Delinquent Tax Collector Smalley has a right, have paid the amount of their delinquency and the levies have been removed.

—Mr. Andrew McArdle, who has charge of the Foundry Department at the Pond Machine Tool Works, wishes us to say that the "drop" which is said to crush work was invented by Thomas McCauley, a few days ago, cut his leg, while near it, a place Mr. McArdle says, the man had no business to be, and that the concern does not allow any one near the drop while it is raised.

—Messrs. J. P. Mumbie, H. Zaegerding and J. A. Blair objected, yesterday, to the placing of poles, for the street railway, in front of their places. This morning they were greatly surprised to find the poles were all up. Marshal Pangborn watched to see that they did not do the work at night, until one o'clock, when he went home. The work was done between that time and daylight.

—Tuesday Philip Juinlen, an old man who hobbled along on crutchers, and who said he was trying to reach the late John L. Dey's place at Bernardsville reached the borough from Newark. The old man became exhausted and had to stop in the borough for rest. Mr. William G. Wright of Somerset street kindly took him in and kept him until this morning, when, finding he could get no further, Overseer of the Poor Mackay paid his fare back to Newark.

Chancellor Decides in Favor of Mr. Bird.

Yesterday, before Chancellor McGill, at Jersey City, the case of Mr. F. W. Bird of East Front street against the Smalleys was argued. Mr. Bird sued for $75, which he claimed was due him from the late Daniel I. Smalley, with whom Mr. Bird was formerly in partnership. The Chancellor decided in favor of Mr. Bird, giving him judgment for the full amount. Mr. Bird's counsel, Codrington & Codrington, represented the Smalleys, and Mr. J. P. Powers was counsel for Mr. Bird.

President Rockefellow Looking after the City's Health.

President of the Board of Health George W. Rockefellow this morning sent word to Street Commissioner Meeker to see that Mr. Beck caps the water from running from his saloon on East Second street. The water becomes stagnant around the corner of Park avenue from which a disagreeable odor arises, and it also breeds diseases.

The Plainfield Riding Club.

The members of the Plainfield Riding Club will hold a business meeting tomorrow night for permanent organization. Sixteen members were present at the drill at the Rink last night, led by Mr. Holly.

THE INFANTA EULALIA.

SPAIN'S FAIR INFANTA,

THE DONA EULALIA, WHO IS NOW OUR GUEST.

Sketch of the Interesting Young Woman Who Is Now the Social Star In America.—Not Exactly Beautiful, but a Fine Looking Daughter of Spain.

The Infanta Eulalia, aunt of the young king of Spain and his royal highness' representative at the World's fair, is now the guest of the American people. She speaks English, pronounces her name "A-yu-lah lee-ah," is 30 years old and is a fine looking Spanish woman.

Her royal highness Princess Maria Eulalia Francisca d'Assis Margarita Roberta Isabella Francisca de Paula Ceristina Maria de la Piedad, etc., daughter of Isabella II. has in her veins the blood of the Bourbons. Her mother, the exiled queen of Spain, is a daughter of Ferdinand VII. Isabella reigned until 1868, when the people of Madrid arose. She was deposed and sent off to France, and there she has since lived.

The Infanta Eulalia was born in Madrid on February 12, 1864, and she was only four years old when her mother was forced to flee from Madrid. Queen Isabella took her children with her. Her son, Alfonso XII., was sent to school in England.

When Alfonso XII became the sovereign of Spain, permission was granted to his royal sisters to return to Spain, but, as that privilege was denied to the queen mother, they remained in Paris with her during their girlhood.

A husband was found for the Infanta Eulalia among her own kinsmen. Her cousin, Antonio Luis Ellipo Maria, prince of Bourbon-Orleans and son of the late Duke de Montpensier, was chosen. He was two years her junior, having been born in Seville in 1866. They were married in Madrid on March 6, 1886, and that city has since been their home. They have two sons—Alfonso, seven years old, and Luis Fernando, five years old. The prince, who is an infante of Spain, is lieutenant colonel of the princess regiment of hussars and a chevalier of the Order of the Golden Fleece. He accompanies his wife on her American tour.

The title infants is borne by all the daughters of the kings of Spain and Portugal except the eldest. While princess Eulalia can hardly be described as beautiful, yet she has a very genial and winning expression, and her eyes in particular are very fine. She likewise has magnificent hair, which she usually wears in a style that is at once startling and attractive. Those who knew her mother as a young woman describe her as a very fascinating likeness of the old queen. She is a particular favorite at Madrid, where her appearance in the generally otherwise untecorated royal box of the bull fighting arena invariably constitutes the signal for a display of loyalty and enthusiasm. She is equally well liked in Paris.

On Saturday the infanta called upon President and Mrs. Cleveland, and an elaborate social programme has been outlined for her entertainment.

Coal Cars Wrecked.

There were two wrecks on the railroad near Perth Amboy yesterday. Six P. & R. gondola coal cars were crushed into splinters. In the other wreck two cars were smashed. The accident was caused by the trains dividing and them coming together again. Both happened on the side tracks and did not block the main line.

ALL IN AT THE FINISH.

Horses and Drivers Wind up a Race in a Ditch.

There was a disastrous ending yesterday afternoon of a race between Mr. Pope's water wagon and Higgins' stage. Broadway was the course used. It seemed to be nip and tuck as to who would win for a time, and, but for the fact that there was an excavation in the road way, where Italians were at work, the water wagon team would no doubt have won. The driver did not see the trench. He was first made aware of its existence when the front wheels struck it. Driver, wagon and horses were all mixed up. The wagon was damaged, but the driver and horses escaped injury. The driver caught no injury but not so the employer's wrath, who discharged him for his carelessness. The Italians at work in the ditch evidently thought there was an earthquake for they crawled out of the ditch and ran down the street.

MRS. CLARK RETURNS.

She Says She Went to Somerville to Visit Friends.

Mrs. Hannah Clark of Westfield, who disappeared from home two weeks ago, has returned. It seems that Mr. H. Clark swore out a warrant against John Johnson for assault and battery. He was arrested, but was released on bail. After being released he made a threat that he would get Mrs. Clark out of the way so she could not appear against him. A friend of Mrs. Clark's heard of the threat. His wife said she would follow in a few minutes. He refused to give any reason for going and took her little child with her. Mrs. Harry Connett of this city is a sister of Mr. Clark.

PERSONAL.

Editor Aaron M. Powell of East Sixth street is stopping at the South Shore Hotel, Chicago.

The Rev. Mr. Honeyman of Somerset street, after nine weeks of illness from the grip, is able to be out doors.

Chief T. O. Doane of this city was present, yesterday, at the parade and inspection of Governor's Ira departments.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Brown, who have been making their home on Sycamore avenue, North Plainfield, are at the Albion.

The family of Mr. C. J. Taggart of Sycamore avenue, North Plainfield, who have been in New York for the Winter, have returned to their home in the borough.

The Rev. K. P. Ketcham of this city, who is attending the Presbyterian Assembly in Washington, D. C., preached in the Fifth Congregational church Sunday morning.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall lectured yesterday afternoon at All Soul's church, Park avenue, on the "Influence of Journalism on Mind and Morals." It was the last of the afternoon course and was well attended.

Ex-marshal of the borough, George F. Bonker, died at his home, on Somerset street, last night. He caught cold while building a bridge across the Passaic river, a few weeks ago, and this caused spinal meningitis, which proved fatal. He was a hoopmaker by trade and used to work for his father at hoopmaking on Harmony street. A wife and one child survive him.

AMONG THE BICYCLERS.

Crescent League Wheelmen to Hold a Meeting To-Night.

PLAINFIELD Crescent League wheelmen will meet to-night to admit several new members into their ranks. The members will also take a run, probably to Rahway.

Riders who go through Westfield after dark should have their lanterns lighted, as otherwise they are liable to get into trouble, for the Westfield authorities are enforcing the ordinance compelling wheelmen to carry bells and lighted lamps.

The Ladies Cycle Club will hold a run to-morrow, under the leadership of Captain Lilian Fritts, to Van Court Inn, Cranford, where they will lunch and rest before the ride home.

A large number of the wheelmen entered in the Irvington-Milburn race for Decoration Day are boarding at hotels along the course and are taking daily practice over the route. One club which has several men entered has gone from strength up in evidence gymnasium. Truly great efforts are being made to capture the honor of winning the 25 mile race over New Jersey's great course.

The Roadsters of Rahway are improving their already fine track by widening it. For the advantage of the spectators they are cutting away the bank which formerly obstructed a view of a portion of the track. Captain Calhoun has a scheme, which he hopes to successfully carry through, which will enable many good riders who cannot find opportunity to train during the day, to train at night. To accomplish this he proposes to light the Roadsters' track by four 10,000 candle power electric search lights, so arranged that they will shine only on the riders' back. The work of improving the track itself will be finished before the Decoration Day meet, and the lighting will be accomplished later on.

DIDN'T KNOW HE HAD SMALL-POX.

He Went to His Boarding-House and Now Others Are Ill.

James Gehan, employed at the Wheeler Condenser Company Works in Carteret, near Rahway, was taken ill early last week and called a physician, who told him he had malaria. He went afterwards to Perth Amboy and Bayonne. At the latter place he was ill again and saw a doctor, who told him he had small-pox and advised him to seek quarantine. Gehan returned to Carteret and went directly to his boarding-house, kept by Mrs. Allen. Here the boarders, who are employed as different places.

It was reported Saturday that Gehan had small-pox. The town Health Board was notified, but, it is said, did not quarantine the place till Tuesday. Another man became ill Monday and other cases are suspected.

So many have been exposed it is feared the disease will spread.

The State Health Board has sent inspectors to Carteret to quarantine the boarding-house. The residents of the village are much worried.

IS IT MURDER!

A Body Found in Cook's Woods Near Perth Amboy.

The body of a man was found Tuesday evening by Mr. Knohs in Cook's woods, about a mile from Perth Amboy. From the surroundings and the evidence of efforts to conceal it, there is suspicion that the man was murdered. There is a hole in the head produced by a pistol ball of large size, but no weapon has been found.

It was first thought the man was a Dane named Daubring, who has been missing from Perth Amboy several days, but persons who knew Daubring failed to identify the body, which is that of a man about thirty-five. He was five feet eight inches tall and weighed about 175 pounds. His clothes are good, his linen clean, and it is thought he was a travelling salesman.

Coroner Burke is preparing to hold an inquest and Detectives Oliver and Russell are investigating.

Some persons say they saw the man in Perth Amboy, Monday. A pass-book and papers were found on the body, but nothing to disclose his name or residence.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Health Needs in American Cities.

Dr. John S. Billings of the surgeon general's office in Washington contributes to The Forum a paper defining the present needs of American cities, great and small, in the matter of sanitation. The first need he considers to be accurate and complete vital statistics. The death rate per 1,000 among infants, middle aged and old people should be kept in separate lists, also the race, color and residential locality of each individual. It has been found, for instance, that the death rate of the negro population is far greater than that of the white. In Washington it is almost twice as large. A city may therefore get the name of being unhealthful when it merely has a large population of poor and shiftless negroes.

From the strictly sanitary point of view the first need of a city is an abundant supply of pure water. The danger from contamination of their water supply is constantly increasing in the vicinity of all our cities as the population is crowded together closer, and the care of every city at once should be to see to it that the sources of its water supply are given to its own control, with full power to abate any nuisances, actual or threatened, for the danger that lurks in impure water is the most deadly of all.

The perfect sewerage is another crying want in our American municipal system. Illustrations of the worst sewerage system on earth are to be found not a few in our towns. Here is another dangerous menace to life and health. Dr. Billings points out next that many European cities have municipal bathhouses and washhouses. They are not charities at all. Poor women pay a small but sufficient fee and take their weekly wash to the public laundry, where hot and cold water, tubs, drying rooms and ironing rooms are provided. They do their laundry work and take the renovated linen home, with the unpleasantness and inconvenience of clothes washing all removed from their homes. Even rich people would be glad of such accommodations.

At the public bathhouses working people may go, pay a small fee and wash themselves clean. In some towns, too, the municipal government owns the abattoirs and keeps them under strict surveillance from the sanitary point of view. Our cities want small hospitals for the treatment of contagious diseases, such hospitals that respectable, well to do parents can turn over to them their children or any member of their families stricken with diphtheria, scarlet fever or other contagious disease, knowing that they will get the best of care, while there will thus be no danger that the contagion will spread among other members of the household. By such regulations as these contagious diseases could be stamped out.

Dr. Billings would have in each city a public mortuary, with convenient branches. These would be houses or chapels perhaps, to which the poor citizens could convey the bodies of their dead for burial. They would pay a proper fee, and the funeral services would be conducted at the mortuary. The body would be removed thither immediately after death, to be kept till the funeral, thus preventing the danger and inconvenience of holding it for a day or two in the tenement home with only two rooms.

A little girl has lately gone crazy in the effort to collect 1,000,000 stamps. It was more than she could collect in such compass. Somebody who ought to have been sentenced to a term of imprisonment started a foolish story long ago that the United States government would pay a reward of $500 to anybody who would collect 1,000,000 stamps. The story was a huge lie, but the bigger a lie is the more people believe it. Thousands of children began to collect 1,000,000 stamps. One or two of them actually succeeded, at an expense of time and energy that would have laid the foundation of a $1,000,000 fortune. After they had got the stamps it was only to find that nobody ever had offered any premium whatever for the collection, and that the whole story was a cruel hoax. So it is. Nobody anywhere ever offered $500 or any other sum for 1,000,000 stamps. Nobody ever will. The story is fit to be classed along with the tale of the Ohio cow that gave black milk.

The Philadelphia Public Ledger prints a tabulated statement of the national debt from 1865 to 1892. July 1, 1865, the debt was $2,807,383,937.55. July 1, 1892, it had been reduced to $961,710,848. The united fortunes of a dozen of our richest millionaires could wipe the whole sum out. The Ledger remarks: "This extraordinary extinguishment of the government's obligations shows something of the wonderful resources of the country and the folly of the talk of national bankruptcy."

In Great Britain the wage earning class spends annually $425,000,000 in intoxicating drinks. In Belgium an employer made an experiment by means of stamped coins, which he distributed to his men in wages. He found in the next two days that the men had spent half their earnings in the liquor shops. We are informed that a temperance movement has started in Belgium, and that the proceedings during the recent strikes do not look like it.

LIFTS TREASON'S FLAG

Dr. Birch's Scathing Arraignment of Dr. Briggs.

THE HERESY APPEAL CASE BEGUN

Dr. Briggs Pleads For More Time—He Protests Against Being Tried on the Same Charge, and Makes Technical Points In Regard to the Appeal.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—When the Presbyterian general assembly convened at 10 o'clock this morning there was even a greater crowd of spectators than on the first day. When Dr. Briggs came in he took his usual seat looking more than ever what pale and wearied. The hearing of the appeal was taken up and is still in progress.

DR. BRIGGS.

The opening of the case was given by Chairman Birch and Dr. Briggs. As Dr Briggs ascended the platform the quiet of the vast audience was in tense. His remarks were preliminary and his opening sentence was spoken with a distinctness that penetrated the entire house. "I regret," said he, "that I have got in this hot weather with a request for more time."

The importance of the subject, however, requires it, and I am glad the committee has conceded it. I will shorten it so far as I can. My argument on the basis of the printed appeal will consume hours, and I have allowed myself half an hour in which to reply to any argument which I may not have anticipated."

Dr. Briggs then went on to say that he had a number of complaints now before the New York synod and still more to be presented to it, and he thought he ought to have the permission to have them read the same as was given, as he asserted, to the other side. With the understanding that he would be permitted to have them printed, Dr. Briggs said that he would not tire the assembly in reading them then.

Dr. Briggs remained standing, as if uncertain to proceed or not, but the moderator cut short any intention Dr. Briggs may have had of continuing, by saying, "The time is accepted."

The assembly thus having given Dr. Briggs all he asked, Rev. Dr. W. F. Birch, chairman of the prosecuting committee, took the floor. He said it was proper for the purpose of saving time and because of the moral, legal and ecclesiastical standpoint on which the appeal placed the appellant, that a brief abstract of the argument prepared should be given.

The Attack Begins.

After touching upon the history of the case, Dr. Birch said:

We are here to invoke this supreme court to put an end to the dissension and disputation which the New York presbytery vainly endeavored to silence, first by the dismissal of the case against Dr. Briggs, and second by the acquittal of Dr. Briggs, qualifying both the dismissal and the acquittal by the positive disclaimer of any approval of the controverted statements of the inaugural address, as to critical or theological views and modes of expression.

The form in which the final judgment of the presbytery was returned, gives the impression that the acceptance of Professor Briggs were unimportant and that no essential doctrine had been out raised. There has been a tendency to minimize the full force of the indictment. The errors charged are fundamental. The charges:

First—To the question as to the supreme and only authority in matters of faith and practice.

Second—To the question as to the inerrancy or truthfulness of the inspired word of God.

Third—To the historical validity of the Old Testament.

Fourth—As to the fulfillment of Messianic prediction, a question of supreme importance as it is bearing upon the view which is taken of the truthfulness of Scripture and of the truthfulness of God.

Fifth—And lastly, there is the doctrine of redemption concerning which it has been alleged that Professor Briggs' teachings have been especially erroneous and hurtful, but which could only be partially tried in the lower court.

Here is a series of errors covering the whole fundamental structure of our faith. It is a question purely doctrinal and therefore of universal importance, so far as Presbyterianism is concerned. It can be finally settled by no presbytery or synod, but requires the decision of the presbytery and church in its highest court.

In reply to the argument that an appeal cannot be taken from a verdict of acquittal, Mr. Birch said that it was equivalent to a claim that a part of the church was greater than the whole. "The sitting of this venerable court today in this city," said he, "as the capital of the nation, is due to the fact that it took treasure and blood to establish the truth: that such a doctrine in our political system was nothing else than treason against the government. So does the court know that he who teaches that the power of the general assembly can be nullified by the will of a single presbytery, lifts the banner of treason against the presbytery and church."

Dr. Birch then went on to say that of those who have supported Dr. Briggs, whether from pulpit, press or seminary, not one in 100 would subscribe to the inaugural address, all of which proved that Dr. Briggs did not properly represent the fundamental theological opinions of the Presbyterian church.

Dr. Birch concluded his address by referring to the statement that had been made that the Presbyterian church was justified in tolerating what in other churches is called broad church principles, in defence of the teachings of holy scripture and church standards. This doctrine he refuted.

"With all respect to the accused in this case," said Dr. Birch, "I am ready to say that his personal interest is as nothing in comparison to the interest of the church in whose name he has been touching. The question what is really Presbyterian doctrine is to be answered not for ourselves alone, but for all American Presbyterians, both now and for some years to come, and must be answered by the whole church. Here your appellant, as the spokesman of hundreds of thousands of Presbyterians, in the name of law and order, of denominational loyalty, of scripture precept and biblical example, in the name of the historic, orthodox, evangelical, constitutional, missionary Presbyterian branch of the church, beseeches this venerable court to bless the church and the world, and to exercise its authority in a crisis in its interests as to be remembered for a day of judgment out of order. Thus your honorable body will protect our possession from what one of your number, Dr. Herrick Johnson, has called the peril of a troublous time that would empty our souls of conviction and our lives of victory."

Dr. Briggs For Dr. Briggs.

When Mr. Briggs arose to reply to the opening of the prosecution committee, and to protest against the entertaining of the appeal by the general assembly, he stated the question, and quoted the law which prohibits the amendment of ecclesiastical counsel in such cases, saying that if permitted to do so, he would have employed such professional counsel, for the reason that it was doubtful if he could present his case as it ought to be done. This situation was one that was forced upon him by the book of discipline, which made it necessary for him to rise above personal considerations, and to appear as the attorney for Dr. Briggs. The question before the assembly was not, he said, whether or not Dr. Briggs' teachings were proper, but whether or not the appeal could be lawfully entertained. The law of the case at this stage forbade the consideration of its merits, and he expressed regret that the prosecution had not observed this law. The same law constrained the commissioners or judges not to consider the controversies in question at this time, but simply to determine the legality of the appeal.

The first thing to be decided was whether the form of the appeal was correct, not whether any matters existed which might justify the sustaining of the appeal.

The second ground upon which the appellee opposed the entertaining of the appeal was that it was a well established principle of law that a public prosecutor could not appeal from a verdict of acquittal. The defendant was accused of heresy and Dr. Briggs sketched the legal and ecclesiastical definitions of heresy, and the history of the manner of dealing with it.

Now, he said, the punishment for the crime of heresy might not deprive a man of his life, limb or liberty, but the punishment might affect or destroy a man's ecclesiastical life, and therefore became a pertinent question whether or not a man should be twice placed in jeopardy of his ecclesiastical life after having been fully tried and acquitted.

"A much more fundamental question was at stake," said Dr. Briggs, "than any principles of law or doctrine that had yet been discussed, that was whether the Presbyterian church should be considered as a merely voluntary religious society or a church of Jesus Christ."

It was the old law of the land, he said, that no man should be twice tried for the same offense. The New York presbytery, under orders of the general assembly, tried Dr. Briggs for the crime of heresy and acquitted him. Was the Presbyterian church ready to ignore or violate that well settled principle found by centuries of observation and experience to be essential to the well being of the people without good and sufficient cause? It was true, the church did not punish a minister in his physical being, but to deprive a minister, to deprive him of his ecclesiastical life, was to inflict a punishment far more cruel than that permitted in the civil courts.

Dr. Briggs then discussed the law of appeals. This, he asserted, could be invoked only by parties original to the case and aggrieved parties.

Dr. Briggs spoke an hour and a half.

Gasoline Cars In a Smashup.

BURLINGTON, Wis., May 25.—A freight train on the Wisconsin Central road was wrecked with disastrous results at Gray's Lake. Three tank cars filled with gasoline were burst and the gasoline leaked out and saturated the track and covered the water on either side of the track. Some one threw a lighted match on an instant the wrecking crew and spectators were surrounded by flames. A number of spectators were terribly burned. Conductor R. Dehmer and Tyler Thompson, of Lake Strachem were caught in a barbed wire fence in trying to escape and had their clothes burned off. A section hand was found lifeless, with his face down in the water.

Mitchell Was O'Connor.

BOSTON, May 25.—A dispatch was received here stating that the mysterious Mitchell, the burglar, who was shot in Lancaster, Pa., and died in the Pennsylvania hospitall, Philadelphia, had been identified by his brother as Michael O'Connor of New York, one of the convicts who made their escape through the sewer from the Massachusetts state prison. This is one of the men that Convict Lynch stated was on the ill fated Narcotic.

Foreigners Buy Edison Stock.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The General Electric company has disposed of its treasury holdings of Edison Illuminating company of New York, estimated at 15,000 shares, to Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who made the purchase for European clients. This transaction furnishes the Electric company with more than $1,500,000 in cash.

THE FAIR IS PAYING NOW.

Crowds Are Coming and the Ticket Sellers Are Busy.

SOME NEW ELECTRICAL WONDERS.

If the Gates Are Opened Sunday an Injunction Will Be Demanded—Matney's Pretty Building a Center of Attraction. A Committeeman Resigns.

CHICAGO, May 25.—People outside of Chicago are beginning to realize that the great World's Columbian exposition is open and business at the ticket offices is beginning to boom. The hotel proprietors, too, are realizing the fact and their hostelries, which were vacant of lodgers during the first fortnight of the fair, are fast filling up with out of town people. Since the opening day almost $20,000 of people have paid for admission to the White City, and the attendance appears to be on a steady increase. The exposition is already making money.

The daily reports received by Auditor Ackerman show that in spite of unfavorable weather and generous treatment of concessionaries, the exposition company is now receiving more than $6,000 a day above the running expenses. As the working force in all departments is being rapidly reduced the surplus will begin to accumulate rapidly within a few days.

The receipts are now more than $16,000 a day, of which from $2,000 to $3,000 comes from concessionaires. If the percentage due from concessionaires were collected daily the income would now be about $20,000. Because many cases it has been found necessary to exercise considerable lenience with concessionaires who have been conducting restaurants and similar places at a gross loss

MAINE'S STATE BUILDING.

Nearly 8,000 men have been dropped from the roll within the past two weeks. Treasurer Seeberger contemplates his bank account, now swelling at the rate of $5,000 a day, with the greatest satisfaction. For more than six months the bottom of his cash box has been almost visible every day. Every resource of the exposition company was exhausted in the effort to complete the buildings in time for the opening exercises, and even then the fair opened with almost $2,000,000 of unpaid bills in the hands of contractors. With payments to them and the income of the fair increasing day by day, these unsettled accounts will soon be taken up.

The Tower of Light.

The formal opening of the Electricity building, which was announced for next Saturday night, will not be given until Thursday or next week. At that time nearly all the exhibitors will be ready. The feature of this display will be the unveiling of the "Tower of Light." This tower is built of cut glass and is 80 feet high. Inside of the tower are 30,000 incandescent lamps. The effect produced is marvelous and can only be described and appreciated when seen. The colonnade around the base is the most superb production in artistic glassware ever shown.

It rivals the finest productions of the leading European manufactories. Cut glass globes and dishes, delicate gossamer glass formations, forms and fancies of every kind, all illuminated with the rays of the incandescent lamps and light reflected from polished mirrors.

The distribution of the electrical conductors to attain the various effects and changes, necessitates careful study, and the combination of kaleidoscopic beauties are almost infinite. These will form no important portion of the exhibit. The lights are all operated from a switchboard, not unlike a key board, concealed in the interior of the shaft. Mr. Luther Stieringer is the author of the device.

District Attorney Milchrist went to Washington to receive instructions regarding the prosecution of the World's officials if they opened the fair on Sunday. In advance of any violation of the law, Attorney General Olney declined to give the district attorney any specific instructions, and informed him that until such a violation had been officially presented, he must use his own discretion. Mr. Milchrist will be here on Sunday, when, if the fair is opened, it is understood that he will go into the court and file an application for an injunction restraining the commissioners from opening the fair on Sunday.

The Fine Tree State's House.

The chief attraction today is Maine's charming little state building in the northeast corner of the fair grounds, which has just been dedicated.

The structure is a typical one, embodying the rasterials found in the different parts of the Pine Tree state. The building, aside from the value of the material used in its construction, cost something over $20,000.

It is handsome, commodious and in every way adapted for the purpose to which it is to be devoted. Without, the appearance is of rugged substantiality, while within, the house is one of the coolest places to be found in the park. It contains many historic state relics, curiosities and numerous exemplifications of products of the state. It has a splendid location and promises to be a favored resort of persons from other states looking for a pleasant retreat.

The action of the national commission in abiding by the new law submitted by the local directory, opening the gates of the fair on Sunday, has caused considerable discussion in that body, and resulted in the resignation of Mr. Massey from the chairmanship of the judiciary committee, which rendered two reports on the Sunday closing question.

LOVED A LILIPUTIAN.

A Philadelphia Father Who Sought Refuge In Rat Poison.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Thomas Cutler is in the New York hospital today getting over the effects of a big dose of rat poison. When he gets well he will be arraigned in the police court, charged with attempting suicide.

Cutler is a Philadelphia father. His girl shook him, and Cutler could see no alternative to his bridal tut-death. He swallowed a dose of paris green and told his landlady. The landlady told a policeman, and the policeman sent for a doctor and told him. Then Cutler was taken to the hospital under arrest. He has a fair chance, it is said, of living.

Cutler is too old for that sort of thing anyhow. He is 32, and according to the statement of his friends, very well educated. He has lived eight years in Mrs. Kirschner's boarding house at 508 West Twenty-ninth street, and is a great favorite there.

It was when the company of Lilliputian actors and actresses played here last summer that he met his fate.

In the person of Miss Pauline Kaefer, a pretty brunette Lilliputian prima donna, the Philadelphian fell in love heels over head at first sight of the divine Pauline, and after that thought and spoke of nothing and nobody else. He worshiped at her shrine early and late. He took her to ride in hansoms, to plays, concerts and museums, until he had spent every cent of the $300 he had in bank against a rainy day.

The fair Pauline smiled upon him in the theater during the performances of "Candy." She snuggled close in the buggy, and on a certain memorable evening, it was said, promised to marry him in June, though she denies this.

On Sunday he went over to see his Pauline. She received him coldly, surveyed him from afar, listened to him with a stare and elevated eyebrows. In short, she shook him. Cutler went home and locked himself in his room. Then he took the poison. When Pauline was told, she laughed and said: "Oh, he has taste in green, has he? What a foolish man! Dear me! Dear me! How very foolish!"

A TOWN QUARANTINED.

Smallpox Raging in Two New Jersey Factory Settlements.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Smallpox has broken out at Carteret and Port Reading, factory towns three miles from Rahway, N. J., where 3,000 men are employed. Two men at Carteret are stricken with the disease. Thomas Degnan's case was diagnosed as malaria. The man subsequently visited Bayonne, N. J., and Brooklyn, N. Y. At the latter place he called on another physician who told him he had smallpox in the worst form. Then he went back to Carteret. Now the town is quarantined.

Four new cases are reported at Port Reading. The fear of an epidemic is increased, because Carteret has no proper drainage. The yellow flag is displayed today throughout Carteret. The people living near the town are flocking to Rahway to be vaccinated.

LONG ISLAND CITY, May 25.—The house of William Green, near Corona, L. I., was burned, together with a stable and extensive hennery. Several incubators, containing about 1,000 eggs in process of hatching, were also burned. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

Tobacco Factory Burned.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The old tobacco factory of D. Buchner & Co., a 6-story building, was burned today. The loss is estimated at $200,000. Full insurance covers the losses. Between 300 and 400 men, women and children were employed in the factory.

Daily Races at Monmouth.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., May 25.—It is reported here that the Monmouth Park Racing association have finally decided to have racing every day this summer, instead of every other day. The information is hailed with delight by the proprietors of the big hotels.

Bank of Deposit Affairs.

NEW YORK, May 25.—At a meeting the stockholders of the Bank of Deposit decided to appoint a board of trustees, made up of four depositors and the president, Mr. Hawkins, who should have power to manage the affairs of the institution.

A SESSION IN SUMMER.

The Latest Surprise Planned by President Cleveland.

FINANCIAL STRAITS DEMAND IT.

The Sherman Silver Bill Will Be Repealed and There Will Be Other Similar Legislation—Work on Tariff Reform Measures to Be Slighted.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The Sun prints the following story from its Washington correspondent:

A midsummer session of congress is the next surprise that the president contemplates presenting to the American people. Ever since March 4 Mr. Cleveland has been making a close and careful study of the unsatisfactory financial condition of the country, and each day's developments have strengthened his belief that the repeal of the Sherman silver purchase act and a general overhauling of the existing financial laws are absolute and immediate necessities.

To New York bankers and party leaders with whom the president has talked during the past few weeks he has fully confided his hopes and fears, and to many of them he has made the definite statement that it will not do to allow the present unfortunate condition of things to be continued until the regular session of congress or even until the early fall.

The recent business failures, many of them occurring after the heroic action of the president in encroaching upon the treasury reserve in order to maintain gold payments, have served to convince him that some more radical and far reaching change is necessary, and one that can be authorized only by congress.

The Midsummer Session.

It is of course not to be expected that the president, Secretary Carlisle or any of the cabinet officers will consent to indorse the statement that a proclamation is in contemplation calling the Fifty-third congress in session during the summer, but there are to be found close friends and advisers of the president who privately circulate the report that nothing is more certain than that congress will be sitting on the 1st of August next for the especial purpose of considering a message which the president will submit, calling attention to the serious financial situation, and mapping out in plain language a plan of remedial legislation.

Ever since the Democratic administration came into power, it has been known that the Fifty-third congress would be called in session before the regular meeting time in December, and of late the belief has become general that September is the month agreed upon for the extra session. It has also been the supposition that the anxiety of the president and the Democrats generally to frame a tariff bill and have it enacted into law, and put it into operation in time for its effects to be felt before the elections of 1894, was the chief cause in the decision now reached.

No Haste For the Tariff Fight.

The truth is, however, that many of the foremost Democrats in the party are in no great haste to begin the tariff fight, for they know that the moment they do they open up a party contest that may or may not end in the repeal of the McKinley law and the passage of a tariff act which will be indorsed by all Democrats. The struggle over the tariff could well be left until the winter, but the demand of the business interests for a rearrangement of the financial laws and permanent settlement of the money question cannot be put off so long.

Several incidents have occurred here lately, indicative that President Cleveland is planning a sort of coup d'etat, with congress as his base of operations.

President Cleveland is seriously contemplating convening the Fifty-third congress in extra session not later than Aug. 1, for the purpose of enacting financial legislation necessitated by the unsatisfactory and alarming condition of the business world.

A Receipt For $77,294,030.19.

WAITING FOR THE INFANTA.

New York Expecting Some Royal Visitors This Afternoon.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The Infanta Eulalie is on her way here from Washington, and the committee of 100 are all in a flutter awaiting her arrival. Word was received from Commander Darle shortly before noon today that the infanta and party had started and would arrive here probably about 4 o'clock today.

At noon a crowd of people had begun to gather at the railroad station in Jersey City, and still another crowd had seized on choice positions at the foot of West Thirty-fourth street, North river, where the royal party will be received by a special committee on reception and taken in carriages, escorted by Troop A, N. G., S. N. Y., to the Hotel Savoy, in the plaza, at Fifty-ninth street and Fifth avenue. Here the princess and suite will be received by the mayor, assisted by the committee of 100 and the subsidiary committee, and gives a formal welcome on behalf of the city. The Saragossa Military band, which accompanied her royal highness from Spain, is waiting on the wharf, and will furnish the inharmonic music at the time of her arrival at the hotel.

Her rooms at the Savoy are all prepared. She and her attendants will occupy the entire parlor floor of the hotel, which is the first above the ground. In all there are 14 large rooms on this floor, and the parlors fronting on the plaza are decorated with plants and the national flags of America and Spain. It has been arranged that when the infanta arrives at the hotel this afternoon the first one to greet her shall be Mayor Gilroy, who will formally welcome her in a few complimentary remarks.

NEWS FROM THE ORIENT.

Chinese Swarming Into Siberia and Invited to Mexico and Brazil.

CALCUTTA, via VANCOUVER, B. C., May 25.—The steamer Oriental on her last trip to Hong Kong was 24 days from London, or, deducting loss of time between London and Hong Kong by traveling, only 20 days and 17 hours. This beats the record, the best previous time being 26 days. The Oriental also broke the record between Singapore and Hong Kong.

The Chinese are immigrating to Siberia in large numbers, 11,123 having landed at Vladivostock since the opening of that port this spring.

Dispatches have been received at Petting from the Mexican and the Brazilian government inviting Chinese to those countries as agricultural laborers. Yang, envoy to the states of Spain and Peru, will be sent to those republics to investigate the matter.

Presidential Appointments.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The president has made the following appointments:

John C. Edwards of Illinois to be deputy solicitor general of the treasury. Samuel Bridgwood of Alabama to be third auditor of the treasury.

Henry C. Stuart of Colorado to be secretary of the legation Guatemala and Honduras and consul general of the United States to Guatemala; Andrew St. John of Pennsylvania to be consul of the United States at Rosario, Peru.

Thomas M. Crocker, collector of customs, port of Huron, Mich.; Theodore R. Lees to be collector of customs at Bridgeton, N. J.; R. J. Loper Baird to be assistant appraiser of merchandise at Philadelphia.

The President's Etiquette Criticised.

HAVANA, May 25.—The news that President Cleveland had not called upon the infanta, in return for the infanta's visit to the White House, has made an unpleasant impression here, and the public journals complain of President Cleveland's attitude toward the royal guest of the United States.

The New Cruiser In Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—The cruiser New York arrived here early this morning.

THE HOUSEHOLD

PACKING AWAY CLOTHING

So That the Winter Garments Shall Be Safe From Moth and Dust.

Having everything in readiness to commence your work, select a sunny day. Put every garment that you are going to pack out doors on the clothes lines, and after the pockets have been turned inside out, the garments whipped free from dust, let them hang for two or three hours in the sun.

Dress skirts will wrinkle less if folded right side out. Dresses should be carefully folded in newspapers, each one separately, and placed in the drawers or trunks with a good sprinkling of fresh cloves between them. The newspapers must be pasted securely to prevent the moth or any of his tribe from entering. In folding men's garments care should be exercised. The sleeves should be filled with newspapers folded flat, and a small handful of cloves should be put in each pocket.

If you do not wish to use newspapers, ask your grocer for a dozen or two of his largest sized manilla bags, such as one-eighth of a barrel of flour comes in. These are of course much easier to use than newspapers, as you do not have to paste but one small end. The garments can be carefully slipped in the bags, which can be used a great many seasons, only the small end being broken when the garments are removed.

The use of tarred paper is very disagreeable to most people, and clothes packed with it retain the repulsive odor for a long time after they are removed from contact with it or with the ill smelling tablets sometimes used. Newspapers, paper bags and cloves are just as beneficial in keeping the moths away as are the obnoxious odors caused by such agencies.

When ready to pack winter millinery, visit a clothing store and obtain some strong and perfect hatboxes and after placing your bonnets and hats in them seal them airtight by pasting strips of paper about the cover. Carpet bugs delight in feasting on birds' wings and millinery ornaments, and it is well to secure the articles.

Fasten muff and fur boxes in the same way.

Moths prefer garments that are filled with dust, and for this reason every housekeeper should use extra care in thoroughly brushing everything and in throwing away all discarded articles which would otherwise afford nests for the pests, says Good Housekeeping, in which is found the foregoing useful advice.

Double Frame For Photographs.

Both frames display a different arrangement of material, color and fringe. A multicolor silk fringe is carried around the three sides of the left hand specimen, which shows a Louis XVI silk in cream striped pink stretched over a piece of stout cardboard and set off with corners in moss green plush edged with fancy galloon and lined with pink satin.

The second banner glitters with a gold fringe, which droops from a band of old red plush in contrast with the inner one in old pink brocade. Back of dark green peking silk. The bamboo sticks incased in linen and pink satin are glued or sewn to the cardboard and joined together with a bow of ribbon, which is entwined for several inches round the stick and finished off with flying streamers.

Window Cleaning.

To begin with, have the windows thoroughly dusted every day when the rest of the room is done—window sills, ledges, sashes and all. The gas burned in the room gives off carbon. Soot comes in winter does the fire, and this together with the dust all lodges in the window. If the windows are thoroughly dusted regularly, they will not require to be washed or cleaned nearly so frequently. When the cleaning is inevitable, have ready a muslin rag full of whiting and two wash leathers. Dust the glass thickly with the whiting, then rub it off thoroughly with a damp—not wet—leather and finally polish it well with a clean dry one. Another excellent method for giving brilliancy to glass is to dampen a cloth with spirits of wine, rub the glass well with this and then polish as before with a clean dry leather.

Ginger Pudding.

Put into a delicately clean pan 5 ounces each of butter and sugar and half a pint of cream, with a tiny pinch of salt. Directly it begins to simmer lift it off the fire and stir in quickly 3 ounces of flour, blending it as smoothly as possible, then replace the pan on the fire and stir it steadily for 7 or 8 minutes, after which lift it off again and stir in 8 whole eggs and lastly 4 ounces of preserved ginger cut up into dice. Stir it thoroughly together, then pour the mixture into a well buttered mold and steam it. It will take about an hour. Serve with a rich custard sauce flavored with the syrup from the preserved ginger. Preserved pineapple makes a delicious pudding if treated in the same way. Nectarines to say this is somewhat rich.

Rice Boiled In Chinese Fashion.

Wash it well in cold water, drain it through a sieve and throw it into boiling water. When pulpy, take it out of the water with a ladle, and putting it into a clean vessel set it near the fire where it will keep hot, but not cook. Let it remain so for 15 minutes or until it becomes white and dry, but not hard.

Golden Buck.

Golden buck is a form of poached egg. For it take some neat squares of hot buttered toast, dust these thickly with freshly grated Parmesan cheese, sprinkle them lightly with cayenne pepper and slip onto each a delicately poached egg and serve very hot.

How to Widen a Narrow Dress Skirt.

A pretty colored brocade evening dress, covered with flounces, was "let out" arranged in a style which will certainly be of assistance in suggesting changes in evening gowns which are not wide enough. It opens on one side the entire length, and under it is inserted a single box plait of pink satin, which reveals itself as the wearer moves. The same treatment has been introduced on the other side, but only from the foot half way up the dress.

HE RUNS THE AUXILIARY.

The Man Who Planned the World's Congresses at Chicago.

The World's fair management has a World's Congress auxiliary, which has arranged for a series of world's conventions during the fair as follows: During May—Woman's Progress, Public Press, Medicine and Surgery. June—Temperance, Moral and Social Reform, Commerce and Finance. July—Music, Literature, Education. August—Engineering, Art, Architecture; Government, Law Reform, Political Science, etc.; General Department, Science and Philosophy. September—Labor, Religion, Missions, Church Societies, Sunday Rest. October—Public Health, Agriculture.

CHARLES C. BONNEY.

Charles C. Bonney, who originated and is in charge of this auxiliary, is a New Yorker and a lawyer and states the object in these words: "To bring all the departments of human progress into harmonious relations with each other in the exposition of 1892, to crown the whole glorious work by the formation and adoption of better and more comprehensive plans than have hitherto been made to promote the progress, prosperity, unity, peace and happiness of the world and to secure the effectual prosecution of such plans by the organization of a series of worldwide fraternities through whose efforts and influence the moral and intellectual forces of mankind may be made dominant throughout the world."

Donegal Castle at the Fair.

Among the many bits of local color at the World's fair none is more quaint and interesting than that known as Donegal castle and the Irish village. They are as interesting for the lessons they teach as for their picturesqueness. Mrs. Ernest Hart, the patroness of the enterprise, is the lady who devised the scheme of co-operative industries that enabled the poverty stricken inhabitants of Donegal to become self supporting and turned their dilapidated village into a thriving town with model cottages and money making industries.

Not only are the Irish on the ground in force to present their various industries, but the Irish contingent of the British troops, as well as the Scotch contingent, makes a fine display. The Highlanders have black and green tartan kilts, red and brown stockings and scotch feather bonnets with white plumes. The Irish Fusileers wear a scarlet uniform much like the Life Guard, with a bearskin shako. The Royal Irish Lancers carry lances and wear dark blue jackets edged with scarlet, dark green breeches, long boots and plumed helmets.

Sunday Schools at the Fair.

Outside the grounds of the Chicago World's fair, but in a very appropriate and convenient place on Stony Island avenue and adjoining the Manitoba building, is a beautiful structure which will interest many young visitors and all their elders who do religious work. It is the Sunday School building. A conference of religious workers at Chautauqua last year decided that it was advisable to have a building at the fair that should show the best possible model for a Sunday school meeting place and at the same time provide facilities for conferences and for the exhibition of the growth and importance of Sunday school work. Four prizes were offered for the best plans submitted, and the building was erected on the plan that was awarded the first prize.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BUILDING.

World's Fair Turnstiles.

There are 800 gates at the 100 different entrances to the fair grounds, and they are very handsome affairs of wire netting, steel and iron. Each of them is provided with a self registering automatic turnstile that requires the attendance of but one man at each gate. This official takes the ticket, sees that it is all right, drops it in an opening in the gate post and presses a short lever that at the same time "chops" the ticket and unlocks the gate. Then the visitor presses against the turnstile and walks in, registering his own admission.

THE WORLD'S FAIR GATE.

By a simple touch of his hand the gateman can look the gate and hold the reward till any dispute is settled. He is master of the situation and justly so, for if the registry does not correspond with the numbers of the tickets he is responsible.

AN INTERESTING EXHIBIT.

Philadelphia Displays a Model Workingman's Home at the World's Fair.

Philadelphia prides herself on being a city of model homes and now re-enforces her discourse by a practical illustration that all the world may see if it will only take the trouble to go to the Chicago exposition. It is a model Philadelphia workingman's home built by Philadelphia workingmen of Philadelphia material in the Philadelphia manner and in all things an exact reproduction of one of those that form bulwarks for so many miles of Philadelphia's brick sidewalks. It is in two stories, 16 feet wide by 43 feet deep, built entirely of brick, with Bedford stone trimmings, and has the usual little front stoop of four steps. It has a double front door, inside of which is a 5-foot hallway with a parlor 18 feet 7 inches long by 9 feet 1 inch wide to the left. The dining room is 10 feet by 12, just big enough to hold an ordinary dining table and chairs. It has a small china closet.

MODEL WORKINGMAN'S HOME.

The kitchen is at the rear of the dining room and measures 9 feet 6 inches by 7 feet 4 inches. It has a stationary range, with hot water apparatus and room for coalbins. A piazza 6 feet wide runs along the west side of the house and at the rear. Up stairs are two bedrooms, a bathroom and a woman's sitting room and bedroom combined, the rear and side having bay windows. In Philadelphia the house could be built for $2,500, but the model at Jackson park cost nearly double that amount, owing to the cost of transporting the materials and the higher wages of workmen in the World's fair city.

Music at the World's Fair.

The bureau of music for the Chicago World's fair proudly proclaims that the music there will be the finest this world can produce, and two immense buildings are devoted to it—Music hall and Festival hall. Music hall is nearly 150 feet long and about 250 feet wide and 65 feet in height. The architecture is Roman Corinthian, very elaborately ornamented, in the same style as the grand colonnade or peristyle which sweeps from it across the lake front to the Casino, its architectural twin. The peristyle is a superb promenade for visitors. It consists of 48 columns arranged in four rows on each side of a great central archway. These columns are 60 feet high and 3 feet in diameter, and each of them is dedicated to one of the states or territories.

Paris, Berlin, Rome, Vienna and London will co-operate with New York, St. Louis, Boston, Chicago and San Francisco in a series of international concerts of unparalleled importance and festivals of oratorio such as the world never before listened to. Symphony and cantata, organ recital and chamber music will be illustrated, and simple song and greatest classic will vie with each other. Festival hall, located on the shore of the lagoon where the great promenade meets, is of Doric architecture. It is simply a great amphitheater surmounted by a dome, with an interior arranged like that of an old Greek theater. But though these two buildings will be entirely devoted to music they will not by any means monopolize it on the fair grounds. There will be in the Woman's building the finest practical illustrations of what women have accomplished in music. Six conventions of amateur musical clubs will be held there during the fair, and semimonthly concerts will be given there.

THE PERISTYLE.

Indian Schools.

At the World's fair every race of man is represented and every stage of civilization. Our own aborigines, especially the civilized tribes of the Indian Territory, the Nez Perces of the far northwest, the Pueblos, Navajoes and others of the semicivilized tribes, are represented in person and by their work. The Indian school exhibit is not quite up to the standard desired, but much is expected of it. It is rather unfortunate that in spite of all that has been done and the immense sums appropriated the Indian schools are not yet organized in any consistent system.

BUILDING FOR INDIAN SCHOOL EXHIBIT.

The Hampton and Carlisle schools and those of the civilized tribes rank high, and at almost every agency through the the west some kind of school is maintained for Indian children. As it was at first purely a labor of love, Indian education was necessarily left to religious denominations, and so it remains to a great extent. Nevertheless the exhibit is well worthy of study.

Ten carrier pigeons, sent from Taunton, Mass., arrived here yesterday afternoon, for Mr. H. W. Stockton of Central avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ebert of East Front street are rejoicing over the advent of a daughter. The little girl was born yesterday.

Mr. S. R. Proud of East Third street has returned from a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Van Pelt, at North Branch.

On Sunday morning the Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park avenue Baptist church, will preach a Memorial sermon on "1691—1893—1900; or, the Future of the Nation." In the evening he will preach to the Odd Fellows.

Mr. J. A. Cresse of Trenton, editor of The American Eagle, a weekly published in the interest of the Jr. O. U. A. M., of this State, paid a fraternal visit to Franklin Council, No. 41, last evening, and was the guest of the treasurer, Gilbert S. Martin.

To-night Miss Alice B. Spangenberg of Netherwood will speak to the young people of the First Baptist church on the subject of Christian Endeavor. After her address, the young people will determine by vote whether they will continue in their present young people's society or join the Society of Christian Endeavor. All friends of the society of Christian Endeavor are invited to be present and help the cause by their presence.

The Rev. J. W. Richardson has been prevailed upon to take a much needed rest. He has been too energetic and tried to do too much in his new field at the Park Avenue Baptist church, greatly overtaxing his strength, and his health has been very much impaired. He will start Monday for some quiet resort, not yet decided upon, to remain indefinitely. His stay depending upon the success attained in the filling of his pulpit. It is hoped he will be much benefitted by the change.

WOMAN'S BUILDING, AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

WHERE BEAUTY REIGNS

FLORENCE, THE CITY OF GREAT MEN, MEMORIES AND WORKS.

"The Domes and Palaces of Florence" Illustrated by Stereopticon Views Last Evening. — A Startled Bat Takes Close Range Looks at the Pictures.

LAST evening, in the Methodist church, Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, D. D., gave an illustrated lecture. His subject was "The Domes and Palaces of Florence."

His first view showed the beautiful city as seen from an eminence to the South.

The wonderful domes and towers, that are considered models to this day, are seen from all sides of the city, rising high above all the other buildings and seeming to claim from the beholder the recognition and admiration they deserve.

Close, and exterior and interior views of these towers and palaces, and of a few of the beautiful and world-famed paintings and statues, and of portraits of some of the noted men of that city of great men, were then pictured upon the canvas, and explained, with "a dressing of anecdote," by the gifted lecturer.

A bat, that had somehow found its way into the church, toward the close of the lecture, kept flitting before the circle of light on the canvas, causing some of the ladies in the audience uneasiness. They would duck their heads to avoid a supposed collision when the startled bird would circle downward.

The lecture occupied about an hour.

Cranford Gets the Banner.

The annual meeting of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union was held in the Second Presbyterian church in Elizabeth last night. John M. Dudley led the praise service and the address was made by the Rev. D. R. Martin.

The banner offered to the society having the largest attendance was won by Baptist society of Cranford. Mr. A. Wilson of this city was elected vice-president.

Salvation Army.

There was a jubilee meeting at the Salvation Army, last night, at which adjutant Wm. Hunter, and wife, of Trenton, and Captain Groscloude of Perth Amboy, were present. There was a large number present. Solos were rendered by Capt. Groscloude, Mr. G. Watts, Mr. John McGown and Mr. George Belcher. Adjutant and Mrs. Hunter made addresses.

Coal Trains in Collision.

At the deep cut on the Port Reading Railroad near Metuchen two coal trains had a head end collision Wednesday night. Both engines were wrecked and about thirty cars with their coal filled up the cut. The wreck was not cleared until yesterday afternoon. On the same road earlier last evening a broken rail threw twelve loaded coal cars off the track, causing a long detention.

Took His Horse and Buggy.

Delinquent Tax Collector Nash yesterday arrested August Bourgeois, whom he saw riding by, and who owed the city $11.38 for unpaid taxes. Nash took possession of the rig and turned it over to Constable Mattox for safe keeping.

This morning the claim was paid and the rig released.

Dr. Westcott Quoted.

The Union County Board of Freeholders yesterday afternoon elected Dr. Edward K. O'Reilly, Democrat, County Physician for three years, to succeed Dr. Westcott, Republican.

JOINT MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES

As Music Hall Next Tuesday Afternoon.

At the joint Memorial Day services at Music Hall, Tuesday afternoon, May 30, addresses will be made by the Rev. Calvin Sexton of Worcester, Mass.; the Rev. Dr. Lewis and Mayor Alexander Gilbert of Plainfield, and Mayor William L. Saunders of North Plainfield.

A quartette composed of Mrs. Ada Collier, soprano; Miss Julia J. Ketcham, alto; Mr. Elmer E. Runyon, tenor, and Mr. Robert Gorton, bass, will sing. There will also be choruses by the school children in charge of Mr. T. E. Hazell. Miss Jennie Utter will be the accompanist. The following will be the order of services:

MR. FLETCHER INSTALLED.

The New Pastor of the New Market Baptist Church Welcomed.

The installation services of Rev. F. Fletcher as pastor of the First Baptist church of New Market, occured Tuesday. A large audience, greeted the reverend gentleman, who took part in the exercises. The Rev. Mr. Grinnell presided and introduced the speakers, also delivering the charge to the newly elected pastor. The Rev. Dr. Searles, of Stelton, who was present at the ordination of the Rev. Mr. Fletcher, some thirty years ago, delivered the right address.

The Rev. A. I. Martino spoke words of welcome in behalf of the other churches of Dunellen and New Market.

The Rev. Mr. Fletcher responded in a most happy manner.

The newly elected pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church was present, Mr. F. E. Peterson. He was invited to the platform and took part in the exercises.

Business Meeting of the Ramabai Circle.

The Ramabai Circle met in the parlors of the Congregational church yesterday afternoon. The president, Mrs S. J. Taylor, presided.

At the election of officers Mrs. Taylor was re-elected president and Mrs Charles Ryder was elected secretary and treasurer in place of Mr. Leonard.

The treasurer's report showed the Circle to be in sound financial condition.

Interesting papers were then read by Mrs. Strathers, Miss Leonard and Mrs. Ryder and a letter was read from a missionary, Mr. George Donaldson, stationed at Ramabai.

Amusements.

The Music Hall manager says: "The dances in the great laughing success U and I are moved with witches, and are worked in to emphasize the plot of the pleasing satire on New York fast house life. Among the many pretty and timeful conceits that will be given at the performance of the company at Music Hall, on Tuesday, May 30, is the trio of the chameleonnaids, by four young ladies; the Vienna novelty, the Rigletto dance; the Tutti Frutti dance by four girls; the Spanish tambourine dance by two young ladies. The Quaker Widows, by four girls; the Chameleon Escaping, or electric light dance, by Miss Mattie Lockette and grotesque dances by other members of the company."

Found Dead by the Track.

Mr. Theodore Bahrenburg, a young farmer, 25 years old, was found on the Central Railroad track, two miles west of North Branch, dead, at six o'clock yesterday morning. He had been to Raritan, and it is supposed he attempted to jump on a coal train and was killed. There was a hole in his head and the skin was pealed from his shoulders. He resided at White House.

"GRANDMA'S BIRTHDAY."

Entertainment at the Park Avenue Baptist Church Last Night.

IN the Park Avenue Baptist church parlors, last night, the primary department of the Sunday school gave an entertainment and supper, the proceeds being for the church debt, and the library. The class succeeded in buying a piano and book-case. The following boys and girls of the primary class rendered an operetta, by C. A. White, entitled "Grandma's Birthday": Lillian O. Richardson, Emily Runyon, Elsie and Nellie Giles, Margaret and Horace Harned, Edward and Harold Overington, Helen Ruby, Florence Canning, Arthur Darby, Alice Vandoozer, Florence Kemller, Grace and May Day, Lizzie and Violet Van Winkle, and Marion Woodcock. Miss Mabel B. Smith took the part of "Grandma."

After the operetta ice cream and cake were served. Mrs. Wheaton Lowry had charge, assisted by several young ladies of the church. There were also three candy tables arranged along the side of the room which were in charge of Miss M. B. Smith, Miss Emily Runyon, Miss Lilian Richardson, Miss Grace Day, Arthur Darby and Wm. Bennett.

THE FUNERAL OF ROBERT M. FIELD.

The Late Banker's Sensible Wishes About his Funeral.

The funeral service of the deceased banker, Robert M. Field, was held yesterday afternoon at the family residence, 182 East Forty-fifth street, New York. The Rev. Robert Collyer of the Church of the Messiah officiated. The relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Field, jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Field of Plainfield, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fred, Mr. and Mrs. William Dove, and Mrs. Field the widow of the deceased. The interment will take place this morning at Greenwood Cemetery, the cortege leaving the house at nine o'clock.

Mr. Field left a number of curious directions as to his funeral. The service he wished to be private, at the family home and during the afternoon, with no other light than that supplied by nature, his body to remain in the house until the next morning. There were to be no pall bearers, and only a plain monument to be erected over his grave. In advertising the funeral, the words "no flowers" were to be used, and his family were to wear no mourning veils of black nor change their dress more than absolutely necessary; he wished, if he died in Winter or in bad weather, that no one should linger around the grave longer than to see a few shovelfuls of earth thrown upon the coffin. His wishes have been faithfully respected, a wreath of flowers being hung on the doorbell of the house in place of the customary bow or crape.

Guarding Against Smallpox.

The Elizabeth Health authorities held a meeting yesterday and decided to keep a vigilant watch to prevent suspected smallpox sufferers from Carteret visiting that city. The two inspectors sent by Dr. Hunt, President of the State Board of Health, to investigate the matter reported that they had found things in a very bad condition in Carteret, and that a good many persons had been exposed to the contagion.

In the City Court.

Ida Thompson and Ida Manning, colored, were arrested last night for disorderly conduct at the corner of Plainfield avenue and Fourth street. They were sentenced to pay a fine of $20 or spend sixty days in the county jail.

Jacob Cowden, arrested last night, assaulted a boy named Martin by striking him. Andrew Quinn interfered and had Cowden locked up. He was sentenced to sixty days in the county jail, this morning.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Foster's Assignment Reported.

COLUMBUS, O., May 26, (Special.)—A telegram to the Dispatch from Fostoria, O., states that the banking firm of ex-Secretary Charles Foster has assigned.

The report could not be confirmed in this city.

AMONG THE BICYCLERS.

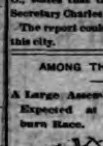
A Large Assemblage of Wheelmen Expected at the Irvington-Milburn Race.



WHEN all the wheelmen who have entered meet at the Milburn course next Monday, it will be one of the largest gatherings ever held in the country.

They will attend from all sections of New York and New Jersey. Every club in New York, Brooklyn and the counties adjoining Essex will have runs and it will be an interesting sight to see the army of bicyclists on their journey over the roads.

The local clubs will join the procession. The Jersey City A. C. will make its trip in a lally-ho. The clubs to Hoboken, and North Hudson will also go out on their wheels. After the twenty-five mile road race, in which over a hundred will participate, many of the wheelers will go to Railway to swell the crowd at the meet of the Union County Roadsters.

The revised racing rules have been issued in a thirty-six page pamphlet form and are ready for distribution.

The Crescent League Wheelmen held a meeting last night and elected three new members.

Mr. Van Wagoner, the road racer, has created a new road record from Holyoke to Springfield. He rode the distance—seven and a half miles—in 19 minutes and 40 seconds.

George D. Cross, the famous Irish racer, will ride in the Milburn road race.

Prizes to the value of $2,500 will be offered by the Atalanta Wheelmen in their 100 mile road race to be held on July 15.

E. A. Nelson, the Springfield crack rider, strained himself so severely while training that his physician has prohibited him from riding.

F. J. Osmond, the English crack, has placed himself under the care of trainer Sampson. He is determined to make a strong effort to get into condition and race for the international championship honors.

The tenth anniversary of the Elizabeth Wheelmen will be celebrated on June 7 by out door games, a parade, a smoker and a dance in the evening. Extensive preparations have been made and a number of invitations have been issued.

Bicycle-riding does not appear to be conducive to amiability. No sooner does a man bestride the wheel than he gets his back up.

The annual meeting of the New Jersey Division of the League of American Wheelmen will be held at Trenton, on June 28 and July 1.

Patents For Jerseymen.

The following is a list of patents issued to New Jersey inventors this week:—Louis B. Truslow, Milburn, nursing bottle nipple; George F. Taylor, New Brunswick, variable exhaust for locomotives; Orling Smith, Bridgeton, yarn stop motion for looms; Walter Scott, Plainfield, annunciating and folding printing sheets; Edward Wilson, Jersey City, combined stool and foot rest; William H. Norris, Princeton, hanging lamps; Cornelius Hedenberg, Jersey City, car coupler; Charles A. Gillespie, Haddonfield, chamomile still and label; Walter Field, Millburn, producing unfermented oils and products thereof; William Duncan, Harrison, blanket; Alexander Forbes, Hoboken, machine for finding fabrics with oil; Edward H. Allen, Orange Hill, electric railway trolley.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Chinese Question.

It will take some time for the full effects of the Geary law, requiring the Chinese to register before May 5, to become felt. The supreme court decision declaring the law constitutional has caused some excitement and not a little speculation regarding the attitude of the Chinese government, but the chances are that the Chinese will register; that our government will, as it should, give them time to do this, and that the flurry will then blow over.

It is curious how this inimical feeling toward the Chinese started and how it has grown. The development of the Pacific coast after the discovery of gold in California created a demand for labor, and the Mongolians began to cross the ocean and settle there. They soon underbid the white laborers and supplanted them in many kinds of work. An outcry was raised by the white population, especially the laboring men, against permitting this competition, which they claimed was unfair.

Local legislation attempted to impede this immigration, but the United States courts decided such laws invalid. Then appeal was appealed to. Denis Kearney of "sand lot" fame led the movement among the laborers. It was said that the Chinese were an inferior race, that they were unassimilable, that they could exist on a pittance that would not enable white workmen to live decently, that they were under the guidance of what is known as the Six Companies, which controlled them in labor and politically, and that they had no intention of becoming citizens and residing permanently in this country.

On the other hand, although but a few years ago, the policy of "welcoming the oppressed of all nations" was then much more popular than it is today. The tendency likewise, for good or for ill, for one section of this country to feel that it knows what is best for another section of the country better than itself showed itself, and people in the east argued that the Chinese were an honest, thrifty and ingenious people, that their peculiar habits would gradually disappear in this country, and that the Asiatics were no worse than other immigrants from Europe who were freely admitted.

After a good deal of agitation a bill finally passed congress in 1882 prohibiting Chinese immigration. It was amended in 1884 so as to suspend the immigration of Chinese laborers for 10 years. As showing the force and growth of public opinion on this question, it may be remarked that in the presidential campaign [illegible] necessary to palliate or deny the R[illegible] publican candidate's opposition to this bill. In fact, the view that one would have undoubtedly strengthened the presidential candidate on this question in 1884 [illegible] considered a cause of weakness four years later.

According to the census, there are only some 110,000 Chinese in the whole country, but about three-quarters of these are in California.

Now that the exclusion act has been declared constitutional it is feared that the Chinese empire may refuse to receive a minister from this country, that all diplomatic relations may be dissolved, and that other retaliatory measures may be visited upon. In such a case the enactment of the bill will result in more harm than good.

A Suggestion to Royalty.

It is not worth while to waste much sympathy over foreign potentates, even though their crowned heads are unusually in easy just now. If the worse comes to the worst, they can abdicate; there is no constitutional bar to prevent it.

And yet a case of abdication is extremely rare. What was called the abdication of Charles V was but a resignation, as he only gave up his hereditary dominions in favor of his son, Philip II. A monarch should properly seek to abdicate his throne when he entirely and simply renounces all his pretensions to kingly authority either for himself or his successors.

Great monarchs used to divest themselves of the imperial purple in this way long, long ago, but we hear nothing of the kind in later years.

Queen Victoria is reported as saying recently that she fairly envied her poorer subjects and their freedom from care. Well, Victoria, all you have to do is to throw the galling and troublesome old crown to one side, and you can be just as happy as common, everyday people. Other weary and discouraged European crowned heads will please make a note of this suggestion in case of future need.

The British schooner Winifred, which was seized for illegal sealing last year, is now on the grounds at Alaska armed with modern rifles. The captain has painted the British flag, and he says he will give battle to any revenue cutter that interfere with him. We do not want to fight, captain; but, by jingo, if we must, we've got the ships, we've got the men, and we have got the dust.

It was a great blessing, that cholera scare. The prospect that the grim specter would visit our shores this summer caused the New York daily newspaper editors to rise upon their very tiptoes, to

WHAT BRIGGS BELIEVES

The Alleged Heretic Makes a Confession of Faith.

CHEERS ANGERED THE MODERATOR

Craig Threatens to Clear the Galleries and Shut the Doors. Colonel McCook Speaks In the Evening and Hands In a Written Broadside.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Again this morning the Briggs case came before the general assembly. Interest now seems to be at fever heat, and the audience in the galleries are being kept this forenoon from outbursts of approval or excitement only by the threat of the moderator to clear the spectators' seats unless all such emotions are suppressed.

The proceedings thus far have contained many references by the prosecutors of Dr. Briggs' dramatic and somewhat pathetic speech which he made at the close of his speech late yesterday and which included his statement of faith. In introducing this confession he called the attention of the assembly to three stars at the bottom of page 6 in the brief of the prosecution. They were the letters of a word, but, to the shame of shame, for they indicated an omission which should not have been made. He then supplied the omitted part, which consisted of the eight questions put to Dr. Briggs to test his faith, and his answers to them.

He wished, he said, to make an explicit denial of the charges that he had preached doctrines against the fundamental doctrines of the church.

"I affirm that I believe," he said, beginning with outstretched hands to the audience, "the Holy Scriptures to be the word of God." He affirmed his faith honestly and uprightly every three years in making the reaffirmation of faith which was required of him by the Union Theological seminary. He affirmed that he held to the whole doctrine taught in the first chapter of the Westminster confession. Anything he might have said that might conflict with these statements was due to misinterpretations, but he charged no one with so misinterpreting him wilfully.

Pathos In His Appeal.

Dr. Briggs closed with an appeal, touched with a suggestion of pathos, that the case might go to the synod of New York. If that were done he would aid in the full solution of the case, and then, if it were sent back to the next general assembly, he would abide by its decision, whatever it might be.

He regretted if he had said anything that had caused trouble in the church. No one regretted it more than he did. He had taught for 20 years at the Union Theological seminary, he said appealingly, almost pathetically, and all the teachers of Presbyterian theology had taught longer than he, only two had been the instructors of more ministers of the church than he. Of all persons that had been taught by him, he challenged any of them to say that he had taught anything that had interfered with the true discharge of their holy duties. Dr. Briggs concluded his address, having spoken 4 hours and 37 minutes in all at three different sittings of the court.

As he took his seat a wave of applause ran over the rear of the church, which evoked an indignant rebuke from the moderator, who said he hoped that none of the commissioners, sitting as judges, had so far forgotten themselves as to show by their applause a prejudice in favor of one side of a case before hearing all the argument. "And if the galleries," he continued, "shall attempt to interfere with or influence this high court by unseemly outbreaks, I will order them cleared and have the court continue its sittings with closed doors.

Several gentlemen contradictorily stated, out of order, that the commissioners were guilty of the applause, that they were not; that the applause was confined to the galleries and that the galleries were innocent. As nearly as could be determined, the real culprits were in the seats occupied by the clergymen.

After an interval of five minutes, Colonel J. J. McCook began the closing argument for the prosecuting committee, in support of the recommendation that the appeal be entertained. Almost at the opening Dr. Briggs interrupted Colonel McCook to correct what he claimed was a mistake made by the latter, when he said that the appellee (Briggs) had stated that the appeal was not taken in time.

Dr. Briggs Interrupts.

Dr. Briggs—I did not say that. I admit that the appeal was taken in time.

Colonel McCook—That is perfectly satisfactory. The matter was of trifling moment in any event, and particularly so in view of the admission just made.

A few minutes later, after quoting from the letter written by Dr. Briggs to Dr. Birch, in which he declined to meet the prosecution committee before any proceedings were had under their appointment, Dr. Briggs arose and said:

May I ask a question?

Colonel McCook—You may interrupt me as often as you please.

Moderator Craig—I allowed you to speak for and a half hours without interruption.

Dr. Briggs—I wanted to correct a misstatement.

Moderator Craig—Colonel McCook heard you for two hours without objection, although he might have challenged many of your statements. Now, let him go on in the same way. That is only fair and proper.

Dr. Briggs—It is understood, then, that I do not consent to the incorporation of any misstatements.

Moderator Craig—Oh, certainly. And I do not suppose that Colonel McCook gave his consent to a score of things you said, but he bore them well. Colonel McCook will proceed.

After the noon hour and 30 minutes Colonel McCook yielded for a motion to adjourn.

In beginning his argument Colonel McCook asserted that all the preliminary questions involved in the case were readjudicated, having been discussed and determined by the general assembly of 1892.

Among the questions thus determined were the following:

1. That the appeal was taken by the Presbyterian church in the United States of America as an original party.

2. That the original party is represented by the prosecuting committee.

3. That such committee is a prosecuting committee appointed under section 11 of the book of discipline.

4. The original party by its prosecuting committee has the right in this case to take such an appeal from the presbytery directly to the general assembly.

5. That such an appeal is regular and in order out of ordinary course, and because the appellee in all the courts of the church has persistently acted to the contrary.

At the conclusion of the assembly session

How New York Entertains Its Royal Guests.

INFANTA EULALIE SERENADED.

Everywhere She Goes There Are Carpeted Rose Bordered Walks, Booming Guns and Cheering Crowds—She Replies to a Speech of Welcome.

NEW YORK, May 26.—This city is entertaining its royal visitors in royal style today. When the Infanta Eulalie woke this morning and looked out of the windows in the beautiful Hotel Savoy on the plaza at the entrance to Central park, not less than 1,000 people were in waiting to be of service to her. They were not all at the hotel or near it, of course.

Down in the North river at the foot of west Thirty-fourth street was the Hohenlohe, where the docks had been polished the brass work. They were getting ready for the royal visitor. The reception committee of the general committee of 100 were getting on their best clothes to escort the princess to the naval yards. Commander Daniels, who was detailed to close naval duty, was up bright and early too. Then there were scores of other less prominent individuals, who each had their part to play in making the representation of the Spanish royal house as happy and comfortable as possible.

About 9 o'clock the infanta and her husband had breakfast in their private dining room. The princess then declared that she did not feel equal to another excursion, and that she thought the sail on the Hudson had better be given up. Commander Davis informed the captain of the Dolphin. The princess spent the forenoon quietly in her apartments, getting rested, so she said, for what was to come. This afternoon it is to be a carriage ride through the parks to see the beauties of Central park from her carriage, and tonight comes the grand ball at Madison Square Garden.

Each movement of the infanta is met with a perfection of numberless little details. For instance, when the princess arrived here she was taken from Jersey City on the steamer General Sherman. Hours had been spent in preparing the boat.

Her royal highness is a good traveler, whether on land or sea, and while occasionally members of her suite show signs of fatigue, the infanta is always fresh. So it was that stepping from the train to the boat she appeared as gracious and lovely as if she had but entered her own drawing room. She wore a costume of light gray cloth, over which was a sack cloth coat of the same color, a sailor hat of white straw trimmed with bright red flowers, and on the lapel of her coat a large yellow rose.

When the infanta's party and the members of the committee had boarded the Sherman, [illegible] Rear Admiral Gherardi took seats on the forward deck, the princess close by the starboard rail, with Whitelaw Reid and Joseph J. Dolphin on either side.

Her Path Always Carpeted.

On the pier at Thirty-fourth street was Troop A, the crack cavalry regiment of New York, which was to act as a guard of honor to the infanta. Col. Appleton, Brigadier General Porter and Commander Davis entered the first carriage.

A detail of 15 men of the [illegible] police formed an advance guard. The procession, [illegible] the mounted band, marched along Thirty-fourth street to Fifth avenue and to the Hotel Savoy. Along the entire route the princess received a most enthusiastic reception, which she most graciously acknowledged. The streets were lined with people, and from the windows of many of the houses the Spanish and American flags were flying.

Mayor Gilroy and Mr. George B. McClellan, president of the board of aldermen, waited at the entrance to receive the city's guests. As the carriages stopped General Porter introduced Mayor Gilroy to the infanta, and the latter introduced Mr. McClellan as the "president of the municipal council." Then the mayor of Jersey City presented his wife, and so all the way up the steps and through the hall to the elevator, followed by the prince and Mr. McClellan.

The carpet laid down beneath the canopy was strewn with lilacs, peonies, roses and carnations, and the moment the last of the party had crossed it the crowd grabbed every petal of broken flower that the gracious lady had crushed beneath her pretty shoes. When the party had reached the reception room the mayor of Jersey City extended to the infanta and her husband a formal welcome.

The princess replied very quietly and with a marked accent: "I am very much pleased at the graciousness of the reception and can find nothing to say except to thank you."

A few of the committee of 100 were then presented, General Varnum giving the names to Commander Davis, who repeated them to the infanta and her husband. Only three ladies were presented, they being Mrs. Gilroy, Mrs. Dugro and Mrs. Martin Brown. The infanta expressed herself as charmed with "beautiful Washington" and her sentiments for love of America. The party then went to the apartments that had been reserved for them.

In the evening the Spanish colony marched up Fifth avenue from Forty-first street with torches burning and headed by the Garrison band. They halted at the plaza in front of the Savoy and began a serenade with one of the stirring Spanish airs. A few moments afterward the infanta appeared on the balcony. The princess was greeted by salvos of applause from the people below.

As soon as the procession reached the hotel a reception committee called upon the princess, and Mr. E. R. Flores, representing his countrymen, made a short speech, to which the infanta responded.

Although it was not the original intention of the princess to go to the theater she yielded to the request of the committee as expressed by Hon. Levi P. Morton, and on the train this morning. It was after 9 o'clock when the royal party made its way through the dense crowd that thronged the lobby of the Savoy, and entering the carriages in waiting were driven to the Garden theater, where a portion of the performance of "Robin Hood" was seen and heard.

Call it a Murder.

Call it a murder, if you will, but [illegible]

A Porter Shot Out Ends.

PARIS, May 26.—At the Academy reception James B. Eustis, United States ambassador, was not allowed by the hall porters to enter. Mr. Eustis waited outside a quarter of an hour, when his predicament became known to the committee within. He then was brought in and pacified with profuse apologies.

A Defaulting Colonel.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 26.—As a result of the examination of the books of the Victoria mills, of which Colonel J. Albert Mills of the Eighth regiment has been agent for the past nine months, the colonel was placed under arrest. Colonel Mills confesses he is a defaulter.

Cholera at the Eastern Gate.

BUFFALO, May 26.—Twenty-one immigrants from Hamburg attempted to enter this country at the International Bridge, but were sent back to Canada, their health certificates being defective.

A. H. King & Co. Pay 40 Cents.

NEW YORK, May 26.—At a meeting of the creditors of A. H. King & Co., clothiers, of 407 and 409 Broadway, the committee of creditors recommended a settlement at 40 cents on the dollar.

Mr. Gladstone Denies It.

LONDON, May 26.—Mr. Gladstone has sent out a denial of the report that he will be present at the ball or any special grand by parliament in connection with the Duke of York's marriage.

Curbstone Bankbook Brokers.

DENVER, May 26.—The run on the People' Savings bank continues. There are people, however, in the curbstones, who will buy the books of depositors at a very close discount.

Troops In a Wreck.

LIMA, O., May 26.—A westbound freight train on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago road was wrecked near Bucklick, 17 miles west of this city. A number of tramps were killed.

Ministers Made of Foreign Stock.

HARTFORD, May 26.—There will be 13 graduates from the Hartford Theological seminary this year. One of the graduates is from Turkey; another from Russia.

Mr. Hoyt's Loving Cup.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The officers of the Argentine Republic war vessel Nueve de Julia had a beatiful silver loving cup made, which they presented to Elihu Root.

Wiping Out Misery Cost Lives.

BRUSSELS, May 26.—The miners' international conference voted in favor of the equality of men employed on the surface and those employed underground.

An Imported Purse Winner.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The race horse Dagmar, the winner of a number of races in the West Indies, reached this city on the steamer Origen from Barbados.

Nihilistic Students Arrested.

WARSAW, May 26.—The police here have discovered a great nihilist plot. Forty-eight students, 60 laborers and 8 women have been arrested.

Deaf for a Year

Caused by

Catarrh in the Head

Catarrh is a CONSTITUTIONAL disease, and requires a CONSTITUTIONAL REMEDY like Hood's Sarsaparilla to cure it. Read:

"Three years ago, as a result of catarrh, I entirely lost my hearing and was deaf for hours at a time. I also had terrible pains in my head and several physicians attempted to cure me, but without success. I read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to try it. I was immediately relieved after taking the first bottle, and soon commenced to hear distinctly. I continued taking it until I was entirely well and my hearing fully restored. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all who have catarrh." HERMAN HICKS, 20 Carter Street, Rochester, N. Y.

HOOD'S PILLS are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists.

Are You Insured?

If you are 21 years old and so paid annually for fifteen years would entitle you to $1,000.

If 23 years old, $67.

If 23 years old, $67.10.

If 24 years old, $67.30.

This sum of $1,000 is payable to the insured, if living, at the expiration of fifteen years, or at his death, if prior.

A MAN AT EVERY POLE.

Lively Fight of Rival Electric Light Companies In Jersey.

CAMDEN, N. J., May 26.—Another encounter occurred between the two rival electric light companies which are striving for the right of way to place poles and string wire through this place. Last week when the Neptune Electric company of Asbury Park attempted to plant their poles here, the Coast Water Supply company of this place attempted to stop them from so doing by filling the holes before the Asbury Park men could place their poles therein. Then a lively encounter the Asbury Park company succeeded in planting their poles. The Coast Water Supply company claimed to have the right of way through this place, and for that reason attempted to interfere with the rival company.

Wednesday the coast water supply people dug up many of the poles planted last week and cut some of the wires. As soon as the Asbury Park people heard of this they sent a gang of men here to replace the poles. The men at once began excavating, and as soon as a hole would be dug one of the men of the Coast company would jump into the hole and in this way prevent the men from placing the poles.

Finding that no headway could be made the Asbury Park people telegraphed for a policeman. The policeman ordered the men to get out of the holes or subject themselves to arrest. The men decided to give in, and the poles were once more placed in position. Fearing that the local company would further molest them, the Asbury Park people have placed men at each pole to guard them night and day until the differences can be settled in court.

A FAITH CURE BAPTISM.

Rich and Paralytic Merchant Brown a Convert.

FROM A SICK BED INTO THE BAY.

At "A Call From the Lord" He Arose and Walked Into the Ice Cold Water—There Was a Remarkable Scene at the Zion Church.

NEW YORK, May 26.—On the shore of the upper bay at Greenville, the congregation of Mount Zion church gathered to see nine people go down into the waters of the bay and by immersion become members of their sect, known as the Church of the First Born. Mount Zion church stands in a little clump of trees about five minutes' walk from the Greenville railway station, and the front door of the building is but a few yards from the water at high tide. The christening was preceded by a service in the church, which began with prayer and the singing of hymns.

Cured by Faith.

When the pastor called for experiences half a dozen people rose on their feet at once eager to tell their miraculous cures from various diseases. One after another recounted his or her experiences. Among the speakers were a former Roman Catholic, a Hebrew and a German, formerly an agnostic. Then Mrs. Andenette Jackson spoke, and throughout her speech one might have fancied oneself in a Methodist camp meeting. As the speaker's voice rose higher and her petitions became more fervent women rose in the audience, burst into hysterical sobbing, and from all parts came cries of "Bless the Lord," "Praise God," "Glory to the lamb!" and other similar ejaculations.

Then the candidates for baptism came forward—five men and four women. The women were dressed in plain black dresses, and the men wore long drab coats, like linen dusters, with white lawn neckties. Of the candidates two were particularly noticeable—one a young girl about 16 years of age, the youngest of the neophytes; the other an elderly man, well nigh helpless from paralysis. The girl was Sarah Splieth of Elizabeth, who had been cured by faith, she said, of a disease which the doctors pronounced incurable.

The paralytic was Thomas C. Brown, head of the firm of T. C. Brown & Van Anglen, the owners of the largest dry goods store in Jersey City and one of the most widely known business men in the state of New Jersey. He is a man of wealth, and has been identified for more than a score of years with great business enterprises. He is a member of the board of trade and of other organizations. He has been ill for some time, and the physicians who have attended him have not succeeded in curing him of his ailment or even of improving his health.

He arose from a sick bed to comply with the command of Christ, as interpreted by the people of the church of the First Born. Baptism is the command. He had been led to believe in the faith of the church. He had hopes that his faith would lead to his recovery from his seemingly hopeless affliction and to show his faith as well as to obey the command, he had come to be baptized.

The other candidates were Wesley S. Beatty and Ellen Evans of Jersey City, and Charles Conklin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lasigren, Henrietta Miller and Caroline M. Allen, all of Elizabeth.

After the baptism all were taken to the church, where they were anointed with oil. T. C. Brown was anointed first. After expressing his faith in the creed he had adopted and thanking Pastor Hanoux, saying he felt stronger already, Mr. Brown was lifted into his carriage and was driven away. The other new members were anointed, and with song and thanksgiving the gathering broke up.

Editor Quinby Gets a Consulship.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Cleveland appointed William E. Quinsby of Michigan to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to the Netherlands. Mr. Quinby is the editor and principal proprietor of the Detroit Free Press. The appointment was made on the recommendation of Don M. Dickinson.

Must Not Mail Russian Bonds.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The Russian postal authorities have given notice that on and after June 18 bonds of the Russian government will be liable to customs duties, both when imported into or exported from Russia. Packages known to contain such bonds will be refused at the postoffice either as registered or ordinary matter.

ORDER FOR SUNDAY OPENING.

District Attorney Mitchell Does Not Think There Will Be an Injunction.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Director Burnham has issued an official order to the effect that the gates of the World's fair shall be opened next Sunday. The order was buried in a mass of other announcements. It says: "The park will also be opened to the public Sunday, May 28, until 11 p. m., the buildings closing at 10 p. m."

United States District Attorney Thomas E. Mitchell returned from Washington where he had been in consultation with Attorney General Olney in regard to the proposed action of the World's fair authorities in opening the World's fair on Sunday. He said that he had not determined upon any line of action and would not until he had learned what the national commission had done.

He said that Attorney General Olney is concerned solely with the legal aspects of the case, and realizes that the question whether the law has been violated by the directory must be determined by the government.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "the religious question has nothing to do with the case."

"Will you enjoin the directory from opening the gates on Sunday?"

"That might be done," he said. "My own judgment is that the better way to determine the matter at issue is to submit the entire question to the court of the United States district judges and trust to them for a fair and judicial decision upon the case."

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New Jersey—Peter Hallett, Normanock; S. B. Stryker, Trenton.

Not Interesting to Him.

Husband—You have been worrying me for five years because you were such an "ex" dressed as Mrs. Nendoor.

Wife—Well?

"Well, he's failed—can't pay his debts."

"Did he owe you anything?"

"No."

"Humph! I can't see what that has to do with my clothes."—Exchange.

Where They Sit.

Mother—Don't you know better than to put your feet on the sofa? Look at the end. Suppose some one should come in and sit down on it?

Small Son—This is the night Mr. Nicefello comes to see us, and they never sit on the sofa. They always sits on the rocking chair.—Good News.

OUTING DRESS.

New Styles In Boating, Tennis and Riding Costumes.

What the favorite boating costume of the season will be can hardly be stated. However, short open coats and sousers are almost sure to be popular again. A most becoming dress just completed by a fashionable maker consists of a black serge skirt with rather broad diagonal stripes, a cocoa jacket of the same material, short enough to conceal nothing of the waist, and one of the new shirt silk blouses with loose front pieces to wind round and tie in a butterfly bow at one side. This blouse is in pink and grey figured shot surah, and the seams are edged with a narrow jet trimming.

Snuff, cinnamon and all the other intermediate shades of brown will be exceedingly popular. A pretty new river dress is of snuff serge, with a jaunty jacket to match. This is faced with drab cloth and fastened with a steel buckle, and full sleeves are gathered into tight cuffs. Another river dress is in navy blue cloth, with a sorbiet waistcoat of military cloth braided in black and gold. A very pretty color for river costume is a sort of electric blue.

The trim costume shown in the cut is of blue linen, the skirt made moderately full and walking length. With the open coat, with deep revers and reversible collar, is worn a double breasted vest of fancy spotted waistcoating. The sailor hat is of coarse straw, low crowned and broad brimmed.

WOMAN AND HOME.

PETTY ECONOMIES FOR WHICH ALL PLEASURE IS SACRIFICED.

Interesting Information Concerning Women Who Are Known—Useful Suggestions For the Housekeeper and Mother—The Case of Little Men and Women.

Except to those who have other lives than their own dependent upon their earnings, the continued practice of petty economies is tantamount to a confession of failure. The man or woman who cannot earn a living—not bread and butter merely, but that larger living which makes life worth having—virtually labels himself incapable.

I have no words to express my contempt for the woman who spends her life in practicing petty economies which she might avoid by half the exertion employed in scheming her unremunerating occupation.

The woman who will never buy opera or theater tickets, who will not give herself the edification of concerts and lectures, who never entertains in a liberal way and bakes a trip unless somebody else pays for it, who will not read in the evening because it wastes gas, who turns her old gowns, shoe blacks her hats and dyes her gloves with aniline dye, who makes toilet cases out of demolished barrels, counts lumps of sugar and weighs loaves her bread in, who frames her whole existence upon a rivalry of shams and makeshifts, is not getting a living at all.

All honor to honest poverty, which has no time for shams and makeshifts. There is no extravagance like that of going underfed either in mind or body, and the habit of thought by which we refuse present outlay for the sake of an ultimate good is not economy, but meanness. For a single man or woman to be willing to say year after year of easy and generous expenditure, "I can't afford it," is not an honor—it is a disgrace. Women of the ground down class have life hard enough and must have until a wiser generation, but to one who has received a certain amount of education, has health and time and starts in the world fairly, petty economies ought to remain unknown.

The woman who earns her own living, and only her own, ought to pay her board bill, her dressmaker, her bootmaker, lay something by and see something of life beside sides. If one woman can support an invalid or worthless husband, aged parents or half a dozen children, where is the unburdened woman who can assert that she cannot maintain herself and leave a margin?

People who practice petty economies and who glory in them instead of hiding their heads for shame are either well to do people who are by nature mean, wives who have no control over the family purse and young women who live at home in idle dependence upon their fathers, being not allowed to work or else too proud or too lazy to do so.

For only one of these three classes can there be any sympathy—i. e., the impecunious wives. This class must also be subdivided into those who accept their position, but see no way out of it; those who submit and gain pin money by wheedling, and those who glory in their economy.—Kate Field's Washington.

The Fascinating Voice.

Among all the fascinations of a beautiful woman none perhaps is greater than a beautiful voice. It even makes an unlovely woman seem fair—aye, fairer than the fairest. Like poison, a beautiful voice "hath charms to soothe the savage breast." It is in fact, sweet music to the ear—as sweet as the sweetest instrument. Is comforts us in pain and fills the heart with joy "in our hours of ease." What is the orator's charm, which delights us hanging as if by enchantment on his lips? It is not always his words, for if his speech be read it often fails to enthrall. It is his voice which enchants and which lends poetry to the most ordinary form of speech.

English women, as a rule, have most harmonious and musical voices, more so than any other women in the world. Nature has much to do with this, but education has also her share in the development of this gift, by cultivating the voice from early childhood. Hence the difference between the voice of a highly cultured lady and an uncultivated woman.

Singing should be daily practiced, not to delight friends with weak ballads or passionate operatic songs, but to lay the foundations of a beautiful speaking voice. And in singing as in speaking, the voice foundations must be laid in the lowest notes in the region of the chest. Great singers and those who preserve their voices the longest always practice their lowest notes, by which means they strengthen the whole voice. The higher notes are never practiced long at a time, for to do this would weaken them, and also weaken the whole voice.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The Eldest Daughter In Germany.

The daughter of the self complacent German matron who describes in the "practical weekly journal for all housewives," The Fure Haus, the way in which she divides the girl's time, arouses wonder. This energetic mother rouses her daughter of 16 at 7 a. m., summer or winter. Half an hour later she must be at breakfast serving her brothers and sisters, after seeing that they are properly dressed for school. Rid of the young folks she must make her bed and clean and dust the whole of the rooms of the house by 10 a. m. On three days in the week she sets out for a dressmaker's and learns the business till 12:30. On the other three days she practices on the piano and learns English. Twice a week the hour from 12 to 1 is devoted to music lessons. At 1:30 dinner is cleared, and the girl must herself put away and lock up all remains, after which she is allowed to read some entertaining book or play piquet or dominoes with her father.

At 2:30 she must do plain sewing till 4 o'clock. The whole family then take coffee and walk for an hour and a half. By 6 her father pounces upon the unfortunate girl and gives her a subject in history, geography or literature on which to write a theme in the space of an hour, without book or other assistance. Next the young lady must prepare tea, to which the family sit down at 7 o'clock "punctually." After that she may take up her embroidery or crochet, and the family read aloud in turns till close upon 9 o'clock, when the poor eldest daughter is sent to bed.

Have Plenty of Towels.

Have plenty of towels. Comfort and cleanliness depend upon it. You can better go without some of your household decorations than to "get along" with a scant supply of towels.

Have them of good size. They are more satisfactory and wear longer than the cur tailed sort. Shall the towel be fringed? That is a matter of taste. Some one said the other day that plain hems with two or more rows of hemstitching above the hem would soon lead in "linen good forms." We hope so—for the towel in ordinary use anyhow.

Shall our towels be damask or huckaback? That is also a matter of taste. And it is a matter of complexion. Huckaback and Turkish are desirable for bath use. But for the face use the damask. With which decision as hanging as if by enchantment on his lips? It is not always his words, for if his speech be read it often fails to enthrall. It is his voice which enchants and which lends poetry to the most ordinary form of speech.

Get the "new" out of your towels before putting them to use. It is indeed trusting a guest ill to offer him a towel with the "store" stains upon it. Let the family take the "new" off your "company" linen. This may be hard on the household, but the wiping guest will love you more than if you permitted him to assist at the job.

Iron your towels on both sides. They are more agreeable to use when smoothly laundered, and if you can polish give a finish of thoroughness to your housekeeping.—Chicago Mail.

Give Children Plenty of Butter.

No dietetic reform would be more conducive to improved health among children, and especially to the prevention of tuberculosis, than an increase in the consumption of butter. Our children are trained to take butter with great restraint and are told that it is unwholesome and extravagant to eat much of it. It is regarded as a luxury and as giving a relish to bread rather than in itself a most important article of food. Even to private families of the wealthier classes these rules prevail at table, and at schools and at public boarding establishments they receive strong re-enforcements from economical motives.

Minute allowances of butter are served out to those who would gladly consume five times the quantity. Were the house income makes this a matter of necessity there is little more to be said than that it is often a costly economy. Enfeebled health may easily entail a far heavier expense than a more liberal breakfast would have done.

Cod liver oil costs more than butter, and it is lavished when not resorted to until too late. Instead of restricting a child's consumption of butter, encourage it. Let the limit be the power of digestion and the tendency to dislodge. Most children may be allowed to follow their own inclinations and will not take more than is good for them. The butter should be of the best and taken cold. Bread, dry toast, biscuits, potatoes and rice are good vehicles.—Exchange.

Paper Decorations.

Not long since a capable Boston girl, with more ingenuity than dollars, determined to see what she could do with "just tissue paper," in fixing up a snuggery for her own use, and the result, as it was beheld the other day, was, as her enthusiastic companions avowed, perfectly charming. The walls and ceiling were artistically treated with white and green paper, so arranged as to resemble an opening flower or bower of lovely foliage, with blooming hyacinths interspersed. All the white wood furniture was covered with an inexpensive white and green chintz, the only touch of color being three cushions in pale red, pale blue, pale gold silk, while between the windows stood a coquettish dressing table bedrilled with white, and so draped with its myriad of ruffles that it looked like some chrysanthemum in whose heart a mirror had been set.

The crisp, fresh effect was facinating, and the little damsel who had planned it all pointed to each object with its dainty tissue adornment that seemed to embellish it like the calyx of a flower and nodded assent to all the compliments given upon her "papered room." "Yes," she said, with a roguish little smile, "yes, it is pretty, but it has been a terrible expense when the insurance, and I have promised him not to strike a match anywhere, but have the lamps lighted and brought in, though it means three dear maids horribly, doesn't it?"—Boston Herald.

A Chance For Clever Seamstresses.

"It is very common," said a mother to us the other day, "that you can hardly get a dressmaker nowadays who cares to make dresses for growing girls. They sew excellently for adults or children, but when it comes to the girl of 12 or 14 they either absolutely refuse to do anything or make a botch of what they undertake."

Now, this is really a revelation to us, and a valuable hint as well to the hosts of women who want some sort of the way employment to make the dollars come into the till. A growing girl of course is undeveloped and immature, yet the styles of her gowns are necessarily so that it seems to us a modiste must be very fussy and particular to refuse to make the graceful half-length costumes of our young girls.

If there is such a dearth for dressmakers for misses, is that not a grand hint for an opening in that very line? Be a girl's dressmaker and reap the reward of the mothers and daughters' gratitude as well as the more substantial return in dollars and cents that are sure to accrue. It is just these sorts of out of the way openings that are often more most profitable, and the woman who wishes to succeed will be the one who will gladly profit by this wayside knowledge.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Women and Women's Clubs.

Women's clubs have done much for women, but like all other good things they need to be kept within bounds and in the form best suited to the needs of the individual. The woman who is interested in a particular line of study finds inspiration in associating with a number of women whose mental tendencies are in the same direction. The woman whose brain is active and who cannot sew likewise grows when she comes into companionship with women who turn her mental faculties to a special line of thought. The woman who is tied to a home by the cares for children, or the thousand things that may and do come into many women's lives to limits their social opportunities, finds a club membership an incentive that keeps her in touch with the outer world, a rest and a refreshing. To such a one membership in a woman's club is beyond price. But when membership in a woman's club means one more demand on nerves worn out, on jaded bodies, one more thing to be done when rest is imperative, then club membership is valueless, and to attempt to maintain it under those conditions is an object of pity.—Harper's Bazar

Aprons For Romping Children.

A sensible mother who finds it necessary to limit her laundry list and to delay the wearing out of garments as long as possible makes both her little sons and daughters wear high necked aprons when playing in the house. The sleeves of jackets and skirts of trousers are saved much wear, and her children paint, use ink, model in clay and do various other delightful but apt provoking things without restraint. Concession is made to the small boy's desire to look manly by making his aprons with a sailor collar and with a yoke laid in three box plaits.

The aprons are of blue and white checked gingham, made with enough fullness to prevent their having the stretched look, and may be worn with a leather belt. The little boy who wears these aprons is by no means a homespun looking child, for beneath the apron when play is over is found a natty suit of blue serge in winter and of white duck in summer. If the days are very warm, the apron only may be worn.—New York Post.

The Wife of a Newspaper Man.

Regal is the one word that does justice to Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer. Southern by birth, and a niece of the late Jefferson Davis, she typifies the qualities of the rarer women of the South. Her surroundings as a bride of a large family of children do not arrest her interest in things charitable, musical and artistic, nor do they prevent her fulfilling the duties of a hostess in gathering at her dinner table the social lights of the colony. Her present home in the Rue la Perouse, formerly occupied by Mme. de Staerz, is one of the best appointed in the capital.—Cosmopolitan.

Home.

"Home," says Robertson in his sermons, "is the one place in all this world where hearts are sure to flow to others. It is the place of confidence. It is the place where we tear off that mask of guarded and suspicious coldness which the world forces us to wear in self defense where we pour out the unreserved communication of full and confiding hearts. It is the spot where expressions of tenderness gush out without any sensation of awkwardness and without any dread of ridicule. Let a man travel where he will, home is the place to which his heart untrammeled fondly turns." It is to dwell in pleasures that life is to divide all pain. A happy home is the single spot of rest which a man has upon this earth for the cultivation of his noblest sensibilities."

How to Clean Water Receptacles.

Carafes, which have so largely replaced the ice pitcher, are really very pleasing and refreshing to look at, if they are kept faithfully clean and bright. Unfortunately the pure water obtainable very often dulls the inside, and it isn't every one who knows a quick and easy method of removing this.

A very simple thing to do is to tear a newspaper into small bits and nearly or quite fill up the carafe. Then pour in warm soapsuds with a little ammonia added and shake well. The paper will soon scour the inside of the bottle thoroughly clean, and it only remains to rinse it well before using again.—New York Herald.

How to Make Cloth Waterproof.

Ordinary cloth may be made waterproof by the following treatment: Put half a pound of sugar of lead and half a pound of alum in a pail of soft water; stir this at intervals until it becomes clear. Then pour it off into another pail, put the cloth or garment into it and let it stand an entire day—24 hours. Then hang up to dry without wringing. Garments treated thus, it is said, can be worn in the wildest storm of wind and rain and the wearer not get wet even damp. The rain hangs in globules upon the cloth, and cloth that is waterproof is lighter and more healthy than rubber goods.—Exchange.

A Plea For Desolate Babies.

Why will women waste their time and affections and money on pug dogs and other canine favorites? I understand that certain grave statesmen have devoted their time and serious thought to a crusade against criminals. What not against dogs that actually in many cases usurp the places of children? My dear women, if time hangs heavily on your hands and you must have a love of some kind, why not devote yourselves to some of the desolate babies who, heaven knows, have need enough of all the tenderness and care there is to spare in the world?—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Pretty Sofa Pillows.

Two beautiful and simple sofa pillows were seen lately. One was of dull green velvet, with a large floral design for the only ornamenting. This was worked on canvas, afterward pulled out, in cross stitch, the colors chosen being most subdued in tone. The other cushion was of brown repp. The decoration was appliqued velvet and many odd stitches in floss, all in shades of brown.—Philadelphia Press.

A Tribute to a Sister.

Mr. Arthur Balfour frequently says that his greatest political help comes from his sister, Miss Agnes Balfour, who is his housekeeper and counselor in matters of state. Each day she devotes a fixed amount of time, no matter what are her social engagements, to reading the newspapers and to marking what in her judgment is useful for his perusal.

Handsomest Baby In Chicago.

To Mrs. Marshall Field, Jr., belongs the distinction of wearing the handsomest baby in all Chicago. It is an enormous single stone of a deep red color and is hung from a narrow string of diamonds. In addition to this unique ornament Mrs. Field also has some beautiful pins and combs for the hair —Chicago Herald.

The Crucial Test For Girls.

"The crucial test of a girl's attractiveness is the way she is asked," said a man of society. "Nine men out of ten look first at the face and then at the feet of a woman." How many of our young women, I wonder, can successfully pass through the ordeal of such an inspection?—New York Tribune.

This is the way a French compote of oranges is made without cooking. Select nice, sweet oranges. Cut them in thin slices and remove all the seeds. Make a syrup of 1½ pounds of sugar and a pint of water. Let it boil for 10 minutes, and when it is cold pour it over the oranges.

One of the ornaments in the jewel casket of Mrs. Thomas Elliott of New York city is a diamond sun. When it is worn with a certain black tulle dress, it is displayed to the greatest advantage. Mrs. Elliott is fond of the jewel.

The strongest silk stockings are the English stockings of pure, bright silk that sell at about $4 a pair. They are not so showy as a French stocking which may be bought for the same price, but they wear better.

If baking powder is sifted into the flour in making cake or other batter, more is required than when it is added dry the last thing before the batter is baked.

NOT ONLY SOUR GRAPES!

But All Your Fruit May Sour If You Use Old Bottles! Seconds and damaged goods may do in some lines, but not in Fruit Jars. Most manufacturers' seconds are disposed of at auction. We will not deceive the public with auction goods. Fruit Jars are as staple and as standard as sugar, and you might as well expect sugar at two cents per pound as Fruit Jars at 50c. a dozen. Standard Mason's Jars, quarts, cost at wholesale everywhere, at the present time, $7.50 per gross, or 62½c. per dozen—add breakage, freight, etc., and the cost is near 70c. per dozen. We have no connection with the trust, and every penny we realize on goods we handle is for goods that stand behind them. Our customers will buy, and our prices for reliable new Fruit Jars is 70c. per dozen for large neck pints, 75c. per dozen for quarts, and $1 per dozen for ½ gallons. These prices are certain to be advanced double before the season is over. We have a few hundred sizes of other Window Screens to Fit All Windows, 17c., 20c., 25c. and 30c. Not even seconds, or second-hand goods in these, can be had for any such amount. The second-hand dealer is not in it. Come to Cheap Cash, Old Stand, Old Prices, and you will find other and reasonable goods, including Crockery and General House Furnishings. We will have the entire trade of the town on fair prices and quality count for anything. That goes! Our prices and yes will go no further. Standard Measure

NEW SOCIETY FORMED.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S LEAGUE OF THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH NO MORE.

Miss Spangenberg Convinces its Members of the Desirability of the Christian Endeavor Society, and One is Formed.

SOCIETIES for Christian Endeavor have one more auxiliary in the work now.

The executive committee and president of the Young People's League of the First Baptist church called a special business meeting in the lecture room of the church last evening to take action in regard to changing the league into a Christian Endeavor Society. The president of the league, Mr. Robert Love, called the meeting to order and presided. Mr. Clarence Johnson acted as secretary. After a short devotional service, Miss Spangenberg spoke in relation to the Christian Endeavor Society, explaining its principles, its object and workings. She was listened to very attentively and in conclusion offered to answer any questions in regard to the society that were not thoroughly understood. Several took advantage of the opportunity and asked several questions in regard to the society, all of which the speaker answered very satisfactorily.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. Yerkes, spoke in favor of making the change.

Mr. George H. Bachelor offered a resolution which was unanimously adopted that the league be dissolved, with a view of forming a Christian Endeavor Society.

The league being dissolved Mr. Bachelor was made chairman of the meeting. A vote was taken in regard to organizing a Christian Endeavor Society and resulted as follows: In favor of the society 38; undecided: 2; against, 1. The vote was made unanimous.

A nomination committee was appointed and a committee on constitution were appointed and instructed to report at a meeting to be held Friday, June 9th. A vote of thanks was extended to Miss Spangenberg and the meeting adjourned.

WHEN LADIES GO ON A "RUN."

The Lady Cyclist Club Had Great Sport Yesterday.

The Lady Cyclists, under the leadership of Captain Lilian Fritts, had a club "run" yesterday. They went by train and bicycle to the Van Court Inn, which, for an hour or so, they appeared to own.

After dinner they started for home at noon. On the train the ladies had such a good time that all the passengers in their car were six inch smiles for an hour.

The fewest time they got the conductor so rattled that he punched a time-table twice for a ticket, charged six cents fare from Fanwood to Plainfield when the lady had a ticket to Grant avenue, entirely forgot to collect three tickets, and finally appealed to Mr. Green who was the only male representative of Plainfield dignity in the party. Oh, yes, they did have great sport. The conductor seemed to enjoy it also.

PERSONAL.

Miss Florence Walker of Grove street is seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Smith, who moved from Putnam avenue last Fall, have returned to Plainfield.

Mrs. J. P. Taylor, formerly of this city, who has been visiting Mrs. Harder of Madison avenue, returned to New York to-day.

Harry F. Johnston, son of J. Wesley Johnston of La Grande avenue, returned from the South yesterday, where he has been for some time in search of health.

Manager Thomas H. Keller of the Crescents returned to-day from his trip through the West and South. While in Michigan, he received an offer from a ball club to take the Crescents there on an outing, and play a series of ball games.

Mr. Gustavus A. Brett, who died at the home of his son, William G. Brett, of Central avenue, on Thursday afternoon, aged seventy-three years, was one of the oldest men in the shipping and commission business in New York, his firm being G. A. Brett, Son & Co., of 41 South street. He was a member of the Produce and Maritime Exchanges. The funeral services will be held on Monday afternoon.

Dr. Frank Hallock of this city, brother of Geo. A. Hallock, of Hallock & Davis, has been appointed assistant house surgeon in the Brooklyn Homeopathic Hospital, Cumberland street, Brooklyn. As he graduated with honor at the New York Homeopathic Medical College and subsequently from the New York State Board of Examiners we congratulate the hospital staff on having so able an assistant and young Dr. Hallock upon his success.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Maston celebrated their 38th wedding anniversary last night at their home, 32 Webster place. Those present were: Mrs. Willingham Nichols, Messrs. James and Thomas Nichols, of Newark; Mrs. Stratton, of Scotch Plains; Mrs. Stewart Sodel, of Westfield; Mrs. W. Clum, Miss Mary Clum, of Nesquehoning; Mr. and Mrs. A. Maston, Mrs. Radim, Mrs. Angleman, Mrs. M. Corfield, Mr. W. Rayner, Mr. and Mrs. James Huntington, Miss C. Sorrenson, Miss B. Hellmann, M. G. Perrine, Mr. Elmer Mills, Mr. P. Meeker and Mr. T. Splane. There were many pretty presents.

FUTURE HOME OF THE NEW YORK HERALD.

"WHEN QUALITY MEET"

A LITTLE IRISH-DUTCH VERBAL WAR LAST EVENING.

The Narrow Somerset Roadway.—It Caused Two Drivers to Wish Each Other a Warm Future Abode, and a "Royal Bine" Trip There.—The Marshal Took a Hand in the Game.

John Barry and a German farmer from over the mountain met last evening on the eight feet wide roadway the Street Railway Company has left for wagons on Somerset street, opposite Maunice avenue, and proceeded to "ignore" each other in a marked manner. The farmer had entered the narrow strip first, he said, and proceeded to drive his fine team and farm wagon right along. Barry had entered the strip first, he said, and the only reason his horse and wagon didn't go over the other man's outfit was because his rig wasn't built for rough work. They met in the centre of the strip and dis-cussed each other's beauty points with great freedom. Two men and a boy stopped to hear what the men were saying.

"Get t'ell outen here" Mr. Barry remarked genially.

"Tust you do dot yourself. I vas here feurst" the German responded.

Three more men, two boys and a girl stopped to see what the two men and the boy were looking at.

Meanwhile, compliments were flying between the two drivers in the roadway. Barry's horse proceeded to lunch off a bit of grass. The farmer's handsome sorrel team pranced, and, guided by the driver, came down Barry, fearing his wagon would be wrecked, called out:

"Mind there now, you're drivin' into me, y'damhaysced."

"Tah! dots rightdt! Get yourselef off der roadt!" was the answer. However, the horses were stopped before a collision occurred.

Barry re-affirmed his decision to wait till morning, if necessary. The farmer went him one better.

"Vell, I vas! Vell, dots all rightdt. I vaits me here till next week, dondt it."

The crowd was increasing rapidly. A young man driving a big team of greys, and having a tale of hay, came along.

"Hey! Barny!" a small boy called out, "there's the feed for your horses."

The driver of the greys, however, drove up on the sidewalk and passed around the blockade.

Finally Marshal Faugborn came along and, convinced that the farmer had the right of way, made Barry get his rig half way up on the sidewalk while the German drove by, triumphantly waving his hand.

And the crowd went home.

THREE FINGERS CUT OFF.

Young Julian Sutphen Hurt on the Railroad.

This afternoon, Julian Sutphen, a young boy, of West Second street, was seriously injured at the North avenue depot. He was riding on the train that reaches here at 1.50, and attempted to get off before the cars stopped. He slipped and fell. The car wheels passed over the fingers of his left hand, cutting three of them off. When he fell young Sutphen struck on the back of his head, inflicting a bad gash.

THE HERALD BUILDING.

EDITOR BENNETTS PALATIAL STRUCTURE IN NEW YORK.

The Building is a Decided Novelty in These Days of Newspaper Buildings That Rise Almost to the Clouds, and is Only Two Stories High.

The future home of the New York Herald recently erected on the triangular site formed by the intersection of Broadway and Sixth avenue in the metropolis is a decided novelty in these days of newspaper buildings that rise story above story until they almost touch the clouds. In New York during the past quarter of a century many of the newspapers have been endeavoring to erect buildings that would overtop their contemporaries by a story or two, but Editor James Gordon Bennett of The Herald has gone to the other extreme. His building is only two stories high, although it occupies a site of great value, and the entire structure will be used by The Herald to the exclusion of all other business.

Architecturally the building is a beautiful one, and it is as practical inside as any newspaper home could be. When The Herald takes possession in about a month, the staff and various departments will be housed in quarters whose arrangements has been designed to provide the best equipment that architectural ingenuity could devise for the issue of a great newspaper. The dominant impression in regard to the interior is that it is intended to be a roomy and cheerful place both by day and night. The great window space on every floor insures the best daylight, and an electric plant of extra power will supply the most effective substitute for the sun's rays when needed.

MEEKER GETS THIRTY DAYS.

He Forged a Check on Mr. Rice for $25.

At the Court of Special Sessions held yesterday morning, Judges McCormick, Wiley and Hyer on the bench, the following prisoners were arraigned to plead:

Ernest Jones and Herbert Scribner, two small boys accused of entering the Central Railroad station at Aldine and stealing tickets valued at $1, and who were arrested in this city, pleaded guilty; both boys were sentenced to the Reform School.

William Meeker, of this city, who, a week ago, pleaded guilty to forging a check on his employer, Mr. Rice, for $25 on being questioned by the court as to what induced him to commit such an offense, replied that he did it while under the influence of drink and had no recollection of doing it.

Meeker was warned to change his course of life, to stop drinking and behave himself. This he promised to do. He was sentenced to thirty days in jail.

A SEVERE SCALP WOUND.

Charles Westphal Injured This Morning.

About nine o'clock this morning, as Charles Westphal of Second street, and a companion, were driving through Fifth avenue, the horse ran sideways, jumped to one side of the road, at the corner of Broadway. The wagon struck the curbing and toppled over, throwing the occupants out. There were some bricks in the wagon. These fell out first. Mr. Westphal's head struck the bricks, inflicting a serious scalp wound, and rendering him unconscious. Frisbie, the coachman, took the injured man and carried him in. Dr. Berg's office, where his injuries were attended to.

The other occupant of the wagon was not hurt, and he pluckily held to the reins, and stopped the horse.

Amusements.

The Music Hall manager says: "Mr. Thos. Sedgwick, the gay composer in the U and I Company is one of the best Irish comedians in this country. He has a happy brogue that is thoroughly natural on the stage and best of no time appears forced or out of place. He has a fund of funny an Irish story as one desires to listen to. For years he used to do an Irish sketch on the vaudeville stage. Sedgwick has written a good many clever Irish songs that are often heard on the stage.

THE HERALD BUILDING. BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS

AN ADJOURNED MEETING HELD THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

The Committee on Appropriation Report That $185,000 Will be Needed for the Year.—Other Business.

The Union County Board of Freeholders in an adjourned meeting yesterday afternoon completed the work left unfinished at the previous meeting owing to the absence of Mr. Swain of Summit.

The Committee on Appropriations reported that after a careful estimate of the necessities of the county, it was decided that an economical administration of affairs could be maintained for the year by an appropriation of $185,000, to be raised by taxation, and by adding thereto $14,000 of assets. It was recommended that the whole be divided among the various departments as follows:

Courts, $25,000; county jail, $6,500; bridges, $55,000; Freeholders' expenses, $5,000; coroners' expenses, $1,000; elections, $11,500; stationery, $3,000; printing $2,500; incidentals, $7,500; hospitals, $3,000; principal of bonded debt; $24,000; interested on bonded debt, $22,000; interest on temporary loans, $3,000; county roads, $15,000; public grounds and buildings, $7,500; culverts and bridges, $21,000.

The following papers were authorized to publish the minutes: Elizabeth Daily Journal, Central New Jersey Herald, Press Dispatch, Old Constitutional, and Courier, Westfield Standard, Summit Record, Rahway Advocate, and Summit Herald.

Some of the papers have refused to publish these minutes, claiming the compensation is inadequate, it usually costing more than the amount received. Such papers publish a synopsis of the meetings immediately after they are held, while the minutes are frequently not published for a month or three weeks afterwards, when they are, for all practical purposes, dead, and only occupy space that can be devoted to better purpose.

A special committee appointed to examine the county road of Cranford opposite the railroad station recommended that power be granted to the committee of Mr. Hunt the County Road Committee was empowered to appropriate $420 for the purpose.

Mr. Woodruff offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the County Attorney to notify the Union Water Company to restore the county roadway in good condition as it was before laying its mains.

Mr. Donahue then presented a communication in regard to the charge that Dr. Chauncey B. Ripley had plowed a portion of the county road between Scotch Plains and Westfield and had ploughed corn. It stated that Dr. Ripley had, under contract, removed the piles of the Union Water Company, and had placed the road for one thousand feet on both sides of the macadam in an improved condition, greatly beautifying the section mentioned. This was done with the approval of the Road Committee, or Boulder, and the statement that Dr. Ripley had planted corn or improperly used the road was alleged to have been a scandal.

Mr. Trahon introduced a resolution adding $600 to the salary of the County Collector for this year, because of the additional work necessary by reason of the contemplated county road improvements.

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Trahon then moved to apportion the money appropriated for hospitals, as follows:

Elizabeth General Hospital, $2,000; Alexian Brothers Hospital, Elizabeth, $500; Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield, $500, $500.

Director Sauer then announced the standing committees. They are:

NEW JERSEY EXEMPT FIREMEN.

The Association Demonstrates its Usefulness and Watchfulness.

[Fireman's Herald.]

In the report of the Legislative Committee of the New Jersey Exempt Association, to the convention held at Trenton last week, it was shown that another law of benefit to the firemen of that state was passed by the Legislature and signed by the Governor. That law provides that all property owned by the Exempt Firemen's Association and used for the purposes of such associations, shall be free from taxation. It also provides that all funds for the relief of firemen, and the widows and orphans of firemen shall be exempt from taxation. This Association once more demonstrates its usefulness and watchfulness. The New Jersey has more beneficial laws for firemen on its statute books than any other State in the Union, and the credit belongs to the firemen's association. Its annual conventions the members do not confine themselves strictly to business and do not fritter away their time in ten-hour long speeches. They first make up their minds what they want and they set about to get it in the most direct manner. There are no politics in the New Jersey State Association or in the Pennsylvania body. The members are individually interested in the welfare of the Association.

FARMER AXT INJURED.

Horse, Wagon and Driver in a Ditch Together.

[Round Brook Chronicle.]

Last Thursday night about nine o'clock, as a German over 60 years of age, by the name of Axt, who lives between Martinsville and Plucknemin, was returning from Plainfield and near the residence of Peter Williams, Jr., at Warrenville, his horse ran off the bridge, overturning him into the ditch, where he lay under his wagon in mud and water at least half an hour before he was able to relieve himself and call at Williams' for help. Williams went to his assistance and sent out a call for help to the house which was responded to by J. D. Bornamann, L. H. McCouse, R. Leroy, Howard Thomas and others. The united efforts of the full force were required to get the horse out of the ditch, as, by his struggling, it had become wedged under the end of the bridge. This is a dangerous place, the bridge being about four feet shorter than the roadway and unprotected by guard rails. The wagon was completely demolished and Axt received numerous bruises.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A New Hawaiian View.

Hon. Charles Nordhoff's letter from Honolulu to the New York Herald is interesting if not positively startling, coming as it does from a man whose name gives character and force to what he says. He claims that nothing is clearer than that the deposition of the Hawaiian queen was due to an intrigue fostered by the American minister. Mr. Nordhoff takes up the question of native government and discusses it from several sides. There are people there who think that an oligarchy would be a nice thing. He does not believe that a republican form of government would be the best thing for a country like Hawaii with a mixed population. A real democracy would give the franchise to Chinese, Japanese and Polynesians equally with the native Hawaiians.

Mr. Nordhoff says that white men have been at the bottom of much of the corrupt or bad legislation which it is now the fashion to charge upon the natives. At present all is quiet, but if Americans were to interfere in any way, even to restore the queen, the result would be mischievous. Concerning the benefits of such a colony to this country Mr. Nordhoff says:

> Nor could we, if we were in want of colonies, plant ourselves in a less convenient or defensible situation. We should have to defend four large islands and a fine harbor one thing at some distances apart. To protect all against attack would require a great fleet in time of war.
> We do not need colonies, but when we do we ought to get one nearer home than 2,100 miles and lying more compactly than this group of islands. If this year were ripe, and we wanted guano, we ought to pull it, but it is not ripe. We can always have all the influence here that we wish. The commerce of the islands is naturally and inevitably with us. Their contract and semiservile labor system, necessary to their prosperity and productiveness, is repugnant to our institutions, and to our traditions necessitates laws justly hateful to our working people and collects here a mongrel population which is not fitted to our system of government.

If there be but a modicum of truth in all this, and if the Hawaiians themselves are not hankering after a republic, it is a case where we can afford at least to make haste slowly.

One Man Refuses Office.

Frank W. Roberts of Biddeford, Me., has been offered the consulate at Cape Town, but he has declined and to accept on account of his dislike of allowing to take his children from the public schools to heathendom.—News Dispatch.

There are two points in this news item calculated to tax the credulity of the intelligent reader. That an American citizen should refuse a foreign consulate at a time when 800 applications for similar posts are on file in the state department is remarkable. That he should liken Cape Town to "heathendom" is preposterous. Such an aspersion would certainly be indignantly repulsed by the inhabitants of that cultured community. Mr. Roberts' declination was rash, to say the least of it. Cape Town is a long way from "Darkest Africa." It enjoys the advantages of an enlightened government, a salubrious climate, public libraries, museums, schools, churches, theaters, railroads, telegraphs, newspapers and an intelligent and cultivated white population.

The children of the American consul at Cape Town may attend the public schools and there be prepared for the Cape university, an institution which ranks with the English universities. Besides the university, there are in the colony 6 colleges and 1,447 schools, of which 484 are public schools, 250 private farm schools and 435 mission schools for natives.

The person who imagines that America monopolizes all the virtue, liberty and intelligence of the universe is making a great mistake.

Work and a Fact.

Some of the champions of a compulsory 8-hour work day claim that in eight hours as much work could and would be produced as in nine or ten. Nonsense! If this be so, why should the hours be reduced? These so called labor reformers ought to understand that such claims are doubly wrong. First, they are not true, and, second, if they were, they would be an argument against the proposed short hour legislation.

The only possible reason for abridging the hours of labor by law is that to do so would give more persons steady employment; it would increase the demand for labor and decrease the supply of unemployed labor. As the value of everything, whether it be brains, skill, muscle, money, diamonds, beans or potatoes, depends upon the supply of it and the demand for it, a decreased supply of labor and an increased demand for it would make labor of greater value. Failing to do this the proposed reduced hours would be of no economic benefit whatever. Labor champions cannot afford to lose sight of this fact.

A plantation near New Berne, N. C., netted to its owners $35,000 cash in 1891, a good part of the sum coming from cabbages. The plantation consists of 1,000 acres and is run as a "truck farm," being planted in early vegetables for the northern market. What is the good of trying to get an office when men can make money like that at farming?

The total amount of money in circulation in the United States in gold, silver and notes of all kinds is $1,909,068,353. That gives us $23.67 to the population. The amount of money in circulation in the country has since April decreased by nearly $3,500,000.

FOSTER FALLS ALONE.

Only His Own Business Enterprises In the Crash.

THE EX-SECRETARY'S STATEMENT.

He Says He Regrets His Failure and Hopes No One Else Will Be Injured—The Story of His Struggle—Excitement Caused In Many Other Places.

FOSTORIA, O., May 27.—The stock of Davis & Foster will involve about $60,000, so that the grocery creditors will lose nothing. The three window glass houses have about $100,000 worth of glass on hand, with notes out which will more than absorb it. The brass and iron works may pay out dollar for dollar, with a little time to avoid sacrificing assets. The Fostoria Light and Power company, which includes the illuminating gas and electric light plants, is thought to have some large obligations outstanding. No other business or manufacturing enterprises are thought to be involved, and no further failures are looked for.

Mr. Foster is bearing up well under the crushing blow.

TOLEDO, May 27.—The failure of ex-Secretary Foster is the one topic of conversation in business circles here today. Every one expresses a sincere regret at the misfortune, and the people of Fostoria are especially sympathised with. It is thought that the failure will have considerable effect here, though there is no apprehension of any serious financial disturbance.

EX-SECRETARY FOSTER.

The Ketcham National bank and Second National bank are the only Toledo institutions holding paper of any kind. Vice President Carr of the Ketcham National bank says that the collections amounting to about $1,500 are out. "We are particularly fortunate," he said, "by having a smaller amount of Mr. Foster's paper this morning than we have had for several weeks."

Mr. Adams, cashier of the Second National bank, said that they have some collection paper, but it was of little importance. The Merchants' National have not corresponded with Mr. Foster for five years. They did not like his policy and dropped him. Mr. Foster's statement.

The following is the statement made by the ex-secretary:

> Words cannot express the deep distress and humiliation which I feel. If I could bear all the burden that my failure will entail I should feel a sense of relief. It is no consolation to look back over a business life of 45 years which has gained for me a position of confidence that has rarely been achieved. I know that I have aided hundreds of people to maintain an honorable standing and to gain a competency, and to me a large degree of wealth. I know that now I have by my failure injured many people. But I hope none are to be ruined.
> When I returned from Washington I knew that my indorsements for the window glass companies and the brass and iron works companies were very large—so large, in fact, as to induce me to fear that I would have to suspend at that time. I therefore visited upon a friend to give me a large amount of help, and then felt confident that I could maintain myself and finally come out all right.
>
> These concerns owed more than I then supposed, and to add to my misfortunes the affairs of the Fostoria Light and Power company, of which I am a large stockholder and indorser, proved to be to a bad shape financially.
>
> Then came the unfortunate financial condition of the country. Every one that I owed wanted his money, and the effort would lead payments instead of being cash, were made in paper. Sales, in fact, came to a standstill. I struggled, seeing every possible means to tide over the situation, until I was compelled to assign. I did not give up the struggle until today, May 30.
>
> It will take the assignee some time to make up the schedule of my affairs. In my affairs I include Foster & Co., the Crocker, Mossberg and Calcined Glass companies, the Brass and Iron works and the Fostoria Light and Power company.
>
> I can see plainly that in settling my affairs through the courts, thus compelling my assets to be sold for cash, large sacrifices will be made. This being so I cannot give encouragement that my debts will be paid in full.
>
> The Banks Are Safe.
> The other concerns with which I am connected are all on a sound basis, except possibly Davis & Foster's furniture. They have a surplus of $60,000, and ought to pay in full. My failure must doubtless cause a shock to the interests of the people, from which they will speedily recover. I believe our business concerns are all in a sound and healthy condition, and the two banks are especially strong. Depositors with them need not feel any alarm.
>
> I sold my two blocks and four parcels of land to Mr. Harkness when I arranged for a large sum of money, and have turned over to him my stock in Cunningham & Co., and the stave and barrel company. I have given mortgages to two women who relied upon me to invest their money, it being about all the property they own, amounting to about $4,000.
>
> It is only just to myself to say that two things have caused my downfall—one was neglect of business occasioned by my devotion to politics, and the other to an overzealous desire to build up Fostoria.
>
> I do not know that at my time of life I ought to indulge in the hope of being able to repair my fortunes and pay my debts, but I shall try, and it will be the one end for which I shall live.
>
> In this hour of unspeakable distress I only crave the generous judgment of the public—a public that will be deeply shocked over the financial downfall of a man who has enjoyed their confidence to a remarkable degree.
>
> The aggregate amount of liabilities including bank deposits, my individual debts, the three glass companies, the brass and iron works companies and the light and power company, will be about $600,000.
>
> The assets on paper will more than cover the liabilities. Mr. Wilkeson has secured the bonded fund and the building and loan association funds against loss.
>
> Cleveland Bankers Were Shy.
>
> CLEVELAND, May 27.—Inquiry at various banks resulted in information to the effect that for some time past the Fostoria Banking company had been seeking to borrow considerable sums in this city, but so far as could be learned had been invariably declined. The cause of the trouble at Fostoria is stated by local financiers to be the fact that Foster had been the backbone of numerous Fostoria industries, which being bothered by the late pinch, have fallen back upon him, and pushed him harder than he could stand.
>
> The dispatch from Tiffin, where the assignment was filed, says a pointer seems to have been given to the Isaac Harter Milling company and to O. T. Brown, for the former secured an attachment for $8,200 and the latter for $1,930, and Sheriff Hurman went to Fostoria at once and levied on sufficient goods to secure their claims. Excitement runs high, and it is said that many in this city will be losers in the failure.

RENOUNCED HER PARENTS.

The Peculiar Infatuation of a Young Girl For a Strange Woman.

WALTHAM, Mass., May 27.—Alice Stone, a young girl, who came here one year ago to study in the Waltham Training School for Nurses, has given up her studies to assume the position of adopted daughter of Mrs. Jane Thompson, who is reputed a very wealthy and eccentric widow of New York city.

A few months ago Mrs. Thompson came to Waltham to visit a sick aunt then confined in the Waltham hospital. There she met Alice Stone, and between the two there appears to have arisen an intense infatuation. On March 1 Alice gave up her position as a nurse and went to live with Mrs. Thompson. She proposed to adopt the girl, and although the parents of the latter, who reside at Sherborn, strongly objected, as did her friends, Alice renounced her name, occupation and family, assumed the name of Marion Prentiss Thompson and consented to a formal adoption. On Sunday last she became 21 years of age, and on Monday she and her new mother left this city accompanied by the latter's maid, saying they soon would return to this city.

Meanwhile Alice had assumed deep mourning for the deceased Mr. Thompson, whom she never saw in person. Her parents are said to be almost heartbroken over the action of their daughter.

FAIR OPEN TOMORROW.

The Law's Machinery Moves Too Slowly to Suit Them.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Open to the world will be the gates of the beautiful "white city" at Jackson park tomorrow. The officials in charge are making extensive preparations to receive immense crowds, and if the weather is pleasant they estimate that the attendance will be greater than that of any day since the opening of the fair.

The labor organizations will ask for an injunction suit against the directors of the Columbian exposition to prevent their closing the gates on Sunday, Judge Stein took the matter under advisement this morning. Pending his decision no action in the premises will be taken on any court in Cook county.

This will leave the Sunday opening resolution of the directory undisturbed by legal proceedings. The federal district attorney filed his bill for an injunction today, but said tonight that no action would be taken until next week, and that a temporary restraining order will not be asked for pending the arguments on any bill.

Pork Went Up and Down.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Waking up to find the hotel afire was a trifle of little importance. The Merchants' National have not corresponded with Mr. Foster for five years. They did not like his policy and dropped him. Mr. Foster's statement.

BEFORE THE ASSEMBLY.

The Appeal From the New York Synod Allowed.

DR. BRIGGS' REAL TRIAL BEGUN.

A Dramatic Scene Just Before the Vote Was Taken—Dr. Briggs on His Feet With Flashing Eyes—Looked Relieved When the Decision Was Made.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Amid the most intense excitement the first crisis in the Briggs case has been reached and passed, and today begins the real trial of the noted professor on a charge of heresy. The Presbyterian general assembly has decided by formal vote that the case should be tried before it as an ecclesiastical court, and that it should not return to the New York synod, which failed to confirm the charges made against Dr. Briggs.

The scenes leading up to the casting of the decisive vote were very dramatic. The venerable Dr. Duffield of Princeton college secured the floor and said he had great pleasure in expressing his admirable and Christian character of Dr. Briggs. "If his logical faculties were equal to his scholarship, I do not know his equal in the intellectual world of America at least." As soon as the gavel fell on Dr. Duffield the most sensational scene of the day and the assembly so far occurred.

A Dramatic Scene.

In the course of the venerable doctor's remarks, his statement of Pro fessor Briggs teachings were questioned by several commissioners, and the professor himself gave utterance to an emphatic denial that he would not be understood by the reporters. But as Dr. Duffield stepped down he came almost into direct contact with Professor Briggs, who, with flashing eyes, had sprung to his feet, demanding to be heard.

A storm of dissent and cries of "Order!" immediately broke out.

The Moderator—Professor Briggs, you cannot be heard now.

Professor Briggs—I have some rights here, and I demand the right to be heard in this misstatement and misinterpretation of my writings.

Moderator Craig—You are not a member of this house.

Professor Briggs—Then I appeal to the house. [Cries of "Order!" "You have no right here!"]

"I appeal to the house if I have not the right to make an explanation!"

The moderator again informed the professor that he had no right to make the appeal. "Then I appeal for him," said Dr. Duffield. "I would not that any injustice be done a man, and to Professor Briggs in particular. I plead a hearing for him."

The Moderator—Professor Briggs cannot make any statement to the house at this time. Any friend of yours may challenge and correct any statement to which you take exceptions.

Professor Briggs—No friend can do that for him.

The Moderator—Yes, he can. And I enjoin you to have one of them do so and thus avoid this scene.

Professor Briggs (folding his arms and mounting the platform, facing the audience)—I must appeal to the house.

At which there was renewed disorder by those opposed to Professor Briggs.

Spectators in the galleries had risen, to their feet and leaned over the railing anxious to hear every word of the unseemly outbreak.

The moderator appealed to Professor Briggs to take his seat, saying: "Professor Briggs, you have been so kind to me all along, I hope you will yield. I will protect you in the matter absolutely."

"Not now," responded the moderator.

Thereupon the professor took his seat, the storm subsided and the debate proceeded.

Rev. George D. Baker of Philadelphia, chairman of the judicial committee, closed the debate, having yielded the right to open. His sense of responsibility, he said, had deepened from the beginning until now, when it was intense. He had tried to do as Dr. Briggs asked him to do, to put himself in his place, and was more and more convinced that Dr. Briggs' interests would not suffer in the least by an issue in this assembly.

Would another general assembly be more fair than this? Dr. Briggs had demanded that he be not placed a second time in jeopardy on the same charge. Dr. Baker would not permit him to be placed a third time in jeopardy, as would be the case, if the appeal went back to the synod.

When the decision was announced a buzz of excitement and anticipation arose, which was broken in upon now and again by various motions, points of order, etc., relating to the parliamentary situation. The tension was relieved by the unfailing good nature with which Dr. Craig presented these motions or skillfully ignored them. He made a strong appeal to have the controverted statements by Dr. Duffield of Professor Briggs' teachings, that having been made from recollection, be not allowed to be taken into consideration in influencing the vote of a commissioner.

Dr. Briggs Watched the Vote.

Judge Purnell of Baltimore then offered his motion to remand the case to the New York synod. This was defeated by a viva voce vote and again by a rising vote. The question then recurring on the resolution of the judicial committee that the appeal be entertained the ayes and nays were demanded and the roll call was begun.

It was taken amid an almost painful silence, during which the defendant watched with feverish anxiety the progress of the vote by tally kept by his friend, Professor Brown, who sat at his elbow. All over the house and in the galleries the vote was followed on the roll call of members by interested ones, who could not wait for the official announcement of the result. While the roll was being called Moderator Craig yielded the chair to ex-Moderator William C. Roberts, D. D., and himself voted "aye."

When the clerk had finished the call of the synod of New York, and Professor Briggs found that his position in favor of sending the appeal to the synod had been approved by a majority of the commissioners of his own local presbytery, the commissioners from which did not vote, he seemed relieved, and rose from his half leaning posture over Professor Brown to the upright pose he had maintained throughout the trying ordeal.

The result of this vote on the motion to entertain the appeal in the Briggs case was announced by Dr. Craig as follows: Yeas, 406; nays, 145.

On motion of Dr. Young the judicial committee was instructed to prepare a programme for procedure in the trial of the appeal, and the assembly decided to proceed with the trial this morning.

Her hair all came out. She weighed but 78 lbs., and saw no prospect of ever getting well. At last she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and as soon as she improved, could soon get out of bed and walk. She says: "I became perfectly cured by Dr. Talmage and Klopsch Receive Souvenirs For Helping the Famine Sufferers.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—The saloon of the imperial Russian warship Dmitri Donskoi, now in this port, was the scene of a very interesting ceremonial. It was on the occasion of the presentation by the Russian minister at Washington of souvenirs from Czar Alexander III to Rev. Dr. Talmage of Brooklyn and Dr. Louis Klopsch of New York in acknowledgment of the services they rendered to Russia and humanity during the terrible famine in 16 Russian provinces last year. It was stated in the official invitation sent to those gentlemen that the testimonials were to be presented "in the presence of Russia's nobles and on Russian soil," the deck of a man-of-war being so regarded in international law.

The invitation came quite unexpectedly to both Drs. Talmage and Klopsch, for they have already been honored by receiving the personal thanks of the emperor last July, when they visited Russia to superintend the distribution of the 1,800 tons of provisions which they had chartered the steamship Leo to convey from New York to St. Petersburg. A prior shipment of 1,000,000 pounds of flour had been made on the steamship Conemaugh from Philadelphia, both cargoes being purchased with a fund of $50,000. The cargoes arrived and were distributed by Drs. Talmage and Klopsch in the interior at a time when the cholera was raging in the famine smitten provinces. It was the reception of their courageous fulfillment of this self imposed commission at such a personal risk, as well as to further emphasize Russia, a friendship for America in the Columbian year, that the presentation took place.

The Outer Cholera Guard Reports.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Dr. William A. Wheeler, head of the Marine Hospital service on Ellis island, who was recently sent abroad to inspect the seaports from whence large shipments of immigrants are likely to be made, writes that at Hamburg there are large numbers of immigrants housed there in barracks, who come from Russia, Austria, Hungary and southern Europe, en route to America, and many of them are extremely filthy. The barracks in which these people are confined, pending medical examination, contain accommodations for 1,000 people, and they are never empty.

How Emin Pasha Died.

BRUSSELS, May 27.—A letter received from Rasehi ben Mohammed by the governor of Stanley Falls leaves a little doubt that Emin Pasha, the noted explorer, is dead. The letter says that an Arab chief, Said ben Abed, in journeying through Unyoro and Wadelai, met Emin Pasha and his expedition in a hostile manner. Said ben Abed and his victorious followers overtook Emin, captured and killed him, together with all his people.

Fear of Deportation Made Him Insane.

NEWARK, N. J., May 27.—Two police officers escorted Charley Jan, a Chinese, to police headquarters. Charley has been acting strangely for several weeks. He was in constant fear that he would be returned to China, but on Monday, it is believed, he was robbed of $1,200 by a New York hackman. Since then he has been violent, and has followed several of his old American customers about.

Burglars In the Mohawk Valley.

NEW YORK, May 27.—A gang of burglars is still operating in the Mohawk valley. About $200 worth of property was taken from the house of Robert Craig at Fultonville, and the house of Adams Smith at Canajoharie was robbed of silverware and some money. About a dozen robberies have been committed within a very short time.

Vassar Girls In a Greek Play.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 27.—The Greek play "Antigone" was given by the students of Vassar college before an audience of 1,000 people at the opera house in this city. Greek professors from a score of colleges were present, and every word of the play was in Greek.

Mrs. Barber Broke the Will.

HARTFORD, May 27.—The jury in the contested will of James S. Barber of Broad Brook brought in a verdict for the appellants. The sum of $100,000 was involved. Mr. Barber left only one-third to his wife and $5,000 each to various societies and corporations.

France Preparing to Fight.

PARIS, May 27.—The Temps says that the gunboats Lion and Forfait are already at Saigon, the capital of Cochin-China, and that the warships Triomphante and Inconstant and the gunboat Cometo will leave Hong Kong shortly for the same point.

A Fatal Cyclone.

VANDALIA, Mo., May 27.—A terrible cyclone struck Indiana, 10 miles west of here, killing Jack Wills of Farber, Mo., and seriously injuring six others. Five large business houses and five dwellings were completely destroyed.

Englishmen Buy the Isthmus.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 27.—An English company has bought 70,000 acres on the Isthmus of Tehauntepec for purposes of colonization. The land is admirably adapted for coffee growing.

WEARIED THE INFANTA.

Shaking Hands With Society People Grew Tiresome.

GRAND BALL GIVEN IN HER HONOR.

She Did Not Dance, but She Appeared on the Floor. Madison Square Garden the Scene of a Brilliant Affair.—The Infanta Rose Late This Morning In Consequence.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The Spanish infanta was not visible to callers until nearly noon today, but when she did appear there were no traces on her fresh face of ill effects from last night's ball. She looked as pretty as ever and not a bit sleepy.

The ball was a very successful affair. It was more than that. For grandeur, impressiveness and elegance, it has not been excelled by any similar function held in the metropolis. The ball was very different from the monstrous affair given in the amphitheater of Madison Square Garden last month to the Duke of Veragua and the officers of the visiting fleet.

The Circulo Cotton Cervantes was host, and the affair was given under the auspices of their excellencies, the ministers of Spain, Mexico, Peru and Brazil. Mayor Gilroy and Mrs. Gilroy, representing the city, were guests. The assembly rooms and concert hall of Madison Square Garden had been transformed into a dreamland of beauty by masses of flowers, plants and evergreens in honor of the occasion. A detail of blue jackets from the Spanish man-of-war Infanta Isabella acted as guards at the door and a platoon of police kept Twenty-sixth street clear for guests.

Lander's orchestra and the Saragossa band furnished dance and promenade music from opposite galleries in the concert room, which was arranged for dancing.

Society Bowed to the Princess.

The boxes in the gallery of the concert room were nearly all filled with gorgeously attired women and with men, half of whom were either uniforms or decorations of some Spanish society.

The infanta was late in starting, and it was 11 o'clock when she arrived at Madison Square Garden. She was accompanied by Prince Antonio, the Marquesa de Arco Hermosa and General Varnum.

When the entree of the royal party was made the orchestra was playing in the concert hall adjoining, but otherwise all sound was hushed in expectations. The princess was radiantly beautiful as she appeared. Her youthful beauty was set off by the snow white beard and hair of Senor Navarro. He walked but half a dozen steps into the room and turned to the dais at the left of the entrance. The princess stepped upon the platform and stood facing the company, Prince Antonio took his place at her left, and the marquesa stood at the side of the dais near the prince.

The infanta smiled sweetly, but looked somewhat tired as the presentation was begun. The prince made an attempt to conceal the fact that he was tired, and looked on with an air of ennui.

The members of the reception and floor committees were first introduced by Senor Baldasano, the Spanish consul general. The gentlemen merely bowed and retired. The princess bowed and smiled as each was presented.

What the Princess Wore.

She wore a gown of pale blue brocaded silk trimmed with old pink, and the low corsage was faced with pale blue lace. A necklace of diamonds and turquoise encircled her throat, and there were diamonds in her hair.

After standing eight minutes the princess showed signs of weariness and sat down, receiving the ladies sitting.

When the formal presentation was ended Senor Navarro escorted the princess to the box which had been arranged for her in the gallery of the concert hall. The others of the party followed and took seats in the box. The appearance of the princess in the gallery was the signal for the opening of the ball.

The first quadrille was formed at once and the ball was begun without ceremony. After two or three numbers had been danced the princess expressed a desire to go on the floor, and on the arm of Senor Navarro she descended from the box and slowly made a tour of the ballroom. Members of the Spanish-American colony and others pressed forward and were presented to the princess on the floor. Later in the evening the princess and guests of honor took supper at a table on a raised platform at one side of the banquet hall adjoining the assembly room. Mayor Gilroy sat at the right of the princess. At her left was the Spanish minister, and next to him was the prince. After the supper the royal party retired to the Savoy.

McGlynn Goes to Chicago.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Dr. Edward McGlynn, who has for some time contemplated visiting Rome, with a view of making his peace with the pope, is now on his way to Chicago, and it is quite probable that the doctor will not leave this country for a few months.

Weeks' Company Will Reorganize.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The directors of the West Superior Iron and Steel company have decided that the company should be reorganized. This is the company that was organized by Francis H. Weeks.

Weavers on Strike.

WATERVILLE, Me., May 27.—Over 800 Lockwood mill weavers are out on strike.

DEEDS DONE IN DIXIE.

Some Unique Happenings Wired Up From the South.

ATLANTA, May 27.—A young lady named Sallie Wallace, near Midville, Ga., shot and killed Manuel Rosenweng, a Russian Jew peddler, who had sold her a pair of shoes, which were not satisfactory to her.

BALTIMORE, May 27.—Rev. Oscar C. Payton of Manassas, Va., arrested his wife in this city and took her to the police station, where he charged her with having broken her marital vows. He says his wife told him that she wanted to come to Baltimore to visit some friends. He gave his consent, but finding that she refused to return home he sent his wife's brother here, and upon his report the husband came to town.

Mrs. Payton was known here as a Mrs. Carr, and she says that she never loved her husband; that he was cruel to her; that he was too old. Mrs. Payton will go back.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 27.—Henry Ramsay, colored, was hanged in Richmond county jailyard for the murder last October of Robert Y. Harris, marshal of Summerville. While the officers were binding his feet he remarked that it reminded him of the manner in which young mules were tied. Just before the drop fell he shouted, "Goodby."

CLAY CHARLES, Va., May 27.—W. M. Mason, 30 years old, a baggage master on the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk railway, was arrested, charged with robbing United States mail bags carried in his car.

A PLUCKY CONSTABLE.

He Would Not Let Frances Hill's Men Do Any Lynching.

GOUVERNEUR, N. Y., May 27.—During the performance of Frances Hill's Wild West show, New Wilson, one of the employees, was sent to some sheds to drive off a few men on the roofs. One fellow resisted and fired two shots at Wilson, one bullet inflicting a painful wound in the hand. Wilson's friends started in pursuit of the offender.

They found a man under a coal car and prepared to lynch him, but were prevented by a constable, who threatened to shoot the first man who dared to touch the prospective victim of lynch law. The circus men then made for two other men whom they thought to be the guilty ones, but were frustrated by the constable. The real culprits has not yet been discovered.

News From Nicaragua.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The United States consul at San Juan del Norte, Mr. Braida, sends a report that telegrams received by the intendente at Del Norte state that the city of Rinas was taken by General Eva and that Don San Jago Morales, one of the richest men of the country, has been proclaimed president of the republic by the revolutionary party. Following up this move the revolutionists took the town of Jinotepee, which is really the key to the capital of the country, after a resistance of four hands. The consul confirms the report that the steamship Victoria on Lake Nicaragua, belonging to a French company, is in the hands of the revolutionists.

PANAMA, via Galveston, May 27.—The revolutionists in Nicaragua are obtaining arms by way of the Atlantic coast and by river and are assuming the offensive. A provisional government has been organized at Granada. Zacasa is losing confidence. He has sent the American minister to Masaya to propose peace. It is expected that the strife will soon cease.

THE GUAVA.

The Peach of Florida, From Which Is Made a Conserve Famous the World Over.

Among the tropical fruits this is one of the most common and popular even among the most careless and ignorant. Some call it the "peach of Florida." There are about 30 botanical species, and all, perhaps with one exception, are native of the tropical regions of the American continent and are not found in any other part of the world except where introduced by man. None is found wild within the United States except as chance seedlings which have escaped from cultivation. Seeds are abundant in all species and germinate very freely. They are about the size and shape of those of the tomato, and the internal structure of the fruit resembles that vegetable. The flavor is quite peculiar and pronounced and at first not always liked. To the taste the fruit is pleasant acid. The crop usually ripens in the late summer, although some varieties bear fruit during the entire year. All kinds are said to grow from cuttings. The trees following named species have been quite well established in Florida and to some extent in California:

THE STRAWBERRY GUAVA.

Psidium guava, known also as the "common guava," "apple guava" and "pear guava," is a native of the West Indies and very tender. P. cattleyanum, or "strawberry guava," is a native of Brazil and a much more hardy species. P. lucidum, or "Mexican guava," in Florida is improperly called "yellow cattly guava." The strawberry guava illustrated in the cut is small and in color a dull red, with numerous brown dots on the slightly roughened and not glossy surface. The flavor is pleasant, though decidedly acid, somewhat resembling the strawberry.

The guava jelly, which is known the world over as one of the most delicious of all conserves, is made chiefly from the apple or pear guava. However, jelly of excellent quality can be made from any species of this genus. The fruit is also eaten fresh with sugar and cream, or preserved and canned as are other fruits.

Earthquakes and Vegetation.

Of the influence of the recent earthquakes in northern Italy, M. Goiran has observed that they were apparently followed by a speedier germination of seeds, a more rapid growth of the young plants, a more luxuriant vegetation in the pastures, tillable lands, vineyards and copses and a more distinct greenness of foliage. He ascribes these results not to the earthquakes direct-

Under some conditions earthquakes seemed to have an unfavorable influence on vegetation, but this, M. Goiran thinks, was the result of long droughts that accompanied them.

A New Use For Sequoia Stumps.

The vandal woodcutters in the California sequoia forests used to cut trees at a distance of from 12 to 20 feet above the ground in order to avoid the gnarled and knotted base. But it has been lately found that these stumps are as valuable as the straight wood. The gnarl presents most beautiful figurings, and the wood is sawed into thin sheets and used for interior decorations. The Industrial World tells that these stumps are now being dug out, and soon not even a vestige will remain to show what was the appearance of some of the most majestic natural ornaments of this wonderful continent.

Humming Bird In a Spider's Web.

"My sister was walking in the garden one morning when she heard a frightened bird in a tangle of nasturtium vines. She stopped to investigate and found a little humming bird caught in a spider's web. Two portly spiders had discreetly dressed in black and yellow were hastening toward it. She caught up the bird and brought it into the house, for the pleasure of holding a humming bird in a hero one. We examined and admired it. Then from its perch upon my finger it flew through the open window to sunlight and liberty," tells a correspondent in Popular Science News.

A Novel Vaporizer.

In the accompanying illustration is shown a little homemade appliance that is both economical and useful, for it will serve a host of excellent purposes. It will enable the dentist to apply his "fixing" solution in the form of liquid spray; the careful housekeeper to disinfect the most unpalatable corners with finely vaporized antiseptic fluids; the lady of fashion to embalm the air of her apartment with a cloud of scented sweetness.

AN IMPROMPTU VAPORIZER.

And of what does the apparatus consist? A couple of goose quills with their smaller ends meeting and thrust at right angles the one to the other through an ordinary cork, of which shorter end has been removed by making a vertical section half way down through its longer axis and a horizontal section through one-half of the thickness, as shown in our illustration. Such is the whole art and mystery of our impromptu vaporizer.

Place the flexible tube in a bottle of any perfume you please, blow through the horizontal tube, and you will obtain a cloud of scented spray as from interior to that produced by the most elaborate of vaporizers.

GOOD HEALTH

ADMINISTERING ETHER.

Mistakes In Its Being as Reported Upon by an English Authority.

The fact that ether, like all other stimulants when taken in excessive quantities, acts as a cardiac depressant—the only way indeed in which it can affect that organ injuriously—has led to a vigorous article in an English medical review, in which the statement is emphasized that the most common mistake made by beginners in the administration of ether is that of forgetting to lessen the proportion of the substance when full anæsthesia is established—that is, continuing to make their patients respire an atmosphere as highly charged with its vapors as when getting them under the influence. It is a matter of surprise to physicians how very little ether will often suffice to keep a patient well under the influence toward the close of an operation, and how small a quantity will always postpone vomiting until the operation is completed.

The second difficulty that may arise in the administration of ether is well known to all practitioners to occur with the respiration, and the respiratory mucous membranes of some patients is so sensitive that unless the ether be given highly diluted, with extreme regularity, so much irritative cough is set up and so much mucus is secreted that there is risk of asphyxiation. In such cases chloroform should be substituted. The normal state of the pupil of the eye in anæsthesia is that of slight contraction. It never goes to a contracted one, in which it has not lost its reaction to light.

Diet For Dyspeptics.

Eat slowly; masticate the food thoroughly, even more so if possible than is required in health.

Avoid drinking at meals. At most take a few sips of warm, unstimulated drink at the close of the meal if the food is very dry in character.

In general dyspeptic stomachs manage dry food better than that containing much fluid, as swell little sponge.

Eat neither very hot nor very cold food. The best temperature is about that of the body. Avoid exposure to cold soon after eating.

Be careful to avoid excess in eating. Eat no more than the wants of the system require. Strength depends not on what is eaten, but on what is digested.

Never take violent exercise of any sort, either mental or physical, either just before or after a meal. It is not good to sleep immediately after eating.

If it is thought necessary to eat three times a day, make the last meal very light. For most dyspeptics two meals are better than more, according to the courageous formulator of this set of rules for the management of the most eccentric and uncertain organ—a dyspeptic stomach.

Childhood In City and Country.

Dr. H. L. Taylor thinks that city children get too little light and air, do not take enough of the right kind of exercise, are often overfed or underfed, or pushed or hampered too much in their studies and especially in their emotions. There is a precocity in knowledge of people and social relations, darkest ignorance in regard to most natural objects and processes. In diet the city fed child often fares better than the country one, but in regard to fresh air he is not usually so fortunate, and as he gets older the difficulty is increased. The city child is hampered in his movements, and in the same time subjected to a mass of auditory, visual and other impressions in unending succession. His co-ordination is less perfect, although his wits are brighter than those of the country child. The city child loses much in not obtaining as early knowledge of nature. A child to grow up naturally should have a fair share of wholesome hunger and judicious exposure. A child delights to make himself useful, and it is cruelty to deprive him of this pleasure and education. A boy is better for having a carpenter's bench and a girl for doing a portion of the housework.

ETIQUETTE

SUMMER PROBLEMS.

Civilities Between Newcomers and Residents In the Country.

People who take a house in the country for the summer should consider the question of their visiting list carefully. If they bring a sufficiently large party to entertain themselves or desire only quiet and rest, it may be well. "What is a pleasure party for?" It is one to whom newcomers for the summer months are cordially received, where few houses are let to strangers, and where there is a feeling of country neighborliness glad of any re-enforcement from without not too fashionable and exclusive to hold aloof from whatever society is to be had.

Introductions are seldom brought by newcomers to country people, inasmuch as they are occasionally made by mutual friends—but the fact of taking a house for a certain number of months induces the immediate neighbors to call at once. These inform the more distant ones of the advent of the new arrivals; thus they are speedily launched into the life of the place. The world is so small that every one's position and standing become known in an incredibly short space of time, and all take their places accordingly, seeing much or little of the neighbors, as the case may be.

The preliminary civility after a first call should usually take form of an invitation to afternoon tea or to a tennis party. Invitations to dinner or luncheon follow later, when the acquaintance has progressed, but the common mistake made by beginners in the administration of ether is that of forgetting to lessen the proportion of the substance when full anæsthesia is established—that is, continuing to make their patients respire an atmosphere as highly charged with its vapors as when getting them under the influence. It is a matter of surprise to physicians how very little ether will often suffice to keep a patient well under the influence toward the close of an operation, and how small a quantity will always postpone vomiting until the operation is completed.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP

GLASSMAKING.

The Beginning of Modern Glassmaking. The Superiority of American Cut Glass.

The discovery in England of the art of producing flint glass was really the beginning of the modern glass industry. Flint glass was the first glass produced that was suitable for cutting. Previously many attempts had been made to decorate glassware by cutting, and coarse scratches or very thin tracings could be made.

The first attempts at glassmaking in America were confined to purely practical and simple productions in the shape of bottles, tumblers, etc., of plain design. It was not until the close of the war of 1812 that the manufacture of glass in the United States began to prosper. The first attempt in this direction was made in Massachusetts, and as early as 1820 a superior line of cut glass was produced. The business soon developed, and other companies came into existence, so that by 1833 glass was produced in this country which was considered by many as equal to any of the first glass manufactured in England. Since that time the art has been assiduously cultivated. As a rule, the better grades only are done so, but also, as a rule, it is the newcomer who is more prone to hospitality on more accounts than one, a bigger balance at the banker perhaps not the smallest. Its willingness to do even more than his part in the social amenities of country society.

"That was Mr. Sickbile who called on you last night, wasn't it, Amy?"

Amy nodded, and Mabel went on.

"I was sure of it."

"What made you sure?"

"Because when I went into the parlor this morning the two armchairs were in front of the fireplace and just as close together as they could be."

"Well, I think you are real mean," Amy declared, "but I just know that it was Mr. Spattle who spent Monday evening in your company."

"How do you know?"

"Oh, I can tell."

"I'm sure you didn't find the chairs close together."

"No, but I found just one armchair in front of the fireplace."—William Henry Shriver.

What It Was.

Detroit has a minister, as have other towns for that matter, who doesn't always preach as short sermons as he might, yet who has many admirers. The other Sunday one of these took a visitor to church with him. After service he wanted to know the visitor's opinion.

"What do you think of that sermon?" he inquired with considerable pride.

"Very good sermon," responded the visitor coldly.

"You're right; it was all wool and a yard wide."

The visitor sighed just a little.

"It wasn't the width I noticed so much," he said slowly, "as the length."—Detroit Free Press.

CORNER STONE LAYING.

FOR A NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL ROOM AND PARISH BUILDING.

As the Church of the Heavenly Rest Saturday Afternoon—The Exercises Conducted by the Rev. E. M. Rodman.

SATURDAY afternoon, at four o'clock, the corner-stone laying of the new Sunday school room and parish building of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Evous, took place. Owing to the absence of Bishop Scarborough, the Rev. E. M. Rodman conducted the exercises.

There was a large platform erected near the foundation of the building, on which the organ was placed and around which the choir took its place. The exercises were begun by the singing of "Onward, Christian Soldier." The Rev. E. M. Rodman then read from the prayer book and prayed. He then read the following (a copy of which was placed in the copper box with the other articles mentioned):

"The Rev. E. M. Rodman, Rector of Grace Church, of Plainfield, lays this corner-stone, acting for the Right Rev. John Scarborough, D. D., Bishop of the Diocese of New Jersey. This building is to be used for a Sunday-school and parish house, in connection with the mission Church of the Heavenly Rest, of which Charles S. Lewis is lay reader in charge, with a board of five trustees—Edwin Bishop, J. Wilber Price, Lewis H. Morgan, Charles Graves and Robert Van Leer, mason. Mr. Wm. C. Smith is the mason and builder; Mr. Chas. Graves the slater; Mr. R. V. Saums the carpenter; Mr. J. E. Townsend donated the corner-stone; Mr. A. M. Griffen the copper box in which is deposited the Churchman, of May 28, 1892; the Church Standard, of May 27, 1893; the Monthly News, of May 26, 1893; the Daily Press, of May 26, 1893; the Courier, of May 24 and 25, 1 93; the weekly Constitutionalist, of May 25, 1893; the New York Times and Tribune of May 27, 1893; a copy of the Standard Prayer Book of 1892; an English crown piece of King George IV., date 1821, given by Charles Graves; an American coin of 1889, given by Master Francis Todd; an American coin of 1892, given by C. F. Lewis and C. French; coin of 1892 from Mr. G. W. Marston; a German coin of 1875, from Mary E. Marston; a German coin of 1874, from Margaret S. Marston; said coins all enclosed in a little box that came from England 70 years ago and given by Mrs. Charles H. Graves. The first sod was turned for this building on Whitsun Monday, May 22, 1893. President of the United States Grover Cleveland, Gov. of the State of New Jersey Geo. F. Werts, mayor of the city of Plainfield, Alander Milner; corner stone laid May 27th, 1893" After reading the above, Rev. E. M. Rodman laid the corner stone, in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Gost. Then all joined in singing a hymn from the church hymn book. A collection was then taken up for the extension of building fund. There is yet five hundred dollars needed to complete the building.

The building is expected to be finished by Aust. The Rev. T. Logan Murphy, rector of the Holy Cross church, gave a short address in which he congratulated them upon their success in raising this much needed building. The Rev. E. M. Rodman then spoke and told of the progress of the church; how two years ago they held meetings in Mr. Lewis's house, and on Thursday, April 13th, 1893, the present church was consecrated. He also spoke of the needs of the building, especially of the parish house, and spoke of the advantage and help it would be to the church members and pastors. Mr. Rodman then drew the services to a close by pronouncing the benediction.

A rally-ho and four horses arrived yesterday for Mr. J. W. Reinhart of Netherwood. The horses are beauties, two of them being Kentucky thoroughbreds.

The Washington Camp Ground Association has been fortunate in securing that well-known pulpit orator, Rev. A. D. Lewis, D. D., of Plainfield, to the deliver the Fourth of July oration on the Camp Ground, this year.—Chronicle.

The annual meeting of the Womans' Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg hospital, was held Friday, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. M. E. Edgerton; First Vice-President, Mrs. S. Cox; Second Vice-President, Miss. E. Cock; Corresponding Secretary, Miss E. Schipper.

Another Bicycle Stolen.

A bicycle belonging to Harry Munger, was stolen from in front of the Crescent Avenue church last evening. $25 reward is offered for its return. There is no clue to the thief.

GERMANS' "MAY WALK."

STORMY WEATHER YESTERDAY PREVENTED AN EARLY START.

They Usually Stand and Sing to the Sun as it Rises.—A Day of Feasting and Merrymaking.—A Song for Every Hour During the Day.

The Plainfield Germans took their annual May walk to the mountains yesterday. They usually start before daylight in order that they may see the sun rise, when according to ancient customs they gather and stand facing the Sun while they sing to it, making the welkin ring with right good will. After this, the initial salute of the day, a feast, in honor of the sun-god, is partaken of. The fawling bowl is freely passed around and all drink to each other's health. There is always a plentiful supply of lager beer on these occasions, and the men, women and children, eat, drink and make merry.

Owing to the stormy weather the start was not made as early as usual and the majority did not reach the mountain until about six o'clock. They selected a spot near Washington's Rock for the camp, and during the day they whitewashed the rock, which has always been done in former years by the late John Laing.

Every hour during the day the men gather for a song. They sing to the kaiser, to their various mythical gods, to their sweethearts, to their families, friends, and to their fowling bowl. The songs are followed by games of skill and strength, and prizes are presented to those who excel. Meanwhile the lager keeps on flowing.

The main feast of the day is held at high noon, but not until Lager Beer gods have been honored with a song, in which they express thanks that the long and dreary Winter has passed away and the sun has again blessed the earth with its warm rays, making all nature burst forth in verdure.

In no place in this country is this German custom more religiously observed than in New Jersey, where so many excellent Germans reside.

In all cases the Germans indulge in a continuous round of merry-making, which lasts until sunset, when all who are not overcome by too much sun, lager, and the good frau's edibles, gather for a final song to the setting sun, which is rarely as hearty as the salute which is given at sunrise.

Mr. G. W. Marston, a German coin of 1875, from Mary E. Marston; a German coin of 1874, from Margaret S. Marston; said coins all enclosed in a little box that came from England 70 years ago and given by Mrs. Charles H. Graves. The first sod was turned for this building on Whitsun Monday, May 22, 1893. ## CRESCENTS WIN AGAIN.

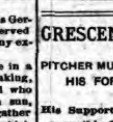
PITCHER MURPHY TWIRLS AGAINST HIS FORMER COLLEAGUES.

His Support Poor, and this is Responsible for the Imperial Athletic Club's Defeat.—Score: Crescents, Ten; Imperials, one.



THE Imperial Athletic Club was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Crescents, but Pitcher Murphy was not to be blamed for his team's downfall. He worked hard enough to win and pitched a strong game. Murphy struck out as many men as Sneeden, but he did not have the support he should have had. The Crescents secured nine hits, while the Imperials only made two. In a number of cases the Crescents' hits were made after they men were out and by an error the visitors missed the chance of retiring the side.

Then again the Crescents are all heavy hitters while the visitors seemed to be weak at the bat. They were unable to do much with Sneeden's curves, and scarcely batted the ball out of the diamond.

Murphy's old friends were not disappointed in his pitching, but his followers could not seem to make his efforts were most needed. The Crescents played a perfect game, with the exception of Romer, who received notice Saturday night of his release. The following is the score:

IN THE CITY COURT.

Four Five Dollar Fines Imposed this Morning.

Saturday night, George Contrell and John Fillmore were arrested, by Policeman Lynch, for fighting in the rear of French's mill. In the court this morning they were fined five dollars each.

William Wilson was fined five dollars, this morning, for being drunk on Somerset street, Saturday night.

May Vandertort, colored, was arrested Saturday night, for intoxication. She was fined five dollars, this morning.

GRAND ARMY MEN AT CHURCH.

The Rev. C. E. Herring Preached to them in the First Presbyterian Church Last Evening.

There was a very large audience at the First Presbyterian church last evening to hear the Rev. C. E. Herring preach to the Grand Army of the Republic.

The floral display about the pulpit platform was in exquisite taste, the national colors, intertwined with muskets, heightening the effect.

Previous to the service the organist imitated the reveille and other bugle calls with astonishing reality and played many martial airs familiar to the assembled veterans.

After the usual devotional exercises, the preacher of the evening announced his text from Deut. 4: 9. He launched out with the statement that the Israelitish theocracy was the first and best model of government ever known, and deduced from it worthy and ennobling lessons. He traversed the epochs of history down to the present time, and vividly pictured the rise and fall of empires, the march of generals like Alexander, Cæsar, Napoleon and others, leaving nothing in their wake but carnage, bloodshed and devastation. He eulogized the Republic and paid a glowing tribute to the men who established family and fireside and fought for its preservation. He admonished them to rule their own hearts, for he that ruleth his own heart is greater than he that taketh a city.

"My Country 'Tis of Thee" was heartily sung by the congregation, and Pastor Herring dismissed them with the benediction.

Base Ball Notes.

There will be two games to-morrow on the Crescent Oval. In the morning, at 10, the Cuban Giants play with the Crescents. The following will be the batting order:

Cuban Giants—A. Jackson, 3b.; O. Jackson, c.f.; Williams, 1b.; Grant, s.s.; Storey, r.f.; W. Jackson, c.; Nelson, 2b.; Penn, p.; Cato, l.f.;

Crescents—Hofford, c.; Smith, s.s; Mac. Indoe, l.f.; Turner, c.f.; Heckman, 3b.; Fritz, r. f.; Keenan, 2b.; Jones, 1b.; Sneedeen, p.

In the afternoon the contest will be between the Crescents and the Flushings. The Crescent batting order will be the same as in the morning, and Turner will pitch. The following is the batting order of the Flushings: Williams, 3b., Bowne, 1b.; Helser, c.; Dillon, l.f.; Sutter, c.f.; Shannon, r. f.; Cunningham, 2b., Cammeo, p.; Woods, s.s.;

Judge Coddington and Lawyer Reed, of Plainfield, called at the Journal office yesterday and among other subjects briefly discussed was base ball. Mr Reed is a perfect enthusiast over base ball, and he feels that if a warm, generous spirit could be instilled into the Plainfield people and the E. A. C. people, it would result in splendid games and big receipts for both clubs. Mr. Reed cites the hot rivalry between the Somerville and the Plainfield Clubs and the enthusiasm which used to go from one city to the other to attend the games. Elizabeth, he argues, is a population very much larger than both Somerville and Plainfield, and the E. A. C. is to-day to better shape for the sport of base ball. They would, he says, have to get a much better team than they have now to play a game of any interest with the Crescents, but he thinks that, a little later in the season, they could pick up all the players they would need for a series of games with the Crescents, and not only give very fine ball playing, but make it pay. It any of the E. A. C. feel like talking to Mr. Reed on this subject they will find him a pleasant talker and a well-posted patron of the game.—Elizabeth Journal.

THE THREE LINKS.

LOVE, FRIENDSHIP AND TRUTH THE PRINCIPLES OF A NOBLE ORDER.

The Rev. J. W. Richardson Preaches a Brilliant Sermon to the Local Lodges of Odd Fellows, in the Park Avenue Baptist Church.

The Rev. J. W. Richardson preached a sermon to Odd Fellows in the Park Avenue Baptist church last night. He took his text from the 10th chapter of St Luke. He said in part.: A traveller in Switzerland once threw a piece of ice against a mountain of ice and snow and immediately there was a gradual descending of the vast frozen mass. It went down and down, until it struck the land below like an earthquake. The sun's rays melted it, and it finally ran in streams over the land. Like this small piece of ice, causing that swift downward rush of ice and snow, was the lodge of Odd Fellows organized in 1819, by Thomas Wildley, with five members, striking the blow of friendship against poverty. From that one lodge of five members has 9,133 subordinate and 55 grand lodges. These lodges paid out in one year the sum of $2,000,000 to aid the sick, care for the poverty stricken and educate the orphans.

Oddfellowship spreads all over the world. Its principles—love friendship and truth—contain a spirit that obliterates all nationalities and make all hearts beat as one. In this world one man would be pushed to the wall, but when banded in Oddfellowship, 100 men are as one. It unties all the different phases of mankind and makes many as one. Odd fellows are as one family.

In my ministerial duties I have been called into homes were the inmates have been better days. There is a dying mother and almost orphaned children. Medicine and cool must be procured. The mother's pain is deepened by the thought that when she is gone her little ones will be turned out into a heartless world. It is midnight. There is a soft tap at the door and three men enter. What do we see? One looks on the relief of the mother, another speaks words of consolation, while the other places the arm of protection about the children, and promises to educate and care for them. The orphans are not alone, 100 lodges are watching over them and are ready to stand by the action of the three. The works of the order is not left to a few members, because all love the order. The rich and the poor receives its benefits alike. If a member is ever so rich and does not need his order's benefits he must receive them just the same, although he may return the money to the lodge afterwards. It is not necessary for the orphans to say "help, I am poor." It is imperative to visit the sick, bury the dead and educate the orphans. It is more than beneficial. This is all that is visible to the outsider. It seeks to improve. Many people dread lodges, because is used to be the excuse of the man that arrived home at four o'clock in the morning, and went to bed with his hat on, "that he had been to the lodge." No lodge of the Odd Fellows remains in session until four o'clock in the morning. A man that wears the badge of this order and is intemperate is not a true Odd Fellow at heart. Two years ago I visited my native city and saw a wonderful building being constructed, but it was all surrounded with the rough scaffolding of the workmen. This Spring I visited there again and saw a magnificent edifice, a palatial building. It was the Odd Fellows building. It outlines the principles of love, friendship and truth. An Odd Fellows lodge room is not only neat and attractive, but it is a sacred place. It is lofty and pure and there is no burlesque. It reveals the scriptures, for no meeting can be conducted without an open Bible. It is the friend of the church and does not trespass against the church. It has been stated, because a few of the weaker ones have said that after joining the order they were satisfied morally. It does not satisfy the true seeker after what is divine, because it is only human. Oddfellowship offers no excuse for sin. The order is not a secret society any more than your family is secret. Their acts characterize the workings of the order and shows the principles. A secret society's deeds must be stealthy. They are bound by ties, and this is right in order to keep out the impostor. Its principles are open and the order is known by its outside acts.

In conclusion, brothers, I congratulate you on the attractiveness and beauty of your rooms. You are well up in the letter of the order. Join the higher order of spiritual Oddfellowship. The Holy Bible is the symbol of this order. Learn the deeper feeling and the story of Oddfellowship will remain forever.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Two Poems.

There is not much encouragement for poets these days. Yet singularly enough the high class magazines are publishing very little poetry of real merit. In too many cases an insignificant or silly idea, is lost in a mass of verbiage that gives one "that tired feeling." Not long ago a lady whose poems will doubtless be read as long as the English language exists submitted a poem to the editor of a well known magazine. It was declined politely, the editor courteously explaining that he had so many really first class poems on hand he did not care to add to their number. "Why don't you publish one of them occasionally?" was the reply.

The strongest short poem that has appeared recently is the following by Bret Harte under the caption "Fate:"

"The sky is clouded, the rocks are bare,
The spray of the tempest is white in air,
The winds are out with the wings at play,
And I shall know what the sea says today.

"The trail is narrow, the wood is dim,
The panther clings to the arching limb,
And the lion's weight are abroad at play,
And I shall not pain in the chase today."

But the ship sailed safely over the sea,
And the hunters came from the chase in glee,
And the town that was builded upon a rock
Watched and waited up in the sunshine and shock.

By the way, Thomas Bailey Aldrich took the same subject for one of his early and best poems. It will be interesting to compare the styles of these two foremost living American poets. They are both gems. Mr. Aldrich's poem on fate or destiny is as follows:

Three roses pale as moonlight, each weighed
With its own loveliness, were in a florist's window-pane in a certain town.
The first a lover bought. That night it lay at rest,
Like snow on snow, on beauty's breast.
The next, no less virginal and fair,
Shrank in the tangled masses of a harlot's hair.
The third a widowed mother, with her poor grief made wild,
Pressed in the icy palm of her dead child.

Electricity to the Field.

A new use has been found for electricity. A French scientist and agriculturist named Paulin has been experimenting for some years and has at last utilized the electric fluid with wonderful success in the growth of the products of the farm. He has invented a machine which he calls a geomagnetifire. It consists of a high pole planted in the center of the field to be operated upon. At the top he places something resembling a copper broom, with which is connected by a steel wire a network of other steel wires, which is spread over the whole field and buried at a sufficient depth below the surface. This arrangement, it is stated, will last several years.

The Frenchman's first experiment was tried two years ago in a potato field. In the space occupied by the electric wires the plants had a double vigor to those outside. The yield of potatoes was not only larger, but the single bulbs were of greater size, the increase lacking but a few pounds of being double that where the electricity was not felt. The experiment was likewise tried in a field of spinach with equally satisfactory results.

Until more particulars can be learned it is unwise to hazard an opinion upon the practicability of this scheme. Save in the single branch of harvesting agriculture as a science has not quite kept pace with others the past 50 years, and the experiments referred to are both interesting and instructive. With a fair show farming would be the most certain source of wealth as it is of independence. Commerce and manufactures flourish by circumstances precarious, contingent and transitory, almost as much so as the four winds and the waves. But it is rare indeed that the earth does not give back generously and even lavishly to the cultivator.

The position of poet laureate is of very little consequence. The work is light. Southey refused to take the laurel crown until it was conceded that he might write only when and what he chose. The pay is little or nothing—something like £100 a year, if we are not mistaken. Ruskin is not much of a poet, but if he cannot handle a given subject as well as Swinburne can, then he is to be pitied. Swinburne pretends to be a poet and is not; Ruskin is not and does not pretend to be. The fact is, laureate timber is very scarce in England just now. It will require at least a century to produce another Tennyson.

The baiser also knows what will please the workingmen. Hear how he appeals to them through these statements: "Workmen and agriculturists must represent their own interests and not leave it to professors. Above all, we must not put up with want. I mean we must always take care of our dinners." Everybody may look after his own interest by means of legislation."

Some of the political wiseacres are already talking about the merits of different men as candidates in 1896. Don't force the season, gentlemen. And, by the way, it is a good plan to let those who do the electing also do the selecting.

If the "international baby show" in Washington had been put off until fall, it is easy enough to see where the first prize would have gone.

The fine Italian band of Carter Harrison is seen in the scheme for opening the World's fair on Sunday.

DOCTORS AT THE FAIR.

Healers From All Over the Union Gather at Chicago.

RESULTS OF FIRST OPEN SUNDAY.

The Crowd Within the Gates Was Immense, Many State Buildings Closed—Sacred Music Was Furnished—Some Buildings Were Not Closed as Tight as Might Have Been.

CHICAGO, May 29.—Doctors from the four corners of the earth are here to attend the congress of homeopathic physicians and surgeons, which was begun this morning at the Art institute.

This morning a special train over the Baltimore and Ohio brought the eastern and foreign delegates, and special cars arrived from Pittsburg and western points. Among the prominent physicians who are here are the following: Dr. Mafsucher of Philadelphia, Dr. Bojanus of Moscow, Dr. Hawkes of Liverpool, Dr. Fisher of Sidney, Dr. George B. Peck of Providence, Dr. J. W. Clapp of Boston, Dr. T. Y. Kinne of Paterson, N. J.; Dr. Horace Packard of Boston, Dr. Emily Pardee of South Norwalk, Conn.; Dr. Park Lewis of Buffalo, Dr. I. T. Talbott of Boston, Dr. J. H. McClelland of Pittsburg, Dr. T. Franklin Smith of New York, Dr. Pemberton Dudley of Philadelphia and Dr. J. P. Dake of Nashville. The opening exercises were very interesting.

There is much discussion today over the results of the first open Sunday of the fair. One thing is certain it was a most successful day financially.

It is estimated that over 200,000 people visited the exposition. It was a cold, raw day, too, and for a time it looked as though it would rain. As a consequence many persons who had intended to go remained at home. However this may be, thousands of artisans and laborers of all kinds were there, and a great many of them took their families. The crowd resembled that which collects in the public parks on Sundays during the hot weather when the tenement districts become oppressive. The capacity of the railways and steamboat lines was severely tested.

The Music Was Sacred.

The music during the day was of an elevating character, and the bandstands were surrounded by large crowds, which grew enthusiastic over Schubert's serenade and a selection from Lohengrin. Gounod's sacred song, "There Is a Green Hill Far Away," a medley on Gounod's prelude by Gounod, Handel's hallelujah chorus, Wagner's "Hail Bright Abode," the good old hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee," and the "Coronation March," from Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete."

Sunday opening was frowned upon, however, in the north end of the park, where the American state buildings are grouped, to suggest a happy and united family. The multitude of visitors did not throng the state edifices, and the few thousand who passed that way were not disappointed, apparently, to find many of the buildings closed. There was so much else to see that was more attractive that the doors of the state buildings, most of which are made up only of so many reception rooms, the exhibits being in the big buildings that were thrown open. Many of the state commissioners were left no alternative but to close the doors of the buildings as the legislature had so ordered, but the great majority of state boards acted on their own authority in refusing admission to visitors.

The doors of 15 state and territorial buildings were locked for this day only, and visitors were generally informed to that effect by cards. Missouri, Delaware, New York, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, North Dakota, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Connecticut, Maryland and Massachusetts were among the buildings which the people obtained only an outside view of. Utah had the closed sign on its door, and North Dakota added to its announcement the invitation, "Come on Monday." On the doors of the Bay State house was the following typewritten legend, "By order of the great and general court of Massachusetts this building is closed on the Lord's day."

On the elevated lawn in front of this building a gardener worked all day planting beds of beautiful pansies. When asked if he was employed by the World's fair board of Massachusetts to labor on Sunday at the state building, the old man said he was working for the Massachusetts florist who was exhibiting the pansy beds, and that Commissioner Hovey had not told him to stop. He added the information that there was work going on inside the building.

The Maine commissioners had a sign outside their building which read, "Open to Maine visitors and their friends only," but everybody who pleased entered, ignoring the attempt at exclusiveness without absolute closing. The influence of the Anglican church was seen by the visitors who desired to enter the buildings erected by Great Britain and her majesty's colonies. All were closed tight and no person could even be seen inside, which was not the case with the "closed" state buildings. The great carved oak doors of Victoria House were shut, although the union jack floated from the roof. Canada's flag was flying also, but the doors were closed and not even a sign was put up for visitors to read. New South Wales supplemented the "closed today" with the following unnecessary words, "Keep out. This means you." Even at the India building, which is chiefly a private commercial enterprise, the "closed" sign was hung out.

Not Little Machinery Going.

Machinery hall was a remarkably quiet place. Two or three high speed, but one big engine—a Buckeye—were all that ran during the day to furnish the power necessary to run the fair, and their hum could be scarcely heard 100 feet away.

The crowd in this building was not very large, but every other department of structure was jammed. Columbia avenue in Manufactures, and the main aisle in Transportation and Fisheries were crowded all day and it was with much difficulty a spectator could force a passage. As indicative of the crowd it may be stated that Fine Arts building held the greatest multitude. Every saloon was packed and the foyers were jammed by a quiet and orderly crowd of picture lovers.

The officials in charge of the government buildings and the buildings likewise did all in their power to show the thousands of visitors who passed by that Uncle Sam officially did not approve of allowing American citizens or foreigners to view on Sunday the panorama of art and genius of the industrial works of the nations.

The big pencil signs "closed," which were used originally when the government building was not finished, were placed in front of the doors, and guards were stationed there to keep people from breaking and disturbing them. The peaceful observance of the Sabbath, even "Old Glory" was hauled down from every flagstaff on the big domed buildings. The other structures which form part of the United States government exhibit were also closed, and visitors were stopped at the entrance to the north pole by the announcement that the model battle ship was closed. Marines patrolled the decks and a few tars were seen cleaning and burnishing, but no favored civilians were seen on this ship.

The different World's fair officials were on the grounds for a few hours in the morning. In the afternoon Director General Davis, accompanied by Mrs. Davis, took a sail, but the other gentlemen took trains and carriages and went down town.

WILD WESTERN WIRINGS.

Some Far Away Sensations of a Single Day.

CHICAGO, May 29.—F. H. Milburn committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor while standing in front of a mirror. A letter found in his room is thought to explain the cause of the suicide. It is dated at Jacksonville, Ills., May 26, 1893. In it the writer tells his son that he cannot send him any money.

Milburn committed suicide in the most deliberate manner. He made a slash across his throat, almost severing the jugular, and then leaned down in front of the mirror to allow the blood to flow as long as he was able to stand, and then threw himself upon the bed where his body was found.

MILLIKEN, May 29.—A wild scene was enacted in the circuit court when the jury, after deliberating for two hours, returned a verdict acquitting Burt Means of killing Harry Reynolds. When the verdict was rendered the crowd wildly applauded. Men threw their hats in the air, and while some women wept, others threw their arms around the prisoner's neck and hugged him.

DEADWOOD, S. D., May 29.—J. W. Davidson, a miner employed at the Colorado mine, was killed, and his body mangled beyond recognition by a caysin of one of the tunnels. A blast and a few minutes before caused the trouble.

HERNDON, Ills., May 29.—At Roanoke Christopher Haberkus murdered his wife, set fire to his house and killed himself. Haberkus was 70 years old and his wife 70. She was a Catholic and he was not, and he objected to Catholic women calling upon her.

WAUKEGAN, Ills., May 29.—Waukegan had a sensation when the news leaked out that a young lady, a member of the most select society of the village, had married her father's coachman. The bride is Miss Augusta Legnard, daughter of John B. Legnard, and the groom Charles Vassar, who has handled the reins over the Legnard horses for a number of years.

TOPEKA, May 29.—One of the Dalton gang, which was nearly wiped out at Coffeyville last year, attempted suicide here by leaping into the Kansas river from a bridge 30 feet high. The cold water cooled his ardor, and he quickly grabbed a floating log and managed to keep his head above water till rescued.

VIKING SHIP SIGHTED.

She Was Twenty-seven Days Out When the Last Port Was Reached.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., May 29.—The viking ship, built in Norway for exhibition at the World's fair, passed this port bound for Chicago.

She is a model of the viking ship 1,000 years old found recently in Norway, and is 78 feet long, 16 broad, 6 deep and draws 2 feet of water. She sails 12 knots in a free wind and has a crew of 10 men.

She is 27 days from Christiana, and reports all well. She spoke a tug, but did not call in here.

The viking ship was to have made its landing at New London, Conn., but as the citizens of Newport, R. I., in conjunction with the Rhode Island naval militia have determined to arrange a series of festivities in honor of the viking, it was decided at a meeting of the reception committee to inform Captain Andersen, through the British pilots, to sail for Newport instead of New London.

A tugboat will be sent to Newport by the New York committee to tow the viking through Long Island sound to City island, where a government tugboat and a United States war vessel will be ready to escort her to this city.

Withdrew Before the Winchesters.

LOUISVILLE, May 29.—At South Carrollton, in Muhlenberg county, deputy sheriffs attempted to arrest Railroad Tax Collector Cogar for horse stealing. When the collector's bodyguard of deputy United States marshals drew their Winchesters and refused to give him up. The deputy sheriffs withdrew to get a posse for Assessors Capps had accidentally taken the wrong horse.

Australia Copies Our Banking System.

MELBOURNE, May 29.—The premiers of Victoria, New South Wales and South Australia have issued a memorandum recommending the adoption by all of the colonies of uniform banking laws. ## A PLAGUE OF SPARROWS

They Are English Sparrows and They Annoy Uncle Sam.

NICARAGUANS AND ANNEXATION.

Orders Said to Have Given Rosten of Baltimore Monument—The President Takes a Trip on a Fast Boat and Plans to Go Fishing—Some Appointments.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—And now it is the English sparrows that threaten the World's fair. The agricultural department has received a letter from its ornithologist at Chicago, calling attention to the fact that there has been a serious invasion of the buildings on the World's fair grounds by the ubiquitous English sparrow. Thousands of pairs are reported to be already securely domiciled beneath the great roofs of the buildings, none of the structures being entirely free from the little pests, and some of them are fairly alive with them.

In the Government building alone scores of nests were removed during April, and every feasible effort was made to get rid of them. These attempts to extirpate the nuisance have been but partially successful, while in many of the large buildings they have utterly failed.

The presence of the sparrows is a great annoyance, owing to the droppings of the litter from the nests falling upon exhibits containing valuable exhibits and defacing objects not enclosed. As to the pairs produced, the ornithologist, from four or six young sparrows in a season, and some of them a third brood later on, it is apparent that the plague promises to be a serious one before it can be stayed. It is the object of the latter to get advice from the department on the subject of their eradication.

Chance to Conquer Nicaragua.

Dr. Guzman, the Nicaraguan minister, has received official information that the Nicaraguans desire the United States to establish a protectorate over that country. Dr. Guzman is of the opinion, however, that such will be the ultimate issue under the condition of affairs existing there. The Nicaragua canal project, he says, closely connects the two countries, and its future sure will be greatly enhanced if the United States is given supremacy. He thinks that the internal dissensions in Nicaragua will soon be amicably settled to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Private advices received here state that the revolutionists have found that they have undertaken a greater task than they can manage since gaining the upper hand, and will be willing to relinquish control provided they are granted immunity and a representative government.

What China Will Do.

"When is the new Chinese minister expected to arrive in this country?" was asked of Mr. Adee, assistant solicitor of the counsel for the Chinese government in the recent test case before the supreme court, as to the constitutionality of the Geary law.

"In about a month," was the reply.

"Is the statement correct that he is delayed in order to learn what the final ultimatum from the Chinese government as to the Geary law and its violation of treaty obligations?"

"Oh, I think so," was the reply.

"The Chinese government has already informed the state department that if anything is done under the Geary law all reciprocal rights of China, commercial and otherwise, may be considered as terminated. The Americans now in China will be ordered to withdraw and what has been the outcome with China Mr. Gresham has already been 'noticed' of this as the diplomatic phrase goes."

On the invitation of Embassador Bayard President Cleveland, accompanied by Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle, took a trip down the Potomac on the "Vamoose," the craft that holds the fastest record of the world.

Satolli to Go to Chicago.

Archbishop Satolli, the apostolic delegate, will go to Chicago tomorrow to preach a mission to Italians of that city.

President Will Go Fishing.

It is understood that President Cleveland will leave Washington this week for a few days' fishing at Cobb's island. He will travel in the car of Vice President Thomson of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Explaining Guetebuck's Death.

NEW YORK, May 29.—Mrs. Emma Guetebuck, wife of Reginald Guetebuck, city editor of The Staats Zeitung, who was found dead at his home on Saturday night with a bullet hole in his left breast, Anna Hansen, 25 Cedar street, and Mr. C. Odell Hines, a custom house broker, are locked up today, being held without bail to await the action of the coroner. Lawyer Montanger, in behalf of Mrs. Guetebuck, said that Guetebuck was of a very excitable temperament, and on Saturday night, after some words with his wife, he struck her in the face in the absence of Mr. Hansen. As soon as he did that he probably in a fit of remorse shot himself.

Cook Lays a Cornerstone.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 29.—The czar laid the cornerstone of the monument of Alexander II on the river side of the Kremlin, in Moscow. The work of excavation for the foundation had occupied three years. Later the czar and czarina, grand dukes and grand duchesses attended service at the Cathedral of the Assumption in the Kremlin. At the top of the famous red sandstone rock the czar and royal party halted to the multitude. Deafening cheers went up from the people, bells were rung and salutes were fired.

A Well Fed Fire.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 29.—The steam planing mill of W. H. Washburn, the Ullman Manufacturing company and a storehouse for moldings were almost totally destroyed by fire. The loss on the planing mill property, stock, machinery, etc., is placed at $60,000, while the machinery, stock and building is insured for $14,000. The Ullman company's loss is $25,000.

INTERNATIONAL BILLIARDS.

Ives, the American Champion, Meets the Englishmen Tonight.

LONDON, May 29.—The most prominent American in town today is the billiard champion, Frank C. Ives. He is to meet John Roberts, Jr., the premier expert at the English style of billiards, to decide their much discussed game in London during the six nights from today to June 3.

FRANK C. IVES.

Champion Ives has been here for some time, practicing every day, and is in fine form.

The match will be played in Hinley's circus, a place that holds 4,000 spectators. It is 18,000 points. Four things favor Ives in the match. The push and spot shots are barred, the balls will be 2¼ inch instead of 2 1-16—the English standard—and the American will play the masse shot, a stroke that is new to Englishmen and which greatly favors ball play, on which latter Ives relies to win.

Nobody knows exactly how the match will end, but it is worth while remembering that Ives is the first American who ever crosses the water to meet the English champion at his own game on English soil. The concessions made to the American do not detract from the credit of this undertaking. But this is not the only great event of Derby week, which begins today.

EULALIE RESTED NOW.

She Went to Church and to a Reception by the Catholic Club.

NEW YORK, May 29.—The Princess Eulalie, having spent a quiet Sunday, expressed herself today as ready for any sort of a programme which might be arranged. She did not spend yesterday in her hotel entirely though.

The Old Guard escorted her to St. Patrick's cathedral in the forenoon. The princess wore a plum colored silk dress, with diagonal white bars with a fichu of cream colored lace over her shoulder. The girdle was of the same delicate material. On her head she wore a neat little black toque, trimmed with a palm of violets and a small bunch of carnations. In her hand she carried a red parasol and black bound prayer book.

The royal party were escorted to the front of the church, and the princess and her royal consort given chairs immediately in front of the first row of pews. There was no special deviation from the regular mass, and the music had not been prepared particularly for the occasion. Father Lavelle preached the mass sermon, in which he referred to the royal party.

At night a reception was tendered the princess by the Catholic Club. The Infanta was escorted to a dias upon which she sat, with Archbishop Corrigan on her left and the prince on her right, while the patronesses and guests were presented.

Murdered on the Street.

BOSTON, May 29.—James Squires, 25 years old, of Roxbury, was fatally shot by an Italian. Squires and a friend were jostled by three Italians. Some words ensued and one of the Italians struck the latter, who retaliated by knocking him down. As the Italian rose to his feet he pulled a revolver and shot Squires, who had stepped between the men, through the breast. The murderer escaped, but his companions were arrested.

ONLY THREE IN CHURCH.

And One of These Was the Rev. Mr. Maynard.

BOYCOTTED BY HIS CONGREGATION.

Accused of Eating Sandwiches After Service, Drinking Medicinal Gin During Pastoral Calls and Other Acts of Worldliness—Preached to Two.

RIDGEFIELD, N. J., May 29.—Although St. James' Episcopal church of this place has 100 members, owing to hostility which has manifested itself toward the rector, the Rev. Newland Maynard, only two persons were present at his regular service.

Notwithstanding his small congregation the clergyman omitted no detail of the service. When the time arrived to take the collection there being no vestryman present the Rev. Mr. Maynard passed the plate himself. Again, during the singing of the hymns, in the absence of the organist the clergyman played the organ. He delivered an eloquent sermon on "The Trinity" with as much fervor as if he were officiating at a union service.

A majority of the members of the parish have been at war with the Rev. Mr. Maynard for the last two months. They say he does not devote enough time to parochial duties. Incidental references to his worldliness have also been made. A committee of the congregation will wait on Bishop Starkey today and ask for the rector's removal.

The Rev. Mr. Maynard, whose ability is unquestioned, has been rector in Ridgefield for the last four years, and previously was connected with St. Paul's Episcopal church, in Brooklyn. He lives in New York, and every Sunday morning journeys to Ridgefield for service, returning on an afternoon train. The briefness of these Sunday trips has led many to do with the present condition of church matters in Ridgefield.

His Trips Were Brief.

Mr. E. B. Meyrowitz of Ridgefield, with his family, like nearly all the other members of St. James' church, have refused of late to attend Mr. Maynard's service. Mrs. Hawley, the mother of Mrs. Meyrowitz, explained that the rector ostentatiously ate sandwiches after his services to the embarrassment of the leading members of the church. The rector has developed this sandwich eating habit quite suddenly, according to Mrs. Hawley, and presumably as a public rebuke to members of the congregation for not asking him to dinner.

Mr. Maynard dined with the Meyrowitz family until recently, but he inconsiderately referred to this Sunday dinner as a luncheon on one occasion, and he has not been asked there since. Mrs. Hawley was certain the dinner furnished by her son-in-law on Sunday was quite up to the Maynard standard.

She related an experience she had with the rector. He entered a saloon after service on Sunday and said he felt so hot he would like a stimulating drink. Mrs. Hawley replied that she did not know where such stimulant was kept. "I happen to know. I'll show the little boy where it's kept," is Mrs. Hawley's report of Mr. Maynard's reply.

Drank Medicinal Gin.

W. H. Goodday, a vestryman in St. James' had nothing but "medicinal gin" in his house one day when the Rev. Mr. Maynard called, so the story goes. The rector explained that he felt the need of refreshment, and when the gin was produced, to use Mr. Goodday's words, he "took two big snorters." Then he said he felt better.

These examples of the Rev. Mr. Maynard's "worldliness" are regarded as justifiable grounds for his removal. The committee appointed at a meeting of the church a week ago last Friday consists of Messrs. Meyrowitz, Goodday, William R. Palmer Jr., and E. S. Stohr. The memorial they will present to Bishop Starkey today recites that Mr. Maynard has resigned; that it is the sense of the congregation the resignation be accepted; that he has not given sufficient attention to his duties to the church; that no baptisms or confirmations have been held in St. James' for the last four years.

Mr. Maynard says that the stories about the sandwiches "and such things" are all nonsense.

Wild Students Arrested.

PRAGUE, May 29.—A mob of students attacked the house of the rector, Professor Prasak, smashed the windows and fought the police. Twenty arrests have been made.

Ordained by Bishop Potter.

NEW YORK, May 29.—The regular diocesan ordination of clergymen for the Episcopal church of New York was performed by Bishop Potter in Calvary church.

PROFESSOR BRIGGS ON TRIAL.

He Begins on His Seven Hours' Argument.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The trial of Professor Charles A. Briggs of Union Theological seminary, New York, upon the general charge of holding gross error in his teaching, was begun before the general assembly of the Presbyterian church this morning. The case comes up on appeal from the judgment of the presbytery of New York, which acquitted the professor after a trial lasting several weeks last fall and winter. No witnesses are to be introduced, the evidence being before the assembly in the records. The judicial committee of the assembly, Rev. George D. Baker of Philadelphia, chairman, have agreed upon an allotment of time among the parties which, if it be approved by the assembly, will permit of a vote being taken on the question, "Shall the appeal be sustained?" tomorrow night or Wednesday morning.

It is proposed to give the prosecuting committee 6½ hours in which to open and close, Professor Briggs is to have seven hours in which to present his argument, and the members of the New York presbytery two hours in which to set forth their defense or explanation of the action of the presbytery. The assembly has voted to sit morning, afternoon and night until the case is disposed of. Allowing two hours for the night session the assembly will be in session eight hours a day, so that two days will afford ample time under the committee's arrangement for hearing and disposing of the case. By the form of government the yeas and nays are called only upon the final vote on the question, as that the several specifications of error in the appeal, 34 in number, will be decided by viva voce votes.

THE DAVIS CEREMONIES.

Transferring the Remains of the Hero of the Confederacy to Virginia.

NEW ORLEANS, May 29.—The remains of Jefferson Davis, after reposing in Louisiana for nearly four years, are now speeding away to their final resting place in Hollywood cemetery, at Richmond, the scene of the most momentous occurrences of his life.

All day Sunday the body lay in state in Memorial hall, surrounded by the guard of honor, and thousands of people passed through the hall, paying their respects to the revered dead. Flowers and flags of the Confederacy were grouped in picturesque confusion and formed a harmonious background for the black bier and casket. At the hour fixed for the simple ceremonies the hall was packed almost to suffocation. Standing around the bier with beads bowed were Miss Winnie Davis, her sister, Mrs. Hayes, Mayor Ellyson of Richmond, who is president of the Davis Monumental association, Governor Foster, General John Glynn, ex-senator of Iowa, the lifelong friend of Mr. Davis, and other distinguished veterans.

Governor Foster without any preliminary whatever stepped forward and made a characteristically eloquent speech, announcing the transfer of the remains from Louisiana to Virginia.

"Where's the Bed?"

There is a gentleman living in the south who, although he had been to New York and some of the other northern cities, yet, strange as it may appear, had never seen an elevator.

Being called on business to Charleston he went to one of the principal hotels, and registering at the desk for an office room. The clerk, calling a colored porter, said, "Take this gentleman to room No. 11."

"Yes, sah," said the porter, and with a pompous air he picked up the valise and led the way to the elevator. Going in he put the valise on the floor and said, "Walk in, sah."

The gentleman walked in, and looking around in amazement asked: "Is this the best room you can give me? Where's the bed?"—Harper's Bazar.

FASHIONS

There are many pretty novelties in washing blouses, some of them fashioned like the new silk models and ornamented with shoulder frills or cape collars. Others to wear with outing costume should be well fitting, especially at the back; otherwise one cannot wear them without a jacket, and for this reason very pardonable dresses have them made to measure.

A pretty tennis dress for a girl is of coarse cream serge. It consists of a plain skirt and a short, loose coat with lapels of cream brocade worn over a shot silk shirt.

A NEW RIDING COAT.

Riding habits of lightweight vicuna cloths are now worn, and for summer cheviots will be much used. Black is the color most in vogue, followed by brown and blue. A round basque cut away to show a fancy vest and just reaching the saddle supplements the popular waist for a habit. Jersey ribbed tights are usually worn rather than trousers.

Tan and brown shades lead in covert coatings. Our second coat depicts a new English riding coat. It is a covert coat, shaped so that it easily covers the saddle. It hangs down the front, being constructed precisely on the same lines as the covert coats men wear while riding. The recitals of its fine fastenings when the saddle leaves nothing whatever to be desired.

THE HOUSEHOLD

AN EMPIRE INTERIOR.

A Design by Which One May Plan a Room of a Period Now Much Affected.

At the present time many reproductions of empire furniture are made to meet a passing fashion. Mahogany was the wood most in favor for furniture during the imperial period, and its fine, richly colored surface, susceptible as it is of such a beautiful polish, affords an excellent background to the finely chased bronze gilt mounts, and its varied figuring assists in a great measure to relieve the dignity of this style from oppressiveness. But in the case of the old chairs, although the mahogany gave them a certain attractiveness, it did not succeed, even with the help of rich silk coverings and exquisitely chased mounts, to altogether free them from that stiffness and constraint which appears to be incompatible from the classic designs on which empire styles were modeled.

A bedroom with draperies very similar to those shown on the walls, window and bed in the accompanying cut was one of a suit of apartments prepared by Napoleon's orders at the time when he was about to realize his dream of founding a dynasty.

The bedstead in the drawing contains the essential characteristics of an old design from which it is taken. It should be made of a rich colored Spanish mahogany, with bronze gilt mounts, to match the other furniture in the room. The crown, from which the bed drapery hangs, should be entirely covered with material trimmed with beads and embroidery. The window draperies are shown to give a correct idea of wrapped with silk cord. The draperies will look most characteristic if made of self colored materials with embroidered borders.

EMPIRE FURNITURE AND DECORATION.

The color most suited to predominate in a room of this description would be a soft shade of warm gray, combined with a very subtle green tint, which form a pleasing combination, the embroidery being in shades of gold.

French Cretonnes and American Chintzes.

All persons who have traveled in Europe must have brought back the comfortable impressions engendered by a French bed chamber with its cretonne hangings, while there is added excitement in the use of printed cotton hangings in the fact that wall papers are made to match in coloring and design, the effect in use being cozy, harmonious and tasteful. The cretonnes and the chintzes are in the grounds seen in the silk hanging stuffs, while the designs are generally bold, in some cases of flowers of magnified size conventionalized in color to give effect to the grounding. The best of the cretonnes are of spindles or rope and the sateen textures. The American prints are in both reps and plain textures. These goods are 30 inches in width and vary in price according to quality, from 15 cents to 75 cents and upward per yard, cretonnes of exceptional excellence in quality and design commanding as much as $1.25 per yard. The linen chintz, Furniture quoted in the foregoing, thinks that too much could hardly be said by way of encouragement to the use of the cotton prints for upholstery purposes.

Alcohol In Cleaning Silver.

Silver smiths sometimes advise that rouge be used in cleaning silver, and there are a number of excellent cleaning preparations and soaps on the market, but after all the old fashioned whiting of our grandmothers' days is invariably efficient and absolutely harmless. It must, however, be sifted very fine and acts best when moistened with ammonia or alcohol. Some persons of experience in cleaning silver say that it does not tarnish again so soon when cleaned with alcohol and whiting as it does when some other preparations are used.

Swiss Roll.

Beat the yolks of 3 eggs till light with half a teacupful of powdered sugar, then add gradually half a teacupful of flour, next the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth, and lastly a teaspoonful of baking powder. Butter a baking dish well, pour in the mixture and bake it in a rather quick oven for 10 minutes. Dust a pastry board with sugar, loosen the cake with a knife, lay it on the board, spread it with any jam you like and roll it up.

Thickening For Gravies.

Why, oh, why do not cooks make their thickening in the right way from the first? "A dessertspoonful of flour smoothly mixed with a little cold water, then poured into the boiling gravy and stirred while it cooks 10 minutes," to quote one housekeeper's rule, is not a bit easier than to make a proper roux or thickening of cooked flour and butter and is very apt to land the novice in the horrible greasy, watery fluid only too well known.

Velvet Cream.

Dissolve an ounce of gelatin in half a tumbler of wine with the strained juice of a large lemon and sufficient sugar to sweeten it well. Let this cook for a few minutes over the fire till thoroughly blended; then set it aside till perfectly cool. Now stir into it a pint of cream, mixing it well, and pour the mixture into a mold. The above quantity will fill two fair sized molds.

Cauliflower a la Italienne.

Boil 2 large cauliflowers in water and salt (they should not be too much done). When cold, cut them in pieces from the stalk and put them in a buttered pie dish in layers, each layer covered with butter, cream, grated Parmesan cheese, salt and pepper to taste. When the dish is filled, sprinkle with crumbs of bread at the top, bake 20 minutes gently and serve it hot.

A Test For Mushrooms.

Native East Indian cooks adopt the following method to distinguish mushrooms from toadstools and poisonous fungi: A silver coin is thrown into the water which boils the mushrooms. If the metal retains its color, the mushrooms are pronounced safe, but if it turns black, with a coating of rust, the plants are condemned.

PUBLIC COMFORT.

How Visitors Are Cared for at the World's Fair.

FREE CONVENIENCES FOR ALL.

Plenty of Waiting Rooms and Seats Throughout the Grounds—Free Fluted Water—The Toilet Room Mystery Explained—State Buildings as Club Houses.

WORLD'S FAIR, May 27.—[Special.]—Now that the people are coming in large numbers to see the great exposition we have ample opportunity to test the efficiency of the arrangements made by the management for the public comfort. So far there are few complaints. Almost everything that could have been done to secure the comfort of the visiting multitudes has been done, and in many instances on a scale commensurate with the magnitude and grandeur of the whole enterprise. It is true that some of the conveniences have been slowly put in shape, and during the first two or three weeks of the month there were some complaints, but the managers have apparently done the best they could. The task of finishing up the buildings and grounds was a gigantic one, and even these wonderful Chicago men cannot do all things at the same time. Now that the provisions made for the public comfort are practically complete it is timely to speak to them somewhat in detail.

One first notices that ample arrangements have been made for carrying visitors to and fro within the grounds. The elevated electric cars, the wheel chairs, the gondolas, the steam and caloric launches carry people from one end to the other of the vast enclosure and at reasonable charges. Scattered throughout the grounds are seats sufficient to accommodate 10,000 people at once. If this should prove insufficient the managers promise to put in as many more as may be necessary. Except on the great days, when it is expected that half a million people will enter the gates, a capacity of 10,000 should be enough, for a hundred thousand persons within the enclosure probably not more than two or three thousand will care to sit at any one time. There is so much to see, and visitors are so eager to make the grand rounds, that the vast majority of people are constantly on the move.

As the luncheon hour many more seats will be required than at any other part of the day, but the restaurants are able to care for 50,000 persons at once. Some of these restaurants are mammoth affairs, and while the charges are higher than most of us have been in the habit of paying at home, except in a few instances they are not exorbitant, everything being considered. You will find these extensive places, and enter the smaller eating places or lunch rooms, and 50 very nicely at an expense of half a dollar. For instance, in the southern end of the main building is a snug little lunch room where one may buy a good sandwich for a dime and a cup of coffee at the same price.

If one spends more money here than he can afford to spend it is his own fault, for the opportunity is given him to take his choice of bills of fare and schedule of prices. Visitors from the country who come in by carriage will find most splendid provision has been made for their comfort. In the big terminal railway station, which is the first one reached, there is room for nearly a half million dollars, one spacious waiting room, luxuriously furnished, where refreshments may be had at which the people may spread out their own lunches and buy a cup of coffee or tea from the restaurant. In the big parking places throughout the grounds visitors are permitted to spread their baskets and enjoy little impromptu picnics, all the more delightful because of the crowds of people. Every day one may see hundreds of people, more than half of them from Chicago, taking their luncheons in this way. Not a few take their baskets to the top of the main building, 250 feet above the ground, and sit down there on the half-mile promenade and enjoy their sandwiches and pickles with one of the most enchanting views ever beheld by the eyes of man spread out below them. It costs a quarter to ride up here in the elevators, but the trip is worth the money, and more too.

There is free drinking water in every nook and corner of the grounds. In all 900 pretty drinking fountains have been put in by the management, and from them is drawn filtered water as pure as any water on earth that has not been distilled by the chemist. It is called the Mississippi water, filtered through what is known as the Pasteur filter, and carefully cooled without contact with the air. Visitors need not be afraid to drink this water even in the hottest weather. It is almost ideal water, and it is free. Of course if you want mineral springs water that bubbles from the earth at Waukesha you may have it by paying a cent a glass to one of the hundred pretty girls who sit at neat little fountains in all parts of the exposition.

There are plenty of waiting rooms. In addition to those in the terminal station a number of buildings have been erected at various points on the grounds, and have both men and women may find all conveniences. No charge is made. In addition to these there are toilet rooms for both sexes in all the principal buildings. These are free, also, and clean. It is true there are many toilet rooms to which an admission fee is charged, but the management has been savagely criticised for permitting these establishments to be opened on the grounds. But when one considers the need and extent of the people unless he wishes to do so, and that wherever there is a pay toilet room there is also a free one that is for all intents and purposes just as good, the criticism loses most of its force. If any criticism is justified it is upon the manner in which the owners of the nickel toilet rooms have been permitted to take possession of the most conspicuous parts of the rooms set apart for this purpose. As one enters the door marked "toilet room" he sees immediately in front of him a handsome lavatory, with other conveniences, and a turnstile beside which a young man sits ready to receive your nickel. He not only sits ready to receive the coin, but calls out to you, "this way, please."

Naturally the visitor who does not know the ropes thinks this the way to the toilet room, and the only way there is. Many are misled into entering the turnstile gate at a cost of 5 cents per entrance, when if they would turn either to the right or left immediately after passing through the first door they would find free doors which admits to pleasant rooms which are absolutely free. There is no use of paying a nickel unless you go in for luxury.

In the Children's building are all conveniences for mothers and their little ones, and the latter may be left in charge of careful nurses, who will give them every good attention and be permitted to amuse themselves in a playroom on the roof with all manner of toys contributed by the nations of the earth, at a small charge per hour.

The state buildings are sure to be a great comfort to many thousands of visitors. With two or three exceptions, all the states and territories have handsome buildings have, and only a small number of them are used for exhibition. They are all devoted to the entertainment of visitors from the states. If you are from Illinois you will find Illinois building, and finding you will find pleasant parlors, a check room at which your parcels may be left without cost, lavatories and toilet rooms, a spacious piazza outside, letter-writing conveniences, tables and chairs at which to eat your luncheon, messengers, postal boxes, and above all the opportunity to meet friends from your own state and neighborhood. These state buildings are in other words club houses for the visitors from the commonwealths which erected them, their friends from all states. They are not only handsome, but decidedly useful.

Uncle Sam has a postoffice on the grounds, with every department in full running order. There are about thirty carriers, and more will be put on in a few days. People who intend coming to the fair and who do not know their permanent or hotel address will do well to have their mail sent to their state building. At each of the state buildings special efforts are made to take good care of mail delivered into their hands and to see that it gets to the rightful owners. Of course there are telegraph offices all over the grounds, and the charges are the same as in the city. The express companies have offices here, also, and if a visitor buys articles which are inconvenient to carry he may have them wrapped up and sent home by express. There is a bank within the grounds, and checks may be cashed or deposits made. This is the bank which failed a few weeks ago, but none of the depositors lost anything. Within a few hours the business men of Chicago raised enough money to pay off all depositors, and the bank has since been reorganized on what appears to be a sound basis.

Now that the hot weather is coming on for in Chicago a mysterious climate spring seems to have been dropped from the role of seasons and a quick jump is made from winter to summer—there will of course be a few cases of sunstroke as well as now and then other sudden illness among the throngs of visitors. For the care of such there are hospitals, and a corps of well trained assistants have been made. There is a complete hospital service, with surgeons, physicians and ambulances, and there have been added to the medical institutions of their kind. While Chicago has its hot days in summer, as every city has, visitors to the fair are to have the great advantage of the lake breezes constantly blowing upon them. They may ascend to the top of the main building and cool off, or take a row upon the lake in one of the many steamers plying to and fro. In the splendid rotunda of the Administration building, which is in some respects finer and more commodious than the rotunda of the national capitol at Washington, visitors will find a cool spot, for here the heat of the sun finds it difficult to penetrate, while the slightest movement of air produces a circulation through the vast enclosure.

For the preservation of order and protection of exhibits and visitors the management has provided a force of guards numbering 2,000. You may have read in the papers some complaints about these guards; that they are stupid, insolent and disagreeable. If you have, no doubt you concluded not to trouble the blue-coated fellows with your inquiries when you reached Chicago But in all the time I have been here I have met but one case of discourtesy on the part of a guard. That in this one instance I have always had my inquiries politely and in most cases intelligently answered. Nor have I ever witnessed any case of insolence or brutality on the part of a guard. Therefore I am not to be blamed if I take with many grains of allowance the stories which I read in the papers about the dreadful tyranny of the Columbian guards. The whole case seems to be like the tradition that goes round to the effect that all policemen are ignorant and brutal, and yet out of a hundred officers you may have asked for direction in the city not one failed to treat you with respect and courtesy.

The exposition managers have a bureau of public comfort, with a large number of employes, and its duties are to see that everything is done for the comfort and that they are not imposed upon in any way. Complaints will be promptly investigated, and the offenders punished whenever the evidence warrants.

Finally, there is music's sweet comfort. It may be had without cost. Two or three times a day the great bands and choirs occupied by splendid orchestras which fill the grand court with their harmonious echoes while thousands upon thousands of delighted people sit or walk about in this most beautiful of spots.

A Case of Pride.

Pride and poverty often go hand in hand. A lady advertised for a woman to take her washing, and was called upon by a young girl in a neat and clean dress, who said that her mother would like to get family washing, as she needed the money.

"Will you take it with you?" asked the lady.

"Oh, no, ma'am. Not in the daytime," said the girl, looking quite hurt. "I call some for it after dark."

But she did not come, and the lady, after waiting several days, sent her washing to the laundry. In about two weeks the girl called in the evening.

"I've come for the wash," she said.

"But you are too late. I have made other arrangements," said the lady. "Besides, you did not keep your word and come this evening, as you said you would."

"I know it, ma'am," answered the girl, "but when I promised I forgot that it was moonlight. You see I couldn't carry home a wash when it was as light as day."—Detroit Free Press.

"Why don't you shave it off?"

"Well, a heavy mule 'd wish I could, Sutkins, but I've just had my photograph taken for my Columbian exposition pass. Got to wear this beard for six months—Jane!"—Chicago Tribune.

MEMORIAL DAY.

APPROPRIATELY OBSERVED YESTERDAY IN PLAINFIELD.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, and Robert Anderson Post, No. 109, G. A. R., United for the First Time in the Ceremonies.

JOINTLY the two G. A. R. Posts of Plainfield celebrated Memorial Day. A joint detail from both Posts had charge of the arrangements.

The veterans gathered at their post quarters shortly after eight o'clock, and details were dispatched to the cemeteries to decorate and mark with flags the graves of their dead comrades. The display of flowers in the cemeteries was the finest seen in many years.

Business was practically suspended and flags and draped bunting were displayed in all directions.

The Garfield Loyal Ladies' League conducted memorial services yesterday in the old historic burying ground at Stamptown. The exercises consisted of singing by a chorus of girls, all relatives of Union soldiers, after which Rev. E. Thompson delivered an address. The children then decorated the soldiers' graves. An interesting feature of the occasion was the decoration by the ladies of three graves of Revolutionary heroes —Robert Dunlap, who accompanied Gen. Washington to Valley Forge, and Christian and William Lespardus.

Details with flowers also visited the graves of dead comrades at Westfield and Scotch Plains. Conspicuous among those seen assisting was "Sister Ann Dickinson," going to the headquarters with a number of cut flowers in one hand and a bouquet in the other. She has been for about half a century an active church member.

The Posts met at their headquarters in the afternoon and proceeded to Music Hall, where a large concourse of people had assembled to witness the exercises, which were of a nature befitting the day and highly pleasing throughout. The surroundings were much of the same nature as those of former occasions, and it is therefore unnecessary to detail them.

The programme was as usual an extended one and comprised much of Plainfield's best talent in the musical line and otherwise.

The Rev. Dr. Lewis opened the exercises by invoking the Divine blessing on the assemblage, after which the public school children sang very sweetly, "Soldier Rest," under the conductorship of Mr. T. E. Hazell. The reading of orders by Adjutant Magee and Commander Dobbins followed. "We Gather Here With Reverence" was then rendered by a quartette composed of Mrs. Asa Collins, soprano, Miss Julia J. Ketcham, alto, Mr. Elmer E. Runyon, tenor, Mr. Robert Gorton, bass, and Miss Jesse Utter, accompanist. Rousing remarks were made by the city's worthy Mayor, Alexander Gilbert, which called out applause as he proceeded. "Look Heavenward," was warbled by the young choristers, and this was so full of pathos and feeling that it brought the talented Mayor of the Borough, William L. Saunders, into the realms of inspiration and caused him to grow eloquent as he spoke of the blessings of peace and a cemented Union. The quartette then sang "Rest, Spirit, Rest," when the unknown graves were decorated, the floral tributes being laid upon the mound by young America, while they sang the "Tribute to Our Patriot Brave" in chorus. The orator of the day, Rev. Calvin Stebbins of Worcester, Mass., followed with an extended address full of eloquent passages, wise saws and hard logic, during the delivery of which he was frequently applauded. "Still Remembered" was then rendered by the quartette, after which there was tableaux, and then ended the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Grand Army of the Republic.

BREVITIES.

—Allen has a 25¢ cent sale, elsewhere announced, which he says is the first of the kind ever known in Plainfield.

—The festival in aid of St. Mary's parish, which was held last night at the Lyceum club house, proved a success.

—A horse attached to a buggy, in which were seated two ladies, became frightened and started to run away on Second Front street, this morning. The buggy collided with another wagon, but no one was injured.

—William Krewson, employed in the carpenter shop of the Pond Machine Tool Works, had the fingers of his right hand cut off, to-day. He was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital.

—A free stereopticon lecture will be given this evening, at 7.45 o'clock, in the First Baptist church, by Rev. C. A. Nichols of Bassein Mission, Burmah, illustrating scenes in Brightest Asia.

Mayor Saunders Sits up the Street Railway Company.

Mayor Saunders has ordered the work stopped on the Street Railway Company's Somerset street track, until the tracks are lowered from Craig place to the bridge.

It would be a good idea, when that portion is fixed, to have further track laying stopped until the portion "finished" is made safe and presentable. The easterly side of Somerset street is impassible for vehicles.

MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS ON MONDAY NIGHT.

Officers Elected—The Treasurer's Report—$600 Spent in Excess of the Hospital's Receipts—Only $35 in the Treasury to Begin the New Year.

FOLLOWING are the officers elected at the annual meeting of the Board of Muhlenberg Hospital on Monday evening, May 29th: President, Hon. Jas K. Case; vice presidents, Charles Schipper and Edward B. Clark, secretary, William B. Cock; treasurer, George H. Goddard.

The report of the treasurer was as follows:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Balance in Bank, May 30, 1892 | | $624.22 |
| Donations from individuals | $2,080.00 | |
| Central Railroad of New Jersey | 100.00 | |
| Union Co. Board of Freeholders | 300.00 | |
| Real Estate Trust Co. | 100.00 | |
| Crescent Avenue Sunday-school | 25.00 | |
| Hospital Sunday collections | | |
| Seventh Day Baptist church | 40.00 | |
| First Presbyterian church | 33.25 | |
| All Souls' church | 20.10 | |
| St. Mary's church | 19.75 | |
| First Baptist church | 45.00 | |
| Congregational church | 25.00 | |
| Park Presbyterian church | 138.70 | |
| Woman's Auxiliary Board | 499.95 | |
| Ladies' Aid Society, Second Presbyterian Church's Daughter's | 140.00 | |
| Patients | 1,205.50 | $4,932.95 |
| Total | | $4,994.78 |
| Disbursements. | | |
| Various expenses | $981.17 | |
| Fuel | 177.46 | |
| Medicine, surgical instruments | 539.84 | |
| Provisions | 1,865.82 | |
| Salaries and wages | 1,902.50 | |
| Total | $4,922.77 | |
| Balance in Bank May 29, 1893 | 38.21 | $4,994.78 |

The number of individual cash donors, among the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield, contributing directly to the hospital, through the treasurer, during the year, was seventy-four, and the amount of such donations $1,080.00. Though the King's Daughters, the Hospital Sunday collections and the Woman's Auxiliary Board and many others contribute cash, and others still contribute provisions, clothing and other goods sent to the hospital; in these classes of contributors, however, many of the seventy-four regular donors are represented again. We need more money. This year we have expended more than $600 in excess of our receipts. It is clear that more than 74 regular cash subscribers might be on our list. In the Summer months the receipts are always small. The hospital begins the new year with almost nothing in the treasury, and something ought to be done. There have been in the hospital during the year about 120 patients who have remained on an average of 30 days each. That is equal to a constant number of 10 patients in the hospital every day throughout the year. Besides this there have been treated in the dispensary 68 patients. The hospital has no endowment, and no debt except a mortgage of $1,800 on a portion of the grounds.

A "RAINBOW FESTIVAL."

To be Given in Vincent Chapel This Week.

There is to be a "Rainbow Festival" given at Vincent Chapel to-morrow evening and Friday afternoon and evening. The ladies of the church are making great preparation for an enjoyable and successful affair.

The following is the Committee of arrangements: Mrs. Cokefair, Mrs. H. N. McGee, Mrs. Hurlbut, Mrs. French, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. G. T. Wood.

Table of the cake table—Mrs. H. A. McGee, Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. Joy and Mrs. Chas. Horn will preside.

At the candy booth—Mrs. Homan, Mrs. Dr. Jenkins, Miss Morrison and Mrs. Pond will sell the home-made and other candy.

At the flower booth, Mrs. Lyman, Miss Barnes, Miss H. Barnes, Miss Pangborn and Miss Chandler will be in charge.

Lemonade will be sold by Mrs. Clark and Miss Frenche.

Delicious pop corn may be bought of the Misses Maud French, Edna French, Bessie Valiant or Lulu Packer.

The refreshment table will be looked after by Mrs. Pike, Mrs. Packer, Mrs. Lyons, Mrs. Davis, Miss Jackson, Miss Sharp, Mrs. Lackey and Mrs. Humble.

Mr. Taft will furnish the ideas and the decorations.

PERSONAL.

Ex-Borough Clerk S. H. Brokaw will start to-morrow for Boston, to be gone a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Schoonmaker of Eighth street returned home Monday from Atlantic City.

Miss Lillie Weigmann is dangerously ill with pneumonia at her home on East Front street.

Mr. John E. Gavin, of the firm of Higgins & Gavin, ink manufacturers, of Brooklyn, was the guest yesterday of his cousin, Street Commissioner Gavin of North Plainfield.

—At the firemen's election at Elizabeth, yesterday, Joseph Brown was elected chief on the "regular" ticket.

—August Burgeois' horse ran away this afternoon and wrecked the cart to which it was attached. Policeman Kiely caught the horse.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

THE FIRST OF THE SEASON PLAYED YESTERDAY.

Gay Throngs of Spectators at the Courts of the Hillside Tennis Club.—The Tournament won by Mr. A. F. Simmonds.

THE Hillside Tennis Club grounds, corner of Broadway and Hillside avenue, were occupied yesterday by tennis enthusiasts and their friends. It was because the first tournament of the season was to be played.

Not only was all the available space outside the courts occupied by spectators, but carriages, filled with gay throngs, lined the curbs.

The weather was delightful. The tournament was won by Mr. Albert P. Simmonds, who was also the winner last year. He was awarded the prize, a "Campbell" racquet of this years make. Mr. Simmonds' play has greatly improved since last year. He has entirely dropped "slamming" and devotes all his energy to stillful placing of the ball.

The score is given below.

FIRST ROUND.

E. D. Ryder defeated Sherwood West 6-3, 6-2.

C. F. Walz defeated C. H. West 6-3, 6-3.

Henry Ryder defeated J. H. P. Wharton 6-0, 6-0.

C. Morgan defeated D. G. Ivins by default.

L. Walz defeated Geo. P. Mellick by default.

F. K. Fisk defeated A. F. H. Streull by default.

Albert P. Simmonds defeated F. W. Walz 6-1, 6-2.

James P. Murray drew a bye.

SECOND ROUND.

E. D. Ryder defeated C. W. Walz 3-6, 6-0, 6-2.

Henry Ryder defeated C. Morgan 7-5, 6-3.

F. K. Fisk, Jr., defeated E. L. Walz, Jr., 6-4, 7-5, 5-1.

Albert P. Simmonds defeated James P. Murray 6-2, 6-0.

THIRD ROUND.

Henry Ryder defeated E. D. Ryder 6-3, 6-4.

Albert P. Simmonds defeated F. K. Fisk, Jr., 6-2, 6-1.

FINAL ROUND.

Albert P. Simmonds defeated Henry Ryder 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Much credit is due the officers of the club, especially the popular president, Mr. Geo. P. Mellick, for the success of the tournament. They carefully looked after the details, that, if unattended, would have marred the pleasure of the day.

GRACE CHURCH EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The Society Organized Monday Night with 64 Members.

The Epworth League of the Grace M. E. church was organized Monday night. The Rev. S. F. Randolph, pastor of the church, opened the meeting by prayer, after which he spoke for some time, explaining the methods, workings and advantages of the league. The following officers were elected: President:—Mr. A. A. Taft. First Vice-President—Miss E. Smalley. Second Vice-President—Miss G. Perine. Third Vice-President—Mr. E. Wiseker. Fourth Vice-President—Miss Clara Steiner. Secretary—Mr. W. B. Force. Treasurer—Miss Della Voehl. After the adoption of the constitution, and the appointment of Committees, and the enrollment of 64 members, refreshments were served.

LAST HONORS TO DAVIS

THE REMOVAL OF HIS REMAINS TO RICHMOND.

Stops of Several Hours Each Made at Montgomery, Atlanta and Raleigh.—Lee Camp to Guard the Grave in Hollywood Cemetery.

The official programme for the removal of the remains of Jefferson Davis from New Orleans to Richmond as announced by Mayor J. Taylor Ellyson, president of the Jefferson Davis Monument association, was as follows: The funeral train bearing the remains of Mr. Davis left New Orleans Sunday night at 7.30 o'clock. The first stop of note was at Montgomery, Ala., at 9 a. m. May 29.

The train remained at Montgomery five hours. At 11 p. m. the train left for Atlanta, arriving in that city at 4.30 p. m. At Raleigh another stop of two hours occurred, and then the train proceeded to Richmond, arriving there early last evening. The reinterment took place at Hollywood cemetery Richmond, to-day.

Musical Service at the Church of the Holy Cross Last Evening.

The announcement that the semi-annual musical service of the choirs of St. Michael's parish, Naugatuck, Conn., and Holy Cross parish, North Plainfield, would take place in the church of the latter last evening, brought hither a gathering that filled every available seat in the edifice, while a large number were compelled to stand throughout the service.

At the hour announced for the service the white-robed choristers and clergy proceeded from the robing-room down the west aisle singing the grand and inspiring hymn of Bishop Heber—"Holy, Holy, Holy! all the saints adore thee," and up the main aisle to the chancel, when the exercises of the evening were begun and carried out in an excellent manner under the able leadership of Choirmaster W. H. Miese.

The numbers on the programme were of a very high order and reflected great credit on the participants, especially the "Hallelujah Chorus" (Messiah) from Handel, and "By Babylon's Wave," from Gounod, and the offertory anthem, "How lovely are the Messengers" from Mendelssohn. The other numbers were equally well executed.

The outside talent engaged for the occasion need no introduction to Plainfield people to their line, and included Mrs. B. T. Barnes, who ably presided at the piano, Prof. W. E. Hoffmyer, the well-known organist, whose playing throughout the service was admirable, and Prof. F. L. Castle, 'cellist.

The service was brought to a close by the united choirs and clergy rendering, they having entered, singing "Onward, Christian Soldier!"

The choirs and others were very hospitably entertained by Mrs. E. T. Waring at her residence on Willow avenue after the service.

BASE BALL YESTERDAY.

THE CRESCENTS MAKE 42 RUNS IN TWO GAMES.

The Games Fine Exhibitions of Terrific Batting and Clever Base Running.—The Crescents Tire Out Two Pitchers, and Win Both Games.

ENERGETIC batting by the Crescents characterized both ball games on the Crescent Oval yesterday. The most runs and the most hits ever made by the Crescents in one day were made yesterday. In visiting teams were weak, that such high scores were made, because the strongest semi-professional teams known are the Cuban Giants and the Flushings. The former were the victims in the morning and the way the Crescents batted Catto's curves was enough to discourage any pitcher, and Catto gave it up and retired in favor of Pence in the sixth inning. For one inning he was effective, then Pence received the same drubbing as his predecessor, the Crescents scoring six runs in this inning, making the score 22 to 5. The Cuban Giants had made a game fight, but they could not battle against such an avalanche of base hits, so they gave up in despair in the eighth inning and the game was called.

The attendance at the morning game was the largest so far this season, many attending for the first time since the present team has been organized. Those who had not attended were surprised at the aggregation of heavy hitters secured by Manager Keller. It was astonishing to see the Crescents bat. Such an exhibition has never before been witnessed in this city. Patrons of the game are more familiar with the "two to one" scores. These are now a thing of the past, as the placing of the pitcher back five feet increases the batting average. The following is the score:

Wild pitch—Sweeden. Hit by pitcher—Catto, Double play—Smith to Keenan to Jones. Umpire—Mr. Hudson. Time—2 hours.

In the afternoon it was not expected that the exhibition of the morning would be duplicated, but it was. That strong semi-professional team, Flushings, who had so defeated the Crescents successfully or been beaten by a small margin, lined up against the Crescents, and Turner and Fritz were the battery for the home team, and again Turner showed good pitching qualities in the field and Fritz down to three hits for six innings, when Keenan was given a trial. Keenan did well in the box at the bat and behind the base and Manager Keller was highly pleased with his work. The Crescents secured five runs in all, while the Crescents pounded the ball all over the oval, securing 20 runs. The following is the score:

A Story of a Little Boy.

A German farmer living near Basking Ridge is the father of a bright little boy about eight years of age, but, being very fond of the little fellow, he has been wont, in times past, to let his son's naughty actions go by unnoticed, and the lad was consequently becoming very self-willed. With the boy's mother, however, it was quite different. She is a good and frugal housewife, and an excellent mother. Though she does not believe in whipping children, she nevertheless insists on obedience, and having an unusually strong will, has so overcome her boy's tendencies to disobey that he is now a model of obedience.

The boy idolizes his parents and especially his mother, and he is of a very affectionate disposition. The parents love the child and it is a very happy household.

The boy is occasionally sent on errands to Basking Ridge by his mother. He was often told to go and return promptly, and do his playing afterward all he wished. Some time ago, however, he disobeyed. It has never occurred since nor is it likely to happen again.

He was sent to the bakery. The baker's wife had some boys about the same age and they asked their little customer to remain and play with them, at the same time offering him candy. The boy forgot his mother's instructions and played for several hours. The mother at home, becoming worried at her son's long absence, hurried to the village and inquired at many places for her son before she found him at the baker's. She told the baker's wife very plainly that when her boy was sent on an errand she must never delay him, and that never, under any circumstances, must she give him candy, as she, his mother, gave him as much of that as she wished. The baker's wife answered, "Telling her son that he could stay there and play as long as he pleased, as she wanted nothing whatever to do with a naughty boy, and forbidding him returning home at all, she went away. The boy stopped all play and followed his mother home, keeping some distance back of her, and when he got there he was seized like a cruel tiger, and the little fellow appeared heart-broken. She would not allow him to enter the house, but ordered him on the porch. He repeatedly said he was sorry, and begged her to "look at him," but determined that the lesson should be remembered, she said she wanted nothing to do with naughty boys, and for a long lapse of silence, broken only by the sobbing of the repentant boy, he said: "Mamma, why don't you speak to me?" She answered, "I have a time." "Well," the boy said, "I guess I have time to cry." The boy's punishment lasted from noon until six o'clock in the evening. He has never needed a second punishment. Another time when naughty at the table he was taken away and placed in a pig-pen for several hours, with the remark ringing in his ears that "that was the place for boys who wouldn't behave at the table."

The boy has never been whipped in his life, and has only been punished two or three times. He is a fine specimen which he always remembers, for he is now a model of politeness and obedience, and a treasure to his parents.

AMONG THE BICYCLERS.

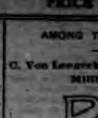
C. Von Lengerke of Newark Wins the Millburn Race.



L. A. PLAINFIELD'S three bicycle clubs—Crescent, League Wheelmen, Bicycle Club and Lyceum Cycler—left P. L. C. Martin's at 9.30 yesterday morning to attend the Irvington-Millburn race. J. A. Hoffner, captain of the Crescent Wheelmen, and W. Kirly, Captain of the Lyceums, acted as pacemakers. After the race the riders went to the Rahway race. Edgar Serrell of Plainfield won second place in the one mile novice race. In the other races W. A. Crane and N. Tilsworth were entered, but did not get a prize.

Over six thousand wheelmen witnessed the 25th annual twenty-five mile handicap road race at Millburn.

The race was started at 11.30 o'clock, and 133 men out of an entry list of 160, started.

C. Von Lengerke, of the Atlantic Wheelmen of Newark, with a handicap of seven minutes, won the race handily. Charles E. Collin, of the Rossville Athletic Club, with a handicap of 2¾ minutes, finished second, F. W. Mosher, of the Riverside Wheelmen, with 6 minutes handicap, was third; E. V. Miller, of the Vineland Wheelmen, with 8 minutes, fourth and A. H. Barnesh, W. A. C., 7 minutes handicap, fifth.

The Civil Service System.

To the New York Sun belongs the credit of first announcing that President Cleveland contemplates a complete reform of methods of appointment in the offices are said to provide for the establishment of a new tribunal modeled after the present civil service reform commission, but possessing more complete and extended powers, with the idea of keeping such officials as are not chosen by the people in office for life or during good behavior, very much after the pattern of the English system.

It has been claimed that this was the intention of the founders of our government. Jefferson was the first president to depart from this policy. He inaugurated the system of rewards and appointments for political reasons. In a letter to a committee of merchants in 1801 he said: "If a due participation in office is a matter of right, how are vacancies to be obtained? Those by death are few; by resignation, none." But the system of rotation in office did not come into full force until Jackson's time. He maintained that every citizen had an equal right to public office, and his removals numbered far more than all presidents together who preceded him. This doctrine has been defended on the ground that a long tenure of office creates a bureaucracy of officeholders who forget that they are the servants of the public.

The civil service reformers claim that only a few important offices need be changed with each administration in order to insure the adequate carrying out of its policy, and they fortify their position by other arguments which need not be stated here.

The civil service commission was appointed in 1871, but as congress refused to appropriate funds to carry the measure out it had little effect. The Pendleton bill of 1882 is the one in force at present. Both Republicans and Democrats uphold this principle of civil service reform in their platforms, but accusations of partisan execution of it are always made against the party in power.

It is hardly necessary to say that The Sun does not favor the idea, nor does it enjoy the confidence of the president.

A Rich Man's Privilege.

It is a little singular that the greatest privilege which the rich can enjoy over the poor is the one thing they exercise the least part of making them happy. Colonel John A. Creighton of Omaha is an exception. He is a millionaire, some say 10 times over, but the wealth of good men is often estimated too high. At various times he has given $3,000,000 to the city of Omaha to be used for benevolent purposes. Among his other charities is a hospital wherein the applicant for relief is asked no questions as to race, color, religious belief, morals or politics. It is enough for the physician to know that the applicant suffers and needs attention.

This is the only true charity. It is a pity that the benevolently disposed find it necessary in so many cases to look up the antecedents of those who are in want—to find whether their misfortunes were due to their own improvidence or bad habits or whether they are owing to something beyond their control. But this seems to be the best rule for the more prudent and discreet benevolence of today. If economic conditions were as they should be, however, it would be well known that every ablebodied person who applied for alms was an imposter. And as for the "lame, the halt, the blind and the sick," they would not need to ask for alms—it would come without asking.

A Boston newspaper has been getting the views of a number of clergymen, representing widely different religious organizations, as to what people may do on Sunday. Among those who gave their opinions were a Presbyterian, an Episcopalian, a Roman Catholic, a Baptist, a Salvation Army major and a Unitarian. It took several columns for them to express their views. The Roman Catholic had the broadest ideas of any regarding the observance of the day. He seemed to favor innocent recreation and amusement. One of the clergymen urged everybody with the force of an exclamation point to "get more personal soul," whatever that may mean. The force of logic was so evenly divided among the clergy that there is not likely to be any change in Sunday observance at the Hub.

Advices from Constantinople regarding the seizure of Harper's Magazine by the Turkish government on account of the alleged immorality of its contents state that the seizure was not as first reported, because the book contained poems by Schlegel, but was probably due to an article on European armies and the political situation. It was rather straining a point to call Harper's Magazine immoral.

In view of the fact that Mayor Harrison of Chicago touched off an important ing office seeker's beard with a parlor match, it would be a good plan to revive the old custom of covering the whiskers with gold leaf, not as a mark of respect, as of yore, nor yet to keep the wind from blowing through them, but as a preserver and a defender.

If H. R. H. the Duke of Wellington W. Foster can stand it, we can.

BALLOTING ON HERESY.

The Briggs Case Comes to a Vote Today.

THE PROFESSOR'S LAST APPEAL.

He Challenges His Judges to Judge Him According to the Bible and the Confession—The Closing of the Arguments by the Members.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—What will probably be the last day of the Briggs trial opened this morning, with the church crowded to the doors. A vote was expected this forenoon, and this was the reason for the unusual number of spectators.

People evidently do not tire of the case, notwithstanding the technical and often wearisome features of the argument. Even at the third day the famous trial attracted an audience that had to spare room in the church, and the 500 odd commissioners, in whose hands the fate of the defendant rests, sat through the 8½ hours that the assembly was in session with unflagging interest and attention. Professor Briggs concluded his argument, having occupied all but 20 minutes of the seven hours allotted to him by the judicial committee. His voice gave way under the great and sustained strain to which it had been subjected, despite the assistance of Professor Brown in reading portions of the record and extracts from his works, and towards the close he spoke with evident effort and husky tones.

Turning to the assembly and raising his hands solemnly Dr. Briggs concluded his defense as follows:

"I have endeavored to explain my views. I hold them sincerely and with all my heart. I hope they are set forth in holy Scripture. I know many of them are set forth in the Westminster confession. I challenge you before God to judge me rightly and conscientiously. I challenge you before God to judge me according to the record. I challenge you before Jesus Christ to do me justice in your judgment."

Colonel McCook was presented to the court by Moderator Craig to close the case for the appellants, confining himself to points raised by Professor Briggs.

The Prosecution Closes.

Colonel McCook opened with a declaration in regard to the sufficiency and exactness of the specifications in the appeal, which he asserted the defendant had acknowledged in the court below and before this court, and then he continued that at a late hour the defendant had stood here and said, "Yes, the words are mine, but I do not admit the facts stated therein." This was mere quibbling.

Colonel McCook claimed that the case before the presbytery was one of fact and not of law; that the charges contained only the evidence of the facts admitted having uttered; that the verdict should have been guilty. The case was one which could not be decided by occasional polemics on Presbyterian doctrines, but must be decided by the highest tribunal in accordance with the constitution and standards of the church.

The speaker traversed anew the grounds of the teachings of the defendant, and asserted, despite the latter's avowals and explanations, that his views were inimical to the holy Scripture and confession of faith and therefore gross error in the eye of the church. He also asserted that the doctrines at issue were essential, notwithstanding Professor Briggs' declaration of opinion to the contrary. In conclusion Colonel McCook said:

It seems almost incredible that the appellee, after reaffirming so often the alleged erroneous doctrines which he has been put on trial, should appear before this court with a series of orthodox statements for the utterance of which he is not and never has been on trial.

The question is not whether he had once or twenty times taught what was orthodox. The trial is on the doctrines of the immaculate address, which are offenses against Presbyterian doctrines. There is no room for obscurity here. There is no reason for searching the works of the appellee published in the past to reassure yourselves and to shake the position of the committee.

The question is: Are the unretracted doctrines of the inaugural address affirmed and reaffirmed so many times, which are the basis of those charges and specifications, are they in conformity with the word of God, the standards of the Presbyterian church? This is the question and this only.

The array of authorities which the appellee has cited in opposition to the Presbyterian doctrine of the Scripture is no doubt imposing, and it is also a source of pride to Presbyterians, I am aware, however, that at the great universities of Europe there are many juries of the highest learning who defend monarchy, and are scrupulous in their views of the popular institutions of the United States. But as a citizen loyal to the American constitution, and especially on this date, I do not regulate my loyalty according to the conclusions of foreign doctrinaires.

In like manner those of us who are loyal to the constitution of the Presbyterian church are not called upon to alter our views with respect to our Presbyterian constitution and doctrine on the plea of embellishment, however high their pretensions.

Oxford Episcopalians and German rationalism do not change the Presbyterian constitution and doctrine. For Presbyterianism has a history and has claims which do not need the support of any one, except that the foundation is Jesus Christ as revealed in God's holy word.

The prosecution occupied in presenting its case 6 hours and 10 minutes.

For and Against Briggs.

At the opening of the morning session an attempt was made to reach a vote before adjourning, but it was unsuccessful.

Dr. Young moved that an hour and a half be allowed the commissioners of the presbytery of New York to present their views, and that the expiration thereof time the vote be taken without further delay. The assembly, however, by a great majority refused to change the regular order and Professor Brown took the stand. Taking up the various grounds of appeal and their several specifications seriatim, he laid particular stress on the fact that Dr. Briggs had denied the charges against him and insisted that he should not be pressed to trial after this denial.

Professor Brown (Professor Brown) and others voted to acquit Dr. Briggs after manifestations of prejudice in the conduct of the case was untrue. So far as the violation of his ordination vow was concerned Professor Brown said that Dr. Briggs had been merely required at ordination to accept the system of doctrine—nothing less, nothing more.

Rev. R. E. Booth spoke next and regretted the necessity of appearing in opposition to the presbytery of New York.

The judgment of the presbytery, he said, while in form acquitting Professor Briggs, held up his teachings to the reprobation and scorn of the whole church.

The next speaker was Rev. George Alexander, who supported Dr. Briggs. He denied the imputation of prejudice in favor of Dr. Briggs in the presbytery, and then proceeded to explain the meaning of the presbytery coupling the acquittal of Dr. Briggs, "without expressing approval of the critical or theological views embodied in the inaugural address."

Elder Robert Beggs of Rev. John Hall's Fifth Avenue church contended that the judgment of the presbytery in acquitting Dr. Briggs was contrary to the word of God. He declared that it was important that in the seats of learning the church should secure only men who are capable of using the English language, so that he may be understood, and be so careful in their teachings that when one sat down to read the Bible he will not have to go, as has been said, to the higher critics to know what part of it was God's now and what part was not.

Elder George T. Sperry was the next speaker, who took a directly personal line of discussion. He said the question was a very plain one. A Presbyterian minister was accused of teaching an unbiblical theology. He admitted it, and said further that he was going to continue it. The presbytery acquitted him. "If you are going to confirm that kind of judgment," said Mr. Sperry, "you will open up a very large field of speculation." The defendant had taught an unbiblical theology if ever such a theology was taught in the Presbyterian church, and it seemed to Mr. Sperry that it ought not to require 24 months in which to inform him that he was no longer wanted in the Presbyterian communion. The speaker said he had been informed that when the investigation was begun the defendants said he would keep the case in court for years. And he had done pretty well in that direction in the opinion of Mr. Sperry.

An incident of the fruitage of the teaching of the defendant was related by the speaker as coming within his own observation. A young minister, he said, who had been instructed under the defendant, was found to have abandoned the use of the word Jesus in his services. He was asked why he did not approach the throne of the Father, though, and in the name of his Son.—"Oh, I'm a Briggsite," was the response.

The last speaker was Elder James Yeracance, and he spoke against the case of Dr. Briggs.

At 10 o'clock the assembly adjourned until this morning.

Think Slavin Was Drugged.

LONDON, May 31.—The Sportsman says of the Hall-Slavin fight Monday night: "Slavin was in such splendid condition two hours before the fight that the backer laid £1,300 to £800 on him. Many believe that Slavin was drugged or induced to drink heavily before the fight." In an interview Slavin said: "I do not remember clearly anything that happened after I entered the club. It was all like a dream. I knew I was boxing, but I had no strength in my arms or legs."

Martello and Osmond Must Die.

ALBANY, May 31.—Governor Flower, who has had the cases of Martello and Osmond, the murderers, under consideration for some time, has decided to let the law take its course, and they will both be killed by electricity. Martello is now in the Dannemora prison and will be killed some time during the first week in June, and Osmond is in Sing Sing prison and will be electrocuted the second week in June.

Will Take Fifty Cents From Foster.

CLEVELAND, May 31.—A largely attended meeting of the creditors of ex-Governor Foster. Resolutions of sympathy were adopted, after which it was agreed to accept 50 cents on the dollar in payment of claims. A statement from the governor was read, saying that he could pay 50 per cent, of his debts soon and that he wanted to pay in full.

Progress of the Billiard Match.

LONDON, May 31.—At the resumption of the international billiard match in Hingley's circus Roberts, the English champion, opened with a run of 100. The totals at the end were: Roberts, still playing, 2,001; Ives, 1,670. Ives' run of 367 is the biggest one of the match. It was made mostly by cannons. Ives has a severe cold.

Carrie Vogt's Body Found.

NEWARK, N. J., May 31.—The body of 14-year-old Carrie Vogt, who has been missing from her home since Saturday, was found in the Passaic river. When last seen alive the girl was collecting a Broad street merchant's sewing goods to be sent to her neighbors in order to annoy them. It is supposed she drowned herself.

Stabbed by a Till Tapper.

PATERSON, N. J., May 31.—Andrew Van Nimwegen, a grocer at 57 Clinton street, was stabbed in the abdomen and seriously, and while endeavoring to hold him until assistance arrived the thief stabbed him several times in the chest and arms and made his escape. Van Nimwegen's wounds are considered serious.

A Street Piano Started Them.

LEWISTON, Me., May 31.—In a runaway accident George, the 6-year-old son of Henry Daniels, was instantly killed, and Willie, the 3-year-old son of Patrick Flynn, was badly hurt. The horses were frightened by a street piano and ran into a group of children playing on the street.

Mrs. Grubb's Condition Improved.

HIGHTSTOWN, N. J., May 31.—The attending physicians on Mrs. Grubb, wife of Ex-Judge Grubb and E. Burd Grubb, and who is critically ill with typhoid fever, at their country seat, Edgewater Park, N. J., reported an improvement in her condition.

New York State League.

ROCHESTER, May 31.—The Rochester Athletics easily defeated the Utica Athletics in the two games with which the championship season of the Central New York league was opened.

Roman Finances In a Bad Way.

ROME, May 31.—The monetary situation grows worse. The scarcity of silver is paralizing trade, and the revival of forced paper currency is believed to be inevitable.

PARIS, May 31.—Sir Charles Russell is making his concluding argument today in the Behring sea case.

YET ANOTHER MYSTERY

One More Unsolved Tragedy In Fall River.

YOUNG WOMAN FOUND MURDERED.

Miss Manchester Was Invited to Kindness—With an Ax—None of the Neighbors Saw Any One Enter the House—She Had a Runaway Brother.

FALL RIVER, Mass., May 31.—The city is in a state of intense excitement today, due to the discovery of an atrocious murder, rivalling, in many respects, those of Mr. and Mrs. Borden. The victim was Miss Bertha Manchester, aged 23 years, a former student in the High school and a descendant of one of the oldest families in this section of New England.

Miss Manchester lived at a farmhouse, four miles from city hall, on what is known as the New Boston road. She was last seen alive about 7:30 Monday morning, when she left the Steppacher farm, a mile further on in the country, accompanied by his son and hired boy, to deliver milk. About 8 p. m. they returned home. Freddy, his 13-year-old boy, ran ahead into the house. As he opened the kitchen door to the ell of the house he saw a most horrible sight lying in a pool of blood on the floor. He ran back to the barn and told his father. The latter ran to the house, and taking in the situation, started for the police station, four miles distant, leaving the two boys on the place.

It was an hour later when the police arrived with Medical Examiner Dolan. A hasty examination was made of the house and its immediate surroundings.

Found a Bloody Ax.

A bloody ax was found in a wood pile near the back fence. After hunting all over the premises and being satisfied that the murderer, whoever he was, had escaped, a more thorough search of the case was made. A photographer and engineer were summoned and 12 negatives and innumerable measurements were taken under the direction of the authorities. The examination of the body disclosed horrible conditions. The young girl was lying close to the foot of the stove, where she had evidently dragged herself through pools of her blood. Her right leg was drawn under her body, her clothes were partially drawn from her hips and her head and face were frightfully mutilated. There were four long, deep cuts on the back of the head, and the top of the skull was crushed to a jelly.

There were several cuts on the face and nose, and two of the girl's teeth were found on the floor beside her. Her loose hair was matted with blood, and her throat and face were covered with it. The space in which she was found measured about 6 by 8 feet, and the sheathing and windows all around it were spattered with blood. Also a few spots of blood were found leading from the kitchen to the cellar door, and there were pools of blood on the floor of the cellar just beneath the head of the stairs.

On searching the house the police found that the girl's bedroom had been rifled of some of its contents, including a lady's gold watch valued at over $100. An empty pocketbook was also found. The missing watch, opened drawers and pocketbook cause the police to believe that the motive of the fiendish butchery was robbery. Although they reached a theory as to the motive of the murder they were all at sea regarding the identity or whereabouts of the assassin. Everyone working on the case has been cautioned against talking with reporters.

Relatives Are Watched.

The policemen have been instructed to shadow every member of the family and warn them to say as little as possible regarding the crime and relations of the family. Mr. Manchester, the father of the murdered girl, is 63 years of age, and is well known in financial circles. His immediate family consisted of the murdered girl, a second wife, who has not lived with him for some time; Freddy, the 13-year-old boy, who first discovered the body; a daughter married to W. W. Coolidge, and a son Harry, who ran away from home about 10 years ago.

Mr. Manchester told a reporter that he found Bertha in the condition as above stated. He last saw her just after she had prepared his breakfast. She had no lovers of any kind that he ever knew of, and she seldom bothered the neighbors. He thought Bertha had some money of her own—probably $75 or $80.

He thought she kept it in her own room. He had seen his runaway son since he left home several years ago, although he had been told at various times that he had been seen about the place. Freddy has no idea who committed the murder, and knows no more about the affair than has already been told.

John, the work boy about the farm, has only been employed since last Friday. Miss Read, a neighbor, who lives across the road from the Manchester farm, said that she had been at home all day, but neither she or the other members of her family had heard anything unusual about the place. Her statement confirms the story surrounding the tragedy, as Manchesters always kept dogs on his farm.

The police are inclined to believe that the dead was committed by some one familiar with the premises. The medical examiner has decided that the girl was not outraged before or after the murder. There was ample opportunity for the murderer to commit the deed unmolested, just as the Borden murders were committed last August, when the opportunities for such outrages were much easier. Although the house is within the city limits it is remote from surroundings where strangers would attract particular attention.

The body of the murdered girl was removed from the house to an undertaker's establishment. The funeral will occur at present by order of the police authorities.

The suspicion that the dead was done by some one of the family is growing stronger in the minds of the police. Persons who know the murdered girl say she has been a household drudge the past four years. Her father married his second wife about eight years ago, but the girl and her step-mother gether although a boy was born to them. For many months the woman has been drawing a current sum for maintenance, while the husband has been endeavoring to obtain a divorce.

There are many stories of the girl's life circulating today which seem almost incredible when her youth and physique are considered. It is known that for many months she has been her father's greatest help in caring for his 19 cows, three horses and large farmhouse. She had frequently complained of her hard lot in life. Only Monday she complained to Miss Read, her nearest neighbor, about the amount of labor she had to perform.

Mr. Gen. W. Cook

Great Suffering
After the Grip
Tremendous Roaring in the Head —Pain in the Stomach.

"To C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
Two years ago I had a severe attack of the Grip, which left me in a terribly weak and debilitated condition. Last winter I had another attack and was again very badly off, my head roaring constantly, and pain in the stomach. I had no strength, felt tired all the time, and could not sleep. I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I also had several bottles of Hood's Pills. I am pleased to say it is just the remedy for me. I feel like a new man. I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills in my family with the most satisfactory results

WILD BEASTS IN THE WOODS.

The Wreck of a Circus Train Set Them Free.

ALTOONA, Pa., May 31.—A train carrying Walter L. Main's circus was wrecked at McCann's crossing, one mile north of Vail station on the Tyrone and Clearfield branch railroad. It is supposed that the brakes failed to work. The train left the track on a sharp bend, and nine flat, one box, two stock and a tank car were piled up in a high embankment and were smashed to pieces. Six people were killed and many injured, eight of them seriously. The killed are:

Frank Crain, treasurer and ticket seller of the circus, Indianapolis.

William Lock, Newport, Ky.

J. Brayer, Honesdale, Pa.

William Mullaner, Gainesville, O.

William Heverly, Brakeman Tyrone.

An unknown man.

The injured were brought to the Altoona hospital. They are:

Willie C. Bannon, Chambersburg, Pa., scalp wound.

David Jones, Harrisburg, sprained leg.

Frank Morton, Rochester, N. Y., head injured.

William Evans, Williamsburg, Pa., ankle dislocated.

William K. Patchell, Du Bois, Pa., leg injured.

James William Haney, Alberton, Pa., body crushed.

Louis Champaign, Rochester, side crushed.

A number of others were less seriously injured.

The wild animals all got from the cages. Two injured sacred oxen were killed to put them out of their misery. A tiger killed a cow belonging to Alfred Thomas, a farmer. His wife was milking the cow at the time. Thomas killed the tiger with a rifle. Three lions escaped, one was captured immediately. Another was lassoed and tied to a tree after biting the lassoer, James Chambers, severely on the hand. The other lion is at large, but in the quietest of the three. A tiger, water buffalo, hyena, bear, alligators and a large collection of snakes got away, but were captured. The elephants and camels were uninjured. A black panther, silver tiger, a lot of monkeys and valuable birds are at large. Almost every ring horse was killed. The total number of horses killed is 40, with all the others cut an bruised.

Engineer Steeve Cresswell is supposed to have disappeared, as he did not show up at the wreck.

Mr. Main estimates the loss at $100,000. The snake charmer caught one of his big anacondas in the bushes. The scene at the wreck is a doleful one. Cars, wagons and chariots are smashed into firewood. The circus people are now encamped at the scene of the wreck.

The neighborhood is greatly alarmed about the wild animals at large, but the show people say there is no need for fear.

Knocked by a Bucking Broncho.

LONG ISLAND CITY, May 31.—Richard Lavelle, 45 years old, of Houston street, New York, was thrown from a broncho pony and killed, his neck being broken. Lavelle was one of the owners of a pony running track at North Beach.

PRESIDENT'S OUTING.

He Takes a Sudden Run Down Into Virginia.

FISHING AGAIN OFF HOG ISLAND.

In His Duster and Slouch Hat He Traveled Almost Unrecognized—Received by the Broadwater Club at Exmore—Accompanied by Two Friends and a Valet.

EXMORE, Va., May 31.—President Cleveland arrived here early this morning and took the boat for Hog island, where he intends to enjoy three or four days fishing and shooting. He was accompanied by Mr. L. Clark Davis of Philadelphia and Dr. J. D. Bryan of the New York board of health, who joined them at Wilmington, Del. Although his coming was comparatively a secret quite a number of the citizens in and around Exmore station had heard it whispered that President Cleveland would be there and were congregated about the station upon the arrival of the president's special train.

Extensive preparations were made at the Broadwater club to entertain the president in a quiet but pleasant way. A French cook from Philadelphia, accompanied by two assistants, is at the clubhouse and is in charge of the kitchen during the president's stay. The steamer Sunshine was waiting at Willis' wharf near Exmore station all ready to leave for Broadwater bay when the president's train arrived.

The president left Washington for Hog island at 5:40 p. m. yesterday by the Pennsylvania railroad, accompanied by Mr. L. Clark Davis of Philadelphia.

There were no other persons in the party except a colored porter.

He occupied car 190, a combination dining, sleeping and observation. His car was switched off at Wilmington and went south to this place. The president's determination is to return to Washington Saturday.

The President In Disguise.

When the president stepped off the train here enveloped in a gray linen duster and wore a gray slouch hat pulled down almost over his eyes, he would have been almost unrecognized by his nearest friend.

In fact he left Washington almost unnoticed. Upon reaching the car he took a seat near the door, Mr. Davis sitting opposite. He lit a Havana cigar, and with his back to the window sent smoke curling out the rear door of the car, which was left open. Hundreds of people passed, but no one aside from the depot officials and a watchful reporter seemed to be aware of the president of the United States. His reception here was very quiet.

Mr. Davis, in reply to questions, said: "We will return on Saturday. We are on a fishing trip, and expect to catch drum and sea trout. We may shoot some snipe."

The Monterey's Trial Trip.

The coast defense vessel Monterey is now on an official trial trip. She left the Mare Island navy yard Saturday, but was delayed a day by fog. The trip will involve 48 hours' steaming at different speeds and the object is not to make speed or horsepower, but to satisfy the naval officers that the machinery throughout is in perfect order. Under the terms of the contract the builders must remedy any defects that develop during the first four months after the acceptance of the vessel. After that time the government is responsible. Some interest attaches to the trip in view of statements that are persistently reiterated to the effect that the boilers are defective, notwithstanding the official denial of a naval board expressly created to investigate that charge.

ANOTHER BATTLESHIP READY

The Massachusetts Will Be Launched In About a Week.

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—The United States battleship Massachusetts will be launched from Cramps' shipyard on Saturday, June 10. The vessel is an exact counterpart of the Indiana, which left the ways last February. It is probable that a delegation from Massachusetts will attend the ceremonies and that the daughter of a Massachusetts statesman will christen the ship.

As President Harrison, Secretary Tracy and the senate and house committees on naval affairs attended the launch of the Indiana it is very likely that the Washington party to see the Massachusetts launched will include President Cleveland, Secretary Herbert and the naval committees.

A Parachute Jumper Killed.

BUFFALO, May 31.—Purcell Thomas, an aeronaut, while making an umbrella descent from the top of the Parade House, lost control of the parachute and fell 50 feet. His skull was fractured, and he died within an hour. Thomas' wife and four children witnessed the fatal leap.

Would Not Drag the River.

PATERSON, N. J., May 31.—An unknown man leaped into the Passaic river from the Main street bridge. Chief of Police Hendrickson of Passaic refused to send officers to drag the stream, saying that the water where the man sank was in Acquackanonk township.

Spain Adopts Quarantine Measures.

MADRID, May 31.—The Spanish government has declared five days' quarantine against all vessels arriving from Hamburg.

Laura Jones of Patchogue, L. I., was dared by her girl companions to cross a railroad track in front of a train, did it and was killed.

RHODE ISLAND'S MUDDLE.

It Is the Worst Political Mix Up In Her History.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 31.—Little Rhode Island is more excited politically today than she has been at any time within her recollection. Her checkered and stormy history affords no parallel to the condition of affairs which govern her today. The new general assembly met in the state house and adjourned until today without going into grand committee, thus leaving the executive officers of the state undetermined.

Officially this morning the state has no executive officers. Officially tonight she may have two sets of state officers, thanks to the obsolete and ridiculous majority form of government.

Both parties, Republican and Democratic, are keenly sensible of the crisis, and their leaders are now bent upon consummating a reform as quickly as possible. Therefore, in both branches of the state government resolutions will be offered in the senate by a Republican, Mr. Baker of Barrington; in the house by a Democrat, Mr. Honey of Newport, providing that the constitution shall be amended in favor of plurality elections, and that the question shall be submitted to the people as a general election to be held next November.

EULALIE IS BUSY.

Today She Is Reviewing the Police Force of New York City.

NEW YORK, May 31.—The Infanta Eulalie is reviewing the police force this afternoon. General Horace Porter called for her at the Savoy and conducted her and her suite to the grand stand at the Worth monument, where the mayor received them and where they are now awaiting the police parade.

The princess has displayed a great interest in the police. She says she has never seen a body of men who present a finer appearance than they do. She was curious when she was accompanied by the park police to Grant's monument, and asked General Porter why they wore gray uniforms while the other police wore blue.

The Infanta had another busy day yesterday. Three hours at the photographer's in the morning tired her before the day was fairly begun. Then came the trip to Grant's tomb and a reception at the Hotel Savoy.

Cannot Protect Gettysburg.

HARRISBURG, May 31.—In response to a request from the house Attorney General Hensel notified that body that he knows of no action the state can take to prevent the alleged invasion of the Gettysburg battlefield by an electric railway. The line traverses streets, road and land by consent of the local authorities and owners of property, the attorney general says, and does not trench on the property of the state.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

HONEY BEES.

Some Curious Facts Concerning the Residents of a Beehive.

The habits of the bees that make our honey are well worth studying. That if you disturb them you are likely to get stung for your carelessness. Most persons can go close to a hive and see how they work with perfect security, but if you have their perpendicular and will attack some people as soon as they come near. In the cut are shown good pictures of the three kinds of bees that are found in every swarm. The slim one in the middle is the queen bee, and she is the only female that is allowed to remain in the colony. She lays all the eggs, and when she flies away all the other bees follow her.

WORKER, QUEEN AND DRONE.

The big fellow on the right is the male bee. He does no work. He cannot even get his own food, but has to be fed by the others. These bees are called drones. They are permitted to remain until the young bees are hatched, and then they are driven out of the hive. The drones cannot sting.

The little bee on the left is the one that does all the work. It is neither male nor female. It makes the comb and collects all the honey and does all the fighting. In the comb is built one large cell in which to hatch a new young queen. When it is grown, it flies out, and all the other young ones follow it and make a new swarm. They all fly away to find a new home and light wherever the young queen lights. Bees do not seem to hear very well, but their sense of smell is very acute.

Mrs. Mink and Her Family.

One day my brother and I were wandering along the banks of the Platte river in the Rocky mountains, when we came upon a pretty sight. Just under a rock sat a beautiful brown animal with a very long tail, and before her on the sand were several smaller brown creatures having a fine game of play. The mother was as large as a hare, but very long and narrow in shape, and her children were exactly like her, though very much smaller. As we watched them play in the sunshine we decided that these were the Masters and Misses Mink, and that the pretty, soft creature who sat behind was Mrs. Mink. The family did not seem to notice us, but rolled and tumbled over each other just as children do on a grassy lawn.

The minks are part of the marten family. Some of their cousins are called sables and some ermines, and the fur of both is very valuable. All the marten tribe wear two fur coats, one over the other. The under one is very short and woolly and sticks quite close to the skin, keeping the owner warm even when in the water. The outside coat has long glossy hairs, which throws off rain just as the thatch does from the roof of a house.

Most boys and girls like to bathe in the sea or in a river, but this entails a good deal of trouble in the way of dressing and undressing. The little minks, however, can spend as much time in the water as they like in their cozy nest dresses and have only to give themselves a shake to be as warm and comfortable as possible. They live on fish and have great fun in catching them. Now and then a special dainty comes in their way, if they are clever enough to pounce upon it, in the shape of a good fat frog or a nice sleek lizard.

Barnum's Famous Exhibits.

The late P. T. Barnum, the great showman, brought Jenny Lind to this country, and she was the first really great singer that came here, although many others have come since, and we have now some American singers who have become famous. Mr. Barnum, too, for many years exhibited Tom Thumb, and he was the first noted midget ever seen in this country. His real name was Charles S. Stratton. He is now dead. For a long time Mr. Barnum had men in every part of the world capturing wild animals and hunting for strange and curious things. It was he who introduced to this country Jumbo, the largest tame elephant in the world, the famous white or sacred elephant, wild men from the islands of the Pacific, large serpents and wild animals of all sorts. He was the first one to capture a whale alive and bring him to New York and exhibit him in a large tank. The whale was turned up in a fire which consumed the building.

Harry's Donkey.

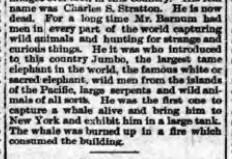
Our readers have all seen donkeys harnessed to small carts and driven about by boys just for the fun of the thing. But perhaps all have not seen these sturdy little animals at work. In the old countries the donkey is a favorite beast of burden, not only carrying persons but packs on their backs and often drawing comparatively heavy loads in carts.



DONKEY HARNESSED TO A FARM CART.

In the picture is seen a donkey hitched to a farm cart. This donkey is the property of the little boy who is leading it with a bunch of hay. Harry's father is a poor man living on a very small farm, and he has trained the donkey to draw loads just as a horse does. On the load of hay on the cart is not a very big one. Harry's sister Mary sometimes rides in the cart.

Lighting Up a Cloudy Day.

If any thing unkind you hear
About some one you know, my dear,
Do not, I pray you, repeat
When you that some one chance to meet.
For such news has a leaden way
Of clouding o'er a sunny day.

But if you something pleasant hear
About some one you know, my dear,
Make haste—to make great haste 'twere well—
To her or him the news to tell.
For such news has a golden way
Of lighting up a cloudy day.

A New York Newspaper Woman.

High up in the handsome new building of the New York World, seated at a desk in a bright, sunny office where, by the week, is a tall, handsome young woman who is doing work which it is generally supposed can only be done by a man. Go to the door of this office in the legend "Sunday World," and the brilliant faced young woman is Miss Elizabeth E. Jordan, who is not only one of the editors of The Sunday World but "makes up" the paper. To the uninitiated be it known that the "make up" is a very important part of the process of getting out a paper and is of itself a profession. It necessitates the understanding at a glance of how a page of type will appear when printed; of knowing just what matter can be thrown away when important news is received at the last moment; of understanding the mechanical process perfectly, being able to calculate time to a minute without taking time to do it, and also of being able to read type more readily and rapidly than most persons do the printed page. It was in this line Miss Jordan for some time been doing successfully.

In speaking of how she came to do this work Miss Jordan says that one day the editor came to her and said she was working and who made up the paper was very much inconvenienced by the illness of his assistant. She told him she believed she could help him, and he permitted her to try her hand at it. She was so successful that she was after a time assigned to assist regularly in the make up. In this way she became after a time familiar with the work and was able to go forward with it independently. She laughingly says that the hardest thing in connection with the beginning of this work was when the various editors came, as a matter of curiosity, to see her make up the paper.—New York Cor. Chicago Post.

A New Scheme For Fairs.

Among the new devices for making money at church fairs and other charitable entertainments is one which the originators term "The Living Library." A certain number of books are chosen beforehand, and each one is represented by some young woman who is dressed appropriately to indicate either the title of the book or some leading character therein. Each impersonator must also be thoroughly acquainted with the volume she represents, and her actions and behavior must be in accord with the character chosen.

A catalogue is prepared and furnished on application, and whenever a book is called for a certain is drawn aside, and the living copy stands revealed. The regulations usually governing "The Living Library" are that, first, all books must be secured from the librarian; second, the fee for each book shall be 10 cents for 10 minutes' use, payable in advance; third, books cannot be called for twice in succession; fourth, persons having called for and obtained the books must relinquish them upon notice from the librarian that the time paid for has reached its limit, or failing to do so shall pay at the rate of 2 cents a minute for overtime, and finally that no book can be retained for a longer period than 20 minutes.

The rules do not provide for it, but it is understood, of course, that during the busy hours of the day no book shall be taken off on a promenade through the entertainment room, and the books themselves are forbidden by the unwritten laws to drink lemonade and are too reserved between the hours of 8 and 10 at night.—Harper's Young People.

Devotion of an English Boy to His Mother.

The devotion of children, especially of sons to their mothers is one of the most charming graces of English home life.

"The mother" is a goddess to her boys.

From his earliest years the boy is taught by his father to yield implicit and instant obedience.

As soon as he can reach the door handle he must run to open the door for his mother when she enters or leaves the room. He must provide her with the most comfortable chair, he must fetch and carry for her, look after her comfort in a hundred ways, and wait on her every wish.

A hint of this service an English son renders to his mother may be had from the printed accounts of the conduct of the Prince of Wales when in state receptions he appears with the queen. It might be supposed to be mere court etiquette, but it is, in fact, the obedience of an English son to his mother.—New York Times.

Friendship of Women For Women.

Man's admiration is all very lovely, but woman's friendship is equally valuable. The flirtation of today may be off tomorrow, but the sincere regard of a woman's heart will outlive the vicissitudes of every day life. Doubtless a man likes a woman better who is a favorite of her own sex than one who openly avows her contempt for all women and whom all women similarly avoid. A woman may be the belle of the ball room, and for the time being the man may be proud to be known as one of the admirers of so popular a girl, but he is not going to marry her who hasn't some woman friends. Depend upon this, and when you think it only worth your while to be sweet and pleasant to men remember that to be really admired by the men you must be equally popular with your own sex.—Philadelphia Times.

The Mother of Phillips Brooks.

The influence of a wise and tender mother is lovingly set down in the paper in a magazine on Phillips Brooks, which his brother, the Rev. Arthur Brooks, contributes. "That love to Christ which glowed in his words and beamed in his eye was sought from a mother's lips and was read with boyish eyes as the central power of a mother's soul and life. . . . I may not say more nor lift any further the veil which separates a holy of holies into which we loved to enter with an awe which we could not understand. Loan-not say less lest I should take from young mothers and fathers a deeper light and a profounder inspiration. It necessitates the understanding at a glance of how a page of type will appear when printed; of knowing just what matter can be thrown away when important news is received at the last moment; of understanding the mechanical process perfectly, being able to calculate time to a minute without taking time to do it, and also of being able to read type more readily and rapidly than most persons do the printed page. It was in this line Miss Jordan for some time been doing successfully.

In speaking of how she came to do this work Miss Jordan says that one day the editor came to her and said she was working and who made up the paper was very much inconvenienced by the illness of his assistant. She told him she believed she could help him, and he permitted her to try her hand at it. She was so successful that she was after a time assigned to assist regularly in the make up. In this way she became after a time familiar with the work and was able to go forward with it independently. She laughingly says that the hardest thing in connection with the beginning of this work was when the various editors came, as a matter of curiosity, to see her make up the paper.—New York Cor. Chicago Post.
